New York	6 25	5 05pm

Zanesville Accommodation leaves Zanesville daily except Sunday at 6:40 a. m., and arrives at Columbus at 9:45 a. m.

Express trains run daily, other trains daily except Sunday.

L. M COLE, Gen. Tick. Agt.

Detroit, Eel River & Illinois R. R.

TAKE EFFECT JULY 1, 1877.

GOING EAST.

	No. 2	No. 4	No. 8
lv. Logansport	7 47 am	7 00	7 00
Mexico	8 27	8 17	8 27
Denver	8 22	8 25	8 00
Chili	8 45	8 39	9 20
Roann	9 05	9 00	10 05
Laketon	9 20	9 26	10 50
N. Manchester	9 41	9 50	11 15
Liberty Mills	9 40	10 05	11 37
Collamer	[illegible]	10 17	12 12pm
S. Whitley	10 09	10 32	12 [illegible]
Columbia City	10 25	11 15	1 20
Coesse	10 40	11 43	2 20
Churubusco	10 50	12 00	2 51
La Otto	11 27	12 24pm	3 33
Cedar Creek	11 29	12 46	4 10
Auburn Junct'n	11 43	1 07	4 55
Auburn	11 48	1 13	5 10
Butler	12 20pm	2 00	6 30

Going West.

	No. 1	No. 5	No. 7
Logansport ar	6 [illegible] pm	1 20pm	5 30pm
Mexico	6 16	12 00 n.	4 [illegible]
Denver	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Chili	6 04	11 35	3 00
Roann	5 47	11 12	2 40
Laketon	5 35	10 50	2 00
North Manchester	5 25	10 35	1 35
Liberty Mills	5 19	10 24	1 00
Collamer	5 05	10 05	12 30am
South Whitley	5 02	10 00	12 21
Columbia City	4 47	9 30	10 50
Coesse	4 31	8 57	9 40
Churubusco	4 14	8 42	9 20
La Otto	3 55	8 10	8 41
Cedar Creek	3 45	8 00	8 20
Auburn Junction	3 27	7 49	8 00
Auburn	3 22	7 34	7 31
Butler lv	2 45	6 55	6 30

FRANK J. BECKER,
Gen. Sup't

Ft. Wayne, Muncie & Cin. R. R.

Muncie Route.

THE SHORT LINE TO INDIANAPOLIS,
—AND—
THE SOUTHWEST.

Time Card in effect July 1st, 1877.

STATIONS.	GOING SOUTH. 1. Mail.	3. Express	5. Accom
FORT WAYNE	1 00 pm	6 35 pm
Bluffton	2 10 pm	7 43 pm
Montpelier	2 50 pm	8 18 pm
Hartford	3 20 pm	8 43 pm
MUNCIE	4 05 pm	9 35 pm	5 00 a m
Newcastle			6 35 p m
Cambridge City			7 45 p m
Connersville			8 50 p m
Cincinnati			11 40 p m
INDIANAPOLIS	5 55 pm	11 15 pm
Louisville	10 50 pm	8 30 am
Terre Haute	1 50 am	1 30 am
St. Louis	8 30 am	8 30 am

STATIONS	GOING NORTH 2 Mail	6 Express.	4 Accom.
St. Louis	6 45 pm	6 45 pm
Terre Haute	7 00 am	1 38 am
Louisville	7 35 am	7 15 pm
Cincinnati			7 00 am
Indianapolis	4 20 pm	4 20 am
Connersville			10 40 am
Cambridge City			11 44 am
New Castle			12 18 pm
Muncie	6 50 pm	7 30 am	2 30 pm
Hartford	7 28 pm	8 09 am
Montpelier	8 00 pm	8 37 am
Bluffton	8 38 pm	9 10 am
Fort Wayne	9 50 pm	10 31 am

All trains daily except Sunday. Trains run on Columbus time. Through cars attached to trains 1 and 2, and run between Fort Wayne and Indianapolis via Muncie.

GEO. W. MULLEN, Act'g Gen. Tick. Ag't.
W. W. WORTHINGTON, Gen. Sup't.

JUST RECEIV'D

—AT—

J. ABRIGHT'S

Fine Gold and Plated Jewelry.
Ladies Gold Watches,
American Watches,

Rogers & Bro. Silverware,

A splendid line of imported Vases Watch Chains, magnificent Holiday Gifts, Lockets, Ladies Sets, Gents

GOLD & SILVER SET

Sleeve and Collar Buttons, Jet Shell and Horn Jewelry, All at astonishingly

LOW PRICES.

Watches and Jewelry repaired on notice and in good style.

MEEKS & WYER,

Our energetic

PLASTERS

Will do you a good job at reasonable rates. They always give satisfaction and are prompt in their work. Those having plastering to do should give them a call. nov1 6w

---

READ THE FOLLOWING

Shearer & Wilson,

HAVING ERECTED A

STEAM PLANING MILL

Are now prepared to do all kinds of

Plaining,
Surfacing,
Matching Flooring
Scroll Work,
Mouldings,
Re-Sawing, &c.

DOORS AND SASH!

We are adding facilities for the manufacture of doors and sash to order, and will give special attention to this branch.

CONTRACTORS.

We also make a specialty of contracting for the erection of residences, barns and other buildings, and guarantee good work at reasonable figures. Mill on South Jackson Street, Auburn, Indiana.

SHEARER & WILSON.

Recorder's Office

THE AUBURN COURIER.

Devoted to the Interests of the Democratic Party and to the Collection of Local and General News.

Volume 7. AUBURN, DeKALB COUNTY INDIANA, AUGUST 23rd, 1877. Number 34.

The Auburn Weekly Courier

PUBLISHED EVERY THURSDAY, BY

TOM. C. MAYS.

One Year..........[illegible] | Six months,.......

Advertising Rates.

Space.	1m.	3m.	6m.	1y.
1 Square	2 00	5 00	7 00	12 00
¼ Column........	8 00	12 00	18 00	30 00
½ Column........	10 00	18 00	30 00	50 00
1 Column........	15 00	30 00	50 00	100 00

Local Notices 10 cents per line, first insertion 5 cents each insertion thereafter. Business cards Five Dollars.

BUSINESS DIRECTORY.

ATTORNEYS.

WOODHULL and CROXTON,

ATTORNEYS AT LAW Angola, Indiana. Practice in Steuben and DeKalb Counties.

H. C. PETERSON,

ATTORNEY AT LAW and notary public. Office over Davis' hardware store, Auburn, Ind.

J. W. RICKEL,

ATTORNEY AT LAW Auburn, Ind. Special attention given to collections. Office over First National Bank.

A. F. PINCHIN

ATTORNEY AT LAW and notary public, Butler, DeKalb Co., Ind. Insurance and real estate business promptly attended to.

GUY PLUM

ATTORNEY AT LAW and notary public. Office in the Court House. Special attention paid to the collection of claims. Also agent for Home Insurance Company.

D. D. MOODY. F. V. HOFFMAN.

Moody and Hoffman,

ATTORNEYS AT LAW. Office in Odd Fellows' building, opposite Court House, Auburn, Ind.

BEST and McCLELLAN.

ATTORNEYS AT LAW, Waterloo, Ind. Will practice in the Courts of DeKalb & Steuben counties. Liberal Advances Made on all first-class Claims left in our hands for collection.

COURTS IN STEUBEN CO.	COURTS IN DEKALB CO.
1st Monday in February	3rd Monday in Feb.
4th Monday in April	2nd Monday in May
1st Monday in September	3rd Monday in Sep.
[illegible] Monday in November	2nd Monday in Dec.

M. WES. M'BRIDE, J. L. MORLAN, W. H. LEAS

McBRIDE, MORLAN and LEAS

ATTORNEYS AT LAW, NOTARIES PUBLIC, COLLECTING AND INSURANCE AGENCY. Office over Fish[illegible] Clothing Store, corner of Wayne and Marion Streets, Waterloo, Ind. Will practice in all parts of the State. Especial Attention given to collections in DeKalb, Steuben, Lagrange and Noble counties.

COURTS IN DEKALB CO.	COURTS IN STEUBEN CO.
4th Monday in February	1st Monday in Febr'y.
3rd Monday in May.	4th Monday in April.
4th Monday in Septem'r	1st Monday in Sept'r.
3rd Monday in Decem'r	4th Monday in Nov'r.

PHYSICIANS.

DR. J. A. COWAN,

PHYSICIAN & SURGEON, Auburn, Ind. Office on Main street, over Central Grocery.

J. J. LITTLEFIELD,

PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON. Office over McIntyre's Block, Auburn, Ind. All calls promptly attended to.

W. S. ALLEN.

PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON, Office West of Court House, on Main Street, over Eldridge's store. Same office lately occupied by Dr. Cowan.

DR. TRITCH,

HOMEOPATHIC PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON Special attention given to Surgery and Chronic diseases. Office in Case's Block, Auburn Indiana.

DR. S. B. JOHNSTON.

DENTIST, WATERLOO, INDIANA, Does all work in the line of his profession at as low figures as possible. Special attention given to gold filling and making new teeth. All work warranted.

HOTELS.

AVELINE HOUSE,

MILLER & MORITZ, Prop's., corner Calhoun & Berry Sts., Fort Wayne, Ind.

BUTT'S HOTEL,

FORMERLY THE BIGLER HOUSE. JOHN BUTT & A. B. RICHARDS, Proprietors, Waterloo, Ind. Free omnibus to and from all trains Good sample rooms on first floor.

Central House,

MR. M. C. MARKEL, Prop. Corner Main and Seventh streets. Good Sample Rooms for Drummers.

MAYER HOUSE.

FORT WAYNE, IND., Messrs TAM & SCARBROUGH Lessees. Good Sample Rooms

SANDS HOUSE.

COR. WABASH AVE. & MADISON ST. CHICAGO, ILL. New House, elegantly furnished. Only $2.00 per day.
GEO. S. PALMER, O. SANDS,
[Late of City Hotel,] Clerk. Proprietor

MISCELLANEOUS.

DRS. SEBRING & SWARTS.

HAVING formed a Copartnership for the practice of Medicine and surgery, offer their professional sevices to the citizens of Auburn and vicinity. Will give prompt and faithful attention to all business pertaining to their profession. Special attention given to Chronic Diseases of females and diseases of the eye and ear. One of said firm to be in the office on Saturdays. Office on Main street. Over Shaffer's Furniture Room.

DRS. D. A. SEBRING, & D. J. SWARTS, M. D.

H. Wartenslaben

PAINTER and paper hanger. House painting a specialty. Residence corner Williams and Cedar street.

PRINTING.

COURIER OFFICE.

JOB PRINTING neatly executed. Fine work a specialty. Office in Odd Fellows' Building 2nd floor.

Come to Auburn when you want to buy a good piano, and M. F. Long Co., will sell you one as low as the lowest.

GREAT BARGAINS —IN— STRAW HATS!

Silk Hats, Soft Hats, Stiff Hats, Boys and Childrens Hats, Caps, and Gents' Furnishing Goods of every description at

STUTZENBERGER & LOMONT'S,

34 CALHOUN STREET, FORT WAYNE, IND.

FIRST NATIONAL BANK.

The First National Bank of Auburn Indiana tenders to the citizens of DeKalb county its facilities for the transaction of business. We loan money, receive deposits subject to check at sight or payable at a fixed date with a stipulated rate of interest. Sell exchange on New York, Chicago, Toledo and Fort Wayne procure such foreign exchange as may be desired, buy exchange and make collections on all available points, and do all usual and ordinary business done by first class banks. We will also take on deposit for safekeeping valuable papers such as deeds mortgages, notes bonds, agreements etc., guardians, administrators, trustees and all other handling trust funds together with merchants, manufacturers and farmers are solicited to open an account with us. We will deal liberally with all who call.

J. H. FORD, President.
JAMES V. HAZZARD, Cashier.

Excursion to the Rocky Mountains.

The Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe Railroad has arranged with the various railroad lines in the country for special round trip rates to the Rocky Mountains, and has secured the following rates to Denver, Colorado Springs, Canon City, Puelo and return; from Kansas City and Atchison, $45; St. Louis, $50; Chicago, $65; Quincy, $50; Cincinnatti, $65: Buffalo, $75, and correspondingly low rates from all points east, north and south These tickets are good for 90 days and to stop at all stations west of the Missouri river. Tickets are on sale at all principal stations throughout the country. This is the new route to Denver through the garden of Kansas and Colorado. Send for maps, circulars, time tables, etc., to

T. J. ANDERSON,
Gen. Pass. Agent, Topeka, Kan.

A Few Words of Wisdom.

For all who are seeking new homes in the West. If you are going to change your location, by all means you should keep on about the same latitude as where you formerly lived for in this way you will escape the severe climatic changes in the weather incident to the extreme North or South, having none of these things to contend with, your self and family are healthy and you become a producer at once, consequently soon independent; on the other hand should you listen to the many glowing accounts of the sunny South, or the mild climate of the North, and thus be induced to try your fortunes there, you will find the reality is not all your fancy painted it. If you go South it usually takes about two years to get acclimated to the climate, during which time, not being able to work, yourself and family are consumers, besides being constantly exposed to the malarial fevers which abound there, and the experience of many is that they return discouraged, leaving not a few loved ones beneath the sod in the sunny South. Therefore, in going West keep on about the same latitude which will insure health and happiness. There are most excellent lands in Northern Missouri on the line of the Hannibal & St. Jo. R. R. and in Kansass, Nebraska and Colorado, "just as cheap and good as the sun ever shown upon," why not accept a certainty rather than run the risk of losing all? Through day and sleeping cars are run from Toledo, Ohio, via the Wabash R'y and Quincy to St. Jo., Atchison and Kansas city, and from Chicago via Chicago, Burlington & Quincy R. R., whereby all are furnished firstclass accomodations.

Send for map and time-table to J. A. S. Reed, 59 Clark street, Chicago, C. W. Boardman, Decatur, Ill., or T. Penfield, G P. and T. A., Hanibal, Mo.

We are sure our farmer friends do not know the value of the Nickel Steel Plow now made at Butler, by Leonard & Co. Those who have tried them pronounce them superior to anything yet introduced. We mention this more from the fact that it is an article made at home, and if as good even as those of foreign make, our farmers should give it the preference. Call at Ensley's Agricultural Depot and examine them. You have a chance to try them before you buy, and the prices are as low as on other plows. 6t

Moral Character.

There is nothing which adds so much to the beauty and power of man, as a good moral character. It is his wealth—his influence—his life. It dignifies him in every station exalts him in every condition, and glorifies him at every period of life. Such a character is more to be desired than everything else on earth. It makes a man free and independent. No servile tool—croaking sycophant—no treacherous honor-seeker ever bore such a character. The pure joys of truth and righteousness never spring in such a person. If young men but knew how much a good character would dignify and exalt them, how glorious it would make their prospects even in this life; never should we find them yielding to base born purposes of human nature.

A good anecdote is told of a man named Bently, a most confirmed drunkard, who would never drink with a friend, or in public, and always bitterly denied, when caught a little too steep, over tasting liquor! One day some bad witnesses concealed themselve in his room and when the liquor was running down his throat, seized him with his arm bent and mouth open, and holding him fast, ask him with an air of triumph—"Ah, Bently, have we caught you at last—you never drink, eh?" Now, one would have supposed that Bently would have acknowledged the corn. Not he!—with the most grave and inexpressible face he calmly and in a dignified manner, said; "Gentlemen, my name is not Bently!"

Don't Lose a Minute.

Keep busy. The man who has nothing to do is the most miserable of beings. If you have no regular work do chores as farmers do when it rains too hard to work in the field, in occupation we forget our troubles, and get a respite from sorrow. The man whose mind and hands are busy finds no time to weep and wail. If work is slack, spend the time in reading. No man ever knew to much. The hardest students in the world are the old men who know the most. If you lack books, there are free or very cheap libraries, at least in cities, at your command. The man who does not acquire some item of useful information between daybrake and bedtime must mournfully say, with the Roman Emperor "I have lost a day."

A Civil Service Examinatin.—In these days, when civil service reform is agitating the bosom of the politician, it may not be out of place to present, for the consideration of aspirants for place at Washington, the following dialogue that occurred some years ago between Judge C—— and a candidate for door-keeper of the House.

[Enter candidate, who supposes the judge to be a member.]

Candidate. "If you please, Sir, I wish to be elected door-keeper of the House, and if you will be so good as to vote for me I will try to—"

Judge. "Take a seat, Sir, and I will examine you."

Candidate. "Yes, Sir, if you please"

Judge. (gravely). "Have you ever been a door-keeper?"

Candidate. "No, Sir; but I trust your vote and—"

Judge. "Have you ever been instructed in the responsible and arduous duties of door-keeping?"

Candidate. "No, Sir; but would like to be."

Judge. "Have you ever attended lectures on door keeping?"

Candidate. "Why, no; I never heard of any."

Judge. (stearnly). "Have you ever read a book on the science of door-keeping?"

Candidate. "I never did, Sir; but I would, if—"

Judge. "Have you ever conversed with one who has read such a book?"

Candidate. "No, Sir; but I certainly will."

Judge. (solemnly). "Do you not see, Sir, that you have not a single qualification for the office?"

[Exit candidate, resolved to go home and give it up.]—Editor's Drawer, in Harper's Magazine for September.

What is a Registered Letter.

The question is very often asked. What is the difference between a registered letter and any other? The difference is that a registered letter does not go in the mail proper. It passes from hand to hand out side the mail pouches, every person through whose hands it passes being required to sign a receipt for it on receiving it, and secure a receipt for it on passing it over to the next transit. The person holding the last receipt is thus always able to show who is accountable for the loss. The responsibility rests upon the man who has signed a receipt for the registered package and who is not able to produce the package or a receipt from somebody else for it. The safest way to send money is by money-order. Where it does not go to a money-order office it should always be sent in a registered package. Money ought not to be sent in an ordinary letter under any circumstances. There is no possible way of "tracking" such a letter.

Wonders of Art.

"What's this, mister?" said a curious countryman, who was wandering through a Washington street jeweler's store, as he spoke he rang a statue of Mercury with his horny knuckles.

"That," said the attendant, "is Mercury," and he passed on to wait upon a customer.

The ruralist gazed for a moment with open mouth at the bronze representation of the messenger of the gods, and then beckoned to a companion at the other end of the store, to whom he said:

"Jim, what do you suppose that ere figger is?"

"I dunno;" responded Jim, in turn giving it a resounding rap, "bronze, hain't it.

"No," said the other, "tain't it's quicksilver."

"Wha-at! the stuff they put in thermometers? Wa-al, I am durned. What'll they do next?"

And after another long look the couple moved on impressed with the wonders of art.

Do Not Face the Light When at Work.

Statistics kept by oculists employed in infirmaries for eye diseases have shown that the habit of some persons in facing a window from which the light falls directly in the eyes as will as on the work, injure their eyes in the end. The best way is to work with a side light, or, if the work needs strong illumination, so that it is necessary to have the working table before the window, the lower portion of the latter should be covered with a screen, so as to have a top light alone, which does not shine in the eyes when the head is slightly bent over and downward toward the work.

In the schools in Germany this matter has already been attended to and the rule adopted to have all the seats and tables so arranged that the pupils never face the windows, but only have the side lights from the left; and as a light simultaneously thrown from two sides gives an intereference of shadows, it has been strictly forbidden to build school rooms with windows on both sides, such illumination having also proved injurious to the eyes of the pupils.

We may add to this the advice not to place the lamp in front of you when at work in the evening, but a little on one side; and never to neglect the use of a shade, so as to prevent the strong light shining in the eyes. This is especially to be considered at the present time, when kerosene lamps, with their intensely luminous flames, become more and more common.—Medical Journal.

Boys and Home.

Make home a pleasant place for your boys. Do not be so afraid of your best parlor that they may not use it. Let them have plenty of warmth and light, and entertaining books to read, and musical instruments, and any parlor games they like. Girls will stay at home if home be the dullest place under the moon, but boys will not. If their young companions are banished, if they are checked when they laugh, or sing, or make a noise, if they may not have the innocent freedom that they need, under the parents roof, then they will have freedom of some sort elsewhere. And there are always enough ready to beckon them to places where the bloom is brushed from youth's round cheek. A young man will squeeze a little "fun" out of his life, and, if you want him to be a credit to you and to himself, make it possible for him to enjoy himself in his home. Let the home be a place to live and breathe in, not merely a roof under which he may eat and sleep.

Canon & Foltz.

House, Sign, Carriage and Ornamental painters, will attend promptly to all orders left at their shop, in the old post-offices building. Paper hanging a specialty.

The Tramp Printer's Story.

It was in the palmy days of the art typographical, when, one evening, in the comp. room of the paper, Pittsburgh, the famous "One-Eyed Jersey" arose from his seat on the lower rail of the frame on which he was subbing for the night and observed in reply to a remark dropped by one of the boys.

"Yes, you bet, us tramps see some queer adventures. But I must tell you of a trip I took with "Dirty-Shirt Brown."

You all rememeber what a tough time it was just after the Indianapolis strike. Well, at that time "Dirty-Shirt Brown" and myself took a magnificent parade out of Detroit—dead broke, of course—but we beat printing offices and freight trains till we got to Ashtabula, Ohio, when we struck everything dead—Sunday evening, print-shops locked up, and no chance to make a freight train. So we started for Erie on foot in the midst of a cold drizzly rain. We got there the next morning—about sun-up of a cold morning in December—both hungry as wolves after our two day's fast, when I espied a fine mansion in the environs, surrounded by an elegant lawn, and an idea strck me:

"Say, Browney, you squat against yon big tree and I'll strike the old bondholder up in the big house for some chuck, for I am about famished."

"Hurry up, then," he growled, for "Dirty-Shirt Brown" is the most woe begone disconsolate wretch on a hard tramp you ever saw.

I bounded across the lawn, up to the door, and gave the bell a pull, which brought a neat Irish servant girl to the door. I inquired for the lady of the house, when the girl respectfully invited me to go in until she called the madame. In view of my dilapidated appearance I declined the unexpected honor and waited on the threshold until the madame, a cheery, comfortable-looking body, made her appearance. I briefly and modestly stated my wants (saying nothing of Browney) when she exclaimed:

"Why, certainly, my poor boy; walk in; the table is not yet cleared off! and she led me a not unwilling march to an elegant dining room, sat me down to the well-loaded table, poured me out a huge cup of coffee, and bid me eat hearty. I needed no further encouragement so to do, and the kind lady took her sewing and sat down by the fireplace and talked of how hard it was to be away from home and out of work. But I was not so busy engaged in eating that I failed to notice a pretty child, a little girl of some six summers, who was alternantly building block-houses and listening to her mother. Presently she got up and left the room, and just as I was finishing she returned. Coming up to my chair, so modest and bashful like, she timidly placed a new silver quarter beside my plate, and without saying a word ran and buried her face in her mother's lap. Boys, I've seen a heap of the ups and downs of life, but never did I have anything go so straight to my heart as that simple act of this sweet little child. The tears sprang to my eyes, and involuntarily I exclaimed:

"Bid her to take it back, ma'am! Bid her to take it back! Hardened as I am, I cannot take money from one so pure and spotless from the wicked world. Do make her take it back!"

"Oh, no, indeed, sir," replied the kind lady, "you must keep the money. In your present distress it will do you more good than it ever will her; besides I wish to teach her such little acts of kindnyss that she may grow up a good Christian woman in after life."

Thus urged, with many heartfelt thanks I picked up the coin, bowed myself out of the house and hastened to rejoin Browny, whom I knew would be cursing my delay from the bottom of his misanthropic heart. Hastily brushing away all tears, I got up within hailing distance, when he yelled at me:

"Why'n h—ll didn't you stay all winter?"

Not venturing to betray my past agitation by attempting to reply, I advanced to where he was sitting, when he asked, with the air of a man who expected nothing and would not be disappointed for anything:

"Well, what luck, old pard?"

Without saying a word I held out the new quarter-dollar, fresh and bright from her pure little hands. The effect upon Browny was electrical. He came to his feet with one bound, and with eyes riveted on my outstretched palm, he exclaimed:

"Jee whiz! Bully for you, Jersey! Twenty-five cents! Why, just enough for drinks!"

Ice For Sale.

Messrs. Houston & Co., having put up several hundred tons of most splendid ice, are now ready to supply our citizens for the summer at reasonable rates.—With their delivery wagon they will put it down at your door in any quantity you may desire. tf

The Public Schools.

The public schools of Auburn will open for a term of ten weeks on Sept. 3d.

The following corps of teachers now employed: For Superintendent, M. Seiler; Asst. in high school, Miss Lida A. Powers; A and B intermediate grades Mrs. A. E. Thomas; C and D intermediate grades, Miss Maggie A. Tower; A and B Primary grades, Miss Alice Widney; C and D Primary grades, Miss M. B. Tritch.

WARD BUILDING.

A and B primary grades, Miss L. E. Clark; C and D primary grads, Miss L. McTigh.

In the high school department a preparatory class will be sustained, the work of which will be confined to the common school branches.

The regular high school classes will do work in Latin and English languages Natural Philosophy, Mathematical and Physical Geography, High and Elementary Algebra and Book-keeping.

We cheerfully throw open to foreign pupils all the advantages which our schools afford, at the following rates of tuition: High School, $5.00 per term of ten weeks; Intermediate grades, $3.00 per term of ten weeks; Primary grades, $3.00 per term ten weeks

WM. MCINTYRE,
J. W. RICKEL, } Trustees.
F. E. DAVENPORT,

Whitney's Musical Guest, for August, is at hand. The literary part consists of a well written article upon "The English language as a language for music," the conclusion of a series of interesting chapters upon the musical portion is a comic song entitled "The Queer old Bachelor," by Wm. T. Meyer and is just published in sheet form; price 30c. It is a good one, also a choice selection from Crystal Songs, the new Sunday School singing book, a fine piano piece, "Warbling Birds," by Billema, price 75c. in sheet form an another piece entitled "Fire Bell March."

The Guest is a valuable journal for the amount of money it costs the subscriber. Regular subscription price, $1.10 a year. Single copy 25 cents.

Address, W. W. WHITNEY
Publisher, Toledo, O.

Have You Dyspepsia.

With its attendant troubles, constipation, headache loss of appetite, gloominess, waterbrash, distress after eating, etc.? If so, take DaCosta's Radical Cure and be well. Its result is astonishing, and sure relief is gauranteed in every case, where it is used as directed. It assists digestion, tones up the stomach, strengthens the debilitated, restores a natural appetite, and as a liver regulator has equal. A clergyman of Philadelyhia says: It is the very fountain of health. To all who are suffering from a disordered stomach or liver, or who need a gentle Spring or Summer tonic, we say try it, and you will thank us for the advice. Trial size 25 cents. Sold by F. E. Davenport.

Also agent for Prof. Parks pleasant worm syrup, which is sure death to worms. Pleasant to take and requires no phisic. Price 25 cents. Try it.

$500 REWARD!

For the discovery of any one who will sell goods as cheap as they are sold at E. E. Williams' old stand, the Auburn Fruit House.

FOUND DEAD!

Verdict of the Jury! "Death from exhaustion." Upon inquiry it was found that he had bought his groceries from the bankrupt stock lately owned by E. E. Williams, at 50 per cent. below cost and consequently overloaded himself and death ensued as above stated.

Auction Sale of Real-Estate.

Notice is hereby given, that I, as trustee of the creditors of Christopher Baker and Charles Baker, will sell at public auction, to the highest responsible bidder, on Monday, August 27, 1877, the individual real-estate of Christopher Baker, situated in DeKalb county, Indiana, and described as follows, to-wit: Lot number 128 in original plat of the town of Auburn, DeKalb county, Ind.

TERMS.—One-third in hand, one-third in six months and the remainder in one year from day of sale, with interest. Also at the same time one fire proof safe. THOS. H. SPROTT, Trustee.

Attention Farmers and Seed Dealers!

The Diamond Wheat is the largest in the world. It grows and matures in any climate in the United States. The grains average nearly one-half inch in length. One grain produces from 25 to 85 stalks, with heads averaging from 7 to 9 inches, and each head containing about 40 grains. In order to introduce this wheat I will send a small sample to every reader of this paper free of charge. Agents are wanted in every county. Write to me at once. Address W. S. Tipton, Cleveland, Tenn.

AUBURN COURIER.

THURSDAY, AUGUST 23, 1877.

THE NEWS CONDENSED.

THE EAST.

About sixty conductors on the Second avenue horse-car line, in New York, have been arrested on a charge of "beating the bell punch" and pocketing the proceeds of the cheat.

There was a big and a patriotic gathering at Bennington, Vt., on the 15th and 16th inst., to celebrate the centennial anniversary of the battle fought [illegible] the 100th anniversary of the birth of Vermont as a State. Gunpowder, music, processions, banquets, speeches, and a general exuberance of spirits, were the features of the occasion. The crowd, estimated at 50,000, included President Hayes and many other distinguished personages.

THE WEST.

A report from Lincoln, Neb., says millions of grasshoppers have been flying over that vicinity. They were going in every direction, but not lighting in any locality in sufficient numbers to cause any uneasiness.... San Francisco has been visited by a destructive conflagration. Two blocks of buildings, mostly small retail shops, were burned. Loss estimated at $150,000.... Latest crop reports from Illinois, Wisconsin, Iowa, Michigan, Indiana, Minnesota, Nebraska, Ohio, Missouri and Kansas are favorable both in point of yield and successful harvesting. In some quarters farmers are reported as withholding their grain from market, expecting to realize better prices than are now offered.

The Ohio editors will hold their annual meeting at Toledo Sept. 20-21. Joseph Medill, of the Chicago Tribune, will deliver the annual address, and William D. Gallagher, of Louisville, Ky., will read a poem.... The yacht Pamlico capsized and sunk in the harbor of Chicago, a few days ago. Four men were on board, all of whom were drowned.

Senator Morton returned home from Oregon in a sad physical condition. The Indianapolis Journal says, "there were grave apprehensions at one time that he would not get home alive. The left arm is paralyzed, but the physicians think only temporarily. Should his arm continue paralyzed, he will be rendered helpless, as he has only been able to walk by support of canes. Dr. Thompson thinks that in time he will recover the use of his arm, but, for the present, he will be permitted to see no one except his family."... An order for the release of Joyce, the only member of the St. Louis whisky ring remaining in prison, was made by the United States District Court for the Western district of Missouri, last week. Joyce was separately sentenced on each of the three counts of the indictment on which he was convicted. He has served out the term of the sentence first pronounced, and the court held that the cumulative sentences were illegal.

Chauncey Rose, the richest and most benevolent man in Terre Haute, Ind., is dead. He leaves a fortune of $5,000,000. He was a practical philanthropist, and in the course of his life gave over $2,000,000 to charities and private beneficence.

The Colorado Central railroad has been completed to Georgetown.... The National Grand Lodge of Druids was in session at Milwaukee last week.

SOUTH.

The Georgia Constitutional Convention, by a vote of 116 to 15, has inhibited the payment of the bonds issued by the Bullock Government during the reconstruction days. They aggregate about $8,000,000.... United States Marshal Purnell was recently shot and fatally wounded by Frank Britton, at Austin, Texas.

Gen. Halliday, the Democratic nominee for Governor of Virginia, is called the armless hero. He lost both arms in the Confederacy.

A band of fifteen Mexican greasers recently crossed into Texas, entered Rio Grande City, broke open the jail, shot Judge Cox and the jailor, and released two notorious outlaws. The civil authorities called upon the military for assistance, and Col. Price with 100 regulars and two Gatling guns started in pursuit of the Mexicans, but failed to overtake them. They recrossed the river and entered Mexico seventy-seven miles below Rio Grande.

WASHINGTON.

The President left Washington on Monday, Aug. 13, to be absent a week or ten days in Vermont and New Hampshire. He was accompanied by Secretaries Evarts, McCrary, Key and Devens. In September the President will go to Ohio, remaining a few days at his home in Fremont, after which he will visit Kentucky, Tennessee and Southwestern Virginia.... It has been decided by the administration that two or three commissioners shall be sent to Canada, to negotiate for the return of Sitting Bull and his band to the American side of the line.

William J. Murtagh, proprietor of the National Republican, was cowhided a few mornings ago, in front of his office by Joseph H. Wheatley, of Harrodsburg, Ky., on account of articles which appeared in that paper reflecting upon his private character.

The Cabinet, at a meeting held the other day, authorized Gen. Terry and a civilian in Government service to represent the United States in treating with Canada for the return of Sitting Bull. The Cabinet also considered the Rio Grande troubles at some length. It was announced that the Governor of Texas would demand of the Mexican authorities culprits who crossed from the Mexican side to Rio Grande City on the 12th, broke open the jail and committed other depredations. The Cabinet approves the action of the Governor under the extradition treaty.

GENERAL.

Capt. Brown, of the United States Engineer Corps, has inspected the Eads jetties at the mouth of the Mississippi river, and pronounces the work a substantial success.

A deputation of leading Chinamen recently called on Senator Morton, in San Francisco, and invoked him to secure the passage through Congress of a bill providing for a modification or abrogation of the Burlingame treaty, and imposing a tax of $100 upon every Mongol landing on American shores. They also request the steamship company to double the passage rates for Chinese coming to San Francisco, while fixing a lower price for those who wish to go home. Mr. Morton promised to introduce in the Senate the desired legislation.

The Panama Star and Herald announces the total loss of the Pacific Steam Navigation Company's steamer Eten, Capt. Coalhupe, on the morning of the 15th of July, at Los Vilos, seventy miles north of Valparaiso. Fourteen bodies had been recovered. Forty-three of the crew and passengers had reached the shore in safety, and twenty were still on the rocks. A British war vessel and a Chilian gunboat went to the scene of the wreck as soon as it was reported, but were unable to render any assistance owing to the rough weather and fog. Survivors on the rocks, from exposure and want of food, threw themselves into the sea to end their misery. Only three of these were saved. The total number of lives lost by the disaster is about 100.... United States Marshal Purnell, of Texas, who was recently shot at Austin, in that State, by Frank Britton, was originally from Indiana, and is a son-in-law of Bishop Ames.

Riotous proceedings of the miners and other disaffected laborers in Pennsylvania continue. There is also some trouble in the coal regions of Maryland.... An English steamer has just sailed from New Haven with a full cargo of ammunition of American manufacture for the Turks.

The syndicate business is not flourishing just now. The large home subscriptions for the 4 per cent. loan seem to have glutted the market, and bonds are offered in New York at a fraction below cost to the syndicate. The surplus bonds will be absorbed by permanent investors before long, and then probably the work of the syndicate will be successfully resumed.

INDIAN NEWS.

Advices from the seat of the Indian war in Montana state that Gibbon, with his force, had gone to Deer Lodge with the wounded in the late battle, leaving one company of infantry with Gen. Howard. The latter had started in pursuit of Chief Joseph's band. The bodies of 41 dead Indians had been found, 15 of whom were bucks, the balance squaws and children. Following is a complete list of Gen. Gibbon's killed and wounded:

Killed—Seventh Infantry, Company A—Capt. Logan, Private Smith. Company C—First Lieut. James H. Bradley. Company D—Corporal William H. Payne, Corporal Isaac Eisenhort, Musician Michael Gallagher. Company E—Private Mathew Batterly. Company F—Privates Wm. D. Pomeroy and James Maggins. Company G—First Sergt. Robert L. Edgeworth, Sergt. Wm. H. Martin, Corporal Robert E. Sale, Corporal Dominick O'Connor, Privates Gottlieb Mantle, John O'Brien. Company H—Private Mackenzie D. Dake. Company I—Sergt. Michael Hogan, Corporal Dan McCafferty, Private Herman Broutz. Company K—First Sergt. Fred Strojh, Musician Thos. Stinebecker, Artificer John Kleiss. Second Cavalry, Company L—Sergt. Ed Hogan.

Officers Wounded—Gen. Gibbon, slightly; Capt. Williams, slightly; First Lieut. Wm. L. English, seriously; Second Lieutenant C. A. Woodruff, slightly.

Citizens Killed—L. C. Elliott, John Armstrong, David Morrow, Alvin Lockwood, Campbell, Mitchell.

Thirty enlisted men and citizens were wounded.

Information has been received at military headquarters in Chicago that a portion of Gen. Miles' command in the Yellowstone country is in hot pursuit of a large party of Indians, and are driving them in the direction of Standing Rock agency.... A dispatch from Ottawa, Canada, says the commission appointed by the United States Government to proceed to Fort Walsh will be afforded every facility for making a treaty with Sitting Bull for his peaceable return to the reservation with his tribe.... A fight recently occurred in Mexico between the Kickapoo and Lipan tribes of Indians, in which seventeen Lipans were killed.... It is announced from Washington that the President contemplates a change in the Indian policy, and that some of the features of the Canadian system will probably be adopted.

POLITICAL.

West Virginia, at an election held on the 7th inst., voted on the capital-removal question, but failed to decide anything. Three places were voted for—Martinsburg, Clarksburg, and Charleston. As neither of the places received a majority of all the votes cast, another election will be held in sixty days, in which the two towns receiving the largest vote on Tuesday will be voted for.... The Virginia Democrats have nominated Frederick W. M. Halliday for Governor.... A Cincinnati dispatch says the workingmen's movement is growing to formidable proportions in Ohio. Legislative tickets are to be placed in the field in nearly every county, and a State ticket will also be placed in nomination. The movement is not confined to the working classes in the towns, but is extending to the farmers in the rural districts.

A State convention of the Workingmen's party in Ohio was held at Cincinnati last week. A platform was adopted, and the following ticket nominated: For Governor, L. H. Bond, of Cincinnati; Lieutenant Governor, Francis Skarde, of Cleveland; State Treasurer, L. H. Hine, of Loveland; Clerk of the Supreme Court, Henry Arnsperger, of Cincinnati; Board of Public Works, P. G. McGeeney, of Xenia; School Commissioner, Peter H Clark, of Cincinnati.

Washington telegram: "Mr. Blaine, in a letter received here, expresses an apprehension that the Southern policy of President Hayes will be lost sight of in the agitation of the labor troubles. He intimates that he will endeavor to keep on top in the agitation of the labor question. He states that he is fully satisfied with the Maine Republican Convention. Butler appears to be training for a workingmen's candidate in the House, and Philadelphia men have written to him letters urging him to be their candidate."

The Democratic State Convention of Maine met at Portland on the 14th of August, and on the third ballot nominated Joseph H. Williams, of Augusta, for Governor. Resolutions were adopted reaffirming the platform and principles of the St. Louis Convention, characterizing as monstrous the political fraud which resulted in the reversal of the election of Samuel J. Tilden as President, and asking an amendment to the constitution which will make a repetition impossible, and finally declaring "that the restoration to the common rights of citizenship of the people of three Southern States long kept subject to military occupation is a just acknowledgment of the wisdom of Democratic principles; that the Democratic party acts upon principle, makes no factious opposition, and opposes only what is wrong in the administration in possession of the Government."... The Greenback party of New Jersey held their State Convention at Trenton, last week, and nominated Gen. Thomas D. Hoxey for Governor. The resolutions demand an immediate repeal of the Resumption act, attributing to it the contraction of the currency and the general distress of the country, and warn workingmen that it is part of the conspiracy of the money power to pauperize and then disfranchise labor. All parties who desire relief from the present burdens are invited to join. The resolutions also denounced the demonetization of silver and demanded the repeal of the law.

Calls have been issued for national and State political conventions and conferences as follows: Wednesday, Aug 29, Iowa Democratic, in Marshalltown; Wednesday, Sept. 5, Pennsylvania Republican, in Harrisburg; Tuesday, Sept. 11, Wisconsin Republican, in Madison; Wednesday, Sept. 12, Massachusetts Prohibitionist, in Worcester, and Pennsylvania Prohibitionist, in Harrisburg; Thursday, Sept. 13, Massachusetts Democratic, in Worcester; Wednesday, Sept. 19, Massachusetts Republican, in Worcester; Thursday, Sept. 20, Maryland Republican, in Baltimore; Wednesday, Sept. 26, National Convention of Representative Colored Men, in Washington; National Conference of Prohibitionists at Perry Street M. E. Church, New York city.... The State Committee of the Independent party, of New York, has issued a call for a State Convention. It asks for the immediate consideration of the platform and resolutions adopted in the National Convention at Indianapolis, May 11, 1876, denounces the Resumption act and asks for its repeal, and denounces the issue of 4½ per cent. bonds as a barefaced robbery of the people out of $18,000,000. Laws to sustain labor are called for, and to control railroad and other moneyed monopolies.

The latest returns from the recent special election in West Virginia indicate that on the question of a permanent location of the capital of that State, Charleston received a majority. The provisions of the law under which the election was held, however, will keep the seat of government at Wheeling until the spring of 1885.

Judge West, Republican candidate for Governor, opened the Ohio campaign in a speech at Bellefontaine last week. He discussed the relations between capital and labor, held that their interests were identical if properly and intelligently considered, advocated a system of graded compensation and semi-co-operation and the establishment of a National Bureau of Industry. On the question of finance, he was in favor of the remonetization of silver, and opposed to the further issue of legal-tender notes. He was in favor of a "continuous and steady progress to specie payment," but a return to coin payments through contraction he declared to be simply suicidal. While refraining from indorsing the President's Southern policy, he believed in giving it a fair and honest trial.

THE TURKO-RUSSIAN WAR.

The Russian Grand Duke Nicholas narrowly escaped capture at Eski-Saghra.... Ahmed Pasha, who surrendered Nikopolis to the Russians, has committed suicide.... Dysentery and malarial fever are decimating the ranks of the Russians in the Dobrudscha.... The Czar is making gigantic preparations to retrieve the late disasters to his arms at Plevna. Reinforcements to the number of 100,000, all picked regiments, and 250 cannon are being hurried to the front with all possible speed.

The war correspondent of the London Daily News, who is in high favor with the Russian military authorities, telegraphs to his paper that the reinforcements for the Russian army will require more time to reach the front than was at first supposed, and that consequently it will be impossible to conclude the war during the present year. Great battles will be fought, [illegible] mountains. The hope entertained by the Russians of being able to advance on Adrianople at once has been postponed, and the aim of the Russian Generals now is to sweep Bulgaria, north of the Balkans, clear of the Turkish armies. The passes of the Balkans are to be held at all hazards, a strong position being taken up for this purpose at Kasanlik.... Russia experiences serious difficulty in filling the ranks of the landwehr in consequence of the reluctance with which men come forward. With a view to obviate this the Government has issued notice that the men will not be required to go to the front, but merely take the place at home of the reserves and garrison troops. In Russian Poland all males from 18 to 45 years of age are being registered, preparatory to calling out the remaining classes of the general levy.

A correspondent with the Russian army in Bulgaria telegraphs that "appalling accounts continue to come in of the misery of fugitives from the districts devastated by the Bashi-Bazouks and Bulgarians. Thousands of women and children are homeless and perishing for want of shelter, medical attendance, and food. A large number of Bashi-Bazouks patrol the Tschirpan district. The district is one of the richest in that part of Turkey. It contains a very large proportion of Christians, over thirty churches, and 500 schools and colleges, all of which have been burnt. Numbers of villages, containing from 150 to 200 families each, were destroyed, and the inhabitants put to the sword. It is also reported that the Turks burned the hospital at Eski-Saghra, containing 800 sick."

Further accounts confirm the reports respecting the terrible outrages committed by the Turks at Eski-Saghra. After the Russians evacuated the town the terrified inhabitants endeavored to follow the Russians, but the Circassians occupied the road to Kasanlik, and the Turks sent a guard round the town so that none might escape, and then began the scene of fiendish cruelty. Neither age nor sex was spared. Notables who had fled before the Russians and spent the interval in neighboring villages with bands of Bashi-Bazouks now reappeared and sought out and slew the dwellers on their own farms. The hospital was burnt, with all the Russian and Bulgarian wounded. Only a few inhabitants escaped, and it is believed that in the town and neighboring villages, one of the fairest and richest spots in Europe, the number of peasants and townsfolk massacred amounted to as many as all the Russian killed and wounded in the late great battle.

A sharp engagement was fought at Kalofer, south of the Balkans, on the 13th inst., between the Russians and a portion of Suleiman Pasha's command, resulting, according to Turkish accounts, in the rout of the Russians and the capture of Rosalia and Harem-Bogaz passes. During the retreat of the Russians the heavy fire of the Turks exploded a powder-magazine, killing many of them and creating a wild panic. The Russian loss in this battle is placed at 500 killed and 1,000 wounded.... The passage of the Danube by the main body of the Roumanian army has been postponed until large Russian reinforcements arrive.

The Russians have completed another bridge across the Danube at Pyrgos.... The report that the whole Russian army is about to be mobilized is denied.... The Russian center in Asia Minor has been heavily reinforced, and has commenced a serious offensive movement.

The Prince of Montenegro has been obliged to raise the siege of Nicsics to march against the Turkish troops who are endeavoring to enter Montenegro.... The Russians have raised the siege of Rustchuk.

GENERAL FOREIGN NEWS.

Late news from the Flowery Kingdom: The first telegraph in China—a private line six miles long, near Hong Kong—is working successfully; other lines will be erected. The cholera has appeared in several ports along the coast. The ravages of famine continue in the northern provinces. The Government announces great victories over the Mohammedans by Gen. Tsos' army in the West.

A London dispatch says it is asserted by English Russophobists that at the meeting of the Emperors of Austria and Germany the partition of the Ottoman empire was agreed on. Russia to take Armenia, Austria to have Bosnia and Herzegovina, Greece to have Epirus, Thessaly and Crete, and Bulgaria to be governed by a German Prince. As a part of the agreement, it is said, the Russian army is to be allowed to pass through Servia.... The explanation of Gen. Grant's sudden change of intention, by which France was omitted from his field of travel for the present, is said to be due to the request of the French Government. It was feared that his presence in France prior to the elections might give rise to Republican demonstrations and embarrass the Government.

Symptoms of uneasiness are apparent in Russian Poland. Many of the inhabitants have arms.... Reports of the famine in India represent a sickening state of affairs in the empire. It is stated that the stricken area contains 18,000,000 sufferers dependent for food upon the activity and exertions of those who transport grain to the country; that the Presidency is powerless to satisfy their wants, and that all aid that can be secured is necessary to the salvation of life. Over 500,000 people have perished, and more have been found dead on a single morning than died during the whole Bengal famine. Passenger trains have been partially discontinued on the roads to enable relief trains to go through, and a frantic appeal is sent to the principal cities of England, Scotland, Ireland and India for assistance in the hour of peril.... The crop reports from Great Britain are not very encouraging. The wheat is poor, and wet weather has seriously interfered with the harvesting.... The British Parliament has been prorogued to the 30th of October. The Queen in her speech, referring to the Turco-Russian war, says: "I shall not fail to use my best efforts, when suitable opportunity occurs, for the restoration of peace on terms compatible with the honor of the belligerents, and with the general safety and welfare of the other nations. If, in course of the contest, the rights of my empire should be assailed or endangered, I should confidently rely on your help to vindicate and maintain them."

The rebellion in Hayti has been suppressed.... In Spain, a Republican conspiracy has been discovered and frustrated, and many arrests made in Madrid and in the provinces. In Government circles, however, the movement is considered unimportant.... A London dispatch says the Privy Council has prohibited the landing in Great Britain of leaves or stalks of potatoes from the United States, Canada, or Germany.

The Colorado beetle, despite energetic attempts to stamp it out, has spread over twenty-five acres at Langenreichenbach, near Torgau, Germany.

The Case of Maj. Runkle.

Maj. Runkle, of the army, who was court-martialed in 1872 for misappropriating money, had his sentence of imprisonment remitted by the Secretary of War, though he was dismissed from the service. The Major always insisted on his innocence, and, after many years, has adduced evidence to show that he was wrongfully convicted. In addition to this, his lawyers have discovered that the sentence of the court, having been acted upon by the Secretary of War instead of the President, was never properly approved, and he stands as if no verdict had ever been rendered. He is, therefore, restored to his rank on the retired list, and has the satisfaction of not only being publicly vindicated, but of drawing something like $11,000 back pay.

COMMERCIAL NOTES.

Washington hotels are experiencing hard times, and some are financially embarrassed.

The New Haven Journal continues to observe signs of a gradual revival of trade prosperity in the United States.

One manufactory of silverware in this country has the credit of working up more silver than all similar manufactories in the United Kingdom of Great Britain.

A slight advance in the stocks of the railways the most heavily afflicted by the strikes, and in the midst of the worst of the strike, shows a money-confidence in the roads which must have seriously disappointed the financial sympathizers with the strikers.

The British trade returns, just published, show that the total value of imports into the United Kingdom during last year was £375,150,000, being an increase of £1,200,000 over 1875. The total exports were £250,700,000, being a decrease of £24,800,000 compared with the previous year.

One of the signs of the times is the eagerness with which American boot and shoe makers are scouring all regions of the earth to build up a foreign trade in their goods. They are succeeding fairly. American styles are popular, and there is a prospect of America shoeing the Chinese empire and all South America.

The carrying trade between New York and the West Indies is at last in the hands of Americans exclusively, as far as steamers are concerned. This is not only a triumph of American enterprise in trade, but an out-and-out victory for American art in the building of steamships and in the navigation of them.

The city of Paterson, N. J., is notable only for its immense silk factories. The capital invested is about $6,000,000, and the number of persons employed is nearly 7,000. The manufacturing capacity of the mills is over $12,000,000 annually. The wages of the employes last year amounted to more than $2,000,000. This business is now at a standstill, owing to a strike.

The importations of sugar this summer are immense, and the exportations small. In eleven months the importations have been 1,329,944,035 pounds, against 1,233,060,717 pounds in the corresponding period last year, and they have been made at 5 cents a pound, as against 4 cents last year. The export has been about 36,000,000 pounds. Last year in the same period it was 56,000,000 pounds.

Returns from the customs districts of exports and imports during the fiscal year ended June 30, 1877, show the total exports (specie values) to be $602,474,581; total imports, $451,307,549; excess of exports over imports, $151,167,032. In the fiscal year 1876 the excess of exports over imports was but $79,643,481. In the fiscal year 1877 the exports of coin and bullion amounted to $56,163,327, and imports to $40,774,414, while in the preceding year the exports were $56,506,302, and the imports only $15,936,681.

Secretary Evarts contemplates a thorough overhauling of the Consular representation of the United States in South America. He finds that our commercial relations with that region are not benefited by the system which has heretofore obtained—that of appointing as Consuls foreigners doing business there, and who naturally consult their individual interests in all cases where they clash with those of the United States. Mr. Evarts believes that the appointment of Americans to these Consulates will better conserve the commercial interests of the country, and it is understood that he will shortly carry this reform into effect.

How the Czar Travels.

Even as the Russians are surpassing the Turks in the field, so does the Czar excel the Sultan in Oriental magnificence. Whenever he travels by railway he makes use of his own private train of seventeen carriages, fitted up in the most luxuriant style. Every journey of the Czar from Ploјesti to Bucharest (sixty kilometres) costs 6,000 francs ($1,400) for railway expenses. At the imperial table no less than 4,000 bottles of champagne are drunk every month. The proprietor of the Hotel Brofft at Bucharest has undertaken the canteen of the imperial headquarters. For this purpose he has provided four especial conveyances, each drawn by four horses, although he is only bound to supply cold viands—preserves, caviare, anchovies, etc., etc. A bottle of Bordeaux costs 15 francs; of Rhine wine 20 francs; and of champagne, 25 francs. A sandwich of bread and butter and Swiss cheese costs 3 francs. Some idea of the difficulties of a commissariat may be gathered from the fact that M. Brofft has just received a consignment of preserved vegetables from Paris, of the value of 127,000 francs. And yet we are told that the luxury of the imperial mess is nothing compared to that of the English reporters!—London Examiner.

On account of the prevailing low range of prices, some of the New England cotton mills are reducing their rate of production, while others have closed up altogether. The fact that prices have fallen below the remunerative point proves that the production of cotton fabrics has been in excess of the demand, and there is, of course, no effectual remedy but to close the factories or run on reduced time until the plethora is abated.

The trainmen at Albany have been chalking the back fences until they have worked out the arithmetical calculation that when Mr. Vanderbilt's $100,000 is divided every engineer will get $14, every conductor $8, and the brakemen and firemen only $3 apiece.

BLOODY BATTLE.

Gen. Gibbon Attacks Chief Joseph's Band of Savages.

He Meets Overwhelming Numbers and is Disastrously Defeated.

Nearly Half His Command Killed and Wounded.

A terrible battle was fought between Gen. Gibbon's command and the Nez Perces Indians, in Western Montana, on the 9th inst., the following particulars of which are furnished by a scout who arrived at Deer Lodge on the 11th: Gibbon's entire force numbered 182 men, including thirty-two volunteers and 150 regulars—seventeen officers and and 133 privates. The soldiers belong to the the Second and Seventh infantry and the Seventh cavalry, the larger number being members of the Seventh infantry. All were veterans in the service, and had seen many hard-fought fields, both during the civil war and in combat with the redskins. Tuesday night the expedition camped in Ross Hole, with the Indians about thirty miles ahead, and on Wednesday the Indians made a very short march, while the whites moved from Ross Hole over to the Big Hole, being at sunset on Wednesday evening only ten miles in the rear of the savages, who were apparently as unconcerned as ever. Gen. Gibbon believed that his actions were observed by Indian scouts, and, therefore, to blind the foe went into camp, sending out his own scouts in the meantime to ascertain the exact location of the savage village. At 11 p. m., the scouts returned, reporting the Nez Perces in a strong position at the mouth of Big Hole, and about three miles above where the Bannock and Bitterroot trails cross. The camp was broken at once, and leaving fifteen men to guard the supply train, cavalry horses, and mountain howitzers, which would have encumbered them, Gibbon moved his command about six miles into a ravine opening on to the village, which contained probably double the number of Nez Perces that Gibbon thought it did, and about 400 warriors of Joseph's, Looking-Glass', and Whitebird's bands. Just after daylight a small party of savages, unaware of the proximity of the troops, started after their herd, which was grazing some distance off. The volunteers opened fire on the Indians, thus beginning the fight. The village was immediately charged, and at first it appeared that the Indians were panic-stricken and would make no resistance to the exultant soldiers, who hurled volley after volley into their tepees with deadly effect, but, on recovering from their momentary panic, the redskins turned on their pursuers and, yelling like demons, swarmed from their tents, needle-guns in hand, and poured a flood of lead into the whites, killing fifteen men at the first volley, including Lieut. Bradley and Capt. Logan, who, at the head of their companies, penetrated to the very heart of the village. This blinding sheet of fire staggered the brave body of whites, and when the red devils, outnumbering them two to one, charged with the knife and tomahawk, there was no alternative but retreat. The gallant little band was undismayed by the first repulse, however, and again rushed with cheers to the attack, only to be again met with a galling volley, sweeping them back broken and bleeding with terrible loss. Charge after charge was made, but the infuriated and desperate savages fought like panthers, and the noble little band of whites was at last compelled to seek refuge in the timber. Even this movement was fraught with peril, for full 100 Indians were pouring volleys into the whites from this very wood. The Indians were driven out, however, and the remnant of the brave command who had followed their General that fatal morning fortified themselves in the shelter of the woods. But the fight was not yet over, the Indians now becoming the assailants and throwing themselves to death in futile endeavors to drive the whites into the open prairie. At night firing ceased, and the exhausted whites had a breathing spell, but by no means a comfortable one, for there were scores of wounded dying for lack of care, and irrepressible groans made more gloomy the naturally desperate situation. Early in the fight the Indians had broken communication with the supply train, and the command in the woods was destitute of food for themselves or medical attendance for the wounded. At this juncture one Edwards, a brave citizen, volunteered to go for help, and at 11 o'clock started on his perilous errand under cover of the night. The Nez Perces had captured all the horses, and he was compelled to foot it for sixty miles to French Gulch, where he obtained a fleet-footed horse, and reached Deer Lodge with brief dispatches from Gibbon asking for physicians, medicines, clothing, ambulances, etc.

The messenger says the soldiers and volunteers killed and wounded number at least 100, and that Gibbon himself estimated the loss at 85. The Indians lost from 80 to 100 killed, and perhaps half that number wounded. It is certain that the whites lost very heavily, and that the Indians will never forget the battle of the Big Hole.

Gibbon's losses are: Killed—Capt. Logan, Lieuts. Bradley and Bostwick, and seventeen men and five citizens. The wounded are Gen. Gibbon, Capt. Williams, Lieuts. Coolidge, Woodruff and English (the latter seriously), besides thirty-six men and four citizens. The Indians suffered severely, as forty dead Indians were counted on about one-half the battle-field. Howard had arrived, and would pursue the Indians as soon as his command came up.

Gen. Howard telegraphs that he had reached Gibbon Aug. 12, that the latter's command was in the best spirits, that the last of the Indians had left, and that he would continue the pursuit as soon as Col. Sanford's four companies of cavalry came up.

A dispatch of the 15th inst., from Helena, Mont., says "the Nez Perces have turned westward again, leaving Montana not far from the scene of Gibbon's attack, and reaching the old Mormon wagon-road near Fort Lemhi, in Idaho. A number of ranchmen have been killed by the savages on their way. It is supposed they are going to the Snake river valley."

WASHINGTON NOTES.

The actual amount paid into the treasury from customs collections for the year ending June 30, 1877, was: Duties on imports, coin, $129,472,620; duties on tonnage, currency, $1,472,618.

It is ascertained that the attempt to secure the removal of Commissioner of Indian Affairs Smith has been abandoned until the pending Indian investigation shall have been completed. The President, it appears, was unwilling that Smith should be removed or asked to resign until the evidence on both sides has been taken by the commission.

The Canadian Minister of the Interior had a long conference with Secretary Schurz, the other day, relative to the disposition of Sitting Bull. The Canada authorities desire to have the United States take these Indians back. Of course, our authorities are not anxious for such an undertaking. The latest report as to the location of Sitting Bull is, that he is about 100 miles from Fort Buford with 1,000 warriors, and that he evidently intends to effect a junction with Chief Joseph's band of Nez Perces.

The condition of affairs in Utah has engaged the attention of the Cabinet to some extent at one or two of their late meetings. The rivalry between the Gentile and Mormon population of that Territory seems to be increasing in bitterness, and a number of new indictments against Mormons for polygamy and other offenses have recently been secured. Some of the Gentiles in the Territory have been apprehensive that trouble might grow out of these proceedings, but the administration does not fear a disturbance of the peace.

It is learned at the War Department, telegraphs a Washington correspondent, that the United State troops recently moved from the Southern States to Pennsylvania, West Virginia and Maryland, and to other points where a breach of the peace was threatened during the late railroad strikes, will not be sent back South at present. No necessity is believed to exist for keeping soldiers in any of the Southern States, and it is thought to be more prudent to hold such United States forces as may be available for that purpose at points in the North, where they can be readily moved to any section where their services may be needed.

One of the plans suggested for increasing the efficiency of the army is to give the President discretionary power to increase the maximum to 50,000 enlisted men, leaving the general field, line, and staff corps as they now are, and to establish a general station for recruits at which large numbers of men shall always be kept for training. Whenever it would become necessary to increase the strength of companies to their standard, drafts for recruits could be made upon the central recruiting station, and, in this way, disciplined soldiers could be obtained instead of raw recruits. Old officers say that the cost of transporting the troops from one section of the country to another is greater than the increase in pay and allowance under the plan suggested.

Land Office Commissioner Williamson will soon make a report to Secretary Schurz of his recent visit to the Wisconsin and Minnesota lumber regions. Commissioner Williamson found abundant evidence during his trip that vast quantities of logs have been cut from the Government reservation in the vicinity of Minneapolis and Stillwater, and driven down the St. Croix and Mississippi rivers. The pioneers or lumber scouts in the employ of the land office have measured all the lumber stolen from the Government reservations at the principal points, and the United States Marshal has been instructed to seize the equitable portion of the Government of the logs from the rafts of the parties charged with stealing them. A few seizures have already been made, and many more are expected.

Several Roman tombs have been found lately at Ratisbon, besides others which go back to the thirteenth century. The majority belong to the age of Constantine. Several urns contained bracelets and medals of various dates. In the same place one of the Roman gates of the city was discovered.

THE MARKETS.

NEW YORK.
Beeves	$9 50	@12 50
Hogs	5 75	@ 5 87
Cotton	11½	@ 11¾
Flour—Superfine Western	4 50	@ 5 00
Wheat—No. 2	1 30	@ 1 42
Corn—Western Mixed	57	@ 59
Oats—Mixed	25	@ 47
Rye—Western	70	@ 71
Pork—New Mess	13 60	@13 75
Lard	8½	@ 9
CHICAGO.
Beeves—Choice Graded Steers	6 20	@ 6 40
Choice Natives	5 40	@ 5 75
Cows and Heifers	2 50	@ 3 75
Good Second-class Steers	4 00	@ 4 50
Medium to Fair	4 60	@ 5 25
Hogs—Live	4 80	@ 5 30
Flour—Fancy White Winter	7 00	@ 7 25
Good to Choice Spring Ex.	6 75	@ 7 00
Wheat—No. 2 Spring	1 13	@ 1 14
No. 3 Spring	94	@ 1 00
Corn—No. 2	44	@ 45
Oats—No. 2	23	@ 24
Rye—No. 2	52	@ 53
Barley—No. 2	60	@ 67
Butter—Choice Creamery	23	@ 25
Eggs—Fresh	10	@ 11
Pork Mess	12 85	@12 90
Lard	8½	@ 8¾
MILWAUKEE.
Wheat—No. 1	1 14	@ 1 16
No. 2	1 10	@ 1 12
Corn—No. 2	44	@ 44½
Oats—No. 2	23	@ 24
Rye—No. 1	53	@ 54
Barley—No. 2	63	@ 64
ST. LOUIS.
Wheat—No. 2 Red Fall	1 19	@ 1 20
Corn	40	@ 41
Oats—No. 2	25	@ 26
Rye	52	@ 54
Pork—Mess	13 35	@13 45
Lard	9½	@ 10
Hogs	4 75	@ 5 20
Cattle	3 00	@ 4 50
CINCINNATI.
Wheat—Red	1 20	@ 1 25
Corn	48	@ 49
Oats	25	@ 28
Rye	56	@ 57
Pork—Mess	13 00	@13 10
Lard	9¾	@ 10
TOLEDO.
Wheat—No 2 Red Winter	1 24	@ 1 26
No. 1 White Michigan	1 32	@ 1 34
Corn	47	@ 49
Oats—No. 2	24	@ 27
DETROIT.
Flour—Medium	7 00	@ 7 25
Wheat—No. 1	1 32	@ 1 34
Corn—Mixed	50	@ 53
Oats—Mixed	32	@ 34
Rye	65	@ 75
Pork—Mess	14 45	@14 50

AUBURN COURIER.

T. C. MAYS, PUBLISHER.

HARD TIMES.

Their Cause and Their Cure.

BY SYDNEY MYERS.

It is important that all should know and realize the chief cause of the present depressed and sinking condition of industry and commerce. It does not arise from any natural or unavoidable cause. Bounteous nature has lavished upon this land [illegible] beyond all others. Her soil is fertile, her mines are rich and not yet fully developed, her timbers are varied and abundant, her rivers are navigable and furnish highways for commerce through thousands of miles of fertile regions, the extent of her railways exceeds that of any other nation, her climate is salubrious, her people industrious, and the material progress of the last century is only an earnest of her capabilities. With all these advantages, industry is paralyzed and the people are suffering distress.

THE CAUSE.

The cause is too obvious to leave a doubt. It is to be found in the past, present and prospective mismanagement, by the National Government, of the finances of the country; and the only possible cure and restoration of a prosperous, healthy and continuous activity must be found in a radical change in the management of the national finances. Such a change is not likely to occur under the present administration of the treasury, and it certainly will not be made unless promptly and sternly demanded by unmistakable manifestations of an aroused and earnest popular will.

It is highly probable that the means of payment will continue to be decreased by shipments of coin from the bank reserves, and by the destruction and hoarding of legal-tender notes, until the inverted cone of bank and individual indebtedness crushes this generation as it crushed a generation in Great Britain during the efforts to resume "specie payments" between 1819 and 1823.

The history of that period is now repeating itself in this country, and, though we may not be able to stop this car of Juggernaut, we drop its drag-rope and urge others to do so. We recognize its motive power as well as its devastations, and record our protest, as did Mr. Matthias Atwood in the House of Commons, and Lord Grey in the House of Lords, when they alone, in 1819, protested against the cruel policy of Sir Robert Peel and Ricardo, who were supported by the almost unanimous vote of the Lords and Commons, and applauded by the doctrinaires, the money kings, and the daily press.

It should be borne in mind that the legal tender of the country is the only means of legal payment. The bank notes and bank deposits, as well as obligations of individuals, are all debt, and are all payable in legal tender—and that periodically—and, at least, once on the average during each decade there has been in England and in the United States a general and urgent demand for immediate payment, in legal tender, of debts due, including personal obligations, as well as bank notes and bank deposits.

There are people who look upon bank notes and bank deposits as equivalent to legal tender, whereas they are but promises to pay legal tender on demand, and some of us remember that in 1857, and in 1861, demand was made, and suspension ensued, as it always has ensued and will ensue, under like circumstances. In 1857 and 1861 both gold and silver were legal tender. In 1873 the silver dollar was stricken out of the list of legal tenders. The managers of the treasury of the United States propose, under the Resumption act, to require all debts to be payable in gold. Gold to be the only legal tender after Jan. 1, 1879. Thus contracting the means of payment.

In 1873 demand was made for payment of debts due, individual debts, as well as debts consisting of what are called bank deposits. The demand was not for legal tender alone in 1873, but for currency, including bank notes, which are themselves promises to pay legal tender. There was not then sufficient currency to meet the demand for payment. There is less currency now than there was in 1873, and no less debt including bank deposits. If a general demand were made to-morrow for currency payment suspension would ensue. If specie payments are established in 1879, as is proposed by the Resumption act, it is not at all likely that payments in gold coin can be maintained after a demand sets in for payment in gold of all debts due. The consequences of forced specie payment are fearful to contemplate. We speak not from conjecture, but from actual experiences of financial precedents, which should warn us of the dangers toward which we are tending.

After resumption inevitably comes suspension. The Bank of England finally resumed full payment in gold and silver in 1823. Two years later a demand for payment was made, and a fearful commercial and financial crisis ensued, and the Bank of England was only enabled to avoid suspension of currency payments by the timely discovery of a box containing 1,000,000 one-pound notes.

THE CURE.

It is practicable to have a currency which shall all be legal tender, which shall all be available for the payment of debt to individuals or to the Government—for customs as well as other dues—without discrimination. This currency may consist of copper, nickel, silver, gold and paper, and all be of equal value—and it should all be issued by the National Government and be received by the National Government for all dues.

If the Government issues a nickel, and by such issue receives equivalent to 5 cents, when that nickel comes back to the Government, though it contains only the value of seven-eighths of a cent of nickel metal, as it was issued as 5 cents it should be received by the issuer as 5 cents, and be received for custom dues, or any other dues, by the single nickel or by the cart-load. That would be circulation. Circulation involves a complete circuit from the issuer and back to the issuer. Our copper, nickel and silver coins are depreciated because they have not a perfect circulation; the Government receives full value when pays them out, but receives them back under discrediting and vexatious conditions and in limited amount. The United States note, the "greenback," has not a perfect circulation, its circuit is broken when it is refused for custom dues, and when the Government refuses to redeem it—yes, redeem it in bonds, as originally contemplated—it is a breach of good faith, fraught with disaster. When a government pays out anything as a medium of payment it can not, honestly, refuse to receive the same at its face value. Currency should be legal tender, receivable by the Government, without which it cannot satisfactorily discharge the functions of a medium of payment.

In order to effect a satisfactory financial system it seems essential:

1. That the administration of the national treasury should look primarily to the interests of the people of this nation; and its administrators should look for approval, applause and compensation at home—not from abroad.

2. All that enters into current circulation should be issued by the Government, and be receivable by Government for all dues, without discrimination as to amount or kind of dues, and should be a legal tender for the purposes of payments between the people.

3. The paper currency of the country should consist of United States notes wholly, representing shares in the national debt, legal tender, receivable for all public and private dues, and convertible at the pleasure of the holder into interest-bearing obligations—and United States notes so received should be retained at the sub-treasury where received, and be re-exchanged for interest-bearing obligations issued at that sub-treasury at the pleasure of the holder.

4. If the Government has any special contracts to deliver metal, whether copper, nickel, zinc, silver or gold, it should buy the metal from the mines and forward it in such packages or such form as was agreed; but, in providing for interest payable in gold, it would be far more convenient and cheaper to notify the holders of maturing coupons that they could realize their interest six months or less in advance, as current coupons would be received in payment of customs or any other dues to the Government. Under such an arrangement coupons would always be presented and canceled before due, and the necessity of providing gold to meet maturing interest would be avoided. Authority to receive coupons in advance was given in a resolution of Congress, March 17, 1864, but it is a question whether any but the syndicate and treasury rings have derived advantage from it. The fact should be more widely known.

5. Every system of currency must have a reserve to meet extraordinary circumstances, just as New York has reservoirs to hold reserves of water to meet extraordinary demands. Let $50,000,000 of United States notes be held in reserve for the purpose of being issued to persons or corporations, in exchange for bonds [illegible] 5 or 6 per cent. interest may be hypothecated, and the owner may receive the face value, conditioned that the bonds shall not bear interest while so hypothecated. This reserve, by the demand made upon it, will serve to indicate the pressure for currency. The state of the reserve should be published weekly for general information. In order to secure the adjustment of the total volume of currency to the actual needs of commerce, without reliance on the discretion of Congress or of any official, let the law provide that whenever the reserve shall be reduced to $10,000,000 it shall be the duty of the Secretary of the Treasury immediately to issue $50,000,000 of additional United States notes, to be paid out in the purchase of long-time bonds, or in the purchase of bullion to pay bonds as soon as they can be lawfully called in, thus causing the reserve to be replenished, as the water in a steam boiler is replenished by the automatic operation of the valves.

6. "Specie payment and specie standard, or basis, are not synonymous. We may have a specie standard without making all debts payable in specie. We may have a specie standard for our currency by making the interest on the interconvertible bonds payable in specie.

We can test weights quite as accurately with the steel-yard as with the balance scale, in which we use weights equal to the commodity to be weighed. So we can test values by the rate of income to be derived—the interest on the interconvertible bond would correspond to the pea on the steel-yard, and would be correspondingly useful in testing values. The annual rate of productiveness is a well-established rule for the estimation of values.

NEW MACHINERY WANTED.

Specie payment of all debts is impracticable, as the experience of generations has proved both in Great Britain and America.

In mechanics, we abandon a machine that proves itself to be unworkable by always breaking down when most needed; not so in finance—we are preparing to resume the English financial machinery, which has always broken down when brought into full operation, because of its inherent defects.

Mechanical machinery has been brought to a high degree of perfection, but the financial machinery remains unimproved, and retains all the imperfections and defects which have been the cause of periodical disasters during the last century. This machinery must be perfected by like methods and by minds of the same class as those who have mastered more difficult problems in mechanics.

The specie-redemption system is well adapted to the objects of the syndicate, but is detrimental to the interests of the people and to all banks. These latter can better employ their capital in their business, which would yield a greater profit than when locked up in bonds. Many banks are retiring their circulation because it is unprofitable. This is a contraction that will bring on a crisis, and an exigency that will demand an improved system of currency. It is well to be prepared for the event.

Under that system which has obtained, especially in the English-speaking and Teutonic countries, during the last 180 years' financial crises, involving universal disturbances and commercial and industrial disaster, have occurred on an average of more than once during each decade.

The cry from our "political economists" and statesmen of the English school is, contract the currency and resume the ruinous system which promises to pay coin that does not exist—resume a system of periodical suspensions of payment, when payment of coin is demanded—resume a system which can only result in a general financial and commercial collapse.

To resume the English system is to resume a system under which no nation has been or can be prosperous; it is a blight upon every country that has adopted it; it crushes the industries of the people, concentrates trade into few hands, and, while it enriches some, it impoverishes the many; it discourages labor, deprives the laborer of his just reward; it is destructive of the nation's progress and wealth, and, worst of all, destroys the manhood of its people, disqualifying them as citizens of a free republic.

The object of all industry is the procurement of sustenance and the comforts of life, and this is the greatest incentive to labor. All these ends are defeated by a deficiency of the instrument of exchange; industry languishes when its exchanges are interrupted.

The duty of all government is to facilitate the commerce of the people by the wisdom of its laws and the faithful execution of them. It is for protection, and not confiscation, that governments are established.

We must have new financial machinery—the old system has failed. The salient points of the new machinery seem to be:

1. That greenbacks shall be received for customs and all other dues to Government the same as gold.

2. That the silver dollar shall be restored to its old rank in the list of coins, and that the products of our American silver mines shall be coined, as well as the products of the British gold mines.

3. That if any person has greenbacks—United States notes not bearing interest—and desires to exchange them for Government notes bearing interest, the interchange should be made at the sub-treasuries. And the holder of the interest-bearing obligations may re-exchange them for greenbacks at par and interest at his pleasure.

That, without suddenly disturbing existing conditions, the policy of this Government shall be to supply, in the form of evidences of its own debt, the paper currency of the country, instead of farming out the privilege to corporations to supply the paper currency to consist of evidences of their debts.

THE PRACTICAL WORKING.

Interest-bearing obligations, called certificates, to distinguish them from the bonded debt, should be furnished to all sub-treasuries. These should be for $10,000 each. Certificates of smaller amount would circulate, and defeat the object of securing automatic contraction and expansion, that is, elasticity to the volume of currency, and involve much additional clerical labor. These certificates to be issued only on the surrender of an equal amount of United States legal-tender notes. The form of the notes before reissue should be changed, so as to read: The United States will receive, instead of the United States will pay; and the indorsement should be so amended as to say: These notes are interchangeable with interest-bearing certificates, and a legal tender for all payments, unless otherwise stipulated.

United States notes received at any sub-treasury should remain at such office until they are required to take up certificates. The amount of contraction or expansion should be reported daily from each of the sub-treasuries to the national treasury at Washington, and given to the Associated Press, so that every one who reads a morning paper may see the amount of contraction or expansion of the previous day at each sub-treasury from Portland, Ore., to Savannah, from Portland, Me., to Galveston. The certificates should be prepared at Washington and charged to the office to which they are supplied, the same as railway tickets are prepared and charged to the ticket offices.

The interest on these certificates not to exceed the rate paid on British consols, 3 per cent., perhaps 2 per cent. would be better. If Sundays, holidays, and day of conversion are rejected in the computation of interest, 1 cent a day on each $100 would amount to $1 per day on each certificate of $10,000, or about 3 per cent. per annum. The interest to be paid by check on the United States treasury, payable in notes or coin, as the holder of certificates may prefer. The demand for interest, it is presumed, would generally be made for United States notes, as, under this system, they would likely be preferred to coin.

We have so far had reference to treasury notes interchangeable with certificates, bearing interest at 1 cent for every lawful day, always exchangeable on their return for notes at the sub-treasuries whence issued.

If at any time the United States notes should be in excess, such excess would flow back to the treasury, to be exchanged for certificates, as the excess of water, after a heavy rain, flows to the conduits prepared for its reception.

But let us suppose that all the United States notes were in circulation, as in 1873, and bank reserves deficient—we will further suppose there should be a run on the banks for deposits, or a strike, or any circumstance that should disturb public confidence, in such case there would be a demand for an increased circulation. These circumstances occur frequently, and should, therefore, be provided for, as skillful mariners prepare for storms as well as for fair weather.

To meet these extraordinary demands there should be a reserve of notes, to be apportioned among the sub-treasuries at New York, New Orleans, Chicago and San Francisco, to be issued only on the hypothecation of interest-bearing bonds. The hypothecated bonds take the place in the reserve of notes thence issued to the amount of their face value. The rate of interest borne by the bonds hypothecated will serve to show the degree of pressure for expansion. If the pressure is light, 4 per cents. will be hypothecated; if greater, 4½s, 5s or 6s will come in. These bonds will bear no interest while hypothecated. As the money market becomes easier, the owners of the hypothecated bonds would naturally begin to redeem first the 6 per cents., then the 5s, etc., until the reserve is replenished with notes. Thus will an automatic action be established, which will expand and contract the volume of currency as the action of the valves of a steam engine supplies or withholds steam, and the amount of contraction or expansion of currency will show the degree of pressure with the same accuracy as the steam gauge shows the pressure of steam in a boiler.

It is sometimes asked, how, under such a system, could the circulating medium be increased to meet the wants of a growing population and increase of trade? The answer is: That whenever the reserve of United States notes shall be reduced to $10,000,000 it shall be the duty of the Secretary of the Treasury, without application to Congress, to issue $50,000,000 more notes, and pay them out in the purchase of bonds. If the market should not be favorable, then to buy bullion to pay off bonds as soon as they can be called in.

This may, at first sight, seem complicated; but it is far less so than the construction of a locomotive engine, or a sewing machine, or the automatic supply of hot and cold water in a modern dwelling. Machinists tackle and solve more difficult problems in mechanism, and it is not too much to ask that legislators and financiers should show equal skill in adapting new machinery to our monetary needs. In providing a monetary system adapted to the present age and civilization, instead of persisting in resuming one that has produced confusion, failure, and human degradation in all countries where it has been practiced, a new departure should be made, and our monetary system established on such a basis as will facilitate the exchange of productions without producing violent fluctuations in value, periodical disaster, and social disturbance.

NOT A QUESTION OF GOLD OR PAPER.

The question is not between gold and paper currency. All countries supplement their specie with a paper circulation.

Mr. Fawcett estimates the amount of gold coin in Europe at $1,900,000,000, and the annual interest on public debt $1,600,000,000. There is no hard-money system in any commercial country. The same authority shows that in Europe there is in use, in money, the following amounts:

Gold coin	$1,900,000,000
Silver and base metal	2,000,000,000
Paper	2,350,000,000
Total	$6,250,000,000

Per capita $21.40, which is $8 per capita more than we have in the United States, including coin and paper, at this time. Whatever circulates as a medium of payment should have a firmer basis than private credit. It should be issued by the people's agent, and made redeemable in Government bonds, a security as marketable and of as steady a commercial value as any commodity whatever, will be good as long as the nation endures, beyond which no financial system can be expected to last. A system that is not new, but has been proved by the test of experience.

There was a system of finance practiced in the middle ages—the "dark ages"—under which Government debt supplied the circulating medium—that the Government-debt evidences were for centuries worth a premium over coin—that for centuries there was nothing in Venice corresponding to a suspension of specie payment, financial crises, and the troubles and vicissitudes which are now experienced in business life.

What is familiarly called the greenback is a Government bond, equivalent to the certificates of the Bank of Venice; its delivery transfers shares in the national debt, which, by law, is made a legal payment; but the Government itself discredits these notes, and makes them worth less than coin, because it refuses to receive them for custom dues, for which it demands gold instead; and, further, the Government has rendered these notes irredeemable by repealing the provision of law under which they were issued, which provided that they should be receivable by the Government at par for interest-bearing obligations of the Government.

When the treasury note is made equal to gold, as it would be on the basis proposed, the payment of interest may be made in coin or United States notes, at the option of the payee, but it is probable that the latter will be preferred. Whenever coin may be in excess by importations from other countries, treasury notes would flow to the treasury, and out of circulation, and thus make room for the excess of coin; on the other hand, when coin is exported, treasury notes would be returned to circulation, and prevent undue stringency. The payment of interest at the option of the payee in coin or paper would prevent all violent fluctuations in the purchasing power of United States notes. These notes being bottomed on taxes and receivable by the Government for all dues, being a legal tender throughout the land, and redeemable in interest-bearing obligations, they would have a certain and steady value, such as promissory notes of banks have never had. If other nations should adopt a similar system, it is probable that gold and silver would depreciate as did silver by a partial demonetization. The rate of interest on certificates, into which all notes should be convertible, will serve as an effective equipoise to keep steady the value of the notes.

THE GREAT MISTAKE.

The depreciation of the greenback by the unwise mutilation of the legal-tender power, and the abrogation of its convertibility into interest-bearing certificates, has been the main cause of all our trouble. It was this caused the depreciation of the greenback—it was the depreciation which led to the unwise policy of arbitrarily contracting the currency, as it was said, "to raise its value to gold." This policy has been a complete failure, for, after a contraction of $686,000,000 by Secretary McCulloch in two years, 1866-67, gold was higher than it was before contraction began.* And yet this policy is persistently going on. We are burning greenbacks, the best circulating medium, and substituting long-time bonds—adding to the interest-bearing debt—bankrupting the country, and for what? To return to a system that has repeatedly failed and must ever fail.

The contraction of the currency has paralyzed industries, depreciated the value of every kind of property to the extent of thousands of millions of dollars.* It has increased the annual number of bankrupts from 530 in 1865 to 9,092 in 1876†—has deprived 2,000,000 persons of employment, and spread a pall of gloom over the whole country, which is a sure forerunner of crime and turbulence.

OUR ADVERSARIES.

There is a power which rules the world from which no commercial people have as yet been freed. That power is wielded by the great syndicate composed of a few great money kings. All administrations in representative governments, and all real managers of political parties are their instruments; monarchs are their servants; indeed, all these are but "cat's-paws" through which this power operates. It is a power more dangerous than the Commune, because more insidious. It carries on its nefarious operations by agiotage, financial corners, and corrupt legislation, which saps the foundation of commerce and industry, and is a standing menace against society itself. This power dictates to all countries and people what their debts shall be paid in, and it makes them payable in certain metals which the money kings alone control, and which they can withhold, or supply abundantly, as it suits their own interest. It was this power that dictated the establishment of the English system in this country. It is this power that is coercing us through contraction and bankruptcy to again re-enable that system. It was this power that ordered silver to be demonetised in England, Germany and the United States, and its orders have been obeyed. This power condemned the greenback to cremation—it is again obeyed. We may dream about financial freedom, but we will never enjoy it until we learn who are our masters, and free ourselves from their strangling grasp. Under this modern gold-redemption system the commercial and industrial world has been at the mercy of a centralized, foreign oligarchy, more powerful and more skillful in effecting its ends than Cæsar or Napoleon. It holds in its gloved but metallic hand the power to make or mar at will the prosperity of every nation and every individual; it compels all who trade to be forever promising to deliver gold which that power alone commands and controls, and to rely in all transactions on like promises; promises the fulfillment of which is a physical impossibility, and has been so proved by frequent recurrence of suspensions and disasters through many generations, and in all countries where the so-called "specie redemption" system has prevailed; which might with more propriety be called the "specie suspension" system.

MUST THE GOVERNMENT BE AT WAR WITH THE PEOPLE?

Our legislation has been perverted—special interests have been preferred to the general interest, in violation of the primary principles of all government. "It is to property of the citizens, and not to the demands of the public creditor, that the original faith of civil society is pledged; the claim of the citizen is prior in time, paramount in title, superior in equity. The State can pledge nothing but public estate, and has no other estate than what it derives from a justly proportioned tax on the citizens at large." †Laws that transfer one man's property to another without equitable consideration are not only unjust, but are equivalent, in effect, to violence and spoliation. Under this class legislation, property is silently sliding into other hands without adequate consideration, or becoming worthless. Must this go on?

The syndicate that rules the world have brought our finances into such a condition that the progress of the people is checked. They have powerful and intelligent agents; they control Legislatures and manage party organizations. What are the people doing? Who is acting for them?

CHICAGO, Ill.

---

*See Tribune Almanac, and Dr. Taylor's American Currency.

*See New York assessments—a depreciation of $581,000,000 in the property value in that State alone!

†See Dunn and Barlow's list of bankrupts.

†Edmund Burke.

Resumption Means Universal Bankruptcy.

The country has been brought by law to the point where all debts of the General Government, of the States, of the municipalities, of the railroad and other corporations, as well as of private individuals, have to be paid in gold alone or its equivalent, on and after the first day of January, 1879, about seventeen months from this date. The aggregate of these debts is computed to exceed $6,000,000,000, more than three times the amount of all the gold coin in the world. We have not got, and cannot possibly obtain before that date, $300,000,000 in gold, or 5 per cent. of the amount we owe, less than one year's interest, half of that in the hands of foreigners. Forced resumption now fastened upon us is, under such circumstances, universal bankruptcy; the number and magnitude of the failures of our business men are fearful to contemplate, and we are daily going from bad to worse. The Federal and State Governments, the banks and other corporations are all compelled to contract their loans and their circulation in order to meet what they have outstanding in gold, which they must of course make the smallest amount possible. No prudent man dare borrow money now to invest in any business, as it is obvious that he cannot hope to realize enough from the sale of any product of industry hereafter to repay the money he borrows and its interest in gold. A lender may be willing to lend $10,000, taking a mortgage on a farm worth $20,000, in the hope of buying it in for the $10,000 loaned, but the owner of such a farm, no matter how much he wants the money, dare not borrow. Yet we are told money is abundant! Certainly, because safe borrowers cannot be found. Manufacturing establishments, rolling mills, industries all over the land which demand vast sums of money, are closed, and their hands are tramps or strikers, because there is not only no prospect of profit, but a certainty of absolute ruin by a continuance of the business. Yet the bondholders and other leeches who are demanding gold, and gold only, so that they can buy property at their own prices, are continuing the cry that money is cheap and abundant. Does any gentleman here (unless he is a banker or bondholder) know now, where, or from whom, he can obtain gold to pay his debts or meet his liabilities. The Government pays gold only to the bondholder; from him only can it be obtained, at his own rates, by those who are compelled to have it.—Speech of Senator Beck at Maysville, Ky.

Lost in the Desert.

A dispatch has been received at army headquarters in Chicago, stating that Capt. Nolan and the survivors of his company have turned up at Fort Concho, in the western central part of Texas. Some days ago this command was sent out on a scouting expedition to follow up the trail of some marauding Indians and cattle-thieves. There were some sixty men in the party, mounted, all told. When out upon the arid desert they lost their way, and, worse than all, ran out of food and water. In a strange country, lost and far away from any aid, these men wandered over a desert, sandy waste, without shelter. Becoming fevered from exposure and starvation and the lack of water to quench their burning thirst, they scattered, none knew whither. Their privations and sufferings no pen can picture or tongue can tell. For eighty-six long and mournful hours they endured without a mouthful to eat or drink. By dint of coolness and hopeful courage Capt. Nolan kept most of his men together, and yesterday the tidings came that most of them were safe. Two of the soldiers perished and three are missing, they probably having died on the plain. Forty horses and mules died of the stock with the party. —Chicago Tribune.

DR. ERASMUS WILSON, the first authority in England on cutaneous disorders, has been investigating the number of hairs in a square inch of the human head, and estimates that it contains on an average about 1,066. Taking the superficial area of the head at 120 square inches, this gives about 133,920 hairs for the entire head.

RELICS OF RADICAL RULE.

Known as the Fraudulent Bullock Bonds—Georgia Repudiates Them Outright.

A correspondent writes from Atlanta, Ga., Aug. 9, as follows: After a subtle and stubborn fight the Constitutional Convention of Georgia to-day completed the process of repudiation of the bonds issued fraudulently by the Bullock Government during the days of reconstruction. The full record of the rascality practiced upon the State during these baleful days will never be uncovered. Backed by an ignorant negro Legislature, Bullock and his pals issued over $8,000,000 of fraudulent bonds, which the first Democratic Legislature that assembled after Bullock's disgraceful flight promptly repudiated. Millions of dollars of these bonds were issued in behalf of mythical railroads, and in behalf of corporations that never existed. A favorite method of swindling was to secure an issue of bonds to a certain corporation; then to change the name of the corporation, and have another issue of bonds made to conform to the new name. It was, of course, provided that the new issue should be used to retire the old issue. The swindlers, however, would put both sets on the market, and thus have the State under duplicate obligations for precisely the same object. After the Legislature had repudiated these villainous claims, it was found that a crowd of lobbyists, acting in the interest of the bondholders, besieged the Capitol at every session of the Assembly. It was then determined to make a constitutional amendment, prohibiting the payment of these bonds or the opening of the courts to any bond claimants. This amendment was perfected only last May. It will be seen then that last hope of the bondholders was to have a clause inserted in the new constitution providing in some way for a hearing of these cases or for the payment of the bonds. Extraordinary efforts were consequently made. Mr. Jere Black, of Pennsylvania, was engaged to argue the cases of the bondholders, and ex-Senator Norwood to represent a certain class before the Committee on Finance.

Despite the arguments, written and personal, made before the committee, to which the committee listened with hardened and impatient hearts, the following clause, in substance, was reported unanimously: "The General Assembly shall have no authority to appropriate money, either directly or indirectly, to pay the whole or any part of the principal or interest of the bonds or other obligations which have been pronounced illegal, null and void by the Legislature and the constitutional amendment ratified by a vote of the people on the 1st day of May, 1877; nor shall the General Assembly pass any law, or the Governor or other State official enter into any contract or agreement whereby the State shall be made a party in any court of this State, or the United States, instituted to test the validity of any such bonds or obligations."

There is little doubt that there are two or three classes of bonds, aggregating about $200,000, that have some equitable right to consideration. Hon. A. H. Stephens avouched the integrity of one class of these bonds. Hon. Robert Toombs, speaking of another class, said: "If the State don't pay them I will." But the deep sense of indignation felt by the people at the enormous swindles put upon them by the reconstruction regime, many of which were perpetrated by the connivance of Wall street shysters themselves, prevented the reopening of the sealed question under any circumstances.

A resolution opening the State Supreme Court to holders of repudiated bonds, provided they would accept its decision as final, was tabled by a vote of 166 to 15, and the matter thus clinched. There was great feeling, but no confusion. The members were resolute and determined.

The bondholders have put in the hands of the United States Marshal a paper instructing him to levy on the Macon and Brunswick road as property of the State. It is said the Marshal will attempt to stop the trains and thus force the State or stockholders into the United States Court, and thus open the way for the adjudication of the whole bond question. A lively fight will ensue if this is tried.

THE OHIO GOVERNORSHIP.

Letter of Acceptance of the Democratic Candidate.

The following is the letter of acceptance of R. M. Bishop, Democratic candidate for Governor of Ohio:

CINCINNATI, August 2, 1877.

Hon. J. H. Benson, John G. Thompson, H. E. O'Hagan, Committee:

GENTLEMEN—Your official communication of July 27, informing me of my nomination for the office of Governor by the Democratic State Convention, is at hand. I appreciate the high honor conferred by the Democracy of Ohio, and, while keenly alive to the great responsibilities I assume, I trust, if elected, to be able, under Providence, to discharge faithfully and impartially the duties of the position.

It is sufficient for me to say that the principles adopted by the convention have my cordial indorsement. They are wise and patriotic, and, if properly executed in the administration of the Government, will greatly tend to restore confidence and prosperity to the country.

We are now passing through a crisis in our commercial if not national existence. Capital and labor are seeking to adjust their respective rights. This adjustment will require the most thoughtful consideration and deliberate action. In so far as it may depend in any degree upon the action of our State Government, I would certainly do my utmost to effect it on terms beneficial alike to the laborer and capitalist.

The times call for the most discreet management and economical administration of public affairs; the mere assertion of principles will not meet the emergency; they must be vitalized, energized, so as to restore confidence to our financial, commercial and industrial pursuits. If called by the people to the head of the administration of the affairs of the State, I shall endeavor by a conscientious discharge of duty and careful guarding of the interests of the public to merit the respect and commendation of the people, irrespective of party.

Respectfully yours,
R. M. BISHOP.

An Interesting Historical Fact.

After the argument upon the Florida case before the late Electoral Commission in Washington, Judge Bradley wrote out his opinion and his decision in full. He completed it at about 6 o'clock in the evening on the day before the judgment of the commission was to be announced, and read it to Judge Clifford and Judge Field, who were likewise members of the commission. It contained, first, an argument, and, secondly, a conclusion. The argument was precisely the same as that which appears in the published document; but Judge Bradley's conclusion was that the votes of the Tilden electors in Florida were the only votes which ought to be counted as coming from that State.

This was the character of the paper when Judge Bradley finished it, and when he communicated it to his colleagues. During the whole of that night Judge Bradley's house in Washington was surrounded by the carriages of visitors who had come to see him apparently about the decision of the Electoral Commission, which, as we have said, was to be announced the next day. The visitors included leading Republicans as well as persons deeply interested in the Texas Pacific railroad scheme.

When the commission assembled the next morning, and when the judgment was declared, Judge Bradley gave his vote in favor of counting the votes of the Hayes electors in Florida! The argument he did not deliver at the time; but when it came to be printed subsequently it was found to be precisely the same as the argument he had originally drawn up, and on which he had based his first conclusion in favor of the Tilden electors.—New York Sun.

A Citizen's Mistake.

When the strike excitement was at its height in Newark, O., a stalwart citizen felt the necessity of bracing himself up. The Mayor had ordered the closing of all saloons and drinking-places, and the police had enforced the regulations rigidly. But there was a back-door in Gingerbread row, and behind the bar there was long-range lightning whisky. The stalwart citizen crept in, got his drink and beat a retreat. Soon he was overwhelmed with burning sensations in his stomach. Something seemed to be blazing there, and he burst into a doctor's office, exclaiming: "For God's sake pump me out quick." "What is wrong with you?" inquired the doctor. "Get the pump ready while I'm telling you. I'm burning up inside. Hurry. I took a drink down on Gingerbread row. They have put up a job on me. I am poisoned." The doctor suddenly interposed: "Why, I smell something burning myself;" and opening the patient's waistcoat found a hole three inches in diameter burned in the shirt-front. While the stalwart citizen was taking his drink he had dropped a cigar-stump between his waistcoat and shirt. "Didn't you smell smoke?" asked the doctor. "You're right, I did; but I thought it was coming out of my mouth."

A Valuable Soldier.

They have a model soldier among the Light Guards. He believes in doing duty right up to the handle. The other night, at Columbus, he was put on picket duty, with the usual instructions to admit none but those who gave the countersign, which for that night was "Jack Robinson."

So our Light Guard determined that no man should pass him without saying the mystic words "Jack Robinson." He paced up and down his beat with military precision, and, sure enough, after a while along came a belated guard, making his way back to camp. Down came our picket to present arms, and in stentorian tones he called out:

"Halt! Who goes there, friend or foe?"

"Friend."

"Advance, friend, and say Jack Robinson."

The friend advanced, said Jack Robinson, and passed on the way to his quarters, rejoicing that he had encountered so disciplined a picket.—Dayton (O.) Journal.

The Reason of It.

"You folks don't understand why it is that railroad men stick so close together," said Sheriff Pressly, talking with a group of friends yesterday afternoon. He then went on to explain that the cause of their clannishness was the hazardous character of their calling. He likened their life to that of soldiers. The latter, when in action, saw comrades shot down all about them, and stuck closer together on account of the ordeals through which they passed. "It is the same thing with railroaders," said Mr. Pressly. "I am old engineer, and know all about it. When a railroad man leaves home to go to work in the morning, and kisses his wife and little ones and says by-by, he does not know but that it may be for the last time. He does not know but that in a few hours he may be brought back a mangled corpse. It is this risky nature of their calling that makes them stand together like brothers, so that when you attack one railroader you have to fight the whole class."—Indianapolis Journal.

A Wonderful Walking Performance.

The greatest three-hours walking race on record has just taken place at Lillie Bridge, England, between Howes and Perkins, the latter winning by 186 yards, covering a distance of 22 miles 206 yards, and beating the record at all distances from 9 to 22 miles. Ten miles were walked in 1h. 15m. 57s., 15 miles in 1h. 56m. 13s., and 15 miles 824 yards in 2h.; 20 miles in 2h. 39m. 57s., 21 in 2h. 49m. 18s., and 22 in 2h. 58m. 52s. In 1858, Charles Westhall walked 21 miles inside of 3h.; in 1869, Davison (2h. 53m. 34s.); and, last March, Howes.

ITALIANS are unusually excited about Mount Vesuvius; and strange stories are told of the sounds emitted from its interior, which are likened to the roar of a disturbed sea, amidst which is distinguished a crackling as of many burning logs of wood. These noises are heard, it is said, at a distance of two miles from the crater; and fears have been expressed lest a continuous discharge of lava should effect a passage which would place the observatory in danger. Some thirty persons, ladies included, make a nightly ascent of the mountain to witness the magnificent spectacle presented.

A SON of Lorenzo Elleberger, of Glenwood, aged 9 years and 5 days, was drowned in Keg creek, at Glenwood, last week.

PATTI and her husband are separated but neither can remarry under French law.

Auburn Courier.

AUBURN, INDIANA, AUG. 23, 1877.

NEIGHBORHOOD NEWS.

GARRETT.

EDITOR COURIER.—The tone of the News was quite amusing last week. Parker got clear off his eggs. He chewed soap and spit venom in every direction. He made a fearful charge on O. J. Powell and H. S. Morse; fired a random shot at the town marshal and his boy, and gave "Red Nose" a full benefit. In reply to the charges on the school house subject, he says he wishes to notice one or two points and correct them, as he has heard pretty good men make the statements before. Then he says, "the school trustees did not pay in advance for plans and specifications, and nobody but a fool would claim otherwise" We don't know whether they paid for them in advance or not, only by their own report. The reason he has heard the statement before is, because the school trustees reported to the town board, in the presence of quite a number of citizens, on the evening of the 10th of August, 1876, that they had paid the architect $336.95 for the plans and specifications of the building, and by paying them in advance they had agreed to superintend the building. This can be proven, and if Parker denies it he is a fool and a liar. If they did not pay in advance for the plans and specifications, then they falsified on the 10th of August, 1876, when they made their report, and if they paid in advance as they then reported, then Parker has lied in his statement in the News of August 15th, 1877. He can take this just as he may please. He may try a homeopathical chemical process on it and he cannot analize anything but a lie out of it. It is an old adgage and I believe a true one, that he who lies will steal. Then he asks, "what do we need of the basement? What advantage would it be to the people of Garrett to have it thrown out. The $50 saved will do the grading any time." Nobody but a fool would make such a statement. What do we need of such a large building? If we do not need the basement, why did they have all the contractors estimate on it, and why did they pay the contractor about $350 for the grading and only deduct $50 from his bill when it was not done. Is this saving money for the town? He says, "the foundation wall is what the contract called for." Men who estimated on the building say, the specifications called for a stone foundation, and that is what they figured on. We do not know what the contract called for, but we believe they might as well have had no contract as the building looks like it. Then he says, "there never was a better job put up than that foundation." Nobody but a "fool" would advance such an argument. Is a foundation wall as good built of stone and filled with soft brick as one built of solid stone or filled in with hard brick? He says, "there was no contract for Milwaukee brick, black or glazed brick but just the difference between white brick at $10 per thousand, and stone belts and caps, was paid. It can be proven by good responsible men who estimated on the building, that the belts and caps were to be of white brick that could not be bought for less than $50 or $60 per thousand—black glazed brick that would have cost as much, all of which would have cost as much as sand stone. Yet the contractor got $500 extra, and the job is not any better than if it had been built according to the specifications. This was saving money for the town. Parker says nobody but "Red Nose" has ever found any fault about it and the trustees care very little about his faults. That shows how much Parker knows about the complaints of the people. There is scarcely one tax-payer in Garrett who has not found fault with the way that building was managed, and we know that the trustees care very little about any person in town but themselves. In his reply relative to the vestibule doors he says, "What nonsense." Well, the whole thing has been nonsense from the beginning. We know what they would have cost and all the trimmings around them. There are seventy-four windows in the building, each of which was to have inside shutters. Who got the profits of them? How is it that about all the money of the original contract has been paid out, and the grading is not done, the basement windows are not in, the stairs are not built, the deafners are not put in, the second floor is not laid, nothing done on the second story, seventy-four pair of inside shutters left out, two vestibule doors, and all the trimmings left out, the tower left off, shingles instead of slate and the mansard roof railing left off. We want to know where any money has been saved, and who has got it. All this work is to be done yet and about all the money gone some where, and $200 more demanded for what? Why for nonsense. Parker thinks "Red Nose" is not able to discuss such weighty questions. He is not trying to discuss them, only calling for an explanation. We are aware of the weight of these questions, and know that it will take a powerful mind to answer them just like Parker possesses. Parker gave your correspondent the title of "Red Nose," and then in his last issue he finds fault about some work done on the school house by "Red Nose" about the stove pipe. He claims it is a bad job. Your correspondent never done any work on or about the school house. I understand that the man who put up the stove pipe challenged Parker about his article in last week's News, placed himself in a pugilistic attitude and demanded one dollar and seven cents that Parker owed him, which was promptly forked over that probably never would have been collected under any other circumstances. I believe that Parker wanted to kiss him and let the matter drop. I understand it is impossible for any one to make a job of the stove pipe in that building as there is so much soap about it that when it gets on the stove pipe the joint will slip apart and as a matter of course it will smoke. Parker is full of business. He is down on H. S. Morse, because he would not consent to give him $100 for building a bogus school house. He does not like O. J. Powell, as some person told him that they had heard some one say that some one told them that they believed O. J. Powell was a poor man and could not raise $7 to pay for his paper. He does not like the marshal for he advertised in the Herald. He does not like the marshal's boy as he would not trade his bologna sausage for soap. He is down on "Red Nose" for making him pay that $1.07.

RED NOSE.

CORUNNA.

The melancholic days are here. What with gormandizing green corn, cucumbers and other trash of the season every other person in town is a little off with the bellyache.

Joseph Tar, a young man hailing from New Baltimore, Ohio, has bought a half interest in the bakery and confectionery business recently established in this place. The firm name now is Myers & Tarr.

Jake Kahn, of Waterloo, was in town the other day looking after the wheat interest. Jake bought one car load and then fell back at the "head of the market" in good order.

By coming to the head of the market at Waterloo, farmers can make from three to eight cents per bushel on their wheat.—Press.

The above is very thin in the face of the well known fact that until quite recently there has not been a car load of what unloaded at Waterloo station since the grain "ring" exploded at that place. The bulk of the grain raised in this and Steuben counties is brought to Corunna, which in truth, is the head of the market.

The firm of Mercer & DePew, druggists, has been dissolved, Dr. Mercer having bought the interest of Mr. DePew.

Andy McMullen, yard master, for the Lake Shore railroad, at Laport, was in town last week.

Mr. A. Brumback and family, of Plymouth, Ohio, formerly residents of Corunna, are visiting friends and relations here.

It cost two of our citizens just five dollars each for two dozen roasting ears with a square case of bellyache thrown in the other day. Seriously, that old Quinner skunks Shylock two to one.

Wheat is gradually dropping down to an even dollar, where it will probably hang for some time. At $1.25 @ $1.20 the market was lively, but sales are getting lighter. On Tuesday number one brought $1.10, but few loads came in however. White oats are worth 25c, mixed 20.

Supt. Curtis, "special" on the gravel rounds, the other day "interviewed" Corunna station.

LOVELAND.

* * *

President Hayes issues an order that government officials should not participate in political campaigns, nor run the party machinery as heretofore. This it was claimed was in the interest of civil service reform. We thought at the time it was to sweeping in its character, and should apply to such officers only, who had been in the habit of devoting their whole time in campaigns to party purposes, as in the case of Zach Chandler, a member of the Cabinet, who took up his quarters in New York 8 weeks before the campaign and devoted every moment to political manipulations while the people without regard to party paid him a handsome salary. Was the order issued to correct a great evil like this? Does it mean that a village postmaster dare not attend a public political gathering in the evening after a faithful discharge of his duties during the day, nor take part in any arrangement of a political character? Which is the greater evil to the public Service? We are inclined to think that the latter construction must be given to that order, for last week we had that brilliant spectacular phenomenon, John Sherman, making a personal public effort in the interest of a political party, and he a Cabinet officer. So the order of the president, said to be in the interest of reform, does not prevent a department officer, drawing a large salary, from taking an active part in running the party machinery. Only postmasters and other petty officers are included in this wise order. Verily our Civil Service is realizing a wonderful reform.

* * *

The President went over to Boston a few weeks ago on a junketing tour, and is again off to New Hampshire, to enjoy the hospitalities of the people. In the meantime the starving workman plods wearily on and the saddest foreboding for the future fill his mind, while he labors to pay the taxes which go to keep up large salaries, that officers may enjoy the hospitalities of the people.

$2500 A YEAR. Agents wanted. Business legitimate. Particulars free. Address J. WORTH & CO. St Louis, Mo.

Notice of Administration.

NOTICE is hereby given that the undersigned has been appointed executor of the last will of Isaac Culbertson, late of DeKalb county deceased. Said estate is supposed to be solvent.

GEORGE BARNEY, Exr.

August 7th, 1877.

Notice of Administration.

NOTICE is hereby given, that the undersigned has been appointed by the Clerk of the DeKalb Circuit Court of the State of Indiana, administrator of the estate of Benjamin Watson, deceased, late of said county. Said estate is supposed to be solvent.

WM. E. WATSON, Adm.

August 14, 1877.

Application for License.

NOTICE is hereby given to the citizens of Garrett, DeKalb County, Ind., that the undersigned will make application to the Board of Commissioners of said county, at their next regular session, for a license to retail spirituous, vinous and malt liquors in a less quantity than a quart at a time, on the following described premises to-wit: Lots No. 4 and 5, Block No. 10, in the incorporated town of Garrett and in said county.

PETER DEHLER.

August 8.

Application for License.

NOTICE is hereby given to the citizens of Garrett, DeKalb County, Ind., that the undersigned will make application to the Board of Commissioners of said county, at their next regular session, for a license to retail spirituous, vinous and malt liquors in a less quantity than a quart at a time, on the following described premises to-wit: Lot No. [illegible] Block No. [illegible], in the original plat to the town of Garrett, said county.

AUGUST THIENEL.

August 9.

Executor's Sale.

NOTICE is hereby given that I will sell at public auction on Saturday the 22nd day of September—next, at the residence of Isaac Culbertson, late of DeKalb county Indiana deceased, his personal property consisting in part of horses, young cattle, hogs, lumber, champion reaper, two horse buggy etc etc. A credit of nine months will be given on all sums over three dollars the purchaser giving his note with approved security, waiving valuation and appraisement laws, with interest from date.

GEORGE BARNEY, Ex'r.

Aug 20th, 1877.

Application for License.

NOTICE to the citizens of the town of Corunna, in the county of DeKalb, and State of Indiana, is hereby given that the undersigned will apply to the Board of Commissioners of said county, at their next regular session, commencing on the first Monday in September, 1877, for a license to retail spirituous, vinous and malt liquors in a less quantity than a quart at a time on the following described premises, to-wit: Commencing at a point thirteen feet south of the north-west corner of lot No. one in McMillen's first addition to said town of Corunna, thence east one hundred and thirty two feet (132), thence south thirty-one feet (31), thence west one hundred and thirty-two feet [132], thence north thirty-one feet [31].

JOSEPH D. WILLIAMSON.

A PHYSIOLOGICAL

View of Marriage!

WOMAN AND MARRIAGE

A Guide to Wedlock and confidential Treatise on the duties of marriage and the causes that unfit for it; the secrets of Reproduction and the Diseases of Women. A book for private, considerate reading. 260 pages, price 50 cts.

A PRIVATE MEDICAL ADVISER! On all disorders of a Private Nature arising from Self Abuse, Excesses, or Secret Diseases, with the best means of cure, 224 large pages, price 50 cts.

A CLINICAL LECTURE on the above diseases and those of the Throat and Lungs, Catarrh, Rupture, the Opium Habit, &c., price 10 cts.

Either book sent postpaid on receipt of price; or all three, containing 500 pages, beautifully illustrated, for 75 cts. Address DR. BUTTS, No. 12 N. 8th St. St. Louis, Mo.

FIFTH YEAR.

IND. CONSERVATORY OF MUSIC,

FORT WAYNE, IND.

FALL TERM COMMENCING

SEPTEMBER 11th, 1877.

Pupils attending this Conservatory can be accommodated with board at the M. E. College, at $2 per week.

no34tf S. B. MORSE, Principal.

Sheriff's Sale.

BY VIRTUE of a certified copy of a Decree to me directed from the Clerk of the De Kalb Circuit Court, in a cause wherein Albert C. Dewson is plaintiff, and John B Rinehart is defendant, requiring me to make the sum of twenty-six dollars and forty-five cents (26.45), with interest on said decree and costs, I will expose at public sale, to the highest bidder, on

SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER, 15, 1877,

between the hours of 10 o'clock A. M. and 4 o'clock P. M., of said day, at the door of the Court House in DeKalb county, Indiana, the rents and profits for a term not exceeding seven years, of the following real estate. Thirteen and one-half acres of land described as follows to-wit:

The west half (½) of the south half (½) of the south-east quarter of section thirty-six (36) township thirty-five [35] north of range twelve [12] east, containing forty acres more or less in DeKalb County Indiana.

If such rents and profits will not sell for a sufficient sum to satisfy said decree, interest and costs, I will at the same time and place expose to public sale the fee simple of said real estate, or so much thereof as may be sufficient to discharge said decree, interests and costs. Said sale will be made without any relief whatever from valuation or appraisement laws.

J. C. StCLAIR, Sheriff DeKalb Co.
H. C. Peterson Attorney for plaintiff.
Aug. 22nd A. D. 1877. Pfr's. fee $8.75.

Sheriff's Sale.

BY virtue of an execution to me directed from the Clerk of the DeKalb County Circuit Court in a cause wherein The First National Bank of Auburn is plaintiff and Samuel Tate, et al. are defendents, requiring me to make the sum of two hundred and thirty-seven dollars (237) and six cents, with interest on said judgment and costs, I will expose at public sale, to the highest bidder on

SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 8th, 1877.

between the hours of 10 o'clock a. m. and 4 o'clock p. m. of said day, at the door of the Court House in DeKalb County, Indiana, the rents and profits for a term not exceeding seven years, of the following real estate, to-wit:

Lot number one hundred and thirty-five (135) and the west half of lot number one hundred and thirty six (136) in Egnew's second addition to the town of Butler, DeKalb county, Indiana.

If such rents and profits will not sell for a sufficient sum to satisfy said judgment interests and costs, I will at the same time and place, expose the fee simple of said real estate, or so much thereof as may be sufficient to discharge said judgment, interest and costs.

Sale will be made without any relief whatever from valuation or appraisement laws.

J. C. St. CLAIR, Sheriff,
Guy Plum, Att'y for plaintiff.
Auburn, Ind, Aug. 15, 1877.
Pr. fee $8.50.

Sheriff's Sale,

BY virtue of an execution to me directed from the Clerk of the DeKalb Circuit Court, in a cause wherein Bank of New Carlisle is plaintiff, and Isaac Diehl and Solomon Hase defendants requiring me to make the sum of two hundred and sixty-eight (268) dollars and sixty-eight (68) cents, with interest on said judgment and costs, I will expose at public sale to the highest bidder, on

SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 8th, 1877

Between the hours of 10 o'clock a. m., and 4 o'clock p. m., of said day at the door of the Court House of DeKalb County, Indiana, the rents and profits for a term not exceeding seven years of the following real estate to-wit:

The north-west quarter of the south-east quarter and the south half of the south-east quarter and the east half of the east half of the south-west quarter all in section seven [7] township thirty-four [34] north of range fifteen [15] east all in DeKalb County Indiana.

If such rents and profits will not sell for sufficient sum to satisfy said judgment interests and costs, I will at the same time and place, expose at public sale the fee simple of said real estate, or so much thereof as may be sufficient to discharge said judgment interests and costs.

Sale will be made without any relief whatever from valuation or appraisement laws.

JOHN. C. ST. CLAIR, Sheriff.
Auburn, Indianan, August 8th, 1877.
J. W. Rickel Attorney for plaintiff, Pf. $8.50.

Sheriff's Sale.

BY virtue of a certified copy of a decree to me directed from the Clerk of the DeKalb Circuit Court in a cause wherein Joseph Kerr, Fr. is plaintiff, and Walter Dean and Rebecca Dean are defendants, requiring me to make the sum of four hundred and sixty nine dollars and sixty cents, with interest on said decree and cost, I will expose at public sale, to the highest bidder, on

SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER, 8th, 1877,

Between the hours of 10 o'clock A. M. and 4 o'clock P. M. of said day, at the door of the Court House, in DeKalb county, Indiana, the rents and profits for a term not exceeding seven years of the following real estate to-wit:

In lot number fifty-two (52) and fifty-seven (57) in the recorded plat of the town of Vienna in DeKalb county Indiana.

If such rents and profits will not sell for a sufficient sum to satisfy said decree, interests and costs, I will at the same time and place expose to public sale the fee simple of said real estate or so much thereof as may be sufficient to discharge said decree, interest and costs.

Said sale will be made without any relief whatever from valuation or appraisement laws.

J. C. St. CLAIR, Sheriff.
By Thos. D. Gross, Dpt.
L. Coville, Attorney for plaintiff.
Auburn, July 11th, A. D. 1877. P. F. $8.25.

Sheriff's Sale.

BY virtue of an execution to me directed from the Clerk of the DeKalb Circuit Court in a cause wherein Solomon Leopold et al is plaintiff, and Charles Klotz is defendant, requiring me to make the sum of four hundred and thirty-six (436) dollars and sixty-three cents, with interest on said judgment and cost, I will expose at public sale to the highest bidder, on

SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 8th, 1877

between the hours of 10 o'clock a. m. and 4 o'clock p. m. of said day at the door of the Court House of DeKalb County, Indiana, the rents and profits for a term not exceeding seven years, of the following real estate to-wit:

The south one third of lot sixty-six (66) in the original plat of the town of Auburn, DeKalb County Indiana.

If such rents and profits will not sell for a sufficient sum to satisfy said judgment interest and costs, I will at the same time and place, expose at public sale, the fee simple of said real estate, or so much thereof as may be sufficient to discharge said decree, interest and costs.

Sale will be made without any relief whatever from valuation or appraisement laws.

J. C. St. CLAIR, Sheriff.
By Thos. D. Gross, Dept.
Auburn, Indiana, August 8th, 1877.
Guy Plum, Attorney for plaintiff. Pf. $8.00

Sheriff's Sale.

BY virtue of an execution to me directed from the Clerk of the DeKalb Circuit Court, in a cause wherein Samuel Strong et al is plaintiff, and Eli Kuhlman is defendant, requiring me to make the sum of one hundred and sixty-four (164) dollars and forty-two (42) cents, with interest on said judgment and cost, I will expose at public sale to the highest bidder on

SATURDAY SEPTEMBER, 8th, 1877

between the hours of 10 o'clock a. m., and 4 o'clock p. m. of said day, at the door of the Court house of DeKalb county, Indiana, the rents and profits for a term not exceeding seven years, of the following real estate, to-wit:

Lot number nineteen (19) in Ashley's second addition to the town of Auburn DeKalb County Indiana.

If such rents and profits will not sell for a sufficient sum to satisfy said judgment, interest and costs, I will at the same time and place, expose at public sale the fee simple of said real estate, or so much thereof as may be sufficient to discharge said judgment, interest and costs.

Sale will be made without any relief whatever from valuation and appraisement laws.

J. C. StCLAIR, Sheriff,
THOS. D. GROSS, Dept.
J. W. Rickel Attorney for plaintiff.
Auburn, Ind. August 8th, 1877. Pf $8.00.

Sheriff's Sale.

BY virtue of an execution to me directed by the Clerk of the Dekalb Circuit Court, in a cause wherein A. S. Best is plaintiff, and Jacob W. Rinoehl, et al. are defendants, requiring me to make the sum of Two Hundred and Fifteen [215] dollars and ten cents with interest on said judgment and costs, I will expose at public sale to the highest bidder, on Saturday, 25th day of August 1877

Between the hours of 10 o'clock a. m. and 4 o'clock p. m. of said day, at the door of the Court House of DeKalb County, Indiana, the rents and profits, for a term not exceeding seven years of the following real estate, to wit:

A part of section twenty-seven [27] township thirty-five [35], north of range twelve [12] described as follows to-wit: Commencing at a point fifty-three and one-third [53⅓] rods north of where the highway crosses the north line of the north-east quarter of said section twenty-seven [27], thence north alongside highway to the south side of lands owned by Cornelius West thence westerly with the south bank of Cedar Creek and the mill pond to a point thirty-two [32] rods east of the west line of the north-east quarter of the north quarter of said section twenty-seven, thence south to a point fifty-three and one-third [53 1-3] rods north of said south line of the north east quarter of said section twenty-seven [27], thence east to the place of beginning, containing twenty-four acres of land Also the west half of the north-east quarter of the north-east quarter, all in section twenty-seven [27], township thirty-five [35], north of range twelve [12], east, all in DeKalb county, Indiana.

If such rents and profits will not sell for a sufficient sum to satisfy said judgment interest and costs, I will, at the same time and place, expose at public sale the fee simple of said real estate, or so much thereof as may be sufficient to discharge said judgment interests and costs.

Said sale will be made without any relief whatever from valuation or appraisement laws.

JOHN C. ST. CLAIR, Sheriff
Best & McClellan Atty's for plaintiff.
Auburn, Indiana, August 1st 1877.
Pr. fee $12.75.

OPIUM and Morphine Habit absolutely and speedily cured. Painless; no publicity. Send stamp for particulars. Dr. Carlton, 187 Washington St., Chicago, Ill.

ROOT & COMPANY.

SPECIAL BARGAINS for AUGUST

AT

Root & Company's,

IN

CARPETS,

Curtain goods, Black and Colored Silks, Dress Goods, Suits, Shawls, Parasols, Sun Umbrellas, Hosiery, Gloves, Underwear, Linens, Embroideries, Laces, Domestic Goods, Woolens, Grain Bags Carpet warp, Yarns, Blankets, Flannels, White Goods, Corsets, Fancy Goods, Notions, Fans, etc., etc.

Root & Company,

46 and 48 Calhoun-st, Fort Wayne Ind

DAY'S AGUE TONIC

CURES EVERY FORM OF CHILLS, OR MONEY RETURNED.

DAY'S TONIC Cures Chills and Fever.
DAY'S TONIC Cures Dumb Chills.
DAY'S TONIC Supersedes Quinine.
DAY'S TONIC Cures Old Chronic Chills.
DAY'S TONIC Is pleasant for Children.
DAY'S TONIC Cleanses the Stomach.
DAY'S TONIC Acts on Liver and Bowels.
DAY'S TONIC Don't Dum the Head.
DAY'S TONIC Don't contain Quinine.

DAY'S TONIC

Is a new innovation, and possesses advantages heretofore unknown and unclaimed by others.

It does not contain Quinine or any poison; it does not produce buzzing or roaring in the head which follows the use of Quinine; it is retained by delicate stomachs; it acts upon the liver and bowels without the use of any other medicine; it never fails to cure, and our agents are authorized to return the money in each and every case of failure; one bottle will cure two cases. Try it and see. Sold by all Druggists at $1.00.

J. P. DROMGOOLE & CO., Proprietors, Louisville, Ky.

NOTICE OF PETITION FOR A DITCH.

STATE OF INDIANA, } S. S.
DeKalb County, }

NOTICE is hereby given that a petition for a ditch has been presented before the Board of Commissioners of said county, and will be heard and determined on the third day of their September term, 1877; said ditch being described as follows, to-wit:

Commencing on the Auburn and Spencerville road at the culvert situated 1-6 feet east of the west line of land now owned by William Magginnis, and from thence the following distances and courses to-wit:

n 57° 00′ e 900 f't	down old chn'l 1400 f't
down old chn'l 1400 f't	" " 1400 "
n 62° 00′ e 200 f't	east 1200 "
on curve south 100 f't	south 400 "
down old chn'l 900 "	s 56° 00′ e 400 "
" " " 450	down old chn'l 3050 "
" " " 1600	" " " 1100 "
" " " 3400	" " " 1000 "
" " " 1100	s 84° 00′ e 550 "

And terminating at a point 300 feet south of the north-east corner of section 12, all in Jackson township, DeKalb county, Indiana, and the lands owned by the following parties are affected by the same.

James Provines, William Magginnis, John Coy Isaac Kutzner, J. L. Berry, John McClellan, Alonzo Lockwood, Adam Prosser, Estate of Emily Fuller, Henry Hines, John P. Moore, Daniel Magginnis, Cyrus C. Walters, James E. Draggon, George W. Draggon, William Williams John Cramer, Amanda Yocum, Burton Brown, Henry Brown, John Cobbler, John Carper, Estate of J. W. Sebert, Adam Carper, Mathew George, James Ferguson, Estate of William George, Estate of Isaac Culbertson, John C. Owens, Wm. McClellan, DeKalb County.

ISAAC HAGUE, Auditor.

Done this 31st day of July, 1877.

NOTICE OF PETITION FOR A DITCH.

STATE OF INDIANA, } S. S.
DeKalb County }

NOTICE is hereby given, that a petition for a ditch has been presented before the Board of Commissioners of said county, and will be heard and determined on the 4th day of their September term, 1877, said ditch being described as follows, to-wit:

Commencing 230 north and 300 feet west of the south-east corner of the west ½ of the north east quarter of section 27, Union township, DeKalb county, Indiana, and from thence as follows:

s 20° 00′ w 400 f't	s 12° 30′ w 3400 f't
s 71° 30′ w 1800 "	s 50° 00′ w 1700 "
s 5330 w 1500 "	s 8° 00′ w 700 "
on curve w 500 "	n 52° 00′ w 1500 "
n 70° 00′ w 1300 "	n 77° 30′ w 900 "
n 60° 30′ w 500 "	s thro' r r cu't 100 "
n 60° 30′ w 200 "	n 81° 00′ w 200 "

down old channel 200 feet.

And terminating at the point where said old channel enters Cedar Creek, on lands belonging to the estate of C. S. Hare, in section 32: all in Union township, DeKalb county, Indiana, and the lands owned by the following parties are affected by the same:

Uriah Thomas, Owen Hensinger, Detroit, Eel River and Illinois Railway Co., Anna Walker, Jacob Somers, Regina Weaver, George W. Foster, John Springer, Jarvis Porter, William Spears, John Cobbler, Hadessa J. Ralston, James Draggoo, Moses Brandon, Estate of John Somers David Smith, William Ashelman, David Ober, Estate of C. S. Hare, DeKalb County, Moses Ashelman.

ISAAC HAGUE, Auditor.

Done this 31st day of July, 1877.

Buggies For Sale.

I am offering several new, well made buggies both double and single, at very reasonable rates They are of my own manufacture, and warrante for two years. I will sell them on one year time. Please call at my blacksmith shop a' examine them. JAMES ANDERSON

BILL BRITTON

THE DRAY MAN

Will attend promptly to all orders for

DRAYING AND HAULING.

Rattling good teams and reasonable charges.

HOW

Is it that the New York Store sells goods so much cheaper than their neighbors is a question often asked. It is because they sell for cash and

DO

Not have to sustain losses from bad debts, besides it inables them to pay cash for goods and get the discounts which make quite an item to

YOU

As consumers. It also enables them to keep all the new and desirable styles and novelties, by being always ready to take hold of them without delay, and it is a well established fact which all

KNOW

That there is no one concern more careful in selecting good and desirable goods than the New York Store.

IT

Being the object of the New York Store to give entire satisfaction to all their customers.

G. H. FORKNER & CO., Prop's.

GAZE ON THE BOOT UPSIDE DOWN

$10,000.00 WORTH OF

BOOTS AND SHOES

—TO BE SOLD—

25 Per Cent. CHEAPER

Than any House in DeKalb county. If you don't believe it, read our price list and then come in and examine the goods.

Ladies	12	thread serge polish		$ 90c
"	16	" " "		1.15c
"	18	" " "		1.40c
"		side lace shoes	1 25	2.50c
"		goat buskins "	70	95c
"		serge " "	50	75c
"		three button working shoes	1.25	185c
Mens 2 buckle plow shoes				1.40c
"		brogan " "		1.25c
"		Solid comfort plow shoes made to order		2.00
"		Calf sewed boots	3.00	4.75c
"		" pegged "	3.00	4.00c
Boys fine boots				2.25c

—SIGN OF THE—

BOOT UPSIDE DOWN,

Next door to J. L. Davis' Hardware store, Auburn, Indiana.

W. J. USTIN & CO.

Auburn Courier.

Local and Miscellaneous.

THE AUBURN MARKET.

—Corn 55c.
—Oats 22c.
—Eggs 8c.
—Butter 13c.
—Potatoes 40c
—Live Turkeys 6c.
—Clover Seed $7 50.
—Live Chickens 4c
—Wheat $1.12 @ 1.15
—The Courier $2.00 a year.

For School books go to Houser's.

The place to get strictly pure drugs at lowest prices is at Davenport's

Senator Morton is reported as having realized a stroke of paralysis last week.

Walt Peterson is selling musical instruments for G. P. Alexander of Kendallville.

Yesterday afternoon a great rain storm came up from the south, and the rain fell in sheets.

Bring on your primary geographies and make exchange at Davenport's before school opens.

A severe hail storm passed over Butler township last Saturday, doing some damage to corn.

Steve Masters, of Corunna, will leave next week to permanently settle in Franklin county, Arkansas.

We challenge the world to produce a better plow than the Butler Nickel Steel Plow. 6t

Gust Mead will sell a lot of property at his residence two miles north-west of Auburn, next Saturday, Aug. 25th.

Save money by getting your school books, paper, pens, ink, &c of Davenport the druggist.

See the card of the Ind. Conservatory of Music at Fort Wayne. The best of talent is employed, and tuition price reasonable.

The Butler Nickel Steel Plow is the best in market. They are warranted to scour in all kinds of soil. Call at Ensley's and see them. 6t

Several of our citizens are making arrangements to get their articles on exhibition at the Northern Indian Fair at Fort Wayne.

For wall paper and window shades call on Davenport the druggist. He has the best and cheapest stock in the county.

Go to Schaab, Beugnot & Co. if you want to see a fine display of ready-made clothing, hats, gents' furnishing goods, etc. All the styles and varieties at the lowest prices.

The Butler Plows cannot be beat in either loam or sod ground, and will scour equal to the best steel or chilled plow. 6t

Two ladies were injured, one fatally, at Avilla, a few days ago, by a team running away. Mrs. Waltz cannot recover.

Some of the boys went to James Lake near Angola to fish last Monday. Bill Britton took them by the overland route but did not return with them as he was taken seriously ill, during last Monday. His wife went to Angola yesterday to see him.

The American Express Company has been withdrawn from the Baltimore road, and the railroad company will establish agents and run their own express so that we well now have competing lines to this point.

The best argument that can be used in favor of Lawson's Curative, is that it is used by physicians of eminent skill in their profession, and can always be relied upon as a safe, simple and effective cure for the many diseases refered to in the advertisement.

Davenport the druggist has all the school books now in use—call and get prices before school opens.

Oh, my! what handsome work you can have done, in the boot and shoe line, by going to Wm. Little's, over Pommert's barber shop

Advance in Wheat.

Last Monday afternoon the wheat market took an upward leap, and yesterday another advance was made. We quote the prices to-day at $1.18 for best.

Maj. S. McFadin, of Logansport, has contributed an article for the Courier which will appear next week. The Major is a graceful, easy writer and the quiet humor pervading all his articles make them very interesting.

That genial, clever, accomplished gentleman, H. S. Morse, Esq., master of transportation, at Garrett, Ind., has our thanks for special favors. It gives us great pleasure to make due acknowledgment of the same.

The bills are out for a game of base ball at Spencerville next Friday afternoon, between the clubs of this place and Spencerville. It will no doubt be an interesting game.

The Fort Wayne papers managed to get a woman killed last week at Academie, by a tramp. The tramp got away of course, and the woman is now in excellent health. So much for enterprise.

There was a little excitement at Garrett on the occasion referred to last week about hanging up a fellow, for stealing a watch, but it was not near so bad, as some tried to make out.

Some one has sent us a new song entitled "When the blossoms cover us Darling." Well, blossoms are all right when its warm, but we want something more tangible, "when the north winds doth blow."

Its a long lane that has no turning. Tom. Cool laughed at us last spring, when we went down in that washout along Cedar Creek, and got a ducking. Now Tom. knows how 'tis himself. He who laughs last laughs longest.

Crane Duncan & Co. of Waterloo have the contract for building the Opera house at Goshen, to cost about $10,000. These parties are becoming very extensive contractors in this section, no doubt due to the good honest work they give, and the reasonable prices they demand.

Hicksville Independent. This season will produce the heaviest crop of oats known to the farmers of this county for several years. This together with the great wheat crop now being marketed, will revive business in every department of trade and commerce.

Columbia City post. Our farmers are hilarious over the result of farming operations this year. Sherman and Hayes couldn't keep the earth from yielding up her richness to relieve the wants of a distressed people. Thank God for that.

Grand Pic-Nic.—The annual pic-nic, for the benefit of the Catholic church, of Avilla, will be held on Wednesday, August 29th, in the old grove. Music, speaking and lots of fun, dinner and all kinds of refreshments. By order of Committee.

It was only last week that we noticed a fine display of new goods at the popular clothing house of Schaab, Beugnot & Co's., and now we are told that another invoice of late and most approved patterns of clothing has been received this week, and is now on hand for the inspection of the public. And remember that low prices are the ruling features of this firm.

Do not stupify your baby with opium or morphia mixtures, but use Dr. Bull's Baby syrup which is always safe and reliable and never disappoints. Sold by F. E. Davenport.

We are glad to know there is a great decline in sugar. Capt. White of the fruit house announced a reduction of one cent per pound on all grades, and this is the second reduction within the past two weeks. The Captain is bound to keep it down to the lowest notch.

Christ. Fell says we are a "plain unvarnished, enthusiastic not so" He denies being the father of a bouncing baby recently, not that he would care if he was. Well, something was dropped about the matter by some one, and we were referred to Fell for the meaning of it.

The following gentlemen have been selected as Petit Jurors for the September term of the DeKalb Circuit Court.

John W. Dills,	Samuel Weller,
James Quince,	Reuben G. Daniels,
H. L. Carnaham,	John Downing,
Nicholas Ensley,	William Nelson,
John C. Somers,	Aaron D. Moore,
Daniel Tomlinson,	Sebastian Testison.

The commissioners have constructed a splendid dyke between the Eel River railroad and the bridge across Cedar Creek south east of town. It would have been better had they taken gravel out of the bed of the creek, and put on top of the embankment. The stiff clay now composing the surface, will work up a terrible road in muddy times.

We made a brief call at the Herald office at Garrett, last Saturday, and found Bro. Powell a pleasant, genial gentleman. The office looked clean and neat, though there was not much doing on account of illness in the editors' family. Bro. P. will have a hard struggle to make a living, and it seems to us there are other points more inviting the publishing line than Garrett

The fair at Waterloo takes place the first week in October. As there has been an abundant harvest, the display this year in the agricultural point of view, ought to be superior to any yet made. A little more interest should be taken in the live stock department, and this fair will afford an excellent opportunity to manifest it.

Ligonier Banner. Since it has been ascertained that turnips are a cure for hog cholera, every farmer ought to make sure of an acre or more of that valuable product. Plant at once.

We did not know that such was the the case. If it has been ascertained that they will cure, our farmers have it in their own hands to keep the dread disease away.

The Republicans of Etna, Maine, at their caucus for the election of delegates to the recent State convention.

Resolved, That President Hayes is a traitor to his party and to his country and to his God.

No wonder the State of Maine has been Republican so long, when its citizens are imbued with such ideas and sentiments as the above. What are they going to do about it?

The Fort Wayne Fair.

The fair at Fort Wayne will be held September 10th to 14th. For the first time for many years a real interest has been awakened in Allen county in fair matters. All factions seem to be united and a unity of effort, cannot fail in this large enterprising county, to present such attractions for an occasion of this kind as will be appreciated by all, and we believe it will pay every body to attend.

Waterloo Press. On two acres of land on the farm of Samuel Goodwin, near town, tilled by L. S. Goodwin, grew this year ninety bushels and three pounds of wheat. The land was measured by Stephen George and Philemon Goodwin, and the measurment from the separator accurately kept, with a view to entering the yield at the coming fair. The entire five acre lot yielded forty bushels and forty pounds to the acre.

Auburn, Ind., August 21, 1877.

Mr. Editor, Sir:—Please announce through your paper that an excursion train on the B. & O. railroad, will be run to Chicago on the fourth of September next, during the time of the exposition in that city, the round trip at very low rates. The train will leave Auburn Junction at 6:30 a. m. Only first-class passenger coaches are engaged. For full particulars see posters.

Committee.

We called on Bro. Parker the other day, at Garrett, and found him determined to defeat the effort to starve him out there in establishing another paper. The "News," throwing its fortunes with the town when first started, ought to have the inside track and if Bro. Parker will adopt the right tactics, he will win. We have no desire to see the "News" go down, neither can we wish the "Herald" bad luck, yet one or the other must cease to exist in a short time.

We are glad to note that the DeKalb House and Depot Dining Rooms at Garrett, are in charge of one of "nature's noblemen," the affable Mr. Taggart, who now has them under his management. Tom. is one of those genial, polished fellows, who while they please and entertain, never forget the dignity becoming gentlemen. The house is first class and the dining rooms have become popular all along the line for the excellent fair they furnish their guests. Our thanks are due manager Taggart for special favors.

Gracie Gilbert.

We must say that the child, Gracie Gilbert, the little daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Giles Gilbert, who resides 16 miles east of Angola, in Northwest township, Williams county, Ohio, is the greatest living curosity we have ever seen. This child is about 18 months of age, finely formed, bright, sprightly and healthy, and almost entirely covered with hair. The hair on its head is some twelve or fifteen inches in length and is very heavy. Its whiskers are three or four inches in length. On its back, body, arms, and legs, is a thick, heavy, but fine silky growth of hair, covering almost its entire body and some two or three inches in length. And, strange to say, there is no repulsiveness in the sight, no deformity and moreover no humbug.—Steuben Republican.

W. W. Fleming, recently a first lieutenant in the regular army, was condemned to the penitentiary of Iowa, his native state, for embezzling the money of enlisted soldiers, a few days since at San Francisco. His sentence is ten years imprisonment at hard labor. He is a graduate at West Point, and married a lady of good family. He gambled away the money he held in trust, taking but a little at a time, hoping to replace it all before detected. His wife and children are almost heartbroken, but his sentence was not lessened by their pleadings. Had Fleming been a General, he would have been allowed to resign, like Belknap and then screened from justice by the President. It makes some difference who you are.

Dana, of the N. Y. Sun, not only protests against an increase of the regular army, but insists upon a further reduction. In a recent issue he says; "Taxation is now a grevious load to carry, but taxes to maintain the army at its present maximum of 25,000 men, or to augment it, would raise a storm of indignation which could not be easily subdued. Labor is heavily weighted and can bear no more. The House of Representatives should not be diverted from the path hitherto pursued, which is the only safe road out of our troubles. Economy must go on until the public burdens are diminished, and the laboring man has a chance to be something else than a hewer of wood and a drawer of water.

Warsaw Union. It seems to create a pang in the heart of every Republican editor that the railroad strike passed off in this State without the loss of life or the destruction of property. How gladly would they have welcomed a collision between the strikers and the militia! Nothing would have been of greater service to them in the next campaign. How they would have charged upon Governor Williams the loss of life and property that would have resulted from any rash action of his in bringing together the two opposing elements. As long as there was no destruction of property, or loss of life, or any very great danger in that direction, Governor Williams' cool-headed course was the best under the circumstances, and there is reason to believe averted an aggravated case of riot, bloodshed together with great loss of property.

INDIANA STATE FAIR.

The lithograph posters for the coming State Fair are neat and attractive. The fair is announced for one week, commencing September 24th. There will be the usual display in the way of an exposition during the fair week. Many exhibitors have expressed themselves willing to exhibit for that length of time that could not continue for a longer period. From present indications, the immense exposition building will be well filled, and make a fine display, especially so as the destruction by fire last winter, of some of the buildings adjoining the main hall, will necessitate the crowding other departments into the main building. Every department will be represented as heretofore. Special inducements are offered to exhibitors in the mechanical and art departments, as will be noticed by refering to rules 2nd and 11th of the rules and regulations to be found in the premium list.

The Horticultural department will be exhibited on the second floor of the main hall. The State Horticultural Society will make an exhibition of fruits and flowers, not as a competitor but to show what can be done in that line. They will also hold a meeting for discussion one evening during the fair. There will also be meetings held each evening during fair week, by one of the State industrial association; i. e., Short Horn breeders, swine breeders, wool growers and poultry breeder, the programme of which will be announced hereafter. The live stock interests continue to increase; the number of stalls and pens already secured by exhibitors insure success in that line, and judging from the office business as connected with the fair, the prospects are of the most encouraging nature.

Considering that we are favored the present season with the most bountiful crops for many years past, with peace and plenty and no political excitement, or "centennial attraction," we have reason to expect an old fashioned State Fair.

The Board of Agriculture will leave nothing undone to secure success, and merit the approval of exhibitors and visitors. Premium lists can be procured of members of the board, the secretaries of agricultural societies in the State, or by sending the address to the Secretary of the Board of Agriculture.

ELOPEMENT.

Last Monday morning about 1 o'clock a man and woman, as man and wife, stopped at the Central House, arriving there by private conveyance. They were shown to a room and in the morning took the freight train north to Jackson. The next day another man came along inquiring for the parties, and finding them gone, telegraphed to Jackson for their arrest. They were intercepted at Jonesville and held by the authorities until the other parties arrived the next day. It now turns out that Allen was the name of the man arrested, and the woman was the wife of one Plattner, of Swan, Ind., who had followed them to that point. Our citizens may remember the exhibition of a circus here last summer, at which a balloon ascension was given. The fellow who went up in the balloon was Plattner, and the woman who accompanied him is the same connected with this affair. She has made several attempts to run away with this man Allen and even hid her clothes in a thicket to further her escape. Allen is a three-card-monte man, while Mr. Plattner is a gentleman. The woman has perfoomed in a circus and does acts of lifting with her teeth, which are really wonderful. Man and wife returned here yesterday, while Allen lies in jail at Jonesville.

More Practical than Romantic.

A few years ago a poor laborer living a few miles south of Auburn, found a pocket book containing $1,600 in cash, besides notes and other papers of value. Here was an opening in the clouds, a bright gleaming of a prosperous future, for himself and little ones. Should he hand over to the owner this little bonanza, and trudge wearily on, with want and penury and a peaceful conscience, or should he keep it and enhance his own chance in a life which had known nothing but hard knocks and blows for its maintenance. This was the great question for him to decide, and he did decide promptly. Taking the money he replaced the remainder on the public road and it came home the owner in due time. There is no temptation in notes and papers, valueless in any but their owners' hands. He had been contemplating a trip west before this, and now it was doubly desirous that he should reach the new Eldorado. In a few weeks he took up his line of march for Kansas, bought a farm and prospered. Now comes the sequel. This spring the loser of the money received a remittance of a sum equal to $1,600 and ten percent interest from the time he met with his loss. It was from one whom he had known years ago, but he was astonished to learn that such an one should send him so large a sum of money. An acknowledgment accompanied the remittance, and in that were revealed the facts as stated above about the pocket book. Did he do right? He knew that the farmer who had suffered the loss was well off and could bear it without embarrassment, and he also knew if he gave it over, this one chance to place him self beyond want was gone forever. Perhaps $10 would have been doled out to him as a recompense for his honesty, for the old farmer had not a general reputation of great liberality. Morally it was wrong to keep and appropriate the property of another, though it was not stolen, but practically the farmer suffered little on account of his loss, while the finder made good use of the chance given him and made restitution to the last cent. Is "all's well that ends well" a correct standard of action?

The Herald, the new Republican paper at Garrett, endorses the following, which is a very fair representation of the Ohio campaign: "If the Republicans of Ohio are beaten this fall they may thank the cowardice of their leaders for it—another thing, Ohio has too much Stanley Mathews. The idea of a party making any pretentions to common honesty and common sense talking about Congress fixing the price of labor and establishing a Bureau of Industry—as though the business of the country could be regulated by an act of Congress. The sooner that everybody learns that labor is a marketable commodity, and its price governed (all other things being equal) by supply and demand, the better.

When an employer cannot get remunerative returns from his employed labor one of two things is pretty sure to follow. Either to reduce the price or stop the laborer from work, either of which he has a legal right to do, provided he can employ labor at lower rates. The laborer has the same right to quit when he can do better.

Try the Butler Nickel Steel Plow, only $12,00, the best plow yet made. 6t

If you want to drop down on a brace of good fellows, just call at the New Era office Albion, and you can find them. There is the good, easy, Prickett with his affable, pleasant ways, always at his post and happy only when at routine labor. But the dash, the dazzling brilliancy of that duet is represented in the beautiful Star. A jolly, roistering, hale fellow, full of snap and ginger, wide awake and known to every body, he walks over the course an easy winner every time. We found this all out last Friday on a visit to our neighboring county seat, spent a short time most agreeably in their company. The New Era is a splendid local paper, and we are glad to know that it is receiving a deserved patronage.

Sam. Alvord is entombed in the clerk's office, and is making an efficient, excellent officer.

Prentiss is still active in his disputations of a legal character.

Judge Clapp has been quite sick, but is around again, meanwhile that wide-awake son of his, presides at the bank with suavity of manner that exhilerates and delights.

Albion is receiving some valuable improvements in the way of graded streets that add much to her already attractive appearance.

DEATHS.

For the third time within a few weeks the angel of death has been among us, and with appalling suddenness has stricken down his victim.

On last Saturday morning no one in Waterloo seemed to have brighter prospects of a long and happy life than Josie Francis. Before mid-day the light had faded from her eyes, the smiles from her lips, the warm heart was stilled in death and her spirit obeying the dread summons had solved the mystery of the great hereafter.

In her death, not her family alone are bereaved, but the whole community feel the blow, and mourn for one who was so universal a favorite—young, beautiful, aimable and kind hearted, a dutiful daughter, a faithful friend and a true christian, she had gained a place the in hearts of those who knew her that will long keep her memory fresh and green.

She was at the time of her death, and for several months past engaged to be married to Mr. Frank P. Day, of this place, for whom she called when stricken and dying, and upon whom the blow falls with peculiar force. He with her family are entitled to and will receive the hearty sympathies of the entire community.

The circle is broken, one seat is forsaken.
One bud from the stem of our friendship is shaken;
O ne heart from among us no longer shal. thrill
With joy in our gladness or grief in our ill.

Weep! lonely and lowly are slumbering now,
The light of her glances the pride of her brow;
Weep! sadly and long shall we listen in vain;
To hear the soft tone of her welcome again.

O. who can forget the mild light of her smile,
Over lips moved with music and feeling the while;
The eye's deep enchantment, dark dream like and clear
In the glow of its gladness, the shade of its tear.

And the charm of her features, while o'er the whole,
Played the hues of her heart and the sunshine of soul;
And the tones of her voice, like the music which seems
Murmured low in our ears by the angel of dreams.

As a cloud of the sunset's low melting in Heaven
As a star that is lost when the daylight is given
As a glad dream of slumber which wakens in bliss,
She hath passed to the world of the holy, from this.

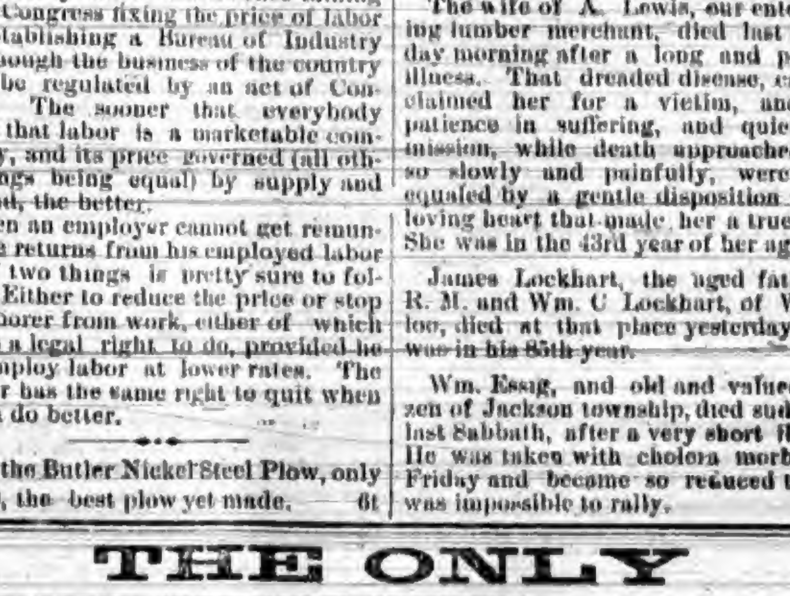
The wife of A. Lewis, our enterprising lumber merchant, died last Saturday morning after a long and painful illness. That dreaded disease, cancer, claimed her for a victim, and her patience in suffering, and quiet submission, while death approached, oh, so slowly and painfully, were only equaled by a gentle disposition and a loving heart that made her a true wife. She was in the 43rd year of her age.

James Lockhart, the aged father of R. M. and Wm. C Lockhart, of Waterloo, died at that place yesterday. He was in his 85th year.

Wm. Essig, and old and valued citizen of Jackson township, died suddenly last Sabbath, after a very short illness. He was taken with cholera morbus on Friday and became so reduced that it was impossible to rally.

THE ONLY

FIRST-CLASS INSTRUMENT.



The ESTEY ORGAN

Stands unrivalled. It has stood the test of years, and has never been excelled. Those wanting Organs should get the Estey, the very best there is made. Hundreds of testimonials in its favor, and increased rates every year. Call and examine them

G. H. YESBERA, Agt.

Next Door to Abright's, Main Street, Auburn, Indiana

TWENTY YEARS AGO.

BY MRS. A. T. [illegible]

The springtime has come again, Will,
As in the years of yore;
The maple trees are leafing out
Before the cottage door;
And the glad birds have come again,
Singing their merry glees,
Building their nests, rearing their young,
Up in our maple trees.

The silver brook is dancing, Will,
Along its pebbly way,
And on its rocky islands now
The little children play;
I've watched them at their sport this morn—
The fashions come and go—
But plays are just the same as ours
Were twenty years ago.

The children have their play-house, Will,
Just where ours used to be;
They have their broken bits of ware,
Their acorn cups for tea.
The boys split wood and build the fire,
Just as you did, you know,
When we kept house upon these rocks
Some twenty years ago.

The woodbine climbs the lattice, Will,
And hides the porch from sight.
Do you remember how it stood,
Not much beyond our height?
I marked the place where your head came,
You marked the place of mine—
But you and I have grown some, too,
Since that far-off springtime.

We have never met since then, Will,
As man I know you not;
The black-eyed boy of those glad days,
Has never been forgot.
While sitting in your mansion grand
With your proud wife to-day,
I wonder if there comes a thought
Of "wee wife" Katie Gray.

AN EVENING AT EPPING.

I suppose that all persons given more to reflection than to action have at times been conscious of power undeveloped far transcending all they have ever put forth. In illustration of this assumption, I propose offering a plain statement of facts. It may be that circumstances equally remarkable occur within the experience of most persons; but, if it be so, I believe they excite usually only a transient observation.

Ten years ago I was spending the summer in Epping—a quiet, pleasant country town in New England. Unusual demands had been made on my energies, mental and physical, the preceding year, and, with scarcely sufficient vitality to enable me to seek rest, I yet thankfully accepted it when offered by chance. A month of absolute repose restored to me a degree of vigor commensurate perhaps with that which I before possessed, but with a difference. Previously I had valued chiefly my uniformity of ability to labor. Now I had the ability in an equal degree, but interruptedly. Gradually I observed, too, that my own moods were precursors of meteorological changes, so that I became a sort of conscious barometer. My experiences at this time were not all equally agreeable, but the most so of them, I think, was a feeling of extreme buoyancy, accompanied by an unusual clearness of perception, apparently coincident with, and, as I grew to believe, dependent upon any extraordinary augmentation of atmospheric electricity. At such times, too, I was conscious of a recognition of traits of character in the individuals around me which I had never before observed—their thoughts, the very words they were about to speak were as clear to my mind as at the moment of their utterance. I cannot better express what I experienced in this respect than to say that my own mind, like a mirror, reflected sometimes the consciousness, memory, and volition of another, and this quite independently of effort on my part other than to hold in abeyance disturbing forces.

One morning in the middle of July, after a protracted drought, and after the failure of repeated prognostics of rain, the temperature had suddenly descended from a little less than 100 degrees to the vicinity of fifty. The coolness had braced my nerves to a degree of tension which I had rarely felt. I was evolving a plan of action as I stood by the window in the office of my friend Wynn, whose guest I then was, and who, by the way, was eminent in the brotherhood of lawyers whose rare acumen and sterling good sense form a counterpart to the granitic structure of their own State. While I stood there, then, an individual entered the office, whom, in spite of multifarious disguises, such as dyed hair and whiskers, false teeth and an assumed name, I at once recognized as my own fellow-townsman, and as arrant a scoundrel as it had ever been my lot to encounter. He had an air of much pretension, wore a large seal-ring, a showy scarf-pin, and several crossings of a bright gold chain over a bright-patterned waistcoat, all of which decorative trumpery served the purpose of varnish to a very ugly picture, heightening the distinctness of every point. His errand, to obtain the use of the Town Hall for the delivery of a lecture on animal magnetism, being speedily accomplished, he took his leave.

"Wynn," said I, as the door closed upon him, "do you remember Mark Tufts, who was convicted of burglary in Charleston, and who afterwards escaped from State prison?"

"Yes," answered Wynn, "and I could not think of whom this man reminds me; yes, it is Mark Tufts."

"It is Tufts himself," I replied. "I recognized him before he had uttered three sentences. I came across the room to look for the scar of a wound on the left cheek, given him by a companion in a drunken brawl. The mark is there. And I know that the little finger and the first joint from the one next is missing from the hand he carries in a sling, and which he pretends to have been hurt in a recent railroad accident."

"Pierson G. Leffingwell" was elaborately engraved on the card with which he had introduced himself. I looked from the window; the man had crossed the street, and was standing on the piazza of the Epping House. Presently he entered, and shortly after reappeared, accompanied by a showily-dressed woman and a young girl. In the appearance of the latter I remarked nothing, except, perhaps, extreme fragility.

A programme indicated that at the close of the lecture some interesting demonstrations would be exhibited. Mrs. and Miss Leffingwell, it was stated, were both mediums, and the former gifted with remarkable powers of reading the future.

We decided at once to "assist" at this prelection. The man's extreme villainy and audacity made him interesting. Indeed, so entire had been the popular conviction, in the trial to which I have referred, of the man's deliberate, vindictive malice, that there had been felt a very general disappointment that his sentence was not more severe. Not a very large audience, of course, was to be expected in a place like Epping; but it was a pretty fair turn-out—several hundreds—and these were mostly collected before Mrs. Leffingwell and the young lady made their appearance.

On a platform at one side of the hall were placed a table with lights and several chairs. Mr. Leffingwell came in, arranged these, withdrew again, and soon returned conducting his assistants. The woman seated herself in a bustling, important way, arranging and rearranging her dress, and sending around bold, assured glances. The girl took her place quietly, without raising her eyes until the falling of a window, which had not been properly fastened; only then she lifted them a moment, with a startled, expectant look. I observed the group closely, for I had begun to grow interested in them.

The lecture was a tissue of trashy plagiarisms, through which what the man would be at was not clearly perceptible. It was evident, however, that he had himself a sort of grotesque faith in what he was trying to say—a kind of trembling belief involved in his diabolism. And this suggested to me a plan for the solution of a query which had entered my mind: how far, namely, that slight young girl sitting there with an air of such utter abstraction was a voluntary accomplice of Mr. and Mrs. Leffingwell. That they were well matched admitted scarcely a doubt. The woman, large framed, coarse-featured, swarthy, with thick, sensual lips and black brows meeting over lurid eyes, looked fit for any emergency of wickedness. In dress she was the counterpart of her husband; everything about her was tawdry; a flash silk gown, much flounced, a heavily-wrought and solid white crape shawl, a rigolette, as I believe they term those triangular tagrags which women were then beginning to wear on the head, a quantity of bracelets, rings, chains, brooches and the like, and a vulgar-looking fan, which she flourished unremittingly, made up her outfit. She impressed one as having foregone every womanly trait.

Not so the girl claimed by the Leffingwells as their daughter. She looked at most 14, and might have been a year or two younger. She wore a lilac-colored dress and a black silken scarf, the simplicity of her attire not less than the frail, delicate beauty of her person contrasting noticeably with the intense vulgarity of the woman beside her. Her face was too pale, but the features were exquisite in outline; the brow low, with shadowy chestnut hair; the eyes blue, I knew afterward, though I had supposed them black, were so large and fringed with such thick, long lashes, that they seemed to make half her face. There was an occasional slight compression of the under lip that showed her to be ill at ease, whether from physical pain or some other cause, and under an air of apparent languor, a quick, nervous closing and unclosing of the little left hand which held the edge of her black scarf. She wore no ornaments.

Of course I do not pretend in any way to account for the phenomena I am about to describe. No theory that ever came in my way has seemed to me to bear adequate credentials. In most instances, too, which have been related to me I have felt myself compelled to doubt facts and inferences. I will give an unvarnished statement of occurrences, premising only that I had previously and precisely, when I found myself in a mood similar to that which I have described as particularly belonging to me on this day, been able to exert the influence to which have been given the epithets magnetic, odic, and the like, over some refractory subjects.

At the close of Mr. Leffingwell's declamatory farago he came to the front of the platform and proposed for the more satisfactory demonstration of his science to experiment on any one or several among his auditors who might solicit proof in their own persons. A middle-aged man of stolid aspect and a boy of 16 presented themselves. Directing them to be seated in chairs on the right of the staging, and observing that he would begin with the elder individual, he took his station nearly opposite and commenced his craft.

I commenced, too, and in earnest. For about three minutes, during which I felt my concentrative power—I know no better name for it—growing stronger, I perceived no outward token of success; but then there was a perceptible toning down, a manifest smoldering of the audacity of his look. Let me endeavor to describe my own experience at the time.

It seemed as if I projected a circle of influence extending to an indefinite distance from the man, and inclosing him as a center, the circumference irregular at first and wavering. It was my effort to integrate, and then with a steady, tidal pulsation to contract toward and around the person I was endeavoring to control. It was in my favor that he, intent on his own purpose, was unaware of mine. I was succeeding—nearer and nearer came the inclosing wave—I saw it become faintly luminous, while points of lambent, bluish flame projected from it inward; a needle of light glided toward his hand—he rubbed it hastily—the next moment the faint blue circle, invisible to all but myself, was contracted to a hazy, luminous, irregular center. My aim was accomplished; his eyelids quivered, then drooped, and with a slow, audible respiration he sat back in his chair, rigid and white.

I breathed freely then, and I became aware that two persons were intently watching me; one was Wynn, whom I had taken into my counsel at the outset. With a glance he directed my attention to my other observer, the young girl on the platform. Her hands were firmly clasped, her lips slightly apart, and her dilated eyes, fixed full upon me, expressed an indescribable blending of pleading and terror.

But my work with Leffingwell was not yet done; the audience had perceived the change in his countenance, but supposed it the result of his own efforts. Now, however, they began to suspect some counterplot. Wynn, well known to the whole assembly, broke the silence with a few words.

"It happens that an individual possessing a higher degree of the power to which Mr. Leffingwell lays claim is present this evening, so that the fowler is apparently taken in his own snare."

Several exclamations of "Good! Let the gentleman come forward," were the response.

I did not, however, leave my place, but asked to be allowed to interrogate Mr. Leffingwell. An immediate and perfect stillness succeeded. The replies were made by Leffingwell with deliberate distinctness.

My first query was, "Were you six years ago in Concord, N. H.?"

Answer, "I was."

"Will you allow me to look at your left hand?"

He replied by withdrawing it from the sling which supported it, unwrapping from it the enveloping handkerchief, and held it out. The fourth finger and a part of the third were wanting.

"Is Leffingwell the name by which you were known in Concord?"

"It is not."

"Is the young woman who accompanies you a relative of either yourself or of Mrs. Leffingwell?"

"Of neither."

"Is she voluntarily associated with you?"

"No."

"What is her real name?"

"Janet Ware."

"Why is she thus connected with you?"

"She believes herself Mrs. Leffingwell's niece."

"She supposes this through the agency of yourself and Mrs. Leffingwell?"

"Through our agency."

At this juncture Janet Ware, since such was the girl's name, who had listened with intense interest to every word of our colloquy, made an attempt to rise. Mrs. Leffingwell arrested her motion, at the same time addressing to her a whispered remark.

I spoke to the woman then with a degree of confidence for which I felt full warrant: "Mrs. Leffingwell, let me assure you that it will be for your interest, your own and Mr. Leffingwell's, to remain passive." There was more, probably, in my tones than in my words, for the woman cowered and desisted.

The girl spoke with a passionate energy which set aside fear. "I am not with them of my own will, God knows! They said they had a claim to me; that they were my only relatives, and I feared it was true. Thank God it is not true! Do not, do not let them take me away with them!"

I am unused to the melting mood, but I confess the girl's words and tones appealed to me as no acting ever did. Indeed the effect on all present was electric.

Wynn spoke in a low tone with his sister, who sat next him, and both arose and went towards the platform. Miss Wynn addressed Janet Ware, who looked in her face searchingly a moment and then clung to her arm.

I resumed my dialogue with Mr. Leffingwell.

"Has Miss Ware relatives? If any, who are they."

"An uncle, her mother's brother, Paul Williams."

"Where is he now?"

"In Boston?"

And now, reader mine, if you doubt whether all this be very convincing, I acknowledge the reasonableness of your doubt; but then and there I did not take time to weigh the matter. It was, however, no part of my plan to establish the identity of Leffingwell and Mark Tufts, even if such a result had been possible. I decided to withdraw the influence, which, as all experimenters in this bizarre branch of psychology are aware, is comparatively an easy process. The man awoke, much as from an ordinary sleep, looked about him, and finally, as he recognized the place and missed Janet, with whom Wynn and his sister had withdrawn, his features assumed a ludicrous mixture of bravado and consternation, visibly heightened as I approached him. Intimidation, though, was not my sole object. I spoke to him in a tone audible to himself only.

"You are foiled with your own weapons, Tufts," said I. "There are several of us who know you; I have no personal grudge against you, and if you are discreet—this return to your native State scarcely looks like it—you will not delay to make the distance between yourself and the State prison wider than it is now. You have not exposed yourself to-night, but you have put it in our power to expose you at a moment's warning."

He scrutinized my features rapidly. I permitted it a moment and then walked away. He exchanged a few sentences with Mrs. Leffingwell, and then, approaching the audience, assured them that it was not his fault if an entertainment different from that laid down in the programme had been offered them this evening; that he hoped to meet them again to-morrow evening, when he would resume the subject, and, he trusted, convince the most skeptical that neither himself nor Mrs. Leffingwell urged claims of any kind which they were unable satisfactorily to establish.

I doubted if they would let him go; but they did, I presume on account of the presence of Mrs. Leffingwell.

The next morning the Leffingwells were gone. They had taken the midnight train down. If they had waited they might have had Wynn's company, for he went to Boston in the morning train. As he had arranged previously to go at this time, and as his usual stopping-place was the Revere House, the drama of the preceding evening did not probably influence him in those circumstances; but it may have furnished the motive which prompted him to inquire of the clerk if Mr. Paul Williams were among the guests, and the reply being affirmative it may have induced him to seek out that gentleman.

The result was the confirmation, in each particular, of the items elicited from Tufts.

Janet Ware was the daughter of Mr. Williams' only sister, who had married, and with her husband removed to Illinois. Their sole child was Janet, and when she had attained her 12th year both her parents fell victims to that fearful scourge, cholera. A neighbor had taken home the child and written to Mr. Williams a letter which never reached its destination. A year afterward Mr. and Mrs. Leffingwell, on a tour through the Western States, had accidentally encountered Janet and discovered in her such a susceptibility to the odic influence, so termed by Mr. Leffingwell, as to make her a very desirable acquisition. She was timid and easily wrought upon, and the myth of kinship, invented on the spur of the moment, had been overpowering.

The child had tolerably hard discipline, though it might have been worse. For the six months and more she had been wandering about good care had been taken that she should find no opportunity of escape, and entire seclusion, except when under the eye of Mr. and Mrs. Leffingwell, secured to her at least a degree of immunity of bad influences.

Mr. Williams was induced to accompany Wynn on his return to Epping, and when he saw Janet, who bore her mother's name, her strong resemblance to that mother was to him convincing proof that his sister's child stood before him.

I have since seen a full-length portrait by Sully of Mrs. Ware before her marriage. I should unhesitatingly have pronounced it an incomparable likeness of Janet, or, as she is now, Mrs. Wynn. There were just the same large, shadowy, violet eyes, fringed with lashes of uncommon length and richness; the same low, pearly brow and profuse, brown, waving hair, with golden lights on it; the same faint tinge on the cheek, just like the inside of a sea-shell; the same curve of the bright red lip; the same poise of the head on the white, slender neck. A little sad I should say the face is, but Elinor, Wynn's sister, now my wife, affirms that Janet is as cheerful a little sprite as ever gladdened a man's hearthstone.

THE GRASSHOPPERS.

Dr. Packard's Report of His Investigations in the Western Territories.

Dr. A. S. Packard, Jr., secretary of the United States Entomological Commission, has lately returned from an extended trip through portions of Colorado, Wyoming, Northern Utah, Eastern Idaho, Central and Eastern Montana, and through Dakota. He reports that 50 per cent. of locust eggs in Colorado, about Denver and Greeley, were destroyed by parasites, according to the experience of Mr. A. H. Arnett, of Morrison, and Mr. Max Clark, of Greeley. Though large numbers hatched out in the spring, the heavy, late rains, the extreme cold, the fall of snow, for three days at the end of April, killed the young, so that few were left, except in small areas about Greeley and Longmont. The young died from apparently the same causes as in Kansas and Nebraska, i. e., extreme wet and cold weather. In the fall of 1876 eggs were laid in profusion in Colorado, and the farmers expected to have the "worst fight yet" with the locusts. May 29 and 30, a large swarm flew over Julesburg, Col., on the Union Pacific railroad, and were seen seventeen miles west of that point by Mr. Joseph Ramsay, of Greeley. These flew from the south, probably from Texas.

In Wyoming, locusts were reported as hatching out from a point fifty miles north of Laramie City to Custer. Light swarms from this region and the Black Hills may be expected in Colorado.

In Utah, Cache and Malade valleys were badly infested. About Franklin, Utah, one-third of the wheat crop was reported as devoured by them. The winged locusts were beginning to fly June 11. These locusts will probably migrate to Middle and Southern Utah.

Though numerous about Farmington, Utah, on the shores of Salt lake, little injury was done, as the season was late, wet and cold, and hatching was much later than usual.

In Idaho scattered broods of young were seen along the stage-road from Franklin to Pleasant valley, but none were seen in Montana from the southern borders of the Territory through the central parts as far north as Fort Benton, nor along the Missouri river to the eastern border of the Territory. A few hatched out in Bitter Root valley, doing some damage, and locusts were reported to have hatched out on the Yellowstone river at and near Baker's battle ground, i. e., on the north shore of the river between Clark's fork and Froze-to-Death creek. None were seen or reported from the valleys of the Sun river and the Upper Missouri, and none in the Gallatin, Madison and Jefferson valleys. From reliable information received at Fort Benton, there were no young locusts this spring in the Marias or Milk river valleys, or in the region northward toward the South Saskatchewan river. None were seen by parties who had just returned from Wood mountain, Sitting Bull's camp, sixty miles north of the United States boundary line. Locusts hatched out in February at Fort M'Leod, on the South Saskatchewan river, but were killed by the unfavorable weather. Along the Missouri river and the line of the Northern Pacific railroad no young locusts were seen, and it is probable that few locusts developed in Dakota this season, unless in the eastern portions. Light swarms, however, were seen flying from the east at Fort Peck, as early as June 18, also at Wolf Point, on the Missouri, and at Bismarck, June 21, and a few were seen at about the same date at Jamestown, Dakota. These apparently came from Minnesota and Iowa. If so, it shows (coupled with the fact of the Texan swarms observed in Colorado) that the return westward migrations of the locust from the border States extend to the base of the Rocky mountains, from Colorado to the United States northern boundary line. It results from these observations that over an immense area in the northwest supposed to have furnished the swarms which have hitherto devastated Kansas, Nebraska, Iowa, and Minnesota, owing to the wet, cool, backward weather this spring, there were no young locusts developed, if many hatched. Should the present exceptionally cool and wet season be followed by a similar one in 1878, it may be reasonably expected that the border States will not be invaded to an alarming extent next year. It also appears somewhat doubtful whether extensive swarms will invade the border States of Minnesota, Iowa, Nebraska, Kansas, and Missouri this summer and fall, though light swarms may possibly fly east from the Black Hill and Yellowstone region. But absolute predictions can not be made, and it would be unwise to hazard an opinion except as to probabilities.

A 4-YEAR-OLD miss adds another to the list of remarkable juvenile speeches. She was asked where she expected to go when her mamma died, and replied, "To the funeral, I s'pose."

A WOMAN'S HEROIC FIGHT.

Three Pioneers Massacred by Indians in the Black Hills.

[Deadwood Cor. Milwaukee Sentinel.]

A wagon drawn by two yoke of oxen and carrying two men and a woman with their effects, left Deadwood on Monday morning destined for Bismarck. They camped on Centennial prairie on Monday night, and on Tuesday night passed through Crook City. An eye-witness, who was cutting hay within a quarter of a mile, tells how it occurred. He says that, hearing a succession of rapid shots fired over the bluff from where he was mowing, he got up on a high-timbered elevation and saw about twenty Indians engaged in a fight with two men and a woman who occupied the ox train. The men defended themselves gallantly against the great odds. They were well-armed, and fought as only men fight for their lives. The Indians, instead of coming up in a body, broke in every direction and surrounded the wagon, keeping up a constant trail of bullets upon the poor unfortunates. Three of the oxen were the first to fall. Waggomen, the owner of the outfit, and the husband of the lady, next was shot through the head. Mrs. Waggomen seized her husband's revolver and discharged the contents among the Indians, who were now close upon the wagon. After she had emptied the weapon she flung it full in the face of a burly savage who was reaching over the wagon to grasp her. He reeled back, but others took his place.

Mr. Tyner, the other man, was quickly finished, and there remained but the lady to deal with. The Indians had since the beginning of the conflict been careful not to injure her, and their bullets were directed chiefly towards the two men. The poor woman, knowing her probable fate, fought like a tigress, clutching an empty gun and striking right and left, but to no avail. She was finally overpowered and brought to the ground, but the woman fought so hard that they procured some tent stakes which were in the wagon and staked the limbs and body of the poor woman firmly to the ground. After they had accomplished their horrible deed they took her scalp and horribly mutilated her around the breast, and then dispatched her. The shrieks of the woman could be heard distinctly where my informant was lodged, powerless to help and almost dead with fear.

When the savages began sacking the wagon they observed the witness of their cruelty standing on the bluff, and two of them started in pursuit. He, however, made good time, and succeeded in reaching Crook, about nine miles off, without falling into their clutches.

Soon after the massacre the Bismarck stage rolled by the fatal spot. There were no Indians in sight, and the passengers were horrified at seeing the sight before them. Both of the two men had been scalped and their ears and noses cut off. The woman was horribly mutilated, her brains and entrails being scattered all over the ground. The bodies of the poor unfortunates were taken to Crook and there interred. They belonged to Brainard, Minn., and had come into the Hills early this spring, made their little stake and were on their way home when the fatal accident befell them.

The Oleomargarine Trade.

Neither the prejudice which in this country is still general against butter which is known to be the product of other than the dairy, nor the law in relation to the production and sale of such butter which was passed by the State Legislature at its last session, says the New York Times, has caused any reduction in the oleomargarine produced, but a great change has nevertheless resulted in the trade of the article. Before the passage of the act referred to, a large portion of the oleomargarine produced from the fat of animals killed in the slaughter-houses in and around this city was made into butter and sold in the markets here; now nearly all that is made is exported to England, France, and Germany, were no prejudice exists against it, and where it has been manufactured publicly, and as publicly sold, for many years. In England it is called "butterine," and for all pastry and cooking uses it is there deemed better than the genuine product of the dairy. So extensive has the exportation of oleomargarine, and butter made from it, become already, that during several months past the average has been fully 1,000,000 pounds per month, and the quantity is limited to that only because those who are engaged in its manufacture cannot find the material in suitable condition for the production of more. In order to extract the little yellow globules, called oleomargarine, from the fat of the slaughtered animals, it is necessary that the fat shall be put under the required process immediately after being taken from the animal. This makes it a requisite that the manufactory be within ready reach of the slaughter-house; and in order to have the production of it profitable it is indispensable that the works be placed near to only very large slaughter-houses. In meeting these requirements the producers of oleomargarine are, of course, limited to the quantity of desirable fat which they can procure from their sources of supply, and thus far all that they can secure does not enable them to prepare for the foreign markets more than the quantity named.

It is considered strange that the law governing the production and sale of oleomargarine butter was not also made to apply to cheese. The bill as it originally stood included cheese, but the latter article was stricken out through the influence, it is said, of Hon. Horatio Seymour, who is said to be interested in a large dairy company which manufactures oleomargarine cheese. This company were in the habit of using the cream from their milk for the production of butter, and then producing large quantities of cheese from a combination of this same oleomargarine with the skimmed milk left after the cream had been taken for the production of butter. The law, as first framed, would have forced them to brand their cheese as containing oleomargarine, and that they believed would very seriously injure its price here, where the effect of the use of oleomargarine is not as well understood as it is abroad.

A MINNESOTA paper records the death of a valuable cow from swallowing a piece of hoop-skirt.

A SEASONABLE LAY.

The watermelon days have come, the deadliest of the year,
When flatulence and gripe have power, and cholera draws near;
When sudden death to stalk the streets familiarly is seen,
Disguised in shape of oval fruit, picked out in mottled green.
His sickle? Ah, full well I ween that weapon thou mayst find,
Concealed at once in pip, pink flesh, sweet juice and deadly rind.

Not scattered here and there his deeds, not few and far between
The fatal cases credited this gentleman in green.
Soon as from Southern sunny glades northward he takes his way,
A million tearful mothers put their darlings' toys away,
And hie them to the marble-man, whose mournful verses rob
The mortal melon, crediting the angels with the job.

I knew a Philadelphian boy, a Sabbath-school expert,
A marvel of true inwardness, with precious goodness girt.
Must it be told? Alas! he fell at sin's repeated shocks;
He stole—a sacrilegious theft—from a missionary box;
He bought a watermelon huge; he ate it all [illegible]self—
Next day his mother, sobbing, placed his toys [illegible] the shelf.

PITH AND POINT.

COOL, but not always collected; an ice bill.

THE path of duty—Through the Custom House.

ADAM missed one of the luxuries of life. He couldn't laugh in his sleeve.

A LITTLE girl was asked, "What is faith?" She replied: "Doing God's will and asking no questions."

THE young Texan doesn't tell you his sweetheart is as sweet as sugar, but says, "Oh, she'll do to put in coffee!"

The baker howls the shriek of breaking morn,
The milkman's cart goes rumbling down the way;
The fishman blithely toots his gentle horn,
And from my eyelids sleep flies fast away.

WHAT is the difference between a post-hole and a speaking-trumpet? One is hollowed out and the other hollered in.

AN old gentleman who had dabbled all his life in statistics says he never heard of but one woman who insured her life. He accounts for this by the singular fact of one of the questions being, "What is your age?"

He wiped his heated brow, he did,
His brow so intellectual;
But all he said about the heat
Was sadly ineffectual.
But she, sweet lass, did say to him,
In mellow tones unwavering,
"Dear George, I am so warm; I'd like Ice-cream, with lemon flavoring."

WAITER—"What would you be pleased to order, sir? We have potage printanier a la Julienne; fricandeau de veau avec coquettes des pommes de terre; rissoles de bœuf—" Milesian—"Well, give us a plateful of whichever of them's nearest to an Irish stew!"

"MY dear," said an affectionate wife to her husband, as she looked out of the window, "do you notice how green and beautiful the grass looks on the neighboring hills?" "Well," was the unpoetic response, "what other color would you have it at this time of year?"

"WELL," said a miner yesterday, "if things keep on this way much longer I'll get a job, and one that will keep me, too." "What is that?" "Why, I'll die; and I'd like to see any dog-goned mining superintendent beat me out of that job."—Virginia (Nev.) Enterprise.

A ST. LOUIS journal tells a story of a disconsolate widower, who, on seeing the body of his late wife lowered into the grave, exclaimed, with tears in his eyes: "Well, I've lost gloves, I've lost umbrellas—yes, even cows and horses; but I never—no, never—had anything to cut me like this."

AN old writer says: "I have seen women so delicate that they were afraid to ride, for fear of the horse running away; afraid to sail, for fear the boat might be upset; afraid to walk, for fear they might fall; but I have never seen one afraid to be married, which is far more riskful than all others put together."

THERE is a world for contemplation in observing a young girl gazing upon the tender petals of the rose her lover has just given her, and then looking at the same woman five years after, as she stands beside a huckster-cart and tells the owner she wouldn't give 5 cents for such a head of cabbage if she had to do without it all her life!

A LITTLE negro boy in Plattsburg, Mo., lay down on the railroad track just as a freight train was coming up. The engineer whistled down brakes and reversed the engine; bystanders rushed to the scene, and the little nigger was snatched off the track just in time to save his life. When asked what he meant by his performance he grinned tremendously and replied: "I does love to hear dem blow de whistle so much!"

DURING a debate which took place some time ago in a Scottish town Council on a question where much diversity of opinion prevailed, a bailie, among other reasons in support of the measure, stated that it would be of immense benefit to posterity. On hearing this, the Provost, who headed the opposition, got up and said, "I'm really surprised to hear ony man bring forward sic an argument. What reason hae we to sacrifice ourselves for the gude o' posterity?" Point oot," he continued, striking the table, and looking triumphantly at his opponent, "point oot ae single instance whaur posterity has ever been o' the least benefit to us."

THE Maharajah of Gwalior is now surrounding with a garden, which bids fair to become one of the wonders of the world, his palace erected at a cost of $1,250,000, of which the Prince of Wales was the first occupant. It will contain ten garden houses, each illustrating a variety of Hindoo architecture, and a winter palace of glass, imported from Vienna. Water will be brought from artificial lakes over channels so constructed as to give that murmur which was prescribed to afford rest to Mæcenas in his villa near Rome. The garden will be kept perennially green by irrigation. The expense of all this will be nothing to the enormously wealthy Gwalior.

AT the recent celebration of the 200th anniversary of the King's Grenadier Regiment of the Prussian army, the chief burgomaster of Stettin, in presenting to the officers of the regiment, on behalf of the citizens of the town, a silver table-service, mentioned that the regiment had been constantly quartered in Stettin ever since 1715, or for more than 160 years.

AGRICULTURAL AND DOMESTIC.

Around the Farm.

NEARLY all sick animals become so by improper feeding in the first place. Nine cases out of ten the digestion is wrong. Charcoal is the most efficient and rapid corrective. It will cure a majority of cases, if properly administered. —Rural New Yorker.

THE importance of means of saving liquid manure is apparent from the fact that in every 100 pounds of cow's urine there are 65 pounds of water, 5 pounds of urea, 5 pounds of phosphate of lime, 12 pounds of sal-ammoniac and muriate of potash, and 10 pounds of carbonate of potash and ammonia. While the solid excrements from one cow, during the year, will manure half an acre, the liquid matter, properly applied, would fertilize three times that amount.

THE carrot crop is rendered [illegible] in many gardens by grubs eating into the roots. This takes place in many well-managed gardens. The best remedy that I have tried was to scatter a quantity of soot and lime over the surface of the ground before forking it over for the carrots. This works it into the ground, and keeps the soil free from all sorts of grubs for the whole season. The next best way is to sow the lime and soot between the rows and hoe it into the ground.—Cottage Gardener.

A CONTEMPORARY says: "Western cheese, like Western butter, is being made with such close care and attention as to command respect on its merits alone, and it is rapidly wiping out prejudices against the geographical position of the points of production." This is true. The tub butter of Ohio—that is, creamy extra—is equal to the best of that description that comes to market. The cheese also is as good as the best New York factory, and will be so acknowledged soon.

HAND-PICKING THE POTATO BUG.—I have about two acres of potatoes, and, after trying many ways of destroying the bugs, hit on the following plan. It is cheaper, better, and less work than to use poison. Take a large tin pan, say twenty inches wide by eight inches deep, and arrange a handle so that a man can walk upright and push the pan before him, close to the vines, and hold in such a position as will best catch the bugs; then with a thin piece of board about three feet long, shaped like a paddle, give the vines a gentle slap toward the pan, and you will knock most of the bugs into it.—Correspondence Boston Herald.

TO PREVENT saddle-galls, the saddle should be lined with some smooth, hard substance. Flannel or woolen cloth is bad. A hard, finished, smooth rawhide lining, similar to those of the military saddles, is preferable. Then, if the saddle is properly fitted to the horse's back, there will be no galls unless the horse is very hardly used. Galls should be washed with soap and water, and then with a solution of three grains of copperas or blue vitriol to one table-spoonful of water, which will harden the surface and help to restore the growth of the skin. White hairs growing upon galled spots cannot be prevented.—Nebraska Farmer.

I WILL suppose the gate, when shut, to hang on the west side of the post, opening southward; dig the post hole at least three feet deep, flatten the east and west sides of the post (the part in the ground), then nail a short board, say 10x12 inches, on the east side even with the bottom of the post; now put in the post, placing it where you want it; fill in the dirt and beat it down thoroughly till within sixteen inches of the top; then take a two-inch board, 16x24 inches, nail it on the west side of the upper edge even with the top of the ground, and one like it on the south side, sixteen inches long; then fill up and pack the dirt well, and my experience is that your post will not sag.—Indiana Farmer.

About the House.

A MOLE on the face may be removed by repeated applications of colorless iodine.

A TABLE-SPOONFUL of ground horse-radish, added to every quart of catsup or pickles, will keep the mold from the top.

FOR CREAM CAKE.—One cup of cream, one cup of sugar, two cups of flour, two eggs, a teaspoonful of soda, flavor with lemon.

A SOFT HOME-MADE DISHCLOTH.—A nice, soft dishcloth can be made of candlewicking loosely knit or crocheted on large afghan needles.

TO TELL GOOD EGGS.—Put them in water; if the butts turn up, they are not fresh. This is an infallible rule to distinguish a good egg from a bad one.

LARD or butter to be used for pastry should be as hard as possible. If left on the ice for a while before using the pastry will be lighter and better. It needs only to be cut through the flour with a chopping knife, not rubbed.

A ROUGH towel or a piece of flannel is better to wash the face with than a sponge. The roughness cleanses the pores of the skin, and if a little soap be applied will remove those little black specks, which trouble many people.

VARNISH FOR WHITE WOODS.—Dissolve three pounds of bleached shellac in one gallon of spirits of wine; strain, and add one and a half more gallons of spirits. If the shellac is pure and white, this will make a beautiful, clear covering for white wooden articles.

TAKE out the steels of a corset before washing; use one teaspoonful of borax to a pailful of hot water. Spread the corset on the washboard, and scrub with a clean brush and a very little soap. Bleach in the sun if yellow, but do not boil. Rub in starch, and when dry sprinkle thoroughly and iron while damp.

EQUIVALENTS OF WEIGHT AND MEASURE.—Wheat flour, one pound is one quart. Indian meal, one pound two ounces is one quart. Butter, when soft, one pound is one quart. White sugar powdered, one pound one ounce is one quart. Best brown sugar, one pound two ounces is one quart. Liquids.—Sixteen large table-spoonfuls are half a pint. Eight large table-spoonfuls are one gill. Four large table-spoonfuls are half a gill or one glass. Twenty-five drops are equal to one teaspoonful. A common wineglass to half a gill. A common tumbler to half a pint.

HERE is a recipe for a pudding, which may be made while preparing breakfast: Crumble four or five biscuits into three pints of new milk, add one cup of brown sugar, a pinch of salt, a spoonful of butter, and yolks of four eggs; a little nutmeg when done; spread the whites of the four eggs beaten to a foam with three spoonfuls of sugar and a little essence of lemon on top of the pudding; set it in the oven till brown, which will be in two minutes. Make sauce with one cup sugar, half cup butter, scant spoonful of flour, pint and a half water; season with lemon. It will be delicious either hot or cold.

The Ravages of Mice.

The mischief of the little field mice, remarks St. Nicholas, is done so very quietly and adroitly that few are ever caught in it, and much of the blame is put on the moles, squirrels, and woodchucks, that have enough sins of their own to answer for. The meadow-mouse of Europe, which is very like our own, forty or fifty years ago came near causing a famine in parts of England, ruining the crops before they could get fairly started, and killing almost all the young trees in the orchards and woods. More than 30,000 of the little rascals were trapped in one month in a single piece of forest, besides all those killed by animals. About a year ago, too, a similar disaster was threatened in Scotland, where millions of mice appeared, and gnawed off the young grass at the root just when it should have been in prime condition for the sheep; and when that was all gone they attacked the garden vegetables. The people lost vast numbers of sheep and lambs from starvation, and thousands of dollars' worth of growing food; but, finally, by all together waging war upon them, the pests were partially killed off. The mice did not in either case come suddenly, but had been increasing steadily for years previous, because the gamekeepers had killed so many of the "vermin" (as owls, hawks, weasels, snakes, etc., are wrongly called), which are the natural enemies of the mice, and keep their numbers down. Farmers are slow to learn that it does not pay to kill the birds or rob their nests; but the boys and girls ought to understand this truth and remember it. In this country, the greatest mischief done by the field mice is the gnawing of bark from the fruit trees, so that in some of the Western States this is the most serious difficulty the orchardist has to contend with. Whole rows of young trees in nurseries are stripped of their bark, and, of course, die; and when apple seeds are planted, the mice are sure to dig half of them up to eat the kernels. This mischief is mainly done in the winter, when the trees are packed away from the frost; or if they are growing, because then the mice can move about concealed under the snow, and nibble all the bark away up to the surface. Rabbits get much of the credit of this naughty work, for they do a good deal of it on their own account. The gardener has the same trouble, often finding, when he uncovers a rare and costly plant in the spring, that the mice have enjoyed good winter quarters in his straw covering, and have been gnawing to death his choice roses. Millions of dollars, perhaps, would not pay for all the damage these small creatures thus accomplish each year in the United States, and I fear they will become more and more of a plague if we continue to kill off the harmless hawks, owls, butcher-birds and snakes, which are the policemen appointed by nature to look after the mice and protect us against them.

Death of a Child from Hydrophobia.

A singular case of death from hydrophobia was reported at police headquarters to-day. The victim was Martin Lorenza, a child 4 years and 7 months old, the son of German parents. About ten weeks ago a number of children selected as a victim of their boyish pranks a small setter dog, and began chasing the animal about the street. The scared animal ran into the hallway of the building where Lorenza resides. The boy was standing in the hallway, and the dog bit him in seven or eight places, inflicting a very severe wound in the calf of his left leg. The dog was shot by a policeman, and Martin was taken to a drug store near by and the bites were thoroughly cauterized. The wounds healed rapidly, and no further attention was given the matter until last Thursday, when the boy appeared to be unwell and evinced peculiar symptoms. The pupils of the eyes were dilated, and the boy stared about him in a frightened manner. On Friday he refused to drink, and his apparent fright at the sight of common objects increased. His physician, being unaware of the nature of the ailment, applied a thermometer to the body of the child to ascertain its temperature. The glass was somewhat sweated, and to cleanse it properly a basin of water was brought and laid on the bed. The child did not see the water, but its eyes were fixed on the bulb of the thermometer, and every time the quicksilver moved the body of the boy shook and trembled. The physician, suspecting what was the difficulty, then splashed the water in the basin with his finger. Immediately the boy began frothing at the mouth, and was seized with convulsions. As soon as he recovered the doctor managed to give him a dose of hydrate of chloral, after which the little fellow asked for water, but every time water was brought became convulsed. An injection of hydrate of chloral was then given, and, overpowered by the strength of the drug, the boy fell into a narcotized state. The patient, under the influence of the narcotic, still kept up a continual spitting and barking, and clutched nervously at his throat, as though wishing more air. Several eminent physicians who called to examine the case agreed that it was a genuine case of hydrophobia. At 9 p. m. on Sunday the child died. This afternoon Dr. McWhinney, Deputy Coroner, made a post-mortem examination, and, besides a slight affection of the spinal cord, found no disease of the internal organs.—New York Herald.

An Unwonted Invitation.

The Rt. Rev. Abbot, of the Community of Trappists, at Gethsemane, Ky., has extended to President and Mrs. Hayes an invitation to visit the monastery under his charge during their proposed visit to Louisville. By the rules of this rigorous order no woman is allowed within the walls of their monasteries unless she be "the wife of the ruler of an empire, kingdom, or republic;" and, should Mrs. Hayes accept the invitation, it is said that she will be the first American woman who has ever seen the inside of such an establishment. The monastery at Gethsemane is one of the two Trappist communities in this country, the other being near Dubuque, Iowa. It was founded in 1848 by monks from the parent institution at Citeaux, France. The spacious buildings are in the form of a quadrangle, the interior space being occupied by a garden of rare flowers, and within the walls are understood to be many paintings of great value brought from the mother country. As is known, the monks of the order are bound by the strictest vows to the hardest manual labor, to unusual abstinence in food and water, and to perpetual silence.

COST OF THE STRIKE.

The Losses of Property by the Railroad Riots.

[From the Milwaukee News.]

The losses to the railroads by the recent strikes and riots foot up an enormous amount. They cannot be detailed with accuracy, and nearly all the figures given are estimates. These losses include the following items:

Track, rolling stock, depots and other property destroyed.

Perishable articles of freight, which became valueless during the blockade.

Live stock rendered unfit for market, some starved to death, by stoppage of cattle trains.

Destruction of oil on the Pennsylvania road by wreck of trains.

Contracts annulled and claims of freighters for losses for non-performance of contract.

Other items of losses and destruction of property of all classes and variety not enumerated in the above schedule will greatly increase the aggregate, but these details of losses by the various roads are appalling in magnitude:

Baltimore and Ohio	$3,250,000
Pennsylvania Central	5,000,000
Pittsburgh, Ft. Wayne and Chicago	1,200,000
New York Central	1,000,000
Erie railroad	2,000,000
Lake Shore railroad	2,000,000
Michigan Central	1,000,000
Canada Southern	700,000
Delaware, Lackawanna and Western	2,000,000
Delaware and Hudson	1,200,000
Jersey Central	900,000
Chicago and Rock Island	1,500,000
Total destruction and loss of railroad property	$21,750,000

The railroads have lost $21,750,000 by property destroyed and damages, which they have been or will be compelled to pay on contracts. But beyond these items the losses are immense. Business men in the disturbed States are losers to the amount of $6,000,000. Tax-payers in the cities and States which by law make municipal corporations responsible for property destroyed by mob violence, will be called on to pay in taxes $10,000,000 to $12,000,000. In addition to this the News has heretofore estimated, and the estimate is doubtless a correct one in the main, that 1,000,000 employes of railroads, manufactories, mines, etc., earning on an average $1.75 a day, were thrown out of employment for ten days, making a loss to each man of $17.50, or $17,500,000 as the total to the employes for lost time and wages by the strike.

This makes the entire loss by destruction of property and annihilation of wages by the strike foot up the enormous sum of $57,250,000. This was the ten days work of the strikers and their allies.

The railroad men did not do all this. The strike originated with them. But they did not intend that it should reach such vast proportions. The greater amount of the damage was done by tramps and the desperate and criminal classes who have no sympathy with labor, or its sufferings, or its inheritance of sorrow, but who are mere vagabonds, brigands and highwaymen, whose hands are against every man, and who would rob at every opportunity the laborer of the last cent he had in his pocket as the wages of toil.

The destruction of property has made the country so much poorer, and the losses of every laboring man will be some part of this amount.

Mr. Horter's Mistake.

A man named Horter lived out in Colorado a few years ago, but, as his health was bad, he was ordered to spend a year or two at the sea-shore. He was born in the far West and had never seen an oyster in its shell. He bought a cottage down at Atlantic City, and went there to live early last spring. A few days after his arrival he saw a man going by with a cart-load of oysters, which Horter mistook for stones. Stones are mighty scarce at Atlantic, and, as Horter wanted some to make borders for his flower-beds, he asked the man what he would take for his load. It struck Horter that the price was high, but he bought the lot and had them dumped down by his gate. The next day he stuck 800 of them in the sand in the garden, around the beds, and, when the job was done, he thought it looked uncommonly handsome.

A week afterward there were three or four warm days, and Horter remarked that the sea-breeze smelled very strongly; and he told Mrs. Horter that he thought there must be a dead whale lying somewhere down on the beach. The next day the smell became more offensive, and Mrs. Horter said that it was an outrage that the authorities didn't clean up the streets and remove the garbage that poisoned the air. On the following day the weather was extremely hot, and the stench became perfectly terrific. Mr. Horter said there must be a dead rat somewhere in the weather-boarding, and he got the carpenter to come and remove some of it. But he found nothing, and upon going away he remarked to Horter that the sauerkraut they were cooking for dinner was the deadliest sauerkraut for smell that he ever encountered.

The stench grew stronger all that night, and on the next morning a committee of neighbors waited upon Mr. Horter to say that if he would kill that polecat he would confer a personal favor upon them and upon the people of the country generally. Then Horter told them how perplexed he was about the matter, and said he would only be too glad to have the cause of the trouble detected. So the committee made a tour of inspection, holding their noses. When they got into the garden they perceived the oysters all gaping wide open, and evolving an awful smell, absolutely in fumes. One of the committeemen, grasping the fact that Horter planted these oysters, imagined that he was crazy, suddenly climbed over the fence and went home. The others remained and asked Horter what on earth he meant by laying those oysters around in the sun in that manner.

"Oysters!" said Horter. "Oysters! You don't mean to say those are oysters! Well, well; that beats all! I was wondering what made all those stones split even down the middle. I couldn't account for it. And so those are oysters? Why, I thought oysters always came in cans."

That afternoon he buried the shell-fish deep in the sand, and the smell ceased. Then he sold out his cottage and moved to Long Branch. He told Brown, his next-door neighbor, that he knew they were oysters all the time, and he did it for a joke; but he moved because the people seemed to see too awful much fun in it.—Philadelphia Bulletin.

Mountain Observatories.

IT is quite commonly supposed that high mountains possess one advantage over lower levels for astronomical observations in a dryer and less tremulous air. But Prof. Henry Draper has tested this question in the Wahsatch and Rocky mountains, and finds that the popular supposition is unfounded. Instead of the air being better in those regions it is probably not so good as at his observatory on the Hudson river. Out of fifteen nights in the best season of the year only two were exceptionally fine. As a rule the transparency of the atmosphere was greater and the steadiness perhaps a little less than in New York. The Lick Observatory, which the endower intended to place on a mountain top, might after all do better on the plain. Nevertheless, it is possible that in the extremely dry regions of the southern part of our central area, say in New Mexico, the atmospheric conditions may be favorable. There precipitation is extremely small at heights under 6,000 feet, and the seven months of winter, which would make observatory work impossible on the mountains, would not be encountered.

MR. HENRY MEIGGS, the bonanza king of Peru, is draining the water from an old silver mine that has been disused for two centuries. For the purpose of clearing it he has caused a tunnel to be dug through a mountain. It is predicted the Peruvian bonanza will prove to be richer than the one in Nevada.

Don't Poison Your System

With such hurtful drugs as quinine, calomel, or blue pills, but take instead that safe, prompt and agreeable substitute, Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, which, whether it is used to remedy or prevent malarial fevers, overcome general debility, or to correct torpidity of the liver and bowels, will in every case be found fully adequate to the wants of the sick and feeble. It entirely removes dyspeptic symptoms, and, by stimulating the flow of gastric juice, facilitates digestion and insures the conversion of food into blood, whereby the system is efficiently nourished and regains its lost vigor. This great vegetable restorative has received the indorsement of men of science, the press has repeatedly borne voluntary testimony to its excellence, and the public has long since given it the preference to every medicine of its kind.

What is Dooley's Yeast Powder

Do you ask, my friend? It is made from the purest and strongest elements. Among them, cream-tartar made from grape acid expressly for these manufacturers. The result is that the biscuit, rolls, waffles, cake, bread and pastry produced are beyond comparison.

THIRTY years' experience proves the Graefenberg Vegetable Pills to be the mildest and most effective medicine ever known for the complete cure of headache, biliousness, liver complaints, nervousness, fevers, and diseases of digestion. Sold everywhere; price 25 cents per box. Send for almanacs. Graefenberg Co., New York.

CHEW
The Celebrated
"MATCHLESS"
Wood Tag Plug
TOBACCO.
THE PIONEER TOBACCO COMPANY,
New York, Boston and Chicago.

POND'S EXTRACT, for Varicose Veins, Hemorrhages or any Pain. Physicians—allopathic, homeopathic and eclectic—recommend it. Ask of them.

AT Oberlin College an unpopular student has been seized by six of his fellows and tarred and feathered.

Hofmann's Hop Pills cure the Ague at once.

COLGATE'S
CASHMERE
BOUQUET
TOILET
SOAP

The novelty and exceptional strength of its perfume are the peculiar fascinations of this luxurious article, which has acquired popularity hitherto unequaled by any Toilet Soap of home or foreign manufacture.

WILHOFT'S
Anti-Periodic.
—OR—
FEVER AND AGUE
TONIC.
For All Diseases Caused by Malarial Poisoning of the Blood.
A Warranted Cure!
G. R. FINLAY & CO.,
New Orleans, Prop's.
FOR SALE BY ALL DRUGGISTS.

WHITNEY & HOLMES
ORGANS.
The Finest Toned and Most Durable Made.
New Styles. New Solo Stops.
Warranted Five Years. Send for Price-Lists.
WHITNEY & HOLMES ORGAN CO., QUINCY, ILL.

$1.00 $1.00
Osgood's Heliotype Engravings.
The choicest household ornaments. Price One Dollar each. Send for catalogue.
JAMES R. OSGOOD & CO.
BOSTON, MASS.
$1.00 $1.00

KEEP'S SHIRTS—only one quality—The best. Keep's Patent Partly-Made Dress Shirts Can be finished as easy as hemming a Handkerchief. The very best, six for $7.00. Keep's Custom Shirts—made to measure, The very best, six for $9.00. An elegant set of genuine Gold-Plate Collar and Sleeve Buttons given with each half doz. Keep's Shirts. Keep's shirts are delivered FREE on receipt of price in any part of the Union—no express charges to pay. Samples, with full directions for self-measurement, sent free to any address. No stamp required. Deal directly with the Manufacturer and get Bottom Prices. Keep Manufacturing Co., 165 Mercer St., N. Y.

The Largest Normal School and Business Institute in the United States.
The Northern-Indiana
NORMAL SCHOOL
VALPARAISO, INDIANA.
School the entire year. Students can enter at any time, select their own studies, and advance as rapidly as they desire. Full course of study. New classes organized each month. Commercial course most thorough to be found. No extra charge. Expenses less than at any other school in the land. Tuition $8.00 per term of 11 weeks, including all departments. Good board and well-furnished rooms, $2.00 to $2.50 per week. Entire satisfaction given or money refunded. Catalogue, giving full particulars, sent free on application. Address H. B. BROWN, Principal.
Fall term opens August 28th; Winter term, Nov. 13th; Spring term, Jan. 29th, 1878; Summer term, April 16th; Review term, July 2d.

THE
UNITED STATES
LIFE
INSURANCE COMPANY,
IN THE CITY OF NEW YORK,
261, 262, 263 Broadway.
ORGANIZED 1850
ASSETS, $4,827,176.52
SURPLUS, $820,000
EVERY APPROVED FORM OF POLICY ISSUED ON MOST FAVORABLE TERMS
ALL ENDOWMENT POLICIES
AND
APPROVED CLAIMS
MATURING IN 1877
WILL BE DISCOUNTED AT 7%
ON PRESENTATION.
JAMES BUELL, - - PRESIDENT.

If you feel dull, drowsy, debilitated, have frequent headache, mouth tastes badly, poor appetite, and tongue coated, you are suffering from torpid liver or "biliousness," and nothing will cure you so speedily and permanently as to take SIMMONS' LIVER REGULATOR OR MEDICINE.
PURELY VEGETABLE,
The Cheapest, Purest and Best Family Medicine in the World!
AN EFFECTUAL SPECIFIC for all diseases of the Liver, Stomach and Spleen.
Regulate the Liver and prevent
CHILLS AND FEVER, MALARIOUS FEVERS, BOWEL COMPLAINTS, RESTLESSNESS, JAUNDICE AND NAUSEA.
SIMMONS LIVER REGULATOR
BAD BREATH!
Nothing is so unpleasant, nothing so common as bad breath, and in nearly every case it comes from the stomach, and can be so easily corrected if you will take SIMMONS' LIVER REGULATOR. Do not neglect so sure a remedy for this repulsive disorder. It will also improve your appetite, Complexion and General Health.
CONSTIPATION!
SHOULD not be regarded as a trifling ailment—in fact, nature demands the utmost regularity of the bowels, and any deviation from this demand paves the way often to serious danger. It is quite as necessary to remove impure accumulations from the bowels as it is to eat or sleep, and no health can be expected where a costive habit of body prevails.
SICK HEADACHE!
This distressing affliction occurs most frequently. The disturbance of the stomach, arising from the imperfectly digested contents, causes a severe pain in the head, accompanied with disagreeable nausea, and this constitutes what is popularly known as Sick Headache; for the relief of which, TAKE SIMMONS' LIVER REGULATOR OR MEDICINE.
MANUFACTURED ONLY BY
J. H. ZEILIN & CO.,
PHILADELPHIA.
Price, $1.00. Sold by all Druggists.

THE GOOD OLD
STAND-BY.
MEXICAN MUSTANG LINIMENT.
FOR MAN AND BEAST.
ESTABLISHED 35 YEARS. Always cures. Always ready. Always handy. Has never yet failed. Thirty millions have tested it. The whole world approves the glorious old Mustang—the Best and Cheapest Liniment in existence. 25 cents a bottle. The Mustang Liniment cures when nothing else will.
SOLD BY ALL MEDICINE VENDERS.

THOMSON'S PATENT
GLOVE-FITTING
CORSETS.
SURPASSES ALL OTHERS FOR COMFORT
GIVE COMPLETE SATISFACTION

The Friends of this UNRIVALLED CORSET are now numbered by MILLIONS. Prices are much reduced. MEDAL RECEIVED AT CENTENNIAL. Get the Genuine, and beware of imitations. ASK ALSO FOR THOMSON'S UNBREAKABLE STEELS. The best goods made. See that the name of THOMSON and the Trade Mark a CROWN, are stamped on every Corset & Steel.
FITS THE FIGURE PERFECTLY.

ONLY FIVE DOLLARS FOR AN ACRE!
Of the Best Land in AMERICA, near the Great UNION PACIFIC RAILROAD.
A FARM FOR $200,
In easy Payments, with low rates of interest.
SECURE IT NOW!
Full information sent free. Address
O. F. DAVIS,
Land Agent, U. P. R. R. Omaha, Neb.

HEADACHE.
DR. C. W. BENSON'S CELERY AND CHAMOMILE PILLS are prepared expressly to cure SICK HEADACHE, NERVOUS HEADACHE, DYSPEPTIC HEADACHE, NEURALGIA, NERVOUSNESS, SLEEPLESSNESS, and will cure any case. Office, 106 N. Eutaw St., Baltimore, Md. Price, 50c., postage free. Sold by all druggists and country stores. REFERENCE:—Howard Bank, Baltimore, Md.

ELASTIC RUPTURE BELT

The Best Truss without Metal Springs ever invented. No humbug claim of a certain radical cure, but a guarantee of a comfortable, secure and satisfactory appliance. We will take back and pay FULL PRICE for all that do not suit. Price, single, like cut, $4; for both sides, $6. Sent by mail, post-paid, on receipt of price. N. B.—This Truss WILL CURE more Ruptures than any of those for which extravagant claims are made. Circulars free.
POMEROY TRUSS CO., 746 Broadway, New York.

TARRANT'S SELTZER APERIENT
The Human Locomotive should be carefully engineered, otherwise it may run off the track of life at any moment. To keep its delicate internal machinery in perfect trim, or to put it in good working condition when out of order, is the peculiar province of Tarrant's Effervescent Seltzer Aperient.
The thoroughness with which it cleanses without irritating the bowels; the tone and vigor which it imparts to the stomach; its appetizing effects; its cooling, refreshing operation in fever; the relief it affords in headache; its antibilious properties, and its superior merits as a general corrective, justify the assertion that it is, beyond all comparison, the most valuable family medicine of the age.

$2500 A year to Agents. Outfit and a $25 Shot Gun free. For terms address, J. Worth & Co., St. Louis, Mo.

WATCHMAKERS' Tools and Materials. Send for Price list. GEO. E. SMITH & CO., P. O. Box [illegible], N. Y.

$66 a week in your own town. Terms and $5 outfit free. H. HALLETT & CO., Portland, Maine.

$20 a Day. HOW TO MAKE IT. Something new and salable. COE, YONGE & CO., St. Louis, Mo.

$55 2 $77 a Week to Agents. $10 Outfit FREE. P. O. VICKERY, Augusta, Maine.

$40 A WEEK. Catalogue and sample FREE. FELTON & CO., 119 Nassau St., New York.

$5 to $20 per day at home. Samples worth $5 free. STINSON & Co., Portland, Maine.

$12 A DAY at home. Agents wanted. Outfit and terms free. TRUE & CO., Augusta, Maine.

WANTED Traveling Salesmen. $85 a month and all expenses paid. No Peddling. Address Queen City Lamp Works, Cincinnati, O.

$350 A MONTH—AGENTS WANTED—36 best selling articles in the world; one sample free. Address JAY BRONSON, Detroit, Mich.

REVOLVER FREE! Seven-shot revolver, with box cartridges. Address J. Bown & Son, 136 & 138 Wood-st., Pittsburg, Pa.

$5937 Made by 17 Agents in Jan. 77 with my 13 new articles. Samples free. Address C. M. Linington, Chicago.

DIPLOMAS for Physicians. How to get them. Send stamp to R. R. LEAVITT, Cincinnati, O.

AGENTS CAN MAKE $25 PER DAY selling our PATENT BEER FAUCETS. Send for Circular. WORSWICK M'F'G CO., Cleveland, Ohio.

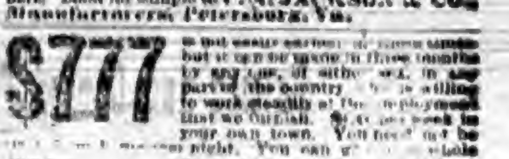
THE ART of MAKING MONEY PLENTY, and other circulars, sent for 3ct. stamp. Address U. L. STONE, 171 Madison street, Chicago, Ill.

PENSIONS Procured, or NO PAY, for every wounded, ruptured, accidentally injured or diseased Soldier. Address Col. N. W. FITZGERALD, U. S. Claim Att'y, Washington, D. C.

WANTED Men to travel and take orders of Merchants. Salary $1200 a year and all traveling expenses paid. Address Gem Man'f'g Co., St. Louis, Mo.

TERRITORY FOR SALE.—Territory for the Improved Bosom Stretcher and Ironing Board—can be manufactured by any carpenter—large profits—large sales—lands and town property taken in exchange. Address HARDY & Co., Agts. for the U. S., Abingdon, Ill.

[illegible] FARMERS FOR IOWA.
SEND A POSTAL CARD for description and maps of 1,200,000 Acres R. R. lands for sale on R. R. Terms, by the Iowa R. R. Land Co. Climate and soil first-class, and adapted to grain, corn and grazing. No Grasshoppers. Tickets free to land-buyers from Chicago and return. Address J. B. CALHOUN, Land Commissioner, 92 Randolph street, Chicago, or Cedar Rapids, Iowa.



$10 to $25 A DAY SURE made by Agents selling our Chromos, Crayons, Picture and Chromo Cards. 125 samples, worth $5, sent, postpaid, for 85 Cents. Illustrated Catalogue free. J. H. BUFFORD'S SONS, Boston. [Established 1830.]

JACKSON'S BEST
SWEET NAVY CHEWING TOBACCO
was awarded the highest prize at Centennial Exposition for its fine chewing qualities, the excellence and lasting character of its sweetening and flavoring. If you want the best tobacco ever made, ask your grocer for this, and see that each plug bears our blue-strip trade-mark, with words Jackson's Best on it. Sold wholesale by all jobbers. Send for sample to C. A. JACKSON & CO., Manufacturers, Petersburg, Va.

$777 is not easily earned in these times, but it can be made in three months by any one, of either sex, in any part of the country who is willing to work steadily at the employment that we furnish. $66 per week in your own town. You need not be away from home over night. You can give your whole time to the work, or only your spare moments. We have agents who are making over $20 per day. All who engage at once can make money fast. At the present time money cannot be made so easily and rapidly at any other business. It costs nothing to try the business. Terms and $5 Outfit free. Address, at once, H. HALLETT & CO., Portland, Maine.

TURKEY FEATHERS
We Pay Cash.
HIGHEST MARKET PRICE, for ALL the Tail Feathers of the Turkey, both long and short; also, the wing feathers of first joint from the body.
DIRECTIONS.—Pick dry, keep clean, lay straight, pack tight, and ship by freight in light boxes. Direct to us and save commission. We are responsible, and will do right by you. HIRAM HADLEY & CO., manufacturers Split Turkey Feather Dusters, 12 Calhoun place, Chicago.

PERPETUAL
SORGHUM EVAPORATOR.
$15. $20. $25.
Cheap and Durable
Send for Circulars.
Address the only Manufacturers
CHAPMAN & CO. Madison, Ind.

RIVERVIEW ACADEMY,
POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y.,
OTIS BISBEE, A. M., Principal and Proprietor.
Numbers its alumni by hundreds in all the honorable walks of life. Pupils range from twelve to twenty years in age. Next session opens Sept. 12th. Those wishing to enter should make an early application.

"The Best Polish in the World."
THE RISING SUN
STOVE POLISH

BABBITT'S TOILET SOAP.

Unrivaled for the Toilet and the Bath. No artificial and deceptive odors to cover common and deleterious ingredients. After years of scientific experiment the manufacturer of B. T. Babbitt's Best Soap has perfected and now offers to the public The FINEST TOILET SOAP in the World.
Only the purest vegetable oils used in its manufacture.
For Use in the Nursery it has No Equal.
Worth ten times its cost to every mother and family in Christendom. Sample box, containing 3 cakes of 6 oz. each, sent free to any address on receipt of 75 cents. Address
B. T. BABBITT, New York City.
For Sale by all Druggists.

THE SUN.
1877. NEW YORK. 1877.
THE SUN continues to be the strenuous advocate of reform and retrenchment, and of the substitution of statesmanship, wisdom and integrity for hollow pretence, imbecility and fraud in the administration of public affairs. It contends for the government of the people by the people and for the people, as opposed to government by frauds in the ballot-box and in the counting of votes, enforced by military violence. It endeavors to supply its readers—a body now not far from a million of souls—with the most careful, complete and trustworthy accounts of current events, and employs for this purpose a numerous and carefully selected staff of reporters and correspondents. Its reports from Washington, especially, are full, accurate and fearless; and it doubtless continues to deserve and enjoy the hatred of those who thrive by plundering the Treasury or by usurping what the law does not give them, while it endeavors to merit the confidence of the public by defending the rights of the people against the encroachments of unjustified power.
The price of the Daily SUN is 55 cents a month, or $6.50 a year, postpaid; or, with the Sunday edition, $7.70 a year.
The Sunday edition alone, eight pages, $1.20 a year, postpaid.
THE WEEKLY SUN, eight pages of 56 broad columns, is furnished at $1 a year, postpaid.
SPECIAL NOTICE.—In order to introduce THE SUN more widely to the public, we will send THE WEEKLY edition for the remainder of the year, to Jan. 1, 1878, postpaid, for Half a Dollar. Try it.
Address THE SUN, N. Y. City.

SANDAL-WOOD
A positive remedy for all diseases of the Kidneys, Bladder and Urinary Organs; also, good in Dropsical Complaints. It never produces sickness, is certain and speedy in its action. It is fast superseding all other remedies. Sixty capsules cure in six or eight days. No other medicine can do this.
Beware of Imitations, for, owing to its great success, many have been offered; some are most dangerous, causing piles, &c.
DUNDAS DICK & CO.'S Genuine Soft Capsules, containing Oil of Sandalwood, sold at all drug stores. Ask for circular, or send for one to 35 and 37 Wooster street, New York.

G. S. U. 33

WHEN WRITING TO ADVERTISERS, please say you saw the advertisement in this paper.

FRUIT HOUSE PRICES!

GREATER BRGAINS THAN EVER.

All sugars reduced a half cent. All teas down 10 cents per pound. Choice raisins reduced to 7 cts. per pound. Sugar cured hams reduced to 11 cts. per pound. Shoulders reduced to 8 cts. per pound. Pickled pork down to 8 cts. per pound. No. 1 white fish down to $4.50 half barrel.

SUCH LOW PRICES HAVE NEVER BEEN KNOWN

Our Tea Trade

Is constantly increasing. We now sell more in a day than we used to in a week—now sell a good tea at 25 cents a pound. Those who prefer a fancy article we have it up to the very finest article 60 and 90 cents per pound. No middlemen between us and our customers. We purchase direct of the importers and sell direct to the consumers, thereby saving them the profits of the speculator, jobber and wholesale dealer. All of these have to have their profits which adds 20 to 30 cents per pound to the tea before it reaches the consumer. This is the only secret of our success, doing away with the middlemen.

Young Hyson Tea,	25, 40, 50, best 90 cents per pound
Gunpowder Tea,	40, 60, best 90 cents per pound
Imperial Tea,	30 70, best 90 cents per pound
Oolong Tea,	25, 50, best 75 cents per pound
Japan Uncolored Tea,	30, 50, best 70 cents per pound
English BreakfastTea,	50, best 80 cents per pound

SUGARS, SUGARS, SUGARS!

ALL DOWN HALF CENT PER POUND.

Coffee A, 11½ cents. Coffee C, 10 cents. Choice Yellow, 9 cents. Granulated and Crushed, 12½ cents. Powdered, 12 cents.

COFFEE! COFFEE!

Our Best Rio, 25 cents. Good Fine Rio, 22 cents. Old Government Java, 30 cents. Roasted Rio, 22 cents. Best Roasted, 28 cents.

No Advance on Meats.

Best Sugar Cured Hams, 11 cents.
Sugar Cured Shoulders, 8 cents.
Best Pickled Pork, 8 cents.

Syrups.

Cuba 40 and 50 cents.
White Drips, 75 cts. and $1.00.
New Orleans, 50 and 75 cents.

Raisins and Canned Peaches at a Terrible Sacrifice!

The large 3 lb. Can Peaches, 15 cents,
2 lb. Cans, 10 cents.
2 lb. Damsons, 15 cents.
Choice Valencia Raisins, 7 cents.
Strawberries, 10 and 12 cents.
2 lb. Green Gages, 25 cents.

FISH! FISH! FISH!

Harvest time being the great fish season, we laid in a large supply when they were low to supply our customers at the lowest rates.
No. 1 White Fish, half bbls., $4.50 New Pickerel in half bbls., $2.50 No. 1 White Fish in kits, $1.00.
New Pickerel, in kits, 75 cents, Boston Mackerel, in kits, 75 cents and $1.25.
We have a No. 3 White Fish, small but sound fish, half barrels, $1.00.

OILS, OILS, OIL!!

Coal Oil per gallon, 20 cents. Headlight Oil per gallon 25 cents. Lard Oil, per gallon, $1.00
Fish Oil per gallon, $1.00. Best Golden Machine Oil per gal. 70c. Machine Oil per gal, 30cts

You can save at least 25 per cent. on the dollar at the

Fruit House, Fort Wayne, Ind

JOHN L. DAVIS,

OF THE

PIONEER HARDWARE STORE,

Would respectfully announce that he has made large additions in every department, and is prepared to furnish everything in the Hardwase line.

He keeps a full stock of

BUILDING MATERIAL.

Whichhe can sell at prices to suit the times. All kinds of

STOVES and TINWARE

on hand. He keeps a first-class TINM R and is prepared to do all kinds of Eaves Trough hangnig Roofing, on short notice, and in a workmanlike manner.

MAIN STRFET, OPPOSITE COURT HOUSF AUBURN, IND

'THE REGULATOR'

DOWN! DOWN! DOWN!

FROM 10 TO 25 PER CENT.

HARNESS, SADELES, COLLARS, WHIPS, &c.,

At my new shop on seventh street, opposite Court House, in old Post Office building. Come and see me and I will sell you a good article for less money than you ever heard of before. All work warranted.

J. I. SMITH.

JAS. CLIFFORD,

WATERLOO, IND.

Keeps constantly on hand the best and choicest brands of all kinds of

Wines and Liquors,

Cigars, Tobaccos, &c.

He also has, in connection with the above a first class

BILLIARD HALL.

To our citizens and the traveling public, we would say that this is the popular resort at Waco. First door south of the railroad.

FOR SALE.

VALUABLE LANDS.

I offer for sale one section of land, in Kosciusko county, Ind., nine miles south west of Warsaw, adjoining W. Beybl, and a quarter section nearby, which I will sell as a whole or in lots of 40 acres or more, as the purchaser may desire. The land is well improved, well timbered and I will sell low for cash. Or I will sell on time, one-forth down, and the balance in ten years. Also a section in Fulton county on the same terms. For particulars address,

H. HEIST, Kendallville, Ind.

ELSWORTH, ANDREW & CO.

Have opened for the Spring Trade of 1877, an elegant line of

BRUSSELS & INGRAIN

CARPETS

In all the new and elegant designs; and will give very low figures to

CASH BUYERS.

A full line of

OIL CLOTHS,
MATTINGS.
LACE CURTAIS.
WINDOW SHADES,
STAIR RODS,
RUGS and MATS.

And a splendid stock of

WALL PAPER AND DECRATIONS.

We solicit inspection from Auburn and vicininy.
ELLSWORTH, ANDREW & CO.

26 East Berry Street,
Fort Wayne, Indiana.

J. G. FLEDDERMAN

No. 27, East Main-St.

FORT WAYNE, IND'A

as the largest and finest stock of

CLOTHS, COATINGS, CHEVIOTS,

AND

CassimereS

in Ft. Wayne. The finest line of

Made up Clothing

ever shown in Fort Wayne

Youths' and Children's Clothing!

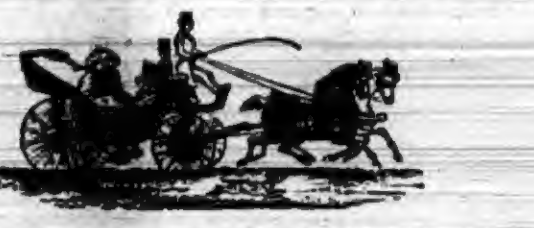
Furnishing Goods, &c.

Merchant Tailoring

All work done in all the latest styles, promptly attended to and see his large stock

---

WHOA! WHOA!



We can't stop till we get to

HOUSER'S BOOK STORE!

here you can find an extensive stock of Standard and Miscellaneous Books. He has a fine selection of

JUVENILE BOOKS.

TOY BOOKS,

Gift Books Bibles, Albums, Card Cases, Writing Desks. Stereoscopes, Pocket Books. Chromos, Pictures, Picture Frames, Stereoscopic Views, Chess, Checker, Chess Boards, Dominoes, Games in great variety.
Johnson's Celebrated Gold Pens & Pencils.

Wall and Window Paper,

Window Shades a Fixtures a specialty, and a host of other useful and beautiful articles, Main-st., Auburn, Ind.

Geo. De Wald & Co.

FORT WAYNE, IND.

Have always on hand the largest and best stock of Dry Goods and Ladies Dress Goods in the city. Our citizens when of visiting Fort Wayne, should not fail call and examine their stock

DRY GOODS.

They can make it to the interest of every person who trade with them. They buy for cash and sell for cash, keep the best goods and sell for one price. Also agents for the Domestic Paterons
Their store is located at No. 1 Columbia Street.

GEO. DEWALD & CO.

STILL AHEAD AT F. E. DAVENPORT'S DRUG STORE!

A FINE ASSORTMENT OF

Fine Albums, Stereoscopes, Stereoscopic Views, Toilet Articles, Perfumery, Brushes &c.

School Books suitable for use in the Auburn and country schools. Writing paper, Pens, Inks, Copy Books, Slates, &c. Also a full line of Drugs and Medicines.

Perscriptions Carefully Compounded

The finest Tobaccos and Cigars to be found in the county Remember the place

DAVENPORT'S.

West of the Court House, Auburn, Ind.

RAIL ROADS.

Lake Shore & Mich Southern R R

AIR LINE DIVISION.

On and after June 10 1877, trains will run as follows:

GOING WEST

	Special Ex.	Pacific Ex.	Accm
Toledo	11 12 a m	12 01 a m	4 40 a m
[illegible]	12 15 "	1 07 "	5 30 "
Bryan	1 30 "	1 55 "	6 30
Butler	1 25 "	2 28 "	7 10 "
Waterloo	1 41 "	2 40 "	7 30 "
Sedan	2 00 "	2 49 "	7 40 "
Corunna	2 07 "	2 54 "	7 17 "
Kendallville	2 27 "	3 05 "	8 04 "
Ligonier	2 57 "	3 40 "	8 50 "
Goshen	3 25 "	4 12 "	9 35 "
Elkhart	3 40 "	4 25 "	10 00 "

GOING EAST.

Elkhart	7 58 p m	9 50 p m	7 00 "
Goshen	8 06 "	10 10 "	7 25 "
Ligonier	8 31 "	10 42 "	8 02 "
Kendallville	8 49 "	11 17 "	8 45 a m
Corunna	8 56 "	11 31 "	9 00 "
Sedan	9 00 "	11 30a "	9 05 "
Waterloo	9 04 "	11 46 "	9 15 "
Butler	"	12 01 a m	9 35 "
Bryan	"	12 40 "	10 17 "
Wauseon	"	1 25 "	11 12 "
Toledo	"	2 40 "	12 30 "

CHAS. PAINE, Gen. Supt.
J. W. CARY, Gen Tic. Agt
J. E. CURTIS, Division Su

Pittsburg, Ft. W. & C. R. R

Condensed time card June 24, 1877.

GOING WEST.

	No 1 Fast ex.	No. 7 Pac. ex.	No. 3 Night ex	No 5 Mail.
Pittsburgh	11 45 pm	9 00 am	1 50 pm	6 00 am
Rochester	12 53 am	10 15	2 58	7 45
Alliance	3 10	12 50 pm	5 35	11 00
Orrville	4 46	2 30	7 12	12 55 pm
Mansfield	7 00	4 40	9 20	3 11
Crestl'e ar.	7 30	5 15	9 45	3 50
" lv.	7 50	5 40	9 55
Forest	9 25	7 35	11 15
Lima	10 40	9 00	12 25 am
Ft. Wayne	1 20 pm	11 45	2 40
Plymouth	3 45	2 46 am	4 55
Chicago	7 00	6 30	7 58

GOING EAST

	No. 4 Night ex	No. 2 Fast ex.	No. 6 Pac. ex	No. 8 Mail
Chicago	9 10 pm	8 00 a.m	5 15 pm
Plymouth	2 46 am	11 25	9 00
Ft. Wayne	6 55	2 10 pm	11 35
Lima	8 55	4 05	1 30 am
Forest	10 10	5 20	2 48
Crestl'e ar.	11 45	6 55	4 25
" lv.	12 05 pm	7 15 pm	4 35	6 05am
Mansfield	12 35	7 44	5 05	6 55
Orrville	2 30	9 38	7 10	9 15
Alliance	4 05	11 15	9 00	11 20
Rochester	6 22	1 21 am	11 06	2 [illegible]pm
Pittsburgh	7 30	2 30	12 15	3 30

Trains Nos 3 and 6 run daily. Train No. 1 leaves Pittsburg daily except Sunday. Train No 4 leaves Chicago daily except Saturday. All others daily except Sunday.

F. R. MYERS,
Gen Pass. and Ticket Agent.

Ft. Wayne, Jackson & Sag. R. R

Short Line Between

Michigan and the South.

Time card in effect June 21—run by Chicago time

Going North.

Stations	Exp.		Accom.	Mail
Louisville	7 15pm
St. Louis	6 40
Indianapolis	4 25am
Ft Wayne	10 50 "		1 30	4 15p
Auburn	11 40 "		3 05	5 13
Waterloo	11 58 "		4 00	5 31
Summit
Pleasant Lake
Ar Angola	12 58 pm		5 30	6 35
Reading	1 40 "		7 05	7 32
Bankers	2 04 "		7 20	7 47
Jonesville	2 30 "		7 50	8 05
Jackson	3 45 "		9 40	9 20
Detroit	6 20 "		12 05	3 35a
Grand Rapids	9 30 "		4 30	6 55
Lansing	6 00 "
Saginaw	9 10
Bay City

Going South.

Stations	Exp.		Accom.	Mail
Bay City
Saginaw	7 15 a m			3 55p
Lansing	10 10 "			7 25
Grand Rapids	6 20 "		11 50a	7 00
Detroit	7 00 "			9 50
Jackson Dep	11 40 am		5 10p	6 00a
Jonesville	12 40 pm		7	7 12
Bankers	1 07 "		7	7 30
Reading	1 22 "		8 15	7 43
Ar Angola	2 12 "		9 43	8 41
Pleasant Lake
Waterloo	2 47 "		10 45	9 22
Auburn	3 02 "		11 31	9 58
Auburn Junction			1 00a
Fort Wayne Arrive	3 35 "			10 35
Indianapolis	7 45 "			5 55
St. Louis	8 30 am			7 25
Louisville	8 30 am			10 50

All trains daily except Sunday.

P. B. LOOMIS, Pres't

S. K. HOOPER Gen. Ticket Ag't.

Baltimore & Ohio Railroad.

IN EFFECT JUNE 24, 1877.

GOING WEST.

STATIONS:	Express	Express	Cum'l A
lv New York	8 15am	8 25pm
Philadelphia	12 15pm	11 30
Baltimore	4 30	6 15am
Washington	5 45	7 45
Wheeling	8 00am	10 05pm	4 30pm
Bellaire	8 30am	10 30	5 00
Barnesville	9 45	11 46	6 10
Cambridge	10 46	1 00am	7 30
Zanesville	11 55	2 10	8 50
ar Newark	1 00pm	3 15	10 00
Columbus	3 00	5 00
Shawnee	4 30	10 10
lv Columbus	12 40	10 45pm
Newark	2 00	3 30am	4 30pm
Mt Vernon	3 00	4 35	6 25
Mansfield	4 28	6 15	10 00
Shelby	4 54	6 47	11 35
Monroeville
ar Sandusky
lv Chicago Junction	6 00	7 45	7 55am
Republic
Tiffin	7 18	8 39	10 20
Fostoria	7 45	9 10	11 40
Deshler	8 50	10 09	1 50pm
Defiance	9 52	11 06	3 50
Hicksville	10 41	11 53	6 13
Auburn Junction	11 22	12 35pm	7 50
Garrett	11 40pm	1 05	8 00am
Avilla	11 55	1 24	8 24
Albion	12 17	1 47	9 04
Milford Junction	1 46	2 37	10 34
Walkertown Junction	2 33	3 53	1 05pm
Chicago	5 40	6 40

GOING EAST.

Chicago	8 50am	9 40pm
Walkertown Junction	12 26pm	1 14am	11 29am
Milford Junction	1 45	2 24	2 37pm
Albion	2 30	3 10	4 15
Avilla	2 50	3 30	4 55
Garrett	3 20	3 55	6 00am
Auburn Junction	3 27	4 02	6 17
Hicksville	4 07	4 42	7 42
Defiance	4 54	5 27	9 10
Deshler	5 49	6 23	11 35
Fostoria	6 47	7 23	2 14pm
Tiffin	7 15	7 54	3 20
Republic
Sandusky
Monroeville
Chicago Junction	8 40	9 30	1 30
Shelby Junction	9 15	10 06	3 05
Mansfield	9 44	10 36	4 28
Mt. Vernon	11 14	12 06pm	7 40
Ar Newark	12 15a m	1 10	9 45
lv Columbus	12 40	3 40
Shawnee	10 25
Newark	12 45am	2 05	5 55am
Lv Zanesville	1 50	3 10	7 10
Cambridge	2 51	4 10	8 14
Barnesville	3 55	5 10	9 23
Ar Bellaire	5 05	6 20	10 40
Wheeling	6 00	7 40	11 55
Washington	7 20pm	7 50am
Baltimore	8 30	9 00
Philadelphia	2 10am	1 15pm
New York	6 25	5 05pm

Zanesville Accommodation leaves Zanesville daily except Sunday at 6:40 a. m., and arrives at Columbus at 9:45 a. m.
Express trains run daily, other trains daily except Sunday.

L. M COLE, Gen. Tick. Agt.

Detroit, Eel River & Illinois R R.

TAKE EFFECT JULY 2, 1877.

GOING EAST,

	MAIL No. 2,	ACCOM. No. 6,	LOCAL FT No. 8,
v. Logansport	7 45am	7 10	7 00
Mexico	8 27	8 07	8 27
Denver	8 37	8 25	9 00
Chili	8 45	8 39	9 20
Roann	9 03	9 06	10 05
Laketon	9 20	9 32	10 50
N. Manchester	9 31	9 50	11 15
Liberty Mills	9 40	10 05	11 37
Collamer	9 55	10 27	12 10pm
S. Whitley	10 00	10 35	12 25
Columbia City	10 20	11 18	1 30
Collen's	10 43	11 43	2 20
[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
La Otto	[illegible]	[illegible]	3 55
Cedar Creek	11 20	[illegible]	4 15
Auburn Junct'n	11 43	1 07	4 51
Auburn	11 48	1 12	5 10
Butler	12 20am	2 00	6 30

Going West.

	No. 1,	No. [illegible]	No. 7,
Logansport ar	6 [illegible] pm	1 50pm	5 [illegible] pm
Mexico	6 16	12 00 n.	4 20
Denver	6 07	11 40am	4 00
Chili	6 00	11 35	3 30
Roann	5 47	11 12	2 40
Laketon	5 32	10 50	2 05
North Manchester	5 23	10 35	1 35
Liberty Mills	5 17	10 21	1 06
Collamar	5 06	10 05	12 30am
South Whitley	5 02	10 00	12 20
Columbia City	4 40	9 23	10 25
Collin's	4 21	8 57	9 49
Cherubusco	4 14	8 42	9 26
La Otto	3 55	8 10	9 44
Cedar Creek	3 45	8 00	8 28
Auburn Junction	3 27	7 40	8 00
Auburn	3 22	7 34	7 34
Butler lv	2 45	6 55	6 20

FRANK J. BECKER,
Gen. Sup't

Ft. Wayne, Muncie & Cin. R. R.

Muncie Route.

THE SHORT LINE TO INDIANAPOLIS,
—AND—
THE SOUTHWEST.

Time Card in effect July 1st, 1877.

STATIONS.	GOING SOUTH. 1. Mail.	3. Express	5. Accom
FORT WAYNE	5 10 am	6 35 pm
Bluffton	6 17 am	7 45 pm
Montpelier	6 55 am	8 20 pm
Hartford	7 30 am	8 43 pm
MUNCIE	8 10 am	9 30 pm	5 00 a m
Newcastle	9 05 am		6 35 p m
Cambridge City	9 45 am		7 45 p m
Connersville	10 20 am		8 50 p m
Cincinnati	1 20 pm		11 40 p m
INDIANAPOLIS	10 25 am	11 00 pm
Louisville	10 50 pm	8 30 am
Terre Haute	3 15 pm	1 50 am
St. Louis	9 00 pm	8 30 am

STATIONS	GOING NORTH 2 Mail	6 Express	4 Accom.
St. Louis		8 00 am
Terre Haute		2 55 pm
Louisville		3 30 pm
Cincinnati	7 00 am		7 00 am
Indianapolis		6 20 pm
Connersville	10 40 am		10 40 am
Cambridge City	11 13 am		11 44 am
New Castle	11 50 am		12 35 pm
Muncie	12 45 pm	10 45 pm	2 30 pm
Hartford	1 30 pm	11 34 pm
Montpelier	2 00 pm	11 57 pm
Bluffton	2 40 pm	12 33 pm
Fort Wayne	3 30 pm	1 45 am

All trains daily except Sunday. Trains run on Columbus time Through cars attached to trains 1 and 4, and run between Fort Wayne and Indianapolis via Muncie.

GEO. W. MULLEN, Act'g Gen. Tick. Ag't.
W. W. WORTHINGTON, Gen. Supt.

JUST RECEIV'D

—AT—

J. ABRIGHT'S

Fine Gold and Plated Jewelry.
Ladies Gold Watches,
American Watches,

Rogers & Bro. Silverware,

A splendid line of imported Vases Watch Chains, magnificent Holiday Gifts, Lockets, Ladies Sets, Gents

GOLD & SILVER SET

Sleeve and Collar Buttons, Jet Shell and Horn Jewelry, All at astonishingly

LOW PRICES.

Watches and Jewelry repaired on short notice and in good style.

MEEKS & WYER,

Our energetic

PLASTERS

Will do you a good job at reasonable rates. They always give satisfaction and are prompt in their work. Those having plastering to do should give them a call. nov1 6w

---

READ THE FOLLOWING

Shearer & Wilson,

HAVING ERECTED A

STEAM PLANING MILL

Are now prepared to do all kinds of

Plaining,
Surfacing,
Matching Flooring
Scroll Work,
Mouldings,
Re-Sawing, &c.

DOORS AND SASH!

We are adding facilities for the manufacture of doors and sash to order, and will give special attention to this branch.

CONTRACTORS.

We also make a specialty of contracting for the erection of residences, barns and other buildings, and guarantee good work at reasonable figures. Mill on South Jackson Street, Auburn, Indiana.

SHEARER & WILSON.

Recorder's Office

THE AUBURN COURIER.

Devoted to the Interests of the Democratic Party and to the Collection of Local and General News.

Volume 7. AUBURN, DeKALB COUNTY INDIANA, AUGUST 30th, 1877. Number 35.

The Auburn Weekly Courier

PUBLISHED EVERY THURSDAY, BY

TOM. C. MAYS.

One Year,........$2. | Six Months,......

Advertising Rates.

Space.	1m.	3 m.	6 m.	1 y.
1 Square......	2 00	5 00	7 00	12 00
¼ Column........	8 00	12 00	18 00	30 00
½ Column........	10 00	18 00	30 00	50 00
1 Column........	15 00	30 00	50 00	100 00

Local Notices 10 cents per line, first insertion 5cents each insertion thereafter. Business cards Five Dollars.

BUSINESS DIRECTORY.

ATTORNEYS.

WOODHULL and CROXTON,

ATTORNEYS AT LAW Angola, Indiana. Practice in Steuben and DeKalb Counties.

H. C. PETERSON,

ATTORNEY AT LAW and notary public. Office over Davis' hardware store, Auburn, Ind.

J. W. RICKEL,

ATTORNEY AT LAW Auburn, Ind. Special attention given to collections. Office over First National Bank.

A. F. PINCHIN

ATTORNEY AT LAW and notary public, Butler, DeKalb Co., Ind. Insurance and real estate business promptly attended to.

GUY PLUM

ATTORNEY AT LAW and notary public. Office in the Court House. Special attention paid to the collection of claims. Also agent for Home Insurance Company.

D. D. MOODY. P. V. HOFFMAN.

Moody and Hoffman,

ATTORNEYS AT LAW. Office in Odd Fellows' building, opposite Court House, Auburn, Ind.

BEST and McCLELLAN.

ATTORNEYS AT LAW, Waterloo, Ind. Will practice in the Courts of DeKalb & Steuben counties. Liberal Advances Made on all first-class Claims left in our hands for collection.

COURTS IN STEUBEN CO.	COURTS IN DEKALB CO
1st Monday in February	3rd Monday in Feb
4th Monday in April	2nd Monday in May
1st Monday in September	3rd Monday in Sep.
Monday in November	2nd Monday in Dec.

R. WES. M'BRIDE, J. L. MORLAN, W. H. LEAS

McBRIDE, MORLAN and LEAS

ATTORNEYS AT LAW, NOTARIES PUBLIC, COLLECTING AND INSURANCE AGENCY Office over Fisher's clothing Store, corner of Wayne and Marion streets, Waterloo Ind. Will practice in all parts of the State. Especial Attention given to collections in DeKalb, Steuben, LaGrange and Noble counties.

COURTS IN DEKALB CO.	COURTS IN STEUBEN CO.
4th Monday in February	1st Monday in Febr'y.
3rd Monday in May.	4th Monday in April.
4th Monday in Septem'r	1st Monday in Sept'r.
3rd Monday in Decem'r	4th Monday in Nov'r.

PHYSICIANS.

DR. J. A. COWAN,

PHYSICIAN & SURGEON, Auburn, Ind. Office on Main street, over Central Grocery.

J. J. LITTLEFIELD,

PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON. Office over McIntyre's Block, Auburn, Ind. All calls promptly attended to.

W. S. ALLEN.

PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON, Office West of Court House, on Main Street, over Eldridge's store. Same office lately occupied by Dr. Cowan.

DR. TRITCH,

HOMEOPATHIC PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON Special attention given to Surgery and Chronic diseases. Office in Case's Block, Auburn Indiana.

DR. S. B. JOHNSTON.

DENTIST, WATERLOO, INDIANA, Does all work in the line of his profession at as low figures as possible. Special attention given to gold filling and making new teeth. All work warranted.

HOTELS.

AVELINE HOUSE,

MILLER & MORITZ, Prop's., corner Calhoun & Berry Sts., Fort Wayne, Ind.

BUTT'S HOTEL,

FORMERLY THE BIGLER HOUSE, JOHN BUTT & A. B. RICHARDS, Proprietors, Waterloo, Ind. Free omnibus to and from all trains Good sample rooms on first floor.

Central House,

MR. M. C. MARKEL, Prop. Corner Main and Seventh streets. Good Sample Rooms for Drummers.

MAYER HOUSE.

FORT WAYNE, IND., Messrs TAM & SCARBROUGH Lessees. Good Sample Rooms.

SANDS HOUSE.

COR. WABASH AVE. & MADISON ST. CHICAGO, ILL. New House, elegantly furnished. Only $2.00 per day.

GEO. S. PALMER, O. SANDS,
[Late of City Hotel,] C erk. Proprietor

MISCELLANEOUS.

DRS. SEBRING & SWARTS.

HAVING formed a Copartnership for the practice of Medicine and Surgery, offer their professional services to the citizens of Auburn and vicinity. Will give prompt and faithful attention to all business pertaining to their profession. Special attention given to Chronic Diseases of females and diseases of the eye and ear. One of said firm to be in the office on Saturdays. Office on Main street. Over Shaffer's Furniture Room.

DRS. D. A. SEBRING, & D. J. SWARTS, M. D.

H. Wartenslaben

PAINTER and paper hanger. House painting a specialty. Residence corner Williams and Cedar street.

PRINTING.

COURIER OFFICE.

JOB PRINTING neatly executed. Fine work a specialty. Office in Odd Fellows' Building 2nd floor.

Come to Auburn when you want to buy a good piano, and M. F. Long Co., will sell you one as low as the lowest.

GREAT BARGAINS

—IN—

STRAW HATS!

Silk Hats, Soft Hats, Stiff Hats, Boys and Childrens Hats, Caps, and Gents' Furnishing Goods of every description at

STUTZENBERGER & LOMONT'S,

34 CALHOUN STREET, FORT WAYNE, IND.

Sheriff's Sale,

BY virtue of an execution to me directed from the Clerk of the DeKalb Circuit Court, in a cause wherein Bank of New Carlisle is plaintiff, and Isaac Licht and Solomon Hase defendants requiring me to make the sum of two hundred and sixty-eight (268) dollars and sixty-eight (68) cents, with interest on said judgment and costs, I will expose at public sale to the highest bidder, on

SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 8th, 1877

Between the hours of 10 o'clock a. m., and 4 o'clock p. m. of said day at the door of the Court House of DeKalb County, Indiana, the rents and profits for a term not exceeding seven years of the following real estate to-wit:

The northwest quarter of the south-east quarter and the south half of the south-east quarter and the east half of the east half of the south-west quarter all in section seven [7] township thirty-four [34] north of range fifteen [15] east all in DeKalb County Indiana.

If such rents and profits will not sell for sufficient sum to satisfy said judgment interests and costs, I will at the same time and place, expose at public sale the fee simple of said real estate, or so much thereof as may be sufficient to discharge said judgment interests and costs.

Sale will be made without any relief whatever from valuation or appraisement laws.

JOHN. C. ST. CLAIR, Sheriff.

Auburn, Indiana, August 4th, 1877.

J. W. Rickel Attorney for plaintiff. Pf. $8.50.

Sheriff's Sale.

BY virtue of an execution to me directed from the Clerk of the DeKalb County Circuit Court in a cause wherein The First National Bank of Auburn is plaintiff and Samual Tare, et al. are defendants, requiring me to make the sum of two hundred and thirty-seven dollars (237) and six cents, with interest on said judgment and costs, I will expose at public sale, to the highest bidder on

SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 8th, 1877.

between the hours of 10 o'clock a. m. and 4 o'clock p. m. of said day, at the door of the Court House in DeKalb County, Indiana, the rents and profits for a term not exceeding seven years, of the following real estate, to-wit:

Lot number one hundred and thirty-five (135) and the west half of lot number one hundred and thirty six (136) in Egnew's second addition to the town of Butler, DeKalb county, Indiana.

If such rents and profits will not sell for a sufficient sum to satisfy said judgment interests and costs I will at the same time and place, expose the fee simple of said real estate, or so much thereof as may be sufficient to discharge said judgment, interest and costs.

Sale will be made without any relief whatever from valuation or appraisement laws.

J. C. St. CLAIR, Sheriff.

Guy Plum, Att'y for plaintiff.

Auburn, Ind, Aug. 15, 1877.

Pr. fee $8.50.

Sheriff's Sale.

BY VIRTUE of a certified copy of a Decree to me directed from the Clerk of the De Kalb Circuit Court, in a cause wherein Albert C. Dawson is plaintiff, and John B Rinehart is defendant, requiring me to make the sum of twenty-six dollars and forty-five cents ($26.45), with interest on said decree and costs, I will expose at public sale, to the highest bidder, on SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER, 15, 1877.

between the hours of 10 o'clock A. M. and 4 o'clock P. M., of said day, at the door of the Court House in DeKalb county, Indiana, the rents and profits for a term not exceeding seven years, of the following real estate. Thirteen and one-half acres of land described as follows to-wit:

The west half (½) of the south half (½) of the south-east quarter of section thirty-six (36) township thirty-five [35] north of range twelve (12) east, containing forty acres more or less in DeKalb County Indiana.

If such rents and profits will not sell for a sufficient sum to satisfy said decree, interest and costs, I will at the same time and place expose to public sale the fee simple of said real estate, or so much thereof as may be sufficient to discharge said decree, interests and costs. Said sale will be made without any relief whatever from valuation or appraisement laws.

J. C. St.CLAIR, Sheriff DeKalb Co.

H. C. Peterson Attorney for plaintiff.

Aug. 22nd A. D. 1877. Ptr's. fee $4.75.

Sheriff's Sale.

BY virtue of a certified copy of a decree to me directed from the Clerk of the DeKalb Circuit Court in a cause wherein Joseph Kerr, Sr. is plaintiff, and Walter Dean and Rebecca Dean are defendants, requiring me to make the sum of four hundred and sixty nine dollars and sixty cents, with interest on said decree and cost, I will expose at public sale, to the highest bidder, on

SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER, 8th, 1877,

Between the hours of 10 o'clock A. M. and 4 o'clock P. M. of said day, at the door of the Court House, in DeKalb county, Indiana, the rents and profits for a term not exceeding seven years of the following real estate to-wit:

In lot number fifty-two (52) and fifty-seven (57) in the recorded plat of the town of Vienna in DeKalb county Indiana.

If such rents and profits will not sell for a sufficient sum to satisfy said decree, interests and costs, I will at the same time and place expose to public sale the fee simple of said real estate or so much thereof as may be sufficient to discharge said decree, interest and costs.

Said sale will be made without any relief whatever from valuation or appraisement laws.

J. C. St.CLAIR, Sheriff.

By Thos. D. Gross, Dpt.

L. Coville, Attorney for plaintiff.

Auburn, July 11th, A. D. 1877. P. f. $8.25

Sheriff's Sale.

BY virtue of an execution to me directed from the Clerk of the DeKalb Circuit Court in a cause wherein Solomon Leopold et al is plaintiff, and Charles Klotz is defendent, requiring me to make the sum of four hundred and thirty-six (436) dollars and sixty-three cents, with interest on said judgment and cost, I will expose at public sale to the highest bidder, on

SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 8th, 1877

Between the hours of 10 o'clock a. m. and 4 o'clock p. m. of said day at the door of the Court House of DeKalb County, Indiana, the rents and profits for a term not exceeding seven years, of the following real estate to-wit:

The south one third of lot sixty-six (66) in the original plat of the town of Auburn, DeKalb County Indiana.

If such rents and profits will not sell for a sufficient sum to satisfy said judgment interest and costs, I will at the same time and place, expose at public sale, the fee simple of said real estate, or so much thereof as may be sufficient to discharge said decree, interest and costs.

Sale will be made without any relief whatever from valuation or appraisement laws.

J. C. St. CLAIR, Sheriff.

By Thos. D. Gross, Dept.

Auburn, Indiana, August 8th, 1877.

Guy Plum, Attorney for plaintiff. Pf. $8.80

FIRST NATIONAL BANK.

The First National Bank of Auburn Indiana tenders to the citizens of DeKalb county its facilities for the transaction of business. We loan money, receive deposits subject to check at sight or payable at a fixed date with a stipulated rate of interest. Sell exchange on New York, Chicago, Toledo and Fort Wayne procure such foreign exchange as may be desired, buy exchange and make collections on all available points, and do all usual and ordinary business done by first class banks. We will also take on deposit for safekeeping valuable papers such as deeds, mortgages, notes bonds, agreements etc., guardians, administrators, trustees and all other handling trust funds together with merchants, manufacturers and farmers are solicited to open an account with us. We will deal liberally with all who call.

J. H. Ford, President.

James V. Hazzard, Cashier.

Excursion to the Rocky Mountains.

The Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe Railroad has arranged with the various railroad lines in the country for special round trip rates to the Rocky Mountains, and has secured the following rates to Denver, Colorado Springs, Canon City, Puelo and return; from Kansas City and Atchison, $45; St. Louis, $50; Chicago, $65; Quincy, $50; Cincinnatti, $65: Buffalo, $75, and correspondingly low rates from all points east, north and south These tickets are good for 90 days and to stop at all stations west of the Missouri river. Tickets are on sale at all principal stations throughout the country. This is the new route to Denver through the garden of Kansas and Colorado. Send for maps, circulars, time tables, etc., to

T. J. Anderson,

Gen. Pass. Agent, Topeka, Kan.

A Few Words of Wisdom.

For all who are seeking new homes in the West, If you are going to change your location, by all means you should keep on about the same latitude as where you formerly lived for in this way you will escape the severe climatic changes in the weather incident to the extreme North or South, having none of these things to contend with, your self and family are healthy and you become a producer at once, consequently soon independent; on the other hand should you listen to the many glowing accounts of the sunny South, or the mild climate of the North, and thus be induced to try your fortunes there, you will find the reality is not all your fancy painted it. If you go South it usually takes about two years to get accli mated to the climate, during which time, not being able to work, yourself and family are consumers, besides being constantly exposed to the malarial fevers which abound there, and the experience of many is that they return discouraged, leaving not a few loved ones beneath the sod in the sunny South. Therefore, in going West keep on about the same latitude which will insure health and happiness. There are most excellent lands in Northern Missouri on the line of the Hannibal & St. Jo. R. R. and in Kansass, Nebraska and Colorado, "just as cheap and good as the sun ever shown upon," why not accept a certainty rather than run the risk of losing all? Through day and sleeping cars are run from Toledo, Ohio, via the Wabash R'y and Quincy to St. Jo., Atchison and Kansas city, and from Chicago via Chicago, Burlington & Quincy R. R., whereby all arre furnished firstclass accomodations.

Send for map and time-table to J. A. S. Reed, 50 Clark street, Chicago, C. W. Boardman, Decatur, Ill., or T. Penfield, G. P. and T. A., Hanibal, Mo,

We are sure our farmer friends do not know the value of the Nickel Steel Plow now made at Butler, by Leonard & Co. Those who have tried them pronounce them superior to anything yet introduced. We mention this more from the fact that it is an article made at home, and if as good even as those of foreign make, our farmers should give it the preference. Call at Ensley's Agricultural Depot and examine them. You have a chance to try them before you buy, and the prices are as low as on other plows. 6t

The Credit Business.

After having inspected a pile of calico in one of the Main street stores yesterday, a somewhat rustic looking man blandly remarked to one of the clerk before him:

"Credit must be given me——"

"No, sir—we don't trust," was the reply.

"I was going to remark that credit must be given me for——"

"We couldn't do it, sir. The rule applies to every one."

"Couldn't do what?" asked the man.

"Couldn't give you credit."

"You are very uncivil, sir, very; but yet I will say before I go out of here that credit must be given me for being honest and impartial, when I say that I never saw three hitching-posts look nicer than them out there. That's all, sir, and I wish I hadn't said that much.

"Fight it Out."

A story is told of a daughter of a prominent person now in the lecture field, which is peculiarly interesting and suggestive of unconscious wisdom. A gentleman was invited to the lecturer's house to tea. Immediately on being seated at the table, the little girl astonished the family circle and the guest by the abrupt question:

"Where is your wife?"

Now the gentleman having been recently separated from the partner of his life, was taken so completely by surprise that he stammered forth the truth:

"I don't know."

"Don't know!" replied the infant terrible. "Why don't you know?"

Finding that the child persisted in her interrogatories, despite the mild reproof of her parents, he concluded to make a clear breast of the matter and have it over at once. So he said with a calmness which was the result of inward explctives:

"Well, we don't live together; we think, as we don't agree, we'd better not"

He stifled a groan as the child began again, and darted an exasperated look at her parents. But the little torment would not be quieted until she exclaimed:

"Can't agree! Then why don't you fight it out, as pa and ma do?"

"Vengeance is mine," laughingly retorted the visitor, after "pa" and "ma" exchanged looks of holy horror, followed by the inevitable roar.—New Haven Register.

Why it is the Best.

The Baltimore & Ohio Railroad, the great national route, traversing six states, and having for its western termini Chicago, Sandusky, Columbus and Cincinnati, with connections at these points with the network of railroads beyond, is manifestly the direct route from all the great cities of the west to Washington, Baltimore, Philadelphia, New York and the east. From end to end of its line between Chicago and Baltimore day coaches and Pulman Palace cars are run through without change. These cars are as elegant and luxurious as ingenuity can devise or money procure, and while resting comfortable therein the passenger is carried swiftly but safely past landscapes as pleasant to look upon and as varied in their character as are to be found any where on the continent.

The quiet valleys, fruitful fields and prosperous cities and villages of Indianan and Ohio are succeeded by the grander beauties of the mountain region of West Virginia. If a passing view of this the "Switzerland of America" is too brief, the passenger may stop off en route at Deer Park or Oakland, two charming summer resorts, situated in the very heart of this region, 2,800 feet above water-tide. East of the Alleghanies the Baltimore & Ohio passes along the beautiful valley of the Potomac.

At Harper's Ferry trains connected with those of the Valley Branch for Winchester, Staunton, and White Sulpher Springs. All this locality is celebrated alike for its natural beauties and for the historical events which it brings to mind. At the National Capital, through which the road passes, connections are made for Richmond, Linchburg, and the south; and at Baltimore for Philadelphia, New York, Boston and the east.

At convenient distances along their route the Baltimore & Ohio railroad has erected handsome hotels, where trains will stop long enough to allow the traveler to enjoy at his leisure the first-class meal which is provided.

If your are going east or south-east, no other lines offers as many attractions or as good accommodations; and their rates withal, are as cheap as those of their competitors.

$2500 A YEAR. Agents wanted. Business legitimate. Particulars free. Address J. WORTH & CO. St Louis, Mo.

Hints for Restaurants.

It was a popular restaurant. The seedy customer who had lingered for half an hour over a doughnut revel, brushed the crumbs off his pantaloons with his 4x5 napkin and approached the cashier with an abstracted air. As he handed over his dime he remarked:

"Mister, I think you and I could do a little business."

"How so?" said the cashier.

"Why, I have noticed that the folks who patronize this hashery seem to go mostly for clam chowder and beef hash and doughnuts. They ignore the more recherche elements of the meal, such as quail on toast and venison steak. You'd realize more profit if the public partook more extensively of the luxuries of the season, so to speak, wouldn't you?"

"I reckon," said the check-taker.

"Have you ever noticed," continued the seedy customer "that a man is an emulative being? He is guided and governed by public opinion rather than his own ideas?"

The cashier nodded.

"Exactly. Now do you see what I'm driving at? Public opinion, influenced by hard times, says doughnut and clam chowder. You want to educate public opinion up to the more elevated standpoint of quail on toast and venison steak."

"How are you going to do it?"

"That's just what I'm coming to. That's where my inventive genius comes in. You and I put up a job on 'em. Every day about this time I come here for dinner. I look over the programme and yell out: Here, waiter, turtle soup, fried oysters, pate de fois gras and a point of Roederer—and the waiter he sings out the oder so that the whole roomful can hear. The folks that have just come in say to themselves' 'Hello, this is a kind of a stylish place. It wont do to eat baked beans and codfish balls here,' and then they follow my example; more especially if the waiter does his part well, and can infuse a tone of sarcasm into his voice when passing along the order for clam chowder and hash, so to make the cheap feeders feel their insignificance. Things would soon work around if some enterprising man would set the example."

"Well," said the cashier, "you or anybody else can order just what you like, provided you pay for it.

"I'm afraid you hardly appreciate the importance of my idea. In order to inaugurate the system it will be necessary to dis regard the immediate pecunary outlay. Now, my proposition is that I should officiate as epicurean examplar. I will soon rouse the spirit of emulation by my apparent reckless extravagance. I will by reveling in the delicacies which would appease the appetite of a Luculus, stimulate others to like lavish indulgence. I shall assist the process by casting around me glances of scornful depreciation of those groveling souls who presist in partaking of humble fare. Here, now, for instance, I assume an air of lofty disdain. Do you think you could sit calmly and eat clam soup while I was looking at you—so—and devouring boned turkey?"

"No; I should probably get up and kick you," was the answer.

"Ah, but most men would take it differently. They would say, 'I guess I can afford boned turkey as well as that fellow, and they would order all the luxuries they could think of. It would catch 'em I tell you. Now, to come right down to business, I ain't ambitious; I don't ask any salary. All I want is to order what I want free gratis, and I'll set right to work and we'll begin about the biggist revolution in public opinion you ever saw. What do you say? Is it a bargain?"

"I can't see as it would exactly pay me," said the rausturant man, "I guess things have got to work around gradually."

You don't seem to have much enterprise, sadly observed the epicuarian examplar, "What kind of a one-horse beanery is this, anyhow? You may put down venison and quail on your lying programme, and hanged if I believe you've got any in your old chowder-mill. I'll offer my services to some first-class establishment."

Attention Farmers and Seed Dealers!

The Diamond Wheat is the largest in the world. It grows and matures in any climate in the United States. The grains average nearly one-half inch in length. One grain produces from 25 to 35 stalks, with heads averaging from 7 to 9 inches, and each head containing about 40 grains. In order to introduce this wheat I will send a small sample to every reader of this paper free of charge. Agents are wanted in every county. Write to me at once. Address W. S. Tipton, Cleveland, Tenn.

Canon & Foltz.

House, Sign, Carriage and Ornamental painters, will attend promptly to all orders left at their shop, in the old post-offices building. Paper hanging a specialty.

A Bear Takes Possession of a Court-Room.

Memphis Appeal.

Tim Hope can't stand any lonesomeness. He's essentially a sociable being, even as he is to the infantry born. When there are no police court lawyers around for Tim to confound with knotty legal points, or kill off with revelations as to the nature of their fees, or when there are are no simple afternoon paper's reporter to be victimized by his "sells," Tim feels a want of companionship that hangs heavily on his soul.

"Tim, I've a pet bear I'll send you, you sinner," said one of Tim's friends, and he kept his word.

Now, Tim has had his fun out of the cub, and thought he had it trained well enough to give it the run of the station house, but he didn't.

The court was in session yesterday, doing a brisk business and checking off poor devils to jail or chain gang, when that cub poked his nose in the door and followed it up with his body. No one noticed him until the little felow crawled under a woman's dress. Then you just bet he was noticed. The woman gave a piercing, hysterical scream and fell back fainting with fright.

"What is it?" shrieked the court, giving dignity the cold shoulder, and springing up.

"Fits," said one.

"Hysterics," yelled another.

Lor! see dare! Mr. Tim's bar!" called Black Mike, as the cub protruded its snout and waddled out from the skirts. There was hurrying to and fro—chiefly fro—for legal talent went over chairs and benches and stuck in the door, and the great uncleansed viewed with each other in their anxiety to clear the corner. The court drew up its pedestals and the cub had possession of the court. Tim's presence was warmly invited, and the cub was led to the rear with the realization of fractured dignity shown in the frowns upon court's awful front.

Justifiable Homicide.

Recently a man went into a barbershop, and climbing into one of the chairs, stretched himself out for a shave. The barber lathered his chin, got an edge on his razor, and then began to tell him his family hostory, and of course he expected the man to give him his in return, but was somewhat chargined to find that his victim was fast asleep. When the shaving was finished he awoke the sleeper and said:

"Hair cut?"

"No, sir."

"But you'd better have it cut; it's getting pretty long. The summer's coming on now. Your head 'ill get hot and all over dandruff."

"But I say I don't want it cut."

Nobody in Virginia wears his hair so long now."

"You infernal fool!" shouted the man, "can't you see I wear a wig?"

"That's because you never used my hair invigorator. Lemme sell you a bottle?"

The foregoing is the substance of the testimony at the Coroner's inquest next morning. The jury promptly returned a verdict of justifiable homicide.

Greenbacks
For Bond Holders!

Greenbacks
For Gold Gamblers!

Greenbacks
For National Bankers!

Greenbacks
For the People!

Greenbacks
For all Purposes!

From which money is used interchangable at par with gold and silver, in a sufficient quantity as to promote industry, invite migration and develope the resourses of the country, is what the

CINCINNATI ENQUIRER

Claims is the only remedy for the ills brought upon the country by Legislation and Laws, enacted for the benefit of a Monied Class and the oppression of Labor and Industry.

Government credit sustains our Bonds for the benefit of the wealthy, let the same credit

Sustain Greenbacks

For the benefit of the people who sustain the Government.

Daily Enquirer per year $12.00
Weekly " " " 1.15

Free of postage.
Agents wanted.
Send for specimen copies.

FRAN & McLEAN, Publishers,
CINCINNATI, OHIO.

AUBURN COURIER.

THURSDAY, AUGUST 30, 1877.

THE NEWS CONDENSED.

THE EAST.

Four tramps at Old Orchard beach, Me., the other day, discussed the best city in the country to get "a square meal." Charles Miller advocated New Orleans, and so incensed Albert Patterson, who contended for Boston, that Patterson fatally stabbed Miller. The gang was arrested.

At a conference held the other day between the directors of the Pennsylvania railroad and a committee representing the mercantile interests of Philadelphia which suffered by the destruction in Pittsburgh, it was agreed that suit shall be brought against Allegheny county for all damages to private property as well as to the railroad. The merchants whose goods were delayed or destroyed are making out their bills, which are to be first presented, the railroad company assisting in whatever litigation may follow, and afterward prosecuting its own claims for the full amount of loss and injury.

Donahue, the labor agitator, who is serving a term in the jail of New York city for inciting the Erie railroad strikers, has started a workingmen's daily paper, called The Striker.... The cadetship in the West Point Military Academy for the First Congressional District of New York has been won by a colored boy named Charles A. Minnie, son of a blacksmith.

Two notorious forgers, Husted and Connor, have been arrested in New York. They had negotiated several thousand dollars' worth of bogus St. Louis and Quincy bonds.... There are over 40,000 coal-miners on a strike in the anthracite regions of Pennsylvania. They demand a restoration of the wages that were paid in May last.

THE WEST.

Elaborate preparations are being made at St. Paul for the meeting of the Army of the Tennessee, September 5-6.... Denver telegram: "A rumor here is that a party of painters are en route for Colorado to plaster our rock scenery with advertisements, and the people throughout the State are aroused and will not allow it. The rascals will be roughly handled if they attempt the vandalism.".... Harvest expectations in Minnesota have been more than realized in the yield as ascertained since threshing began. The wheat crop of this wonderful grain-producing State is now set down at the enormous total of 35,000,000 bushels, having a surplus for export of from 26,000,000 to 28,000,000 bushels. The average yield throughout the State is now estimated at twenty bushels to the acre.... The steamer City of Madison, bound from Chicago to Ludington, Michigan, caught fire when off Racine, Wis., on the night of Aug. 16, and was totally consumed. The officers and crew, sixteen in all, escaped in a yawl, but lost everything, including their clothing.

E. J. Henderson, alias Stevens, of New York; Ely B. Weston, of Chicago; and Nelson A. Gesner, an ex-member of the Minnesota Legislature, have for years done a flourishing business in the forgery line both in the East and West, and have hitherto evaded detection. The detectives, however, have at last succeeded in running them down, and placing them in the clutches of the law. Gesner and Weston were arrested in Chicago, and Stevens near Grand Haven, Mich. It is estimated that these three rascals have swindled the banks of the country out of millions of dollars. Two banks in New York suffered at their hands to the tune of $40,000 and $26,000 respectively. They had a complete outfit of implements, pens, various inks, drafts on banks, and acids for the erasure of signatures.... The town of Gayville, two miles from Deadwood city, Dak., has been almost totally destroyed by fire, only one or two houses being left.

A terrible tragedy was recently enacted at Oak Mills, not far from Leavenworth, Kansas. The wife of a young farmer named Robert Scruggs left her husband on account of ill-treatment and went back to her father, Jasper Oliphant. Scruggs followed her shortly after, but was refused admission to the father-in-law's house. He then drew a revolver and shot Oliphant dead. A constable named Groff attempted the arrest of the murderer and was shot dead. A mob took charge of Scruggs the next morning, and hung him to the limb of a tree.

A brutal murder was lately committed on the farm of Augustus Pope, near Fort Wayne, Ind. A young son of Mr. Pope was shot and instantly killed by a tramp whom he ordered away from the farm.... Chicago elevators, as per official returns, contain 251,500 bushels of wheat; 1,385,206 bushels of corn; 327,709 bushels of oats; 122,615 bushels of rye, and 89,267 bushels of barley, making a grand total of 2,176,366 bushels, against 2,171,696 bushels one week ago, and 3,225,742 bushels at this period last year. Milwaukee warehouses are stored with 107,824 bushels of wheat.

WASHINGTON.

The Treasury Department has ordered an investigation of the Norfolk Custom House.... The State Department is reorganizing the Consular Bureau with a view of increasing the efficiency of this branch of the service.

The Commissioner of Internal Revenue has sent a circular to all Collectors of Internal Revenue, directing them not to allow, within their several collection districts, more than one person related to the Collector by blood or marriage to hold an internal-revenue appointment, or more than two persons related to each other to hold such appointments.... Prof. Hall, in charge of the great telescope at the Washington Observatory, has made an important and remarkable astronomical discovery. His attention having been attracted to a small star following the red planet Mars, he turned his attention to it, and, after two or three nights of close observation and careful calculation, he demonstrates the object to be a satellite of the war star, and, prosecuting his investigation still farther, opened up another body which he thinks is another martial moon, but of the rating of which he is not yet fully satisfied.

A Washington dispatch says it is not true, as has been stated in various quarters, that the Cabinet has discussed the propriety of recommending an increase of the regular army. The War Department officials say that the army could be made large enough with the officers already in commission if the maximum standard of the companies should be placed at 100 men. On that basis there are now officers enough to command 50,000 men.

E. S. Stanton, a Washington lawyer, and son of the late Edwin M. Stanton, has lost his reason, and is now confined in the Government Insane Asylum.... The President and Secretaries Evarts, Devens and Key returned to Washington from their New England tour on the 25th of August. Secretary Sherman returned from his Ohio visit on the same day.

GENERAL.

The United States war steamer Plymouth has been ordered to cruise in the Gulf of Mexico, off the Mexican coast.

The labor strikes have calmed down remarkably within the last two or three weeks. At several of the Pennsylvania coal mines the companies have receded from their recent 10 per cent. reductions, but have discharged the surplus men whom they had been employing on "short time." It is found to work better to pay seventy-five men satisfactory wages than to try and retain 100 men, giving each but three-quarter employment.

A pooling arrangement has been effected, after a prolonged contest, between the two great telegraph corporations of the country, the Western Union and Atlantic and Pacific. The terms of the newly-formed combination are, that the Western Union shall take seven-eighths of the receipts, and the Atlantic and Pacific the remaining one-eighth. A material increase in rates of transmission is to take place forthwith.

The official statement of the receipts of the Government for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1877, has been published. The total receipts were $269,000,000, as follows: From customs revenue, $118,500,000; sales of land, $1,000,000, and from miscellaneous sources, $15,500,000. The total expenditures were: Civil, $56,250,000; war, $37,000,000; navy, $15,000,000; Indians and pensions, $33,250,000; interest on the public debt, $97,000,000.... The Mexican Gen. Benavides, commanding at Matamoras, telegraphs Gen. Ord that he has captured one of the bandit prisoners recently released by a band of Mexican outlaws at Rio Grande City, Texas, and that he thinks he will be able to capture the rescuers. Gen. Ord thinks that this shows a disposition on the part of the Diaz Government to put a good face on the border matters for the present at least.... The National Board of Trade held its annual session in Milwaukee last week. There was a meager attendance.

New regulations for trainmen have been introduced on the Baltimore and Ohio road, which, it is believed, will work more to the satisfaction of the employes. Each engine is to have a regular crew of hands that operate it when used; the company propose to employ a force sufficient to do the work of the road, and no more, thus avoiding in the future the complaints made by the strikers, that they could not make a living because they were not allowed time enough to do so.

The Federal troops along the Baltimore and Ohio railroad have been withdrawn, the Governors of Maryland and West Virginia having notified the War Department that they were no longer needed.

INDIAN NEWS.

Gen. Terry, of the army, and Gen. John McNeill, of St. Louis, have been appointed a commission to visit Canada and negotiate with Sitting Bull for his return to American soil.... Red Cloud, Spotted Tail and Little Big Man are on their way to Washington to perfect arrangements for further massacres of the whites.... Gen. Gibbon telegraphs some details of the pursuit of the Nez Perces. He was at Deer Lodge, rapidly recovering, while troops were hurrying from all directions to join Gen. Howard. Incumbered by their wounded, the savages were moving slowly, and Gen. Gibbon expressed the belief that the next fight would prove their Waterloo.

Dispatches from the West, dated Aug. 21, report that the Nez Perces Indians were camped at Hole-in-the-Rock, a stage station in Idaho. They destroyed the telegraph line in the vicinity, and stopped all travel over the road for several days. A large party of teamsters were camped and fortifying themselves a short distance north of the Snake river bridge. The Indians were in possession of the stage barns, using the grain.

A dispatch from Salt Lake, Utah, reports that Gen. Howard had a slight skirmish with the Nez Perces Indians Aug. 21, in which one man was killed and seven wounded. The Indians the same night stole 200 of Howard's horses. The Montana volunteers were returning home disgusted.

POLITICAL.

Mr. Blaine invited the President to extend his New England tour to Maine and enjoy the hospitality of his house, to which Mr. Hayes replied: "I greatly regret that my inability to accept at present Gov. Connor's kind invitation to visit the State of Maine will deprive me of the pleasure of enjoying the hospitality you have so cordially proffered.".... A State convention of the Greenback party of Pennsylvania has been called to meet at Williamsport on the 19th of September.... The Pennsylvania Democratic State Convention was held at Harrisburg, Aug. 22. John Trunkey, of Venango county, was nominated for Supreme Judge, and William P. Schell, of Bedford, for Auditor General. The following platform was adopted:

The Democratic party of Pennsylvania and its delegates in convention assembled do declare:

1. That the induction of Rutherford B. Hayes into the office of President, notwithstanding the election of Samuel J. Tilden thereto, was a high crime against free government which has not been condoned and will not be forgotten. The same spirit of patriotism which forebore a contest upon the first offense will resist and punish any attempt at a second.

2. That the immediate happy effect of the application by the Federal administration of the Democratic policy of non-intervention in the internal affairs of the Southern States amply vindicates our frequent protests against previous violation of the reserved rights of the several States to exercise all power not delegated to the General Government by express constitutional provision.

3. That the purpose to reform the civil service which has been proclaimed by the present administration is, like its adopted Southern policy, a confession of the failure of radicalism and a just tribute to the Democracy, which has long and earnestly demanded the overthrow and punishment of corrupt officials.

4. That capital combined in corporate organization has been too highly favored by both State and Federal legislation, and its demands for large returns are inconsistent with the depressed condition of the laboring and business interests of the country. We oppose further enactments for its special benefit at the expense of other interests. Labor and capital should have no cause of antagonism, and they should be left free to adjust their own relations. The right to contract freely exists for both parties.

5. That we accept the admonition of Jackson in saying, concerning standing armies as dangerous to free governments in time of peace: "I shall not seek to enlarge our present establishment, nor disregard the salutary lesson of political experience which teaches that the military should be held subordinate to the civil power;" accordingly increase of the Federal army and any attempt to employ it as an agent of Federal authority, or for interference with the sovereign rights of States, will receive continued earnest opposition of the Democracy of Pennsylvania.

6. That many of our rich men have not been content with equal protection and equal benefits, but have besought us to make them richer by act of Congress; and, by attempting to gratify their desires, we have in the results of our legislation arrayed section against section, interest against interest, man against man, in fearful commotion, and therefore the grant by the Legislatures of States or by Congress of exclusive privileges, and the establishment of odious monopolies, under pretext of public benefit or of justice to certain sections of the country, are a direct assault upon the equal rights of the people, and, as these monopolies have been contrived to enrich a few, while a large number of people are reduced to want, the Democracy of Pennsylvania protest against subsidies, land-grants, loans of the public credit, and appropriations of the people's money to any corporation as legalized plunder of the taxpaying industries of the country.

7. That we look with alarm and apprehension upon the pretensions of the great transportation companies to be above the fundamental law of this Commonwealth, which governs all else within our borders, and, until they accept the constitution of 1873 in good faith, they should remain objects of the utmost vigilance and jealousy by both the Legislature and people.

Resolved, That we hereby reaffirm and adopt the financial resolutions of the national Democratic platform adopted at St. Louis in 1876.

It is said Senator Sherman hankers after his old seat in the United States Senate, and that in case Ohio goes Republican he will be a candidate for the position.

THE TURKO-RUSSIAN WAR.

Seven thousand four hundred Turkish prisoners altogether have passed through Roumania.... The railways from St. Petersburg to Kischeneff are now carrying 12,000 men daily.

A correspondent at Bucharest telegraphs that the main hope of the Russians now is that they may succeed in winning a decisive victory at Tirnova, and that in case success should crown their efforts the Czar will be ready to agree upon terms of peace at once. The Emperor of all the Russias is not entirely hopeful of final success in the campaign now going on beyond the Danube. It is said he constantly upbraids his advisers, both military and civil, for having led him to make war against Turkey.... It is estimated that the reinforcements intended for the Russian army before Plevna number 180,000, and that the Guard and grenadier corps will be in Bulgaria by the 7th of September.... A London dispatch reports a battle in Asia between the Russians and a portion of Mukhtar Pasha's command, in which the Turks were victorious.... The commission to inquire into the frauds in supplying forage for the Russian army report a deficit of £180,000.... Many Russian and Roumanian officers, knowing that, if taken prisoners, they would be shown no mercy by the Turks, are carrying poison about their persons to rid themselves of life and save torture, in case they fall into the hands of the enemy.

Russian official reports admit a loss of 8,000 or 10,000 men in the fighting at Plevna, half the number being killed outright or seriously wounded. One-fifth of the 200 persons accompanying the red-cross ambulances were killed while attending the wounded on the field. The desperate character of the battle is shown in the excessively large proportion of casualties in the limited force engaged.

A London dispatch says that Germany's protest against the Turkish atrocities is due to the suggestion of the Emperor William. Although the protest does not contain any threats, it is of a nature to convince the Porte that Germany is in earnest. The same dispatch says that Great Britain is making arrangements for the intervention of the great powers in the interest of peace.

There has been a sanguinary struggle for the possession of the Schipka pass, the most feasible route through the Balkan mountains into Roumelia. Suleiman Pasha began the attack on the Russian position on Tuesday morning, Aug. 21, and kept it up until late at night, bringing forward fresh troops as one body after another was repulsed. The attack was renewed on Wednesday, and the day, like its predecessor, was spent in hard fighting, the Turks being foiled in every attempt to dislodge the enemy from his strongly fortified position. The losses of the assailants were severe.... There has been some severe fighting between the Turks and Montenegrins. The Turks are advancing toward Nicsics.

GENERAL FOREIGN NEWS.

Kossuth has addressed a proclamation to the Hungarians, urging Austro-Hungary to come to an understanding with the Porte as to the extent of concessions to Christians which can be made without compromising the integrity of the Turkish empire. He says on the basis of this arrangement an alliance with the Porte ought to be concluded. Russia should then be called upon to terminate the war.... The London Agricultural Gazette of Aug. 21, says: "It is plain that 1877 will prove no exception to the succession of unfortunate harvests we have lately experienced. The wheat crop is certainly very generally and very largely below the average. Oats and winter beans seem the best of the grain crops of the year.".... The Chinese Government has issued an imperial edict against the use of opium, declaring that its use is bringing destruction upon the people of China.

A London dispatch says that Gen. Grant has sent word to Garibaldi that he should be very glad to visit Caprera during the autumn.... All the famous men in natatorial annals have been surpassed by the achievement of one Frederick Cavill, who, the ocean cable tells us, swam across the English channel, from Cape Grisnez, France, to Dover, Eng., a distance of about twenty miles. He made the crossing in twelve hours.

A petition from the Chinese in Cuba, complaining of the cruelty of Spanish planters, has reached England.... Hon. E. B. Washburne, ex-Minister to France, was in Berlin last week, where he was cordially received by Emperor William and members of the German Government.

An insurrection has broken out in Crete. Two engagements have been fought, in which thirty-six Turks and seventeen Christians were killed. Thessaly is reported in a state of brigandage, which must end in insurrection.

The European Plan.

Yesterday evening a stranger, clad in a duster and carrying a carpet-sack, entered a hotel on Delaware avenue. He marched straight up to the counter, where the amiable landlord stood picking his teeth, and the moment he set his bag down the amiable landlord whisked it off and set it down with the pile of other baggage in the rear of the bar.

"Please register your name," said the landlord, passing him a pen.

"How much is it, mister?"

"That depends on what you get. We keep hotel here on the European plan."

"I say mister," said the countryman, all in a tremble, "please give me that bag, and I'll get right out and not say a word."

The landlord glared at him, but made no movement towards the bag.

"Please, mister, give me my bag. There is nothing in it but a few shirts, indeed there isn't. Here's the key. I'll let you search it, continued the stranger, trembling still more violently.

The landlord passed him the bag, and as the stranger instantly shot for the door the former exclaimed:

"Well, blame me if I ain't puzzled to know what kind of a fool you are."

But the stranger paused to hear no compliments, and he was a good half mile away before he took courage to lean up against an awning-post and mutter:

"Gracious! what an escape. Keeps a hotel on the you rope in plan, does he? I suppose he wanted to rope me in and perhaps kill me. Lord! what wicked places these cities are. I'll go home immediately." And he kept his word.—New York Star.

Crime in New York.

The New York Herald says: The report of the Board of Police Justices for the year ending Oct. 31, 1876, gives some very interesting statistics of the various phases of crime in this city. The total number of arrests in the city were 87,307—males, 63,789; females, 23,518. Of these there were held upon some charges 39,180 males and 17,904 females—Total, 57,084. Of this number 351 had been held as witnesses and 24 cases were pending at the date of the report, leaving 56,700 cases finally disposed of by the Police Justices. These cases, in the order of their frequency, are as follows:

	Male.	Female.	Total.
Intoxication	11,068	5,679	16,747
Disorderly conduct	8,989	7,322	16,311
Intoxication and disorderly conduct	2,561	1,339	3,900
Vagrancy	1,960	1,660	3,620
Violations of Excise law	3,127	46	3,173
Larceny, petit, and attempts at	2,499	496	2,995
Assault and battery	2,248	274	2,522
Larceny, grand, and attempts at	1,085	249	1,334
Violation of corporation ordinances	1,033	29	1,062
Juvenile delinquents and destitute children	734	242	976
Insanity	417	266	683
Burglary and attempts at	595	5	600
Assault, felonious, and felonious assault and battery	329	19	348
Cruelty to animals	331	..	331
Violation of lottery law	199	2	201
Disorderly house, keeping of	78	103	181
Robbery and attempts at	158	6	164
Abandonment	160	..	160
Violation of sanitary code	155	4	159
False pretences	112	3	115
Miscellaneous	1,063	64	1,127
Total	38,900	17,800	56,700

Baltimore can get up a riot on short notice, but she is nevertheless, a solid city. Desirous of refunding a water loan of $5,000,000 at 6 per cent. with 5 per cent bonds, she advertised a popular loan which was nearly all taken in Baltimore at from par to 103.

BUSINESS INTERESTS.

Commercial and Trade Matters.

The exports of cotton manufactures are steadily on the increase.

The peach crop in Southern Missouri is so large the people do not know what to do with it.

Sixty millions of dollars is the sum set down as having been lost by the late railway strikes.

A ten-acre orange grove in Florida, well cultivated, is said to be worth an annual income of $6,000.

The oil country is said to have never been so completely overrun with stock as since the railroad blockade. A depression of values is looked for.

It appears that while about 4,000 ships per annum visit American shores in ballast for cargoes, not more than 660 American vessels go abroad in ballast for the same purpose.

Business at the Cambria Iron Works, Johnstown, Pa., is kept up to a fair average, and the population of nearly 20,000 persons depending upon the enterprise of this single company is fairly supplied with all comforts. Nearly every branch of the extensive works is more than fairly busy.

The San Francisco Chronicle tells some strange stories concerning the dishonest management of some of the mines in that State, which, though yielding largely of gold, are continually running behind. The thievery is prevalent in every department of the management, and seems to surpass anything before known in the history of such affairs.

So far as the simple effect of the strike of the anthracite miners upon the coal business is concerned there will accrue a benefit, as the production has been too great and the prices too low; but the damage to property, and the distress of laborers and traders consequent upon such a cessation of business, cannot be estimated by profit going to coal-dealers.

Mill, Shop and Labor Notes.

Detroit boasts of shipping stoves to Australia.

Tiffin, Ohio, supplies the world with 5,000 churns and 40,000 dozen washboards per annum.

Nearly all the oleomargarine butter manufactured in this country is exported to Europe, averaging 1,000,000 pounds per month.

The work of repairing damages on the Pennsylvania railroad at Pittsburgh is going on very actively. The Union depot is to be rebuilt.

The experience of the Pennsylvania railroad at Pittsburgh is that there are more good railroad men offering to go to work than the company can find employment for.

The Burlington Glass Works, Hamilton, Ont., have been compelled to succumb to competition from the States, and its blowers are looking toward Pittsburgh for employment.

There seems to be considerable doubt attached to the success of the Permanent Exhibition at Philadelphia, neither the exhibits nor attendance coming up to the anticipation of the management.

Over 2,000 men are still idle at the American Iron Works, Pittsburgh, because the firemen of the puddling furnaces decline work at the rate paid. It is a case in which 100 dissatisfied men are ruling 1,900 who want to work.

As one of the results of striking, nearly 1,000 men will be kept out of employment with the Vulcan Iron Company, Carondelet, Mo., three months, until the company can recover their furnaces from the "chill" given to their stacks by the strike.

The distress of the anthracite coal-miners is a subject for genuine benevolence, notwithstanding the hard moral reputation which these men have. There are more than double the number of them than are needed, and all are wretchedly poor. Destitute of work, money, or provisions, it would not be strange if they become desperate.

The fact was never more apparent than now that the laborer is nowhere so well situated as on a few acres of land, which will yield him a living in spite of all contingencies in other business. His labor pays him as sure as the sun shines or the rain falls, and he loses nothing by breaking banks or railway blockades unless from the surplus of labor which he is striving to market.

Workingmen's Platform.

The following platform was adopted by the State Convention of the Ohio Workingmen, recently held at Cincinnati:

1. The payment of wages to the laborer in the lawful money of the country, and at intervals of time not greater than one week, and that suitable penalties be provided for failures to do so.
2. Eight hours for the present as a normal working-day, and legal punishment of all violators.
3. Strict laws making employers liable for all accidents to the injury of their employes.
4. Prohibitory laws against the employment of children under 14 years of age in the industrial establishments.
5. Abolition of conspiracy laws.
6. Prohibition of the use of prison labor by private employers.
7. Gratuitous administration of justice in all courts of law.
8. Sanitary inspection of all conditions of labor, means of subsistence and dwellings included.
9. Gratuitous instruction in all educational institutions.
10. Labor statistics in all States as well as by the National Government; the officers of these bureaus to be taken from the ranks of the labor organizations and elected by them.
11. The repeal of the patent and all other laws or privileges to individuals or companies to the detriment of labor.
12. The repeal of all tariff and other acts which provide for the collection of the public revenue by indirect methods, and the substitution therefor of a system of direct taxation guaranteed in proportion to the amount of property or income to be taxed.
13. Railroads, telegraphs, and all means of transportation to be controlled by the Government for the purpose of abolishing the wages system.
14. All industrial enterprises to be placed under the control of the Government as fast as practicable, and operated by free co-operative unions for the good of the whole people.

Anna Dickinson.

"Jennie June," writing about Anna Dickinson, says: "From her father Anna Dickinson inherits the ardor, passion and almost insane love of justice which distinguish her, while from her mother come the love of fine and rare things, the tenacity of purpose, the perseverance and determination to do or die, which are equally a part of her nature. Underlying the whole is a sensitive soul, which vibrates to every passing breath like the sensitive plant, responds so quickly and truly to the winds that pass over it, that it almost depends upon them, whether it discourses sweet music or discordant sounds, like bells 'jangled, and 'out of tune.'"

Luck.

Some people are fond of denying that there is any such thing as "luck," but, be that as it may, there certainly are persons to whom what seems like fortuitous good fortune comes. Col. Green Wilkinson gave a seat in his pew in London to an old gentleman, who left him $40,000 a year. A young Bostonian crossed to England three or four years ago, and got into conversation with an elderly gentleman who observed that he found they had the same name. It turned out that they were second cousins. The elder had gone to California in the early days, made a vast fortune, and entirely lost sight of his relatives. That chance meeting gave the young Bostonian a fortune of between two and three millions. Two ladies had a box at the opera in London. An old man opposite bored them dreadfully by perpetually "lorgnetting" them. The scene came to an end and they thought no more about him. One day, a year afterward, a solicitor called on one of the ladies, Lady Frances Bruce, and told her that an old gentleman, Mr. W., had left her property worth several thousand a year. "Never heard of the man," she said; "must be a mistake." "Very extraordinary," replied the solicitor. Suddenly a happy thought struck him. "He lies in his coffin in St. James street, close by, at Banting's, the great undertaker's; will you come and see him?" She went. It was the old lorgnetter. And it is said that he left it to her under a mistake after all, having intended to leave it to her friend, whom, and not Lady Frances, he admired, but was misinformed as to the names of the ladies. And to give one more, a quite recent instance. A young New Yorker went to San Francisco to seek the fortunes which so many have failed to find. He got a poor clerkship and had to be thankful for that. One evening at a place of entertainment he watched a game of cards, saw that an elderly Englishman was being cheated, exposed the fraud, and had a tussle with the cheat. The Englishman has presented him with $20,000 to start him in business, and there is every prospect that more are to come.

She Met Her Match.

Some time since, on one of the Hudson river boats, a lady, who had attracted much attention for the masculine turn of her manners and conversation, was seated at the table opposite a gentleman, who, in taking some butter, in the absence of the usual knife, used his own, which the lady observing, she called aloud to the waiter:

"Wait-ta!" bring another plate of butter; that man (pointing to the gentleman) had his knife in this!"

The unfortunate wight almost sank under the curious gaze of the company, but said nothing, determined to watch his opportunity to return, for the cruel mortification, change in her own coin. He waited a moment, ere a plate of dried beef was handed to the lady, who unceremoniously took some in her fingers and placed it upon her plate.

"Wait-ta!" exclaimed the gentleman in turn, "bring another plate of beef; that woman has had her fingers in this!"

A most ungallant roar from all the company fairly turned the tables against the lady, and she had the good sense to acknowledge its desert, and join heartily in the mirth it created.

Russian Serfs.

In Russia the serf, before the emancipation, was the absolute property of his master; if he obtained a piece of land in a commune, the commune could at any time deprive him of it, and he could neither alienate it nor leave it to his children after his death. When the emancipation took place many of the peasants sold their plots of land, believing that the old communal system would be retained and that they and their children would continue to be provided for by the commune as heretofore. The land-owners and their agents did their best to encourage this delusion, and the consequence was that in many cases they bought back the land at nominal prices, while the peasants, after having run through the money which they thus obtained, find that they have to work harder for their living than ever. This state of things has produced a feeling of discontent among the 16,000,000 emancipated serfs of Russia, which may at any moment break out in a terrible agrarian revolution.

Health and Slow Pulse.

Some interesting statements are reported to have been made at a meeting of the Clinical Society, London, showing that a slow pulse may in no wise interfere with health. The most remarkable case, perhaps, was that of Dr. Hewan, as related by himself. It seems that, twenty-one years ago, after prolonged study and work, his pulse fell from seventy-two to fifty-five, and he felt very cold; from that time its frequency gradually decreased until about eleven years later, when it was but twenty-four beats per minute. Its present rate is about twenty-eight. Notwithstanding this, he has not suffered from fainting, fits or cold, is capable of great physical exertion—of which evidence is to be found in his ascent of a high mountain—and his digestion remains unimpaired. Another speaker said that Napoleon had a slow pulse, being about thirty to forty per minute; and another member stated the rate of a horse's pulse to be only sixteen.

Singing Mouse.

A pretty little girl in Shreveport, La., told her papa that there was a pretty little bird in her pretty little room singing a pretty little song. The affectionate parent told her to go back to bed, as it was probably only a katydid; but when he went to bed himself, his wife told him to listen to the strange music of a mocking-bird which filled the room. The devoted husband struck a match, and discovered the musician on the lower shelf of the wash-stand. It was a singing mouse.

Oakey Hall is still in London, writing articles on American theatrical affairs for the English magazines.

CURRENT EVENTS.

Ohio will have a lively campaign. There will be four tickets in the field, with the back towns still to hear from. The Republicans, the Democrats, and the workingmen already have tickets in nomination, and the Greenbackers intend to nominate one of their own. The Prohibitionists and the Anti-Secret Society people are those still to be heard from.

An English farmer writes the London Times to say that the excitement about the Colorado potato beetle in England is uncalled for. He doesn't believe it is there, or that it can get there. He declares that the beetle that has made its appearance in Europe is the doryphora juncta, and not the destructive pest. It resembles the Colorado bug, but has only eight stripes.

The operations of the internal-revenue officers against illicit distillers in the South during the last six months have resulted as follows: Illicit stills seized, 41; distillers arrested or surrendered, 1,064; officers killed, including Lieut. McIntire, United States army, 4; officers wounded, 4; citizens assisting officers killed, 2; wounded, 2; distillers killed or wounded, 4.

Since July 1, the Secretary of the Navy has given employment to 3,400 men at the navy yards throughout the country. The appropriations for the several bureaus of the department, although smaller than usual, have been liberally distributed so as to give employment to as many as possible. It is the object of the Secretary to relieve the wants of those deserving employment to the full extent of his power.

The English are beginning to experience the discomforts of Russian proximity to their Indian empire. Advices have been received in London of the discovery of a conspiracy in Cabool, in the northwestern portion of Hindostan, nearest to Russia's recently-acquired territories in Central Asia; and Russian agents are charged with originating it. Four of the native officials involved in the intrigue have been put to death, but their Russian instigators do not appear to have been caught.

Acting Secretary McCormick has issued a circular to the officers and clerks of the Treasury Department, stating that the credit of the Government requires its duties to be performed by honorable men; that the Secretary will not be annoyed by creditors seeking their just dues from clerks; that it is expected that all just debts will be paid; and that if clerks refuse to pay just debts, they will be charged with fraudulent practices and recommended for dismissal by the chiefs of their respective bureaus.

A Pittsburgh paper announces the organization of a mysterious secret order called the Universal Brotherhood. It is composed of laborers, mechanics and farmers. Lawyers, doctors, preachers, politicians, officeholders, bankers, bondholders and speculators are rigidly excluded. No man is admitted to membership who is not engaged in some active industry involving manual labor. The order already numbers thousands, and will soon be organized in every ward in Pittsburgh. Its object is to unite the laboring classes of every grade and profession in a common interest throughout the United States.

The London Times' Bellary (Presidency of Madras) correspondent, describing the awful effects of the famine in Southern India, says: "The great bulk of people are now emaciated; their ribs are sticking out in painful prominence, and their skins covered with a dirty-looking desquamation of cuticle described in the Irish famine of 1846-47, by Dr. Donovan, as a peculiar famine eruption. If we look at the thousands of people collected on the relief works, we find famine marks are of universal prevalence. The superintendent of relief operations in Adoni reports that the journey over one of his roads resembled the path of a great battle in the number of dead and dying. If the people had been smitten by a local outbreak of cholera in ordinary times, they would have fled from the work and never returned, but so severe is the pressure for food that none could afford to leave the works and lose their pay, even for a single day."

The Louisiana planters annually lose about one-third of their cotton crops by reason of insufficient labor. They call loudly for laborers from the North.

THE MARKETS.

NEW YORK.
Beeves	$7 50	@12 50
Hogs	5 37	@ 5 75
Cotton	11½	@ 11¾
Flour—Superfine Western	3 90	@ 4 50
Wheat—No. 2	1 20	@ 1 40
Corn—Western Mixed	52	@ 56½
Oats—Mixed	26	@ 40
Rye—Western	67	@ 68
Pork—New Mess	13 15	@13 25
Lard	8½	@ 8¾
CHICAGO.
Beeves—Choice Graded Steers	5 75	@ 6 00
Choice Natives	5 00	@ 5 60
Cows and Heifers	2 50	@ 3 75
Good Second-class Steers	3 75	@ 4 00
Medium to Fair	4 25	@ 4 75
Hogs—Live	4 00	@ 5 45
Flour—Fancy White Winter	6 75	@ 7 00
Good to Choice Spring Ex.	6 00	@ 6 50
Wheat—No. 2 Spring	1 07	@ 1 09
No. 3 Spring	1 03	@ 1 05
Corn—No. 2	42	@ 43
Oats—No. 2	23	@ 24
Rye—No. 2	52	@ 53
Barley—No. 2	68	@ 69½
Butter—Choice Creamery	23	@ 25
Eggs—Fresh	10	@ 11
Pork—Mess	12 30	@12 40
Lard	8	@ 8½
MILWAUKEE.
Wheat—No. 1	1 09	@ 1 10
No. 2	1 07	@ 1 08
Corn—No. 2	43	@ 44
Oats—No. 2	23	@ 24
Rye—No. 1	52	@ 53
Barley—No. 2	64	@ 66
ST. LOUIS.
Wheat—No. 2 Red Fall	1 29	@ 1 30
Corn—No. 2 Mixed	39	@ 41
Oats—No. 2	26	@ 28
Rye	52	@ 53
Pork—Mess	12 70	@12 80
Lard	8½	@ 10
Hogs	4 75	@ 5 15
Cattle	4 00	@ 4 50
CINCINNATI.
Wheat—Red	1 05	@ 1 20
Corn	47	@ 48
Oats	25	@ 30
Rye	57	@ 58
Pork—Mess	12 95	@13 05
Lard	8½	@ 10
TOLEDO.
Wheat—No. 2 Red Winter	1 28	@ 1 30
No. 1 White Michigan	1 21	@ 1 23
Corn	46	@ 48
Oats—No. 2	25	@ 28
DETROIT.
Flour—Medium	7 50	@ 7 75
Wheat—No. 1	1 23	@ 1 24
Corn—No. 1	49	@ 50
Oats—Mixed	26	@ 27
Rye	65	@ 75
Pork—Mess	14 45	@14 55
EAST LIBERTY, PA.
Cattle—Best	6 00	@ 6 20
Medium to Good	5 50	@ 5 80
Common to Fair	4 50	@ 5 40
Hogs	4 00	@ 5 60
Sheep	4 00	@ 5 25

AUBURN COURIER.

T. C. MAYS, PUBLISHER.

THE FINANCES.

Speech of Hon. E. P. Allis, Greenback Nominee for Governor of Wisconsin.

The Currency Problem Discussed by a Practical Business Man.

Hon. Edward P. Allis, the nominee of the Greenback party for Governor of Wisconsin, recently delivered an address to a large audience at the Academy of Music, in Milwaukee, the following report of which we find in the Sentinel of that city:

The speaker acknowledged that it gave him a sensation such as he had never before experienced to publicly appear before a Milwaukee audience after walking quietly among the people of the Cre[illegible] fro[illegible] hi[illegible] was young and [illegible] until h[illegible] gray and thi[illegible]ugh he [illegible]med to have neither th[illegible] the a[illegible] of a speaker, he desired so to conduct himself as to reflect credit on his friends as well as upon himself. The course of events had brought him prominently before the people as a candidate for the highest office in the State, a position as embarrassing as unsought, and, high as he esteemed the honor, he had accepted with much misgiving the seeming duty.

The cause for which he appeared, though made the target for ridicule, was to him a surpassing, important and holy one.

Not only America, but the entire civilized world, said the speaker, is suffering from a want of knowledge of the true function of debt, its relation to labor, progress and civilization. It is left [illegible] the problem, and [illegible] ment cannot long exist except in accord with that true relation of debt to progress.

It was therefore, not simply a question of temporary policy, but a question as broad as humanity, and it seemed to the speaker as one of the marked events in the history of the world. The war waged to strike the galling fetters [illegible] concom[illegible], the teaching how the depressing fetters [illegible]old should be stricken from the white m[illegible]

Mone[illegible] to be an absolute [illegible] progr[illegible] civilization, since w[illegible] it the race could not advance. Progress [illegible] only accomplished by gain, and that gain, to any extent, obtained through association and exchange. The exchange must have an app[illegible] medium, and this medium is money. The cause of civilization and progress centere[illegible] love of gain, and the sentiment is universal in the human heart. To-day, as in the past, all are striving for gain, and failure to accomplish gain proved retrogression of the race. The speaker said:

It is not gold, but gain, we are striving for; gain in wealth—gain in power—gain in honor—gain in [illegible] in purity—gain in reverence—gain in position—gain in culture—gain in knowledge—gain in pleasure; it is for gain in something that our hearts all go out, and just as that love for gain extends to higher, holier things, just so is the race elevated and ennobled. Gain in material thus emanates from association and labor, and the dissemination of gain is exchange, and the means of exchange is money.

In early ages, when mankind were rude, and governments were weak and crude, their money partook of the character of the time and people, and was of a low order, beginning with sticks and stones, and shells and skins. The value of the money was sometimes intrinsic, and sometimes a matter of simple public esteem. For instance, a shell rare in Africa, but of no value, was used as money. The same shell was plenty in India, and of no esteem. This fact was taken advantage of by more civilized nations, and the shell was taken in ship-loads from India, where valueless, to Africa, where esteemed, and exchanged for their valuable commodities.

From very early times silver and gold have been used as money, and were admirably adapted for the purpose and the time. To their discovery and use, as money, we can scarcely attach too high an importance.

As the race had outgrown the ruder symbols of the earlier time, and had not reached a high degree of government or of public or private faith, gold and silver came, and, by their benign influence, humanity took a giant's leap. But the precious metals, that were once an advance, and sufficient for the time, have long been outgrown and outstripped in volume, and the ability of mankind to labor and accomplish gain by association has over-reached their ability to exchange.

The loanable capital of Great Britain alone is greater than all the gold in the universe, and yet that loanable capital is all claimed to be gold, as is also the loanable capital of other nations of the earth.

The public debts of the principal civilized nations of the earth, all payable in gold, are five times over all the gold in the world. The business transactions of the world fairly put the volume of gold to shame, the annual clearings of the London bank, alone being five times, and those of New York four times, all the gold in the known world.

One of these fictitious means of increasing the volume of the precious metals, in our country, was the so-called "specie-paying banks."

A bank was permitted to issue five dollars, or more in paper for every one dollar in coin it possessed, promising to redeem it all in coin, on demand.

In this way the volume of coin, for practical purposes, was largely multiplied, and such banks were great aids to business and progress; in their days and while they prospered.

A notable and successful instance of this multiplying the volume of coin for practical purposes occurred in our city. Alexander Mitchell established here an insurance company, with permission to issue bills ad libitum. The Northwest was new and without money, and its progress was slow and painful. Mr. Mitchell was a man of known ability, and unblemished integrity, and our people eagerly sought to use his money which he freely dispensed, and this for years was our principal medium of exchange. The use of this money added largely to the early prosperity of the Northwest; and for this benefit we should ever hold Mr. Mitchell in grateful remembrance. This system of multiplying the volume of these precious metals, however, contained within itself the seeds of its own dissolution, in its promise to pay on demand, five times, or over, more coin than it had.

These banks might have other things just as good as coin, but the promise was coin, and it is evident that their ability to redeem the promise only lasted while they were not called upon to do so.

Had these banks promised to pay in something which they esteemed just as good as coin, and been honestly and well managed, they would have been built upon truth and might have stood; but they were built upon fiction, and no subterfuge or fraud can ever be a proper basis to rest public or private welfare upon.

A notable instance of this system of banking, at this moment existing, and a great power in the world, is the Bank of England.

This fiction—this subterfuge—is beneath the spirit of the age—behind the present advance of civilization.

The truth should be acknowledged and openly conformed to, and if the volume of the precious metals is not sufficient for the use of the world as money, its substitute or supplement should be placed on its own foundation.

This fiction—this subterfuge, I maintain, has been the cause of the ordinary commercial panics and convulsion that have from time to time swept over the commercial world like the besom of destruction, and these commercial simoons will continue to strew the world with business wrecks just as long as this subterfuge is resorted to.

Wherever people have attempted to supplement the volume of gold it has been by means of a debt, and they have called the debt gold, and the enduring quality of the substitute depended upon the character of the debt.

[illegible] question of debt is one of deep interest and import, and is closely interwoven with the human family.

Commencing with individual obligation of the slightest form, it has been ever present and ever increasing, and is to-day the largest and most important structure on earth. We hear it said, the present trouble is caused by debt. Why did you get in debt? Pay your debts, etc. Our debts can only be paid in barbarism. Debt! it is debt everywhere. Debt above us—debt around us—debt beneath us.

Our progress is a debt to the past and our civilization a debt to the future.

The millions piled up in your insurance company is only a debt. The quarterly reports of every bank are all made up of debt. The inventory of your every merchant is largely made up of debt. The savings of this great people, for the last century, piled up by millions in savings banks, are all debts. The rich man counts his thousands in debts and the poor [illegible] his debt [illegible] widow drops her [illegible] burst vaults and carry off hundreds of thousands in debts. What is our beautiful Plankinton House but a debt to the railroads, the merchants and manufacturers of our city. [illegible] our magnificent system of railroads, it[illegible] but a debt to the farm, the shop, the brain and sinews of the people?

The highest form of physical debt, and consequently of value, now known, is that of a nation to its own people. An individual, or corporation, may be unwilling to pay a debt to his neighbor, or his creditor—a State may fail to pay its debt to a foreign State, and the foreign State must be the loser—but a nation's debt to its own people cannot fail. The people have had the value of the debt, and they cannot be deprived of it, and the only question is, the just distribution of its benefits and burdens, which is purely a question of method, not of value.

A national debt to its own people, therefore, is the refinement of debt—the very height of value, it cannot be lost.

Wherefore are the Turks ridiculed, day by day, for the money they use? It is theirs; and all they have. It is their wealth and honor pledged to each other. Because they have no gold, must they, therefore, desert their country? Must they measure their love of native land by a foreigner's love for gold? So were our greenbacks reviled by doubtful patriots when with us it was either greenbacks or national debt.

The Bank of England, to-day, holds a debt against the British nation for the excess of its bills over the coin which it has, and the only weakness of those bills to the British people is that they have a guardian in the Bank of England who promises what he has not got, and charges for it. The national banks of our own time and country hold the debt of our nation for the bills they issue, and their only weakness is that they promise greenbacks, which they have not got, and charge us for it.

If the nation's debt which is owned by the national banks, as well as the rest of it, bore an interest not as high as the average increase of national wealth, and was interconvertible at will with greenbacks, and if it was greenbacks the banks issued and received, and greenbacks only, then would those banks be founded upon just, equitable, safe principles, and be as legitimate and as great aids to advance as is your business or mine; and I believe that until that is done, or something equivalent, there will never again be true and permanent prosperity in our land, either to banking or any other business.

The old specie-paying banks, the Bank of England, and our present national banks, having the feature of compulsory demand payment in something they have not got, though they may have something just as good, are frauds to that extent, and so long as this feature exists they will be fruitful sources of the commercial disasters that have marked the road since the race passed beyond the power of the precious metals to supply its want of money.

It is this feature of compulsory payment, on demand, in gold, which we have not got, and cannot get, that is now sought to be restored, and perpetuated, in the specie-redemption act, which is to go into effect on the 1st of January, 1879, or which, I should rather say, is still in force; for it can never go into effect except upon a bankrupt nation and a people rapidly traveling backward in the scale of civilization and progress.

How puerile is the attempt, and how wicked is the result, needs only to be looked at in a business manner to be plainly evident. We have produced in our country, since the discovery of gold, in round numbers, fifteen hundred millions of dollars, and, gentlemen, where is it? There is not enough left of it to be worthy of national consideration. We have spent it all in foreign lands. But the spending of this vast sum abroad, the entire labor of a generation in that direction, is not half the story. We are indebted to Europe, in a national, corporate and individual capacity, to an amount variously estimated at from fifteen hundred to four thousand millions more—that is, we have spent all the gold the last generation has produced, and all that the coming one or two generations could produce, if they were free from debt, but, as it requires all we can raise annually to pay the interest on our gigantic foreign debt, as all the European nations are fighting to keep what they have, you can easily calculate what chance we have to keep, or get, any of it for currency purposes.

But plain as would seem to be the deduction from the above state of things, we are not compelled to rest on theory. As the time rolls on toward that evil day, the state of the country rushes along with equal speed toward ruin. After these many years of constant decline we were, on the 1st of January last, assured that now we were only removed a few cents from resumption and that the change was at hand, and that we were about to emerge upon a new era of prosperity. Each day since has seen us plunged deeper into the pit; and, during the six months to July 1, it is safe to say that the loss to the country, in the additional shrinkage of values, and in the loss from labor, has equaled the entire national debt.

We can also safely affirm that during the present six months the downward progress, unless assisted by the repeal of existing laws, will be equally rapid, and that the 1st of January, 1878, will find us that much nearer universal ruin. It is true, we have in the Northwest the aid of a bounteous harvest, but its effect will be local and trifling, and can no more stay the dread progress than a rush of the torrent of the Nile. Not only is labor a sufferer beyond computation, but capital itself, which is, and should be, the great aid and abettor of labor, is, apparently unknown, itself fearfully endangered by this suicidal policy.

The national banks themselves, in a circular letter asking a remission of a tax, used this language: "The percentage of taxation, in some sections of the country, including the State taxes and the national taxes, amounts to nearly or quite the whole earning power of the capital employed. If this is to be continued, it amounts, by confiscating its earning power, to a virtual confiscation of the capital."

This is the language of the banks themselves, but they do not, or will not, see that they are advocating the very cause that brings this state of things upon themselves, as well as upon the rest of us.

We have for years been paying onerous taxes; not from the current profits of the people, which can only safely pay them, but from our working principal, till that is nearly gone.

With the continuance of this policy it cannot be two years before the Government itself will be unable to collect from an idle and impoverished people the means to pay even its running expenses, and the disgrace of national bankruptcy will be added to the ready wide-spread individual ruin by which we are surrounded.

Here the speaker simplified his illustrations of the nature of public debt and his point that the attempt to resume specie payment would end in national bankruptcy.

Mr. Allis closed by rehearsing the claims of his party as follows:

We claim that our war has taught us what we have for a hundred years been trying to find, that in our national debt we have found a sure and staple supplement for the insufficient volume of the precious metals.

We claim that the greenbacks paid out by our Government to its people for their material, their labor, their blood and their lives, was money earned by them, and that it belonged to them, while they could use it to their advantage, and that its forcible retirement was a wrong, as well as a financial mistake.

We claim that as the people of this country kept the nation coequal in power and standing with other nations; this money of the people, paid for such service, should have been so honored by the Government as to have made its value, [illegible] coequal with the coin used by other nations, and rendered all compulsory redemption or contraction laws unnecessary.

We claim that the wicked contraction of the currency, and the threatened forced redemption in something we have not got, is the cause of the present disturbed state of the country, and that after the loss of thousands of millions we shall find we have attempted an impossibility, and be compelled to slowly and painfully retrace our steps, if, indeed, we can retrace them at all.

We claim that since we now have a foreign debt, requiring all the gold we can produce to pay the interest, we be given such volume of honored paper currency as we can use to enable us to profitably employ the labor of the country, that we may ultimately hope to pay the debt and secure national [illegible].

We claim that, since the two metals, gold and silver, were so materially insufficient in volume for the use of the people as money, the demonetizing of silver, thus reducing the [illegible] supply one-half, was an [illegible] blow at the already declining prosperity of the people.

We claim that money, as money, is not wealth and cannot be, but is simply the medium of exchange, the tool by which wealth is acquired to the nation, and as such tool is a national prerogative, and whether metallic or paper should be issued directly by the Government, and its volume be elastic and regulated entirely by the use and demands of trade.

We claim that, as checks and bills of exchange which can be used by the larger dealers to in a measure supplement other methods of exchange, are out of the reach of the mass of the people, to be deprived of the greenback, which is the method of exchange of the laborer and smaller dealers, is an undue and disproportionate hardship to them, and consequent injury to the general good.

We claim, finally, that if a nation has advance need of the material and services of its people, or, rather, if the future of a nation has need of the services of the present, that the satisfying such need is the legitimate function and property of all the people, and that the fulfillment of such need should be exchanged in paper, and that such paper should not be used to borrow money, but that of itself it is money.

The Potato Bug—How He Originated and How He Grows and Eats.

The potato bug is a native of the West. He originated in the canons of Colorado, and may be called an offshoot of that section. The State is rammed full and loaded down with them. They formerly lived on wild plants, but one of them went up to Denver on a little pleasure trip, and at the hotel there he had some fried potatoes, and they struck him as being about the best thing to quiet hunger he had ever lighted on. He went home and advised his brethren to go East, and they simply packed up a few collars and a change of clothing and started. The potato bug dawns on the farmer very rapidly; he sees his potatoes nicely up, their green tops reminding him that potatoes, in the fall, at a dollar a bushel are better than a serpent's tooth or a thankless child, and he goes to bed dreaming of wealth pouring in on him in furrows, and the next morning he visits his field and sees some red spots on the potato vines, about as big a pin heads. He notices that they give rather a genteel look to the leaf. In a day or two he sees these red drops begin to grow, and then to crawl, and in three or four days he goes out and is so surprised at what he sees that you could not paint his look of astonishment—not even prime it over one coat with less than a bucket of paint. He see that the potato bug has arrived, and has brought his whole family and all his wife's 500 friends. He is there with all his tools and implements of labor. He sees a bug about as large as the letter O, when it drops from the lips a small boy as he incautiously sits down on an adult bull-thistle. He sees the bug laid off in stripes endwise, like the marks of a grid-iron on a slice of broiled liver. He see that what the bug lacks in size he gains in quantity. He is there and keeps coming. He has as much mouth in proportion to his strength as the Amazon river or Soldene. He can beat a horse-fly laying eggs, and I have seen them do the job at the rate of twelve miles an hour. Ten days from the time an egg is laid it has been hatched, married and is the mother of 1,132 grandchildren.—Geo. A. Quinby in Boston Globe.

Jim's Best Hold.

A hungry and desperate man in Chicago hit on the expedient of feigning insanity as a means of getting a plate of ox-tail soup without paying for it. His conduct is thus described by the Chicago Tribune: "He gulped down the soup without the aid of a spoon. He found, left in the bottom, several joints, which he picked out and laid in a row. Then he got up and tied the tails of his coat into a knot. He coaxed the bristles of his head down over his forehead and eyes. He turned up his coat-collar and spat upon his hands. He kicked the chair out from under him, and crawled down until he was upon all-fours. He gave vent to a sound that was between an Indian war-whoop and the hoarse cough of an elephant. 'Betteny man in the room $4 even that was a bad steer. Betteny man four to one he was a Texas steer. Four to one, four to one. Gimme the five. Bet he war'n the riot. Four dollars in the pool and the steer dead; how much for the soup?' All this in a single breath, as he pawed the floor and overturned the table. They shied the caster at him; they hurled queensware at his form. He made for the door, tripped the cashier on the way, and then disappeared down the alley. There he halted, untied his coat, wiped his brow with his sleeve, and talked again to himself: 'Wall, Jim, they kinder got away with you in the riot, that's a fact. But buckin' agin steer soup's your best hold. You've got that soup down so far that a stummick pump wouldn't raise it.'"

A COUNTRYMAN of plain appearance entered a Macon (Ga.) banking-house, the other day, and made a deposit of $3,000. One of the officers asked him "what he intended to do with so much money?" "Oh," he replied, "I am doing this for my wife, and am determined to keep on working and adding to the amount until, when I die, she will be a real marriageable widow." How rare is such public spirit

---

THE police in San Francisco have received orders to arrest on sight all boys and young men who are known to belong to the class denominated "hoodlums," and to take them to the city prison where they will be charged with vagrancy.

THE VIEWS OF SENATOR BECK.

Against the Electoral Fraud—Against a Great Regular Army.

(From his speech at Maysville, Ky.)

The wrongs, the frauds, the usurpations of the Radical rulers have been so often and so successfully exposed that a large majority of the States and people have condemned and repudiated them, and to-day a Democratic President would be presiding over the republic but for the most scandalous and unblushing fraud ever perpetrated in modern history, which was only rendered possible by the most shameful cowardice and imbecility on the part of the Democratic leaders. We have again verified the adage that "an army of stags led by the lion is braver than an army of lions led by a stag." But our principles are not impaired, nor our positions weakened, either by the frauds of our opponents or the cowardice of our leaders. "Truth is mighty, and public justice certain;" even those who profited by the wrong have been compelled to do homage to the justice of our demands, and remove the iron heel of the Federal soldiers from the necks of the last of the prostrate States of the South.

All the leading Republican papers are demanding an increase of the Federal army. To all such ideas the Democratic party are absolutely and unalterably opposed. No evil can be worse than that proposed by the Republican press and party; it is an end of liberty regulated by law; it is the boldest and most unblushing demand for a centralized, consolidated Government which has yet been advanced. An army, such as is demanded, under a President like Gen. Grant, would become at once masters of the situation. When it strikes, as it is far more likely to strike than any other organization, the death-knell of liberty will have struck; the Pretorian Guards will name and maintain the Emperor.

I know of no instance under Radical rule in which Federal soldiers have not been the ready tools of their masters. Gen. Terry destroyed the Legislature of Georgia. Sheridan and De Trobriand crushed out liberty in Louisiana. All were ready to march on Washington, and eject, if necessary, a Democratic House of Representatives last winter, under the lead of their masters. We have had enough of Federal bayonets regulating State affairs, and will not lay the liberties of the people, their constitutions and rights, at the feet of any dictator. It is the height of impudence for a party that has striven to break down State authority, that has absolutely prohibited in many of the States the arming and equipping of State militia or volunteer military organizations, to pretend that the men of the State are not to be trusted with preserving the peace within their own borders. Do they pretend that the material of which the regular army is composed is more patriotic, more intelligent, more devoted to maintaining the rights and preserving the lives, liberty and property of the people than the citizens of the respective States who may be organized on the call of their Governors for that purpose? They read history strangely if they arrive at such conclusions. The Democratic party stands by the constitution and all its provisions, and will provide means to enforce them, without the danger of a great standing army. The framers of that instrument were wise enough and far-seeing enough to provide for all such contingencies as have recently arisen. The neglect of and contempt for its provisions, under the consolidating process of the Radicals, has caused the disgraceful scenes we have just passed through.

Article 2 of the amendment to the constitution adopted by the First Congress provides:

> A well-regulated militia being necessary to the security of a free State, the right of the people to keep and bear arms shall not be infringed.

Mr. Jefferson, in his first inaugural address, among other invaluable principles which he laid down for the guidance of the people, said:

> A well-regulated militia is our best reliance in time of peace, and for the first moments of war, till regulars may relieve them.

Warned by the lessons of the past, and recognizing the wisdom of the fathers, the Democratic party will do all that is necessary to organize and maintain in each State a "well-regulated militia," with officers in all regards equal to those in the regular army, who will recognize their obligations as citizens even when acting as soldiers, and with men far superior to the mass of the Federal soldiery—a militia that will have the respect of the people, and which will enable the State authorities to suppress promptly all sorts of lawlessness. We make no war on the regular army, as such. We resist the uses to which it has been put, and we will abolish it altogether rather than see them repeated. The ballot-box must be kept sacred from the bayonets; State and Federal Legislatures and courts must not be broken up by Federal soldiers, no matter who orders these things to be done; but we will maintain such a standing army as will protect our frontier, guard all the Federal property, and do all that the individual States cannot and ought not to do. That done, a militia organized, equipped and paid by the State, composed of such material as each State has in abundance, will not only never strike except for liberty and law, but will be both able and willing to suppress all who oppose or seek to overthrow either.

Decadence of the Republican Party.

It is not only decaying, it is dying. A little more than a quarter of a century ago the great Whig orator of New England stood in Faneuil Hall, just as he and his party were on the verge of dissolution—for they died together—pleading with the Whigs of Massachusetts for the continuance of the Whig organization. The idol of New England said: "If the Whig party is disbanded, what will become of me?" The question which Daniel Webster asked, with the grave just ahead of him, is the question which some Republican statesmen in 1877 are asking, and about it lies the secret of the opposition to the Southern policy of Mr. Hayes. The Blaines and the Mortons are among the men who are not too blind to see that the surrender of the two Southern States of South Carolina and Louisiana was the final capitulation of the Republican party. By that slender tenure alone did it hold its power. On that brittle thread hung its life. The last Southern State gone, and they well knew that the Republican party was gone forever. The sagacious Republicans whose public life or whose political convictions have been wrapped up in, or circumscribed by, the life of the Republican party, are naturally unwilling to let the party die without another struggle. The Blaines and Mortons are inquiring: "What will become of me?"

On the 27th of July Senator Morton, in Oregon, recited his bloody-shirt speech. It was the same speech, but it was not delivered with that zest that has characterized it for the last ten years. He plaintively prefaced it by saying that "we are now at a period of retrogression." He gazed sadly on the last remaining hope of the Republican party, surrendered by Hayes to the Democracy, and wailed: "We are now at a period of retrogression." With automatic rhetoric, however, or as a reminiscence of the past, or because it has become as a sweet morsel under his tongue, he repeated his account of the purposes of the Democratic party. It is:

1. To pay all the rebel claims for losses during the war.
2. To pension all the rebel soldiers and their widows and orphans.
3. To pay their late owners, or their heirs, for the loss of all the slaves.
4. To pay the rebel war debt.

Two weeks after Morton was thus painfully and pathetically talking about a "period of retrogression" on the plains of Oregon, Blaine was talking for peace on the banks of the Kennebec, old Ben Wade was growling on the shore of Lake Erie: "I suppose we must have harmony," and a band of recalcitrant Republicans were issuing a manifesto from our State capital denouncing the abandonment of the Republican party to the enemy, and five days after Morton's swan's song the Republican party in Ohio had fled for salvation to a "Bureau of Industry."

The dissolution of the Republican party, however, is not to be laid at the door of Mr. Hayes. It was the inevitable fate of a party whose mission was ended, of an ephemeral organization that had no wholesome ideas to feed on. It was not the Southern policy of Mr. Hayes that practically brought the Republican party to an end. The work has been in progress for years. That party has been subsisting on the negro. It has been living on the war. The war and the negro could not always last. They have sustained the party twelve years. Nothing less than a miracle like that which multiplied the loaves and fishes could enable it to feed on them longer. The passions of war for a time could sweep everything before them; but all wars must end. The fate of the negro, "the romance of our history," could enlist millions of hearts, but the law has done all it can for the negro, and the Republican party is become either his master or, in effect, his enemy. Its usefulness is ended; but its destruction was not accomplished by the surrender of two States to the Democratic party to which they belong. It was a longer process. "The slow poison of corruption," of which Stanley Matthews told us four years ago, while presiding over the Cincinnati Convention, had been doing its work. The party in its origin had but one purpose, and for the accomplishment of that and during the first five bloody years of its career it gathered unto itself men of all beliefs, so that they agreed upon the one question. The question dead and buried, it was natural that the organisation without an errand should gradually or suddenly disintegrate. It has been by superhuman exertions, by the employment of almost omnipotent agencies, by falsehood and money and the bayonet, by the use of a colossal patronage, by playing with devilish skill upon the passions and prejudices of men, that the Republican party has been kept alive so long. It dies hard. Drowning, it has grasped straws, and somehow has magnified them into planks, and kept itself above water. We need only mention the common-school system, which no party opposes; the "rebel debt," which does not exist; the "rebel claims," which are forbidden to be paid by the constitution; the payment for slaves, of which none but Republicans speak, to illustrate our meaning. Now, the party in Ohio has grasped at a "Bureau of Industry" in the hope of prolonging its life, and in vain. State after State has been slipping away from it. Its popular majority of three-quarters of a million has been changed in four years to an opposite majority of a quarter of a million. It has lost one branch of Congress and almost lost the other. It is entirely disbanded in several Southern States and helpless in all. It is a mass of wranglers in the North. The leaders are quarreling and the followers are disaffected. Its President occupies his seat without a valid title, and is in the hands of strong men who fought the Republican party bitterly four years ago, and who can have little love for it now. Its administration, under instructions from these gentlemen, has entered a plea of guilty to one grave count in the indictment against it by adopting the Democratic policy. Its abuses of power have exasperated the people whom they have oppressed. It is not strange, under the circumstances, that Morton should send from the Pacific slope the lament, "We are now at a period of retrogression," or that Blaine, by the Kennebec waters, should grimly talk of the need of "peace." The end is at hand.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

Journalism in Russia.

The censorship of the press has been relaxed in Russia. Forbidden newspapers have reappeared, war correspondents have been dispatched to the field, and the first afternoon newspaper ever issued in the empire appeared about three weeks ago. The Golos has six correspondents in Bulgaria and Armenia, and the Rooski Mir almost as many. A new daily journal, devoted to the interests of Pan-Slavism, is to appear in Moscow. For the benefit of the lower orders of society, who cannot afford to pay 3 pence for the news, the Government issues cheap, broad sheets, containing the official bulletins. The London Globe asserts that the flow of information in these Government sheets is not continuous, and that such unpleasant episodes as the battle of Zewin, the repulse at Kars, or the flight of Turgukasoff, are carefully kept out of sight, and it is doubtful whether their existence is at all known except in official circles. There seems, however, to be a genuine desire on the part of the Government to seek the support of the public and to relax its restrictions upon the expression of popular opinion.

ALL SORTS.

WISDOM and wind are sometimes hardly distinguishable.

THERE are 60,000 Roman Catholic priests in France.

SITTING BULL is to be brought back and made a hero of.

ALL Paris is engaged in the common business of politics.

THE pitcher of a base-ball club is the power behind the thrown.

THE great strike cost Uncle Sam $1,000,000 in internal revenue.

BOGUS CHARLEY, the Modoc, is a recent convert to Christianity.

HARD times have struck the Black Hills region broadside, and things don't seem to pan out well for the miners.

A BOY of 16 killed himself in New Hampshire, while suffering from an unrequited attachment to a young woman.

IN two recent attempts to sound the Northern ocean with lines one mile and a half in length, no bottom could be found.

AN international congress is to take measures against the phylloxera and Colorado beetle, the destroyers of vines and potatoes.

XENOPHON MUNN, of Stowe, Vt., who is fond of alliteration, has seven daughters named Luceba, Lucretia, Lurana, Lucinda, Lucia, Lula and Luna, and three sons named Charles, Carroll and Clarence.

IT is widely asserted that peaches in this country are very inferior to what they used to be. Some at'ribte this to the fact that the original trees which were imported here died out, and that the grafts from these yield an inferior fruit.

CONSTANTINOPLE has a circumference of about thirteen miles. Its harbor, the "Golden Horn," is a long, capacious inlet of the Bosphorus, running along the northeast side of the city, with sufficient depth for the largest vessels, and capable of receiving 1,200 sail vessels at one time.

THREE years ago Great Britain abolished the customs duties on sugars, and since then her customs revenue has been raised exclusively from tobacco, spirits, tea and wine. Yet her receipts for the last three months show an increase of $2,500,000 over the receipts of the same period in 1876.

GIRLS are comparatively few at Deadwood, but those that are there make up in vivacity what they lack in variety. The Champion describes two of them as galloping a race through the streets, and finally urging their horses into a saloon. "Whereupon," adds the reporter, "the proprietor shipped this sort of fun as a little too fresh, and the girls were routed out."

THERE is an immense wheat crop in Oregon and Washington Territories, and good judges estimate that 200,000 tons will be exported from the Columbia river this season. Buyers have been all through the Willamette valley offering to contract in advance of the harvest for wheat at a dollar a bushel, and some have clinched the offer by paying a half a dollar per bushel down.

AN affidavit recently submitted in a Brooklyn court reads thus: "And deponent further says that the defendant drew a pistol and threatened deponent that, if he did not at once leave the premises, he, the said defendant, would blow him to hell, which deponent verily believeth said defendant would have done had he, the said deponent, not done as he was commanded."

STEPHEN GIRARD'S precautions against Christian ministers in his college in Philadelphia seem to have proved in vain. The minister, it is true, may not enter; but the Christian lay teacher may; and the gospel is preached there. The Sunday-School Times says that "Christian influences prevail there, and services of Christian worship are regular and well conducted."

THE throne room of the Sultan at Constantinople is a gorgeous apartment. The gilding is unequaled by that of any other building in Europe. From the ceiling hangs a Venetian chandelier with 200 lights. At each of the four corners of the room tall candelabra in Baccarat glass are placed. The throne is a huge seat covered with red velvet, and with arms and back of pure gold.

BEECHER, whose heretical opinions are no secret to his special friends, is said to have once committed to paper his reasons for doubting the inspiration of the Scriptures and his belief that all moral law is the logical product of man's social state. He lacked the courage openly to proclaim these sentiments, although he did not disguise them from those with whom he was intimate.

THE proposal to establish the whipping post for the punishment of crimes like sneak-thieving, tramping, drunkenness, wife-beating, sensualism, etc., is receiving a good deal of support in various quarters, and where it has been tried its effect has been excellent. Some one writes to a New York paper that $1,000,000 annually could be saved to the citizens and tax-payers of that city by its judicious use.

A Balky Horse.

It is a very provoking thing to have a horse balk. No man realizes how helpless he is until he has used up a first-class whip and broken all the clubs in the neighborhood on the stubborn back of a balky horse. There is nothing to fall back but upon the driver's own store of invective, and, as a general thing, the animal is utterly indifferent to all the scathing epithets which are heaped on his head. Any man who brings forward a plan to circumvent a balky horse may be regarded as a benefactor to humanity in general. Such a man resides in Broomfield, Mass. His horse balked, and in a few minutes there was the usual dearth of missiles in the vicinity. The wagon was loaded with hay, and so a happy thought struck the Broomfield man. He placed a bundle of hay under the animal, and set the dry material on fire. The excessive stability of the horse instantly disappeared, and a suddenly developed locomotive force displayed itself with the most remarkable rapidity. Even the neighbors who were opposed to this Pittsburgh method of promoting a horse's ambition admit that the cure was complete, but unfortunately the hay load took fire and the horse ran into the barn, which was destroyed.—Exchange.

Auburn Courier.

AUBURN, INDIANA, AUG. 30, 1877.

For the Courier.

Hunting Reminsences.

BY MAJOR M'FADIN.

MY DEAR EDITOR.—Having promised you sometime ago to write up that famous hunting party, from your part of the country, several years ago, I will now cheerfully proceed to do so. Although several years have elapsed since that event, yet well do I remember the fun and sport we indulged in on that occasion, and full well do I remember the gentlemen who composed the party. They were Dr. J. H. Ford, J. L. Davis, F D. Ryan, S. Swihart, Geo. Brandon, T. C. Mays, and S. C. Swineford, of Auburn, S. J. Lock, of Waterloo, and Mr. Guggenheimer and your humble servant, of Logansport.

Upon your arrival we met you at the depot, and escorted you with dogs, guns and amunition to head-quarters. The expedition had a very warlike appearance, and would have made a good scouting party to have sent out after Gen. Sitting Bull, of the Black Hills. After laying in a good supply of bacon, bread, onions, coffee, salt, peper, cheese crackers, lemons and a liberal quantity of "Godfry's Cordial" and Perry Davis pain killer, for bugs and worms, we started about seven o'clock in the morning for the happy hunting grounds. Proceeding by rail a short distance, we arrived at the beautiful Lake Cicote.

An Indian legend informs us, that the lake is very deep and has a sub teranean outlet, and that the last beaver in the state of Indiana was killed at this lake by an old Indian hunter by the name of Nez. Perces, of the Shawnee tribe, in 1819.

The gigantic Egyptian Lillies were in full bloom, the beautiful little lake rests like a gem, surrounded by high and picturesque bluffs, covered over with romantic old forest trees draped in nature's finest garb.

It required two of the gayest old teams to haul us to the camping grounds—old horses that looked like they had been fed on wind pudding and could scarcely walk, while the drivers looked like Robinson Crusoe and Rip Van Winkle. We had to help push the wagons up the sand ridges. We took at least half a ton of ice with us, and well we did, as it was in the month of August and terribly dry and hot, and no water within three miles of us, except hereinafter mentioned.

After traveling seven or eight miles we arrived at the camp grounds, a beautiful spot in a nice shady grove, on the edge of a broad expanse of prairie. We were surrounded by a young growth of quakenaspt, out of which we made a cool roomy wigwam in which we slept. The ice we buried in the ground to keep it from the hot sun. We kept one of the teams at camp. The driver, whom we called Robinson Crusoe, lived about three miles from us, and we kept him going all the time hauling water and bringing us petatoes, biscuits, watermelons, etc. He could only make about two trips a day. We had lots of fun with him about his horses, but he took it all good naturedly.

The first night in camp was splendid, and we were up bright and early, prepared for the days' sport. Found plenty of chicken, and got plenty of game. As I mentioned before it was terrible dry and hot and no water in the prairie for the dogs, and they nearly perished. There was a big square hole about ten feet deep, way out in the prairie for the purpose of watering cattle, and there was none but muddy water in the bottom of it, full of snakes and frogs that could not get out. After hunting until our dogs were almost given out for want of water, we would take them for miles to that hole, and take your dog by the tail, lay down on your belly and by hard reaching he could get some, but it was hard work for him to force it up. One day one of the party was holding his dog by the tail in that way, and a watersnake thought it was a good chance to get out, run up the dogs back and the mans arm, scared him badly and he let go of his dog, turned a somersault backwards and lit with nose in a craw-fish hole, and almost cracked his crystal and fractured his spinal column. They had to go about a mile to the timber to get a crooked stick to fish his dog out of the water. This is the time we saw a procession of frogs, turtles and snakes a quarter of a mile long, two hundred yards wide, moving from a slough about two miles off, that had gone dry. They were in search of water, and it did our souls good to see that procession. The old gray headed turtles led the van, frogs next, and the snakes on the outskirts and rear, gobbling up the invalids and weak ones. Your readers may think this is a snake story, but I will give you some historical facts to prove that such things have occurred.

From the Boston Transcript.

THE BATTLE OF THE BULLFROGS.

Many of the citizens of Vermont will remember to have seen on one dollar bills on the Windham county State Bank, a vignette representing bullfrogs fighting. The facts were as follows: "Many years ago when the town of Windwam was newly settled, there came a very dry seasen. There are two large ponds in Windham, seperated by an intervening strip of land of considerable extent. Each of these ponds were inhabited by a large community of the reptiles above named. The smaller pond dried up and its inhabitants started in a body for the lower and larger pond. They were met in the intervening space by the community from the larger pond, and a fierce and long continued battle ensued between the rival communities. Such was the hideous bellowing of the frogs during their fierce encounter that it alarmed the inhabitants, who at first supposed it to be the whoop of the hostile savages. But curiosity getting the better of their fears, they cautiously proceeded to the spot whence the hideous sound issued, and there behold the strange spectacle of two immense armies of bullfrogs, covering many acres of ground, engaged in a fierce and deadly battle. The battle continued more than twenty-four hours, and when it was over the ground was litterly covered with the slain, and it became necessary to avoid the noxious effluvia to gather and bury them.

Our party was well balanced on politics, but we were awfully split up on religion. We had one Methodist, one Presbyterian, two Universalists, one Unitarian, one Jew, who did not believe we ever had a savior, one United Brethren, one Swedenborgian, one Morman, and one old hard shell seven gallon Baptist, and as the man said about his mother-in-law, "He made it red-hot for all of us." He believed that it was fore ordained that he was going to be lost, and that saltpeter or Perry Davis' pain killer would not save him, and we believed so to, as he and T. C. M. got lost one day, and wandered off seven miles from camp, and had to lay out all night at a place where a man had murdered his wife and then killed himself, and they saw ghosts, and had the night mare, and were nearly scared to death. We fired minute guns all night for them They came in the next day and were the most dilapidated looking youths you ever saw. They had some wonderful stories to relate. They had nothing to eat while lost except turnips, into a patch of which they broke and ate so many that they came in with the belly-ache and cramp colic, and we had to dose them with Godfrey's Cordial to save them. At last the Holy Sabbath day came in camp. It was a beautiful day, and we sat around on the logs and grassy places and talked religion. It would have put you in mind of Socrates talking in the market places. I told them how Christ had died to save all those who would repent, believe and serve him, which had a good effect on all of them except the hard shell Baptist, who believed that he was going to be lost. I read to him the scriptures that says that "God so loved the world that he gave his only begotten son, that whosoever believeth in him might not perish, but have everlasting life," and how the Savior had said to the children of Israel, "How oft would I have gathered ye, as a hen would her brood, but ye would not," and also the words, "God does not will the death of the sinner, but rather that all men would turn and be saved." But it done him no good, and had no more effect on him than pouring water on a goose. I had to give him up in dispair and leave him to his fate.

And here let me say that the doctrine of forerdination and predestination, that a part of the human family is foreordained to be saved and a part to be lost is all farce, and there is no sense or justice in it, and is like the doctrine of preaching a man straight to heaven or hell as soon as he dies, thereby ignoring or doing away with the final day of judgment. There will be a great and final day of judgment or there is nothing true in the Bible, and if there is any poor soul to go down to perdition, it is not the fault of the Good Lord, as he has begged and beseeched all to turn and live, but many will not, and if they are not saved at the last great day, it will be their own fault. They will have to plead guilty, and throw themselves on the mercy of the court, and receive a righteous and just judgment.

That night was very warm, and some one hollowed, "snakes in the camp," and every man was up. It is a terrible thought to think of snakes in the camp after night. Everything you see, feel, hear or tramp on, you imagine to be a snake, and sometimes you imagine they are in your boots or pockets. It was a horrible suspense, and Godfrey's Cordial and Perry Davis' pain killer suffered awfully that night. After waiting patiently for day to come, it was amusing in the extreme to see the different positions each one had taken to avoid the snakes in the dark. There they were all perched around on the stumps and logs, looking like bob-tailed roosters gone to roost, their hair standing erect, with eyes bugged out so that you could snare them with a grapevine.

The next morning we turned over everything, and shook out our pocket-handkerchiefs, and pocket books, and boots, looking for snakes, and at last found the little rascal under a log close to the camp. It was a little prairie rattlesnake, which would kill you three times in two bites. He had a bad eye, and we made a whiplash out of him for Robinson Crusoe. The worst was our hard shell Baptist was the most scared of all of us. I told him if it was foreordained for him to be snake-bit and die, he could not help himself, and that there was no salvation for him, but he thought there was no objection to taking a little pain killer and cordial. That night's scare made such a raid on our medicine chest, and reduced it so low that we had to send Robinson Crusoe to Logansport for a supply, and he was so slow that it took him two days, and we almost perished for want of some of the right arm of the nation, before he returned.

But, my dear Tom, I see that this article is getting too long, and will take up too much room in your interesting paper, and I may worry your many readers with so much of my nonsense so I will now close for the present, and finish the story at another time, and tell you of the sad, tragic fate of our poor old Robinson Crusoe which often makes me cry aloud,

Oh Robinson Crusoe,
What made you do so.

Grand Excursion

TO

CHICAGO!

AND RETURN,

OVER THE

B. & O. RAILROAD!

ON TUESDAY,

SEPT. 4, 1877

Rare chance to visit the Great Exposition at Chicago, at the lowes rates for the benefit of those who desire to go.

THE EXCURSION TRAIN

Will Leave	Defiance,	at 6:30 A. M.	Fare,	$3 50
"	White's Mills	6:40 "	"	3 50
"	Deleware Bend	6:48 "	"	3 50
"	Sherwood	6:52 "	"	3 50
"	Mark Center	7:00 "	"	3 50
"	Hicksville	7:17 "	"	3 50
"	St. Joe	7:32 "	"	3 00
"	Concord	7:40 "	"	3 00
"	Auburn Junc'n	7:55 "	"	3 00
"	Garrett	8:05 "	"	3 00
"	Avilla	8:20 "	"	2 75

Arriving at Chicago at 1:00 P. M.

Tickets can be had of the railroad agents; good to return on No. 1, leaving Chicago at 9:40 p. m., same day, or No. 5, leaving Chicago at 8:52 a. m. next day, September 5th.

Ample accommodations will be provided for seating passengers.

Lunch baskets will be taken charge of in the baggage car provided for that purpose, so those who desire can take their own refreshments, and be to no other expense beyond their ticket.

The train will stop at the Exposition building, where passengers can have free access to the cars.

Admission to the great Inter-State Exposition, 25 cents—children half fare.

H. S MORSE,
Ass't. M. of T. B. & O. R. R.

Application for License.

NOTICE is hereby given to the citizens of Garrett, DeKalb County, Ind., that the undersigned will make application to the Board of Commissioners of said county, at their next regular session, for a license to retail spirituous, vinous and malt liquors in a less quantity than a quart at a time, on the following described premises to-wit: Lots No. 4 and 5. Block No. 19, in the incorporated town of Garrett, and in said county.

PETER BEILER.

August 9.

Application for License.

NOTICE is hereby given to the citizens of Garrett, DeKalb County, Ind., that the undersigned will make application to the Board of Commissioners of said county, at their next regular session, for a license to retail spirituous, vinous and malt liquors in a less quantity than a quart at a time, on the following described premises to-wit: Lot No. 20. Block No. 25, in the original plat to the town of Garrett, said county.

AUGUST THIENEL.

August 9.

Executor's Sale.

NOTICE is hereby given that I will sell at public auction on Saturday the 22nd day of September—next, at the residence of Isaac C. Culbertson, late of DeKalb County Indiana deceased, his personal property consisting in part of horses, young cattle, hogs, lumber, champion reaper, two horse buggy etc. etc. A credit of nine months will be given on all sums over three dollars the purchaser giving his note with approved security, waiving valuation and appraisement laws, with interest from date.

GEORGE BARNEY, Ex'r.

Aug. 20th, 1877.

Application for License.

NOTICE to the citizens of the town of Corunna, in the county of DeKalb, and State of Indiana, is hereby given that the undersigned will apply to the Board of Commissioners of said county, at their next regular session, commencing on the first Monday in September, 1877, for a license to retail spirituous, vinous and malt liquors in a less quantity than a quart at a time on the following described premises, to-wit: Commencing at a point thirteen feet south of the north-west corner of lot No. one in McMillen's first addition to said town of Corunna, thence east one hundred and thirty two feet (132), thence south thirty-one feet (31), thence west one hundred and thirty-two feet [132], thence north thirty-one feet [31].

JOSEPH D. WILLIAMSON.

$45 PREMIUM WATCH AND CHAIN—a stem-winder. Free with every order. Outfit free. J. B. Gaylord & Co., Chicago, Ill.

$3 GOLD PLATED WATCHES. Cheapest in the known world. Sam[illegible] Watch Free to Agents. Address, A. COULTER & Co., Chicago.

OPIUM and Morphine Habit absolutely and speedily cured. Painless; no publicity. Send stamp for particulars. Dr. CARLTON, 187 Washington St., Chicago, Ill.

ROOT & COMPANY.

SPECIAL BARGAINS for AUGUST

AT

Root & Company's,

IN

CARPETS,

Curtain goods, Black and Colored Silks, Dress Goods, Suits, Shawls, Parasols, Sun Umbrellas, Hosiery, Gloves, Underwear, Linens, Embroideries, Laces, Domestic Goods, Woolens, Grain Bags Carpet warp, Yarns, Blankets, Flannels, White Goods, Corsets, Fancy Goods, Notions, Fans, etc., etc.

Root & Company,

46 and 48 Calhoun-st, Fort Wayne Ind

GENUINE
CRAB ORCHARD SALTS
PREPARED AT THE
CRAB ORCHARD SPRINGS, OF KENTUCKY,
AN EFFECTUAL REMEDY FOR
The Cure of Dyspepsia and Costiveness of the Bowels.

Taken in small doses occasionally during the spring, it is a most excellent purifier of the Blood, and as a remedy for Colds a small dose taken at night will give certain relief by morning.

None genuine except put up in Bottles, and sold under the Label of the CRAB ORCHARD SPRINGS COMPANY. If not to be had of some convenient Druggists, consumers are requested to address J. B. WILDER & CO., Louisville, Ky.

Sheriff's Sale.

BY virtue of a certified copy of a decree to me directed from the Clerk of the DeKalb Circuit Court in a cause wherein Mason M. Bowen is plaintiff and Gidian Gaydill, Joseph Depew, Abraham and Dinna Depew are plaintiffs, requiring me to make the sum of four hundred and sixty-one (461) dollars and fifty-four (54) cents, with interest on said decree and costs I will expose at public sale to the highest bidder, on

SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 22nd, 1877

Between the hours of 10 o'clock a. m., and 4 o'clock p. m. at the door of the Court House of DeKalb County Indiana, the rents and profits for a term not exceeding seven years of the following real estate, to-wit:

Lot number one [1] in Tappin's addition to the town or village of Corunna, DeKalb county, Indiana.

If such rents and profits will not sell for a sufficient sum to satisfy said decree, interest and costs. I will at the same time and place expose at public sale the fee simple of said real estate, or so much thereof as may be sufficient to discharge said judgment, interest and costs.

Sale will be made without any relief whatever from valuations appraisement laws.

J. C. ST. CLAIR, Sheriff.

A. A. Chaplin, Att'y for Plaintiff.
Auburn, Ind., Aug. 29, 1877.

P. fee $8.50.

Dr. A. G. OLIN'S [illegible] Washington St., Chicago, Ill., for the cure of all Diseases of a Private nature, [illegible] Lost Manhood, or Impotency, Nervous Debility, [illegible] DISEASES OF FEMALES, [illegible] Dr. Olin [illegible] U. S. LADIES [illegible] DR. OLIN'S [illegible]

MARRIAGE GUIDE [illegible]

Sheriff's Sale.

BY virtue of an execution to me directed from the Clerk of the DeKalb Circuit Court in a cause wherein Wright, Taylor & Co are plaintiffs and Wm. L. Jones and Adolphus G. Jones (R. B.) are defendants, requiring me to make the sum of three hundred and two [302] dollars and twenty-six [26] cents, with interest on said judgment and costs, I will expose at public sale to the highest bidder, on

SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 22nd 1877

Between the hours of 10 o'clock A. M., and 4 o'clock P. M. of said day, at the door of the Court House in DeKalb county, Indiana, the rents and profits for a term not exceeding seven years of the following real estate to-wit:

Part of the east half of the north-west quarter of section twelve 12], township thirty-four [34], north of range fourteen [14] east, bounded by a line commencing at a point where the south boundry line of the right of way of the Lake Shore & Michigan Southern railroad crosses the west boundry line of the said east half of the said north west quarter, and running thence south to the south west corner of the north east fourth of the north west quarter of said section twelve, [12] thence east twenty five [25] rods thence north parallel with the west line of the south boundry line of said right of way, thence along said boundry line of said right of way to the place of beginning, containing seven acres of land.

If such rents and profits will not sell for a sufficient sum to satisfy said decree, interest and costs, I will at the same time and place expose to public sale the fee simple of said real estate or so much thereof as may be sufficient to discharge said judgment and costs.

Said sale will be made without any relief whatever from valuation or appraisement laws.

J. C. ST. CLAIR, Sheriff.

Rose & Hartman, Att'ys. for plaintiff.
Auburn, Ind. Aug. 22nd 1877.

Pr. fee $11.50.

NOTICE TO TAX PAYERS.

Under the new law the second installment of taxes becomes delinquent if not paid on or before the first Monday in November, then ten per cent must be added. The law requires the Treasurer to make said tax by distress of sale of personal property on or before the fifteenth day of December if not otherwise paid. I would therefore urge all to pay up their second installment and save me the unpleasant duty of sending out collectors.

DANIEL GONDER, Treas.

HOW

Is it that the New York Store sells goods so much cheaper than their neighbors is a question often asked. It is because they sell for cash and

DO

Not have to sustain losses from bad debts, besides it inables them to pay cash for goods and get the discounts which make quite an item to

YOU

As consumers. It also enables them to keep all the new and desirable styles and novelties, by being always ready to take hold of them without delay, and it is a well establishhd fact which all

KNOW

That there is no one concern more careful in selecting good and desirable goods than the New York Store.

IT

Being the object of the New York Store to give entire satisfaction to all their customers.

G. H. FORKNER & CO., Prop's.

GAZE ON THE BOOT UPSIDE DOWN

$10,000.00 WORTH OF

BOOTS AND SHOES

—TO BE SOLD—

25 Per Cent. CHEAPER

Than any House in DeKalb county. If you don't believe it, read our price list and then come in and examine the goods.

Ladies 12 thread serge polish		$ 90c
" 16 " " "		1.15c
" 20 " " "		1.40c
" side lace shoes	1.25	2.50c
" goat buskins "	70	95c
" serge " "	50	75c
" three button working shoes	1.25	185c
Mens 2 buckle plow shoes		1.40c
" brogan " "		1.25c
" solid comfort plow shoes made to order		2.00
" Calf sewed boots	3.00	4.75c
" " pegged "	3.00	4.50c
Boys fine boots		2.25c

—SIGN OF THE—

BOOT UPSIDE DOWN,

Next door to J. L. Davis' Hardware store, Auburn, Indiana.

W. J. USTIN & CO.

Auburn Courier.

Local and Miscellaneous.

THE AUBURN MARKET.

—Corn 35c.
—Oats 22c.
—Eggs 8c.
—Butter 18c.
—Potatoes 40c
—Live Turkeys 5c.
—Clover Seed $7 50.
—Live Chickens 4c
—Wheat $1.12 @ 1.15
—The COURIER $2.00 a year.

The post office has a fine new sign.

Go and see the new goods at the New York Store.

Go to the little cigar store on the corner for a good 5 cent cigar. tf.

Try the Butler Nickel Steel Plow, only $12,00, the best plow yet made. 6t

The newest and cheapest stock of school books at Houser's.

Dr. Ford has been quite sick for several days past.

Smoking tobacco at the little cigar store on the corner. tf.

Miss Frankie Ford has been acting as deputy postmaster.

Go to Houser's and get the right kind of school books.

Havanas at the little cigar store on the corner. tf.

Finecut chewing at the little cigar store on the corner. tf.

If you want to buy the cheapest flannels and jeans go to the New York Store.

We challenge the world to produce a better plow than the Butler Nickel Stea Plow. 6t

C. F. Mader will sell a lot of property at his residence north of town next Saturday.

Lieut. J. Rainier, our postmaster, left last Monday for Clinton, Ill., where he will remain for a few days.

Geo. W. Draggoo, a young man, lost his mental balance last week, and was placed in jail a raving maniac.

Mrs. Doctor Cowan and daughters returned last Saturday, from an extended visit to Decatur this State.

Clint Martin, instead of Henry Martin as we had it, seems to be the person charged with forgery in this county.

The wheat market is unsteady, with downward tendency. The price yesterday was $1.18. Oats are steady at 23 @ 25c.

Mrs. Cunningham, of Bryan, and Mrs. Brownlee, of Toledo, Ohio, are the guests of Mrs. E. D. Hartman, the former her sister.

A small party went to Pleasant Lake Tuesday afternoon, and enjoyed the attractions of that place to an unusual degree.

New Era. Prof. J. F. Kinsey is lying very sick at the Bradley House, in Albion, with typhoid fever. He could not take part in the concerts last week.

It is now said that Van Norman, the lawyer, is the favored citizen of Garrett no longer. He left for Chicago a few days ago and has not yet returned.

The New York Store bought their flannels and jeans of a mill that was closing their business, therefore they have them from 15 to 20 per cent. cheaper than any other house in Auburn.

The Butler Nickel Steel Plow is the best in market. They are warranted to scour in all kinds of soil. Call at Easley's and see them. 6t

Waterloo Press. Squire Wolf's son is a member of the 7th Infantry, and was in Gibson's Indian battle. He was not among the killed.

The Butler Plows cannot be beat in either loam or sod ground, and will scour equal to the best steel or chilled plow. 6t

Houser's Bookstore is the place to buy school books.

We were glad to meet Col. W. H. Sink, the popular landlord at Bryan, Ohio last Saturday. The Colonel is a genial, pleasant gentleman.

Paul Harland, the great dramactic artiste, will present the great play "Our American Cousin," with our local talent in a few days. Look out for it.

The pic-nic season is now in full blast at Pleasant lake. Simmons' Park and the beautiful lake, are the scenes of pleasure parties visiting at the rate of three or four each week.

Garrett News. Father Young, of Auburn, reports there has not been a death among the members of his church since he has been with them, some five years. His church composes at that place about one hundred members.

Our enterprising cigar manufacturer, Mr. A. K. Grubb, has just received a new lot of fine stock, and will soon be ready to fill orders for his celebrated brand.

Albion New Era. The genial editor of the Auburn COURIER, Tom C. Mays, spent a few hours in Albion on Friday last. Tom is a wholesouled gentleman, a first-class printer, and edits a lively, sprightly-sheet.

We are bear-headed, gentleman.

Steuben Republican. Old uncle Willard Dewit, of Scott township, now in the 102d year of his age, was in attendance at the old settlers re-union last Thursday. He is quite smart, and gets around with greater alacity than many a person twenty years younger.

The game of ball at Spencerville last Friday was a good one, and we are glad to know that our neighbors got away with the boys. The accident to Baldock helped their score a little. The home nine played a good game.

Hicksville Independent. Johnny Knoder and Johnny Marvin, of DeKalb county, were in the city Tuesday making arrangements to put upon the stage the interesting drama of Kathleen Mavourneen.

Our genial fellow citizen Capt. Enos Weaver, who has for several years past suffered the loss of his voice, was suddenly favored last week with its return, so that now he can speak quite plainly. En. has suffered a good deal lately, but we hope this partial restoration is only the beginning of permanent health, and that he may live long and prosper.

The Valparaiso Messenger reports extensive preparations going on at that place for the soldiers Re-union to be held there on the 19th of September Live, wide-awake people live in that burg and we have no doubt that the occasion will be a grand one and a complete success. Gen. Sheridan and Pope are to be in attendance.

J. W. Baxter, Esq., of Butler, a promising young attorney, has assumed the editorial labors of the Butler Record. We are glad to note this laudable effort upon the part of the Baxter family in this county to improve the present representation in the journalistic profession. He is a cousin to Charley.

In Lawson's Curative will be found a special remedial agent for rheumatism, neuralgia, and diseases of the nerves. It assists nature in driving out these diseases and in healing and soothing the shattered nerves.

Temperance Lecture.

Capt. Chas Jones, one of the best temperance lectures in the State of Ohio will give a lecture to-morrow, Friday evening at the Presbyterian church. It will pay you to go and hear him.

South Bend Herald. A Goshen dealer had 1800 bushels of wheat when that grain was $2.10 a bushel. He held on to it till it fell to $1.50 and his friends advised him to sell. He sold about half. Last week when wheat was quoted at $1.15 he was mad. Next month when it falls under $1.00 he will be more angry than ever.

Plymouth Democrat. Congressman Calkins, of Lapore, has raised a rumpus in the radical camp in his district, by publicly stating his views of public policy, and which coincide more nearly with the opinions held by democrats than with those held by republicans. The South Bend Register says of him: "He is now claimed by two-thirds of the democratic press of the district. They are welcome to him."

The Fort Wayne, Muncie and Cincinnatti railroad will give an excursion to Dayton, Ohio, on Wednesday September 5th, leaving Fort Wayne at 5 a. m. The Saginaw road will sell half fare tickets from Waterloo and Auburn to connect with the excursion. The fare for round trip from Wayne only $2,00. This will be an excellent opportunity to see this beautiful Ohio city.

Kendallville Standard. The Mechanics' base ball club of this city have received a challenge from the Auburn club, for a series of games, for the championship of the two counties. It has been accepted by our club, and the first game will probably be played on the grounds in this city next Friday afternoon.

Owing to an accident to one of the boys, at Spencerville and the sickness of one or two others, our club will not be able to go to Kendallville for a few days yet.

We made a brief visit to Bryan, Ohio, last Saturday, and found it had made rapid improvements in the way of handsome brick business blocks, since our last visit there six years ago. We called at the "Democrat" office, found Mr. Patterson out, and made the acquaintance of Mr. Williams, the genial local editor. A visit to the "Argus," disclosed the fact the Mr. Shouf was doing a good business.

Angola Herald. The funeral of Mrs. F. M. Dannels took place at the M. E. church on Sunday afternoon, Rev G. B. Work officiating. She leaves an infant—her first born—which will be kindly cared for by the mother of the bereaved husband.

This is a sore affliction, for our friend Frank, who but a short year ago was in the zenith of his happiness. His Auburn friends extend a heart-felt sympathy.

While at Fort Wayne last Monday, we noticed an animated effort was being made to make the fair there week after next, a success. There are good men connected with the organization, men of broad, liberal views, and every assurance is given that a good fair will be held there. Half fare on all railroads, and no fee for entry. Gov. Williams will deliver an address, at that time, and everything will be done to make it an enjoyable occasion.

Fair at Toledo.

Toledo is the central point for a large territory of three of the greatest states in the west, and we are glad to notice that a tri-State fair association has at last been organized, to meet a want long felt in this growing, populous section. If the enterprising citizens of Toledo are at the head of it, there is no fear of success, as there is energy and liberality about business men of that city that never fails to win. The first fair will be held in September, 25th to 29th. L. S. Baumgardner is President, and E. W. E. Koch Secretary.

Special Notice to Pupils of Music.

By special arrangements with Prof. S. B. Morse, the Indiana conservatory of music has become a part of the Fort Wayne College. Great advantage will result from this arrangement to pupils from abroad in reducing the expense of a thorough course of music. Board including furnished rooms, fuel and light, will be provided at an expense ranging from $2.50 to $3.50 per week according to accommodations. Pupils will also be enabled to prosecute other studies at the same time. City pupils who find it more convenient to do so can receive instructions as heretofore at the office of the conservatory Burges Block Fall term begins September 4th. For further particulars address, W. F. Yocum Pres. Ft. W. E. College, or Prof. S. B. Morse, Fort Wayne Ind

All babies are diminutive Cæsars, since they come, they see, they conquor, sometimes by their gentle stillness but oftener by continued and uproarious crying induced by Colic, Teething, Flatulence, etc. Dr. Bull's Baby syrup by its gentle yet specific influence quiets the little ones without ever producing the least injurious effect. Price only 25 cents per bottle. Sold by F. E. Davenport.

A beautiful complexion depends upon the purity of the blood. To keep the blood pure and healthy use Dr. Bull's Blood Mixture. Sold by F. E. Davenport.

There is a wonderful inharmonious singing of church bells in this place on the Sabbath day. The sextons of the various churches should get together, and adopt a plan by which the bells would peal in unison. In other places one bell takes the lead, and sounds three taps, which is responded to by all the others in the same way, and then follows the regular ringing, all together and their music almost equals du chimes.

The Fort Wayne Gazette, connects Pendleton with shoving a bogus claim against the government. Well, we haven't the highest opinion of Gentleman George, but the Gazette is not very complimentary of the Republican officials who were in power at the time the claim was presented, if it was a bogus claim. We believe the claim was a good one, and the only thing suspicious was that Pendleton got the most of it, as a contingent fee. The Kentucky mule case, not half so just an out, which the government paid, was got through the same way on a contingent fee, and Bristow pocketed $10,000.

Marriage Licenses.—The following marriage licenses were issued by the county clerk, so far during the month of August. John F. Crise and Jane Porter, Mark M. Nelson and Rosie E. Might, F. J. Hines and Catharine Treesh, Samuel B. Jennson and C. B. Wyatt, Jacob Bishop and Minnie Smalley, Conrad Bergler and Minnie Habenicht, Amzi Myers and Dorcas J. Robinson, Wm. Countryman and Louisa Smith, Gustave Wolf and Jennie Hursh, Henry Schmitzer and Sarah J. Sopher, Hanison Sugar and Catharine Baker, Adam Kinley and Deedy Keeper, Henry M. Bishop and Emily A. Reasoner, Daniel J. Derdoff and Magdaline Kennison.

The Northern Indianian of last week made a feeble effort to prove that because certain railway managers are Democrats that the Democratic party, therefore, was responsible for the strike. We don't know what the politics of Scott is at present, but during the war he was Assistant Secretary under Stanton. A journal which had no opinions which it dare utter during the strike is in small business to make political capital out of the labor disturbance, the main cause of which was due to the unwise legislation of the Radical party for 16 years.—Col. City Post.

Tom Scott is a bully Democrat. He is a Democrat of the kind of which we have a few in this city and country: they are first-rate Democrats to swell Republican majorities with. It is easily to be inferred that Tom Scott is a Democrat aside from the fact of his having been assistant Secretary of War during the rebellion. He gets up excursions for Mr. Hayes and the Cabinet, and at this very moment is having a high o d time with the "Government." Of course Tom Scott, W. H. Vanderbilt and Jay Gould are Democrats. There is no disputing that, at the same time, however, they contributed several hundred thousand dollars to the campaign fund of the Republican party.—Warsaw Union

T. B Totten returned last Saturday from an extended visit to Kansas, and is now enthusiastic in his praise of that section. He says it is almost impossible to discribe the many advantages offered there to the poor man. He visited Rice and Rush Counties along the Topeka and Santa Fee railroad, which runs through the Arkansas River Valley. Sterling, Rice county, is a place of about 400 inhabitants, and every branch of business is represented. Larned, in Rush county, is a town 800 inhabitants and is doing a thriving business. He was pleased to notice a number of brick school houses all through the country, and a fair number of churches. Land can be bought for from $4 00 to $5 00 per acre, improved within a few miles of these towns. Government land can be entered at a distance of from 12 to 20 miles from towns. He thinks it just the place for those who have sufficient money to get there with a few dollars left to make a start. You can buy land cheap by paying one tenth or one sixth down, with 7 per cent on deferred payments. The crops are splendid and everything is plenty except laborers. He will be pleased to furnish any information desired.

The Public Schools.

The public schools of Auburn will open for a term of ten weeks on Sept. 3d.

The following is the corps of teachers now employed: For Superintendent, M. Seiler; Asst. in high school, Miss Lida A. Pawers; A and B intermediate grades Mrs. A. E. Thomas; C and D intermediate grades, Miss Maggie A. Tower; A and B Primary grades, Miss Alice Widney; C and D Primary grades, Miss M. B. Tritch.

WARD BUILDING.

A and B primary grades, Miss L. E. Clark; C and D primary grades, Miss L. McTigh.

In the high school department a preparatory class will be sustained, the work of which will be confined to the common school branches.

The regular high school classes will do work in Latin and English languages, Natural Philosophy, Mathematical and Physical Geography, Higher and Elementary Algebra and Book-keeping.

We cheerfully throw open to foreign pupils all the advantages which our schools afford, at the following rates of tuition: High school, $5.00 per term of ten weeks; Intermediate grades, $3.00 per term of ten weeks, Primary grades, $3.00 per term of ten weeks.

WM. MCINTYRE,
J. W RICKEL,
F. E. DAVENPORT, } Trustees.

A SNAKE STORY.

Howard Province, who resides five miles west of this place, witnessed a singular demonstration a short time ago by three large snakes of the blue-racer species. He was making hay in a meadow adjoining a field planted in corn, when his attention was arrested by hearing a clattering noise among the corn. In a moment afterwards three very large snakes made their appearance, and he judged that they were either racing or fighting one another. They came to the fence, and one of the darted through a crack next to the top board without touching it, another struck the fence with such a force as to make a sound that might have been produced by throwing a club against it, while the other got through in some way unperceived by Mr. P. He had a hay fork in his hand which he threw at them, killing one, but the other two escaped. The snakes were between five and six feet in length, and made a great deal of racket in their progress through the corn, but all came to a stop on perceiving him. Mr. Province must have had more pluck than people ordinarily have, for nine out of every ten would have thrown down the fork and run from such an onset from snakedom. The snakes were certainly pursuing or fighting one another, and were so intently engaged that they did not perceive him until he threw the fork. The same person killed three large rattlesnakes at one time some weeks ago.—Warsaw Indianan.

NO PEOPLE IN THE WORLD

suffer as much with Neuralgic or Rheumatic complaints as Americans, and no nation is so prolific in remedies to cure, yet we come in contact every day with scores who are suffering without having found the cure they have sought for. To those who have used

Lawson's Curative

we need only to say that it is compounded with the same scientific skill and care as heretofore, and maintains the deserved reputation which it has acquired by the wonderful cures it has performed. To those who have never tested the CURATIVE we urge a trial of its virtues for the diseases named below.

Eminent and Skillful Physicians

use the CURATIVE largely in their practice, and prominent clergymen and editors recommend it from a knowledge of its effects.

Rheumatism, Diphtheria,
Dyspepsia, Sciatica,
Neuralgia, Toothache,
Pleurisy, Sore Throat,
Swollen Joints, Chilblains,
Headache, Sprains,
Lame Back, Burns,
Erysipelas, Scalds,

All yield to the magic influence of the CURATIVE, no matter of how long standing. It is only necessary to use it faithfully and perseveringly, according to the directions which accompany each bottle, and you will be cured.

Lawson's Curative

Is Healing and Cooling to Wounds, Sores, Burns and Scalds.

Try it and you will never be without it.

SOLD BY ALL DRUGGISTS.

Price $1.00 per Bottle, 6 for $5.00.

PREPARED BY

Lawson Chemical Co., Cleveland, O.

For sale by F. E. Davenport.

Sheriff's Sale.

BY virtue of a certified copy of a decree to me directed by the Clerk of the DeKalb Circuit Court, in a cause wherein Humphery Shoub et al is plaintiffs, and William E. Sargent is defendant, requiring me to make the sum of three hundred and ninety one dollars and seventeen cents, [391.17], with interest on said decree and costs, I will expose at public sale to the highest bidder, on SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 22d, 1877.

Between the hours of 10 o'clock a. m. and 4 o'clock p. m. of said day, at the door of the Court House of DeKalb County, Indiana, the rents and profits, for a term not exceeding seven years of the following real estate, to wit:

Lot number twenty-four [24] and lot number twenty-three [23] in block number sixteen [16] in the town of Garrett in DeKalb county Indiana.

If such rents and profits will not sell for a sufficient sum to satisfy said decree interest and costs, I will, at the same time and place, expose at public sale the fee simple of said real estate, or so much thereof as may be sufficient to discharge said decree interests and costs. Said sale will be made without any relief whatever from valuation or appraisement laws.

JOHN C. ST. CLAIR, Sheriff

F. V. Hoffman, Att'y for plaintiff.
August 29th, 1877. Pf. $9.20.

Sheriff's Sale.

BY virtue of a certified copy of a decree to me directed from the Clerk of the DeKalb Circuit Court in a cause wherein John L. Davis is plaintiff and Nathan Johnson et al. are defendants, requiring me to make the sum of fifty-eight (58) dollars and fifty-eight (58) cents, with interest on said decree and costs, I will expose at public sale, to the highest bidder, on

SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 22nd, 1877

Between the hours of 10 o'clock A. M., and 4 o'clock P. M., of said day, at the door of the Court House of DeKalb county, Indiana, the rents and profits for a term not exceeding seven years, of the following real estate to-wit:

Lot number one (1) in block number eighteen (18) in the town of Garrett, in DeKalb county, Indiana.

If such rents and profits will not sell for a sufficient sum to satisfy said decree, interest and costs, I will at the same time and place expose at public sale the fee simple of said real estate, or so much thereof as may be sufficient to discharge said decree, interest and costs.

Sale will be made without any relief whatever from valuation or appraisement laws.

J. C. ST. CLAIR, Sher'ff.
By THOS. D. GROSS, Deputy.

H. C. Peterson, Att'y for Plaintiffs.
Auburn, Ind., Aug. 29th, 1877, Pr. fee $7.30

Sheriff's Sale.

BY virtue of an execution to me directed from the Clerk of the DeKalb Circuit Court, in a cause wherein Samuel Strong et al is plaintiff, and Eli Kuhlman is defendant, requiring me to make the sum of one hundred and sixty-four (164) dollars and forty-two (42) cents, with interest on said judgement and cost, I will expose at public sale to the highest bidder on

SATURDAY SEPTEMBER, 8th, 1877

between the hours of 10 o'clock a. m., and 4 o'clock p. m. of said day, at the door of the Court house of DeKalb county, Indiana, the rents and profits for a term not exceeding seven years, of the following real estate, to-wit:

Lot number nineteen (19) in Ashley's second addition to the town of Auburn DeKalb County Indiana.

If such rents and profits will not sell for a sufficient sum to satisfy said judgment, interest and costs, I will at the same time and place, expose at public sale the fee simple of said real estate, or so much thereof as may be sufficient to discharge said judgment, interest and costs.

Sale will be made without any relief whatever from valuation and appraisement laws.

J. C. STCLAIR, Sheriff,
THOS. D. GROSS, Dept.

J. W. Rickel Attorney for plaintiff.
Auburn Indiana August 8th, 1877. Pf. $[illegible]

A PHYSIOLOGICAL
View of Marriage!

WOMAN AND MARRIAGE

A Guide to Wedlock and confidential Treatise on the duties of marriage and the causes that unfit for it; the secrets of Reproduction and the Diseases of Women. A book for private, considerate reading. 260 pages, price 50 cts.

A PRIVATE MEDICAL ADVISER!

On all disorders of a Private Nature arising from Self Abuse, Excesses, or Secret Diseases, with the best means of cure. 224 large pages, price 50 cts.

A CLINICAL LECTURE on the above diseases and those of the Throat and Lungs, Catarrh, Rupture, the Opium Habit, &c., price 10 cts.

Either book sent postpaid on receipt of price; or all three, containing 500 pages, beautifully illustrated, for 75 cts. Address DR. BUTTS, No. 12 N. 8th St. St. Louis, Mo.

Notice of Administration.

NOTICE is hereby given, that the undersigned has been appointed by the Clerk of the DeKalb Circuit Court of the State of Indiana, administrator of the estate of Benjamin Watson, deceased, late of said county. Said estate is supposed to be solvent. WM. E. WATSON, Ad'm.
August 14, 1877.

THE ONLY

FIRST-CLASS INSTRUMENT.

The ESTEY ORGAN

Stands unrivalled. It has stood the test of years, and has never been excelled. Those wanting Organs should get the Estey, the very best there is made. Hundreds of testimonials in its favor, and increased rates every year. Call and examine them

G. H. YESBERA, Agt.

Next Door to Abright's, Main Street, Auburn, Indiana

NEW GOODS

ARIVING DAILY!

AT THE

STAR CLOTHING HOUSE!

SAM, PETE & MAX, STAR CLOTHING HOUSE, FT. WAYNE

A SONG WITHOUT A NAME.

BY AMY S. [illegible]

I stood beside a pearly stream,
And in its face reflected,
I saw a form most like my own,
With countenance dejected;
And as I looked and looked again
Upon the lines of sorrow,
I even wished that I were dead,
And need not meet the morrow.

For hopes were crushed and joys were fled,
And friends had proved unfaithful;
And I had grown to think of life
With feelings almost wrathful;
And as I stood and nursed my grief,
And thought of all my trouble,
And mused on misplaced confidence
Which love had served to double;

I heard a note of music shrill—
A song of life and gladness,
I turned me from the flowing brook
And quite forgot my sadness;
For as I looked I saw a youth,
With face both bright and smiling,
And this is what the singer sang,
The summer hours beguiling:

"Oh, let us, as we pass through life,
Be always glad and cheery,
For though the hours be dark and cold,
They cannot all be dreary.
There's light and health and pleasant noons,
And hours for rest and slumber,
Smiling flowers in mossy bowers,
And blessings without number.

"And birds to sing in carols sweet
Their song of happy measure,
And when I think of these I feel
That even life's a treasure,
For God who guards the sparrow's course
Will not neglect to guard us,
And come what may, or come what will,
He'll ever walk beside us.

"So I'm content with what He sends,
Nor stop to weigh my trouble,
For when we dwell upon ourselves
We always see them double."
Just here the singer passed from sight,
Beyond the forest's shadow;
But nature wore a brighter look
As I recrossed the meadow.

"CO."

CHAPTER I.

"Dart, Maitland, Dart & Co."

So the name stood upon the great brass plate; and in these names had the business of the bank been prudently and profitably conducted for as many years as the majority of the inhabitants of Highborough could recall.

Trade panics had laid waste many another long-established firm; bankruptcy had swooped unexpectedly upon many a house where wealth had seemed as limitless as here; but the bank of Messrs. Dart, Maitland, Dart & Co. held its head high above all treacherous waters, and stood unmoved and utterly secure after the heaviest gales had passed.

The name of the firm was a passport of trust and reliance, as well as a prompt introduction to the first society of the country; and the present representatives were these: Maurice Dart, the senior partner, a handsome man of 50 years, who imagined the wishes, the weaknesses and the hopes peculiar to other men could not move him now; and Walter Maitland, both in appearance and manner, a strong contrast to his senior partner. Though but ten years younger, he looked nearer 30 than 40, and the frankness of his blue eyes, and the gay words so prompt upon his lips, seemed doubly frank and doubly gay, contrasted with his senior's reticence and gravity. The third partner was one in name alone. His father's death had left him a rich share in the bank, but his only intercourse with it was the polite periodical acknowledgment of its having swept away the debts which were the worst enemies he had had to fight since he entered the army. About the "Co." there was of course that vagueness which is inseparable from the cognomen. In the outer world it was supposed that an unlimited number of people had invested their savings or their patrimony on purpose to be considered "of the firm." But among the clerks only one case was known with certainty. He was neither the oldest nor the most experienced, though the most cheerful, perhaps, and the most industrious. He had deposited in the firm the sum which his father, through a forty years' course of valued and profitable managership, had accumulated to bequeath to him; and so, being enabled to draw what doubled his salary as clerk, Tom Leslie looked upon himself as a partner of no mean order, and built lofty castles for a time when his name should stand upon the brass plate otherwise than as "Co." Cheerfully and constantly he erected these edifices; but to attempt to lay their foundations on terra firma, either by saving or speculating, never entered Tom's head. With his mother—a little old lady, as hopeful and cheerful, and trustful as he was himself—Tom lived in a pretty white cottage beyond the town, and here he had flowers all the year round, and birds, that sang in the gloomiest weather, and a piano on which he was no mean performer. And as regularly as Saturday morning came around Tom, taking his hat, would say in the most natural manner: "I think we should like a couple of the younger fellows out to dinner to-morrow—shouldn't we, mother? Their salaries are not like mine, and things are dear, you say."

True, their salaries were not like his, but then he would not have the small, bright house, nor the small, bright mother, denied any comfort he could think of, and so there was never one penny of Tom's salary left when the year was up.

Once or twice Mrs. Leslie would inquire ruefully where her son picked up the dinnerless clerks whom he delighted to bring home to supper—or, as he always called it, "to a little music." But her genial hospitality was, after all, as prompt as his; and so, though she kept the accounts, there was, as I said, never a penny of Tom's salary left when the year was up. "He thinks that that £400 a year of his is a King's revenue," thought Mrs. Leslie, one Saturday morning, watching her son cross the road, drop his gift into the expectant hand of the crossing-sweeper, and turn at the corner to nod to her. "He will soon expect me to adopt a few young men whose salaries are less than his own. If he had but inherited his father's saving nature!" She tried to regret this dolefully; but, after all, she could not help the warmth of perfect satisfaction filling her eyes.

Even his practical father had rejoiced that his nature was his mother's from the time that nature began to assert itself in little Tom—"Little Tom" then to his parents; "Little Tom Leslie" afterward among his schoolfellows; "Little Leslie" now among his fellow-clerks.

On this particular Saturday morning, as he walked to the bank, Tom loitered a little in one street—a quiet street of handsome private houses, before one of which stood a couple of cabs piled with boxes. Tom waited long enough to be sure that the cabs bore nothing but luggage. Then he walked briskly on, and, entering the bank excitedly, told his fellow-clerks of the arrival of the Colonel's household; and for fully five minutes forgot, in his excitement, to add his genial invitation for the morrow.

When the coming of the regiment had been discussed, he turned to his desk, not to loiter again throughout the day. An hour afterward Mr. Dart drove up, and with a quiet "good morning!" passed through the bank to his own private room. Here presently Mr. Maitland joined him, and, standing before the fire, discussed various items of town news—among them, of course, the arrival of the regiment.

"Col. Conyngham has only one daughter. We must help to introduce her. Young Dart having once belonged to the regiment gives it, as it were, a claim upon us."

"The Colonel's daughter will need but little introduction," remarked Maurice Dart, quietly.

CHAPTER II.

"Dart, Maitland, Dart & Co."

The names stood unaltered on the great plate; yet—except the sleeping partner, away in India now—each one represented by that sign was perfectly aware that a great alteration had been growing in himself ever since Col. Conyngham and his daughter had been living in Highborough. The strong bank walls no longer limited his hope and ambition. Beyond them stood revealed a home of love, and ease, and sunshine, brightly possible; and in this future the only mission of the good old bank was to furnish the home with luxury.

It was a winter night. The bank windows were bolted and barred, the great books were locked away in the trusty safes, and the manager was asleep upstairs, with the loaded blunderbuss beside his bed. But in his brilliantly-lighted drawing-room at home, the senior partner sat alone—a striking-looking man in his evening dress, with the hothouse flowers fading in his coat. The room had been filled with guests up to this time, but now Mr. Dart sat alone before the fire, buried in a thought which deepened minute by minute, until the door was opened, and Walter Maitland re-entered the room he had but lately left.

"I could not help coming back," he said, beginning hurriedly to speak, as if the words forced themselves from him in his nervous haste. "There is one thing about which I must speak to you to-night—about which I have wanted to speak to you for a long time. I feel"—he was leaning against the chimney-piece opposite his friend, and looking with intense scrutiny into his quiet face—"that I have been dreaming a dream which a word of yours could at this moment dispel. Tell me if it is so. It will be a greater kindness than your silence, though the kindness is sure to be the motive of that. Tell me at once, Dart. It cannot be very pleasant to you to see my anxiety. You are far too good a fellow to feel pleasure in that."

"What am I to tell you?" inquired Maurice Dart, without meeting his companion's eyes.

"Surely you know! I said to myself that when I met Isabel here in your house, to-night, I would find it out if my fears were well-grounded; and if I could not discover, I would ask you for the truth before I left. Dart! end this wearing suspense for me. It has been growing through all these months side by side with my love, and has become unbearable at last!"

Maurice raised his head now, and met his companion's anxious, questioning eyes. "I am glad you have spoken, Maitland!" he said. "I have guessed at your anxiety, while I have felt my own; and I have often wished to break the silence we have held on this one point. I fancied you had something to tell me. I fancied so but now, when I saw you re-enter the room."

"Indeed, no!" exclaimed Walter, with his usual frankness. "I wish to heaven I had. I wish I dared to say that Isabel had given me encouragement enough to make me even hope. And I could not ask her to—to love me while I felt that you knew how useless it would be."

"I do not know," returned Dart—his words sounding very slowly after Walter's eagerness, yet all his self-command failing to hide their new ring of hope. "Isabel has never heard a word of love from me. She is gentle and kind, and winning always; but I cannot read beyond."

"To me, too, she is bright and pleasant always," put in Maitland, restlessly; "and I can discover nothing more. I fancied you could put me out of one phase of this uncertainty."

"And you are very glad to find I cannot," said the elder partner. And then their eyes met, with a smile which was strangely wistful for such strong and manly faces.

"Dart!" said Mr. Maitland, "you are the elder man—the richer—the better, too. You shall speak first. Do it as soon as you can."

"Seniority has no claim in such a case as this," said the senior partner. "We can wait."

"I can wait no longer!" put in the younger man, impatiently. "Anything will be better than this suspense. Why on earth should we wait? Isabel knows us both thoroughly, now. She knows we are both too old for this love of ours to be anything but deeply earnest. She knows enough of us and of our position to make her decision easy to her. So let us know the worst, or—best. You have the right to speak first."

"I will not take it!" said Mr. Dart, speaking more quickly than he had yet done. "Let us write. Let us write—together."

A few minutes silence, while Walter thought this over—leaning his head on the arm which rested on the chimney-piece.

"Let that be decided," urged Maurice. "We will write to-morrow. Let her receive the two letters together, that she may think of us together. Promise me your letter shall be ready for to-morrow's post."

"I promise," said Maitland, raising his head again. "Thank you for this arrangement."

CHAPTER III.

The fire roared and crackled cheerily in the private room at the bank, but neither of the partners had arrived.

"I never knew him so late," remarked Tom Leslie, as if finishing aloud a passing conjecture.

"Who? Old Dart?"

"Mr. Dart. Yes."

"Leslie feels it incumbent on him to uphold the dignity of his partners," put in another clerk. "His breast swells proudly with a fellow-feeling."

"What an idle set you are, this morning!" remarked Tom, turning from his desk with the quick, kindly smile which made his face so pleasant to look upon. "As soon as I am senior partner I shall give you all a sweeping dismissal."

The listeners laughed, enjoying the absurdity of the idea; and one or two questioned him, with mock anxiety, as to the treat he intended to stand them on the occasion. Through all the laughter Tom pursued his work, and Dart noticed this when he entered the bank; and though it was but very curtly that he answered Tom's quiet greeting, yet before he reached the inner door he turned and spoke to him.

"Cold outside, Leslie. Keep up good fires. It is hard," he muttered to himself, "to pass him without a word." Then Mr. Dart let the spring door close behind him, and, sitting down in his office chair, leaned on one arm only—as very calm men do when they are ill at ease, as well as tired. He was sitting so, looking moodily down into the fire, when Mr. Maitland entered the room. The senior partner did not turn to greet him; and, even when Walter stood upon the rug beside him, he did not venture to meet his eyes.

"Maurice," began the younger man, "I suppose I may congratulate you. It is rather hard; yet no one ought to do it so heartily as I—I, who know what a good fellow you are, and what—what a wife you have won."

A glance of surprise into his friend's face, and then Mr. Dart spoke in few words, as was his custom:

"She has refused me, Maitland."

"Refused you!"

Walter repeated the words, though not incredulously. Only truth, he knew, could have weighted them so sadly. "She has refused me, too!" he said. "She has never cared for me but as a friend—simply and only as a friend."

"In a few kind words to me," said Mr. Dart, without looking up, "she told me she had given her love elsewhere. I was trying, when you came in, to prepare myself to tell you, 'I rejoice in your happ'ness, Maitland.' And now you—you come and say the same to me."

Buried in one long, sad thought, the partners in the good old firm sat in their silent room, while the work and pleasure of the world went on without. But the day's duties had to be gone through and these were not the men to shun them selfishly.

"I suppose we had better settle with Leslie about his holiday," remarked Mr. Maitland that afternoon, sending to summon Tom to the partners' room. "He will lose every glimpse of summer if he waits longer."

"He should not have postponed his holiday. He had his choice. Well, Leslie, when do you wish to start?" inquired the senior partner, when Tom entered the room.

"You said about the middle of October, and this is the 20th."

"Thank you, Mr. Dart; but if it would make no difference I would rather take my holiday from the 29th."

"Then it is to be hoped you are going on a visit," remarked Walter Maitland, pleasantly; "for November days are not the pleasantest for a tourist."

"I am not going on a tour, sir." Tom hesitated only a moment; then both his listeners were conscious of a new earnestness in his voice; "I should like to tell you, gentlemen, why I want my holiday then. The 29th is to be my wedding-day."

Mr. Dart returned quietly to his writing. Mr. Maitland rose from his seat and moved to the fire, turning his back to Tom. Before the eyes of both the partners there hovered a face which had led them, too, to dream of a possible wedding-day—dreams from which they had so lately been awakened.

It would be hard, with these memories rising thick, to talk to their favorite clerk of his good fortune; yet it was not in Walter Maitland's nature to let any selfish feeling prevent him.

"Indeed, Leslie!" he said, "I am surprised; but very glad, of course, to hear it. I prognosticate every happiness for your wife. Of course I cannot do so for you until I know who she is."

"You know her well, gentlemen, said Tom, flushing. "Her father, Col. Conyngham, is my mother's cousin. We have rarely visited them except when they were alone, because—at my mother's cottage, of course, we could not entertain their guests. We have always been—as old friends and relatives should be; and I have always loved Isabel. But it was necessary for us to wait a little. Though it would be difficult for you to realize the fact, gentlemen, a marriage is an expense, and debt——"

"You can go, Leslie," remarked Mr. Dart, without raising his head.

"And the holiday, sir?"

"Take your holiday when you choose; only don't make such a fuss about it."

"And is there nothing more you intended to say to me, Mr. Maitland?" inquired Tom.

"I should say," remarked Walter, with a jealous anger in his eyes, "it is an irreparable mistake you are making to marry on your income—unless you had chosen a wife in your own position and used to such a life as your mother's."

"My mother's life was such a life as Isabel's, at Isabel's age," said Tom, and for a moment his face was really handsome in its flush of honest pride; "and Isabel has known what my mother's life is for many a year past. Would I marry her under any false pretenses?"

"I presume, then, that Miss Conyngham knows the extent of your income?" asked Maitland, with compressed lips; "or have you, in your foolery, been representing yourself as a partner in this bank? Her eyes are open to the folly of what she is doing, eh?"

"She knows everything, sir," rejoined Tom, his eyes much puzzled, and a little angry; "and she does not call it folly."

"You can go."

The clerk left the room, closing the door quietly behind him.

"They must have had harassing letters," he said to himself, trying to account for the partners' impatience. "They have a good deal of anxiety which we subordinates are spared." And thinking this, he took his seat and wrote away more diligently than ever, while his fellow-clerks wondered over his mood.

"Leslie ought to go."

Those were the words which at last broke the silence of the room which Tom had left.

"Yes."

Then the day's work went on to its close, and the partners, separating on the bank steps, went their several ways thinking very longingly of one to whom both had been faithful. This was the first night for many months which either had spent without these bright, vague dreams of what his home might be with Isabel at its head; and their hearts were filled with resentment against the winner of the prize which they had coveted. "You knew this morning that she was to marry some one else—why should your thoughts be harder now that you know who has won her?" So a voice seemed arguing with them, but below all the angry thoughts surged on.

"For him to be the one to gain her—he, a paid servant in the bank!"

CHAPTER IV.

When Mr. Dart reached the bank next morning, worn and harassed after his sleepless night, he found that Maitland, contrary to his usual custom, had arrived before him. Though the two friends greeted each other as usual, a most unusual silence settled presently upon them both. Eventually the senior partner, making an effort, remarked on the coldness of the weather; and his companion, putting down a letter which he held, answered leisurely. But his pleasant blue eyes were restless and rather dim, and the moment the answer was given the silence wrapped them both once more.

For an hour the office clock had ticked a solo in the quietness, when Walter Maitland rose slowly from his chair, with the Times unfolded in his hand, and, letting the paper fall, came and stood upon the rug beside his friend, who had just re-entered from the bank. Very gently he laid his hand upon his senior's shoulder.

"Dart, old friend! I want to speak a few words to you in great earnestness. Since we met yesterday morning, I have grown to feel quite certain of one thing—quite. The time has not in reality been very long, but it seemed so, and gave me plenty of opportunity for thought; and what I have grown to feel so sure of is this: I shall never marry now."

"Nor I," replied Maurice, meaning it as men do not often mean the phrase, though they utter it as firmly.

"I—fancied not. Now we are both wealthy men, Dart," continued Walter, bravely and gently, "and this wealth we offered, a day or two ago, to Isabel Conyngham. You guess what I am going to say? Shall she benefit by our love for her?"

The senior partner looked up slowly, questioningly. A thought, which had been haunting him all night, made the full meaning of these words quite plain to him.

"Yes, I see you have felt this," resumed Walter, quietly, "just as I have felt it. I see that my words only came as an ending to your thought. I understand how it put itself to you. Leslie has invested all his father's savings—all his patrimony, as one may say—in our bank, and spends his whole days here most conscientiously, most trustworthily. All he draws for this cannot keep a house which we—you and I—like to picture as Isabel's home. And then his mother has to be provided for. You think, Dart, that it would not hurt us and could not make any difference to Capt. Dart, who has no voice in any bank matters—if Leslie had power to draw what would keep them more comfortably. In short—in short, old fellow! you would make him equal partner with me."

"With ourselves," said Mr. Dart, shortly—"with ourselves, you mean? If we were all equal partners——"

"Let us discuss it this afternoon. Think it over till then, Maurice," put in Walter, feeling that the senior partner should have time to make his decision; "we will talk it over again."

The discussion was duly held that afternoon, in the partners' private room; then Tom was summoned to hear the result of it. Though not a long interview, it was one impossible to describe—for how could any words show the utter failure of Mr. Dart's effort to maintain his grave reserve through Tom's extravagant, boyish, humble, proud, ridiculous gratitude? Or describe Walter Maitland's persistent (though always disregarded) assurance that, as Mr. Dart had decided to make this arrangement, he was very glad to accede to it? And, after that interview, who could repeat the limitless promises Tom made to his fellow-clerks when he told them of his marriage? Or tell how he reached home in half his usual time, and put his arms around his mother, with his eyes full of tears—just as if he had been 13, instead of 30?

But, above all, who could describe Isabel's mute, wondering gratitude to the two men whom she had given such pain? "I am very, very grateful, Tom," she said appealing to him, with tears thick upon her lashes; "but I would rather not talk about it—yet. Let me have time to think of it."

Quick to understand her wish, and delicate in carrying it out, Tom left Isabel, delighted that his news had moved her so, yet wondering over it a little, too—because the secret of the partners was so safe in the keeping of the girl whom they had—not unworthily—loved. But hardest of all would it be to describe how brilliantly before Tom's eyes that night there came a vision of that identical brass plate which really met him face to face when, after his "holidays," he first reached the heavy, familiar doors of the Highborough Bank—"Dart, Maitland, Dart & Leslie." "Co." was no more.

A Practical Test.

A Boston gentleman of some literary pretensions recently told an acquaintance in this city the following story, illustrative of the alleged discrimination of magazine editors in favor of contributors of note, and vice versa: He was discoursing some months since, he said, to the poet, Lowell, on this topic, and insisted that contributions to magazines were not published for their merit, but only when they were from friends of the editor or were the productions of famous pens. Lowell, on the contrary, maintained that magazine, like newspaper editors, were no respectors of persons, and that they were entirely impartial in their choice of contributions. To prove his case he wrote a short poem, on which, it is presumed, under the circumstances, he bestowed more than usual pains, which his friend sent to a prominent Boston magazine as his own. It was returned as unworthy of publication.

The South American States.

The condition of the South American continent, taken as a whole, is not a satisfactory one, whatever way we view it. Politically, it is split up into a number of separate states, few of which possess any real political vitality, and nearly all of which are too poor to obtain any stable position or [illegible] among the nations of the world. The same dominance of the soldiery which has nearly destroyed Old Spain has helped to prevent hitherto the development of most of those offshoots from her which form the states of Central and South America. There is, to all appearance, an absence of the capacity for creating solidly-based civil institutions in the Spanish race, and, although these Spanish colonies have all thrown off the yoke of the mother country, they have made [illegible] no progress in the art of self-government. Not one of them all can show an orderly, well-knit system of authority, such as Prescott, for instance, says—no doubt with exaggeration—the Incas of Peru or the Aztecs of Mexico possessed. The Spaniard of America is civilly a degraded being, through the superstitions which have so long molded the quality of his mind, and the mixed races and natives whom he has called into being or subdued have never risen to the position of the peaceful, order-loving citizens of free states. Therefore we find continual wars going on, brigandage and murder rife, in even the most promising of the states, and an absence of any progress worthy of the name in every Spanish republic save one. Public offices are filled through corruption, and integrity and fair dealing are qualities almost unknown. When contrasted with the United States, the utter backwardness of all South American states comes with startling force on the mind of the political student. The very beginnings of life which society evinces there serve but to suggest, as it were, the corruption which makes one almost despair of these states ever developing into healthy political organizations. Chili alone among the Spanish states of South America has made real progress in the art of self-government, and has been blessed with internal peace for a generation.—Fraser's Magazine.

Treasure-Trove.

On different occasions in 1864 the Crown put in claims for treasure-trove—a gold coin found at Long Crendon, in Buckinghamshire; sixty-two gold coins found in an earthen jar in a field at Stockerston, Leicestershire; no less than 6,000 silver pennies of the time of Henry III., found at Eccles, near Manchester; and 760 silver coins earthed up near Newark. The next following year gave the Crown a claim to 180 silver coins of the reigns of Mary, Elizabeth, James I., and Charles I., found at Grantham, and to a gold cross and chain brought to light at Castle Bailey, Clare, in Suffolk. The years 1866 and 1867 were marked, among other instances, by the finding of nearly 7,000 small gold and silver coins at Highbury, near London; eighty guineas concealed in the wall of an old house at East Parley, near Christchurch, Hants; and 260 old silver coins in a house at Lichfield. In other years there were 900 silver coins found at Cumberford, in Staffordshire, and eleven rose nobles found in the cloisters of Westminster Abbey. These several instances of treasure-trove were settled in various ways. Some of the findings were returned by the Crown to the finders; some were sold to the British Museum, in a manner to place an honorarium in the finder's pocket; some were presented to museums, and the money value given to the finders; some are retained by the Crown, as antiquarian curiosities; while one has been handed over to the descendants of a former owner.—Chambers' Journal.

Educating a Gorilla.

Prof. Owen, Prof. Mivart and others attended the recent private reception in London of the young Berlin gorilla, named Pongo. Mr. Frank Buckland tried to teach him to write, but, although he did make some marks on the paper, he preferred to carry the pencil to his mouth, and swallowed about an inch of the best Cumberland lead. Pongo's favorite position is to sit on the floor and hug a stick or an umbrella, and he is pleased to be trusted with an umbrella, although he does not always deserve the confidence, because he has a tendency to open it in a new and expeditious way, and no umbrella frame can resist his very great muscular strength of arm and jaw. He drank half a glass of beer in the presence of the audience, and also ate some roast beef and potatoes; but ordinarily he lives chiefly on vegetables, and makes enormous meals of them. In the morning they give him milk and fruits, cherries, currants, raspberries, etc. At midday he has a basin of boiled rice, and anything else that he can get. In the course of the afternoon he has more fruit, and perhaps some eau sucree of wine and water. In the evening more milk is brought, and this, with bread and butter and eggs, completes his supper. He goes to bed at 8, and sleeps as late as 8 the next morning. But he has learned to smoke—at least when the cigarette has an amber mouthpiece, for he does not like the taste of tobacco.

How the Bashi-Bazouks Punished Lying.

Three Bashi-Bazouks the other day, in their wanderings, came across the body of a Russian soldier. They determined to bury it, and were on the point of placing it in a hurriedly-dug grave, when the Russian came to his senses, and, observing their intention, remarked that he was not dead. They looked at him for a few seconds, when one of them remarked, "Really, you Russians are such liars that it is impossible to believe anything you say. We found you here dead, so you must be buried;" and they buried him.—London Truth.

PITH AND POINT.

The [illegible] is the oldest and best [illegible].

To a hungry fly, a bald [illegible] is an oasis.

WHEN engin-ears comprom-eyes, anybody nose the people are a-head.

Some people read the eleventh commandment, "Do not [illegible]."

Don't [illegible] human victims to the rack, but you may treat hungry horses in that way.

THERE is one town in Illinois where, no matter what happens, it will be Joliet.

You know mock-modesty as you do mock-turtle—from its being the produce of a calf's head.

A CHILD being asked what were the great feasts, promptly replied: "Breakfast, dinner and supper."

FLY traps have begun their annual task of scaring the flies away from the trap into everything else.

WHY is a young lady of 17 brief summers like the Sultan's Asiatic possessions? Because she is a she minor.

"Don't you think, husband, that you are apt to believe everything you hear?" "No, madam, not when you talk."

WE rather think that the most re[illegible] was a poor [illegible] one.

A CONTEMPORARY says of a very prominent militia General that "his sword was never drawn [illegible] a raffle."

A SPINSTER lady of 50 remarked the other day that she could go alone at six months. "Yes," said her hateful young half-brother, "and you've been going it 'alone' ever since and never euchred anybody."

PATERFAMILIAS: "To-morrow is [illegible] birthday; what can I [illegible] present?" Charley (who has been watching the dogs in the street): "Get him a muzzle, papa; he is always biting the governess in the cheek!"

A VERY precise person, remarking upon Shakespeare's lines, "The good that men do is often interred with their bones," carefully observed that this interment was generally [illegible] place without crowding the bones.

AN old citizen in a country village, on having a subscription list handed to him toward purchasing a new hearse for the place, thus excused himself: "I paid $5 for a new hearse forty years ago, and me and my folks hain't had the benefit of it yet."

A FRENCHMAN, soliciting relief, said, very gravely, to his fair hearer: "Ma'mselle, I never beg, but dat I have von wife with several small family, dat is growing very large and noseing to make deir bread out of but the perspiration of my prow."

A PASSIONATE temper renders a man unfit for advice, deprives him of his reason, robs him of all that is great and noble in his nature, makes him unfit for conversation, destroys friendship, transforms justice into cruelty, and turns all order into confusion.

THE peculiarity of the fly is that he always returns to the same spot; but it is the characteristic of the mosquito that he always returns to another spot. Thus he differs from the leopard, which does not change his spots. This is an important fact in natural history.

THE BIRTH OF THE CUCUMBER.

A seraph was sick with the colic one day,
And, weeping, leaned over the moon;
The tears, as they fell, floated lightly away
On the gossamer pinions of June.
But one, as it drifted along in the damp,
Sank wearily down to the earth;
As trembling it lay, 'twas embraced by a cramp,
And the cucumber blushed into birth.
—Boston Courier.

A YOUNG dentist was introduced to a fashionable beauty the other evening, and gracefully opened the conversation, by saying, "Miss——, I hope I may consider that we are not entirely unacquainted; I had the pleasure of pulling a tooth for your father only a short time ago."

"WHAT do you know about the prisoner?" asked the Judge. "I don't know nothin' 'bout him, Judge, only he's bigoted." "Bigoted?" said his Honor. "Yes, sah." "What do you mean by 'bigoted?'" "Well, Judge," exclaimed the witness, "he knows too much foh one niggah, an' not 'nuff foh two."

"DID you say I was the biggest liar you ever knew?" fiercely asked a ruffian of a counsel, who had been skinning him in his address to the jury. "Yes, I did," replied the counsel, and the crowd eagerly watched for the expected fight. "Well, then," said the ruffian, "all I've got to say is that you could 'a never knowed my brother Jim."

AN IDYL OF THE SEA.

They sat on the broad verandah
O'erlooking the moonlit sea,
And from out on the dancing waters
Came floating a sound of glee.
But suddenly with it blending
Came cries of childish woe—
Came the sound of a slipper descending
In measured cadence slow.
"There's a squall out there," said a lounger;
"Out there on the moonlit seas."
"Oh, no; not a squall," said the other;
"'Tis only a spanking breeze."
—New York Commercial Advertiser.

An Ocean Mystery.

On the 5th of August, last year, the three-masted iron steamship Great Queensland left London for Melbourne with a large cargo and sixty-nine passengers and crew on board. At Gravesend she stopped to take on some thirty tons of black gunpowder and two tons of patent gunpowder. After this was laden, she proceeded on her voyage, and has never been heard from since Aug. 12, 1876. A name board belonging to her, however, and some life buoys, have been washed ashore on the south coast of England. The English Wreck Commissioner has just decided that the steamer must have been destroyed by the explosion of the patent gunpowder, which was proved to have been in bad condition and improperly packed.

Kellogg.

Parties bearing the above name will be interested to learn that a work is now in preparation giving the genealogy of the family in this country from the middle of the seventeenth century to the present time. All interested will confer a favor by communicating with the publisher, Rufus B. Kellogg, Green Bay, Wisconsin, who will send, to any, circulars with the outline of information desired. Persons of other names, with Kellogg ancestry, are particularly requested to write.

AGRICULTURAL AND DOMESTIC.

Around the Farm.

IF cabbages do not head properly, a pinch of salt to each head will be beneficial, or, better, give them a slight watering at night with weak brine. This may be again repeated later in the season. A single watering with quite weak brine is also excellent for watermelons, about the time the fruit is setting.

THE farmers and fruit-raisers of the United States ought this season to take better care than usual of their apple orchards, as there is a reasonable probability that hereafter the European demand for this fruit will generally obviate the danger of a surplus in this country.—Boston Commercial Bulletin.

THE Farmer's Union, on the authority of the St. Charles Union, reports that Minnesota farmers are many of them destroying Colorado potato beetles with good success by the use of alum water. Between four and five pounds is put in a barrel of water, and when the alum is dissolved the liquid is sprinkled on the potato-tops, and the festive bug soon after retires from business.

THE DANGER OF FORCING DAIRY COWS.—President Parcell, of the Union County (N. J.) Farmers' Club, thinks that cows kept fat and fed high in order to force them to give large quantities of milk prematurely wear out, and are subject to attacks of milk fever, abortion, garget, sterility and sudden death. He has lost four or five in this way within a few years.

THE most successful fruit-growers, East and West, have decided that there is no better remedy for the coddling moth than to pasture hogs in the orchards, to eat the wormy apples and the worms therein. If the orchards are too large for the number of hogs kept, sheep are turned in. If we all unite in this system we shall soon see its good results. There can be no doubt about its being effective.—Rural Home.

WE are glad to note a change in some quarters on this question of pedigree, which has been run clear into the ground of late years. Thirty thousand dollars paid for a single cow because she was a Duchess, with the known fact that she was a poor breeder, while infinitely more perfect animals went to the shambles for beef because they were "Seventeens," is evidence that the people are either fools or are going mad.—Pioneer Press.

LIME DUST.—The following has been recommended as the best mode of preparing lime dust for slugs, mildew, etc.: Take a peck of fresh or sharp lime, broken into small pieces, and add to it four pounds of flour sulphur. Add one-third as much boiling water, or just enough to slack the lime to a dry powder, and cover the vessel as soon as the water is poured on. By adding water it may be made into an excellent whitewash for trees, the sulphur increasing its efficacy.

MAKING A COW GIVE DOWN.—To persuade a cow to give down her milk against her will is a difficult and sometimes a hopeless task. A plan that has been highly spoken of is to lay a heavy chain across her back while milking her. It is very certain that harshness and impatience will only make matters worse, and that kindness and petting will have the best effect. The use of milking-tubes might be effective. A poor cow, free from this vice, is better than the best cow that is afflicted with it.—American Agriculturist.

BREAKING COLTS.—The best time for breaking colts is at the age of 2 or 3 years, as you will find that they are less inclined to have a will of their own; but a horse of this age should never be allowed to do much hard labor. Colts that are intended to be put to work should be stabled during the months of February and March, with an occasional drive of several miles. This will be an excellent way to break them, and at the same time toughen them for spring work. Colts require a more frequent change of diet than older horses. When new grass is plentiful they should have an occasional pull at it. At the time of stabling they should be allowed two or three mashes of bran, followed by some condition powder. For the same reason that the young colt should be allowed the milk of the dam directly after parturition, other colts should have their cleansing powders; they will carry off gross humors and purify the blood. Next, it is necessary to have a collar that will fit, for a great many colts have to work in too large a collar.—Western Rural.

About the House.

MOCKING-BIRD FOOD.—One pound hemp-seed, one-quarter pound butter crackers, one-quarter pound rice, one-half ounce lard; grind seed, crackers, and rice; mix; melt lard, and pour over the mixture.

IT is a mistake to wash glass tumblers, goblets, and the like in hot water; if cold be used a brighter and clearer appearance is left when the glass is wiped dry. If the glass is particularly soiled, a pinch of soda in the water will cleanse it easily.

HUCKLEBERRY CAKE.—Two cupfuls of sugar, one of butter, five eggs, one cupful milk, one teaspoonful soda, one small lemon, a little nutmeg, a wine-glassfull brandy, three cupfuls flour; dredge a quart of huckleberries thickly with flour and add the last thing.

MINT SAUCE.—Take some green mint and chop it fine; for every heaping tablespoonful of the chopped mint add one even teaspoonful sugar and a wine-glassful cider vinegar; put the vinegar and sugar in a sauce-boat, then add the mint; let it stand fifteen minutes before serving.

FRENCH polish for furniture can be made by putting half an ounce of shellac, the same quantity of gumlac, and a quarter of an ounce of gum-sandarac, into a pint of spirits of wine. Put them all together in a stone bottle near the fire, shaking it very often. As soon as the gums are dissolved it is ready for use.

RASPBERRY JAM.—Make by itself, or, better, combined with currants in the proportion of one-third currants to two-thirds raspberries; mash the fruit well, and proceed as in currant jam. Make blackberry jam like raspberry, except that it should not be mixed with currants. Strawberry jam is made exactly like blackberry.

PLUM JELLY.—This can be made in the same manner as currant jelly, only a little water must be put with the plums to burst them and get out the juice; granulated sugar or white crushed sugar is preferable for preserves; and the pulp left from the plum in the sieve can be pressed through and boiled with a little sugar, making a rich, stiff marmalade.

A NEW drink to supply the place of gruel or barley water is recommended by the Times of India, "congee water," or the liquid in which rice has been boiled. This drink has three excellent qualities—it becomes impregnated with the properties of the rice boiled in it, and thus satisfies hunger; it quenches thirst, and is a capital draught in fever attacks; and lastly, when taken warm in bed, it is good for bad colds and influenza.

The Russian Soldier.

So many stories are told in England of want of care for the Russian soldiers health and food that it may be well to say once for all that the men of all arms look well and strong, with plenty of flesh on their bones, though little fat. They are in excellent working condition, and carry weights which would break down any but strong constitutions, including biscuits for three days, which form part of the kit, packed in the knapsack, and bread, which they manage to carry in a bag on their shoulders. The Russian private in a marching regiment carries no less than seventy-two pounds English. In his own country he received daily three pounds of bread and 7½ copecks for all else; but in Roumania his copecks would not buy him the meat he wanted, so the Government gives him half a pound of meat and 2½ copecks, instead of the full money he received before. He has also served out to him a small ration of spirits to counteract the deadly damps of the river. His great-coat is long and heavy; he carries it in the shape of a horse-collar round his left shoulder. Round the coat is wrapped one man's share of the tent, a square piece of canvas furnished with eyelet-holes and a string. Four of such pieces are bound together, and form a sort of rough gypsy tent, the ends of which are carried by two other men; the seventh carries the sticks which form upright and ridge poles. Thus seven men carry the tent under which they can sleep; but it is small, hot, and stuffy by day, while a heavy shower of rain penetrates easily through the eyelet-holes, the ill-closed apertures, and even through the canvas itself. Were it not that one sees the Russian soldier carrying his enormous load every day with seeming ease, arriving in good condition at the end of a long march, and frequently singing to beguile the way and refresh the jaded nerves, we might at once condemn the practice of so loading the infantry, which ought to arrive as fresh as possible in presence of the enemy. The kit contains much the same articles as those of the English private, but one pair of long boots is carried outside and wrapped round with a strap under the flap of the knapsack, so that the feet of the boots are visible on either side. The men in a camp which I visited yesterday said that the food supplied to them is very satisfactory in every respect. Their average height was equal or superior to that of an English marching regiment, and their muscular development particularly good. They are not well set up, and do not show that curious flat-backed, stiff position so dear to the drill-sergeant. On the contrary there are big, humpy muscles on their shoulder-blades, and the Cossacks especially are splendidly made for strength. It may be useful for England to know that those who represent the Russian soldier of to-day as a half-starved, ill-treated creature, who has to be primed to fight, are grievously mistaken.—Cor. London Times.

Flooding the Mines.

"In the name of the Prophet, Figs!" cried the Smyrniot fruit-dealer. In the name and interest of the workingmen of the United States, the Pennsylvania miners are flooding the coal-mines. What a brilliant set they are; doing their best to make coal dear to the working people of New York, New Jersey, and all the Eastern States this winter! The genius who in a bank riot advised the mob to burn up the bank's notes was nothing to these sapient miners. Every one of them ought to have a leather medal, with a suitable device engraved on it.

The railroad companies own most of the mines. They own also the stock on hand of coal. If, in consequence of the stupidity of the miners, coal goes up, the railroad companies will make money. The miners profess to hate the companies; hence they flood the mines, and all this they are doing in the name and on behalf of the workingmen of the United States! It is really one of the most remarkable cases of blind, unreasoning folly in history. They do not appear to have even one man among them with wit enough to see that the effect of their brutal destruction is to injure themselves and those whom they pretend to call friends, and to benefit the men they choose to dislike.

If, next winter, coal should rise to famine prices here in New York, where thousands of families buy it by the bucketful, these poor sufferers will have to thank for this a parcel of ignoramuses in the coal-mines, who call themselves workingmen, and who are really the enemies of all industrious workingmen.—New York Herald.

An Interesting Phase of Mormonism.

A curious incident came to our notice a few days ago, which is worthy of notice. A three-ply polygamist, living a few miles south of Salt Lake City, who desired a fourth, boldly declared his intention to a young widow residing in Zion, and pleaded for her hand—the heart was not in question—but was flatly refused. As his own pleadings had availed him nothing he forthwith dispatched his No. 2 to do his courting and carry out his design. Entreaties on one side met rebuttal on the other, when at last the young widow asked if she (No. 2) did not act against her own will, and to her own detriment, when the last-mentioned answered: "I do not wish Mr. —— to take any more wives, but I so detest and hate the very sight of his No. 3 that I would do anything in my power to thwart her happiness."—Salt Lake Tribune.

A NORTH CAROLINA boy up a tree tied a rope around his neck, told his sister he was going to hang himself, and jumped to the ground, supposing the rope was long enough to reach, but it was seven feet too short, and he broke his neck.

An Innocent Man Sentenced to Death.

At the fall term, 1857, of the Superior Court of Guilford county, J. R. S. Chipman was convicted of the murder of Martha Pinnix and sentenced to be hanged. A few days before the time appointed for the hanging he broke jail and escaped.

In 1863, Paris Stewart, of the same county, was conscripted in the army of the Confederate States. He reported for duty at Greensboro, and was assigned by the enrolling officer at that place to the command of a guard of twelve men stationed at Deep river bridge, near Jamestown, on the North Carolina railroad. On his return from Greensboro to his home, in company with his brother, on the day of his enlistment, he made the following startling disclosure. Said he:

"I have now entered the army, and in a short time I will be dead. There is a secret I wish to communicate to you. I am the murderer of Martha Pinnix. I was betrothed to her, and, knowing the marriage would be an unhappy one, I killed her, and by a strangely fortuitous circumstance the crime was fixed upon Jim Chipman. When I am dead you can tell Chipman's sister, for whom I have a special regard, that it was me, and not her brother, who murdered Martha Pinnix."

The next day after this conversation Stewart took command of the guard at the bridge. That night, half an hour before the passage of the cars over the bridge, he approached the guard on the bridge, told them to go to their quarters—that he would watch till morning. He took his seat on the bridge and permitted the train to run over him—a plain case of suicide, and so reported at the time.

Yesterday the sister of Mr. Chipman, who dwells in Texas, visited the Governor, and exhibited the affidavit of Stewart's brother, and each of the guard on duty at the bridge at the time of Stewart's death in corroboration of the above facts. She also had a petition signed by the most influential men of Guilford county praying the pardon of Chipman. The Governor did not hesitate, but issued the pardon at once.

Chipman is in California, but as soon as he learns of his pardon will return to his old home.—Raleigh (N. C.) Observer.

Cockett's Remarkable Suicide.

Coroner Oakes continued the inquest yesterday afternoon in the case of William Cockett. Cockett's conduct after he had taken the enormous dose of strychnine was remarkable. He stood at the bar of the Monroe avenue saloon, where Mr. Harvey found him, calmly conversing with several persons, without betraying to the unpracticed eye the slightest ill effects of the fatal drink. After one of the bystanders had given him a drink of salt and water (on the presumption that he was intoxicated) he deliberately lighted a cigar, smoked serenely, and called for a glass of beer. Even after it became known to the crowd that he was poisoned he laughed good-naturedly at the consternation every face betrayed, and insisted on treating the crowd.

"What is your name?" asked one of the party.

"Wouldn't you like to know?" he replied, with a sarcastic twist of the lips. "I've been drunk for two days, and all I want is to brace up a little. Just you fellows let me alone and give me a rest."

When the police arrived and coaxed him to walk he obstinately refused until his senses began to desert him. Even then force was necessary; but he hung on to his cigar until it was all consumed. One advocate of heroic treatment, who seemed to recognize the need of keeping him awake, slapped his face and rubbed his ears vigorously. To those proceedings he replied with taunting speech and a grim smile of defiance. He refused to open his mouth to admit a stomach pump, and a screw-shaped instrument made of lignumvitæ was forced in between his teeth. He closed down on it so hard as to bite the threads off, rendering the instrument worthless for future operations. One muscular policeman slapped him on the back, and remarked, in an encouraging tone:

"Well, old man, you are not gone yet."

"All right," he responded. "I know I am not gone, but I'm going all the same, so fire away with your stomach guns."

He viewed the operation of bleeding with the same calm indifference to results, and from first to last, at least so long as consciousness remained, he gave no sign of the agony with which he must have been racked.—Detroit Free Press.

A Women's Riot.

The women's riot at Chicago during the strike reminds the Nashville American of the women's bread riots in the South during the war. It says:

"The first broke out in Mobile with a clamor for bread, the women holding the streets for a day. Next day the women of Atlanta and Augusta took up the cry, and the day after, or within a very short time, those of Richmond, who were addressed by President Davis, Gov. Letcher and Mayor Mayo. The fair rioters held the streets and clamored for bread. Rations were ordered, but they declined them and robbed a few jewelry stores, and a few dry-goods stores suffered slightly. The damage, however, was trifling. They were dispersed with difficulty, on account of the gallantry which precluded the idea of using artillery on women. It was strikingly similar to the present strike in the suddenness and simultaneity of the different manifestations, though it was rather amusing than alarming, and nobody was hurt."

A Spiritualistic Murder.

The evidence on which the hare-brained Pike, the wretched man who shot the long-haired Jones in Chicago, was acquitted on the ground of insanity, was tolerably clear. His grandfather, father and brother were exceedingly soft-headed, and he himself had been confined in asylums at Taunton, Mass., Blackwell's island, N. Y., and other places. The medical experts declared him insane without dissent. One of them testified that Pike had sustained a fall when young, and that he believed that some time afterward an apparition appeared over his left shoulder, and asked him where he had been while unconscious from the effects of the fall. The spirit, or whatever it was, suggested that while unconscious his spirit actually left his body. In the year 1844 he owned some timber land at Binghamton, N. Y., and there he partially destroyed a large number of trees for no earthly reason so far as known. As to his coolness immediately after the murder, that was nothing new in such cases. Probably, judging by his own standard of right and wrong, he would try to carry out what he called his principles. The expert thought that Pike should be shut up in a lunatic asylum and never be released, as the insane condition might be developed at any moment. The prisoner has been sent to an asylum. How long will he stay there? Perhaps that convenient little spirit over the left shoulder will inform him.

Mispronouncing Geographical Names.

In America recently, that is in the United States, the custom has come of pronouncing them rigidly according to their spelling. Thus we have not only "War-wick" and "Wor-ces-ter," instead of War'ick and Wooster; but the Shawangunk mountains, which in our youth were the Shongo mountains, are now Sha-wan-gunk, with the n and k thrust into our ears; and poor Lake Winnipisiogee, instead of its old name Winipisaukie, has every syllable given to it that can be extorted from its letters by a school-ma'am. Delhi, a name absurdly given to a town in Alleghany county, is called Dell-high, when its real name is as nearly as possible daily. Still further west, Terre Haute is called Terry-Hut, an amazing conformity to the spelling-book. If an uneducated man were to write its real name phonographically Tare Hoht, he would not be nearly so ridiculous as those who find its name not in a word, but in an assemblage of printed signs. In the city of New York there has been of late years a remarkable change of name effected by this rule of spelling-book. "What," said to me an old gentleman, a member of a highly respected old New York family, "What do these people mean by Dez-bros-sez street? There's no such street. The name is De Broose street." He then informed me that the street was named after a family whose name was spelled "Desbrosses" but pronounced De Broose, and that until it appeared on the street cars it was always so pronounced. This solicitude to conform sound to letter has become a disease among us. It exists in no other country, and here it is due to the school-master, the spelling-book, and the dictionary.—Richard Grant White, in the New York Times.

The MacMahons.

The fortune of President MacMahon, of France, was laid by a thrifty ancestor, a doctor, who won the favor of a bedridden old lady at Autun. She quarreled with her relatives, and made a deed conveying to him all her property, amounting to 3,000,000 francs, on condition that he should maintain her in a style befitting her rank during her lifetime. The heirs-at-law disputed the will, and the case was in dispute at the time of the revolution. All the contestants emigrated. The MacMahons took advantage of the invitation of Napoleon to the noblesse to return and occupy their estates. Those who did not come back forfeited their claims, and in this manner the title was confirmed in the family of the President.

DOBBS says he has one of the most obedient boys in the world. He tells him to do as he pleases, and he does it without murmuring.

Liberate the Impurities of the System.

This can easily be done through the instrumentality of the searching blood depurent and alterative, Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, which incites those scavengers of the body, the kidneys and the bowels, to vigorous action. The first-named organs secrete impurities—where such exist—from the blood, which would otherwise poison it, and it is the office of the bowels to carry off the useless portions of the food rejected during the process of digestion, and which, if retained, interfere with digestion and bilious secretion. Rheumatism and gout, both products of acid elements in the circulation, are remedied by the bitters, which will likewise be found a prompt though gentle cathartic. Both kidneys and bowels are invigorated, as well as stimulated, by this famous medicine, which possesses tonic properties of the highest order.

Light, Well-Raised Bread, Biscuits,

Cakes and Pastry digest easily and conduce to good health. Good health makes labor of all kinds easier, and prolongs life. DOOLEY'S YEAST POWDER will always make all these productions light and wholesome. It is warranted to make better, lighter, sweeter, more toothsome and nutritious biscuits, cake, bread, etc., than any other baking powder.

THE GREAT FAVORITE!—The popular Chill Cure of the age!! Composed of pure and simple drugs, Wilhoft's Tonic has long held the highest place in the long line of remedies for Chills and Fever. It is not only Anti-Periodic, but is Anti-Panic, for it curtails the heavy expense of doctors' visits, where friendly calls are all itemized in the account current. A penny saved is a penny gained, and saving it in this way adds to health and comfort. Try Wilhoft's Tonic as a certainty and you will never regret it. G. R. FINLAY & CO., Proprietors, New Orleans.

FOR SALE BY ALL DRUGGISTS.

HATCH'S Universal Cough Syrup has been put to a six years' test in our trade, with the following result: It gives the best of satisfaction to all our customers, and they testify to that satisfaction by buying far more of it than of any other cough remedy, although we keep in stock a large number of that class of medicines, in fact all that have been heretofore considered most salable.

SLAUGHTER & WELLS, Waverly, N. Y.
Sold by H. A. Hurlbut & Co., Chicago, Ill.

IT will be found upon inquiry of representative storekeepers that ladies no longer depend on foreign makers for their Perfumery and Toilet Articles. To Messrs. Colgate & Co. the credit is largely due for this new departure. Their Cashmere Bouquet Soap and Violet Toilet Water are universally esteemed by the tasteful and refined as the most delicate and recherche of perfumes.

THIRTY years' experience proves the Graefenberg Vegetable Pills to be the mildest and most effective medicine ever known for the complete cure of headache, biliousness, liver complaints, nervousness, fevers and diseases of digestion. Sold everywhere; price 25 cents per box. Send for almanacs. Graefenberg Co., New York.

CHEW
The Celebrated
"MATCHLESS"
Wood Tag Plug
TOBACCO.
THE PIONEER TOBACCO COMPANY,
New York, Boston and Chicago.

POND'S EXTRACT, the People's Remedy. It not only affords immediate relief from pain, but is a permanent cure for many disorders. Book at druggists'.

Hofmann's Hop Pills cure the Ague at once.

THE
UNITED STATES
LIFE
INSURANCE COMPANY,
IN THE CITY OF NE YORK,
261, 262, 263 Broadway.
ORGANIZED 1850
ASSETS, $4,827,176.52
SURPLUS, $820,000
EVERY APPROVED FORM OF POLICY
ISSUED ON MOST FAVORABLE TERMS
ALL ENDOWMENT POLICIES
AND
APPROVED CLAIMS
MATURING IN 1877
WILL BE DISCOUNTED AT 7%
ON PRESENTATION.
JAMES BUELL, - - PRESIDENT

ESTABLISHED 1844
STRAUB MILL COMPANY'S CHAMPION CINCINNATI
BEST SMUT & SEPARATING

MACHINE.
MILLS MILLING MACHINERY &
N.W. CORNER MILLERS SUPPLIES.
FRONT & JOHN- CINCINNATI.

The Largest Normal School and Business Institute in the United States.
The Northern-Indiana
NORMAL SCHOOL
VALPARAISO, INDIANA.

School the entire year. Students can enter at any time, select their own studies, and advance as rapidly as they desire. Full course of study. New classes organized each month. Commercial course most thorough to be found. No extra charge. Expenses less than at any other school in the land. Tuition $8.00 per term of 11 weeks, including all departments. Good board and well-furnished rooms, $2.00 to $2.50 per week. Entire satisfaction given or money refunded. Catalogue, giving full particulars, sent free on application. Address H. B. BROWN, Principal.

Fall term opens August 28th; Winter term, Nov. 13th; Spring term, Jan. 29th, 1878; Summer term, April 16th; Review term, July 2d.

THE GOOD OLD
STAND-BY.
MEXICAN MUSTANG LINIMENT.
FOR MAN AND BEAST.

ESTABLISHED 35 YEARS. Always cures. Always ready. Always handy. Has never yet failed. Thirty millions have tested it. The whole world approves the glorious old Mustang—the Best and Cheapest Liniment in existence. 25 cents a bottle. The Mustang Liniment cures when nothing else will.

SOLD BY ALL MEDICINE VENDERS.

PERPETUAL
SORGHUM EVAPORATOR.
$15. $20. $25.
Cheap and Durable
Send for Circulars.
Address the only Manufacturers
CHAPMAN & CO. Madison Ind.

HUNT'S REMEDY
THE GREAT
KIDNEY MEDICINE

A positive remedy for Dropsy and all diseases of the Kidneys, Bladder and Urinary Organs. Hunt's Remedy is purely vegetable and prepared expressly for the above diseases. It has cured thousands. Every bottle warranted. Send to W. E. Clarke, Providence, R.I., for illustrated pamphlet. If your druggist don't have it, he will order it for you.

DR. WARNER'S HEALTH CORSET,

With Skirt Supporter and Self-Adjusting Pads.

Secures HEALTH and COMFORT of Body, with GRACE and BEAUTY of Form. Three Garments in one. Approved by all physicians.

AGENTS WANTED.

Samples by mail, in Coutil, $2; Satteen, $1 75. To Agents at 25 cents less. Order size two inches smaller than waist measure over the dress.

Warner Bros. 351 Broadway, N.Y.

TEXAS.

EMIGRANTS and others desiring information in regard to Arkansas and Texas—the soil, climate, water, timber and other statistical information—together with Routes, Rates, Maps, &c., will be promptly supplied with the same by calling on or addressing H. H. MARLEY, Nor. Pass. & Emigration Agent St. Louis, Iron Mountain & S. R. W., 104 Clark street, Chicago.

"STARTLING" Good news for the afflicted! Consumption cured if any foundation to build on. Positive Cure for severe Coughs, where lungs are affected. An old Indian remedy—first time published. [illegible] express paid, $2.00; or Receipt, with full instructions for making same, $10.00. Refer as to security of above or responsibility to First National Bank, Commercial Bank, Delphos Herald, or Postmistress of this place.

"STARTLING"
Mrs. D. L. WILLIAMS,
DELPHOS, OHIO.

DUNHAM
PIANOS.
Dunham & Sons, Manufacturers.
Warerooms, 18 East 14th St.,
[Established 1834.] NEW YORK.
Prices Reasonable. Terms Easy.

JACKSON'S BEST
SWEET NAVY CHEWING TOBACCO

was awarded the highest prize at Centennial Exposition for its fine chewing qualities, the excellence and lasting character of its sweetening and flavoring. If you want the best tobacco ever made, ask your grocer for this, and see that each plug bears our blue strip trade-mark, with words Jackson's Best on it. Sold wholesale by all jobbers. Send for sample to C. A. JACKSON & CO., Manufacturers, Petersburg, Va.

RIVERVIEW ACADEMY,
POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y.,
OTIS BISBEE, A. M., Principal and Proprietor.

Numbers its alumni by hundreds in all the honorable walks of life. Pupils range from twelve to twenty years in age. Next session opens Sept. 12th. Those wishing to enter should make an early application.

BABBITT'S TOILET SOAP.

Unrivalled for the Toilet and the Bath. No artificial and deceptive odors to cover common and deleterious ingredients. After years of scientific experiment the manufacturer of B. T. Babbitt's Best Soap has perfected and now offers to the public The FINEST TOILET SOAP in the World. Only the purest vegetable oils used in its manufacture.

For Use in the Nursery it has No Equal.

Worth ten times its cost to every mother and family in Christendom. Sample box, containing 3 cakes of 6 oz. each, sent free to any address on receipt of 75 cents. Address

B. T. BABBITT, New York City.
For Sale by all Druggists.

HOW TO MAKE $20 to $40 per week SELLING TEAS TO FAMILIES. Circulars free. Add's THE CANTON TEA CO., 148 Chambers St., New York.

$66 a week in your own town. Terms and $5 outfit free. H. HALLETT & CO., Portland, Maine.

$55 to $77 a Week to Agents. $10 Outfit FREE. P. O. VICKERY, Augusta, Maine.

$12 A DAY at home. Agents wanted. Outfit and terms free. TRUE & CO., Augusta, Maine.

$40 A WEEK. Catalogue and sample FREE. FELTON & CO., 119 Nassau St., New York.

$20 a Day. HOW TO MAKE IT. Something new and salable. COE, YONGE & CO., St. Louis, Mo.

$5 to $20 per day at home. Samples worth $5 free. STINSON & CO., Portland, Maine.

WATCHMAKERS' Tools and Materials. Send for Price list. GEO. E. SMITH & CO., P. O. Box 3696, N. Y.

AGENTS CAN MAKE $25 PER DAY selling our PATENT BEER FAUCET. Send for Circular. WORSWICK M'F'G CO., Cleveland, Ohio.

$5937 Made by 17 Agents in Jan. '77 with my 13 new articles. Samples free. Address C. M. Linington, Chicago.

REVOLVER FREE! Seven-shot revolver, with box cartridges. Address J. Bown & Son, 136 & 138 Wood st., Pittsburg, Pa.

$2500 a year to Agents. Outfit and a $25 Shot Gun free. For terms address, J. Worth & Co., St. Louis, Mo.

WANTED Traveling Salesmen. [illegible] all expenses paid. No Peddling. Address Queen City Lamp Works, Cincinnati, O.

$350 A MONTH—AGENTS WANTED—36 best selling articles in the world; one sample free. Address JAY BRONSON, Detroit, Mich.

A GOOD WELL can be made in one day with our 4-foot WELL AUGER. Send for our auger book. U. S. AUGER CO., St. Louis Mo.

Mitchell's Diagrams for cutting Shirts and Ladies' Garments. Best in use. $3 each. Agents Wanted. MRS. A. J. CASH, Purchasing Agent, 2918 No. 11 St., Philadelphia, Pa.

AGENTS, READ THIS!

We will pay Agents a salary of $75 per Month and Expenses to sell our New and Wonderful Inventions. Address L. S. SHERMAN & CO., Marshall, Michigan.

YOUNG MEN! Learn Telegraphy here, and earn from $35 to $100 a month. Small salary while learning. Situations furnished. Address R. VALENTINE, Superintendent, Englewood, Ill.

$10 TO $1,000 Invested in Wall St. Stocks makes fortunes every month. Book sent free explaining everything. Address BAXTER & CO., Bankers, 17 Wall St., N. Y.

AWNINGS, TENTS,
Waterproof Covers, Stack Covers, Signs, Window Shades, &c., &c. MURRAY & BAKER, 100 South Desplaines st., Chicago.
Send for Illustrated Price-List.

$100.00 REWARD. This MOUSTACHE or HEAVY BEARD produced on a smooth face by the use of DYKE'S BEARD ELIXIR without injury, or will forfeit $100.00. Price by mail, in sealed package, 25 cents; 3 packages only 50 cents. A. L. SMITH & CO., Palatine, Ill., Sole Agents. We caution the public against imitations.

$10 to $25 A DAY SURE made by Agents selling our Chromos, Crayons, Picture and Chromo Cards. 125 samples, worth $5, sent, postpaid, for 85 Cents. Illustrated Catalogue free. J. H. BUFFORD'S SONS, Boston. [Established 1830.]

$1.00 $1.00
Osgood's Heliotype Engravings.
The choicest household ornaments. Price One Dollar each. Send for catalogue.
JAMES R. OSGOOD & CO.
BOSTON, MASS.
$1.00 $1.00

LADIES!

BEWARE of Imitations.

KEEP'S SHIRTS—only one quality—The Best.
Keep's Patent Partly-Made Dress Shirts
Can be finished as easy as hemming a Handkerchief.
The very best, six for $7.00.
Keep's Custom Shirts—made to measure.
The very best, six for $9.00.
An elegant set of genuine Gold-Plate Collar and Sleeve Buttons given with each half doz. Keep's Shirts.
Keep's Shirts are delivered FREE on receipt of price in any part of the Union—no express charges to pay.
Samples, with full directions for self-measurement, Sent Free to any address. No stamp required.
Deal directly with the Manufacturer and get Bottom Prices. Keep Manufacturing Co., 165 Mercer St., N. Y.

$777 is not easily earned in these times, but it can be made in three months by any one, of either sex, in any part of the country, who is willing to work steadily at the employment that we furnish. $66 per week in your own town. You need not be away from home over night. You can give your whole time to the work, or only your spare moments. We have agents who are making over $20 per day at the business. All who engage at once can make money fast. At the present time money cannot be made so easily and rapidly at any other business. It costs nothing to try the business. Terms and $5 Outfit free. Address, at once, H. HALLETT & CO., Portland, Maine.

TARRANT'S
SELTZER
APERIENT.

Mark this! Upon the Condition of the stomach and its near allies, the liver and the bowels, depend physical health and clearness of intellect. If these organs are inactive or in a state of irritation, the toning, regulating, soothing influence of TARRANT'S SELTZER APERIENT is urgently required. Sold by all druggists.

SANDAL-WOOD

A positive remedy for all diseases of the Kidneys, Bladder and Urinary Organs; also, good in Dropsical Complaints. It never produces sickness, is certain and speedy in its action. It is fast superseding all other remedies. Sixty capsules cure in six or eight days. No other medicine can do this.

Beware of Imitations, for, owing to its great success, many have been offered; some are most dangerous, causing piles, &c.

DUNDAS DICK & CO.'S Genuine Soft Capsules, containing Oil of Sandalwood, sold at all drug stores. Ask for circular, or send for one to 35 and 37 Wooster street, New York.

ADVERTISERS

Are invited to investigate The American Newspaper Union List of Newspapers—the largest combination of papers in the United States—and compare the prices with other lists. It is the cheapest and best advertising medium in the country.

THE AMERICAN
Newspaper Union
List of 1085
WEEKLY NEWSPAPERS
COMPRISES
NEW YORK NEWSPAPER UNION LIST,
CHICAGO NEWSPAPER UNION LIST,
MILWAUKEE NEWSPAPER UNION LIST,
ST. PAUL NEWSPAPER UNION LIST,
CINCINNATI NEWSPAPER UNION LIST,
SOUTHERN NEWSPAPER UNION LIST.

The prices of advertising are now about one-half of last year's rates, and are as follows:

ONE INCH OF SPACE—14 AGATE LINES—WILL BE INSERTED ONE WEEK IN THE

New York Newspaper Union List for .... $[illegible]
Chicago Newspaper Union List " .... [illegible]
Milwaukee Newspaper Union List " .... [illegible]
St. Paul Newspaper Union List " .... [illegible]
Cincinnati Newspaper Union List " .... [illegible]
Southern Newspaper Union List " .... [illegible]

OR IN THE ENTIRE LIST OF

1085 Newspapers One Week for $87.50

A ONE-INCH advertisement will be inserted ONE YEAR in the Entire List of 1085 Newspapers for $2,275,
or about $2 00 per paper a year.

Send for Catalogue. Address,
BEALS & FOSTER,
(Times Building.)
41 Park Row, NEW YORK.

O. N. U. No. 34

WHEN WRITING TO ADVERTISERS, please say you saw the advertisement in this paper.

FRUIT HOUSE PRICES!

GREATER BRGAINS THAN EVER.

All sugars reduced a half cent. All teas down 10 cents per pound. Choice raisins reduced to 7 cts. per pound. Sugar cured hams reduced to 11 cts. per pound. Shoulders reduced to 8 cts. per pound. Pickled pork down to 8 cts. per pound. No. 1 white fish down to $4.50 half barrel.

UCH LOW PRICES HAVE NEVER BEEN KNOWN

Our Tea Trade

Is constantly increasing. We now sell more in a day than we used to in a week—now sell a good tea at 25 cents a pound. Those who prefer a fancy article we have it up to the very finest article 60 and 90 cents per pound. No middlemen between us and our customers. We purchase direct of the importers and sell direct to the consumers, thereby saving them the profits of the speculator, jobber and wholesale dealer. All of these have to have their profits which adds 20 to 30 cents per pound to the tea before it reaches the consumer. This is the only secret of our success, doing away with the middlemen.

Young Hyson Tea,	25, 40, 50, best 90 cents per pound
Gunpowder Tea,	40, 60, best 90 cents per pound
Imperial Tea,	30 70, best 90 cents per pound
Oolong Tea,	25, 50, best 75 cents per pound
Japan Uncolored Tea,	30, 50, best 70 cents per pound
English Breakfast Tea,	50, best 80 cents per pound

SUGARS, SUGARS, SUGARS!

ALL DOWN HALF CENT PER POUND.

Coffee A, 11 cents. Coffee C, 10 cents. Choice Yellow, 10 cents.
Granulated and Crushed, 12 cents. Powdered, 12 cents.

COFFEE! COFFEE!

Our Best Rio, 25 cents. Good Fine Rio, 22 cents. Old Government Java, 30 cents.
Roasted Rio, 22 cents. Best Roasted, 28 cents.

No Advance on Meats.

Best Sugar Cured Hams, 11 cents.
Sugar Cured Shoulders, 8 cents.
Best Pickled Pork, 8 cents.

Syrups.

Cuba 40 and 50 cents.
White Drips, 75 cts. and $1.00.
New Orleans, 50 and 75 cents.

Raisins and Canned Peaches at a Terrible Sacrifice!

The large 3 lb. Can Peaches, 15 cents,
2 lb. Cans, 10 cents.
2 lb. Damsons, 15 cents.

Choice Valencia Raisins, 7 cents.
Strawberries, 10 and 12 cents.
2 lb. Green Gages, 25 cents.

FISH! FISH! FISH!

Harvest time being the great fish season, we laid in a large supply when they were low to supply our customers at the lowest rates.
No. 1 White Fish, half bbls., $4.50 New Pickerel in half bbls., $2.50 No. 1 White Fish in kits, $1.00.
New Pickerel, in kits, 75 cents. Boston Mackerel, in kits, 75 cents and $1.25.
We have a No. 3 White Fish, small but sound fish, half barrels, $1.00.

OILS, OILS, OIL!

Coal Oil per gallon, 20 cents. Headlight Oil per gallon 25 cents. Lard Oil, per gallon, $1.00
Fish Oil per gallon, $1.00. Best Golden Machine Oil per gal. 70c. Machine Oil per gal, 30cts

You can save at least 25 per cent. on the dollar at the

Fruit House, Fort Wayne, Ind

JOHN L. DAVIS,

OF THE

PIONEER HARDWARE STORE,

Would respectfully announce that he has made large additions in every department, and is prepared to furnish everything in the Hardwase line.

He keeps a full stock of

BUILDING MATERIAL.

Whichhe can sell at prices to suit the times. All kinds of

STOVES and TINWARE

on hand. He keeps a first-class TINM R and is prepared to do all kinds of Eaves Trough hangnig Roofing, on short notice, and in a workmanlike manner.

MAIN STRFET, OPPOSITE COURT HOUSF AUBURN, IND

'THE REGULATOR'

DOWN! DOWN! DOWN!

FROM 10 TO 25 PER CENT.

HARNESS, SADELES, COLLARS, WHIPS, &c.,

At my new shop on seventh street, opposite Court House, in old Post Office building. Come and see me and I will sell you a good article for less money than you ever heard of before. All work warranted.

J. I. SMITH.

JAS. CLIFFORD.

WATERLOO, IND.

Keeps constantly on hand the best and choicest brands of all kinds of

Wines and Liquors,

Cigars, Tobaccos, &c.

He also has, in connection with the above a first class

BILLIARD HALL.

To our citizens and the traveling public, we would say that this is the popular resort at Waoo. First door south of the railroad.

FOR SALE.

VALUABLE LANDS.

I offer for sale one section of land, in Kosciusko county, Ind., nine miles south west of Warsaw, adjoining W. Beybi, and a quarter section nearby, which I will sell as a whole or in lots of 40 acres or more, as the purchaser may desire. The land is well improved, well timbered and I will sell low for cash. Or I will sell on time, one-forth down, and the balance in ten years. Also a section in Fulton county on the same terms. For particulars address,

H. HEIST, Kendallville, Ind.

ELSWORTH, ANDREW & CO.

Have opened for the Spring Trade of 1877, an elegant line of

BRUSSELS & INGRAIN

CARPETS

In all the new and elegant designs; and will give very low figures to

CASH BUYERS.

A full line of

OIL CLOTHS,

MATTINGS.

LACE CURTAIS.

WINDOW SHADES,

STAIR RODS,

RUGS and MATS.

And a splendid stock of

WALL PAPER AND DECRATIONS.

We solicit inspection from Auburn and vicininy,
ELLSWORTH, ANDREW & CO.

26 East Berry Street,
Fort Wayne, Indiana.

J. G. FLEDDERMAN

No. 27, East Main-St.

FORT WAYNE, IND'A

as the larhest and fines stock of

CLOTHS, COATINGS, CHEVIOTS,

AND

CassimereS

in Ft. Wayne. The finest line of

Made up Clothing

ever shown in Fort Wayne

Youths' and Children's Clothing!

Furnishing Goods, &c.

Merchant Tailoring

All work done in all the latest styles, promtly attended . Go and see his largestock

---

WHOA! WHOA!

We can't stop till we get to

HOUSER'S BOOK STORE!

Where you can find an extesive stock of Standard and Miscellaneous Books. He s a fine selection of

JUVENILE BOOKS.

TOY BOOKS,

Gift Books Bibles, Albums, Card Cases, Writing Desks, Stereoscpes, Pocket Books, Chromos, Pictures, Picture Frames, Stereseopic Views, Chess, Checker, Chess Boards, Dominoes, Games in great variety.
Johnson's Celebrated Gold Pens & Pencils.

Wall and Window Paper,

Window Shades a Fixtures a specialty, and a host of other useful and beauti aaticles, Main-st., Auburn, Ind.

Geo. De Wald & Co.

FORT WAYNE, IND.

Have always on hand the largest and best stock of Dry Goods and Ladies Dress Goods in the city. Our citizens when of visiting Fort Wayne, should not fail call and examine their stock

DRY GOODS.

They can make it to the interest of every person who trade with them. They buy for cash and sell for cash, keep the best goods and sell for one price. Also agents for the Domestic Paterons
Their store is located at No. 1 Columbia Street.

GEO. DEWALD & CO.

STILL AHEAD AT F. E. DAVENPORT'S DRUG STORE!

A FINE ASSORTMENT OF

Fine Albums, Stereoscopes, Stereoscopic Views, Toilet Articles, Perfumery, Brushes &c.

School Books suitable for use in the Auburn and country schools, Writing paper, Pens, Inks, Copy Books, Slates, &c. Also a full line of Drugs and Medicines.

Perscriptions Carefully Compounded

The finest Tobaccos and Cigars to be found in the county Remember the place

DAVENPORT'S.

West of the Court House, Auburn, Ind.

RAIL ROADS.

Lake Shore & Mich Southern R R

AIR LINE DIVISION.

On and after June 10 1877, trains will run as follows:

GOING WEST

	Special Ex.	Pacific Ex.	Accm
Toledo	11 17a m	12 01 a m	4 00 p m
Wauseon	12 15 "	1 07 "	5 30 "
Bryan	1 00 "	1 50 "	6 20 "
Butler	1 35 "	2 25 "	7 10 "
Waterloo	[illegible] "	[illegible] "	7 30 "
Sedan	2 00 "	2 49 "	7 40 "
Corunna	2 07 "	2 54 "	7 47 "
Kendallville	2 20 "	3 05 "	8 04 "
Ligonier	2 57 "	3 40 "	8 50 "
Goshen	3 2[illegible] "	4 13 "	9 25 "
Elkhart	3 50 "	4 35 "	10 00 "

GOING EAST.

Elkhart	7 58 p m	9 50 p m	7 00 "
Goshen	8 10 "	10 10 "	7 25 "
Ligonier	8 35 "	10 42 "	8 02 "
Kendallville	8 49 "	11 17 "	8 45 a m
Corunna	8 56 "	11 31 "	9 00 "
Sedan	9 00 "	11 36 "	9 05 "
Waterloo	9 05 "	11 45 "	9 15 "
Butler	"	12 01 a m	9 35 "
Bryan	"	12 40 "	10 17 "
Wauseon	"	1 25 "	11 12 "
Toledo	"	2 40 "	12 30 "

CHAS. PAINE, Gen. Supt.
J. W. CARY, Gen Tic. Agt
J. H. CURTIS, Division Su

Pittsburg, Ft. W. & C. R. R

Condensed time card June 24, 1877.

GOING WEST.

	No 1 Fast ex.	No. 7 Pac. ex.	No. 3 Nigh ex	No 5 Mail.
Pittsburgh	11 45 pm	9 00 am	1 50 pm	6 00 am
Rochester	12 53 am	10 15	2 58	7 45
Alliance	3 10	12 50 pm	5 35	11 00
Orrville	4 46	2 30	7 12	12 55 pm
Mansfield	7 00	4 40	9 20	3 11
Crestl'e ar.	7 30	5 15	9 45	3 50
" lv.	7 50	5 40	9 55
Forest	9 25	7 55	11 15
Lima	10 40	9 00	12 25 am
Ft. Wayne	1 20 pm	11 55	2 40
Plymouth	3 45	2 46 am	4 55
Chicago	7 00	6 20	7 58

GOING EAST

	No. 4 Night ex	No. 2 Fast ex.	No. 6 Pac. ex	No. 8 Mail
Chicago	9 10 pm	8 30 a.m	5 15 pm
Plymouth	2 46 am	11 25	9 03
Ft. Wayne	6 55	2 10 pm	11 30
Lima	8 55	4 05	1 30 am
Forest	10 10	5 20	2 48
Crestl'e ar.	11 45	6 55	4 25
" lv.	12 05 pm	7 15 pm	4 35	6 05am
Mansfield	12 35	7 44	5 05	6 55
Orrville	2 30	9 38	7 10	9 15
Alliance	4 05	11 15	9 00	11 20
Rochester	6 22	1 21 am	11 06	2 [illegible]pm
Pittsburgh	7 30	2 30	12 15	3 30

Trains Nos 3 and 6 run daily. Train No. 1 leaves Pittsburg daily except Sunday. Train No 4 leaves Chicago daily except Saturday. All others daily except Sunday.

F. R. MYERS,
Gen Pass. and Ticket Agent.

Ft. Wayne, Jackson & Sag. R. R

Short Line Between

Michigan and the South.

Time card in effect June 21—run by Chicago time

Going North.

Stations	Exp.	Accom.	Mail
Louisville	7 15pm
St. Louis	6 45
Indianapolis	4 25am
Ft Wayne	10 50 "	1 30	4 15p
Auburn	11 40 "	3 03	5 13
Waterloo	11 58 "	4 00	5 31
Summit
Pleasant Lake
Ar Angola	12 58 pm	5 30	6 35
Reading	1 49 "	7 05	7 32
Bankers	2 04 "	7 30	7 47
Jonesville	2 30 "	7 55	8 05
Jackson	3 45 "	9 40	9 20
Detroit	6 [illegible]0 "	12 05	[illegible]
Grand Rapids	9 30 "	4 30	6 55
Lansing	6 00 "
Saginaw	9 13
Bay City

Going South.

Stations	Exp.	Accom.	Mail
Bay City
Saginaw	7 15 am		3 35p
Lansing	10 00		7 25
Grand Rapids	6 20 "	11 56a	7 00
Detroit	7 00 "		[illegible]
Jackson Dep	11 40 am	5 10p	6 0[illegible]a
Jonesville	12 [illegible] pm	7	7 12
Bankers	1 07 "	7	7 30
Reading	1 22 "	8 15	7 45
Ar Angola	2 12 "	9 43	8 41
Pleasant Lake
Waterloo	2 47 "	10 45	9 22
Auburn	3 02 "	11 31	9 36
Auburn Junction		1 00a
Fort Wayne Arrive	3 55 "		10 35
Indianapolis	9 45 "		5 55
St. Louis	5.30 am		7 35
Louisville	8 30 am		10 50

All trains daily except Sunday.

P. S. LOOMIS, Pres't

S. K. HOOPER Gen. Ticket Ag't.

Baltimore & Ohio Railroad.

IN EFFECT JUNE 24, 1877.

GOING WEST.

STATIONS;	Express	Express	Com'l A
lv New York	8 15am	8 25pm
Philadelphia	12 15pm	11 30
Baltimore	4 30	6 15am
Washington	5 45	7 55
Wheeling	8 00am	10 05pm	4 30pm
Bellaire	8 30am	10 20	5 00
Barnesville	9 45	11 46	6 18
Cambridge	10 46	1 00am	7 30
Zanesville	11 55	2 10	8 50
ar Newark	1 00pm	3 15	10 00
Columbus	3 00	5 00
Shawnee	4 30	10 0
lv Columbus	12 40	10 45pm
Newark	2 00	3 30am	4 20pm
Mt Vernon	3 00	4 35	6 25
Mansfield	4 28	6 15	10 00
Shelby	4 51	6 47	11 35
Monroeville
ar Sandusky
lv Chicago Junction	6 00	7 45	7 55am
Republic
Tiffin	7 15	8 30	10 20
Fostoria	7 45	9 10	11 40
Deshler	8 50	10 00	1 50pm
Defiance	9 53	11 06	3 50
Hicksville	10 41	11 53	6 13
Auburn Junction	11 22	12 30pm	7 50
Garrett	11 40pm	1 05	8 00am
Avilla	11 55	1 24	8 24
Albion	12 17	1 47	9 04
Milford Junction	1 08	2 37	10 34
Walkertown Junction	2 33	3 53	1 05pm
Chicago	5 40	6 40

GOING EAST.

Chicago	8 50am	9 40pm
Walkertown Junction	12 26pm	1 14am	11 29am
Milford Junction	1 45	2 34	2 37pm
Albion	2 30	3 10	4 15
Avilla	2 50	3 30	4 55
Garrett	3 20	3 55	6 00am
Auburn Junction	3 27	4 02	6 17
Hicksville	4 07	4 42	7 42
Defiance	4 54	5 27	9 10
Deshler	5 49	6 23	11 35
Fostoria	6 47	7 21	2 14pm
Tiffin	7 15	7 54	3 20
Republic
Sandusky
Monroeville
Chicago Junction	8 40	9 30	1 30
Shelby Junction	9 15	10 06	3 05
Mansfield	9 44	10 36	4 28
Mt. Vernon	11 14	12 06pm	7 40
Ar Newark	12 15a.m	1 10	9 45
lv Columbus	12 40	3 40
Shawnee	10 25
Newark	12 45am	2 05	5 55am
Lv Zanesville	1 50	3 10	7 10
Cambridge	2 51	4 20	8 14
Barnesville	3 53	5 10	9 23
Ar Bellaire	5 05	6 20	10 40
Wheeling	6 00	7 40	11 55
Washington	7 20pm	7 50am
Baltimore	8 30	9 00
Philadelphia	3 10am	1 15pm
New York	6 25	5 05pm

Zanesville Accommodation leaves Zanesville daily except Sunday at 6:40 a. m., and [illegible] at Columbus at 9:45 a. m.
Express trains run daily, other [illegible] daily except Sunday.

L. M. COLE, Gen. Tick. Agt.

Detroit, Eel River & Illinois R. R.

TAKE EFFECT JULY 2, 1877.

GOING EAST.

	MAIL No. 2	ACCOM. No. 6	LOCAL FT No. 8
v. Logansport	7 45am	7 00	7 00
Mexico	8 27	8 07	8 27
Denver	8 37	8 25	9 00
Chili	8 45	8 39	9 20
Roann	9 03	9 06	10 06
Laketon	9 20	9 32	10 50
N. Manchester	9 31	9 50	11 10
Liberty Mills	9 40	10 05	11 37
Collamer	9 55	10 27	12 10pm
S. Whitley	10 00	10 35	12 36
Columbia City	10 25	11 15	1 30
Cohen's	10 43	11 43	2 20
Churubusco	10 56	12 00	2 53
La Otto	11 20	12 34pm	3 55
Cedar Creek	[illegible]	12 46	4 15
Auburn Junct'n	11 43	1 07	4 55
Auburn	11 48	1 13	5 10
Butler	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]

Going West.

	No. 1	No. 5	No. 7
Logansport ar	6 50pm	1 00pm	5 30pm
Mexico	6 16	12 00 m	4 20
Denver	6 07	11 46am	4 00
Chili	6 00	11 35	3 20
Roann	5 47	11 18	2 40
Laketon	5 32	10 50	2 00
North Mancester	5 23	10 35	1 33
Liberty Mills	5 17	10 21	1 08
Collamar	5 05	10 05	12 30am
South Whitley	5 02	10 00	12 20
Columbia City	4 40	9 21	10 35
Collin's	4 21	8 57	9 49
Cherubusco	4 14	8 42	9 26
La Otto	3 50	8 10	8 43
Cedar Creek	3 45	8 00	8 28
Auburn Junction	3 27	7 40	8 00
Auburn	3 20	7 34	7 34
Butler lv	2 45	6 53	6 20

FRANK J. HECKER,
Gen. Sup't

Ft. Wayne, Muncie & Cin. R. R.

Muncie Route.

THE SHORT LINE TO INDIANAPOLIS,

—AND—

THE SOUTHWEST.

Time Card in effect July 1st, 1877.

STATIONS.	GOING SOUTH. 1. Mail.	3. Express.	5. Accom
FORT WAYNE	6 10 am	6 35 pm
Bluffton	6 17 am	7 45 pm
Montpelier	6 53 am	8 20 pm
Hartford	7 20 am	8 43 pm
MUNCIE	8 10 am	9 30 pm	5 00 a m
Newcastle	9 05 am		6 35 p m
Cambridge City	9 45 am		7 45 p m
Connersville	10 20 am		8 56 p m
Cincinnati	1 20 pm		11 40 p m
INDIANAPOLIS	10 25 am	11 08 pm
Louisville	10 50 pm	8 30 am
Terre Haute	3 15 pm	1 50 am
St. Louis	9 00 pm	8 30 am

STATIONS	GOING NORTH 2 Mail	6 Express.	4 Accom.
St. Louis		8 00 am
Terre Haute		2 55 pm
Louisville		3 30 pm
Cincinnati	[illegible] am		7 00 am
Indianapolis		8 20 pm
Connersville	10 [illegible]0 am		10 40 am
Cambridge City	11 15 am		11 44 am
New Castle	11 50 am		12 55 pm
Muncie	12 45 pm	10 45 pm	2 30 pm
Hartford	1 36 pm	11 31 pm
Montpelier	2 01 pm	11 57 pm
Bluffton	2 40 pm	12 33 pm
Fort Wayne	3 50 pm	1 45 am

All trains daily except Sunday. Trains run on Columbus time Through cars attached to trains 1 and 4, and run between Fort Wayne and Indianapolis via Muncie.

GEO. W. MULLEN, Act'g Gen. Tick. Ag't.
W. W. WORTHINGTON, Gen. Supt.

JUST RECEIV'D

—AT—

J. ABRIGHT'S

Fine Gold and Plated Jewelry,
Ladies Gold Watches,
American Watches,

Rogers & Bro. Silverware,

A splendid line of imported Vases
Watch Chains, magnificent
Holiday Gifts, Lockets,
Ladies Sets, Gents

GOLD & SILVER SET

Sleeve and Collar Buttons, Jet
Shell and Horn Jewelry,
All at astonishingly

LOW PRICES.

Watches and Jewelry repaired on [illegible] tice and in good style.

MEEKS & WYER,

Our energetic

PLASTERS

Will do you a good job at reasonable rates. They always give satisfaction and are prompt in their work. Those having plastering to do should give them a call. no21 6w

---

READ THE FOLLOWING

Shearer & Wilson,

HAVING ERECTED A

STEAM PLANING MILL

Are now prepared to do all kinds of

Plaining,
Surfacing,
Matching Flooring
Scroll Work,
Mouldings,
Re-Sawing, &c.

DOORS AND SASH!

We are adding facilities for the manufacture of doors and sash to order, and will give special attention to this branch.

CONTRACTORS.

We also make a specialty of contracting for the erection of residences, barns and other buildings, and guarantee good work at reasonable figures. Mill on South Jackson Street, Auburn, Indiana.

SHEARER & WILSON.

Recorder's Office

THE AUBURN COURIER.

Devoted to the Interests of the Democratic Party and to the Collection of Local and General News.

Volume 7. AUBURN, DeKALB COUNTY INDIANA, SEPTEMBER 6th, 1877. Number 36.

The Auburn Weekly Courier
PUBLISHED EVERY THURSDAY, BY
TOM. C. MAYS.
One Year.........$2. | Six Months......

Advertising Rates.

Space.	1m.	3m.	6m.	1 y.
1 Square	2 00	5 00	7 00	12 00
¼ Column........	6 00	12 00	18 00	30 00
½ Column........	10 00	18 00	30 00	50 00
1 Column........	15 00	30 00	50 00	100 00

Local Notices 10 cents per line, first insertion 5 cents each insertion thereafter. Business cards Five Dollars.

BUSINESS DIRECTORY

ATTORNEYS.

WOODHULL and CROXTON,

ATTORNEYS AT LAW Angola, Indiana. Practice in Steuben and DeKalb Counties.

H. C. PETERSON,

ATTORNEY AT LAW and notary public. Office over Davis' hardware store, Auburn, Ind.

J. W. RICKEL,

ATTORNEY AT LAW Auburn, Ind. Special attention given to collections. Office over First National Bank.

A. F. PINCHIN

ATTORNEY AT LAW and notary public, Butler, DeKalb Co., Ind. Insurance and real estate business promptly attended to.

GUY PLUM

ATTORNEY AT LAW and notary public. Office in the Court House. Special attention paid to the collection of claims. Also agent for Home Insurance Company.

D. D. MOODY. F. V. HOFFMAN.

Moody and Hoffman,

ATTORNEYS AT LAW. Office in Odd Fellows' building, opposite Court House, Auburn, Ind.

BEST and McCLELLAN.

ATTORNEYS AT LAW, Waterloo, Ind. Will practice in the Courts of DeKalb & Steuben counties. Liberal Advances Made on all first-class Claims left in our hands for collection.

COURTS IN STEUBEN CO.	COURTS IN DE KALB CO
1st Monday in February	3rd Monday in Feb.
4th Monday in April	2nd Monday in May
1st Monday in September	3rd Monday in Sep.
Monday in November	2nd Monday in Dec.

B. WES. M'BRIDE. J. L. MORLAN. W. H. LEAS

McBRIDE, MORLAN and LEAS

ATTORNEYS AT LAW, NOTARIES PUBLIC, COLLECTING AND INSURANCE AGENCY Office over Fisher's Clothing Store, corner of Wayne and Marion streets, Waterloo, Ind. Will practice in all parts of the State. Especial Attention given to collections in DeKalb, Steuben, LaGrange and Noble counties.

COURTS IN DEKALB CO.	COURTS IN STEUBEN CO.
4th Monday in February	1st Monday in Febr'y.
3rd Monday in May.	4th Monday in April
4th Monday in Septem'r	1st Monday in Sept'r.
3rd Monday in Decem'r	4th Monday in Nov'r.

PHYSICIANS.

DR. J. A. COWAN,

PHYSICIAN & SURGEON, Auburn, Ind. Office on Main street, over Central Grocery.

J. J. LITTLEFIELD,

PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON. Office over McIntyre's Block, Auburn, Ind. All calls promptly attended to.

W. S. ALLEN.

PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON, Office West of Court House, on Main Street, over Eldridge's store. Same office lately occupied by Dr. Cowan.

DR. TRITCH,

HOMEOPATHIC PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON Special attention given to Surgery and Chronic diseases. Office in Case's Block, Auburn Indiana.

DR. S. B. JOHNSTON.

DENTIST, WATERLOO, INDIANA, Does all work in the line of his profession at as low figures as possible. Special attention given to gold filling and making new teeth. All work warranted.

HOTELS.

AVELINE HOUSE,

MILLER & MORITZ, Prop's., corner Calhoun & Berry Sts., Fort Wayne, Ind.

BUTT'S HOTEL,

FORMERLY THE BIGLER HOUSE, JOHN BUTT & A. B. RICHARDS, Proprietors, Waterloo, Ind. Free omnibus to and from all trains Good sample rooms on first floor.

Central House,

MR. M. C. MARKEL, Prop. Corner Main and Seventh streets. Good Sample Rooms for Drummers.

MAYER HOUSE.

FORT WAYNE, IND., Messrs TAM & SCARBROUGH Lessees. Good Sample Rooms

SANDS HOUSE.

COR. WABASH AVE. & MADISON ST. CHICAGO, ILL. New House, elegantly furnished. Only $2.00 per day.
GEO. S. PALMER, O. SANDS,
[Late of City Hotel,] Clerk. Proprietor

MISCELLANEOUS.

DRS. SEBRING & SWARTS.

HAVING formed a Copartnership for the practice of Medicine and Surgery, offer their professional services to the citizens of Auburn and vicinity. Will give prompt and faithful attention to all business pertaining to their profession. Special attention given to Chronic Diseases of females and diseases of the eye and ear. One of said firm to be in the office on Saturdays. Office on Main street. Over Shaffer's Furniture Room.
DRS. D. A. SEBRING, & D. J. SWARTS, M. D.

H. Wartenslaben

PAINTER and paper hanger. House painting a specialty. Residence corner Williams and Cedar street.

PRINTING.

COURIER OFFICE,

JOB PRINTING neatly executed. Fine work a specialty. Office in Odd Fellows' Building 2nd floor.

Come to Auburn when you want to buy a good piano, and M. F. Long Co. will sell you one as low as the lowest.

Sheriff's Sale,

BY virtue of an execution to me directed from the Clerk of the DeKalb Circuit Court, in a cause wherein Bank of New Carlisle is plaintiff, and [illegible] Wight and Solomon Hess defendants requiring me to make the sum of two hundred and sixty-eight (268) dollars and sixty-eight (68) cents, with interest on said judgment and costs, I will expose at public sale to the highest bidder, on

SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 8th, 1877

Between the hours of 10 o'clock a. m., and 4 o'clock p. m., of said day at the door of the Court House of DeKalb County, Indiana, the rents and profits for a term not exceeding seven years of the following real estate to-wit:

The north-west quarter of the south-east quarter and the south half of the south-east quarter and the east half of the east half of the south-west quarter all in section seven [7] township thirty-four [34] north of range fifteen [15] east all in DeKalb County Indiana.

If such rents and profits will not sell for sufficient sum to satisfy said judgment interests and costs, I will at the same time and place, expose at public sale the fee simple of said real estate, or so much thereof as may be sufficient to discharge said judgment interests and costs.

Sale will be made without any relief whatever from valuation or appraisement laws.

JOHN C. ST CLAIR, Sheriff.
Auburn, Indiana, August 8th, 1877.
J. W. Rickel Attorney for plaintiff. Pf. $6.50.

Sheriff's Sale.

BY virtue of an execution to me directed from the Clerk of the DeKalb County Circuit Court in a cause wherein The First National Bank of Auburn is plaintiff and Samuel Tate, et al are defendants, requiring me to make the sum of two hundred and thirty-seven dollars (237) and six cents, with interest on said judgment and costs, I will expose at public sale, to the highest bidder on

SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 8th, 1877.

between the hours of 10 o'clock a. m. and 4 o'clock p. m. of said day, at the door of the Court House in DeKalb County, Indiana, the rents and profits for a term not exceeding seven years, of the following real estate, to-wit:

Lot number one hundred and thirty-five (135) and the west half of lot number one hundred and thirty six (136) in Egnew's second addition to the town of Butler, DeKalb county, Indiana.

If such rents and profits will not sell for a sufficient sum to satisfy said judgment interests and costs, I will at the same time and place, expose the fee simple of said real estate, or so much thereof as may be sufficient to discharge said judgment, interest and costs.

Sale will be made without any relief whatever from valuation or appraisement laws.

J. C. St. CLAIR, Sheriff,
Guy Plum, Att'y for plaintiff.
Auburn, Ind, Aug. 15, 1877. Pr. fee $8.50.

Sheriff's Sale.

BY VIRTUE of a certified copy of a Decree to me directed from the Clerk of the De Kalb Circuit Court, in a cause wherein Albert C. Dawson is plaintiff, and John E. Rinehart is defendant, requiring me to make the sum of twenty-six dollars and forty-five cents (26.45), with interest on said decree and costs, I will expose at public sale, to the highest bidder, on SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER, 15, 1877.

between the hours of 10 o'clock A. M. and 4 o'clock P. M., of said day, at the door of the Court House in DeKalb county, Indiana, the rents and profits for a term not exceeding seven years, of the following real estate. Thirteen and one-half acres of land described as follows to-wit:

The west half (½) of the south half (½) of the south-east quarter of section thirty-six, (36) township thirty-five [35] north of range twelve [12] east, containing forty acres more or less in DeKalb County Indiana.

If such rents and profits will not sell for a sufficient sum to satisfy said decree, interest and costs, I will at the same time and place expose to public sale the fee simple of said real estate, or so much thereof as may be sufficient to discharge said decree, interests and costs. Said sale will be made without any relief whatever from valuation or appraisement laws.

J. C. StCLAIR, Sheriff DeKalb Co.
H. C. Peterson Attorney for plaintiff.
Aug. 22nd A. D. 1877. Ptr's. fee $8.75.

Sheriff's Sale.

BY virtue of a certified copy of a decree to me directed from the clerk of the DeKalb Circuit Court in a cause wherein Joseph Kerr, Sr. is plaintiff, and Walter Fenn and Rebecca Dean are defendants, requiring me to make the sum of four hundred and sixty nine dollars and sixty cents, with interest on said decree and cost, I will expose at public sale, to the highest bidder, on

SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER, 8th, 1877,

Between the hours of 10 o'clock A. M. and 4 o'clock P. M. of said day, at the door of the Court House, in DeKalb county, Indiana, the rents and profits for a term not exceeding seven years of the following real estate to-wit:

In lot number fifty-two (52) and fifty-seven (57) in the recorded plat of the town of Vienna in DeKalb county Indiana.

If such rents and profits will not sell for a sufficient sum to satisfy said decree, interests and costs, I will at the same time and place expose to public sale the fee simple of said real estate or so much thereof as may be sufficient to discharge said decree, interest and costs.

Said sale will be made without any relief whatever from valuation or appraisement laws.

J. C. StCLAIR, Sheriff.
By THOS. D. GROSS, Dpt.
L. Coville, Attorney for plaintiff.
Auburn, July 11th, A. D. 1877. P. f. $8.25

Sheriff's Sale.

BY virtue of an execution to me directed from the Clerk of the DeKalb Circuit Court in a cause wherein Solomon Leopold et al is plaintiff, and Charles Klotz is defendent, requiring me to make the sum of four hundred and thirty-six (436) dollars and sixty-three cents, with interest on said judgment and cost, I will expose at public sale to the highest bidder, on

SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 8th, 1877

Between the hours of 10 o'clock a. m. and 4 o'clock p. m. of said day at the door of the Court House of DeKalb County, Indiana, the rents and profits for a term not exceeding seven years, of the following real estate to-wit:

The south one third of lot sixty-six (66) in the original plat of the town of Auburn, DeKalb County Indiana.

If such rents and profits will not sell for a sufficient sum to satisfy said judgment interest and costs, I will at the same time and place, expose at public sale, the fee simple of said real estate, or so much thereof as may be sufficient to discharge said decree, interest and costs.

Sale will be made without any relief whatever from valuation or appraisement laws.

J. C. St. CLAIR, Sheriff.
By THOS. D. GROSS, Dept.
Auburn, Indiana, August 8th, 1877.
Guy Plum, Attorney for plaintiff. Pf. $9.00

Sheriff's Sale.

BY virtue of an execution to me directed from the Clerk of the DeKalb Circuit Court, in a cause wherein Samuel Strong et al is plaintiff, and Eli Kuhlman is defendant, requiring me to make the sum of one hundred and sixty-four (164) dollars and forty-two (42) cents, with interest on said judgement and cost, I will expose at public sale to the highest bidder on

SATURDAY SEPTEMBER, 8th, 1877

between the hours of 10 o'clock a. m., and 4 o'clock p. m. of said day, at the door of the Court house of DeKalb county, Indiana, the rents and profits for a term not exceeding seven years, of the following real estate, to-wit:

Lot number nineteen (19) in Ashley's second addition to the town of Auburn DeKalb County Indiana,

If such rents and profits will not sell for a sufficient sum to satisfy said judgment, interest and costs, I will at the same time and place, expose at public sale the fee simple of said real estate, or so much thereof as may be sufficient to discharge said judgment, interest and costs.

Sale will be made without any relief whatever from valuation and appraisement laws.

J. C. StCLAIR, Sheriff,
THOS. D. GROSS, Dept.
J. W. Rickel Attorney for plaintiff.
Auburn Indiana, August [illegible] 1877. Pf $[illegible]

Special Notice to Pupils of Music.

By special arrangements with Prof. S. B. Morse, the Indiana conservatory of music has become a part of the Fort Wayne College. Great advantage will result from this arrangement to pupils from abroad in reducing the expense of a thorough course of music. Board including furnished rooms, fuel and light, will be provided at an expense ranging from $2.50 to $3.50 per week according to accommodations. Pupils will also be enabled to prosecute other studies at the same time. City pupils who find it more convenient to do so can receive instructions as heretofore at the office of the conservatory Burges Block Fall term begins September 4th. For further particulars address, W. F. Yocum Pres. Ft. W. E. College, or Prof. S. B. Morse, Fort Wayne Ind

FIRST NATIONAL BANK.

The First National Bank of Auburn Indiana tenders to the citizens of DeKalb county its facilities for the trans action of business. We loan money, receive deposits subject to check at sight or payable at a fixed date with a stipulated rate of interest. Sell exchange on New York, Chicago, Toledo and Fort Wayne procure such foreign exchange as may be desired, buy exchange and make collections on all available points, and do all usual and ordinary business done by first class banks. We will also take on deposit for safekeeping valuable papers such as deeds mortgages, notes bonds, agreements etc., guardians, administrators, trustees and all other handling trust funds together with merchants, manufacturers and farmers are solicited to open an account with us. We will deal liberally with all who call.

J. H. FORD, President.
JAMES V. HAZZARD, Cashier.

Excursion to the Rocky Mountains.

The Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe Railroad has arranged with the various railroad lines in the country for special round trip rates to the Rocky Mountains, and has secured the following rates to Denver, Colorado Springs, Canon City, Pueblo and return; from Kansas City and Atchison, $45; St. Louis, $50; Chicago, $65; Quincy, $50; Cincinnatti, $65; Buffalo, $75, and correspondingly low rates from all points east, north and south These tickets are good for 90 days and to stop at all stations west of the Missouri river. Tickets are on sale at all principal stations throughout the country. This is the new route to Denver through the garden of Kansas and Colorado. Send for maps, circulars, time tables, etc., to

T. J. ANDERSON,
Gen. Pass. Agent, Topeka, Kan.

A Few Words of Wisdom.

For all who are seeking new homes in the West. If you are going to change your location, by all means you should keep on about the same latitude as where you formerly lived for in this way you will escape the severe climatic changes in the weather incident to the extreme North or South, having none of these things to contend with, your self and family are healthy and you become a producer at once, consequently soon independent; on the other hand should you listen to the many glowing accounts of the sunny South, or the mild climate of the North, and thus be induced to try your fortunes there, you will find the reality is not all your fancy painted it. If you go South it usually takes about two years to get acclimated to the climate, during which time, not being able to work, yourself and family are consumers, besides being constantly exposed to the malarial fevers which abound there, and the experience of many is that they return discouraged, leaving not a few loved ones beneath the sod in the sunny South. Therefore, in going West keep on about the same latitude which will insure health and happiness. There are most excellent lands in Northern Missouri on the line of the Hannibal & St. Jo. R. R. and in Kansas, Nebraska and Colorado, "just as cheap and good as the sun ever shown upon," why not accept a certainty rather than run the risk of losing all? Through day and sleeping cars are run from Toledo, Ohio, via the Wabash R'y and Quincy to St. Jo., Atchison and Kansas city, and from Chicago via Chicago, Burlington & Quincy R. R., whereby all arre furnished firstclass accomodations.

Send for map and time-table to J. A. S. Reed, 59 Clark street, Chicago, C. W. Boardman, Decatur, Ill., or T. Penfield, G. P. and T. A., Hanibal, Mo.

NOTICE TO TAX PAYERS.

Under the new law the second installment of taxes becomes delinquent if not paid on or before the first Monday in November, then ten per cent must be added. The law requires the Treasurer to make said tax by distress of sale of personal property on or before the fifteenth day of December if not otherwise paid. I would therefore urge all to pay up their second installment and save me the unpleasant duty of sending out collectors.

DANIEL GONSER, Treas.

He Couldn't Drink Wine.

There was a notable youth who, on being urged to take wine at the table of a famous statesman, in Washington, had the moral courage to refuse. He was a poor young man just beginning the struggle of life. He brought letters to the great statesman, who kindly invited him home to dinner.

"Not take a glass of wine?" said the great statesman, in wonderment and surprise.

"Not one single glass of wine?" echoed the statesman's beautiful and fascinating wife, as she rose glass in hand, and, with a grace that would have charmed an anchorite, endeavored to press it upon him.

"No," replied the heroic youth, resolutely, gently repelling the proffered glass.

What a picture of moral grandeur was that! A poor, friendless youth refusing wine at the table of a wealthy and famous statesman, even though proffered by the fair hand of a beautiful lady.

"No," said the noble young man, his voice trembling a little and his cheek flushed, "I never drink wine, but," here he straightened himself up and his words grew firmer, "if you have got a little good old rye whisky I don't mind trying a snifter!"

A Business Man's Habits.

A sacred regard to the principles of justice forms the basis of every transaction, and regulates the conduct of the upright man of business.

He is strict in keeping his engagements.

Does nothing carelessly nor in a hurry.

Employs nobody to do what he can easily do himself.

Keeps everything in its proper place.

Leaves nothing undone which ought to be done, and which circumstances permits him to do.

Keeps his designs and business from the view of others.

Is prompt and decisive in his dealings, and does not overtrade his capital.

Prefers short credits to long ones, and cash to credit at all times, either in buying or selling; and small profits in cases with little risk, to the chance of better gains with more hazard.

Is clear and explicit in all his bargains.

Leaves nothing of consequence to memory which he can and ought to commit to writing.

Keeps copies of his important letters, invoices, and business documents, put away in an orderly manner, so that on occasion they may be easily referred to.

Is always at the head of his business, well knowing that if he leaves it, it will leave him.

The Bed Considered as a Garment.

There is still one garment to be considered which generally is not regarded as such. I mean the bed—that piece of clothing in which we spend such a great part of our time. It is equally indispensable to the sick and to the healthy, and at all times it was considered as a sign of bitterest want if a man had no place to lay his head.

The bed is not only a place of rest, it is especially our sleeping garment, and has often to make up for privations endured during the day and the day's work, and to give us strength for tomorrow. You know all the different substances and material used for it. They are the same as our garments are made from. Like them the bed must be airy and warm at the same time. We warm the bed by our bodies just as we warm our clothes, and the bed warms the air which is constantly flowing through it from below upwards. The regulating strata must be more powerful in their action than in our day clothes, because during the rest and sleep the metomorphosis of our tissues and resulting heat becomes less, and because in a horizontal position we lose more heat by an ascending current of air than in a vertical position, where a warm ascending current is in more complete and longer contact with our upright bodies.

The warmth of the bed sustains the circulation in our surface to a certain degree for the benefit of our internal organs, at a time when our production of heat is at the lowest ebb, hence the importance of the bed for the heat and blood economy. Several days without rest in a bed not only makes us sensible of a deficiency in the recruiting of our strength, but very often produce quite noticeable perturbations in our bodily encoLomy, which the bed would have protected us from.—Dr. Pattenkofer in Science Monthly.

The Butler Nickel Steel Plow is the best in market. They are warranted to scour in all kinds of soil. Call at Ensey's and see them. 6t

Why She didn't Believe a Word the Papers Say.

From the Cincinnati Enquirer.

'John,' said Mrs. Sanscript to her husband, one evening last week, 'I've been reading the paper.'

'That's nothing,' grunted John, 'I've seen people before who read newspapers.'

'Yes; but there are several things in the papers I can't understand.'

'Then don't read 'em.'

'What do they mean about the strike, John? What is a strike anyhow?'

'A strike is where they have struck,' and Sondscript knocked the ashes from his cigar.

'I don't grasp your meaning exactly,' said Mrs. S., with a puzzled look. 'Now these strikers have stopped all the railroad trains in the country. Why did they do it?'

'To prevent 'em from running.'

'Yes, but why don't they want trains to run?'

'Because they want more money for running them.'

'Do they pay more for stopping trains than they do for running them?'

'No, you stupid woman.'

'Then why in the world did they stop 'em—why didn't they run more of 'em or run 'em faster? Seem to me that would pay better.'

'Mary Ann, you will never surround the problem.'

'Maybe not, John. Some things are gotten up purposely to bother women. Now, here's a column headed 'Base Ball.' What is a base ball, John?'

'Don't you know what base ball is? Happy woman! you have not lived in vain.'

'Here it says that 'The Hartfords could not collar Cummings' curves.' What under the sun are cummings' curves?'

'It's the way that he delivers the ball.'

'Is the ball chained?'

'No, you booby.'

'Then how does he deliver it?'

'I mean pitches it.'

'Oh! Now here it says Jones muffed a ball after a hard run. What was the ball doing after a hard run?'

'Hadn't you better confine your research to the obituary and marriage columns, Mary, with an occasional advertisement thrown in to vary the monotony?'

'Yes, but John, I want to know. There's Mrs. Racket, over the way, who goes to all the base ball games, and comes back to talk me blind about 'fly-fouls,' 'base hits,' 'sky scrapers,' and all those things. For heaven's sake, John, what is a sky-scraper?'

'Compose yourself, old woman. You are treading on dangerous ground; your feet are on slippery rocks, while raging billows roll beneath.'

'Mercy on me. What do you mean?'

'I mean, my dear madam, that whenever a woman begins to pry about among the strikers, foul balls, base hits, daisy cutters, home runs, and kindred subject's she is in danger of being lost.'

'Well, I confess I'm completely lost to know what the newspaper means when it says Addy stole a base, while the spectators applauded. Have we come to such a pass that society will applause a thief? Why wasn't Addy arrested? Now here's Manning put out by Start, assisted by Carey, and I can't see that he did anything wrong, either Jemima Christopher! Here it says that Pike flew out; I don't believe a word of it. I never saw a man fly yet and I won't believe it can be done till I see it with my own eyes. John, what makes these newspaper men lie so horribly?'

John was asleep, and Mrs. Sanscript turned gloomily, not to say skeptically, to the letter list for information. Newspapers were not made for women.

A most terrible accident occurred at a Pittsburg foundry one day last week. Twenty men were employed in casting a chilled roll, when, as they were pouring the moulton metal into the mould, there was a sudden report followed by a shower of liquid iron. The red-hot metal fled in every direction, dropping upon the men as they fled for their lives. The ladle containing most of the metal, was overturned, and great streams of iron pursued the men. Two of the laborers fell into pits, and the metal poured in upon them, burning them in a terrible manner. Their eyes were burned out of their sockets, and the places filled with huge drops of chilled metal. The red-hot iron burned its way to the bones of the victims. Three men are dying or dead, and eight are terribly injured. The cause of the explosion was a "damp case," or, in other words, the sand with which the mould had been packed, was not sufficiently dried or properly grooved, and the steam generated could not escape.—Sentinel.

How Cheap Cigars are Made.

The room was low and long, with four windows on the north side. Near one of these windows sat a woman about forty years old, bunching cigars from a pile of strippings close by. At another window were two men finishing the cigars, and in the farther part of the room were two beds and a table, with dishes on it. While the pretended dealer was talking with one of the men in regard to the cheapness with which it was possible to manufacture cigars, the door opened, and a ragged little girl entered with a dirty canvas bag on her arm, the contents of which she emptied into a barrel near the door. She then sat down and commenced to strip tobacco from the pile before mentioned. The man who did the talking was very loquacious, and stated that he could sell cigars for about $7.00 a thousand. He said that the wrappers used were of western tobacco, while the fillings were sometimes of "much finer quality." To illustrate the latter assertion he showed the contents of the barrel to which the little girl had contributed. it was half filled with a mass of what might be called garbage, culled from the streets, and consisting of scraps of brown paper, cabbage-leaves, and cigar stumps, some of which were, no doubt, stumps of Havana cigars. The manufacturer then took his customer in to another room opening from the stairway, where there was a kettle in a brick fireplace, and a plank upon which were spread out the gleanings from the barrel, assorted and separated to dry. He showed how the burnt ends of stumps were cut off and the remainder unrolled; how dried cabbage leaves boiled with tobacco stems and sumach leaves, could be converted into "very fine tobacco," and closed his explanations by extolling the virtues tonka bean, valerian and ammonia, as flavoring extracts—New York Tribune.

The Pleasant Lake Fair.

Arrangements have been made to hold a free fair for the people of Steuben and DeKalb counties, at Pleasant Lake, on Thursday and Friday, the 27th and 28th of September next. The fair will be held, as at previous times, in Simmons' park—the nicest place in this country for such an institution. There will be a great and beautiful display of foreign as well as domestic products of the field, shop and house. Some of the prominent live stock raisers of the State have indicated their desire to be present with choice stock. It will be the endeavor of all interested to make this the very best fair ever held at Pleasant Lake. From what has been done heretofore in this line, our people may be assured that this fair will greatly surpass all others. They know how to do it at Pleasant Lake.—Steuben Republican.

Greenbacks
For Bond Holders!
Greenbacks
For Gold Gamblers!
Greenbacks
For National Bankers!
Greenbacks
For the People!
Greenbacks
For all Purposes!

From which money is used interchangable at par with gold and silver, in a sufficient quantity as to promote industry, invite emigration and develope the resources of the country, is what the

CINCINNATI ENQUIRER

Claims is the only remedy for the ills brought upon the country by Legislation and Laws, enacted for the benefit of a Monied Class and the oppression of Labor and Industry.

Government credit sustains our Bonds for the benefit of the wealthy, let the same credit

Sustain Greenbacks

For the benefit of the people who sustain the Government.

Daily Enquirer per year $12.00
Weekly " " " 1.15

Free of postage.
Agents wanted.
Send for specimen copies.

FARAN & McLEAN, Publ'r's,
CINCINNATI, OHIO.

MEEKS & WYER,
Our energetic
PLASTERS

Will do you a good job at reasonable rates. They always give satisfaction and are prompt in their work. Those having plastering to do should give them a call.

BLACKBERRIES AND KISSES.

Blackberries! ripe blackberries!
Will you come and see?
Over all the woods and lanes
They are running free.
Blackberries! ripe blackberries!
Will you come and eat?
Nature bids you to the feast,
Spreads the wild, free treat.

Bob White and Bob-o-Linkum,
With their ladies fair,
Robin Red and Cardinal,
Are already there.
Jenny Wren and every bird
One would wish to see,
Famed for beauty, love, or song,
Join the company.

Sing and eat, and eat and sing,
While the children shout;
And fond lovers 'mong the vines
Wander in and out—
Wander slowly, stooping low,
Lest the fruit they miss;
Ah! I wonder which is sweetest,
Berries, or a kiss?

Which is sweetest, merry Robin?
Tell me which is best."
And he warbled, "Blackberries!
Berries for my nest."
Which is sweetest, happy lovers,
Happy as you sigh?"
Laughing low, they answered me,
"You had better try."

"Children, who in purple juice
Dye your finger-tips,
Purple are your garments dyed,
Purple are your lips.
Through the woods and lanes and fields
Each a welcome guest,
Can you answer what I ask?"
"Blackberries are best!"

"Blackberries, of course, are best;
Who would kisses want?"
Said a sturdy, laughing lad,
Brown and confident.
"Blackberries, of course, are best;
What do you say, Grace?"
And the little lass replied,
"That's, of course, the case!"

But above them sang a bird
In a mocking tongue,
"Wait a little longer, dears,
You are rather young.
Birds who know a thing or two
Well may tell you this—
Blackberries are very good,
Flavored with a kiss."

—Harper's Weekly.

WHAT HE LOST BY IT.

I.

The evening was warm and still, and all the doors and windows in George street were set open, and everybody who could escape from in-door occupation was out for a stroll. The people living here were decent, hard-working men and women, earning enough to keep their families in comfort, and taking an honest pride in themselves and their dwellings. Most of the windows could boast of clean muslin curtains, and the door-steps were as white as hard scouring could make them. There was one house, however, whose door-step could ill bear a comparison with its neighbors; and, as to its curtains, they were drab and dingy, and had been up all the winter.

"Miss Kennaway don't regard appearances, that's certain," said one matron to another, as they took their evening walk together. "If I were her I should be sick of the sight of those frightful drab curtains. And she with a smart young man coming often to the house!"

"Poor thing!" sighed the other woman, a good-natured soul, always ready to find excuses for those the world was hard upon—"poor thing! she can't have a minute to call her own. What with her dressmaking and her mother's long illness, she must be pretty nearly at her wit's end."

"Well, if young Parr don't mind the curtains and that disgraceful door-step of hers, I'm sure I don't," responded the first speaker, sharply. "And here he comes, looking as natty as you please, and walking as if the very ground wasn't good enough for his feet."

William Parr, the promised husband of Fanny Kennaway, was one of those men who are said to be above their station, and are sometimes so very much above it that there is no keeping them in it. William, however, was industrious enough to find favor with the merchant who employed him. Out of the counting-house he held his head high and looked down upon his fellow-clerks, who never ceased to wonder why such a lofty fellow should have courted an humble little dressmaker in George street. But very few men of taste would have been surprised at Parr's choice if they had seen Fanny Kennaway in her seat by the window that evening.

After a long day's work she was resting eyes and hands for a few minutes, and watching for William's coming. Hers was a delicate, clear-cut face, pale as a lily, and serious almost to sadness—a face that seemed to have little in common with the needles and pins and gay stuffs around her. And yet, in a general way, Fanny worked cheerfully enough at her trade. It was only when nursing as well as dressmaking fell to her lot, and a heavy doctor's bill was added to ordinary expenses, that her little body felt itself weary of this great world. But there was no great weariness in the smile that greeted William as he entered the humble room. Like a wise woman, as she was, Fanny always met her lover with a bright look and a cheery voice.

"Come, Fanny," he said, "won't you go for a walk this evening? Your mother is better, so that you surely can be spared."

"O yes, mother can spare me; Mrs. Marks is sitting with her. But there is a dress that must be finished to-night, William."

"I wonder why we never can enjoy ourselves as other people do," muttered Parr, crossly. "You are making a regular slave of yourself, Fanny."

"Well, then, I'll go," she answered, after a little pause, "and I won't be five minutes getting ready."

She tripped off, and soon returned, looking so neat in her walking garb that only an ill-humored man could have found a fault in her. But as they walked away together down the street there was a cloud on William's face; and presently he spoke out his grievance:

"Why don't you get a stylish hat, Fanny, instead of wearing that everlasting bonnet? I can't think how it is; your things last so long, one never sees you in anything fresh and new. For my sake, you ought to be a little smarter in your dress."

Fanny did not tell him that every sixpence she earned was spent on the common necessaries of life, and that all her savings had gone to pay that terrible doctor's bill; but she looked up lovingly into the handsome, gloomy face. William was her first love; she could not wish him changed, even when his magnificent notions caused her some inconvenience. The ornament of a meek and quiet spirit is not always duly valued; and many people might have blamed Fanny for her tameness. But she was one of those women who would rather hear harsh words than speak them.

Instead of chiding, she patiently set herself to bring her companion into a better frame of mind, and she succeeded so well that William almost forgot the old bonnet. And yet, when he had left her at her own door, and was going back to his lodgings, he began to think of it again. It was quite humiliating, he said to himself, for a man in his position to have been seen in the company of such a bonnet as that.

"How are you, Parr?" cried a loud voice. "Splendid evening, isn't it? Come home with me and have supper, will you?" The speaker was a dashing young fellow, son of an auctioneer who was reputed to be making a fortune. It was the first invitation that William had ever had from Tom Derry.

"Thanks," he answered, promptly, "I shall be happy to come."

And then the two set off together, and William was by no means ill-pleased to walk with a well-dressed acquaintance, who nodded familiarly to one or two men in a sphere above him.

The Derrys lived in a pleasant villa, with coach-house, stables and green-house. Voices and laughter were heard in the garden as the young men approached the gate; William caught sight of light dresses fluttering about on the lawn, and remembered certain rumors of the beauty of the Derry girls.

After George street and Fanny's little work-room, it was no wonder, perhaps, that Gloucester Lodge seemed almost an earthly paradise. Julia Derry, the youngest and prettiest of the sisters, was disposed to be very gracious to William. She wore plenty of jewelry and her costume was made in the latest style. After supper she stayed and sang several fashionable songs, with William standing beside her to turn over the music leaves. It was very pleasant, he thought, to see a girl with rings on her white hands, and without the tell-tale roughness on the left fore-finger.

It was the old, old story. After that evening spent at Gloucester Lodge William's visits to George street grew rarer, rarer; and little Fanny drooped visibly. It is not so very hard for a woman to bear up under life's burdens while she has the strong prop of a man's love to lean upon. But if the prop breaks it is well for her if the burdens do not crush her altogether. Fanny, however, was not without a certain quiet fortitude. She felt that her prop was giving way and nerved herself to do without it.

"Fanny," said Mrs. Kennaway, one evening, as the young dress-maker sat sewing in her window seat, "you are not looking well, my child; I wish William would come and take you out. He hasn't been here very often lately, has he?"

"No, mother, not very often."

"I think you are working too hard," continued the poor woman, sighing. "I get well very slowly, Fanny, and the beef-tea and port wine cost a great deal. I've made up my mind, child, to write to my brother at last."

"But, mother, you'll be dreadfully distressed if he doesn't answer. And you have often said that he would never forgive you for marrying my poor father."

"I've been a widow for nearly five years, Fanny. Surely Steven can bury the old grievances in my husband's grave!"

"You know best, mother. But father always spoke of him as a hard man."

"Well, at any rate, I shall make an attempt to soften him. Don't try to talk me out of it, Fanny. I believe it is the right thing to do."

Fanny held her peace, but she had little hope that her uncle Fenwick would reply to his sister's letter. She knew that he was a rich city merchant, several years older than her mother, but she had never seen him, and had founded her opinion of his character solely on her father's dislike to him. The late Mr. Kennaway had been one of those men who have a natural turn for borrowing money, and are generally severe on the friends who refuse to lend. Perhaps Mrs. Kennaway had taken some pains to hide the father's faults from the child's eyes, for Fanny had never discovered them.

"Now, Fanny," said honest Mrs. Marks, bouncing into the little room, "to-morrow's Saturday, and you are going to have a whole holiday. Everything's planned, so you may leave off shaking your head. Mary Baker has promised to come and sit with your mother. My man and I have arranged to take you right off to Durant farm, where my sister lives."

Mr. Marks and her husband were the Kennaways' next-door neighbors. They were a childless couple, and instead of wasting their affections on dogs and parrots they looked out for young people who needed love and sympathy. Fanny had no idea they knew all about her sorrow. She did not realize how easy it is for shrewd eyes to read the signs of a sick heart.

Early the next morning a hired chaise rattled out of George street, containing Fanny and her two friends. Of course it could not be quite a perfect holiday without William; but the girl enjoyed fresh air and rest, and was grateful for kindness. It was a long drive, and when they reached the farm-house Mrs. Marks declared that Fanny had picked up wonderfully. A day or two in the country, she said, would put a little color into those pale cheeks, and brighten the eyes that were dull with watching and working. Ah, poor Fanny!

Durant farm stands upon the outskirts of a wood, which has always been a favorite haunt with picnic parties. The fates had decreed that the Derrys should give a picnic that day; it was early in September, and townsfolk wanted to make the most of the waning summer. Miss Julia Derry wore an entirely new costume, bought for the occasion, and a charming rustic hat adorned with poppies and wheat ears. It was very agreeable to be admired, even by a mere merchant's clerk, and she lavished her sweetest smiles on William Parr.

Arm-in-arm the pair strolled away from the rest of the party. He talked nonsense and she laughed and listened, and led him on, without a thought beyond the hour's amusement. She was wiser in this world's ways than foolish William, whose vanity had been tickled until he really believed that he had made a conquest. He was bending down to his companion, with flushed cheeks and sparkling eyes, when a turn in the path suddenly brought them face to face with Mrs. Marks and Fanny Kenaway.

Even then things might have turned out well, if William had only been true to himself. But there was Fanny in her shabby every-day gown, and the bonnet had gone completely out of fashion; and there was the superb Julia hanging on Parr's arm, and quizzing his betrothed with haughty eyes. The worst part of the young man's nature came uppermost at that moment. He gave one quick glance at Fanny, and then swept on, without bestowing even a bow of recognition on the little dressmaker.

"Well!" said Mrs. Marks, drawing a long breath, "I only wonder that the earth don't open and swallow him up!"

II.

Fanny took her lover's desertion in a very quiet way. She knew that the end had come, and did not try to get any comfort out of a dead hope. When the fire has gone out she is a wise woman who sets herself to take away the ashes and clean out the grate, even when she knows her hearthstone will be cold for many a year afterward. Our little dressmaker went on sewing and snipping as usual, saying never a word about her trouble.

Meanwhile the household burdens were lightened. Mr. Fenwick wrote a kind reply to his sister's letter, and inclosed a sum large enough to supply her with all she required.

"You can get yourself a new gown now, Fanny," said her mother, cheerfully. "It has made my heart ache to see you wearing that old gray thing. I like my little girl to be well dressed."

Brave Fanny! If a sick heart whispered that it didn't matter what she wore nowadays, she never heeded the voice; she chose the material with as much care as if it had been the stuff for her wedding dress, and set about making it up in her best style. When it was finished Mrs. Marks came in and resolutely cleared away the signs of work, and then sent Fanny up-stairs to put on the new gown and go out walking in it.

It was getting late in the afternoon when Fanny returned from her stroll. It seemed to her, as she entered the little parlor, that it was full of people; her mother sat by the window, looking nervous and tearful, yet happy withal; and by her side was an elderly gentleman, talking earnestly.

A little apart from these two was a young man, sitting at the table and turning over the pages of a little volume of poems which had been a gift from William Parr to his affianced wife. Both gentlemen rose quickly as Fanny came in, and the elder introduced himself at once.

"I am your uncle, Steven Fenwick, Fanny," he said, taking her hands. "Give me a kiss, my dear. You are like the daughter I have lost. This is my son, your cousin Walter."

The young man came forward and asked if Fanny were willing to make friends with an unknown relative. His manner was natural, his voice very gentle, and Fanny felt at once that he treated her with as much deference as if she had been a peeress instead of a poor little dressmaker. What he thought of her she did not learn till long afterward; but certain it is that the image of a sweet, pale girl, in a brown dress, haunted Walter Fenwick's mind for many a day.

"Your uncle wants us to go and live with him, Fanny," said Mrs. Kennaway, tremulously. "He is a widower, and has only a housekeeper to take care of him. Shall we go?"

"Will you come and be my child, Fanny?" asked Mr. Fenwick. She turned and looked steadfastly at him for a moment, with her eyes full of tears. And then, slowly and gratefully, she answered "Yes."

Only a fortnight after Mr. Fenwick's visit, the inhabitants of George street ran to their doors to catch a last glimpse of the Kennaways. The two women came very quietly out of the little house, and entered the fly that waited for them and their luggage. Mrs. Marks waved a tearful farewell; her husband stood on the pavement, smiling broadly to hide his real feelings, and then the vehicle rattled away, and the folks went in-doors again, saying that they supposed the rich uncle was going to make a lady of little Fanny.

And how was it, meanwhile, with William Parr? His intimacy with those gay friends, the Derrys, had come to an end with the summer. Julia got tired of his attentions, and snubbed him; her elders said to each other that young Parr's frequent visits were becoming quite a nuisance; even Tom at last gave him the cold shoulder. They were a heartless set, he said to himself, feeling abominably ill-used. And then it suddenly occurred to him that he was only getting the very same measure that he had meted to another.

"It serves me right for treating Fanny badly," he mused. "She was worth a hundred Julias. And she is such a good, forgiving little thing that I almost think she'd made it up with me if I went back to her again."

It was a chilly evening in late autumn when William Parr once more took his way to George street. A host of old recollections came crowding round him as he drew near Fanny's home; he began to wonder how he could have stayed away from her so long, and to be eager for the first glimpse of her sweet face. He knew just how she would look; his fancy painted the glow and brightness that would welcome him. There was a light in her parlor—a warm, cheery beam, that told him he would find her sitting as usual at her sewing.

"I won't make a dozen wretched excuses," thought the young man. "I'll just ask her to forgive me, and tell her that I could not live without her."

He knocked at the door, and stood waiting with a throbbing heart for Fanny to open it. A few seconds passed away, then he heard the inside latch lifted, and stood face to face with a tall, hard-featured woman in a widow's cap.

"Is Miss Kennaway within?" he faltered.

"She doesn't live here," responded the woman, shortly.

"Not live here!" said William. "Then where is she? Can you give me any information?"

"I don't know anything about her. I've heard that some people named Kennaway lived here before I came, but that's all I can tell you."

William turned away from the door like one half stunned. It was all so different from the pleasant and pathetic scene he had been picturing that he could hardly believe in this stern reality. And then, as he still stood dreaming on the pavement, he bethought him of Mrs. Marks. She had been the Kennaways familiar friend, and would surely know something about their change of residence.

Alas! Mrs. Marks' house was quiet and dark. The shutters were closed; not a gleam of light could be seen within, and William's knock remained unanswered.

"That house is empty," said a girl's voice at his elbow, and, looking around, he saw a decently-clad lassie with a parcel under her arm. "The Marks are gone away to live somewhere in the country," she added.

"Can you tell me what has become of Mrs. Kennaway and her daughter?" William asked, eagerly.

"They're gone to London. Some rich gentleman found out they were his near relations, and he has taken them to live with him."

Without another word William walked away, hardly knowing what direction he was taking. Until that moment he had never realized how strong was the tie that had bound him to little Fanny. He had neglected her—trifled with himself and his best feelings—and well-nigh broken her heart; but had he really never ceased to love her? She was gone; she had quietly vanished out of his way, and made no sign.

* * * * * * * *

Three years passed away. William Parr had stepped into the place left vacant by the death of a senior clerk, his salary had been raised, and he had moved into better quarters. Perhaps, if he had sought to renew his intimacy with the Derrys, he might not have been repulsed, but he was now a sadder and wiser man. The sense of loss had never entirely left him, nor had he as yet found anyone who could be what Fanny had been. No tidings of her had ever come to her old lover; in the days of their intercourse she had been silent about her Uncle Fenwick, and William had not even heard his name.

One day it happened that William Parr was dispatched to London to transact some business for his employer. It was winter, but the weather was clear and sunshiny, and when he arrived at the great metropolitan station it wanted an hour to noon. Among the numbers waiting on the platform one figure attracted William's eye at once; it was that of a lady, richly dressed in velvet and sable, who was evidently looking out eagerly for some one in the train. As she caught a glimpse of the face she was watching for, her own brightened and flushed in a way that William well remembered. Just so had she greeted him when he had been wont to pay his evening visits to the little house in George street a long time ago.

A quiet-looking gentleman stepped out of a first-class carriage, and was about to draw her hand through his arm. But William, yielding to a powerful impulse, approached and spoke.

"Fanny—Miss Kennaway," he said, nervously.

She gave a very slight start. For an instant her color deepened; and then she frankly extended her hand.

"Not Miss Kennaway now," she answered, smiling. "This is my husband, Mr. Fenwick—Mr. Parr."

William scarcely knew how he returned the gentleman's salutation. A moment more and Walter Fenwick and his wife had passed on, leaving William to collect his scattered senses. Both had seen plainly that he was far too confused to enter into conversation.

"Poor fellow!" said Walter, looking down tenderly into his wife's face. "I do not wonder that he was agitated by this sudden meeting with his lost love. He is a great loser and I am a great gainer, Fanny."—Cassell's Magazine.

Depredations Upon the Timber Lands.

For a great many years the Government has been systematically robbed by timber thieves in Michigan, Wisconsin, Minnesota and Louisiana. Wherever the Government has owned lands covered with timber of any value the depredations have been continuous and extensive. The thieves go boldly upon Government lands in the proper season and cut as many trees as they can, which they float down the streams and sell to the lumber dealers, who are glad to buy at a minimum price, and ask no questions. In this way the Government lands are rendered valueless. Timber dealers won't buy them because they are as a rule worthless for agricultural purposes. The Government has been endeavoring for many years to put a stop to this robbery, but has not been successful. In many instances the officers of the local land offices have stood in with the thieves, and in almost every instance where measures of any severity have been adopted the cases have been compromised. Since 1854 the Government has received on this account only $150,000, and to get this amount over $50,000 has been expended, while the total loss to the Government foots up million upon million. Upon assuming the duties of Secretary of the Interior, Mr. Schurz had his attention called to this state of affairs, which he at once set about to remedy. He discarded all the methods formerly in use for the correction of the abuse, and proceeded upon a plan of his own. The result is that he has practically put an end to timber depredations, and has in his hands already, through legal seizure, felled timber the value of which amounts to three or four times as much as all that the Government has heretofore recovered in this account. His course has been pursued quietly, and the thieves have had no inkling of his purposes until they found themselves in the meshes of the law. He is daily besieged by letters appealing for mercy or begging for compromise, but he turns to all such petitions a deaf ear. He says he would see the timber burned before he would compromise, and he will not part with a foot of it except at the regular market price.—Washington Cor. Chicago Inter-Ocean.

Poetry of Motion.

The poetry of motion may be seen in two ways at one and the same time. Just watch a bald-headed man in church. To look at him you would think his whole being was absorbed in wrestling with those great problems of theology that the preacher is rolling in upon him like a flood, but it is not so; look closely, and you will see the set teeth, the cocked eye, and vengeance standing out upon his brow. He knows that a fly has been shinning for the last five minutes back and forth and all over his head, but can find no resting place for the sole of his foot. Suddenly as the lightning's flash his hand is describing a circle in the air, and the fly is gracefully making a straight line to further conquests in the other aisle.—Yonkers Gazette.

THE HORN OF PLENTY.

It is Scattering Its Golden Contents Upon the Husbandmen of the West.

The Wheat Yield of the Mississippi Valley.—The Chicago Tribune makes an estimate of the wheat crop of this year in four of the Mississippi valley States, which compares superbly with the crop reports of other years, as follows:

	[illegible] Bushels.	[illegible] Bushels.	[illegible] Bushels.
Minnesota	27,000,000	16,000,000	[illegible]
Iowa	29,000,000	18,000,000	37,000,000
Wisconsin	25,000,000	15,000,000	36,000,000
Kansas	12,000,000	12,000,000	20,000,000
Total	93,000,000	61,000,000	117,000,000

This indicates first, that these four States have 25,000,000 bushels more of wheat to sell than after the unprecedented yield of 1875, and 50,000,000 bushels more than last year—not less than 14,000,000 barrels of flour; second, that Minnesota, which was the seventeenth wheat-growing State in 1860, has grown to the second in 1877, and next year will stand at the head; third, that, adding the unusual yield of Michigan, Indiana, Ohio, and Illinois to this surplus, making allowance for the small crop in California, this country is able to export at least $75,000,000 worth of flour more than last year. These estimates are based on the actual returns from some States and careful observations by cautious and trustworthy men in others. This bonus of seventy-five millions of money will go a good ways towards reviving business during the coming fall, at least on trunk railroads and among the farmers.

The Central Wheat Belt.—The Cincinnati Commercial gives some figures of the wheat production in Ohio, Indiana and Kentucky: The acreage sown was large, the yield heavy, and the time for harvesting propitious. Enough of the new crop has already appeared in the market to make known its quality with certainty. No one locality seems to have been specially favored. The amounts received from all directions are of a superior grade, and are accompanied by the same reports of an enormous yield. The summer of 1874 saw a good crop harvested through Central and Southern Ohio, but the yield through the country generally was hardly more than an average one. The crop just gathered is a gigantic one in all the wheat-growing regions, the memories of the oldest growers and buyers being taken to recall a better one, either as to quantity or quality. Tributary to this market are some heavy wheat-producing areas. Ohio, Indiana and Kentucky abound with wheat fields. The usual yield in these States is about as follows:

	Bushels.
Ohio, average yield	17,500,000
Indiana, average yield	16,000,000
Kentucky, average yield	8,000,000

Good judges estimate this season's crop as below:

	Bushels.
Ohio	25,000,000
Indiana	23,000,000
Kentucky	13,000,000
Total for these three States	60,000,000

The above estimate is a moderate one. There are those, with good data from which to reckon, who make the total yield from the three States 10,000,000 bushels more. Taking the above estimate as the true one, and there are 25,000,000 bushels of wheat in the States named over and above what is needed for home consumption. Of course farmers will also realize from what is consumed in the towns and by the non-wheat-growing class, a by-no-means small amount. The acreage sown and the yield in other States is quite as large as in the three named. Throughout the entire North and West an immense wheat crop of good quality has been harvested.

Corn, though it will be a month yet before the crop is harvested, is far enough along and sufficiently promising to make a good yield almost certain. Early in the summer the crop was backward, and some alarm felt, but the later rain and favorable weather have brought the staple crop of the central States up to a condition of, if anything, more than usual promise. From 3,000,000 to 50,00,000 bushels of corn, grown between the Alleghenies and the Mississippi, are sold annually in foreign countries. This forms, however, but a small fraction of the entire yield, the crop going largely into beef and pork, and to supply the Southern States. The yield in Ohio averages about 100,000,000 bushels a year, and in Indiana not far from the same amount. The crop is a staple and a pretty sure one, and this year likely to be an unusually good one. It is an important item among the farmer's resources, and may be counted with the wheat crop as among the things bidding fair to give a much-needed impulse to the business of the country.

Brief Crop Notes.—Nearly all of the Minnesota wheat tests sixty pounds per bushel.... Crops of every description in the South are the most promising of any since the war. The cotton crop will be the largest ever raised.... Dakota Territory will export over 3,000,000 bushels of wheat this year.... The Connecticut valley tobacco crop is looking very fair, and is expected to yield an average crop of fine Havana cigars.... The recent rains have discouraged the Southern Kansas farmers. Their corn coop will be so large they expect great difficulty in obtaining sufficient lumber to build cribs. .... The Winnipeg Free Press publishes crop reports from all over Manitoba, upon which it bases its belief that the province is finally past the necessity of looking to importation for any portion of its supply of cereals.... J. M. Metcalf, State Statistician for Minnesota, estimates the wheat crop of the State at about 31,000,000 bushels, of which 23,000,000 bushels will be for export.

Galignani's Messenger says that Mme. Adelina Patti has paid M. Escudier, manager of the Italian theater in Paris, 100,000 francs as a forfeit for the breach of engagement. She has also telegraphed to M. Strakosch of New York to say that she accepted his proposals for the United States—namely, 10,000 francs for each performance and a benefit; fifty-one performances guaranteed at more than a half million francs.

The foreman of a jury in Texas, which lately granted a divorce to a woman, married her the same day.

A WOMAN'S LETTER.

BY MARY AINGE DE VERE.

My letter's late by one day,
But truth is, Jenny dear,
Ned Grayson came on Sunday—
It seems he's always here,
He, and young Fred M'Kenzie,
They staid three blessed hours,
And ma was in a frenzy—
He brought some lovely flowers.

I meant to tell you, Jenny,
The news and everything,
But I find there isn't any—
Oh, next week, Ned's to sing
With the Mozart Club at Irving;
I'll manage, dear, to go,
The fates and weather serving—
I don't want ma to know!

Jen, lovers are a nuisance!
George brought the ring last night—
A solitaire, like Susan's;
It gave me such a fright!
A [illegible] wouldn't wear it!
Now, underneath the sun,
Do girls contrive to bear it—
This narrowing down to one?

Poor George, the foolish fellow,
Began to storm and fling,
And turned quite green and yellow—
I hate that sort of thing.
Now, Ned is always quiet;
I think his cool, gray eyes
Would still an Irish riot,
Or make a regiment fly.

But what's so very funny
About him—Ned, I mean—
He hasn't any money;
I heard from Clarence Green
Just how he's situated—
Keeps books for Webb & Ware.
Ah, well—those things are fated!
George owns a million, square.

Yes, dear, Fate trims the corners,
Rough-hew them as we may!
We can't go clad like mourners,
Or weep the livelong day.
But, oh, don't breathe it, Jenny!
I'd marry Ned, you see,
Without one single penny,
If only he loved me!

Ah, well—well—well—that's folly,
But sometimes, Jen, I've thought,
He, too, seemed melancholy;
Quick glances that I've caught,
Looked full of speechless sadness—
There goes a silly tear
To blot the page—with madness
Good-by, pet, George is here.

We dine at Ella Johnson's
P. S.—I must decide;
He won't stand too much nonsense,
The crepe comes full yard wide.
Don't get the buff, it fades so;
Have train and split-up sack,
For organdies are made so.
My heart aches. Love to Jack.

—Scribner for September.

PITH AND POINT.

When do we read of decaying nature? —When autumn turns the leaves.

An artificial florist lately described himself as "head gardener to the ladies."

When can you be said to swallow glass-ware?—When you buy a tumbler and goblet.

The young man who on Wednesday morning said it was nip and tuck, went and tuck a nip.

It was Mr. Emerson, we believe, who made the remark that "old age is not disgraceful, but it is immensely disadvantageous."

An old negro cook says: "Sass is powerful good in everything but children. Dey needs some oder kind of dressin'."

The secret of running a boarding-house profitably is to find out just what your boarders don't want, and then feed 'em lots of it.

A witness on the stand, in reply to a question as to what the character of Mr. —— was for truth and veracity, said, "Well, I should say that he handles truth very carelessly."

It is very, very sad when an absent-minded young man is asked at a church festival what he'll have, and answers: "Beer." But it's just as bad when he tries to suck up his ice-cream with a straw.

"No, George," she said, in response to his question, "it is not true that a string of new belt buckles in a shop window would make any woman lose a train; but," she added, musingly, "sometimes she may have to run a little."

The knocker is plied at Dr. A——'s house with much vigor at 1 a. m. The doctor opens the window. "Who's there?" "It's me. Mr. B—— is very sick. Come quick." "What's wrong with him?" "The same disease that carried off his wife and children last week." The doctor, being the family physician, said, "Give him the same treatment, and, if there is any change, come again."

HAWK-EYTEMS.

The lion is the king of beasts, but the cow is the boss.

Those dreadful Russian outrages are what inrages the Turks. A Russian knoutrage is enough to make any man mad.

When a man is working for his board, and the employer cuts his salary down 50 per cent., then times are indeed what you might call hard, and a man is justified in resorting to extreme measures.

Harper's Bazar says that you may eat corn off the cob, but you must hold it with only one hand. If the cob gets a little the better of you, we suppose you may hold one end of the cob down with your foot.

A great many Americans are very indignant because a tailor in London has a very prominent sign in front of his store, "No orders taken from Americans, unless accompanied with the cash." Don't get angry at him; his head is level. Bless your indignant souls, it would be money in the pockets of lots of our American tailors, right here at home, if they would hang out the same sign.

The other night, a happy young serenader backed up under the window and sang, "When night comes creeping down the hills." But just then one of those slim, green worms that haunt the maple trees came creeping down his back, and the pale starlight was streaked with a howl as long as the wind; and, when daylight came, a party of scientific gentlemen were looking in silent awe at the ruined and dismantled shrubbery where the meteor lit, and eagerly searching for fragments of it.

Every editorial convention that has been held anywhere at any time during the past twenty-five years has discussed something called on the programme "editorial ethics." We do not know what it is, never having seen it used to any recognizable extent by the press, but we have an idea that it has something to do with matters when one editor calls another "a low-bred, light-fingered, perjured son of perdition, wallowing in the fetid filth of a corrupt and decaying political ring;" and the other fellow says back that his contemporary is "a white-livered, black-hearted thief and liar, whose cowardly heart ought to be torn out of his carcass and fed to the ravening crows."

AGRICULTURAL AND DOMESTIC.

[illegible] the Farm.

A [illegible] is one of the most desirable qualities in a horse. Agricultural societies should remember this in making up the[ir] [illegible].

Fowls with [illegible] or [illegible] will communicate [illegible] to the flock if allowed to use the same drinking-vessel.—Poultry Record.

A little sulphur or dry carbolate of lime sprin[kled] in [illegible] of [illegible] hens will [illegible]. [illegible] sulphur [illegible] carbolate, mixed with dry dust [illegible] ashes, makes [illegible] dust bath for hens and little chicks. —Germantown Telegraph.

To prevent [illegible] from splitting, the Toronto Globe says: "Select a small limb from each fork and clear them of leaves and branches. Then bring the split up together, twine the two small limbs together and secure them. The limbs will grow together in time, and keep the split from opening."

Concrete walls do not give satisfaction. There are so many conditions, such as expanding, contracting, etc., that cannot be exactly determined, that they are very apt to settle out of perpendicular, or crack, or in some way fail to make a perfect job. Stone and brick are more reliable.—Rural Home.

Supt. Foster furnishes facts in relation to the superior advantages of using stocks of the Siberian crab for grafting apples. Some Western [illegible] plant the seeds of the crab for this purpose, and their young trees are doing better than on common apple seedlings, where the severe winters often destroy the tenderer roots. This practice would, of course, not be desirable where common-apple stocks prove sufficiently hardy and endure the winter.—Prairie Farmer.

A gentleman writing to the Planter and Farmer gives the following remedy for a choking cow. We suppose it will act as well with other animals; it will be well to remember it. He says that it has never failed in any instance, and has been [illegible] of tim[e] [illegible]. The remedy is to take a [illegible]spoon[ful] of saltpeter, open the animal's mouth and throw it well back upon the tongue, [illegible] the animal [illegible] will either [illegible] in very [illegible] minutes.—Kentucky Live Stock Record.

Here is a valuable table, containing the number of pounds in a bushel of the different articles named:

	Pounds.		Pounds.
Bran	12	Barley	48
Blue g[illegible]	14	Flax seed	56
Shorts	18	Rye	56
Dried [illegible]	22	Shelled corn	56
Oats	32	Onions	57
Dried [illegible]	33	Wheat	60
Hemp [illegible]	44	Clover seed	60
Timoth[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Castor [illegible]	[illegible]

It is well enough known that an animal with a quiet temperament grows and thrives much better than one that is easily excited, shy or wild. In the latter the waste of material is considerably larger, the equilibrium between the organic processes is easily disturbed, and the animal, therefore, more predisposed to disease. Every farmer knows that a horse, for instance, which is quiet and docile needs less food, keeps better, is able to do more work, and is usually also healthier, than one that is always restless, easily excited or wild. Still, spirit and strength must not be mistaken for an excitable temperament. An animal may be spirited and be very docile and quiet.—Chicago Tribune.

An orchard of Northern Spy apples contains about four acres, and is a hog and sheep pasture. It is well seeded in grass, yields a great deal of pasture, and is the first orchard that we have seen this year with anything like a crop of apples. Two years ago we saw it, and it was heavily loaded with apples. Last year Mr. H. said it bore a light crop, and this year about two-thirds of the trees, we should think, are fairly filled with apples, some of them loaded. In addition to the droppings of the sheep and swine, a little manure is scattered over the surface annually. The branches show a fair annual growth of wood, and the foliage is dark and luxuriant. This orchard would seem to afford one evidence that plowing is not essential to the growth of wood or production of fruit.—Rural Home.

About the House.

To Tell Good Eggs.—Put them in water; if the butts turn up, they are not fresh. This is an infallible rule to distinguish a good egg from a bad one.

To Stop Cracks in a Stove.—Wood ashes and common salt, made compact with water, will stop the cracks of a stove, and prevent the smoke from escaping.—Economist.

Good Use for Soap-Suds.—Save your washing suds for the garden; if it is poured over the roots of the plum trees, it will kill the curculio; if turned at the roots of geraniums, roses, etc., it will enhance their beauty tenfold.

The Healing Power of Charcoal.—Charcoal has been discovered to be a sure cure for burns. On laying a small piece of cold charcoal on the burn the pain subsides immediately; and if the charcoal is held on for some time the wound is healed.—Western Farm Journal.

Chili Sauce.—Eighteen ripe tomatoes, two onions, two green peppers, two teaspoonfuls of salt, one teacup of sugar, two and one-half teacups of vinegar, one teaspoonful each of cloves and cinnamon. Chop and mix, boil slowly, and put into glass cans. This makes an excellent sauce for meat.—Cor. Household.

To Keep the Hair in Crimp.—Ladies who have difficulty in making their hair remain crimped will find the following of use: Let five cents' worth of gum arabic be dissolved in a very little hot water and left to stand over night in enough alcohol to make it thin; then bottle. The hair should be wet with the mixture before being crimped.—Springfield Union.

Rules for the Sick-Room.—(1.) Bring in fresh flowers or something new every day; even the commonest green thing is better than nothing. (2.) Don't talk about anything unpleasant. Talk about something that will lead the patient's thoughts away from his aches and pains, and leave him in a cheerful and restful state of mind. (3.) Follow the doctor's directions implicitly. (4.) Never ask a sick person what he wants to eat. If he asks for anything that will not injure him, get it if you can. Never bring him much at a time. A little bit in a dainty dish will sometimes tempt the appetite when a large quantity would cause nausea. (5.) Expect sick persons to be unreasonable. They will fret and complain, no matter what happens, and must be borne with patiently.—Housekeeper.

The United States Senate.

The political complexion of the next Senate, which meets in special session [illegible], is as follows: So[me] [illegible] the political [illegible] of the Senators is at present defined, [illegible] some of the members. Senator Davis, of Illinois, for instance, in this list is put down as an Independent, although he has been placed upon the committees as a Republican. The total number of Republicans is 39; Democrats, [illegible]; Independent Republicans, 1. There are three vacancies, one from South Carolina, caused by the retirement of Senator Robertson, and two from Louisiana, one being the vacancy caused by the retirement of Senator West, and the other being known as the Pinchback vacancy, which has existed for four or five years past. The applicants for the South Carolina vacancy are David T. Corbin, Republican, and M. C. Butler, Democrat. The applicants for the two Louisiana vacancies are William Pitt Kellogg, Republican, and J. B. Eustis and James Lewis, Democrats. It is expected that these three vacancies will be filled by Democrats. In that event the Democrats would have thirty-six members in the Senate. Should Senator Morton not survive, as is gravely feared here now, his successor, upon the appointment of the Governor, would of course be a Democrat. This would leave the Republicans with the scanty majority of two in the Senate, with Davis as an Independent, and in case of the death or resignation of any of the Republican Senators from the States of Alabama, Arkansas, Florida, Mississippi, or South Carolina, the vacancies would be filled by Democrats, who would thus have the working control.—Washington Cor. Chicago Tribune.

A Singular and Fatal Accident.

A row-boat containing five persons, two men and three women, while crossing the Missouri river from Iowa to Nebraska, just below the Union Pacific bridge, at Omaha, during a storm, was struck by lightning. George Stadge, aged 60, was instantly killed. The electric current struck him on the head, passing down one of his arms, tearing his clothes to threads, and went through the bottom of the boat, making a hole through which the water rapidly entered. Almost at the same instant Mrs. Heyer, overcome with terror, raised herself on her feet, frantically threw out her arms, and, tumbling backward into the river, was drowned and swept from the view of her terror-stricken husband forever. The remaining occupants of the boat—Mr. Heyer, Mrs. Keinscheidt and Mrs. Philip Wagner—were greatly benumbed by the lightning shocks, as well as terror-stricken, and were almost helpless. The boat fortunately was carried to the shore by the current just in time to save them from drowning, as it was nearly full of water. The party had been over in Iowa gathering wild grapes.

A Just Judge.

This corporation has a model Mayor—one who enforces the law against all offenders impartially, and who sees the Roman father and goes one better; for, while the historic parent passed judgment upon his own offspring, Mayor T. F. Linde, of Hot Springs, invokes the penalty of the law upon himself. This morning, repairing to the executive office, where a number of evil-doers were awaiting trial, he calmly opened court in the usual form, and called the first case on his docket: "T. F. Linde, for violating ordinance No. 10," and propounded the query, "Guilty or not guilty?" responding promptly, in the character of the accused, "Guilty, your Honor." "The prisoner is fined $5 and costs," said Mr. Linde, as Judge, and entered the record upon his book. Having thus disposed of his own case, he passed on to those of other offenders against the laws, to whom he meted justice in doses according to their deserts.—Hot Springs (Ark.) Cor. Chicago Times.

A Murderer's Suicide.

During the recent riot at San Francisco a large number of army muskets were stored in a corridor of the new prison, and a box of cartridges was dropped in a corner. When murderer Hanks was arrested and led into his cell his eye fell upon the breech-loaders and the ammunition, and he at once resolved never to hang. His friends easily smuggled a Derringer into his cell, but, inasmuch as he had more confidence in a musket than a pistol, he requested another friend to complete his armament from the corridor. At midnight he wrote and sealed a letter to a friend, and then prepared for death, noting the stages with great care on the back of the envelope: "The coolest act of my life." "I tried my Derringer, but it missed fire twice. Now for my musket." "I had to take off my boot to pull the trigger with my toe!" Trigger and toe worked well, for murderer Hanks was found in his cell as dead as the man he had killed.

He Left His Card.

A young man in Rochester went, not long ago, to call upon some ladies. He sent in his card, was kindly received and passed a pleasant evening. The next day one of the young ladies happened to pick up the card again, and on the back he found the following: "One game of billiards, 15 cents; drinks, 20 cents; two games pool, 40 cents; drinks, 20 cents; three games French with Joe, 45 cents; drinks, 60 cents." The card was returned with a note telling the young man that he had lost his memorandum book.

In Love with a Gorilla.

The London World has discovered that woman's affections are sufficiently elastic to include a gorilla. A lady at the aquarium took Master Pongo into her lap and made numerous demonstrations of affection, which he received with an intelligence superior to his years. The keeper strove to carry him off, at which Pongo's admirer exhibited great displeasure, and kept hold of the brute until it was actually forced from her.

Murder and Lynching in Kansas.

A most horrible tragedy was recently enacted in the small town of Oak Mills on the line of the Missouri Pacific road, about six miles north of Leavenworth, Kan., the following particulars of which we glean from a Leavenworth paper: The actors in the tragedy were Robert Scruggs, the murderer, Jasper Oliphant, his father-in-law, and a young man named Groff, the two latter being the victims of Scruggs' drunken frenzy. Scruggs was a wild, dissolute sort of a fellow, and when in his cups was rather unruly and dangerous. About a year ago he married the daughter of a respectable farmer named Jasper Oliphant, one child being born to the couple. Through Scruggs' ill-treatment of his wife she left him, and for some time past she has been residing at her father's. On yesterday Scruggs was in rather a bad humor, and drinking freely, swearing vengeance against everybody, and vowing that he would kill two or three persons before night. About dusk he went to the house of his father-in-law, [which] is situated about a mile and a half from Oak Mills, and calling old man Oliphant out asked him where Mary, his wife, was. Mr. Oliphant replied that it was none of his business where she was, when Scruggs, without replying, drew a revolver from his pocket and shot Mr. Oliphant through the right breast, killing him instantly. Scruggs then turned and fled, and in a short space of time a party of five or six was organized to pursue the murderer. About 9 o'clock, while passing through the woods a short distance from the town, the party came across a man lying under a tree, and it being very clear moonlight they could see that it was Scruggs. One of the party, a man named Groff, stepped up to him, saying, "Bob, is that you?" Without replying, Scruggs jumped to his feet, and, drawing his revolver, shot Groff through the heart. The whole thing was done so suddenly that before any of the party could recover from their surprise and horror Scruggs had again escaped. After carrying the body of Groff to town a large party was organized to hunt for Scruggs, but the most thorough search failed to find him. Early in the morning he emerged from his hiding place, and going to the house of Judge Waddell, a Justice of the Peace, he gave himself up and was placed in charge of a constable. In a short space of time the news of his giving himself up had spread and the citizens rapidly organized and marched to the constable's house, and, putting a loaded shot-gun to the breast of the constable, forced him to surrender Scruggs. He was taken to a small grove near the city, and, without giving him time for prayer or entreaty, they swung him from a convenient limb. Young Oliphant, son of the murdered man, attempted to shoot Scruggs, but he fired wildly and the shot missed its aim. The mob was not masked.

The Drain on the Russian Population.

A Moscow correspondent writes of the war in Russia: Peasants are being called off to join the imperial army from all directions. Wherever one goes families are mourning, because either father or brother is under orders to start within, perchance, only a few hours. Families are broken up on all sides, and wives are selling the household furniture. The streets of Moscow are thronged in many places with household goods. The price of provisions is rising proportionately. Among the upper classes homes are in the same state of change. Those who have retired from the army or navy are in many cases recalled. All will, it is presumed, be summoned in the course of time. While I write a general call is being made for all to serve in the militia, and notices to this effect have been served on all those residing in No. 1 of the six divisions of Moscow. House to house visitation is also going on relative to the number of men, servants, and horses kept by every householder, a large quota of which must be parted with for the public service. Substitutes on the part of the former are not accepted.

Funds are rolling in for the sick and wounded on all sides, peasants even urging the acceptance of their mite.

End of a Remarkable Case.

Many readers will remember the case of young Creason, of Rockport, Ind., which was lengthily discussed by correspondents at the time, who was arrested for killing a colored man under the following remarkable circumstances: Creason was going home at night with his gun cocked, for protection. He was an ignorant boy of 16, and was in fear of ghosts. In passing through a stretch of woods he suddenly met a white object, at which he fired, and then threw down his gun and ran. The white object which he took to be a ghost turned out to be a colored man, also on his way home, with a white quilt wrapped about him. Creason was tried at Rockport and acquitted, the court ruling that it was evident the accused was in mortal terror of supernatural manifestations, and, while he should have spoken before firing, it was clear that he did not intend murder.—Evansville (Ind.) Journal.

A young mother, explaining christening to her 5-year-old boy, told him that when he was christened he "would be one of God's little lambs." "And will I have hind legs and baa?" eagerly asked the boy.

Plain Facts for Advertisers to Read and Consider.

The Springfield (Massachusetts) Daily Union has a larger circulation in Springfield and within a radius of twenty-five miles, than any other journal.

The Springfield (Massachusetts) Weekly Union has a larger circulation, local and general, than any other weekly newspaper in New England, outside of Boston. The Union is not only the best advertising medium, but also the cheapest.

For terms address Clark W. Bryan & Co., Publishers, Springfield, Mass., or write or apply to any of the leading advertising agencies in the United States and Canada. Sample copies of either the daily or weekly Union sent free.

Thirty years' experience proves the Graefenberg Vegetable Pills to be the mildest and most effective medicine ever known for the complete cure of headache, biliousness, liver complaints, nervousness, fevers, and diseases of digestion. Sold everywhere; price 25 cents per box. Send for almanacs. Graefenberg Co., New York.

Pond's Extract. "The Vegetable Pain Destroyer" never fails to afford relief from Pain. Try it once, and nothing could induce you to be without it.

Hofmann's Hop Pills cure the Ague at once.

A Lesson Taught by Experience.

Among the many valuable lessons taught by experience there is not one of greater interest to the invalid portion of the community than the following, viz.: That alterative treatment is only permanently successful when aided by invigoration. When the functions of the body are disordered, the use of a genial tonic with which corrective properties are combined is the speediest means of regulating them. Such a tonic is Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, the most popular as it is the best article of its class. For more than twenty-five years it has been used with signal success as a remedy for, and preventive of, malarial fevers, as a means of imparting strength to the debilitated, and as a curative of dyspepsia, biliousness, constipation, kidney troubles, and uterine weakness. Not only have multitudes of those whom it has cured borne testimony in its behalf, but it has been repeatedly commended by the medical profession and the press.

Caution to the Public.

We understand there are unprincipled grocers and dealers who palm off on unwary persons [illegible] Yeast Powder in bulk, or loose, for the genuine Dooley's Yeast Powder. For the protection of housekeepers and the public generally, we are authorized to state that the genuine Dooley's Yeast Powder is sold only in cans. Always refuse to take it except in cans securely labeled. The fac-simile signature of Dooley & Brother, the manufacturers, is plainly printed on each label.

CHEW
The Celebrated
"MATCHLESS"
Wood Tag Plug
TOBACCO.
The Pioneer Tobacco Company,
New York, Boston and Chicago.

If you feel dull, drowsy, debilitated, have frequent headache, mouth tastes badly, poor appetite, and tongue coated, you are suffering from torpid liver or "biliousness," and nothing will cure you so speedily and permanently as to take Simmons' Liver Regulator or Medicine.

PURELY VEGETABLE.

The Cheapest, Purest and Best Family Medicine in the World!

An Effectual Specific for all diseases of the Liver, Stomach and Spleen.

Regulate the Liver and prevent CHILLS AND FEVER, MALARIOUS FEVERS, BOWEL COMPLAINTS, RESTLESSNESS, JAUNDICE AND NAUSEA.

SIMMONS LIVER REGULATOR

BAD BREATH!

Nothing is so unpleasant, nothing so common as bad breath, and in nearly every case it comes from the stomach, and can be so easily corrected if you will take Simmons' Liver Regulator. Do not neglect so sure a remedy for this repulsive disorder. It will also improve your appetite, Complexion and General Health.

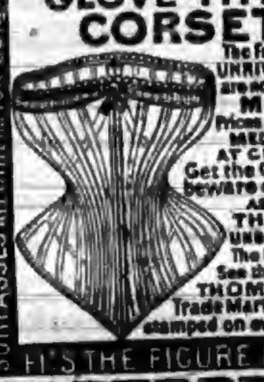
CONSTIPATION!

SHOULD not be regarded as a trifling ailment—in fact, nature demands the utmost regularity of the bowels, and any deviation from this demand paves the way often to serious danger. It is quite as necessary to remove impure accumulations from the bowels as it is to eat or sleep, and no health can be expected where a costive habit of body prevails.

SICK HEADACHE!

This distressing affliction occurs most frequently. The disturbance of the stomach, arising from the imperfectly digested contents, causes a severe pain in the head, accompanied with disagreeable nausea, and this constitutes what is popularly known as Sick Headache; for the relief of which, Take Simmons' Liver Regulator or Medicine.

Manufactured only by
J. H. ZEILIN & CO.,
PHILADELPHIA.
Price, $1.00. Sold by all Druggists.



THOMSON'S PATENT
GLOVE-FITTING CORSETS.
The friends of this UNRIVALLED CORSET are now numbered by MILLIONS. Prices are much reduced. MEDAL RECEIVED AT CENTENNIAL. Get the Genuine, and beware of imitations. ASK ALSO FOR THOMSON'S UNBREAKABLE STEELS. The best goods made. See that the name of THOMSON and the Trade Mark, a CROWN, are stamped on every Corset & Steel.
SURPASSES ALL OTHERS FOR COMFORT
GIVE COMPLETE SATISFACTION
FITS THE FIGURE PERFECTLY

PERPETUAL
SORGHUM EVAPORATOR.
$15. $20. $25.
Cheap and Durable
Send for Circulars.
Address the only Manufacturers
CHAPMAN & CO. Madison, Ind.

WHITNEY & HOLMES
ORGANS.
The Finest Toned and Most Durable Made.
New Styles. New Solo Stops.
Warranted Five Years. Send for Price-Lists.
WHITNEY & HOLMES ORGAN CO., QUINCY, ILL.

JACKSON'S BEST
SWEET NAVY CHEWING TOBACCO
was awarded the highest prize at Centennial Exposition for its fine chewing qualities, the excellence and lasting character of its sweetening and flavoring. If you want the best tobacco ever made, ask your grocer for this, and see that each plug bears our blue-strip trade-mark, with words Jackson's Best on it. Sold wholesale by all jobbers. Send for sample to C. A. JACKSON & CO., Manufacturers, Petersburg, Va.

HEADACHE.
DR. C. W. BENSON'S CELERY AND CHAMOMILE PILLS are prepared expressly to cure SICK HEADACHE, NERVOUS HEADACHE, DYSPEPTIC HEADACHE, NEURALGIA, NERVOUSNESS, SLEEPLESSNESS, and will cure any case. Office, 106 N. Eutaw St., Baltimore, Md. Price, 50c., postage free. Sold by all druggists and country stores. REFERENCE:—Howard Bank, Baltimore, Md.

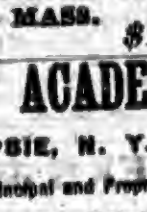
$777 is not easily earned in these times, but it can be made in three months by any one, of either sex, in any part of the country, who is willing to work steadily at the employment that we furnish. $66 per week in your own town. You need not be away from home over night. You can give your whole time to the work, or only your spare moments. We have agents who are making over $20 per day at the business. All who engage at once can make money fast. At the present time money cannot be made so easily and rapidly at any other business. It costs nothing to try the business. Terms and $5 Outfit free. Address, at once, H. HALLETT & CO., Portland, Maine.

DO NOT FAIL to send for our New Catalogue. It contains valuable information for every person contemplating the purchase of any article for personal, family or agricultural use. Free to any Address.
MONTGOMERY WARD & CO.
Original Grange Supply House,
227 & 229 Wabash Ave., CHICAGO, ILL.

$1.00 $1.00
Osgood's Heliotype Engravings.
The choicest household ornaments. Price One Dollar each. Send for catalogue.
JAMES R. OSGOOD & CO.
BOSTON, MASS.
$1.00 $1.00

RIVERVIEW ACADEMY,
POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y.,
OTIS BISBEE, A. M., Principal and Proprietor.
Numbers its alumni by hundreds in all the honorable walks of life. Pupils range from twelve to twenty years in age. Next session opens Sept. 12th. Those wishing to [illegible] make an early application.

TRUTH IS MIGHTY!
Professor Martinez, the great Spanish Seer and Wizard, [illegible]



COLGATE'S
CASHMERE
BOUQUET
TOILET
SOAP.
The novelty and exceptional strength of its perfume are the peculiar fascinations of this luxurious article, which has acquired popularity hitherto unequaled by any Toilet Soap of home or foreign manufacture.

THE
UNITED STATES
LIFE
INSURANCE COMPANY,
IN THE CITY OF NEW YORK,
261, 262, 263 Broadway.
ORGANIZED 1850
ASSETS, $4,827,176.52
SURPLUS, $820,000
EVERY APPROVED FORM OF POLICY ISSUED ON MOST FAVORABLE TERMS.
ALL ENDOWMENT POLICIES
AND
APPROVED CLAIMS
MATURING IN 1877
WILL BE DISCOUNTED AT 7%
ON PRESENTATION.
JAMES BUELL, - - PRESIDENT.

GRACE'S
SALVE

A VEGETABLE PREPARATION,
Invented in the 17th century by Dr. William Grace, Surgeon in King James' army. Through its agency he cured thousands of the most serious sores and wounds that baffled the skill of the most eminent physicians of his day, and was regarded by all who knew him as a public benefactor. 25 cents a box. For Sale by Druggists generally. Sent by mail on receipt of price. Prepared by SETH W. FOWLE & SONS,
86 Harrison Avenue, Boston, Mass.

SAFER THAN THE AVERAGE SAVINGS BANK.
The Shares of the Consolidated Virginia and the California Mining Companies are selling at twenty-eight to thirty-five dollars each. The two Companies have already paid more than forty-nine million dollars in monthly dividends. The rate is equal to eighty per cent. a year on the present market price of the stock. Orders for lots of five shares and upwards executed and all information given by WILLIAM WARD, Banker and Broker, Ex-President of the American Mining Board, Drexel Building, Corner Broad and Wall Streets, New York.
N. B.—Investment, Railroad and all marketable Securities bought and sold and dividends collected.

HOMES IN KANSAS!
The State of Kansas,—with her fertile soil, healthful climate, and abundance of pure water, offers great advantages to those who are about to change their residence, either for health or profit. For those wishing Cheap Homes we have a few good grain, stock and fruit Farms, also raw lands, at Low Prices. We will give full description of country and farms upon application.
Go West
CROSSMUN, WATTS & CO., Humboldt, Kas.

TARRANT'S SELTZER APERIENT.
To Rational Invalids.—In sickness every portion of the body sympathizes with the seat of the disorder. When the stomach fails to perform its functions, the liver, bowels, nerves, muscles, veins, arteries, etc., are all more or less affected. These delinquents require a medicine, combining the properties of a stomachic, an alterative, a purgative, a tonic, and sedative, to bring them back to their duty; and all these elements, in their purest and most effective forms, are united in Tarrant's Effervescent Seltzer Aperient,
the great Saline Remedy for Indigestion and its concomitant consequences. Sold by all druggists.

WILHOFT'S
Anti-Periodic,
— OR —
FEVER AND AGUE
TONIC.
For All Diseases Caused by Malarial Poisoning of the Blood.
A Warranted Cure!
G. R. FINLAY & CO.,
New Orleans, Prop's.
FOR SALE BY ALL DRUGGISTS.

KEEP'S SHIRTS—only one quality—The Best. Keep's Patent Partly-Made Dress Shirts can be finished as easy as hemming a Handkerchief. The very best, six for $7.00. Keep's Custom Shirts—made to measure, the very best, six for $9.00. An elegant set of genuine Gold-Plate Collar and Sleeve Buttons given with each half doz. Keep's Shirts. Keep's Shirts are delivered FREE on receipt of price in any part of the Union—no express charges to pay. Samples, with full directions for self-measurement, sent Free to any address. No stamp required. Deal directly with the Manufacturer and get Bottom Prices. Keep Manufacturing Co., 165 Mercer St., N. Y.

HIGHLAND HALL,
Highland Park, Ill.
This Elegant School for Young Ladies Opens Sept. 20.
Beautiful for situation; unsurpassed in its facilities for instruction in Music, Art, Literature and Science. Apply for information to EDWARD P. WESTON, President.

ELASTIC RUPTURE BELT.
The Best Truss without Metal Springs ever invented. No assuming claim of a certain radical cure, but a guarantee of a comfortable, secure and satisfactory appliance. We will take back and pay FULL PRICE for all that do not suit. Price, single, like cut, $4; for both sides, $6. Sent by mail, post-paid, on receipt of price. N. B.—This Truss WILL CURE more Ruptures than any of those for which extravagant claims are made. Circulars free.
POMEROY TRUSS CO., 746 Broadway, New York.

$12 A DAY at home. Agents wanted. Outfit and terms free. TRUE & CO., Augusta, Maine.

$66 a week in your own town. Terms and $5 outfit free. H. HALLETT & CO., Portland, Maine.

$40 A WEEK. [illegible]

$55 2 $77 a Week to Agents. $10 Outfit Free. P. O. VICKERY, Augusta, Maine.

$5 to $20 per day at home. Samples worth $5 free. Stinson & Co., Portland, Maine.

$20 a Day. HOW TO MAKE IT. Something new for Agents. COE, YONGE & CO., St. Louis, Mo.

$25 PREMIUM WATCH AND CHAIN—a stem-winder. Free with every order. Outfit free. J. B. Gaylord & Co., Chicago, Ill.

$77 MAGNETIC TIMEPIECE. [illegible] works. Hunter case. Sample Watch free to Agents. A. COULTER & CO., Chicago, Ill.

Heavy Solid Silver Thimble 50 cts. Heavy Gold filled, warranted 20 years, $1.00. Agts send stamp for catalogue. VAN & CO., Chicago.

HOW To Procure Texas Lands [illegible] and sixteen pages of Reading sent for Ten Cents. Address COMMON SENSE, Paris, Texas.

WANTED Travelling Salesmen. [illegible] and all expenses paid. No Peddling. Address Queen City Lamp Works, Cincinnati, O.

REVOLVER FREE! Seven-shot revolver with box cartridges. Address J. Bown & Son, 136 & 138 Wood st., Pittsburg, Pa.

$5937 Made by 17 Agents in Jan. '77 with my 13 new articles. Samples free. Address C. M. Linington, Chicago.

$350 A MONTH—AGENTS WANTED—36 best selling articles in the world; one sample free. Address JAY BRONSON, Detroit, Mich.

AGENTS CAN MAKE $25 PER DAY [illegible] our PATENT [illegible]. Send for Circular. WORSWICK M'F'G CO., Cleveland, Ohio.

$2500 a year to Agents. Outfit and a $25 Shot Gun free. For terms address, J. Worth & Co., St. Louis, Mo.

WANTED Men to travel and take orders of Merchants. Salary $1200 a year [illegible]. Address Gem Man'f'g Co., St. Louis, Mo.

PENSIONS Procured, or NO PAY, for every wounded, ruptured, accidentally injured or diseased Soldier. Address Col. N. W. FITZGERALD, U. S. Claim Att'y, Washington, D.C.

LADY AGENTS WANTED for the Best Corset in America. TO BE SOLD BY LADIES ONLY. Apply at once and secure territory. CAMPBELL & BROOK, 283 Madison St., Chicago.

GUNS. THE BEST Breech and Muzzle Loading. Save 25 per cent. by buying of the Importers and Sole Agents. RUSSEL & HAYDENS, Send for price list. Jacksonville, Ill.

ECLECTIC MEDICAL INSTITUTE, CHARTERED 1845—4,000 STUDENTS.
WOMEN'S MEDICAL COLLEGE, AND SCHOOL OF MIDWIFERY,
Gives extra facilities for a thorough medical education to both men and women, by a graded course in the college without need of office instruction. For full information address JOHN M. SCUDDER, M. D., Cincinnati, O.

Ho! Farmers, for Iowa!
Send a Postal Card for description and maps of 1,200,000 acres of R. R. Lands for sale on long terms. Soil first-class. Tickets FREE to land-buyers from Chicago and return. Address J. B. CALHOUN, Land Commissioner Iowa R. R. Land Co., 92 Randolph Street, CHICAGO, or CEDAR RAPIDS, IOWA.

$10 to $25 A DAY SURE made by Agents selling our Chromos, Crayons, Picture and Chromo Cards. 125 samples, worth $5, sent, postpaid, for 85 Cents. Illustrated Catalogue Free. J. H. BUFFORD'S SONS, Boston. [Established 1830.]

TEACHERS of VOCAL MUSIC,
Desiring the Best Book extant, should buy FAVORITE SONGS An unequaled collection of Gems compiled for their use by Profs. H. R. and T. H. R. Christie, and supervised by Prof. R. M. McIntosh, the eminent author and teacher. Price $6.00 a dozen. Sample by mail, 50 cents. SPECIMEN PAGES FREE. R. W. CARROLL & CO., Publishers, Cincinnati, or Lyon & Healy, Chicago.

ONLY $1 For SIX BEAUTIFUL PICTURES, (different subjects,) 14x17 inches; Or for FIVE PICTURES, 17x22; Or for FOUR PICTURES, 19x24. Fac-simile copies of FINE STEEL ENGRAVINGS, made by the celebrated GRAPHIC process, printed on Heavy Plate Paper for framing. Send ten cents for Illustrated Catalogue containing over 100 pictures. Address, The Daily Graphic, New York City.

"The Best Polish in the World."
THE RISING SUN
STOVE POLISH

BABBITT'S TOILET SOAP.

Unrivalled for the Toilet and the Bath. No artificial and deceptive odors to cover common and deleterious ingredients. After years of scientific experiment the manufacturer of B. T. Babbitt's Best Soap has perfected and now offers to the public The FINEST TOILET SOAP in the World. Only the purest vegetable oils used in its manufacture.
For Use in the Nursery it has No Equal.
Worth ten times its cost to every mother and family in Christendom. Sample box, containing 3 cakes of 6 oz. each, sent free to any address on receipt of 75 cents. Address
B. T. BABBITT, New York City.
For Sale by all Druggists.

NATURE'S REMEDY.
VEGETINE
THE GREAT BLOOD PURIFIER.
PROVIDENCE, R. I., 164 Transit Street.
H. R. STEVENS, Esq.:
I feel bound to express with my signature the high value I place upon your VEGETINE. My family have used it for the last two years. In nervous debility it is invaluable, and I recommend it to all who may need an invigorating, renovating tonic.
O. T. WALKER,
Formerly Pastor of Bowdoin Square Church, Boston.
Vegetine is Sold by All Druggists.

THE GOOD OLD
STAND-BY.
MEXICAN MUSTANG LINIMENT.
FOR MAN AND BEAST.
ESTABLISHED 35 YEARS. Always cures. Always ready. Always handy. Has never yet failed. Thirty millions have tested it. The whole world approves the glorious old Mustang—the Best and Cheapest Liniment in existence. 25 cents a bottle. The Mustang Liniment cures when nothing else will.
SOLD BY ALL MEDICINE VENDERS.

SANDAL-WOOD
A positive remedy for all diseases of the Kidneys, Bladder and Urinary Organs; also, good in Dropsical Complaints. It never produces sickness, is certain and speedy in its action. It is fast superseding all other remedies. Sixty capsules cure in six or eight days. No other medicine can do this.
Beware of Imitations, for, owing to its great success, many have been offered; some are most dangerous, causing piles, &c.
DUNDAS DICK & CO.'S Genuine Soft Capsules, containing Oil of Sandalwood, sold at all drug stores. Ask for circular, or send for one to 35 and 37 Wooster street, New York.

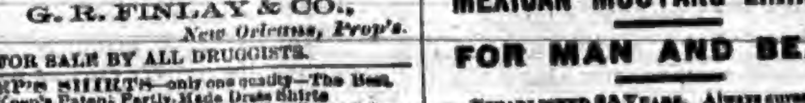
O. N. U. No. 35

WHEN WRITING TO ADVERTISERS, please say you saw the advertisement in this paper.

MERIDEN CUTLERY COMP'NY
RECEIVED THE HIGHEST CENTENNIAL PRIZE.



THE "PATENT IVORY" HANDLE TABLE KNIFE.
MANUFACTURE ALL KINDS OF TABLE CUTLERY.
Exclusive Makers of the "PATENT IVORY" or Celluloid Knife, the most durable WHITE HANDLE known. The Oldest Manufacturers in America. Original Makers of the HARD RUBBER HANDLE. Always call for "Trade Mark" "MERIDEN CUTLERY CO." on the blade. Warranted and sold by all Dealers in Cutlery, and by the MERIDEN CUTLERY CO., 49 Chambers St., New York.

Auburn Courier.

AUBURN, INDIANA, SEPT. 6, 1877.

NEIGHBORHOOD NEWS.

GARRETT.

EDITOR COURIER. There was an article published in the "News" of this place, last week, the intention of which was to cast a shadow on the reputation of Mr. H S. Morse Assistant master of Transportation for the B. & O. R. R. Co. at this place. I wish to take up this subject and show what there is in it. Parker in the first issue of the News, after the Presidential election last fall, criticised Mr. Morse for being at the Poll on election day, and also charged him with having tried to commit fraud, then in his next issue he modified those charges. Parker had nothing more to say about Mr. Morse till April when he came out again, and indorsed the nomination and election of Mr. Morse for town trustee from the 1st Ward in the strongest terms. Then he comes out again in his last weeks issue with a long article charging Mr. Morse with all kinds of fraud having committed during the campaign, and elections of last fall. If Mr. Morse committed fraud at the Presidential election as Parker charged him with last fall, then why did Parker indorse such a man for trustee of our town last spring and help to elect him? Then again, if Mr. Morse was such a good man last spring, and so suitable for trustee of our town, as Parker then published, what has he done since to injure the Democratic party here in Garrett, and what is Parker's motive in publishing such an article as he sent out last week for the purpose of hurling the entire Democartic element against Mr. Morse as far as his slanderous paper will go? The town trustees of Garrett in 1876 were Democratic, they opposed an expensive school house, did not wish to see our youthful town oppressed in it's infancy with a heavy debt. Nothing short of a fourteen or sixteen thousand dollar school house would suit Parker, which he forced on the people regardless of all com plaints. He publicly said that he was willing to give all his time for notning toward the building, if they would allow the building to go on. He could not agree with the trustees or any one, who dared to differ with him on the school house question, and used the columns of his paper to abuse all such persons.

Then when Mr Morse was elected as one of the trustees, Parker could be seen running after him like a little penny-dog until he thought he had gained Mr. Morse's friendship and then he put in a bill of $100 against the town for his time and abilities in building a school house. He did not get his $100, and Mr. Morse subscribed for the "Herald" which made him worse in Parker's estimation than the old trustees of 1876. He then combined his personal enmity with a political issue against Mr. Morse with the intention of having the sympathy of the Democratic party while he vindicated and gratified his selfish and personal malice. Now let us examine the reputation of these two men. Every person who is acquainted with Mr. Morse will agree the he is a gentleman in every sense of the word; liberal in his views, religiously and politically, possessed of a benevolent nature, and came bearing a good reputation. On the other side, a public Journal published where Parker formerly lived does not hesitate in branding Parker's reputation with "liar" and "thief" so indelibly that time, place, water or "soap" will never obliterate it. In reply to all the charges that Parker has made against Mr. Morse, he has politely granted him a fools pardon. I would not take up up the subject if Parker had not amalgamated personal animosity and political predjudice together. There is not one Democrat out of every fifty here, who will indorse the article in last weeks News. This is a Democratic town as we claim a majority, and we intend to hold it so only by true honest principles. We don't wish to see any person dogged away from the poll on election day let their occupation be what it may, their religious or political attainments be as their conscience may dictate. Parker must understand that if he has anything personal against any one that he must treat it as a personal case, and that the Democratic principles can not be abused in that way, and if he wishes his paper to be recognized as a Democratic sheet he must keep it's columns pure so that it will not be looked on as a public slop tub, or a repository for slime and filth.
A DEMOCRAT.

MR. EDITOR, Dear Sir—I would like to express a few thoughts that occur to me concerning an article of criticism that appeared in the last issue of the News. I wish to say first, that I hope my readers will excuse any mistakes I may make, as I do not wish to sail under fals colors, and pretend to be a writer upon such "weighty subjects" when I am not, but the article in question so neatly fits it's author that I thought it would bear mentioning. The following is the language of the News: "Men who have but one idea in the world so to speak in business have been the most successful. They have been able to make their business which they have chosen for their occupation a greater success, than those who have dabbled in many. In fact the successful prosecution of any one occupation in life is sufficient for the mind of one man. When he attempts to reach out and grasp outside business and outside issues, he is very apt to neglect his own or at least depreciate himself in the eyes of the people so far as his occupation is concerned." Now I would say, had A. S. Parker applied the above to himself, and observed it closely when he came to Garrett, he too might have been successful. Parker came here as a representative of the medical profession. Had he contented himself with that, (as he had no capacity for anything more), and not tried to grasp in and monopolize every branch of busi ness, he might have succeeded. Every body who knew Parker, knew that he came to Garrett a total wreck, and as a reckless life was best adapted to his nature, he was determined to pursue it here. Not contented with the practice of medicine, he reached out and took to the editorial chair, and when once in the sanctum, he cut right and left, at friend and foe, and now he has cheek enough to say, that another editor had no right to come here, for two papers could not long exist in Garrett. We think two papers can not live long in Garrett, and had Parker acted the part of a getleman, he might have been the surviving one, but his repulsive nature drove him from the good will of the people, and left him without friends. When he slandered, falsified and misrepresented the better class of people of Garrett, thereby loosing their support, he opened the way for another newspaper, and now if he fails he has but himself to blame, for had he pursued a proper course, and kept the good will of the people, there would have been no inducements held out for another paper to come here. Again, he says corporations have in many instances attempted to influence the men whom they employ politically, the members of such organizations have frequently attended the polls with no other object in view than to increase the vote upon their side. Now I would ask Parker what he goes to the polls for, or what any other man goes there for, and if it is not to increase the vote upon his side? Is it not a right that every man has? Did not our nation fight through seven years of bloody and relentless war, for this very same right? Is it possible, that when a man is employed by a corporation, he forfeits all his political rights, and signs away his freedom. We think not, the days of slavery are passed, and no body but Parker would attempt to advance so thin an article of criticism.
JUSTICE.

ORGANIZED VILLAINY.

Thomas, alias Crawford, the man recently arrested for stealing a horse at New Madison, Darke county, Ohio, has givin information which reveals the existence of a well organized and disciplined gang of horse thieves who have been operating in western Ohio, and running their stolen horses into Indiana and disposing of them at Fort Wayne and other points. He says there is a regularly organized society with officers and committees. The society has.

GRIPS, SIGNS AND PASS WORDS.

The members, names are, for the most part, unknown to each other, they being known among themselves solely by numbers. For instance, Thomas alias Crawford, is No. 80. He was recently initiated, and says he has only met one other member of the society, No. 13. He professes not to know the names of his fellow thieves. He certainly reveals no names, and says if he did so his life would pay the forfeit in a very short time after he regains his freedom. According to his statement, the horses that are stolen are disposed of and the money realized paid into the common fund in the hand of the treasurer, who divides it at stated intervals pro rata among the members. Some of the men steal horses and others sell them Crawford says he did not steal the horse which he brought to Fort Wayne, and that he never stole a horse in his life. He says the horse was and turned over to him to be disposed of. It is possible that this gang of horse thieves, which has been operating largely for some time past has sold a good many horses to people of Fort Wayne and the country circumjacent. With the information now at hand the officers will doubtless succeed in breaking up this organization of desperadoes and sending a few of them to penitentiary. Possibly a few men who have lost horses may, in the light of these developments, turn up in the vicinity and dicover and claim some of their property, which is now in the hands of innocent purchasers.—Fort Wayne Sentinel.

STOLEN BY "NO. 13,"

Worth its Weight in Gold.

Undoubtedly the greatest modern discovery in medicine is DaCosta's Radical Cure for dyspepsia, sick headache, sour stomach, costiveness, billiousness, loss of appetite, distress after eating, and all disorders caused by indigestion or a deranged liver. Its results are astonishing, and sure relief is guaranteed in every case where it is faithfully used. It tones up the stomach, regulates the liver, restors the natural appetite, strengthens the delicate and expels all morbid humors from the system. Typhoid and billious fever might, in almost every case be prevented by its timely use. Trial size 25 cents A very few doses will relieve, and a little perseverance cure you. Sold by F. E. Davenport.

Also Agents for Prof. Parker's Pleasant Worm Syrup, which is sure death to worms. Pleasant to take and requires no physic. Price 25 cents. Try it.

NO PEOPLE IN THE WORLD

suffer as much with Neuralgia or Rheumatic complaints as Americans, and no nation is so prolific in remedies to cure, yet we come in contact every day with scores who are suffering without having found the cure they have sought for. To those who have used

Lawson's Curative

we need only to say that it is compounded with the same scientific skill and care as heretofore, and maintains the deserved reputation which it has acquired by the wonderful cures it has performed. To those who have never tested the CURATIVE we urge a trial of its virtues for the diseases named below.

Eminent and Skillful Physicians

use the CURATIVE largely in their practice, and prominent clergymen and editors recommend it from a knowledge of its effects.

Rheumatism, Diphtheria,
Dyspepsia, Sciatica,
Neuralgia, Toothache,
Pleurisy, Sore Throat,
Swollen Joints, Chilblains,
Headache, Sprains,
Lame Back, Burns,
Erysipelas, Scalds,

All yield to the magic influence of the CURATIVE, no matter of how long standing. It is only necessary to use it faithfully and perseveringly, according to the directions which accompany each bottle, and you will be cured.

Lawson's Curative

is Healing and Cooling to Wounds, Sores, Burns and Scalds.

Try it and you will never be without it.

SOLD BY ALL DRUGGISTS.

Price $1.00 per Bottle, 6 for $5.00.

PREPARED BY

Lawson Chemical Co., Cleveland, O.

For sale by F. E. Davenport.

READ THE FOLLOWING

Shearer & Wilson,

HAVING ERECTED A

STEAM PLANING MILL

Are now prepared to do all kinds of

Plaining,
Surfacing,
Matching Flooring
Scroll Work,
Mouldings,
Re-Sawing, &c.

DOORS AND SASH!

We are adding facilities for the manufacture of doors and sash to order, and will give special attention to this branch.

CONTRACTORS.

We also make a specialty of contracting for the erection of residences, barns and other buildings, and guarantee good work at reasonable figures. Mill on South Jackson Street, Auburn, Indiana.

SHEARER & WILSON.

Sheriff's Sale.

BY virtue of an execution to me directed from the Clerk of the DeKalb Circuit Court in a cause wherein Henry Funk for the use of Charles Klotz is plaintiff, and John Bresch is defendant requiring me to make the sum of Two Hundred and Thirty-Two Dollars, with interest on said judgment and costs, I will expose at public sale to the highest bidder, on

SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 29th, 1877

Between the hours of 10 o'clock a. m. and 4 o'clock p. m. of said day at the door of the Court House of DeKalb County, Indiana, the rents and profits for a term not exceeding seven years, of the following real estate to-wit:

Lots number one hundred and twenty-three [123] and one hundred and twenty-four [124]. in the western addition to the town of Auburn, Dekalb county, Indiana.

If such rents and profits will not sell for a sufficient sum to satisfy said judgment interest and costs, I will at the same time and place, expose at public sale, the fee simple of said real estate, or so much thereof as may be sufficient to discharge said decree, interest and costs.

Sale will be made without any relief whatever from valuation or appraisement laws.

J. C. St. CLAIR, Sheriff.
By THOS. D. GROSS, Dept.

Best & McClellan and Hickel & Taft Attorneys for plaintiff.

Auburn, Indiana, Sept 4th, 1877.
Pr. fee $8.75.

Sheriff's Sale.

BY virtue of an execution to me directed from the Clerk of the DeKalb County Circuit Court in a cause wherein The First National Band of Auburn is plaintiff and E. H. Palmer and Charles G. Smith are defendants, requiring me to make the sum of One Hundred and Twenty Nine Dollars and Thirty cents, with interest on said judgment and costs. I will expose at public sale, to the highest bidder, on

SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 29th, 1877.

Between the hours of 10 o'clock a. m. and 4 o'clock p. m. of said day, at the door of the Court House in DeKalb County, Indiana, the rents and profits for a term not exceeding seven years, of the following real estate, to-wit:

Lot number twenty-two [22] in Kuhlman's addition to the town of Auburn, DeKalb county, Indiana.

If such rents and profits will not sell for a sufficient sum to satisfy said judgment interests and costs. I will at the same time and place, expose the fee simple of said real estate, or so much thereof as may be sufficient to discharge said judgment, interest and costs.

Sale will be made without any relief whatever from valuation or appraisement laws.

J. C. St. CLAIR, Sheriff,
By T. D. GROSS, Deputy.

Guy Plum, Att'y for plaintiff,
Auburn, Ind, Sept. 4, 1877.
Pr. fee $8.50.

GOLD. Great chance to make money. If you can't get gold you can get greenbacks. We need a person in every town to take subscriptions for the largest, cheapest and best illustrated family publication in the world. Any one can become a successful agent. The most elegant works of art given free to subscribers. The price is so low that almost every body subscribes. One Agent reports making over $150 in a week. A lady agent reports taking over 400 subscribers in ten days. All who engage make money fast. You can devote all your time to the business, or only your spare time. You need not be away from home over night. You can do it as well as others. Full directions and terms free. Elegant and expensive outfit free. If you want profitable work send us your address at once. It costs nothing to try the business. No one who engages fails to make great pay. Address "The People's Journal," Portland Maine.

MEEKS & WYER,

Our energetic

PLASTERS

Will do you a good job at reasonable rates. They always give satisfaction and are prompt in their work. Those having plastering to do should give them a call. no21 tw

Sheriff's Sale.

BY virtue of a certified copy of a decree to me directed by the Clerk of the DeKalb Circuit Court, in a cause wherein Humphery Shoub et al is plaintiffs, and William E. Sargent is defendant, requiring me to make the sum of three hundred and ninety one dollars and seventeen cents, [391.17], with interest on said decree and costs, I will expose at public sale to the highest bidder, on SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 22d, 1877.

Between the hours of 10 o'clock a. m. and 4 o'clock p. m. of said day, at the door of the Court House of DeKalb County, Indiana, the rents and profits, for a term not exceeding seven years of the following real estate, to wit:

Lot number twenty-four [24] and lot number twenty-three [23] in block number sixteen [16] in the town of Garrett in DeKalb county Indiana.

If such rents and profits will not sell for a sufficient sum to satisfy said decree interest and costs, I will, at the same time and place, expose at public sale the fee simple of said real estate, or so much thereof as may be sufficient to discharge said decree interest and costs.

said sale will be made without any relief whatever from valuation or appraisement laws.

JAMES C. ST. CLAIR, Sheriff
By THOS. D. GROSS, Deputy.

P. V. Hoffman, Att'y for plaintiff.
August 29th, 1877.
Pr. $9.25.

Sheriff's Sale.

BY virtue of a certified copy of a decree to me directed from the Clerk of the DeKalb Circuit Court in a cause wherein John L. Davis is plaintiff and Nathan Tarney et al. are defendants, requiring me to make the sum of fifty-eight [58] dollars and fifty-eight [58] cents, with interest on said decree and costs, I will expose at public sale, to the highest bidder, on

SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 29th, 1877

Between the hours of 10 o'clock A. M., and 4 o'clock P. M., of said day, at the door of the Court House of DeKalb county, Indiana the rents and profits for a term not exceeding seven years, of the following real estate to-wit:

Lot number one (1) in block number eighteen [18] in the town of Garrett, in DeKalb county, Indiana.

If such rents and profits will not sell for a sufficient sum to satisfy said decree, interest and costs, I will at the same time and place expose at public sale the fee simple of said real estate, or so much thereof as may be sufficient to discharge said decree, interest and costs

Sale will be made without any relief whatever from valuation or appraisement laws.

J. C. St CLAIR, Sheriff.
By THOS. D. GROSS, Deputy.

H. C. Peterson, Att'y for Plaintiffs.
Auburn, Ind., Aug. 29th, 1877,
Pr. fee $8.25

Sheriff's Sale,

BY virtue of an execution to me directed from the Clerk of the DeKalb Circuit Court. In a cause wherein Sumner K. Randall is plaintiff, and Charles G. Smith and Daniel W. Smith are defendants requiring me to make the sum of Ninety-eight Dollars and Seventy-Two cents with interest on said judgment and costs, I will expose at public sale to the highest bidder, on

SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 29th, 1877.

Between the hours of 10 o'clock a. m., and 4 o'clock p. m., of said day at the door of the Court House of DeKalb County, Indiana, the rents and profits for a term not exceeding seven years of the following real estate to-wit:

Lot number forty-five [45] in Kuhlman's addition to the town of Auburn, DeKalb county Indiana.

If such rents and profits will not sell for sufficient sum to satisfy said judgment interests and costs, I will at the same time and place, expose at public sale the fee simple of said real estate, or so much thereof as may be sufficient to discharge said judgment interests and costs.

Sale will be made without any relief whatever from valuation or appraisement laws.

JOHN. C. ST. CLAIR, Sheriff.
By THOS. D. GROSS, Deputy.

D. D. Moody, Attorney for plaintiff.
Auburn, Indianan, Sept. 4th, 1877.
Pr. fee $6.50.

Sheriff's Sale.

BY virtue of an execution to me directed from the Clerk of the DeKalb Circuit Court, in a cause wherein Singer Manufacturing Co., is plaintiff, and Andrew Bailey is defendant, requiring me to make the sum of Ninety-Three Dollars and Thirty cents, with interest on said judgment and costs, I will expose at public sale, to the highest bidder, on

SATURDAY SEPTEMBER, 29th, 1877

between the hours of 10 o'clock a. m. and 4 o'clock p. m. of said day, at the door of the Court house of DeKalb county, Indiana, the rents and profits for a term not exceeding seven years, of the following real estate, to-wit:

A part of lot number twenty-eight [28] in the original plat of the town of Auburn, DeKalb Co., Indiana, bounded as follows, to-wit: Commencing at the south-west corner of said lot, and running north seventy-two [72] feet, thence east seventeen and one-half [17½] feet thence south seventy-two [72] feet, thence west seventeen and one-half [17½] feet to the place of beginning.

If such rents and profits will not sell for a sufficient sum to satisfy said judgment, interest and costs, I will at the same time and place, expose at public sale the fee simple of said real estate, or so much thereof as may be sufficient to discharge said judgment, interest and costs.

Sale will be made without any relief whatever from valuation and appraisement laws.

J. C. StCLAIR, Sheriff,
THOS. D. GROSS. Dept.

Rose & Hartman, Attorneys for plaintiff.
Auburn Indiana, Sept. 4th, 1877.
Pr. fee $9.75.

Notice of Administration.

NOTICE is hereby given, that the undersigned has been appointed by the Clerk of the DeKalb Circuit Court of the State of Indiana, administrator of the estate of Benjamin Watson, deceased, late of said county. Said estate is supposed to be solvent. Wm. K. WATSON, Ad'm

August 14, 1877.

1877. 1877.

GRAND OPENING

OF

CARPETS,

ROOT & COMPANY.

Will display this week an elegant and choice assortment of extra superfine.

INGRAINE.

30c, 40c, 50c, 60c, 75c, 85c, $1.00 per yard. Tapestry Brussels. English Body

BRUSSELS,

$1.00, $1.10, $1.15, $1.25, $1.35, $1.50, per yrrd. Also are opening new.

OIL CLOTHS,

Curtain Materials, Mattings, Rugs, Stair Rods, Upholstery Goops, etc, etc. All at uniform low prices.

Root & Company,

46 and 48 Calhoun-st, Fort Wayne Ind

GENUINE

CRAB ORCHARD SALTS

PREPARED AT THE

CRAB ORCHARD SPRINGS, OF KENTUCKY,

AN EFFECTUAL REMEDY FOR

The Cure of Dyspepsia and Costiveness of the Bowels.

Taken in small doses occasionally during the spring, it is a most excellent purifier of the Blood, and as a remedy for Colds a small dose taken at night will give certain relief by morning.

None genuine except put up in Bottles, and sold under the Label of the CRAB ORCHARD SPRINGS COMPANY. If not to be had of some convenient Druggists, consumers are requested to address

J. S. WILDER & CO., Louisville, Ky.

Sheriff's Sale.

BY virtue of a certified copy of a decree to me directed from the Clerk of the DeKalb Circuit Court in a cause wherein Mason M. Bowen is plaintiff and Gidian Gaysdill, Joseph Depew, Abraham and Dinna Depew are plaintiffs, requiring me to make the sum of four hundred and sixty-one (461) dollars and fifty-four (54) cents, with interest on said decree and costs I will expose at public sale to the highest bidder, on

SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 22nd, 1877

Between the hours of 10 o'clock a. m., and 4 o'clock p. m. at the door of the Court House of DeKalb County Indiana, the rents and profits for a term not exceeding seven years of the following real estate, to-wit:

Lot number one [1] in Tappin's addition to the town or village of Corunna, DeKalb county, Indiana.

If such rents and profits will not sell for a sufficient sum to satisfy said decree, interest and costs. I will at the same time and place expose at public sale the fee simple of said real estate, or so much thereof as may be sufficient to discharge said judgment, interest and costs.

Sale will be made without any relief whatever from valuations appraisement laws.

J. C. St. CLAIR, Sheriff.

A. A. Chaplin, Att'y. for Plaintiff.
Auburn, Ind., Aug. 29, 1877.
Pr. fee $6.50

Sheriff's Sale.

BY virtue of an execution to me directed from the Clerk of the DeKalb Circuit Court in a cause wherein Wright, Taylor & Co are plaintiffs and Wm. T. Jones and Adolphus G. Jones (B. B.) are defendants, requiring me to make the sum of three hundred and two [302] dollars and twenty-six [26] cents, with interest on said judgment and costs, I will expose at public sale to the highest bidder, on

SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 22nd 1877

Between the hours of 10 o'clock A. M., and 4 o'clock P. M. of said day, at the door of the Court House in DeKalb county, Indiana, the rents and profits for a term not exceeding seven years, of the following real estate to, wit:

Part of the east half of the north-west quarter of section twelve [12], township thirty-four (34), north of range fourteen [14] east, bounded by a line commencing at a point where the south boundry line of the right of way of the Lake Shore & Michigan Southern railroad crosses the west boundry line of the said east half of the said north west quarter, and running thence south to the south west corner of the north east fourth of the north west quarter of said section twelve, (12) thence east twenty five (25) rods thence north parallel with the west line of the south boundry line of said right of way, thence along said boundry line of said right of way to the place of beginning, containing seven acres of land.

If such rents and profits will not sell for a sufficient sum to satisfy said decree, interest and costs, I will at the same time and place expose to public sale the fee simple of said real estate or so much thereof as may be sufficient to discharge said judgment and costs.

Said sale will be made without any relief whatever from valuation or appraisement laws.

J. C. St CLAIR, Sheriff.

Rose & Hartman, Att'ys. for plaintiff.
Auburn, Ind. Aug. 22nd 1877.
Pr. fee $11.50.

We are sure our farmer friends do not know the value of the Nickel Steel Plow now made at Butler, by Leonard & Co. Those who have tried them pronounce them superior to anything yet introduced. We mention this more from the fact that it is an article made at home, and if as good even as those of foreign make, our farmers should give it the preference. Call at Ensley's Agricultural Depot and examine them. You have a chance to try them before you buy, and the prices are as low as on other plows. 6

Ice For Sale.

Messrs. Houston & Co., having put up several hundred tons of most splendid ice, are now ready to supply our citizens for the summer at reasonable rates.—With their delivery wagon they will put it down at your door in any quantity you may desire. tf

HOW

Is it that the New York Store sells goods so much cheaper than their neighbors is a question often asked. It is because they sell for cash and

DO

Not have to sustain losses from bad debts, besides it inables them to pay cash for goods and get the discounts which make quite an item to

YOU

As consumers. It also enables them to keep all the new and desirable styles and novelties, by being always ready to take hold of them without delay, and it is a well establishdd fact which all

KNOW

That there is no one concern more careful in selecting good and desirable goods than the New York Store.

IT

Being the object of the New York Store to give entire satisfaction to all their customers.

G. H. FORKNER & CO., Prop's.

GAZE ON TH E BOOT UPSIDE DOWN

$10,000.00 WORTH OF

BOOTS AND SHOES

—TO BE SOLD—

25 Per Cent. CHEAPER

Than any House in DeKalb county. If you don't believe it, read our price list and then come in and examine the goods.

Ladies 12 thread serge polish	$	90c
" 16 " " "		1.15c
" 18 " " "		1.40c
" side lace shoes	[illegible]	2.50c
" goat buskim "	70	95c
" serge " "	50	75c
" three button working shoes	1.25	185c
Mens 2 buckle plow shoes		1.40c
" brogan " "		1.25c
" Solid comfort plow shoes made to order		2.00
" Calf sewed boots	3.00	4.75c
" " pegged "	3.00	4.50c
Boys fine boots		2.25c

—SIGN OF THE—

BOOT UPSIDE DOWN,

Next door to J. L. Davis' Hardware store, Auburn, Indiana.

W. J. USTIN & CO.

Auburn Courier.

Local and Miscellaneous.

THE AUBURN MARKET.

—Corn 55c.
—Oats 22c.
—Eggs 8c.
—Butter 13c.
—Potatoes 40c
—Live Turkeys 5c.
—Clover Seed $7 50.
—Live Chickens 4c
—Wheat $1.12 @ 1.15
—The COURIER $2.00 a year.

CHURCH DIRECTORY.

M. E. CHURCH,

Rev. J. E. Ervin, pastor. Services each Sabbath at 10½ o'clock A. M. and 7½ P. M. Sabbath school at 9 A. M.

PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH.

Rev. Henry Johnson, pastor. Services each Sabbath at 10½ o'clock A. M., and 7½ P. M. Sabbath school at 9 A. M.

BAPTIST CHURCH,

Rev. E. L. Sanders pastor. Services each Sabbath at 10½ o'clock A. M., and 7½ P. M. Sabbath school at 9 A. M.

ENGLISH LUTHERAN CHURCH,

Rev. L. Rice, pastor. Services every two weeks forenoon and afternoon alternately. Sabbath school each Sabbath at 2½ o'clock P. M.

GERMAN METHODIST CHURCH,

Rev. Chas. Treuschel, pastor. Services each Sabbath at 10½ o'clock A. M. and 7½ P. M. alternately. Sabbath school at 9 P. M.

GERMAN LUTHERAN CHURCH,

Rev. Bohlman, pastor. Services every Sabbath at 10 o'clock P. M.

GERMAN REFORM CHURCH,

Rev. P. Ruhl, pastor. Services every other Sabbath at 10½ o'clock A. M. Sabbath school at 9 A. M.

CATHOLIC CHURCH,

Rev. R. Young, pastor. Services every Sabbath at 8 and 10 o'clock A. M., alternately.

Go and see the new goods at the New York Store.

Boot Upside Down. Prices wrong side up.

Go to the little cigar store on the corner for a good 5 cent cigar. tf.

Finecut Tobacco 50 cts. per pound at G. C. Ralston's.

The New York Store is the cheapest place to buy in Auburn.

Houser's Bookstore is the place to buy school books.

Boots and Shoes 'till you can't rest at Boot Upside Down.

Havanas at the little cigar store on the corner. tf.

Go to Houser's and get the right kind of school books.

Custom-made kip boots for $3.85, at the Boot Upside Down.

Finecut chewing at the little cigar store on the corner. tf.

The newest and cheapest stock of school books at Houser's.

Try the Butler Nickel Steel Plow, only $12,00, the best plow yet made. 6t

Smoking tobacco at the little cigar store on the corner. tf.

We challenge the world to produce a better plow than the Butler Nickel Stea Plow. 6t

Black Alpaccas at the New York Store cheaper than any other in the county.

Womens calf shoes for $1.50, womens best calf shoes $1.90 at the Boot Upside Down.

You will miss it if you do not go to the New York Store for your jeans and flanels.

Hand-made boots for $3.50, stoga boots for $2.00 at the Boot Upside Down.

You can buy goods cheaper at the New York Store, than any other place in Auburn.

Farmers stop at the Boot Upside Down and save money. Winter goods coming in daily.

The Butler Plows cannot be beat in either loam or sod ground, and will scour equal to the best steel or chilled plow. 6t

Senator Morton is slowly improving.

Wm. Murhpy is lying very low with fever.

Rev. Mr. Sanders goes to Toronto for several weeks.

We learn that Mr. Wm. Lessig is seriously ill with fever.

J. A. Barberet as Marks, the lawyer in Uncle Tom's Cabin.

Wm. B. Brooks is now at the little cigar store on the corner.

The boss custom-made calf boot for $4.50, at the Boot Upside Down.

Clara Harland as Eliza Harris and Cassy, in Uncle Tom's Cabin.

Michael Long Jr., our genial music dealer, is quite sick with bilious fever.

Doctors are still kept busy attending the numerous calls of their patients.

Paul Harland as Simon Legree, the Red River Driver, in Uncle Tom's Cabin.

Our public school opened last Monday, September 3d, with a goodly attendance.

Miles Waterman has purchased and moved into the Wearick property at Waterloo.

More than the usual amount of sickness is still prevailing in this part of the county.

Rob't. B. Encell, a prominent attorney of Warsaw, Indiana, gave us a call Friday last.

Fourteen persons have recently been received into full membership in the M. E. church by the pastor.

Another reduction in fish at the Fort Wayne Fruit House. No. 1 white fish for $4.00 per half barrel.

Fernando Palmar, who has been in East St. Louis for some time, returned home last Tuesday.

Johnny Knoder as Uncle Tom, John Marvin as St. Clair, F. White Smith as Hineas, in Uncle Tom's Cabin.

Ducks can now be legally killed, prairie chickens after the first of October and quail after the first of November.

Mrs. Charles Floyd placed a handsome bouquet on our table last week, for which she will please except our thanks.

We received a pleasant call from H. S. Morse, Esq., and Mr. Carr, of Garrett and Geo. H. K. Moss, our genial county clerk.

Waterloo Press. Secretary Barns informs us that a fine herd of Alderney cattle will be exhibited at the coming Waterloo fair.

Mark Glen, a local correspondent of the Warsaw Republican, is writing some interesting items on the game birds of Northern Indiana.

The pic-nic in the grove about two miles west of town, last Saturday, was well patronized, though the weather was not so favorable.

How is this, Granulated and Pulvorized Sugars, 12¼ cents, Coffee A, 12 cents Extra C, white, 11 cents, Brown 10 cents at G. C. Ralston's.

Womens best imitation sandles 50 cts. All summer goods at cost. 200 cases of boots bought and we must have room for them at the Boot Upside Down.

To Mothers:—Should the baby be suffering with any of the disorders of babyhood use Dr. Bull's Baby Syrup at once for the trouble. 25 cents per bottle. For sale by F. E. Davenport.

Our thanks are due Miss Orpha Bodine and Miss Mattie Nichols, for courtesies extended at the pic-nic Saturday.

There will be a match game of base ball played here to morrow, between the Spencerville nine and our home club. Don't fail to see it.

Brigham Young, who passed in his checks Wednesday of last week, had nineteen wives, one hundred and fifty children, and about $6,000,000.

MARRIED—On Saturday evening, September 1st, 1877, at the Swineford House by Rev. J. E. Ervin. Mr. Joseph Lansdowne, of Sandusky City, Ohio, to Miss Louisa Gooding, of Garret, Ind.

Waterloo Press. P. H. Grambling, the Summit cigar man, has given $2,000 bonds for his appearance in the U. S. Court—charge, violating the revenue laws.

The base ball game at Waterloo last Friday was given to our neighbors on the sixth inning on account of a storm coming up before the nine innings were played.

It is an established medical fact that vanilla ice cream causes a relaxation of the muscles and a tenderness of the heart, while lemonade makes girls revengeful.

Prof. J. E. Bond, will give a street entertainment, by way of walking a tight and slack rope from the tops of the highest buildings in our city, this afternoon and evening.

A State Temperance Convention will be held at Indianapolis, Sept. 26, next. The different Temperance societies are requested to send delegates.

JNO. C. PEARSON, Sec'y.

Lagrange Standard. A number of farmers will try sowing wheat a little later this year, on account of the fly. The late sown wheat of the last crop was less injured by the fly than the early sown.

$2,000 were paid out in Auburn for wheat last Saturday. With a similar sale at other points in the county, it will not take long to make a fine distribution of greenbacks in the "rural districts."

A young man, named Pope, was shot and killed near New Haven, Allen Co., on the 21st inst.—Butler Record.

We thought his name was Bope, and that he lived at Butler, from the way Charley Baxter wrote last week.

The Elkhart county Agricultural Society will hold their ninth annual fair on October 2nd, 3d, 4th and 5th. The fair for this season promises to be a good one.

Grand opening of carpets at Root & Company's this week. They will display an elegant assortment of extra ingrain carpets, all the way from 30c to $1.00 per yard. See change in advertisement.

The editor of the Ligonier Banner announces a birth of a boy in which he claims a partnership. And yet we've been told their was nothing certain but death and taxes. We believe for once, however, there's an innovation.

We are pleased to state that many of our subscrebers are making it a point to call and inquire after their subscription; and, what is more gratifying they generally leave a greenback or two to secure a continuation of the COURIER's agreeable visits at their firesides.

The Baptist church will be closed several weeks for repairs. It is to receive improvements in the way of painting, frescoing, etc., and no services will be held therein for at least several Sabbaths.

Don't forget the fair at Fort Wayne next week. They are making extensive preparations, and it will be by far the best ever held there. Gov. Williams will deliver an address on Thursday if the weather is favorable. Half fare on all railroads.

Garrett Herald. There is fair prospects for an unusual amount of freight being shipped over the B. & O., this season. We are glad to see it, as it not only benefits the company, but the railroad towns along the line.

We believe there is sufficient material in John Sherman's late speech to carry Ohio for the democrats by 25,000. His assertion of a "prosperous country" alone is enough to sink a healthy party, to say nothing of one already in the throes of death.

Hard times come again no more, is the cry of the weary, but they have had the effect of bringing down the price of clothing. Look in at Schaab, Beugnot & Co.'s and notice the new suits which they are selling so cheap, and their other goods all new and of the latest styles.

Sherman says this is the most prosperous country on earth. Well, Sherman has thrived at least. From a poor lawyer before the war, he is now a millionaire. But everybody did not have army contracts, and now he looks upon his thousands and says the country is prosperous.

Every effect must have a cause; so boils, pimples, etc., are the result of poor blood. Purify the blood by using Dr. Bull's blood mixture and banish such eruptions as those named. Sold by F. E. Davenport.

The Cincinnati Gazette says: "Upon the whole, we don't think Mr. Sherman's exposition of the finances will prove satisfactory to the country. It will certainly not be accepted as satisfactory by the people of Ohio." And the only person we have heard endorse it in this neck o' the woods, is Charley Baxter, which is simply no endorsement at all.

The lower mill is now making an extra brand of flour, from new wheat. Mr. Whetstone is determined to excell in the manufacture of a good article, and has now in his employ a tried workman, one whose experience enables him to turn out flour that will cheer the heart of those who have contended with bad flour and who detest bad bread. Try a sack.

We are in receipt of a poetical contribution, but as it lacks the "devine afflatus," it will not appear. If we were to publish it verbatim, it would anger the writer, if we were to attempt to fix it up, by embodying any part of it, people would laugh, where it is intended they should weep, and we can't see the feelings of our contributor outraged in that manner.

The Board of Commissioners. will on the 8th day of October, 1877, let to the lowest responsible bidder, the construction of a dyke or levee, on the public highway, about one mile east of Spencerville, and at the same time and place the planking and piling on the upstream side of said levee. Also a "water brake" or protection to the east abutment of the Spencerville bridge.

Senator Grover, of Oregon, is not through with his troubles. While he was Governor of the state he loaned himself $13,000 out of the State Educational fund, upon what is alleged to be insufficient security, and he has failed to pay any interest. The margin between this and stealing is very narrow.

And that's just our opinion. If Mr. Grover, is guilty of the above, he should be made to step down and out. We have a greater horror for a Democrat thief than any other for a Democrat official should know better.

Chandler and Cameron are rich. When the clerks in his department were assessed $5,000 for campaign expenses, Fish said, "What is the amount?" and he gave his check for the five thousand dollars. It does no need much money, however, to buy good goods at the popular clothing house of Schaab, Beugont & Co. They keep their prices, down to suit the hard times, and now is the time to buy. Go and see their mammoth stock.

The president leaves to-morrow for the west. Why is it that the great representative of the civil service reform movement, can junket over the country spending money like water, while three million of people are asking for work in our own great country. Is Hayes a second edition of Grant, in this respect? Is there nothing for him to do at Washington, and if so, should he be paid $50,000 a year to do it? We believe Mr. Hayes' pretentions at reform are a fraud as well as his election.

A party of gentlemen from Lafayette visited Fort Wayne last week, to inspect the water works there. Hacks were furnished and the party was escorted along the banks of the defunct canal, for several miles to the great delight of the visitors, who took it for a pleasure ride. But when it was referred to as "their water works," they took the 9 o'clock train for home. Sam Morse is the proprietor of the largest water works in the city, something like the artesian, only on a smaller scale.

The temperance elements of this place are loosing their enthusiasm. The workers are becoming indolent, and the interest is fast abating. Are we to conclude that the late effort was only spasmotic, like the crusade, and is not to be more fruitful of permanent results than it was. We hope not. Temperance is a good thing to have around you at all times. We fear the result of the late movement will leave us in a worse condition than we were before, if something is not done to arrest the manifest indifference into which we are plunging.

Call them rebels, traitors, cut-throats, assassins, murderers, vandals, rioters, disunionists, in fact, anything but "erring brethern," Mr. Key. Such terrible insinuations as that, makes them awful mad, and then, you know, too, that this is a time of conciliation, and it won't do to use harsh terms at all, towards those mild-mannered Southern people who haven't done anything worse than to try to destroy the Government. They are gentlemen, every one of them, from Davis down to Wade Hampton, and it will never do to call such high-toned cusses by any pet names.

Which goes to show that the Kendallville Standard, from which the above is taken, is not in favor of Hayes' southern policy.

The most blinding flashes of lightning and crashing peals of thunder, occurred last Friday evening. The atmosphere seemed full of electricity, and sheets of flame appeared in almost every direction. We learn that a man named Hackathorn, on his way from Waterloo to his home in Fairfield, was struck and killed a mile or two from the town, while sitting on the rear end of his wagon. Nothing else was injured. A current of the fluid wound around Coop Ralston's tamarack and skinned it pretty badly, which goes to show that tamarack, as a shade tree, is not a success.

Dr. Wm. L. Peck, one of the oldest and ablest surgeons of the old reliable National Surgical Institute, at Indianapolis, will visit this city, professionally, Wednesday, September 7th, at the Swineford House—one day only. By reason of this visit the afflicted of our county have an opportunity of learning if they are curable or not, without the expense and inconveniance of a trip to the Institute. All afflicted, old and young, are cordially invited to a free consultation and examination. As no money is required the opportunity should not, and we trust will not, be neglected.

Uncle Tom's Cabin.

This great drama will be presented in this city for the first time in four years, at Ensley's Hall, on Friday and Saturday evenings of this week, under the supervision of the favorite artists, Clara and Paul Harland. Mr J. A. Barberet, the comedian, appearing as Marks, the lawyer, Johnny Knoder sustains the character of Uncle Tom, while his little daughter, Allie, will play the part of Eva. Mr. Marvin, of Garrett, Messrs. Nickerson, Grubb, Mooney, and Picker also have prominent parts. Miss Ola Yandes assumes the part of Topsey, and Miss Stella Yandes that of Aunt Ophelia. We are assured that the piece is being throughly rehearsed, and we are confident that a fine performance and an enjoyable entertainment is in store for those who visit Ensley's Hall Friday and Saturday evenings of this week.

The New York Times says you might nearly as well forget your churches, your academics and school houses, as to forget your local paper. It speaks to ten times the audience, that your local minister does. It is read, eagerly each day and week from beginning to end. It reaches you all, and if it has a lower spirit and less wisdom than a sermon, it has a thousand times better chance at you. Lying as it does, on every table in almost every house, you owe to yourselves to rally liberally to its support, and require from it as able, heightened a character as you do from an educator in your midst. It is in no sense beneath notice and care—for it is your representative. Indeed, in its character, it is the submation of the importance, interest and welfare of all. It is the aggregate of your own consequence, and you cannot ignore it without miserably depreciating yourself.

Of the several remedies which are prescribed for the healing of cuts, wounds, bruises, burns, Scalds, toothache, headache, diptheria, and sore throat, none can come up to standard of Lawson's Curative. It has stood the test of years. For sale by F. Davenport.

Delinquent Taxes.

In reply to a letter from the treasurer of Vermillion county, in reference to delinquent taxes where first installments has been made, the State Auditor says:

"The second installment of taxes goes delinquent the first Monday in November and passes to the current duplicate on the 15th of December following, giving the treasurer an opportunity to collect the second installment delinquency by levy and sale of personal property. When the treasurer follows the law strictly by exhausting personal property for the second installment delinquency, between the first Monday in November and the 15th of December, the sale of real estate is legal, and should be advertised. All real estate delinquent on second installment, held by non residents, should be advertised as promptly as if delinquent on first installment."

The editorial pic-nic at Rome City last week was a mammoth failure as far as the general attendance of the editors was concerned. It is somewhat humiliating to record this fact, especially to these connected with the preparations. The Grand Rapids and Indiana railroad company, generously tendered the use of their road and the grounds on the lake, which they control, refusing several applications for their use by other parties on the same days. Col Tompkins of the Lake Side House, had made every arrangement for such a number as was reasonably expected to be present, and the officers of the association, did their best to hvae everything complete, as they proved to be. After a unanimous vote in the June convention to hold a picnic, it was fully anticipated that many would be present and on that anticipation arrangements were made. For all this work cheerfully performed, half a dozen lend their presence, though not one outside of adjoining counties put in an appearance. Personally we do not care so much, but when the association authorizes its officers to make arrangements and they solicit others to aid in the preparations, a general non-attendance shows but a poor appreciation of their efforts. Had the affair been prepared and carried out by one individual, it could not have been treated with more indifference. When the editors of Indiana want an affair of this kind or any other arranged again, they should attend in person, and not vote splidly and then treat it so shabbily.

NOTICE.

I hereby notify all persons indebted to me by note or book account that J. B. Casebeer, formerly a partner with me has now no authority whatever to receive collections on said accounts and any money paid to him after this date will receive no credit on my books.

A. R. COLLAR.

Sept. 4th, 1877.

Go to Davenport's for the boss five cent cigar.

THE ONLY

FIRST-CLASS INSTRUMENT.

The ESTEY ORGAN

Stands unrivalled. It has stood the test of years, and has never been excelled. Those wanting Organs should get the Estey, the very best there is made. Hundreds of testimonials in its favor, and increased rates every year. Call and examine them

G. H. YESBERA, Agt.

Next Door to Abright's, Main Street, Auburn, Indiana

NEW GOODS

ARIVING DAILY!

AT THE

STAR CLOTHING HOUSE!

A M, PETE & MAX, STAR CLOTHING HOUSE, FT. WAYNE

AUBURN COURIER.

THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 6, 1877.

THE NEWS CONDENSED.

THE EAST.

A DAY'S chapter of accidents in Massachusetts: At Salem, as a train was running down a crowded pier, it struck a group of five persons, killing Wilbur F. Swasey, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Swasey, and Miss Rachel Gifford, sister of Mrs. Swasey, and injuring two others; at Springfield, a conductor and brakeman were killed and several others wounded by a collision between two trains; at Worcester, John Mahoney and Thomas Winn were killed by the [illegible] the Wyoming coal region, of Pennsylvania, are still idle. Acts of violence are of common occurrence. The military are still at Scranton, Pa., and an excursion train composed of officers and citizens was nearly wrecked recently by a purposely misplaced switch.

THE WEST.

ON the afternoon of Aug. 25 two spans of the Union Pacific railroad bridge at Omaha were swept away by a tornado, causing a break of about 500 feet at the Iowa end of the structure. The catastrophe will prove a serious detriment to business throughout the entire trans-Missouri country. The bridge is said to have cost something over $2,000,000. It is 2,750 feet long, divided into eleven spans of 250 feet each. Two spans, therefore, represent two-elevenths of the bridge. It is estimated that $300,000 will be required to replace the broken spans....Indianapolis reports that there is every indication of a renewal of business there this fall....Last week Chicago alone, of all the large cities, showed a gain in her clearing-house report....Chicago merchants predict for that city the most prosperous fall trade it has experienced since the panic....Three members of a notorious band of horse-thieves were recently found hanging to a tree between Holden and Lexington, Mo., with bits of paper pinned to their bodies labeled "Horse-thieves."....A Camp Robinson (Neb.,) telegram says: "The Sidney coach, from Deadwood, was stopped last night above Buffalo gap by five road agents, who fired into the coach before a word was given to halt. Ed Cook, Division Superintendent of the stage line, was shot through the ear. The robbers secured $12 out of about $1,000 in the possession of the passengers."

THE leading merchants of St. Louis have been interviewed by a newspaper reporter, and they say the prospects for a heavy fall trade in that city are good....A sensational tragedy was enacted in Chicago a few days ago. A young man named O'Sullivan became enamored of a girl named Kate Brannock, the daughter of respectable parents. She refused to marry him, which so incensed him that he killed her by shooting her through the head with a pistol, and then ended his own miserable existence in the same manner.

NO LITTLE excitement has been caused in Chicago by the failure of the State Savings Institution, the leading savings bank in the city, and at one time considered one of the soundest financial concerns in the Northwest. Bad assets, injudicious management, and a slight run on the bank, consequent upon the recent failures in St. Louis, are said to have been the causes that brought about the smash-up. The total deposits amounted to 2,931,576, the bulk of which was the hard earnings of industrious poor people, who are illy prepared to bear the loss. The affairs of the concern have been placed in the hands of an assignee. It is claimed by the officers of the bank that the dividends for depositors will realize 80 or 90 per cent....St. Louis papers record the death of Ben DeBar, the well-known actor and theatrical manager....Chicago elevators contain 306,831 bushels of wheat, 1,412,463 bushels of corn, 307,370 bushels of oats, 117,127 bushels of rye, and 90,639 bushels of barley, making a grand total of 2,234,424 bushels, against 3,227,099 bushels at this period last year....The Knights Templar of the United States held their triennial conclave at Cleveland a few days ago. The parade was one of the finest ever witnessed in the country, over 8,000 plumed Knights being in line. Some difficult and beautiful maneuvers were executed during the march.

BRIGHAM YOUNG, the Mormon saint, died at Salt Lake City, on the 29th of August, of cholera morbus, at the age of 76 years. He had suffered but a short time, but his demise was not altogether unexpected, as his years weighed heavily upon him, and he was not in physical condition to withstand the ravages of his malady.

A TERRIBLE accident occurred on the Chicago, Rock Island and Pacific railroad, near Des Moines, on the morning of Aug. 29. The scene of the calamity is eight miles east of Des Moines and two miles west of the village of Altoona. Leaving the latter place the road curves down and around the small branches so as to cross Four-Mile creek. At the crossing of the creek there was a stone-arched culvert, with the ordinary wooden superstructure. The rains of two days had culminated in a deluge, continuing almost incessantly during Monday night. The train was composed of three coaches, a sleeper, baggage and mail car, and Barnum's advertising car, the latter being next to the engine. The train left Altoona nearly on time, and ran at about the usual speed toward Des Moines. Approaching the Little Four-Mile culvert, the engineer, Billy Rakestran, discovered the washout and applied the air brake, but it was too late to avert a disaster. The engine went through, followed by Barnum's car, which was so completely wrecked as to cause surprise that all the twelve persons therein were not instantly killed. The baggage car was thrown entirely across the creek, the smoking car followed, but, while a number were hurt, one person only—the peanut boy—was killed. This is accounted for by the fact that the second coach went into and under the first, while the third was also forced more under than over. In these two last occurred the greatest loss of life. The sleeper was stopped on the very edge of the chasm, and none of the passengers in it were injured. The scene at the time can be better imagined than described. The steady pour of rain, the flashing lightning above, the rushing waters below, the crushing of wood and iron, the frantic shrieks of imprisoned passengers, the groans of the wounded—all these and more combined to make a scene of terror sickening to contemplate. As soon as possible help was summoned from Altoona and Des Moines. The officers and employes of the road did all they could to recover the bodies of the dead and add to the comfort of the wounded. Twenty dead bodies were taken from the wreck, and about fifty persons were wounded, some of them so badly that they can scarcely recover. The scene at the time of the accident is described as having been terrific; rain was falling in torrents, accompanied by wind, lightning and violent thunder. The crash put out the lights, and the scene of terror ensuing may well be imagined. The men who were not injured and could get out went to work at once to rescue the living and the wounded. They had to go a mile to a farm-house to get axes to chop them out; but they worked heroically, and by daylight had the most of the wounded rescued. There were many pitiful scenes and touching incidents. One mother was killed, sitting between two children, who escaped unhurt. One little girl, who had lain in the water for four hours, with a heavy man lying dead beneath her body, was discovered to be breathing, and was rescued and restored, and now shows no signs of injury.

AN investigation into the affairs of the collapsed State Savings bank, of Chicago, shows it to have been one of the worst cases of failure on record. Of the $3,000,000 confidingly intrusted to its keeping by 15,000 of the city's poor, it is doubtful if they will ever recover so much as even a sixth. The bank, it appears, has been run solely in the interest of the rascally officers, nearly all of whom have fled to parts unknown. Spencer, the President, it is believed, has taken refuge in Canada....Ex-Gov. Wilson Shannon, of Kansas, is dead....A monument has been erected to the memory of John Brown by the citizens of Osawatomie, Kan.

THE SOUTH.

A COLUMBIA (S. C.) telegram announces that "the Grand Jury has found true bills against ex-Gov. Moses, ex-Lieut. Gov. Gleaves, ex-Treasurers Parker and Cardozo, ex-Comptrollers Dunn and Hoge, ex-Speaker Lee, Clerks of the General Assembly Woodruff and Jones, ex-State Senator Owens, and others, on various charges of fraud in connection with the discharge of their official duties. An indictment was also returned against United States Senator Patterson for attempting to bribe the Legislature."....Admiral Semmes, of Confederate navy fame, died recently at Point Clear, Ala.

WASHINGTON.

THE President and Secretaries Evarts, Devens and Key returned to Washington from their New England tour on the 25th of August. Secretary Sherman returned from his Ohio visit on the same day.

It is stated in a Washington dispatch that Postmaster General Key, on his return to the capital, "found a bagful of letters from the South about his 'erring brethren' speech. Key says he used the words as a quotation, and that the phrase was taken as a joke all around."

J. MADISON WELLS called at the White House the other day to pay his respects to the President. "The interview," says a correspondent, "was quite short. Wells assured the President that his Southern policy was working well, and that there are at present no troubles in Louisiana. Gov. Wells says that, no matter what President Hayes wishes in regard to the indictment against him and Gen. Anderson in New Orleans, he would be powerless, according to a recent decision of the Supreme Court of the United States. They are to be tried in October, and, if convicted, will undergo sentence immediately."

UNITED STATES DISTRICT ATTORNEY STONE, of South Carolina, has sent in his resignation.... It is asserted that the President will shortly remove J. Russell Jones, Collector of the Port of Chicago....The amount of national-bank currency issued during August was about $1,400,000.

THE following is the programme of the President's Western and Southern trip: Sept. 8 and 9 he will attend the National Encampment of Volunteer Soldiers at Marietta, Ohio; thence he will visit his home at Fremont, remaining two days; Sept. 11 goes to Dayton to attend the meeting of the Board of Trustees of the Soldiers' Home; 12th, unveils a soldiers' monument at the Home; 13th, returns to Fremont to participate in the reunion of his old regiment, 23d Ohio; 16th leaves for the South; 17th, will be present at the opening of the Industrial Exposition at Louisville, Ky.; 19th, will visit Nashville, Tenn.; 20th, Chattanooga; 21st, Knoxville; thence returning to Washington through Virginia, visiting Lynchburg, Richmond and other prominent cities.

GENERAL.

THE Cuban League, which has its headquarters in New York, has issued an address to the people of the United States urging the inhabitants of large cities to form Cuban Leagues, for the purpose of exercising moral influence upon our own and other civilized governments in favor of the suppression of the inhuman war waged against Cuba the last eight years, and asking the aid of the press to demand Cuba's recognition as a belligerent....The new season at McVicker's Chicago Theater opened with the first production in America of Sardou's "Seraphine," which has proved highly successful. The company is the best ever gotten together in the twenty years' career of the theater under Mr. McVicker's management. Edwin Booth will appear for an engagement of several weeks' duration during the term of the Exposition.

THE National Board of Trade has just held an interesting, and it is hoped a profitable, four days' session at Milwaukee. The attendance was meager in numbers, but seems to have more than made up in quality what was lacking in quantity. The discussions took a wide range, embracing nearly every important topic relating to the commercial, financial and industrial interests of the country. Among other important questions passed upon was the proposition looking to the adoption of a standard weight of the bushel throughout the United States; a request to the President to recommend to Congress the creation of a commission for the purpose of revising the tariff rates; the adoption of a memorial to Congress for the removal of the present unjust discrimination against the West in the matter of direct importation; the passage of resolutions in favor of a reciprocity treaty with Canada; the adoption of a resolution recommending the funding of greenbacks in bonds of the United States bearing 4 per cent. interest and running 40 years, and expressing the opinion that the present law for the resumption of specie payments is insufficient to accomplish that purpose; the denouncing of the Bankrupt law as unjust and oppressive in its operations; the adoption of resolutions urging the repeal by Congress of the navigation laws of the United States, which were characterized as unjust and destructive to the American ship-owning interest; and calling upon Congress to take steps to secure an international monetary convention for the purpose of establishing a permanent relative valuation between gold and silver. A resolution in favor of the remonetization of silver was voted down.

THE Chicago Inter-Ocean recently addressed a circular letter to nearly all the members of the present Congress soliciting their views upon the question of the remonetization of silver. The number of replies received was 197, with the following result: In favor of remonetization, 146; against remonetization, 18; undecided, 31; declined to answer, 2.

THE premium on gold in New York has just touched the lowest point it has reached since 1872, namely, 104.....Music has been distinctly transmitted from New York to Hartford, a distance of 240 miles, by the Edson telephone.

ONLY twelve Governors responded to the call for a reunion at Philadelphia, namely: Hartranft, Pennsylvania; Porter, Tennessee; Anthony, Kansas; Young, Ohio; Newbold, Iowa; Yarber, Nebraska; Hampton, South Carolina; Stone, Mississippi; Axtell, New Mexico; Prescott, New Hampshire; Bedle, New Jersey; Cochran, Delaware. After "doing" Philadelphia for three days, the distinguished party made an excursion to Cape May, thence visited New York, Boston, and the White mountains.

THE Grand Encampment of Knights Templar of the United States, in conclave at Cleveland last week, elected Dr. Vincent N. Hulbert, of Chicago, Most Eminent Grand Commander of the Knights Templar of the United States, and selected Chicago as the place for the meeting of the next triennial conclave....The American Association for the Advancement of Science has just held an interesting session at Nashville, Tenn., Prof. Simon Newcomb, of Washington, D. C., presiding. This is the first time the Association has met in the South since the war....A movement is on foot in Cincinnati looking to a reunion of Union and Confederate soldiers in that city sometime this fall.

POLITICAL.

THE Republicans of Virginia have declined to nominate a State ticket....The Connecticut State Greenback Convention was held at New Haven last week, over 1,500 delegates being in attendance. Resolutions were adopted demanding the unconditional repeal of the Resumption act, the full remonetization of silver, bonds interchangeable with greenbacks, the latter to be full legal tender, equitable taxes, abolition of monopolies, the stoppage of all subsidies, and the removal of Secretary Sherman.

THE New York Republican State Convention has been called to meet at Rochester Sept. 26. The New Jersey Republican Convention will meet at Trenton Sept. 25....Senator Conkling is reported as saying that he is opposed to the President's officeholders order, and that the officeholders of New York will neither resign nor go out of politics. It is said he has advised A. B. Cornell, Naval Officer at New York, and Chairman of the New York Republican Committee, to "stick" until removed by the President.

THE Democrats of Iowa met in State Convention at Marshall on Wednesday, Aug. 29, and nominated by acclamation the following ticket for State offices: Governor, John P. Irish; Lieutenant Governor, C. C. James, of Pottawattamie county; Supreme Judge, R. E. J. Boardman, of Marshall; Superintendent of Public Instruction, G. D. Culleson, of Wayne. The following platform was adopted:

1. The Democracy of the State of Iowa in convention assembled hereby declare in favor of a tariff for revenue only, honest, economic home rule, the supremacy of the civil over the military power, the separation of church and state, equality of all citizens before the law, opposition to the granting by the General Government of subsidies to any corporation whatever; and we believe

2. That the destruction of the industry of the country and the pauperism of labor are the inevitable fruits of the vicious laws enacted by the Republican party.

3. That, as a means of relieving the distressed portion of the community [illegible] demand the immediate repeal of the Specie Resumption act.

4. That we denounce as an outrage upon the rights of the people the enactment of the Republican measure demonetizing silver, and demand the passage of a law which shall restore silver to its monetary power.

5. That we favor the retention of a greenback currency, and declare against any further contraction, and we are in favor of the substitution of greenbacks for national-bank bills.

6. We congratulate the country upon the acceptance by the present administration of the constitutional and pacific policy of local self-government in the States South, so long advocated by the Democratic party, and which has brought peace and harmony to that section. And in regard to the future financial policy, in the language of our national platform, adopted in the New York Convention in 1868, we urge,

7. The payment of the public debts of the United States as rapidly as practicable, all money drawn from the people by taxation, except so much as is requisite for the necessities of the Government, economically administered, being honestly applied to such payments, when due.

8. Equal taxation of every species of property according to its value.

9. One currency for the Government and the people, the laborer and the officeholder, pensioner and soldier, the producer and the bondholder.

10. The right of the State to regulate railroad corporations having been established by the higher court of the country, we now declare that this right must be exercised with due regard to justice; and, as there is no necessary antagonism between the people and these corporations, the common interests of both demand a speedy restoration of former friendly relations, through just legislation on the one side and a cheerful submission thereto on the other.

11. The rights of capital and labor are equally sacred, and alike entitled to legal protection. They have no just cause for quarrel, and their proper relations to each other are adjustable by natural laws, and should not be hampered by legislative interference.

12. That we favor the repeal of the present prohibitory liquor law of this State, and the enactment of a judicious and well-regulated license law instead, all money derived from licenses to go to the common-school fund of the State.

GENERAL elections are to be held in fourteen States this fall, as follows:

Date.	State.	To be Chosen.
September 5	California	Legislature.
September 10	Maine	Gov. and Legis.
October 9	Ohio	Gov. and Legis.
October 9	Iowa	Gov. and Legis.
November 6	Connecticut	Legislature.
November 6	Maryland	Compt'r and Leg.
November 6	Massachusetts	Gov. and Legis.
November 6	Minnesota	Gov. and Legis.
November 6	Mississippi	Gov. and Legis.
November 6	New Jersey	Gov. and Legis.
November 6	New York	Sec. Ste and Leg.
November 6	Pennsylvania	Auditor General.
November 6	Virginia	Gov. and Legis.
Govember 6	Wisconsin	Gov. and Legis.

INDIAN NEWS.

A SALT LAKE dispatch of Aug. 25 reports the Nez Perces Indians on Henry's lake. Gen. Howard was one day behind them, but, as he had halted to await supplies, there was a prospect of the distance between them being widened.

A DISPATCH from Deadwood, Dakota, says: "The party of twenty persons who left here about two weeks ago for the Little Missouri river returned to-day. They report that last Tuesday afternoon the party discovered Indians close to them. They selected high ground, and dug rifle-pits. They had been digging about twenty minutes when nearly 500 Indians appeared on a bluff opposite about 400 yards off and commenced firing at them. The fight lasted nearly four hours. Thomas H. Carr, Quartz Recorder of the Deadwood Mining District, was shot through the head and killed. Twenty-seven horses belonging to the miners were also killed. After dark the Indians withdrew, and the miners escaped, being obliged to walk 150 miles to reach this city."....A late Washington dispatch says: "The dispatches to the Government indicate that there is no apprehension of a general hostile combination of Indians against the whites in the Northwest. The antagonism between the wild tribes is such as to prevent this, were an effort made. The Sioux especially are feared and hated by all the other tribes."

FROM Fort Ellis, Mont., under date of Aug. 27, Capt. Benham, of the Seventh Infantry, telegraphs as follows to Gen. Gibbon, at Helena: "The Indians appeared in Griser basin on the 24th inst. They struck a Helena and Radersburg party, killing seven men and taking two women and one man prisoner. Just as he left Mount Washburn yesterday the Indians attacked another party, killing nine of them. One of them escaped. The Indians released Mrs. Cowan, her sister and brother, who reached Schofield yesterday. The main camp crossed the Yellowstone on the 25th. The warriors went back to fight Howard. Whitebird and Looking-Glass remained with the camp. Joseph went with the warriors. They say they are going to Wind river and Camp Brown to get supplies. Schofield thinks they are going to the Lower Yellowstone, via Clark's Fork. They crossed the river between Mount Washburn and the lakes. Schofield does not say just where he will send his courier."....Gen. Lew Wallace has proposed to the Secretary of War his plan for putting down Indian wars. He recommends the employment of a corps of frontiersmen for border duty, who are to live upon the country. He would, in short, create a lot of predatory white bands to offset the thieving savages.

A TELEGRAM from Gen. Miles to the War Department at Washington announces the return from British America of Sitting Bull and his band of savages. In consequence, all further proceedings in regard to the selection of a commission to visit British territory and treat with them have been suspended.

THE TURKO-RUSSIAN WAR.

MR. FAWCETT, sent by Layard, the British Minister, to report upon the condition of the fugitives south of the Balkans, and to distribute relief, writes: "Even all written gives no adequate idea of the extent of the misery and destitution among the refugees or the barbarities perpetrated on both sides. The British relief committee at Adrianople, after careful investigation, have ascertained that 10,150 fugitive women and children need relief at once. Of these, 1,700 are Jews and 8,000 Turks.

THE fight for the possession of the Schipka pass proves to have been one of the most stubborn and well-contested on both sides that the war has afforded. The Russians occupied a number of intrenchments originally constructed by the Turks in the defiles of the Balkans, but abandoned by them soon after the Russians penetrated into Roumania. The Turks hurled themselves with desperate valor upon these defenses, and were repeatedly repulsed with terrible slaughter. For six days the contest raged with fury, the valorous Turks, with gradually thinning ranks, returning time and again to renew the assault, always with the same result. The Russians, on each approach of the enemy, poured a galling fire into their ranks, mowing them down by hundreds, literally paving the mountain side with corpses. The number of Turks who were killed and wounded is estimated at not less than 9,000 or 10,000. The Russian loss, owing to the fact that they fought under cover of their works, was comparatively small. The total Russian force engaged was 13,000 men. Opposed to these was the whole of Suleiman Pasha's army, estimated at 60,000.

A BATTLE of some magnitude was fought near Kars, in Asia Minor, on Saturday, Aug. 25, between the Russians under Tergukasoff and Mouktar Pasha's army. A correspondent, describing the engagement, says: "The heights of Kiziltepe, which were captured by the Turks, were only held by one Russian battalion. The Turks swarmed upon the mountains, protected by siege guns, which they used with terrible effect. They made a desperate flank movement from the direction of Kars to capture Kurukdara. The Russians had their tents loaded on wagons ready to move, but the perfect discipline and admirable management of the officers, together with fierce fighting, saved the day. The infantry contest at the Soubhatan village and fort was terrible, the Turks retiring at sundown with heavy losses. The Russians lost before Kurukdara two Generals and eight officers killed, 237 soldiers killed, and 712 wounded. Deserters say the Turks lost 3,000 men."

A LONDON correspondent telegraphs on Aug. 29: "Intelligence from Schipka is to the effect that fighting is still going on. This is without doubt the greatest battle of the war, having now been in progress seven days. It is estimated that the Turks lost not less than 10,000 men, while the Russians lost 9,000. During these successive fights in the Balkans the Russians have had a vastly inferior force even with Radetsky's reinforcements, and only naturally strong positions saved them from the furious charges of the Turkish infantry. The issue appears likely to turn upon the question which can bring up the greatest reinforcements in the shortest possible time. It is obviously Suleiman's plan to wear out the defenders of the pass by using constant relays of fresh troops, and he would undoubtedly succeed in the end if the Russians were not also being recruited by fresh arrivals. The crisis in this year's campaign is now impending. Appearances indicate that the tide, which has been favorable heretofore to the Turks, is now turning and bearing the Russians to victory."....The Czar has at length consented to the participation of the Roumanians in the war, and their battalions have commenced crossing the Danube into Bulgaria.

A TELEGRAM from Pera, dated Aug. 31, says: "The preliminary useless and bloody assaults on the front of the Russian positions have been abandoned, and the investment of the Russian right flank commenced. The natural obstacles encountered by the Turks are of tremendous magnitude. Guns have been dragged by hand up heights almost impassable by unencumbered footmen. In the charges and counter-charges at the position gained by the Turks on the Russian flank the results were murderous. On the slope in front of the Turkish guns defending the line of the rifle-pits 210 Russian bodies were left within a space seventy-five yards square. Quarter was rarely given or taken in this attack. From the beginning of the assault on Schipka, the fighting has been often hand-to-hand, and the dead outnumber the wounded."

IT is stated that the Roumanian army will preserve its individuality, although acting in concert with the Russians....The Porte has ordered the concentration of 20,000 Turkish troops on the Servian frontier.

GENERAL FOREIGN NEWS.

AN adventurous Colorado potato beetle was lately found in a potato field near Schildau, Saxony. The population of that district immediately took precautions to stop his further progress....The plague has broken out in Russian Poland....A French transport with 130 cases of cholera is quarantined at the mouth of the Suez canal....It is currently reported and believed in England that the well-known Turkish General, Osman Pasha, is the celebrated French exile, Marshal Bazaine.

SOUTH AMERICAN advices report another serious earthquake in Chili. Owing to the breaking of the cable from Callao south we are without particulars of the disaster....At a council of French ministers the other day, at which President MacMahon presided, it was decided to prosecute Gambetta for the speech which he delivered at Lille. The journals which published it will also be prosecuted.

COL. WELLESLEY, the accredited representative of the British Government at the headquarters of the Russian army operating from the Danube, has made a report to the War Office. It has been published as a "Blue Book." He says that, after a thorough examination of English and other witnesses of the Russian operations, he has come to the conclusion that the charges of Russian cruelties are absolutely without foundation....Servia has finally decided to cast her fortunes with Russia.

A CORRESPONDENT at Rome telegraphs: I have received from ordinarily trustworthy sources the information that the Pope is suffering great prostration, and has barely strength to attend to any business....A dispatch from Pesth announces that the Bosnian insurgents have been again totally defeated near Czernypotak, and driven over the Austrian frontier.

DISPATCHES from London on Aug. 30 state that after the desperate but unsuccessful attempt of the Turks to drive the Russians out of Schipka pass on Sunday the attack was not renewed, and up to Tuesday the opposing forces confined themselves to outpost skirmishing. The Turks appear to have secured possession of some heights which threaten the Russian flanks and are beyond reach of the Russian batteries. Radetsky had been heavily reinforced, and expected to be able to hold his position, while the Turks were taking advantage of the suspension of actual fighting to construct strong earthworks in the valley of the Tundja.

A LONDON dispatch says that "harvest reports from all quarters are most desponding. Floods have caused great damage in Wales and Scotland, and the weather in the English midlands and elsewhere is very bad."

BUSINESS INTERESTS.

Commercial and Trade Matters.

SILKS will be cheaper than ever, the cocoon crop in France being very large.

BALTIMORE papers say the indications of an early fall trade are apparent in the business quarters of that city, the stocks accumulated largely exceeding those of previous years.

THE New York Herald thinks the fall trade of that city will be the largest since 1873. The sale of merchandise is already unusually large and of a character for every-day consumption.

SO MANY new vessels are building in England, especially steamers, that the English shipping brokers say that they begin to fear that the carrying trade of the world is being largely overdone.

THE commerce of the country in 1872 and 1873 was the largest ever known. For the year ending June 30, 1877, it amounted to $1,149,550,662, very nearly the full aggregate of the heaviest years.

A BALTIMORE paper reports that the Baltimore and Ohio road is anticipating a greater demand for freight facilities this fall than for several seasons past. Additional freight cars are being constructed by the company, and the force of hands has been largely increased and the time extended.

Mill, Shop and Labor Notes.

BOTH Burlington, Iowa, and Monmouth, Ill., are working to secure the location of rolling mills at those places.

AN iron company has lately been organized in Hocking county, Ohio, with a capital stock of $100,000, to work some of the coal and iron interests of that locality.

THE Delaware and Hudson Canal Company have decided to mortgage all their Pennsylvania property, including coal lands, for $10,000,000, to meet forthcoming obligations.

SEVERAL Indianapolis carpenters who went to London, Eng., some time ago, are satisfied with their prospects. Wages they report at £2 a week, or $10, and work plentiful.

STATE MINE INSPECTOR ROY is now in the Mahoning valley, Ohio, instituting suits against some of the mine owners in that region for violation of the mining law in not providing proper escapes for miners.

THE wages paid to employes of the Michigan Central road have been adjusted and graduated upon a scale approved by the workmen themselves. In a very few instances a small percentage was taken from the salaries paid at present and heretofore, but as a rule the pay was increased, the advance ranging from 4 to 12 per cent. The advance will probably average 6 per cent. The employes express themselves satisfied [illegible]

THE outlook in the coal and iron trades in Scotland is reported as far from encouraging, and a winter of severe trial and suffering is anticipated. The ironmasters in the west of Scotland have resolved to reduce their productions by about one-third the usual supply, the reason for this step being alleged to be the prolonged dullness of trade and the very low prices at which pig-iron is being sold. The practical import of this will be that about one-third of all the furnaces in Scotland will be stopped.

IN the Iron Age we find a statement of the condition of the blast furnaces in the United States on the 1st of July, which we condense as follows: Charcoal furnaces in blast, eighty-seven, with a weekly capacity of 7,730 tons; anthracite, eighty-seven, capacity, 17,442 tons, bituminous coal or coke, eighty-five, capacity, 20,660 tons; total number in blast, 259 furnaces, with a weekly capacity of 45,832 tons. Charcoal furnaces out of blast, 181, weekly capacity, 12,548 tons; anthracite, 139, capacity, 24,463 tons; bituminous coal or coke, 123, capacity, 26,455 tons; total number out of blast, 443 furnaces, with a weekly capacity of 63,467 tons.

HAYES' TALKS.

Some speeches of the President on His New England Tour.

AT CONCORD, N. H.

GOV. PRESCOTT, LADIES AND GENTLEMEN: This custom of handshaking, which I have just got through with, comes down to us through several generations, and it is not an altogether satisfactory proceeding, and now, having shaken hands, we hardly feel acquainted with each other. We wish to hear the voice, and I suppose it is as proper now as at any time to make my acknowledgment to the authorities of the State of New Hampshire, Governor, and members of the Legislature, and to the authorities of the city of Concord, for their kindness in bringing me to New Hampshire. We entered the State last Monday, and have been making our way through it, visiting the remarkable scenery of the mountain regions under circumstances every way favorable. The weather is perfect, the sky clear, the air bracing, and when on top of Mt. Washington there seemed nothing lacking to improve that wonderful spectacle that is as surprising as it is perfect. It is possible we have had few clouds in the sky, just enough to make the sky seem beautiful as the shadows floated over the great mountains, and passing from that we came down to the region of lakes, that beautiful part of New Hampshire where your great river, the great Merrimac (that river that builds up such cities as Lowell, Lawrence, and Manchester) takes its rise. So I came on down here under a somewhat hotter sun than is usual in your climate. My fellow-citizens, I am glad to exchange greetings with you, and to be met by you. I thought it was not altogether proper in meeting this people that I should talk politics to them. Men of all parties have met me—Democrats, Republicans, and Independent Republicans; Republicans that are satisfied and Republicans that are dissatisfied [applause and laughter], and really I feel by the way that laugh comes in that there is a pretty large crowd here. But at any rate we are here not to talk politics, and it does not seem proper to me that one in my situation should argue as to measures he thinks proper to pursue. What you want in this country as an executive is one that shall execute. That I believe to be his duty, and all that I want of my countrymen is that charitable judgment that is proper to be given by men among men, looking each other in the face, who believe that upon the whole the man they are looking in the face, whether he is right or wrong, after all means to be right. It is not a good thing to say of a man that his intentions are good, and there is a proverb that a very bad place is paved with good intentions, and yet, after all, among this people the man that has the confidence of the people that he has good intentions has gained something.

Perhaps I had better stop here, and call upon some other. [Cries of "Go on."] Well, then, there is only one other thing, and that is, up in New Hampshire, as in Ohio and every other State, you desire the Union to be a real Union—a real union of hearts, a union of friends. You would wish to have the entire union secure, not merely by force, but by all the affections of the people in all parts of the country. Now, while we have had in the past distrust between the sections, alienation, the hostility of bad blood, I believe, nevertheless, that with the cause removed the old harmony and concord may return, and I believe it will return; and I believe in adopting measures that will make it return speedily. Then I do not see but that in the main we agree as to the most needful thing to be done, and our only difference is upon the measures by which we are to accomplish that end, and this I must decline altogether to discuss.

And so now let me introduce to you gentlemen that are somewhat responsible for my blunders, and it is a great pleasure to have somebody to lay it on. In the first place, there is a gentleman from the South who is said to have captured the good-natured man from Ohio. Well, I can't say sure about that. There may be something to it, but I thought then that we captured him. He was very much in error during four years, and his error continued up to last November, for, as I have been telling the audiences, he made a bad mistake in voting against me in November last, and yet, upon the whole, he seems to be a very honest man, and that is one thing that seems to disturb men in politics. There are so many men who vote wrong. He has become better very fast. As I told the people up there, if you keep him among you a week or two he will be as good a Republican as you can furnish. So now I introduce to you Postmaster General Key.

ON MOUNT WASHINGTON.

FELLOW-CITIZENS: It will be impossible for us to stay long enough to have a general shaking of hands, for the audience is too large and the distance to be traveled by us too great to admit of it. You must be satisfied with having the same advantage I have—that of seeing. You came here to see me and I came to see you, and, to use the expression of the late President Lincoln, I have to say that we have altogether the best of the bargain. In making these acknowledgments it is not my purpose to enter into a political discussion. We are gathered here of all political parties; and, while we may differ as to the ways and means, we all shall agree that the General Government must and should be administered for the common prosperity and common benefit of all the inhabitants in our country. We may make mistakes, but they will be from lack of judgment, but it will not be through or arise from lack of disposition. I must leave you now, but I take great pleasure in introducing to you Judge Key, a man that has been greatly wrong in the past, but is greatly right now.

AT BETHLEHEM, N. H.

FELLOW-CITIZENS: I thank you cordially, one and all, for this greeting, and I wish it were possible I could form the acquaintance of each of you, and take you by the hand, but our journey allows but a moment at each place. I am sure you don't desire me to make a political speech. You are too sensible a crowd for that, but I am sure we agree in a few things, however much we may differ in others. There are many things about which we can differ, such as business and secular affairs, without discussing our political differences. Now we are agreed as Americans, I think, that all parts of the constitution shall be obeyed, parts that are new as well as parts that are old, that it will be a grand thing to have peace and unity. We have disagreed in the past. Through the evils of war the country was borne; but these things are past. Let us have a brief period, at least, of perfect harmony and unity. We have with us a few people who are associated with me in office—Secretary Evarts, Atty. Gen. Devens and Postmaster Gen. Key. I don't see that you make much difference in these people, although the last had the bad taste to vote against me, and this is his first visit North; but he is with us in the common interest. The results of the war are to be accepted by all the people of all parts of the country, both North and South. I have now the pleasure of introducing to you Postmaster General Key.

AT WEIR'S STATION (N. H.) CAMP-MEETING.

FRIENDS AND FELLOW-CITIZENS: [illegible] assure you that this kind welcome gives me very great gratification. We do not, I am sure, mistake its meaning. You are interested in me and those with me, because of the great trust which under the constitution and the laws has devolved upon me. You believe with Lincoln that in the performance of his duties the only safe reliance for your Magistrate is Divine assistance, without which he cannot succeed, and with which he cannot fail. My earnest desire is, my earnest prayer is, that in every difficult and grave emergency I may be so guided that all good citizens can approve the measures that may be adopted, and that all may conscientiously pray for their complete success. It is not best for one bred to the law to attempt to quote scripture, but there is something like this: "There is more joy over the repenting one than over a hundred that have not gone astray." We have with us a friend that was [illegible] years ago, and more recently made the mistake of voting against me, but now, on the question of the integrity and maintenance of the Union, and on the question of freedom and equality to all men, no man is before him.

Judge Key, the Postmaster General, spoke as follows: It would not be expected that I should appear here without embarrassment. It is not without feelings of sadness that I view this scene. I am carried back to my boyhood days, when in that far-distant South, my sunny home, I attended meetings like this, for the Methodists were found in that part of the Union, and my father was an humble minister in your church. He has been gone now ten years, and you have heard how I have wandered. I will not attempt to quote scripture, for I might fail more significantly than the President, but I have heard an old hymn that reads, "While the lamp holds out to burn the vilest sinner may return." The fact that Mr. Devens and myself are here together show that the principles of religion have a hold in the Cabinet, if not throughout the whole country. The people of New Hampshire need have no fears of the people of the South. Both political parties there have indorsed the constitution and all of its amendments, and the people have been placed by the President and his policy on their good behavior. I am sure they will keep their faith. I thank you sincerely for this greeting, and I accept it not as a compliment to myself, but as a mark of the feeling of unity you have for the people of the South.

AT TILTON, N. H.

FRIENDS AND FELLOW-CITIZENS: The five minutes that we are allowed to stop here does not permit me to make a speech to you, neither do you desire it. You come to make our acquaintance. Your presence here is evidence that, although you may not agree with me in party or in regard to policy or measures, you are interested to see me. So far as good intentions go, and so far as I shall endeavor to do what you would have me do, you will be charitable to mistakes, and I have no doubt we may make many. You will, however, I hope, agree with me that in the nation, among all classes and colors, there should be peace. If you do, we shall not differ angrily or violently about measures. It is in that desire and with that purpose that I hope, in four years, to do something for the whole country and for all its inhabitants. I am sure you would rather hear some one else, Judge Key, for instance.

VICE PRESIDENT WHEELER AT CONCORD.

MR. MAYOR, LADIES, AND GENTLEMEN: A call upon the Vice President in the presence of the President of the United States seems to me hardly to be in order. The whole theory of the office of Vice President is, except in the mere matter of presiding over the Senate of the United States while in session, that he is to act in the place of the President—[President Hayes, interrupting—"I wish you had been in my place for the last hour."] He needs no substitute, my friends, there or elsewhere. He has already demonstrated to the satisfaction of the people of the States his high capacity as the official head of the nation. With firmness and patriotism faithfully meeting every duty devolving upon him, and with the simple ambition to make the American name throughout the world the representative of freedom, honesty, peace and unity. Sprung from New England loins, he inherited a patriotism which your John Stark took to the field of Bennington with him 100 years ago, and its fruitage shall be seen in the administration which shall be marked in the future of the country as an epoch of high advancement in the art of true and just government. As for the Vice President, he is in full accord with the President in these purposes. His highest boast, too, is that he is of good old New England stock. He trusts that he has inherited something of its patriotism, and something of the principles which have placed this nation in the van of nations, and which, by the help of God, shall keep it there, until it shall lift up to the eyes of the world the standard of true, enlightened, and free Government.

THE MARKETS.

NEW YORK.
BEEVES	10 00	@12 00
HOGS	5 25	@ 5 75
COTTON	11	@ 11½
FLOUR—Superfine Western	4 00	@ 4 40
WHEAT—No. 2	1 30	@ 1 40
CORN—Western Mixed	52	@ 55½
OATS—Mixed	29	@ 36
RYE—Western	65	@ 67
PORK—Mess	12 90	@13 00
LARD	8¾	@ 9
CHICAGO.
BEEVES—Choice Graded Steers	5 90	@ 6 25
Choice Natives	5 25	@ 5 75
Cows and Heifers	2 50	@ 3 75
Good Second-class Steers	3 75	@ 4 25
Medium to Fair	4 50	@ 5 00
HOGS—Live	4 80	@ 5 35
FLOUR—Fancy White Winter	6 75	@ 7 00
Good to Choice Spring Ex.	6 00	@ 6 50
WHEAT—No. 2 Spring	1 06	@ 1 07
No. 3 Spring	1 01	@ 1 03
CORN—No. 2	41	@ 42½
OATS—No. 2	23	@ 25
RYE—No. 2	51	@ 52
BARLEY—No. 2	67	@ 68
BUTTER—Choice Creamery	23	@ 25
EGGS—Fresh	11	@ 12
PORK—Mess	12 25	@12 35
LARD	8½	@ 8¾
MILWAUKEE.
WHEAT—No. 1	1 13	@ 1 15
No. 2	1 00	@ 1 10
CORN—No. 2	42	@ 43
OATS—No. 2	23	@ 24
RYE—No. 1	54	@ 55
BARLEY—No. 2	70	@ 71
ST. LOUIS.
WHEAT—No. 2 Red Fall	1 27	@ 1 28
CORN—No. 2 Mixed	38	@ 39
OATS—No. 2	25	@ 26
RYE	56	@ 58
PORK—Mess	12 70	@12 80
LARD	8¾	@ 9½
HOGS	4 75	@ 5 20
CATTLE	4 00	@ 5 75
CINCINNATI.
WHEAT—Red	1 05	@ 1 17
CORN	46	@ 47
OATS	27	@ 32
RYE	57	@ 58
PORK—Mess	12 40	@12 50
LARD	8½	@ 9½
TOLEDO.
WHEAT—No. 2 Red Winter	1 25	@ 1 25½
No. 1 White Michigan	1 31	@ 1 32
CORN	47	@ 48
OATS—No. 2	27	@ 28
DETROIT.
FLOUR—Choice White Winter	6 50	@ ....
WHEAT—No. 1	1 31	@ 1 32
CORN—No. 1	47	@ 49
OATS—Mixed	28	@ 29
BARLEY (per cental)	1 15	@ 1 40
PORK—Mess	14 45	@14 55
EAST LIBERTY, PA.
CATTLE—Best	6 00	@ 6 50
Medium to Good	5 00	@ 5 75
Common to Fair	4 25	@ 5 00
HOGS	4 00	@ 5 60
SHEEP	3 00	@ 5 00

AUBURN COURIER.

T. C. MAYS, Publisher.

THE OHIO CAMPAIGN.

Speech of Hon. Thomas Ewing, at Columbus.

The Resumption Law Dissected, and John Sherman Answered.

Fellow-Citizens: We are met, after one of the most eventful years in the history of the American people. A long political strife has happily ended in the triumph of the Democratic principle of local self-government; and another equally protracted and momentous struggle is now nearing its decisive day.

For ten years past, in violation of the constitution and of the pledges on which the war was fought, the Republican party held several great States in military subjection; fastened on them a rule of ignorance and vice; robbed them by intolerable debt and taxation; fomented race and sectional hatred, and prevented the restoration of that free government and fraternal feeling without which the war were vain and its fruits but ashes.

And for ten years past, in violation of its duty to the great people who bore the heat and burden of the war, instead of keeping our vast debt at home as a currency debt, and leaving our then prosperous industries undisturbed by contraction and forced resumption, it has doubled the public burden by fraudulently making the greenback debt a coin debt; sold the bonds abroad and made America, as a borrower, the servant of Europe, the lender; demonetized silver at the demand of foreign Shylocks; and, to crown its blunders and crimes, paralyzed the abounding energies of our people by a scheme of gold resumption, which is filling the land with bankruptcy, and the hearts of the laboring masses with despair.

So that this great, young, resourceful people, smitten on the one side with local misgovernment and race feuds, and on the other with industrial distress and paralysis, crouched down, like the strong ass Issachar, between the two burdens which the carpet-baggers and the usurers loaded on them.

The Gold Resumption law towers above all others as the issue of this canvass. The Republican party is solely responsible for it and irrevocably committed to its enforcement. It enacted that law by a strict party vote; it stood by it throughout the last Congress in solid phalanx; its President declared against any repeal or amendment, and put its author in the treasury to execute it; and now sends him to Ohio—illustrating by exception the vaunted rule of civil-service reform—to hide the hideous features of the law from the people whose happiness and industries it is destroying. Mr. Sherman boldly says, at Mansfield, that the law "can, should, and will be executed;" while the silence of the Cleveland platform on this Republican measure only adds the vice of cowardice to the crime of its enactment and execution.

On the other hand, the Democratic party is clearly and fully committed against the law. Repeatedly, in the last Congress, it voted for its unconditional repeal; it passed through the House a bill striking out the most pernicious section, which bill Mr. Sherman smothered in the Senate. And our Ohio platform this year, as last, declared for the repeal of the whole law—not its amendment, but its utter and absolute repeal.

This law, involving as it does the early and total destruction of the greenback currency, and the larger part of the national-bank currency, is the sole cause of the unparalleled distress which afflicts all—employers and employed alike—who are engaged in industrial pursuits. To no other adequate cause can the trouble be attributed. Our people have been blessed with health and peace—have had good crops, and, certainly, for four years past, have practiced a rigid economy—our exports have steadily increased, and our imports steadily diminished. Why should each successive month bring fresh and greater disaster? What other adequate cause is operating with accelerating power to drive millions of wage laborers into idleness and pauperism, and to drag into bankruptcy the most of those whose means are engaged in industrial pursuits, leaving none to stand but the wealthiest and strongest?

We are told that the panic of 1873 is partially the cause of our troubles. I answer that it long since ceased to affect us. Unlike all other revulsions, it had no origin in the character of the currency, which was increased in value in public estimation by the panic, instead of being impaired or destroyed by it. Its effect was brief, and was limited to a few great insolvent corporations and firms, and to a comparatively small number of individuals involved in their affairs. Former panics, on the other hand, affecting as they did the current money of the people, were far more general and protracted in their bad effects.

The country was rapidly and obviously recovering from the panic of 1873, when, on the 14th of January, 1875, the Resumption law was enacted. If the panic were the cause of our present industrial distress, the year 1874 would have shown more business failures than the years following. But the record of commercial failures—that barometer of the nation's business—shows a falling off of bankruptcies from $228,000,000 in 1873, the year of the panic, to $155,000,000 in 1874, rising again to $200,000,000 in the year following the passage of the Resumption law, and keeping up the enormous rate ever since. And the number of bankruptcies rose from 5,830 in 1874 to 7,740 in 1875, and to 9,092 in 1876, and to the rate of 9,498 for the first half of 1877—showing that it is the poison of the Resumption act, and not the panic, which is operating with increasing power, and reaching deeper into the hives of industry.

But, fellow-citizens, whoever would seek the cause of the troubles of to-day need only examine the Resumption law itself in the light of indisputable facts which control its operation and effect. In the campaign of 1875, before the law was dry on the statute books, I predicted its effects, and warned the people of Ohio that by indorsing the Republican party, with its fixed policy of resumption, they would plunge into utter ruin every interest worth preserving. That prediction was denounced and ridiculed then by the Republican press and leaders, but, unhappily for the people, is now being rapidly fulfilled. Let me beg my Republican friends to hear again a statement of the design and character of the law, the mischief it has already done, and the tenfold greater mischief which will surely attend its complete execution.

All of you, no doubt, understand that when the business of the country is adjusted to a given volume of currency, no large contraction can occur without great injury to the mass of the people. A decrease of the volume of the currency benefits all who have fixed incomes, whether from rents, interest or salaries, or whose wealth is in money or money securities, for it increases the purchasing power of every dollar they control, while it injures all debtors and taxpayers by compelling them to give, for each dollar of debts or taxes paid so much more of labor or products in payment.

Now, who are the debtors who suffer by lowering of the prices of labor and its products, and increasing the purchasing power of money? To the extent of his taxes everybody is a debtor. But who are the "debtor class," so-called? I answer, almost every business man in the land. Nine-tenths of the business of the country is conducted, in whole or in part, on borrowed capital; nine-tenths of the vigorous, energetic men, seeking to rise from poverty to competence, are debtors; and nine-tenths of the wage-laborers are dependent for employment on individuals and corporations who conduct their business, in whole or in part, on borrowed money.

Now there is paid each year as taxes, national, State and local, about $750,000,000; and any appreciable increase in the value of the dollar, and consequent decrease in the price of labor or its products, operates as an enormous incubus on the mass of the people considered only as taxpayers. Then, too, the currency debts of individuals and private corporations amount to not less than $5,000,000,000; and any large increase of the value of the dollar and decrease of the price of labor and products, with which such debts are paid, is a vast addition to those debts. If the change of values be large it must result in general bankruptcy—bankruptcy of the nation, States, counties and cities—because the people cannot bear the increasing burden of taxes; bankruptcy of railways, manufacturers, merchants, tradesmen, and wage-men, accompanied by forced idleness and starvation of those who look to daily wages for daily bread.

Now the present unhappy condition of our industrial classes is precisely that which inevitably follows sudden and large contraction of the currency. The symptoms all point to that cause as the extreme depression, vomiting, and burning pain in a patient points to the dose of arsenic in his stomach. And I will show that the fatal draught of resumption has caused contraction enough to account for all the woes we suffer, and involves a further contraction large enough to utterly kill our industries.

When the Resumption law passed we had about $766,000,000 of paper currency, which, added to our coin (though that was not in circulation), gave us per capita $15.56, excluding bank reserves. France has $35 of actual circulation, exclusive of such reserves; England, $24.28, and Germany $26.80 before demonetization of her silver, and $23.62 after that demonetization. It is preposterous to say that our circulation was excessive in view of the condition of those conservative nations, over whose petty areas, covered by nets of railways and telegraphs, exchanges are effected with ten times greater average speed than over our widely-extended and largely-undeveloped domain. Our currency was certainly not beyond the then-existing wants of trade. President Grant, with the sanction of his Cabinet, in his message in December, 1873, represented it as insufficient; and both houses of a Republican Congress, Gen. Garfield leading off in the House, passed a bill to increase it, which Grant, having meantime succumbed to the bullionists, vetoed.

The Resumption law was passed with the general belief that it would result in an increase of the paper currency. But how has it operated so far? It has already caused an actual and permanent contraction, as follows:

1. By destruction of greenbacks Jan. 14, 1875, to Aug. 1, 1877	$22,811,182.00
2. By cancellation of bank notes, Jan. 14, 1875, to Aug. 1, 1877	36,624,612.00
3. Greenbacks surrendered to redeem and cancel bank notes not yet actually canceled	14,425,026.00
Total	$73,860,820.00

These figures are those of Mr. Sherman's Mansfield speech, except the last item, which he omits, doubtless because the cancellation is not yet actually accomplished. To this may be added $57,170,000 held as private deposits, almost all of which will probably be kept hoarded in the treasury awaiting payment and cancellation. Thus we have an effectual contraction, as shown by the books of the treasury, of $131,030,820. This is exclusive of any part of the $44,000,000 of "coin and currency" which Mr. Sherman intimates he has accumulated in execution of the Resumption law. He does not tell what part of it is legal-tenders, nor explain by what authority of law he is hoarding paper currency for resumption. Add to this large sum the $100,000,000 which is estimated by the Cincinnati Gazette to be elsewhere hoarded—hoarded solely because business is paralyzed, credit stopped and enterprise become pernicious under the accumulating disasters threatened or accomplished by forced contraction—and we have, as the work of the first nineteen months of preparation for resumption, an actual destruction of one-tenth of our currency, and a withdrawal from business of nearly one-third of it. "If these things be done in the green tree, what will be done in the dry?" An equal destruction and hoarding will give us by resumption day an actual destruction of a fifth of our currency, and leave in actual circulation but little over one-third of the currency we had afloat when the contraction screw was put in operation.

But Mr. Sherman says the bank surrenders of circulation were not made under the Resumption law, but under a former law. True, but it is the threat of resumption, and that only which is driving in the bank circulation. Mr. Sherman, in his speech in the Senate on the 14th of December, 1868, in opposition to Morton's bill for resumption of specie payments, said: "All historical precedents show that fixing the day for resumption inevitably led to a contraction of the currency by the banks, * * * and the process of contraction produced the sorest distress." Our banks know that after resumption day they can't keep one-third of the present volume of bank paper afloat redeemable in gold. Hence the banks, especially those remote from the centers where gold accumulates, are foreseeing the danger and hiding themselves. They would all wait until near the resumption day to withdraw their currency; but many of them have further motives for early withdrawal in the desire to realize the premium on their bonds, and to increase their cash assets in this time of money stringency throughout the West.

And what further destruction of our paper currency must we expect after resumption day? On this momentous question the Secretary of the Treasury, the author of the law, the acknowledged dictator of the finance policy of the Republican party, ought to be able to speak with confidence. He got a "dispensation" from Hayes to come to Ohio and open the campaign for the Republican party on this resumption question. He knows that the business, the property, the comfort and happiness of the masses depend on the question whether the execution of that law will involve a further large contraction of the currency. But here is all he could say last Friday at Mansfield to calm their fears and reanimate their hope: "A certain amount of United States notes can be, and ought to be, maintained at par with coin." But at what does he estimate that certain amount? At ten millions—fifty—an hundred—three hundred? He does not say. Prudent Mr. Sherman! to leave your "certain amount" so very uncertain.

The obvious fact is, that each legal-tender note, after Jan. 1, 1879, is an order on the treasury for gold. Whoever wants gold to pay duties, to ship abroad, to hoard, to collect as reserve for redemption of bank notes, has only to send greenbacks to the treasury and get it. The greenbacks will then be destroyed, and the gold sent abroad or hoarded in banks for redemption and for customs. Every dollar of greenbacks, to redeem which the treasury can rake and scrape enough gold, will be forthwith redeemed and destroyed; and within a year after resumption, I venture to predict, Mr. Sherman's "certain amount" of greenbacks maintained in circulation will be but little less than what has been lost or destroyed in the fifteen years since their issue began. We will then have lost our greenback currency and have only a gold bonded debt abroad to represent it.

Recollect, fellow-citizens, that "redeem," in this law, means to pay and destroy, as the Government destroys a bond when redeemed, and it every day destroys fractional currency "redeemed" under the same language of the same law. A reissue of a greenback redeemed under this law is clearly not permitted, as Mr. Sherman intimated in debate when the law passed, and as he intimates in his Mansfield speech in complaining that he is not allowed to fund the greenbacks directly in bonds—so that every greenback "redeemed" goes forever out of existence as money.

"But we shall then have a gold currency instead of greenbacks," say the resumptionists. Not at all. None of the gold will be in general circulation. The banks must have it to redeem their notes, even if they buy it at a premium. The importers must have it to pay duties; and, above all, Europe must have it in payment of interest on the debts we owe her.

I do not understand how any sensible man, who knows how small is our supply of coin, and how great our debt and expenditure abroad, can believe for a moment that we can keep gold in general circulation here, or can even hoard and hold enough out of circulation, as a redemption fund, sufficient to float a fourth of our present paper currency.

Look at the facts: We pay abroad, as interest on Government and other bonds, fully $140,000,000 annually. We pay to foreign ships, which carry more than two-thirds of our foreign commerce, about $70,000,000, of which at least two-thirds is expended abroad; and our wealthy people traveling in Europe expend there not less than $60,000,000 annually. I take the average of several estimates which show thus an annual drain for debts and expenditures abroad of not less than $230,000,000 annually; and, making due allowance for coin received by us from foreign travel and immigration, there is still left the sum of over $200,000,000 going abroad as an inexorable annual demand. It is as though we owed a debt of $5,000,000,000 in Europe, with interest at 4 per cent., payable annually there in gold.

Now, the ignoring of this fact is the fatal blunder or wrong of the resumptionists. The balance of trade in our favor has never, in any one year, equaled this foreign drain, and for the past six years has averaged only one-tenth of it, or about $20,000,000 annually.

There has never been a year since this debt and expenditure abroad was established when it was not paid in whole or in part by coin shipments, and by increasing the debt by sales of new bonds abroad, thus making the foreign demand larger and more permanent. In meeting this annual drain we have, since the war, exported of gold and silver largely more than the whole product of our mines, added all our imports of those metals; and so reduced our supply of the precious metals that we are now estimated to have in this country only about $150,000,000 to $175,000,000 of gold and silver combined, against $288,000,000 in 1860. Before the war, when we were not enslaved by foreign debt, and were yearly adding to our stock of the precious metals, we never could keep out over $225,000,000 of bank paper, even nominally redeemable in coin. How can the banks and Government do it now, with less gold and silver in the country, and a foreign demand for it which is incessant, increasing, and which cannot be ignored without national insolvency?

The great money-power—the worst legacy of the war—intend, by this scheme of forced resumption, to make gold the sole measure and payer of debts, public and private; to increase the bonded debt by funding the greenbacks; to concentrate in a few great banks in the money-centers absolute control over the volume and movements of the currency, so as to make hard times and good times at their pleasure, and fatten on the unwary multitude at every turn of the tide; to contract the currency for the next few years to the smallest possible measure, so that the $12,000,000,000 the people now owe will buy $24,000,000,000 or $36,000,000,000 in former values of the people' labor and products; to crush out the myriad of smaller industries heretofore successfully maintained by combining the energy and talent of men of small means with money borrowed of non-producers; to confiscate the real property of debtors, and bring it into fewer and stronger hands; to pauperize labor so that the money-power will enslave, and own, and use it, with no further cost than enough wages to keep the machine of laborer's body in good working order; and finally, by means of the immense concentration of wealth and power in the hands of a few, to realize the policy of the early Federalists, which is stronger since the war than ever before, of making this Government a strong, centralized aristocracy.

Whoever hugs the hope that we can pass through the furnace of forced resumption, and fare no worse than England did, is woefully mistaken. We are incomparably less prepared for resumption than she was. The paper to which her business was adjusted, when her Resumption law passed, was but $232,000,000; ours $760,000,000. The premium of gold in England then was 3½ per cent.; with us it was 8 per cent. Her debt was all held at home; half of ours is held abroad. All the world paid tribute to her manufactories and her commerce; we pay an annual tribute to foreign shipping, to foreign work-shops, to foreign bond-holders and to foreign shows equal in the aggregate to one-fourth of the net annual increase of our wealth. She was as rich in gold and silver as was ancient Tyre—"by the reason of the multitude of the wares of her making;" we have next to none of the precious metals. Ricardo assured her business men as Mr. Sherman assured us, that the gold premium which was but 3½ per cent. would be the measure of the contraction of the paper currency and reduction of values caused by resumption. Yet, to reach resumption, her currency was contracted over 40 per cent., business credits 87 per cent., and every value on the island, whether of land, labor or product, was reduced in price about one-half. If our resumption has, in fact, caused the 2¼ per cent. reduction on gold, it has also caused a reduction by cancellation and by hoarding of at least a third of our paper currency, and a shrinkage of from 20 to 60 per cent. in the value of land, labor and products. How much greater reduction in currency and in all values may we expect to overcome the remaining two-thirds of the gold premium? If we were as well prepared for resumption as England was, we might learn from the pages of Allison, Doubleday, Martineau and other chroniclers of that most calamitous period of British history what to expect. But, in our state of utter unpreparedness, we can only know that the self-inflicted calamities will be immeasurable.

The moneyed men, who are driving this car of Juggernaut over the people, seem struck with judicial blindness. They hold $3,000,000,000 or $4,000,000,000 of our national, State, county and city securities—all dependent on the will and the resources of the people. We now pay, and for a long time have paid, about $750,000,000 a year in taxes. That is $17.50 for each man, woman and child in the United States—nearly twice as much as is paid by any other nation. The British pay $11.09 per head in taxes; the French, $11.41; the Germans, $9.24; the Austrians, $7.22. It is perfectly obvious that our people cannot bear this great burden unless general prosperity be soon restored. But, if our industries are to be still further crippled and destroyed—if past accumulations must be eaten up in enforced idleness—if men must be driven to "borrow money for the King's tribute on their lands and their vineyards, and send their sons and daughters to be servants," a large part of these burdens will be violently cast off. And, if that unhappy day should come, then remember, Messrs. Bondholders and Gold Resumptionists, that it was your arrogance and greed which led to repudiation, just as the pride of the slave power abolished slavery.

The New York Senatorship.

A correspondent of the New York World writes from Albany: It is plain that the main contest in this State this fall is to be over the election for members of the State Senate. It is the only thing to which the Republicans are directing their attention, so far as this State is concerned. It is announced that George William Curtis and ex-Senator Fenton are candidates for the seat now occupied by Senator Conkling. The election does not take place until January, 1879, but the State Senators elected this fall hold for two years, and take part in the election of United States Senator. This makes the selection of the members of the upper branch of the Legislature of great importance to Senator Conkling, or whoever may be his rival for the Senatorship. The friends of Mr. Conkling are now busy canvassing the districts and working for the nomination of men pledged to his re-election. They are claiming a majority in the State Senate, but make no claim of carrying either the State ticket or the Assembly. The Democrats are likewise confident that the next Senate will be Democratic.

A Little Girl's Sad Death.

"Mother, I saved the house, but I shall die," said a 6-year-old girl to Mrs. Theodore Markham as she entered her house at High Market, Lewis county, N. Y., one day last week. The child, while attempting to light a lamp to warm some milk for a baby, set fire to her clothing. Her first thought was to run out of doors, fearing that the house would be burned and the baby be hurt, but, noticing that shreds of her clothing had fallen upon the floor, she carefully extinguished the flames. Then she ran to a horse-trough in the yard and plunged into the water. Returning to the house she waited patiently for her mother to return. She died an hour after the accident.

WHY WE ARE POOR.

An Able Refutation of the Bullionists' Theory as to the Cause of Hard Times.

[Moses W. Field, in Wayne County (Mich.) Courier.]

"What has produced these hard times?" The people should know how to get out of all these difficulties. Surely this condition of affairs was not brought about by the act of God! We have not been afflicted by war, pestilence or famine, nor have earthquakes swallowed up any of the States. The Creator has done everything for our country. Here we have mines producing all the minerals; a great variety in climate and soil. Possessing all these natural resources, calculated to make us the freest, the most independent and the wealthiest people on the planet earth, and yet, notwithstanding all these favorable conditions, our industries to-day have the lockjaw and the people have the cramps. Now, there must be some great and active cause to produce such widespread adversity. What explanation has the press to offer, and what have the bullionists to say? Why, they say that all our troubles have been brought about from three causes: First, the extravagance of the people; second, over-production and the use of machinery; and, third, greenback money for a circulating medium. And they suggest the following remedies: First, great frugality in living, which means sour milk and cabbage diet for the masses; second, the stoppage of production, which means an increase of poverty and crime; third, the contraction and utter destruction of the greenback money and the substitution of national-bank bills (not a legal tender), which means universal bankruptcy and ruin to the industrial class. Now I propose to examine briefly their views. It appears to me plain that, if people can afford to be extravagant, if individuals happen to be rich, the more expenditures they indulge in the better it is for the laborers of the country. They will then employ the people, consume the productions of their labor, and in this way scatter a little of their accumulation and shed blessings and prosperity on all around them. There may be a few extravagant people in the country, but ninety-nine men out of every hundred are too poor to indulge in extravagant living. About half the population of the country is composed of tillers of the soil, and any one raised upon a farm knows that farmers as a class are the most frugal and industrious people in the country. Why, just look at the habits of farmers—rising at 5 o'clock in the morning, doing their chores before breakfast, working hard all day, milking the cows after dark, saying their prayers, and then to bed, and, after a whole year of the hardest toil, a farmer counts up barely sufficient, after paying his taxes and debts, to do a little toward the education of his children. The farmer works hard for all he possesses, and when he parts with his money it is expended with great care. Now, the laboring classes compose nineteen-twentieths of the population. Are they extravagant? Take a workingman who earns $1 a day, for instance, or suppose he is obliged to work for his board, how extravagant can a man be who works for his board, or $1, or even $2, a day? Besides, these laboring men raise all the children; rich men rarely have any children; you will find nearly every poor workingman has a wife and four or five children on his hands. While referring to this fact in Sanilac recently, I was interrupted by a laboring man, who stated that he was working for $1 a day, and had seventeen children to support. To this whole charge of extravagance and fast living upon the industrial classes, extravagance charged upon the plain people of the country is a mean libel on the great majority of the people who by labor have produced all the wealth of the land. Then as to the question of "over-production." Any schoolboy knows that production is wealth, and by labor productions are accumulated, and the more productions are augmented the wealthier the country grows. To say that we have produced too much is, in effect, insisting that we have done too much work, have worked too hard, and now, in order to restore prosperity, it is insisted that we must fold our arms, discharge the workers, stop the machinery, keep the producers of wealth idle, and reduce the masses to pauperism and starvation, and, by pursuing this destructive course long enough, we shall become wealthy and prosperous. "Angels and ministers of grace defend us!" The more our laborers are employed, the more wealth will be created. But notwithstanding this plain truth, there are men shallow enough to insist upon this foolish notion that by stopping work, reducing labor, discharging all the workers, and through idleness driving them to poverty—so very poor that they may stave—that some day or other, that by and by, through his process of extreme poverty and despair, we, as a people, may become so rich that we shall be able to pay our debts. And while we admit that the employment of machinery and labor-saving inventions have greatly augmented productions, yet they have not, nor will they ever, keep pace with the increasing wants and demands of advancing civilization. The higher the civilization of a people, the more it develops new and increasing wants and desires, and to this there is no limit. The wants of a savage can be counted on the fingers of your hand, while it would require a lifetime to enumerate the needs and desires of the highly educated, the refined and accomplished gentleman in the far-off and better era of civilization.

And now with reference to the contraction of the greenback currency, and the substitution of the national-bank bills, as no one has ever pretended to explain how the scheme could operate beneficently, or have any remote tendency to restore prosperity and good times, I do not deem it worth while to occupy space upon this point, as it must appear plain to every candid person that, instead of a blessing to the country, the measure, if carried out, will still further augment the evils under which we are now suffering.

And now, having referred to the flat and stupid theories advanced by the bullionists and specie resumptionists, I will endeavor to give you a philosophical explanation of the causes which have produced the hard times, and suggest the remedies which in my judgment will relieve the country, restore prosperity to our industries, and revive business generally.

The present condition of affairs has been brought about by the unparalleled contraction of our legal-tender currency, and through numerous baneful acts of Congress passed by the votes of bankers and bondholders to enrich and aggrandize themselves by impoverishing, pauperizing and enslaving the people of the country. During the past twelve years our currency has been contracted over $1,300,000,000, and when I refer to the volume of the currency twelve years ago, I include greenbacks, the one-year treasury notes, the two and three-year treasury notes, the certificates of indebtedness, 3 per cent. national-bank bills, and the various issues of legal tender and circulating medium, including compound-interest notes, amounting altogether on the first day of September, 1865, to over $2,100,000,000.

On the advice of Hugh McCulloch (now a banker in London, England), Congress twelve years ago directed a contraction of the currency, and within two years and a half from that time the amount withdrawn from circulation—contracted—was $686,000,000, as reported by the Secretary of the Treasury in December, 1867. Congress authorized the issue of gold interest-bearing bonds in exchange for or to raise the means to contract and curtail the circulating medium of the realm. It provided for the inflation and wild expansion of coin-bonds in order to reduce the currency which at that time was in the hands of the people, effecting their exchanges, stimulating industries and making us the most prosperous nation on the face of the globe. The squeezing process of contraction was continued until a currency famine was produced, culminating in the great panic of September, 1873, and the bankruptcy and ruin now existing are the legitimate and bitter fruit of this baneful policy inaugurated by McCulloch. Contraction has always in every country resulted in like disastrous consequences. History proves this, and our sad experience is sufficient to give us a clear understanding of the subject.

The contraction in England during the five years preceding the resumption of coin payments in May, 1823, was only $102,180,160, and yet that insignificant reduction in the circulating medium convulsed the industries and commerce of the kingdom, resulting in the panic of 1825—a panic which ruined the miners, merchants, manufacturers and others engaged in useful pursuits, and the workingmen, driven to despair, assembled to demand bread, were fired upon in the streets by the soldiers of the King. If such were the consequences in England on a reduction of the currency to the limited amount stated, who should not be surprised at the ruinous consequences of a contraction tenfold greater in our own country. The discharge of laborers who if employed would have created wealth, and the shrinkage in the value of property since the panic of 1873 in the aggregate cannot be estimated at less than $7,000,000,000—more than three times the amount of the national debt. As labor increases wealth, the actual loss to the country by the idleness of even 3,000,000 of laborers reaches a fabulous sum even in a single year.

What Specie Payments Cost the People.

In the Finance Report for 1866, on page 166, the Comptroller of the Currency gives a statement of the public debt as it was on the 31st of August, 1865, the year the war was closed. From this statement we learn that the debt at that time was $2,845,907,626, and that of this amount $684,139,959 were made a legal tender in payment of all debts public and private, except custom dues and interest on the public debt. On the same page is a statement that, in addition to this amount of Government money, there was $176,213,955 in national-bank notes in circulation. This made the total paper currency in circulation on Aug. 1, 1865, $860,353,914. This amount was exceptional of the 7-30 bonds, and other Government obligations that were circulating, much of it as money. The entire amount of paper money in use at that time could just as well have been in Government money as to have been a portion in bank notes, had the people so willed it to be. Of course the money would have represented just so much of the public debt on which the Government would have no interest to pay so long as it was kept as money.

The policy of the Government has been to convert all this money into bonds and bank notes and tax the people the interest on both. Now, let us see what this policy would cost the people more than it would to have kept all this money in greenbacks.

The average rate of interest thus far paid by the Government on its bonds has been 5¾ per cent. The annual interest on this sum would be $40,866,820. Had the specie-payment policy been fully enforced in 1865 and the twelve subsequent years, the people would have been subject to a tax of $503,643,511. Should the same policy be enforced for thirty years, the time they are proposing to let the bonds run issued to redeem the greenbacks, the total amount paid by the people would be $2,842,105,201. Not a dollar of this enormous sum need the people have paid if they had kept the entire paper currency of the country in greenbacks. Had they done so and allowed the Government to have issued bonds and used the amount of money paid on the bonds as interest, spending it for public improvements,

They could have built five double-track railroads from the Atlantic to the Pacific ocean and fully equipped them at a cost of	$450,000,000
Twenty double-track railroads, from the lakes to the Gulf of Mexico, costing	480,000,000
Five hundred first-class steamships, costing $300,000 each	150,000,000
Two universities in each State, costing $1,000,000, and endowing each with $1,000,000, costing	152,000,000
A normal school in every county in the United States, costing $300,000 each	660,000,000
They could have donated $200,000 to each county for public baths, libraries, reading rooms, lectures, etc.	440,000,000
They could have built five hospitals or asylums in each State at a cost of $500,000 each, and endowed each with $1,000,000 as a permanent fund	184,000,000
This still leaves a surplus of to be used for building public parks, and other contingent expenses	76,105,201

The specie resumptionists, then, will, in thirty years from this date, have taken out of the people unnecessarily in taxes, to pay the interest and principal on bonds issued to resume specie payments, an amount of money sufficient to make all of these enormous public improvements, not a dollar of which need the people pay if they keep greenbacks as a national currency. The most of this money goes into the hands of Wall street, and foreign bankers and their associates.

If the men who inaugurated and who are enforcing such a robbing, swindling policy as this do not deserve the gibbet, we do not know of any set of robbers on this earth that do.—Wisconsin Greenbacker.

Resume! Resume!

We are again having these interminable arguments about the policy and necessity of specie payments. Judging from the enthusiasm and persistency with which this subject is pursued, one would imagine that the only thing lacking to make this whole people prosperous—start the wheels of industry, put laborers at work, and give hungry people bread—is to be able to take a greenback to a bank and get a dollar in gold for it. It is not necessary, mind, to get the dollar, because it is not supposed that anyone will care to do so when there is no difficulty about it, but to be able to do so if it is desirable.—Chicago Inter-Ocean.

—Mr. Sherman says that his favorite plan for resumption is contraction. He will contract to the last extremity possible under any construction of the law. His determination being known, the national banks will aid him in bringing about an enormous contraction, not unlikely to the entire amount of the circulation of their notes, or one-half of our currency. The treasury has next to no gold at all. The entire amount necessary for resumption must be accumulated. We have seen the time within a few years when it was impossible to withdraw $20,000,000 or $15,000,000 in gold from Great Britain. Let us note how Mr. Sherman succeeds in drawing $300,000,000 across the sea. Mr. Sherman paints in pleasing colors the ease with which this gold can be accumulated, and all the while the ruin which the threat of resumption is causing stares us all in the face. He tells us it will not hurt, while the agony is already felt. The process is scarcely begun which he assures us will be a pastime, and the country is in misery. Lock up suddenly, or within a short time, $300,000,000 of gold coin anywhere in the world, and watch the effect. Then say that the enforcement of the Resumption act is easy.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

ALL SORTS.

Oregon has acquired 7,000 immigrants this year.

Twelve women are Postmistresses in Schuylkill county, Pa.

The best judges of pleasure are the best judges of virtue.

Calamity is often a whip to virtue and a spur to a great mind.

Fourteen lives were lost in Kansas during July by lightning.

Firing wheat stacks is one form of amusement in Minnesota.

Wolves are doing considerable in the pork business in Kansas.

Indians never kiss their wives; kissing is one of the Christian graces.

The felicities of mankind are strengthened by the counsels of the good.

It is estimated that 50,000 people will emigrate to Texas this coming fall.

There are 55,000 signers to the Murphy temperance pledge in the State of Ohio.

It is stated that ten members of the United States Senate are printers by trade.

The expenses of the Tichborne trial cost England over a million and a quarter of dollars.

About half the fashion-plates sent out from Paris are colored at the prisons by female convicts.

Massachusetts men complain that they were shabbily treated at the Bennington centennial.

A new shade of red, between scarlet and crimson, will be the predominating bright color next season.

A French velocipedist, M. Emile Houberden, recently rode 151¼ miles in 23 hours, including stoppages.

Cashmere lace has taken a new lease of life in the fashionable world, and will be much worn the coming fall.

A Hudson toy balloon traveled from that city to South Acton, Mass., 145 miles, in less than twelve hours.

Revivalist Moody is as brown and rough-handed as a farmer, from working his ten acres in Northfield, Mass.

The San Francisco Post says that in the county of Colusa, California, 132 men own and farm 484,000 acres of land.

Sanford Doud, of Iowa, is the father of thirty-two children. He is 70 years of age, and his baby girl is 6 weeks old.

Prince Bismarck is troubled with wakefulness, to relieve which he drinks champagne in prescribed doses before going to bed.

The assessed value of personal property in San Francisco is $47,076,365 this year, a falling off of $7,740,528 as compared with 1876.

North Carolina has paid for fertilizers within the last twelve months $3,000,000; Georgia, $2,000,000; Virginia probably more.

In British India statistics recently collected go to show that the number of suicides in the hot season is immensely more than at other times.

The census gave Paris, in 1876, 1,988,806 inhabitants. The number by December, 1877, will reach 2,000,000. The next census will be in 1880.

The autumn military maneuvers are to be carried out on a grand scale in France, Italy and Germany, and the sovereigns of each will assist at them.

It is estimated that the school fund of the State of Texas will be $80,000,000 when the school lands are all sold, and the annual income will be $2,800,000.

On the return home from Europe of Senator Conkling, the patriot of the Rochester Democrat tossed up his hat and exclaimed:

Lo, the Conkling hero comes.

FRUIT HOUSE PRICES!

GREATER BRGAINS THAN EVER.

All sugars reduced a half cent. All teas down 10 cents per pound. Choice raisins reduced to 7 cts. per pound. Sugar cured hams reduced to 11 cts. per pound. Shoulders reduced to 8 cts. per pound. Pickled pork down to 8 cts. per pound. No. 1 white fish down to $4.50 half barrel.

SUCH LOW PRICES HAVE NEVER BEEN KNOWN

Our Tea Trade

Is constantly increasing. We now sell more in a day than we used to in a week—now sell a good tea at 25 cents a pound. Those who prefer a fancy article we have it up to the very finest article 60 and 90 cents per pound. No middlemen between us and our customers. We purchase direct of the importers and sell direct to the consumers, thereby saving them the profits of the speculator, jobber and wholesale dealer. All of these have to have their profits which adds 20 to 30 cents per pound to the tea before it reaches the consumer. This is the only secret of our success, doing away with the middlemen.

Young Hyson Tea,	25, 40, 50, best 90 cents per pound
Gunpowder Tea,	40, 60, best 90 cents per pound
Imperial Tea,	30 70, best 90 cents per pound
Ooolong Tea.	25, 50, best 75 cents per pound
Japan Uncolored Tea.	30, 50, best 70 cents per pound
English BreakfastTea,	50, best 80 cents per pound

SUGARS, SUGARS, SUGARS!

ALL DOWN HALF CENT PER POUND.

Coffee A, 11 cents. Coffee C, 10 cents. Choice Yellow, 10 cents. Granulated and Crushed, 12 cents. Powdered, 12 cents.

COFFEE! COFFEE!

Our Best Rio, 25 cents. Good Fine Rio, 22 cents. Old Government Java, 30 cents. Roasted Rio, 22 cents. Best Roasted, 28 cents.

No Advance on Meats.

Best Sugar Cured Hams, 11 cents,
Sugar Cured Shoulders, 8 cents.
Best Pickled Pork, 8 cents.

Syrups.

Cuba 40 and 50 cents.
White Drips, 75 cts. and $1.00.
New Orleans, 50 and 75 cents,

Raisins and Canned Peaches at a Terrible Sacrifice!

The large 3 lb. Can Peaches, 15 cents,
2 lb. Cans, 10 cents.
2 lb. Damsons, 15 cents.
Choice Valencia Raisins, 7 cents.
Strawberries, 10 and 12 cents.
2 lb. Green Gages, 25 cents.

FISH! FISH! FISH!

Harvest time being the great fish season, we laid in a large supply when they were low to supply our customers at the owest rates.
No. 1 White Fish, half bbls $4.00 New Pickerel in half bbls., $2.50 No. 1 White Fish in kits, $1.00.
New Pickerel, in kits, 75 cents, Boston Mackdrel, in kits, 75 cents and $1.25.
We have a No. 3 White Fish, small but sound fish, half barrels, $1.00.

OILS. OILS. OIL!

Coal Oil per gallon, 20 cents. Headlight Oil per gallon 25 cents. Lard Oil, per gallon, $1.00
Fish Oil per gallon, $1.00. Best Golden Machine Oil per gal. 70c. Machine Oil per gal. 30cts

You can save at least 25 per cent. on the dollar at the

Fruit House, Fort Wayne, Ind

JOHN L. DAVIS,

OF THE

PIONEER HARDWARE STORE,

Would respectfully announce that he has made large additions in every department, and is prepared to turnish everything in the Hardwase line·

He keeps a full stock of

BUILDING MATERIAL.

Whichhe can sell at prices to suit the times. All kinds of

STOVES and TINWARE

on hand. He keeps a first-class TIN M R and is prepared todo all kinds of Eaves Trough hangnig Roofing, on short notice, and in a workmanlike manner.

MAIN STRFET, OPPOSITE COURT HOUSF AUBURN, IND

'THE REGULATOR'

DOWN! DOWN! DOWN!

FROM 10 TO 25 PER CENT.

HARNESS, SADELES, COLLARS, WHIPS, &c.,

At my new shop on seventh street, opposite Court House, in old Post Office building. Come and see me and I will sell you a good article for less money than you ever heard of before. All work warranted.

J. I. SMITH.

JAS. CLIFFORD.

WATERLOO, IND.

Keeps constantly on hand the best and choicest brands of all kinds of

Wines and Liquors,

Cigars, Tobaccos, &c.

He also has, in connection with the above a first class

BILLIARD HALL.

To our citizens and the traveling public, we would say that this is the popular resort at Waoo. First door south of the railroad.

FOR SALE.

VALUABLE LANDS.

I offer for sale one section of land, in Kosciusko county, Ind., nine miles south west of Warsaw, adjoining W. Beybl, and a quarter section nearby, which I will sell as a whole or in lots of 40 acres or more, as the purchaser may desire. The land is well improved, well timbered and I will sell low for cash. Or I will sell on time, one-forth down, and the balance in ten years. Also a section in Fulton county on the same terms. For particulars address,

H. BEIST, Kendallville, Ind.

ELSWORTH, ANDREW & CO.

Have opened for the Spring Trade of 1877, an elegant li e of

BRUSSELS & INGRAIN

CARPETS

In all the new and elegant designs; and will give very low figures to

CASH BUYERS.

A full line of

OIL CLOTHS,
MATTINGS,
LACE CURTAIS.
WINDOW SHADES,
STAIR RODS,
RUGS and MATS.

And a splendid stock of

WALL PAPER AND DECRATIONS.

We solicit inspection from Auburn and vicininy.
ELLSWORTH, ANDREW & CO.

26 East Berry Street,
Fort Wayne, Indiana.

J. G. FLEDDERMAN

No. 27, East Main-St.

FORT WAYNE, IND'A

as the larhest and finest stock of

CLOTHS, COATINGS, CHEVIOTS,

AND

CassimereS

in Ft. Wayne. The finest line of

Made up Clothing

ever shown in Fort Wayne

Youths' and Children's Clothing!

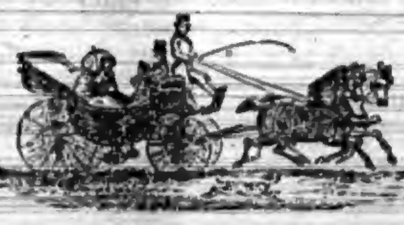
Furnishing Goods, &c.

Merchant Tailoring

All work done in all the latest styles, promly att e nded , do and seehislargestock

---

WHOA! WHOA!



We can't stop till we get to

HOUSER'S BOOK STORE!

Where you can find an extensive stock of Standard and Miscellaneous Books. He s a fine selection of

JUVENILE BOOKS.

TOY BOOKS,

Gift Books Bibles, Albums, Card Cases, Writing Desks. Stereoscopes, Pocket Books. Chromos, Pictures, Picture Frames, Stereoscopic Views, Chess, Checker, Chess Boards, Dominoes, Games in great variety.
Johnson's Celebrated Gold Pens & Pencils.

Wall and Window Paper,

Window Shades a Fixtures a specialty, and a host of other useful and beauti naticles, Main-st., Auburn, Ind.

Geo. De Wald & Co.

FORT WAYNE, IND.

Have always on hand the largest and best stock of Dry Goods and Ladies Dress Goods in the city. Our ctizens when of visiting Fort Wayne, should not fail call and examine their stock

DRY GOODS.

They can make it to the interest of every person who trade with them. They buy for cash and sell for cash, keep the best goods and seil for one price. Also agents for the Domestic Paterons
Their store is located at No. 1 Columbia Street.

GEO. DE WALD & CO.

STILL AHEAD AT F. E. DAVENPORT'S DRUG STORE!

A FINE ASSORTMENT OF

Fine Albums, Stereoscopes, Stereoscopic Views, Toilet Articles, Perfumery, Brushes &c.

School Books suitable for use in the Auburn and country schools. Writing paper, Pens, Inks, Copy Books, Slates, &c. Also a full line of Drugs and Medicines.

Perscriptions Carefully Compounded

The finest Tobacces and Cigars to be found in the county. Remember the place

DAVENPORT'S.

West of the Court House, Auburn, Ind.

RAIL ROADS.

Lake Shore & Mich Soutl era R R

AIR LINE DIVISION.

On and after June 10 1877, trains will run as follows:

GOING WEST

	Special Ex.	Pacific Ex.	Accm
Toledo	11 17a m	12 01 a m	4 40 p m
Wauseon	12 15 "	1 07 "	5 30 "
Bryan	1 00 "	1 50 "	6 28 "
Butler	1 35 "	2 29 "	7 10 "
Waterloo	1 41 "	2 40 "	7 [illegible] "
Sedan	[illegible]	[illegible]	7 43 "
Corunna	2 07 "	2 54 "	7 57 "
Kendallville	2 20 "	3 05 "	8 04 "
Ligonier	2 57 "	3 40 "	8 50 "
Goshen	3 28 "	4 12 "	9 35 "
Elkhart	3 50 "	4 35 "	10 00 "

GOING EAST.

Elkhart	7 12 p m	9 50 p m	7 00 "
Goshen	[illegible]	[illegible]	7 35
Ligonier	8 25 "	10 42 "	8 12 "
Kendallville	8 49 "	11 17 "	8 45 a m
Corunna	8 56 "	11 31 "	9 00 "
Sedan	9 00 "	11 36 "	9 05 "
Waterloo	9 05 "	11 45 "	9 15 "
Butler	"	12 01 a m	9 35 "
Bryan	"	12 40 "	10 17 "
Wauseon	"	1 25 "	11 12 "
Toledo	"	2 40 "	12 30 "

CHAS. PAINE, Gen. Supt.
J. W. CARY, Gen Tic. Agt
J. E. CURTIS, Division Su

Pittsburg, Ft. W. & C. R. R

Condensed time card June 24, 1877.

GOING WEST.

	No 1 Fast ex.	No. 7 Pac. ex.	No. 3 Nigh ex	No 5 Mail.
Pittsburgh	11 45 pm	9 00 am	1 50 pm	6 00 am
Rochester	12 53 am	10 15	2 58	7 45
Alliance	3 10	12 50 pm	5 35	11 00
Orrville	4 46	2 30	7 12	12 55 pm
Mansfield	7 00	4 40	9 20	3 11
Crestl'e ar.	7 30	5 15	9 45	3 50
" lv.	7 50	5 40	9 55
Forest	9 25	7 35	11 15
Lima	10 40	9 00	12 25 am
Ft. Wayne	1 20 pm	11 15	2 40
Plymouth	3 45	2 46 am	4 55
Chicago	7 00	6 30	7 58

GOING EAST

	No. 4 Night ex.	No. 2 Fast ex.	No. 6 Pac. ex	No. 8 Mail
Chicago	9 10 pm	8 00 a.m.	5 15 pm
Plymouth	2 46 am	11 25	9 00
Ft. Wayne	6 55	2 10 pm	11 35
Lima	8 55	4 05	1 30 am
Forest	10 10	5 20	2 48
Crestl'e ar.	11 45	6 55	4 25
" lv.	12 05 pm	7 15 pm	4 35	6 05am
Mansfield	12 35	7 44	5 05	6 55
Orrville	2 30	9 38	7 10	9 15
Alliance	4 05	11 15	9 00	11 20
Rochester	6 22	1 21 am	11 06	2 00pm
Pittsburgh	7 30	2 30	12 15	3 30

Trains Nos 3 and 6 run daily. Train No. 1 leaves Pittsburg daily except Sunday. Train No 4 leaves Chicago daily except Saturday. All others daily except Sunday.

F. R. MYERS,
Gen Pass. and Ticket Agent.

Ft. Wayne, Jackson & Sag. R. R

Short Line Between

Michigan and the South.

Time card in effect June 24—run by Chicago time

Going Nort'.

Stations	Exp.		Accom.	Mail
Louisville	7 15pm
St. Louis	6 45
Indianapolis	4 25am
Ft Wayne	10 50 "		1 30	4 15p
Auburn	11 40 "		3 03	5 13
Waterloo	11 58 "		4 00	5 31
Summit
Pleasant Lake
Ar Angola	12 58 pm		5 30	6 35
Reading	1 40 "		6 05	7 22
Bankers	2 04 "		7 30	7 47
Jonesville	2 30 "		7 55	8 05
Jackson	3 45 "		9 40	9 20
Detroit	6 40 "		12 05	3 35a
Grand Rapids	9 30 "		4 30	6 55
Lansing	6 00 "
Saginaw	9 13
Bay City

Going South.

Bay City
Saginaw	7 15 a m			3 55p
Lansing	10 10 "			7 25
Grand Rapids	6 20 "		11 50a	7 00
Detroit	7 00 "			9 50
Jackson Dep	11 40 am		5 10p	6 05a
Jonesville	12 40 pm		7	7 12
Bankers	1 07 "		7	7 30
Reading	1 22 "		8 15	7 45
Ar Angola	2 12 "		9 43	8 41
Pleasant Lake
Waterloo	2 47 "		10 45	9 22
Auburn	3 02 "		11 31	9 36
Auburn Junction			1 00a
Fort Wayne Arrive	3 55 "			10 35
Indianapolis	7 45 "			5 55
St. Louis	8 30 am			7 25
Louisville	8 30 am			10 50

All trains daily except Sunday.

P. S. LOOMIS, Pres't
S. K. HOOPER Gen. Ticket Ag't.

Baltimore & Ohio Railroad.

IN EFFECT JUNE 24, 1877.

GOING WEST.

STATIONS	Express	Express	Com'l A
ly New York	8 15am	8 25pm
Philadelphia	12 15pm	11 30
Baltimore	4 30	6 15am
Washington	5 45	7 55
Wheeling	8 00am	10 05pm	4 30pm
Bellaire	8 30am	10 30	5 10
Barnesville	9 45	11 46	6 16
Cambridge	10 46	1 00am	7 30
Zanesville	11 55	2 10	8 50
ar Newark	1 00pm	3 15	10 00
Columbus	3 00	5 00
Shawnee	4 30	10 0
ly Columbus	12 40	10 46pm
Newark	2 00	3 30am	4 20pm
Mt Vernon	3 00	4 35	6 25
Mansfield	4 28	6 15	10 05
Shelby	4 54	6 47	11 35
Monroeville
ar Sandusky
ly Chicago Junction	6 00	7 45	7 55am
Republic
Tiffin	7 15	8 39	10 20
Fostoria	7 45	9 10	11 40
Deshler	8 50	10 05	1 50pm
Defiance	9 52	11 06	3 50
Hicksville	10 41	11 53	6 13
Auburn Junction	11 22	12 35pm	7 50
Garrett	11 40pm	1 05	8 00am
Avilla	11 55	1 24	8 24
Albion	12 17	1 47	9 04
Milford Junction	1 08	2 37	10 34
Walkertown Junction	2 23	3 53	1 05pm
Chicago	5 40	6 40

GOING EAST.

Chicago	8 50am	9 40pm
Walkertown Junction	12 20pm	1 14am	11 29am
Milford Junction	1 45	2 24	2 35pm
Albion	2 30	3 10	4 15
Avilla	2 50	3 30	4 55
Garrett	3 21	3 55	6 00am
Auburn Junction	3 27	4 02	6 17
Hicksville	4 07	4 42	7 42
Defiance	4 54	5 27	9 10
Deshler	5 49	6 23	11 55
Fostoria	6 47	7 23	2 14pm
Tiffin	7 15	7 54	3 20
Republic
Sandusky
Monroeville
Chicago Junction	8 40	9 30	1 30
Shelby Junction	9 15	10 06	3 05
Mansfield	9 44	10 36	4 28
Mt. Vernon	11 14	12 06pm	7 40
Ar Newark	12 15a m	1 10	9 45
ly Columbus	12 40	3 00
Shawnee	10 25
Newark	1 45am	2 05	5 53am
Lv Zanesville	1 50	3 10	7 10
Cambridge	2 51	4 10	8 14
Barnesville	3 53	5 10	9 23
Ar Bellaire	5 05	6 20	10 40
Wheeling	6 00	7 40	11 55
Washington	7 20pm	7 50am
Baltimore	8 30	9 00
Philadelphia	3 10am	1 15pm
New York	6 25	5 05pm

Zanesville Accommodation leaves Zanesville daily except Sunday at 6:40 a. m., and arrives at Columbus at 9:45 a. m.
Express trains run daily, other trains daily except Sunday.

L. M. COLE, Gen. Tick. Agt.

Detroit, Eel River & Illinois R. R.

TAKE EFFECT JULY 2, 1877.

GOING EAST.

	MAIL No. 2,	ACCOM. No. 6,	LOCAL FT No. 8,
v. Logansport	7 45am	7 00	7 00
Mexico	8 27	8 07	8 27
Denver	8 37	8 25	9 00
Chili	8 45	8 38	9 30
Roann	9 03	9 06	10 05
Laketon	9 20	9 21	10 50
N. Manchester	9 31	9 50	11 15
Liberty Mills	9 40	10 06	11 37
Collamer	9 55	10 27	12 11pm
S. Whitley	10 00	10 35	12 36
Columbia City	10 25	11 15	1 30
Collen's	10 43	11 43	2 20
Churubusco	10 56	12 00	2 34
La Otto	11 20	12 31pm	3 55
Cedar Creek	11 28	12 46	4 15
Auburn Junct'n	11 43	1 07	4 35
[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Butler	12 20am	2 00	6 30

Going West.

	No. 1,	No. 5,	No. 7,
Logansport ar	6 [illegible] pm	1 00pm	5 30pm
Mexico	6 16	12 00 n.	4 50
Denver	6 07	11 40am	4 30
Chili	6 00	11 33	3 30
Roann	5 47	11 12	2 40
Laketon	5 32	10 50	2 00
North Manchester	5 23	10 35	1 33
Liberty Mills	5 17	10 23	1 05
Collamar	5 05	10 05	12 20am
South Whitley	5 08	10 00	12 20
Columbia City	4 40	9 23	10 25
Collin's	4 21	8 57	9 40
Cherubusco	4 14	8 42	9 28
La Otto	3 55	8 19	8 43
Cedar Creek	3 45	8 00	8 28
Auburn Junction	3 27	7 40	8 00
Auburn	3 22	7 34	7 34
Butler lv	2 45	6 55	6 30

FRANK J. HECKER,
Gen. Sup't.

Ft. Wayne, Muncie & Cin. R. R.

Muncie Route.

THE SHORT LINE TO INDIANAPOLIS,
—AND—
THE SOUTHWEST.

Time Card in effect July 1st, 1877.

STATIONS.	GOING SOUTH. 1. Mail.	3. Express.	5. Accom
FORT WAYNE	5 10 am	6 35 pm
Bluffton	6 17 am	7 45 pm
Montpelier	6 56 am	8 20 pm
Hartford	7 20 am	8 43 pm
MUNCIE	8 10 am	9 30 pm	5 00 a m
Newcastle	9 05 am		6 35 pm
Cambridge City	9 45 am		7 45 pm
Connersville	10 20 am		8 50 pm
Cincinnati	1 20 pm		11 40 p m
INDIANAPOLIS	10 25 am	11 08 pm
Louisville	10 50 pm	8 30 am
Terre Haute	3 15 pm	1 50 am
St. Louis	9 00 pm	8 30 am

STATIONS	GOING NORTH 2 Mail	6 Express.	4 Accom.
St. Louis		8 00 am
Terre Haute		2 55 pm
Louisville		3 30 pm
Cincinnati	am		7 00 am
Indianapolis		8 20 pm
Connersville	10 40 am		10 40 am
Cambridge City	11 13 am		11 44 am
New Castle	11 50 am		12 55 pm
Muncie	12 45 pm	10 45 pm	2 30 pm
Hartford	1 36 pm	11 31 pm
Montpelier	2 01 pm	11 57 pm
Bluffton	2 40 pm	12 33 pm
Fort Wayne	3 50 pm	1 45 am

All trains daily except Sunday. Trains run on Columbus time Through cars attached to trains 1 and 4, and run between Fort Wayne and Indsanapolis via Muncie.

GEO. W. MULLEN, Act'g Gen. Tick. Ag't.
W. W. WORTHINGTON, Gen. Supt.

JUST RECEIV'D

—AT—

J. ABRIGHT'S

Fine Gold and Plated Jewelry.
Ladies Gold Watches,
American Watches,

Rogers & Bro. Silverware,

A splendid line of imported Vases
Watch Chains, magnificent
Holiday Gifts, Lockets,
Ladies Sets, Gents

GOLD & SILVER SET

Sleeve and Collar Buttons, Jet
Shell and Horn Jewelry,
All at astonishingly

LOW PRICES.

Watches and Jewelry repaired on notice and in good style.

Dr. A. G. OLIN'S Private Hospital, 187 East Washington St., Chicago, Ills. for the cure of all Diseases of a Private nature, resulting from early abuses or infection of either Sex. Seminal Weakness producing Emissions, Loss of Memory, Impaired Sight, Lost Manhood or Impotency, Nervous Debility, permanently cured; diseases of the Bladder, Kidneys, Liver, Lungs, Asthma, Catarrh, Piles, all Chronic Diseases, and DISEASES OF FEMALES, yield to his treatment. Dr. Olin has had a life-long experience, and cures where others fail. He is a graduate of the Reformed School, uses no mercury, has the largest practice in the U. S. LADIES requiring treatment with private home and board, call or write. Every convenience for patients. Send fifty cents for sample of Rubber Goods and circular of important information by express. DR. OLIN'S Female Pills, $5 per Box. Consultation free.

MARRIAGE GUIDE 272 pages. Secrets & information for the young and middle aged of both Sexes, on all diseases of a private nature. Valuable advice to the married and those contemplating marriage. How to be healthy and truly happy in the married relation. Everybody should get this book. Price 50 cents, to any address, sealed.

A PHYSIOLOGICAL

View of Marriage!

WOMAN AND MARRIAGE A Guide to Wedlock and confidential Treatise on the duties of marriage and the causes that unfit for it; the secrets of Reproduction and the Diseases of Women. A book for private, considerate reading. 260 pages, price 50 cts.

A PRIVATE MEDICAL ADVISER! On all disorders of a Private Nature arising from Self Abuse, Excesses, or Secret Diseases, with the best means of cure, 224 large pages, price 50 cts.

A CLINICAL LECTURE on the above diseases and those of the Throat and Lungs, Catarrh, Rupture, the Opium Habit, &c., price 10 cts.

Either book sent postpaid on receipt of price; or all three, containing 500 pages, beautifully illustrated, for 75 cts. Address DR. BUTTS, No. 12 N. 8th St. St. Louis, Mo.

$45 PREMIUM WATCH AND CHAIN—a stem-winder. Free with every order. Outfit free. J. B. Gaylord & Co., Chicago, Ill.

$3 GOLD PLATED WATCHES. Cheapest in the known world. Sample Watch Free to Agents. Address, A. COULTER & Co., Chicago.

OPIUM and Morphine Habit absolutely and speedily cured. Painless; no publicity. Send stamp for particulars. DR. CARLTON, 187 Washington St., Chicago, Ill.

$2500 A YEAR. Agents wanted. Business legitimate. Particulars free. Address J. WORTH & CO., St. Louis, Mo.

Recorders Office

THE AUBURN COURIER.

Devoted to the Interests of the Democratic Party and to the Collection of Local and General News.

Volume 7. AUBURN, DeKALB COUNTY INDIANA, SEPTEMBER 13th, 1877. Number 37.

The Auburn Weekly Courier
PUBLISHED EVERY THURSDAY, BY
TOM. C. MAYS.
One Year........$2. | Six Months......

Advertising Rates.

Space.	1m.	3 m.	6 m.	1 y.
1 Square	2 00	5 00	7 00	12 00
¼ Column........	6 00	12 00	18 00	20 00
½ Column........	10 00	18 00	30 00	50 00
1 Column........	15 00	30 00	50 00	100 00

Local Notices 10 cents per line, first insertion 5 cents each insertion thereafter. Business cards Five Dollars.

BUSINESS DIRECTORY

ATTORNEYS.

WOODHULL and CROXTON,

ATTORNEYS AT LAW Angola, Indiana. Practice in Steuben and DeKalb Counties.

H. C. PETERSON,

ATTORNEY AT LAW and notary public. Office over Davis' hardware store, Auburn, Ind.

J. W. RICKEL,

ATTORNEY AT LAW Auburn, Ind. Special attention given to collections. Office over First National Bank.

A. F. PINCHIN

ATTORNEY AT LAW and notary public, Butler, DeKalb Co., Ind. Insurance and real estate business promptly attended to.

GUY PLUM

ATTORNEY AT LAW and notary public. Office in the Court House. Special attention paid to the collection of claims. Also agent for Home Insurance Company.

D. D. MOODY. F. V. HOFFMAN.

Moody and Hoffman,

ATTORNEYS AT LAW. Office in Odd Fellows' building, opposite Court House, Auburn, Ind.

BEST and McCLELLAN.

ATTORNEYS AT LAW, Waterloo, Ind. Will practice in the Courts of DeKalb & Steuben counties. Liberal Advances Made on all first-class Claims left in our hands for collection.

COURTS IN STEUBEN CO.	COURTS IN DEKALB CO
1st Monday in February	3rd Monday in Feb
4th Monday in April	2nd Monday in May
1st Monday in September	3rd Monday in Sep.
Monday in November	2nd Monday in Dec.

R. WES. M'BRIDE, J. L. MORLAN, W. H. LEAS

McBRIDE, MORLAN and LEAS

ATTORNEYS AT LAW, NOTARIES PUBLIC, COLLECTING AND INSURANCE AGENCY Office over Fisher's Clothing Store, corner of Wayne and Marion streets, Waterloo Ind. Will practice in all parts of the State. Especial Attention given to collections in DeKalb, Steuben, LaGrange and Noble counties.

COURTS IN DEKALB CO.	COURTS IN STEUBEN CO.
4th Monday in February	1st Monday in Febr'y.
3rd Monday in May.	4th Monday in April.
4th Monday in Septem'r	1st Monday in Sept'r.
3rd Monday in Decem'r	4th Monday in Nov'r.

PHYSICIANS.

DR. J. A. COWAN,

PHYSICIAN & SURGEON, Auburn, Ind. Office on Main street, over Central Grocery.

J. J. LITTLEFIELD,

PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON. Office over McIntyre's Block, Auburn, Ind. All calls promptly attended to.

W. S. ALLEN.

PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON, Office West of Court House, on Main Street, over Eldridge's store. Same office lately occupied by Dr. Cowan.

DR. TRITCH,

HOMŒOPATHIC PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON Special attention given to Surgery and Chronic diseases. Office in Case's Block, Auburn Indiana.

DR. S. B. JOHNSTON.

DENTIST, WATERLOO, INDIANA, Does all work in the line of his profession at as low figures as possible. Special attention given to gold filling and making new teeth. All work warranted.

HOTELS.

AVELINE HOUSE,

MILLER & MORITZ, Prop's., corner Calhoun & Berry Sts., Fort Wayne, Ind.

BUTT'S HOTEL,

FORMERLY THE BIGLER HOUSE, JOHN BUTT & A. B. RICHARDS, Proprietors, Waterloo, Ind. Free omnibus to and from all trains Good sample rooms on first floor.

Central House,

MR. M. C. MARKEL, Prop. Corner Main and Seventh streets. Good Sample Rooms for Drummers.

MAYER HOUSE.

FORT WAYNE, IND., Messrs TAM & SCARBROUGH Lessees. Good Sample Rooms

SANDS HOUSE.

COR. WABASH AVE. & MADISON ST. CHICAGO, ILL. New House, elegantly furnished. Only $2.00 per day.
Geo. S. Palmer, O. Sands,
[Late of City Hotel,] Clerk. Proprietor

MISCELLANEOUS.

H. Wartenslaben

PAINTER and paper hanger. House painting a specialty. Residence corner Williams and Cedar street.

PRINTING.

COURIER OFFICE,

JOB PRINTING neatly executed. Fine work a specialty. Office in Odd Fellows' Building 2nd floor.

EXAMINATION OF TEACHERS.—Examinations will be held in Auburn on the first Saturday, and in Waterloo on the last Saturday in each month, beginning March 4, 1876. Examination begin at 10 o'clock A. M.

JAMES A. BARNES Co. Sup't.

Come to Auburn when you want to buy a good piano, and M. F. Long Co., will sell you one as low as the lowest.

Sheriff's Sale.

BY VIRTUE of a certified copy of a Decree to me directed [illegible] Circuit Court in a cause wherein [illegible] Dawson is plaintiff, and John B Rinehart is defendant, requiring me to make the sum of twenty-[illegible] with interest on said decree and costs, I will expose at public sale, to the highest bidder, on

SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 15, 1877,

between the hours of 10 o'clock A. M. and 4 o'clock P. M. of said day, at the door of the Court House in DeKalb county, Indiana, the rents and profits for a term not exceeding seven years, of the following real estate. Thirteen and one-half acres of land described as follows to-wit:

The west half (½) of the south half (½) of the south-east quarter of section thirty-six (31) township thirty-five [35] north of range twelve [12] east, containing forty acres more or less in DeKalb county Indiana.

If such rents and profits will not sell for a sufficient sum to satisfy said decree, interest and costs, I will at the same time and place expose to public sale the fee simple of said real estate, or so much thereof as may be sufficient to discharge said decree, interests and costs. Said sale will be made without any relief whatever from valuation or appraisement laws.

J. C. St. CLAIR, Sheriff DeKalb Co.
H. C. Peterson Attorney for plaintiff.
Aug. 22nd A. D. 1877. Pr's. fee $4.75.

Sheriff's Sale.

BY virtue of an execution to me directed from the Clerk of the DeKalb Circuit Court in a cause wherein Henry Funk for the use of Charles Klotz is plaintiff, and John Bresch is defendant requiring me to make the sum of Two Hundred and Thirty-Two Dollars, with interest on said judgment and costs, I will expose at public sale to the highest bidder, on

SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 29th, 1877

Between the hours of 10 o'clock a. m. and 4 o'clock p. m. of said day at the door of the Court House of DeKalb county, Indiana, the rents and profits for a term not exceeding seven years, of the following real estate to-wit:

Lots number one hundred and twenty-three [123] and one hundred and twenty-four [124] in the western addition to the town of Auburn, Dekalb county, Indiana.

If such rents and profits will not sell for a sufficient sum to satisfy said judgment interest and costs, I will at the same time and place, expose at public sale, the fee simple of said real estate, or so much thereof as may be sufficient to discharge said decree, interest and costs.

Sale will be made without any relief whatever from valuation or appraisement laws.

J. C. St. CLAIR, Sheriff.
By Thos. D. Gross, Dept.
Best & McClellan and Rickel & Tefft Attorneys for plaintiff.
Auburn, Indiana, Sept 4th, 1877.
Pr. fee $8.75.

Sheriff's Sale.

BY virtue of an execution to me directed from the Clerk of the DeKalb County Circuit Court in a cause wherein The First National Band of Auburn is plaintiff and E. H. Palmer and Charles G. Smith are defendants, requiring me to make the sum of One Hundred and Twenty Nine Dollars and Thirty cents, with interest on said judgment and costs, I will expose at public sale, to the highest bidder, on

SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 29th, 1877.

Between the hours of 10 o'clock a. m. and 4 o'clock p. m. of said day, at the door of the Court House in DeKalb County, Indiana, the rents and profits for a term not exceeding seven years, of the following real estate, to-wit:

Lot number twenty-two [22] in Kuhlman's addition to the town of Auburn, DeKalb county, Indiana.

If such rents and profits will not sell for a sufficient sum to satisfy said judgment interests and costs I will at the same time and place, expose the fee simple of said real estate, or so much thereof as may be sufficient to discharge said judgment, interest and costs.

Sale will be made without any relief whatever from valuation or appraisement laws.

J. C. St. CLAIR, Sheriff.
By T. D. Gross, Deputy.
Guy Plum, Att'y for plaintiff.
Auburn, Ind. Sept. 4, 1877.
Pr. fee $5.50.

Sheriff's Sale.

BY virtue of a certified copy of a decree to me directed by the Clerk of the DeKalb Circuit Court, in a cause wherein Rumsbery Shoub et al is plaintiffs, and William E. Sargant is defendant, requiring me to make the sum of three hundred and ninety one dollars and seventeen cents, [391.17], with interest on said decree and costs, I will expose at public sale to the highest bidder, on

SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 22d, 1877,

Between the hours of 10 o'clock a. m. and 4 o'clock p. m. of said day, at the door of the Court House of DeKalb County, Indiana, the rents and profits, for a term not exceeding seven years of the following real estate, to wit:

Lot number twenty-four [24] and lot number twenty-three [23] in block number sixteen [16] in the town of Garrett in DeKalb county Indiana.

If such rents and profits will not sell for a sufficient sum to satisfy said decree interest and costs, I will, at the same time and place, expose at public sale the fee simple of said real estate or so much thereof as may be sufficient to discharge said decree interests and costs.

Said sale will be made without any relief whatever from valuation or appraisement laws.

JOHN C. ST. CLAIR, Sheriff
By Thos. D. Gross, Deputy.
P. V. Hoffman, Att'y for plaintiff.
August 29th, 1877. Pf. $9.25.

Sheriff's Sale.

BY virtue of a certified copy of a decree to me directed from the Clerk of the DeKalb Circuit Court in a cause wherein John L. Davis is plaintiff and Nathan Tarney et al. are defendants, requiring me to make the sum of fifty-eight [58] dollars and fifty-eight [58] cents, with interest on said decree and costs, I will expose at public sale, to the highest bidder, on

SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 29th, 1877

Between the hours of 10 o'clock A. M., and 4 o'clock P. M., of said day, at the door of the Court House of DeKalb county, Indiana, the rents and profits for a term not exceeding seven years, of the following real estate to-wit:

Lot number one (1) in block number eighteen [18] in the town of Garrett, in DeKalb county, Indiana.

If such rents and profits will not sell for a sufficient sum to satisfy said decree, interest and costs, I will at the same time and place expose at public sale the fee simple of said real estate, or so much thereof as may be sufficient to discharge said decree, interest and costs.

Sale will be made without any relief whatever from valuation or appraisement laws.

J. C. St CLAIR, Sheriff.
By Thos. D. Gross, Deputy.
H. C. Peterson, Att'y for Plaintiffs.
Auburn, Ind., Aug. 29th, 1877,
Pr. fee $8.25

GOLD. Great chance to make money. If you can't get gold you can get greenbacks. We need a person in every town to take subscriptions for the largest, cheapest and best Illustrated family publication in the world. Any one can become a successful agent. The most elegant works of art given free to subscribers. The price is so low that almost every body subscribes. One Agent reports making over $150 in a week. A lady agent reports taking over 400 subscribers in ten days. All who engage make money fast. You can devote all your time to the business, or only your spare time. You need not be away from home over night You can do it as well as others. Full directions and terms free. Elegant and expensive outfit free. If you want profitable work send us your address at once. It costs nothing to try the business. No one who engages fails to make great pay. Address "The People's Journal," Portland Maine.

The Butler Nickel Steel Plow is the best in market. They are warranted to scour in all kinds of soil. Call at Easey's and see them. 4t

Special Notice to Pupils of Music.

By special arrangements with Prof. [illegible] Morse, the Indiana [illegible] of music has become a part of the Fort Wayne College. Great advantage will result from this arrangement to pupils from abroad in reducing the expense of a thorough course of music. Board including furnished rooms, fuel and light, will be provided at an expense ranging from $2.50 to $3.50 per week according to accommodations. Pupils will also be enabled to prosecute other studies at the same time. City pupils who find it more convenient to do so can receive instructions as heretofore at the office of the conservatory Burges Block Fall term begins September 4th. For further particulars address, W. F. Yocum Pres. Ft. W. E. College, or Prof. S. B. Morse, Fort Wayne Ind

FIRST NATIONAL BANK.

The First National Bank of Auburn Indiana tenders to the citizens of DeKalb county its facilities for the transaction of business. We loan money, receive deposits subject to check at sight or payable at a fixed date with a stipulated rate of interest. Sell exchange on New York, Chicago, Toledo and Fort Wayne procure such foreign exchange as may be desired, buy exchange and make collections on all available points, and do all usual and ordinary business done by first class banks. We will also take on deposit for safekeeping valuable papers such as deeds mortgages, notes bonds, agreements etc., guardians, administrators, trustees and all other handling trust funds together with merchants, manufacturers and farmers are solicited to open an account with us. We will deal liberally with all who call.

J. H. FORD, President.
JAMES V. HAZZARD, Cashier.

Excursion to the Rocky Mountains.

The Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe Railroad has arranged with the various railroad lines in the country for special round trip rates to the Rocky Mountains, and has secured the following rates to Denver, Colorado Springs, Canon City, Puelo and return; from Kansas City and Atchison, $15; St. Louis, $50; Chicago, $65; Quincy, $50; Cincinnatti, $65; Buffalo, $75, and correspondingly low rates from all points east, north and south These tickets are good for 90 days and to stop at all stations west of the Missouri river. Tickets are on sale at all principal stations throughout the country. This is the new route to Denver through the garden of Kansas and Colorado. Send for maps, circulars, time tables, etc., to

T. J. ANDERSON,
Gen. Pass. Agent, Topeka, Kan.

A Few Words of Wisdom.

For all who are seeking new homes in the West. If you are going to change your location, by all means you should keep on about the same latitude as where you formerly lived for in this way you will escape the severe climatic changes in the weather incident to the extreme North or South, having none of these things to contend with, yourself and family are healthy and you become a producer at once, consequently soon independent; on the other hand should you listen to the many glowing accounts of the sunny South, or the mild climate of the North, and thus be induced to try your fortunes there, you will find the reality is not all your fancy painted it. If you go South it usually takes about two years to get accli nated to the climate, during which time, not being able to work, yourself and family are consumers, besides being constantly exposed to the malarial fevers which abound there, and the experience of many is that they return discouraged, leaving not a few loved ones beneath the sod in the sunny South. Therefore, in going West keep on about the same latitude which will insure health and happiness. There are most excellent lands in Northern Missouri on the line of the Hannibal & St. Jo. R. R. and in Kansass, Nebraska and Colorado, "just as cheap and good as the sun ever shown upon," why not accept a certainty rather than run the risk of losing all? Through day and sleeping cars are run from Toledo, Ohio, via the Wabash R'y and Quincy to St. Jo., Atchison and Kansas city, and from Chicago via Chicago, Burlington & Quincy R. R., whereby all arre furnished firstclass accomodations.

Send for map and time-table to J. A. S. Reed, 59 Clark street, Chicago, C. W. Boardman, Decatur, Ill., or T. Penfield, G P. and T. A., Hanibal, Mo.

NOTICE TO TAX PAYERS.

Under the new law the second installment of taxes becomes delinquent if not paid on or before the first Monday in November, then ten per cent must be added. The law requires the Treasurer to make said tax by distress of sale of personal property on or before the fifteenth day of December if not otherwise paid. I would therefore urge all to pay up their second installment and save me the unpleasant duty of sending out collectors. DANIEL GONSER, Treas.

A Certificate for John Sherman.

[Toledo Bee.]

[illegible] and Jeff Davis could ever have conceived for their country, is but a drop in the bucket compared with the disaster which John Sherman has invented and is inflicting. Sherman is unquestionably the greatest enemy the American Republic ever had. He is deliberately and knowingly rushing thousands of worthy and industrious men to financial ruin and want, and then with more than devilish ingenuity he defends his action and seek to make the people believe that their prosperity is unexampled.

* * *

"What kind of house will we play?" asked one little girl of another. "Oh, play calling," replied the other. "Mary here, she can be Mrs. Brown and sit on the step, and me and Julia will call on her and ask how she is, and how her husband is, and if the baby's got over the measles, and tell her how nice she looks in her new wrapper, and hope it won't hurt her much when she has that tooth filled. And then we'll say, 'Good bye, Mrs. Brown; come and see us some time or other, and bring the children and your sewing; and, you'r such a stranger we don't see half enough of you.' And then me and Julia will courtesy and walk off a piece, and I'll say to Julia, 'Did you ever see such a horrid old fright as she looks in that wrapper?' And then Julia she'll say, 'The idea of anybody having false teeth filled!' And then I'll say, 'Yes, and what a homely lot of dirty brats them young ones of her'n is.' Let's play it; what do you say?"

She Didn't

At ten o'clock yesterday forenoon a young man with very white eyes, and a girl of 18, with very long curls, stood together on the City Hall tower to gaze upon the beautiful panorama below. In a miniute or two the girl began to feel giddy, and as the sensation increased she cried out:

"Oh! Will! I'm going to faint away!"

"What's up?" he shouted, as he put an arm around her.

"Oh! I'm so—so—I'm so—!" she gasped as she began settling down.

"Here, now! don't you do it!" he bluntly exclaimed as he held her up, "I love you like all Jewhittaker, and you know it, but I couldn't pick you up and carry you down them winding stairs if I was engaged to the whole family! Brace up, now! If you faint I'll run!"

She didn't faint, but it was necessary for him to keep his arm around her for the next fifteen minutes.

Poison and Pluck.

On last Saturday afternoon as a young man named Aaron Hubbell, working on a farm about six miles northeast of the city, was in a pasture field attending to some horses, he started a rabbit from his lair, and chased the little "cotton tail" across the field to a pile of stumps in a fence corner. Here the rabbit took refuge. Hubbell began peeping around and finally espied what he supposed to be the rabbit nestled in one corner of the stumps. Thinking to take him alive he reached in, but was horror stricken on removing his hand to find that he had been bitten by a rattlesnake! Hubbell is about 16 years of age, and with remarkable pluck pulled out his jack knife and cut the poisoned finger off. It was a "haggled" up job, but in all probability saved the young man's life. He afterwards killed the snake. Hubbell went to the house and told his story, and was immediately brought to this city where his wounds were dressed. It was certainly a case of remarkable pluck, especially in one so young.—Fort Wayne News.

SUNDAY WALKS.

[Christian Union.]

Sunday is a good day for the study of nature. A Sunday walk ought to be regular part of Sunday observance in all families that live in the country or can easily get to it. We do not recommend riding, for that generally requires some one to work—the coachman, or at allevents the horse, who in most cases needs his Sunday as well as folks. But no exersise can well be more profitable than a quiet walk in the woods as the sun is setting, with the father or mother or both. This is the time to teach your children to observe those beauties and wonders in nature, the study of which is the best and surest protection against the laterassaults of atheism or even irreligion. The boy who has been thus taugt to see God in everything will be far more likely to remember Him in after life than if he spent the same time in committing to memory a catechism which he can by no possibility understand. But do not be too didactic. Let him learn his own lessons. It is quite enough if you answer his questions.

Hogs and Their Diseases.

From the Syracuse Gazette.

[illegible]

Without offering any apology to the public for contributing this article, we simply state, that the wide spread ravages of disease and the frightful fatality connected therewith, among our farmers' porcine herds, may be considered sufficient reason for the contribution.

No theory is even worthy of consideration or respect unless founded upon facts in nature; hence we conclude that if God created the hog—and we are taught by good scripture that he did—then this all wise Creator gave him his five senses, his various organs, which constitute his animal economy, and not to speak in derision of man, nor at the same time attempt to elevate the hog, we are forced to admit the great similarity of the most organs of the hog compared with man. The comparitive anatomy is very much the same. Almost every organ in man has its duplicate in the hog, and to each and every organ in the hog He has given or lain down certain well defined rules or laws which laws are implanted in their very existance. These laws are unchangable because the are nature's laws and nature's laws are God's laws, or, if you prefer the expression, God's laws are the laws of nature. Then by the same train of reasoning we infer that God created the medical herbs, the minerals of the earth, and with the same exactness and precission He gave them their medical properties and effects. And again, these properties are certain and unvarying; that is, the same drug given to a hog under the same circumstances and in the same dose, must always have the same effect. Then, says one "under your train of reasoning, if we can but discover a drug that will cure one case of hog cholera, then we have an infallible remedy for the disease," and so it would, at first glance, appear, but not so fast. You forgot the fact that all these diseases which are so prevelent in different parts of the country are not one and the same. Call them hog cholera, malignant bilious fevers, or what you may, and from the fact as cited before, that the hog so far as his animal economy is concerned, is a counterpart of man, and knowing the great amount of disease incident to man, also how much more exposed to the inclemencies of the weather the hog is than the man, is it not reasonable to suppose that he in like manner would be attacked by various diseases as well as man? And here, to a great extent lies the secret. The hogs of different localities are not effected by one and the same disease. The departure in the various organs from the life or natural line is not the same, consequently the foolishness of taking infallible remedy for all these entirely different diseases. Can anyone wonder at the panacea for all the ills of the hog has not yet been discovered, or is it all likely that it ever will be discovered? Now, by way of conclusion let me give a few notes of my quiet brief and very unwilling acquaintance with the disease now prevailing in this locality. Hundreds of hogs have been carried off by the disease and the probabilities are that thousands more will follow in their wake. And if I can be able, through this artice, to induce any of the many readers who may suffer from this scourge, to think and examine, thereby instituting rational treatment which will reach over the medium cases than my object will have been fully attained; for I would just as readily expect to hear of a miracle being performed as to hear of a remedy being discovered which will cure the worst cases. This simply needs not be expected, as I am firm in my conviction that we will have to make the old adage our sheet anchor in this case, namely, "that an ounce of preventative is worth a pound of cure." Treat your sick hogs in time if you expect any great benefit from treatment, my opinion being that after a hog has taken the disease in its most malignant form, has passed through the chill, the fever arises, and appetite all gone; that nine cases out of ten will die no matter what the treatment, and I will state that I arrive at these conclusions by post mortem examinations on three hogs which died for me and had it in a very malignant form. The appearances revealed by the examination was almost identical in the three cases, namely extreme inflamation of two very important organs, the liver and spleen. No other departure from the life line could be found of any consequence, except, in these three cases, extreme constipation. Exactly the reverse is also a symptom of this disease in some cases. The symptoms of this disease are: first, staring, bloodless appearance of the skin, the flank becomes tucked up, the eyes, or skin about the eyes, swells, the breath becomes fetid, ears droop, after which, sooner or later the chill comes on, then a very high fever, and finally loss of appetite, emaciation and death. Frequently some time prior to death a peculiar red or motled appearance of the skin is seen, but no vomiting in any of the cases I have examined. Should you leave it to me to name the disease from the post mortem appearances and symptoms, I perhaps should be puzzled to find a name to suit but rather than call it hog cholera I should call it malignat bilious fever, propogated by zymotic influences and contagion Hence, seperate the sick from the well, be cleanly, change the litter or bed frequently, use plenty of lime in your pens, feed frequently ashes and soap suds in their feed, enough to keep their bowels free, give plenty of plenty of green vegetables, do not feed solid dry food but plenty of bran slop; and should any get sick then feed once or twice a day, in tea-spoon-full doses, of the following powder, to each 100 weight of pork, given in slop.

Take of ginger, sulphur and copperas, each one part, black antimony and salt peter, of each one half part, pulverised well and mix

This receipt came to our friend, E. Holloway, through the kindness of Mr. Joseph Rippey. I have found it to be good and would recommend it to the favorable consideration of the public, until future researches shall find a better one. I should add that this powder, to be of any benefit, must be fed regularly until the hogs appear in good condition. We would be glad to hear from other sections of the country, of the results of examinations of others. By these means we may some day hope to attain to a scientific treatment.

Ways and Means.

Why do people write that they "accept with pleasure" an unpleasant invitation, when they really mean they do so with reluctance?

Why do ladies bid their servants say that they are not at home, when they mean they are unwilling to see visitors?

Why do actors grumble that the drama is going to the dogs, when they mean that they themselves are not in favor with the public?

Why do men tell their wives that they will be detained by business, when they really mean to be detained by a club dinner?

Why do women bid their husbands escort them to Broadway, when they really mean to make them pay for a new bonnet?

Why do singers speak with diffidence of the powers of their voice, when they mean to swallow greedily all the compliments you give them?

Why do inviters often call their country house a "little place," when they mean to show you a palatial residence?

Why does your friend tell you "any toggery will do," when he means to sport a dress suit and white choker?

Why do china dealers name so preposterous a price, when they mean to jump at less than half if they be offered it?

KEEP STRAIGHT AHEAD.

Pay no attention to the slanderers and gossip mongers. Keep straigt on in your course, and let their back-biting die the death of neglect. What is the use of laying awake at nights, brooding over the remark of some false friend, that runs through your brains like lightning. What is the use of getting into a worry and fret over gossip that has been set a float to your disadvantage, by some medlesome busy-body who has more time than character? The thing cannot possibly injure you unless, indeed you take notice of them, and combating them give them standing character. If what is said about you is true, set yourself right; if it is false, let it go for what it will fetch. If a bee stings you would you go to the hive to distroy it? Would not a thousand come upon you? It is wisdom to say little respecting the injuries you have received. We are generally losers in the end, if we stop to refute all the backbiting and gossip we may hear by the way. They are annoying, it is true, but not dagerous, so long as we do not stop to expostulate and scold. Our characters are formed and sustained by our selves, by our own actions and purposes, and not by others. Let us always bear in mind that "calumniators may usually be trusted to time and the slow but steady justice of public opinion."

* * *

A Marion township farmer, having cattle trespassing upon his grain fields, and to rid himself of the nuisance, posted up the following:

NOTIS If any mans or womans cows or oxen gits in this here otes his or her tale will be cut off as the case may be I am a christian man and pay my taxes but dam a man that lets his critters run here say I.—Goshen Democrat.

THE PASTOR'S REVERIE.

BY REV. WASHINGTON GLADDEN.

The pastor sits in his easy-chair,
With the Bible upon his knee.
From gold to purple the clouds in the west
Are changing momently;
The shadows lie in the valleys below,
And hide in the curtain's fold;
And the page grows dim whereon he reads,
"I remember the days of old."

"Not clear nor dark," as the Scripture saith,
The pastor's memories are;
No day that is gone was shadowless,
No night was without its star;
But mingled bitter and sweet hath been
The portion of his cup;
"The hand that in love hath smitten," he saith,
"In love hath bound us up."

Swift flies his thought over many a field
Of stubble and snow and bloom,
And now it trips through a festival,
And now it halts at a tomb;
Young faces smile in his reverie
Of those that are young no more,
And voices are heard that only come
With the winds from a far-off shore.

He thinks of the day when first with fear,
And faltering lips, he stood
To speak in the sacred place the Word
To the waiting multitude;
He walks again to the house of God,
With the voice of joy and praise,
With many whose feet long time have pressed
Heaven's safe and blessed ways.

He enters again the homes of toil,
And joins in the homely chat;
He stands in the shop of the artisan;
He sits, where the Master sat,
At the poor man's fire and the rich man's feast,
But who to-day are the poor;
And who are the rich? Ask Him who keeps
The treasures that ever endure.

Once more the green and the grove resound
With the merry children's din;
He hears their shout at the Christmas-tide,
When Santa Claus stalks in.
Once more he lists while the camp-fire roars
On the distant mountain-side,
Or, proving apostleship, plies the brook
Where the fierce young troutlings hide.

And now he beholds the wedding train
To the altar slowly move,
And the solemn words are said that seal
The sacrament of love.
Anon at the font he meets once more
The tremulous youthful pair,
With a white-robed cherub crowing response
To the consecrating prayer.

By the couch of pain he kneels, again;
Again, the thin hand lies
Cold in his palm, while the last far look
Steals into the steadfast eyes;
And now the burden of hearts that break
Lies heavy upon his own—
The widow's wail and the orphan's cry
And the desolate mother's moan.

So blithe and glad, so heavy and sad,
Are the days that are no more,
So mournfully sweet are the sounds that float
With the winds from the far-off shore.
For the pastor has learned what meaneth the word
That is given him to keep—
"Rejoice with them that do rejoice,
And weep with them that weep."

It is not in vain that he has trod
This lonely and toilsome way,
It is not in vain that he has wrought
In the vineyard all the day;
For the soul that gives is the soul that lives,
And bearing another's load
Doth lighten your own, and shorten the way,
And brighten the homeward road.
—Harper's Magazine for September.

FAITHFUL UNTO DEATH.

The fire burns cheerily on the hearth, the great logs crackle and flare up the wide chimney, up which it is my wont to say you could drive a coach-and-four. I draw my chair nearer to it with a shiver. "What a night!" I say.

"Is it still snowing?" asks my wife, who sits opposite to me, her books and work on the table beside her.

"Fast. You can scarcely see a yard before you."

"Heaven help any poor creature on the moor to-night!" says she.

"Who would venture out? It began snowing before dark, and all the people about know the danger of being benighted on the moor in a snow-storm."

"Yes. But I have known people frozen to death hereabouts before now."

My wife is Scotch, and this pleasant house in the Highlands is hers. We are trying a winter in it for the first time, and I find it excessively cold and somewhat dull. Mentally I decide that in future we will only grace it with our presence during the shooting season. Presently I go to the window and look out; it has ceased snowing, and through a rift in the clouds I see a star.

"It is beginning to clear," I tell my wife, and also inform her that it is past 11. As she lights her candle at a side-table I hear a whining and scratching at the front door.

"There is Laddie loose again," says she. "Would you let him in, dear?"

I did not like facing the cold wind, but could not refuse to let in the poor animal. Strangely enough, when I opened the door and called him he wouldn't come. He runs up to the door and looks into my face with dumb entreaty; then he runs back a few steps, looking around to see if I am following; and finally, he takes my coat in his mouth and tries to draw me out.

"Laddie won't come in," I call out to my wife. "On the contrary, he seems to want me to go out and have a game of snow-ball with him."

She throws a shawl around her and comes to the door. The collie was hers before we were married, and she is almost as fond of him, I tell her, as she is of Jack, our eldest boy.

"Laddie, Laddie!" she calls; "come in, sir." He comes obediently at her call, but refuses to enter the house, and pursues the same dumb pantomime he has already tried on me.

"I shall shut him out, Jessie," I say. "A night in the snow won't hurt him," and I prepare to close the door.

"You will do nothing of the kind!" she replies with an anxious look, "but you will rouse the servants at once and follow him. Some one is lost in the snow, and Laddie knows it."

I laugh. "Really, Jessie, you are absurd. Laddie is a sagacious animal, no doubt, but I cannot believe he is as clever as that. How can he possibly know whether any one is lost in the snow or not?"

"Because he has found them and come back to us for help. Look at him now."

I cannot but own that the dog seems restless and uneasy, and is evidently endeavoring to coax us to follow him; he looks at us with pathetic entreaty in his eloquent eyes. "Why won't you believe me?" he seems to ask.

"Come," she continues; "you know you could not rest while there was a possibility of a fellow-creature wanting your assistance. And I am certain Laddie is not deceiving us."

What is a poor hen-pecked man to do? I grumble and resist and yield, as I have often grumbled and resisted and yielded before, and as I doubtless shall do again.

"Laddie once found a man in the snow before, but he was dead," Jessie says, as she hurries off to fill a flask with brandy, and get ready some blankets for us to take with us. In the meantime I rouse the servants. They are all English, with the exception of Donald, the gardener, and I can see they are scoffingly skeptical of Laddie's sagacity, and inwardly disgusted at having to turn out of their warm beds and face the bitter winter's night.

"Dinna trouble yoursels," I hear old Donald say. "The mistress is right enough. Auld Laddie is cleverer than mony a Christian, and will find something in the snaw this night."

"Don't sit up, Jessie," I say as we start; "we may be out half the night on this wild-goose chase."

"Follow Laddie closely" is the only answer she makes.

The dog springs forward with a joyous bark, constantly looking back to see if we are following. As we pass through the avenue gates and emerge on to the moor, the moon struggles for a moment through the driving clouds, and lights up with a sickly gleam the snow-clad country before us. "It's like hunting for a needle in a bundle of hay, sir," says John, the coachman, confidentially, "to think as we should find anybody on such a night as this! Why, in some places the snow is more than a couple o' feet thick, and it goes again' reason to think that a dumb animal would have the sense to come home and fetch help."

"Bide a wee, bide a wee," says old Donald. "I dinna ken what your English dugs can do; but a collie, though it hasn't been pleasing to Providence to give the creatur the gift o' speech, can do mony mair things than them that wad deride it."

"I ain't a deridin' of 'em," says John. "I only say as how if they be so very clever I've never seen it."

"Ye wull, though, ye wull," says old Donald, as he hurries forward after Laddie, who has now settled down into a swinging trot, and is taking his way straight across the loneliest part of the bleak moor. The cold wind almost cuts us in two, and whirls the snow into our faces, nearly blinding us. My finger-tips are becoming numbed, icicles hang from my mustache and beard, and my feet and legs are soaking wet, even through my shooting-boots and stout leather leggings.

The moon has gone in again, and the light from the lantern we carry is barely sufficient to show the inequalities in the height of the snow, by which we are guessing at our path. I begin to wish I had staid at home. "L'homme propose, mais la femme dispose," I sigh to myself; and I begin to consider whether I may venture to give up the search (which I have undertaken purely to satisfy my wife, for I am like John, and won't believe in Laddie), when suddenly I hear a shout in front of me, and see Donald, who has all the time been keeping close to Laddie, drop on his knees and begin digging wildly in the snow with his hands. We all rush forward. Laddie has stopped at what appears to be the foot of a stunted tree, and, after scratching and whining for a moment, sits down and watches, leaving the rest to us. What is it appears when we have shoveled away the snow? A dark object. Is it a bundle of rags? Is it—or alas! was it a human being? We raise it carefully and tenderly, wrap it in one of the warm blankets with which my wife's forethought has provided us. "Bring the lantern," I said huskily; and John holds it over the prostrate form of, not as we might have expected, some stalwart shepherd of the hills, but over that of a poor, shriveled, wrinkled, ragged old woman. I try to pour a little brandy down the poor old throat, but the teeth are so firmly clenched that I cannot.

"Best get her home as quickly as may be, sir; the mistress will know better what to do for her nor we, if so be the poor creature is not past help," says John, turning instinctively, as we all do in sickness or trouble, to woman's aid.

So we improvise a sort of hammock of the blankets, and gently and tenderly the men prepare to carry their poor, helpless burden over the snow.

"I am afraid your mistress will be in bed," I say, as we begin to retrace our steps.

"Never fear, sir," says Donald with a triumphant glance at John; "the mistress will be up and waitin' for us. She kens Laddie didna bring us out in the snaw for naething."

"I'll never say naught about believing a dawg again," says John, gracefully striking his colors. "You were right and I was wrong, and that's all about it; but to think there should be such sense in a animal passes me!"

As we reach the avenue gate I dispatch one of the men for the doctor, who fortunately lives within a stone's-throw of us, and hurry on myself to prepare my wife for what is coming. She runs out into hall to meet me. "Well?" she asked eagerly.

"We have found a poor old woman," I say; "but I do not know whether she is alive or dead."

My wife throws her arms round me and gives me a great hug.

"You will find dry things and a jug of hot toddy in your dressing-room, dear," she says; and this is all the revenge she takes on me for my skepticism. The poor old woman is carried up stairs and placed in a warm bath under my wife's direction; and before the doctor arrives she has shown some faint symptoms of life; so my wife sends me word. Dr. Bruce shakes his head when he sees her. "Poor old soul," he says; "how came she out on the moor on such a fearful night? I doubt she has received a shock, which at her age she will not easily get over."

They manage, however, to force a few spoonfuls of hot brandy and water down her throat; and presently a faint color flickers on her cheek, and the poor old eyelids begin to tremble. My wife raises her head and makes her swallow some cordial which Dr. Bruce has brought with him, then lays her back among the soft, warm pillows. "I think she will rally now," says Dr. Bruce, as her breathing becomes more audible and regular. "Nourishment and warmth will do the rest; but she has received a shock from which, I fear, she will never recover;" and so saying he takes his leave.

By and by I go up to the room and find my wife watching alone by the aged sufferer. She looks up at me with tears in her eyes. "Poor old soul," she says; "I am afraid she will not rally from the cold and exposure."

I go round to the other side of the bed and look down upon her. The aged face looks wan and pinched, and the scanty gray locks which lie on the pillow are still wet from the snow. She is a very little woman, as far as I can judge of her in her recumbent position, and I should think she must have reached her allotted three-score years and ten. "Who can she be?" I repeat, wonderingly. "She does not belong to any of the villages hereabouts, or we should know her face; and I cannot imagine what could bring a stranger to the moor on such a night."

As I speak a change passes over her face; the eyes unclose, and she looks inquiringly about her. She tries to speak, but is evidently too weak. My wife raises her, and gives her a spoonful of nourishment, while she says, soothingly: "Don't try to speak. You are among friends; and when you are better you shall tell us all about yourself. Lie still now and try to sleep."

The gray head drops back wearily on the pillow; and soon we have the satisfaction of hearing by the regular respiration that our patient is asleep.

"You must come to bed now, Jessie," I say. "I shall ring for Mary, and she can sit up for the remainder of the night." But my wife, who is a tender-hearted soul and a born nurse, will not desert her post; so I leave her watching and retire to my solitary chamber.

When we meet in the morning I find that the little old woman has spoken a few words and seems stronger. "Come in with me now," says my wife, "and let us try and find out who she is." We find her propped into a reclining posture with pillows, and Mary beside her feeding her.

"How are you now?" asks Jessie, bending over her.

"Better, much better, thank you, good lady," she says in a low voice, which trembles from age as well as weakness. "And very thankful to you for your goodness."

I hear at once by the accent that she is English. "Are you strong enough to tell me how you got lost on the moor, and where you came from, and where you were going?" continues my wife.

"Ah! I was going to my lad, my poor lad, and now I doubt I shall never see him more," says the poor soul, with a long sigh of weariness.

"Where is your lad, and how far have you come?"

"My lad is a soldier at Fort George; and I have come all the way from Liverpool to see him, and give him his old mother's blessing before he goes to the Indies." And then, brokenly, with long pauses of weariness and weakness, the little old woman tells us her pitiful story.

Her lad, she tells us, is her only remaining child. She had six, and this, the youngest, is the only one who did not die of want during the Lancashire cotton famine. He grew up a fine, likely boy, the comfort and pride of his mother's heart, and the stay of her declining years. But a "strike" threw him out of work, and, unable to endure the privation and misery, in a fit of desperation he "listed." His regiment was quartered at Fort George, and he wrote regularly to his mother, his letters getting more cheerful and hopeful every day; until suddenly he wrote to say that his regiment was ordered to India, and begging her to send him her blessing, as he had not enough money to carry him to Liverpool to see her. The aged mother, widowed and childless, save for this one remaining boy, felt that she must look on his face once more before she died. She begged from a few ladies, whose kindness had kept her from the workhouse, sufficient money to carry her by train to Glasgow; and from thence she had made her way, now on foot, now begging a lift in a passing cart or wagon, to within a few miles of Fort George, when she was caught in the snow-storm; and, wandering from the road, would have perished in the snow—but for Laddie.

My wife is in tears and Mary is sobbing audibly as the little old woman concludes her simple and touching story, and I walk to the window and look out for a moment before I am able to ask her what her son's name is. As I tell her that we are but a few miles from Fort George, and that I will send over for him, a smile of extreme content illumines the withered face. "His name is John Salter," she says. "He is a tall, handsome lad; they will know him by that."

I hasten down stairs and write a short note to Col. Freeman, whom I know intimately, informing him of the circumstance, and begging that he will allow John Salter to come over at once, and I dispatch my groom in the dog-cart that he may bring him back without loss of time. As I return to the house after seeing him start I meet Dr. Bruce leaving the house.

"Poor old soul," he says; "her troubles are nearly over; she is sinking fast. I almost doubt whether she will live till her son comes."

"How she could have accomplished such a journey at her age I cannot understand," I observe.

"Nothing is impossible to a mother," answers Dr. Bruce; "but it has killed her."

I go in; but I find I cannot settle to my usual occupations. My thoughts are with the aged heroine who is dying up-stairs, and presently I yield to the fascination which draws me back to her presence.

As Dr. Bruce says, she is sinking fast. She lies back on the pillows, her cheeks as ashy gray as her hair. She clasps my wife's hand in hers, but her eyes are wide open, and have an eager, expectant look in them.

"At what time may we expect them?" whispers my wife to me.

"Not before 4," I answer in the same tone.

"He will be too late, I fear," she says; "she is getting rapidly weaker."

But love is stronger than death, and she will not go until her son comes. All through the winter's day she lies dying, obediently taking what nourishment is given to her, but never speaking except to say: "My lad, my lad! God is good; He will not let me die until he comes."

And at last I hear the dog-cart. I lay my finger on my lip and tell Mary to go and bring John Salter up very quietly. But my caution is needless; the mother has heard the sound, and with a last effort of her remaining strength she raises herself and stretches out her arms. "My lad, my lad!" she gasps, as, with a great sob, he springs forward, and mother and son are clasped in each other's arms once more. For a moment they remain so. Then the little old woman sinks back on my wife's shoulder, and her spirit is looking down from heaven on the lad she loved so dearly on earth.

She lies in our little church-yard under a spreading yew-tree, and on the stone which marks her resting-place are inscribed the words, "Faithful unto Death." Our Laddie has gained far-spread renown for his good works; and, as I sit finishing this short record of a tale of which he is the hero, he lies at my feet, our ever-watchful, faithful companion and friend.—Chambers' Journal.

No More Drowning.

Interesting and successful experiments have been made at Havre with a dress designed by M. Selingue for saving life at sea. The trials took place in one of the large docks of the town. One of the harbor pilots and a boatman wearing ordinary clothes and heavy sea boots, put on the life-saving dress and plunged into the basin. It was found that they floated in the water without making the slightest movement. The men next swam for some time about the dock. When they emerged from the water they were examined by the commission, who satisfied themselves that the men still wore their heavy clothing and boots. The inventor next proceeded to cut the suit all over, in order to show that a person wearing the life-saving clothes would still float, even though they should be torn by coming in contact with floating wreckage, rocks, etc. Altogether, thirty-two cuts and rents were made in the dress, leaving the body of the wearer in many places exposed to view. One of the men then divested himself of his clothing, and, plunging into the water, feigned to be drowning. His companion, still wearing the cut and mutilated dress, entered the basin and easily brought the other to the shore. So well satisfied were the commission with the result of these experiments that they at once gave the inventor an order for thirty of the life-saving suits, for the use of the crews of the two life-boats stationed at Havre. The dress consists of a paletot and trousers, forming a single garment, and is rendered insubmergible by being divided into twenty-eight compartments, each of which contains a float, composed of twenty small cylindrical floats. The system may be applied to any clothing.

A Curious Sermon.

A remarkable sermon was recently preached by the English Bishop of Manchester, near Bolton, in the course of which he said everybody deplored the comparative failure of results which Christianity had produced in the world. No one, he supposed, would say to-day that Christianity had done in the world what it might reasonably have been expected to have done. He could not account for the failure. It was easy to say, if it were God's work, it surely must have prospered more than it had done. That was not his way of arguing. He could see, from its own inherent excellency, its own admirable structure, its own entire harmony with and adaptation to every want of nature, that Christianity must be divine. But ask him why it had failed—why there were perhaps 50,000 out of the 80,000 people in Bolton and the neighborhood living as if there was no such thing as Christianity—he could not explain it; he could only say it illustrated that important truth of the power which man had in his freedom of will to resist and quench the sanctifying power of the Holy Ghost.

Horrors of the India Famine.

The editor of the Madras Times, a member of the relief committee, writes under date of Aug. 1 as follows: The population of Southern India, more or less affected by famine, numbers 24,000,000. In the most favorable circumstances, at least one-sixth will die. Twenty-three people in all died of starvation in Bengal. In Madras, no camp of 3,000 rises morning after morning without leaving thirty corpses. In the interior the distress is most fearful. One gentleman passing down the valley in the Wyland district counted twenty-nine dead bodies on the road. A coffee-planter seeking shelter from rain in a hut found six decomposing corpses in it. On any day and every day mothers may be seen in the streets of Madras offering their children for sale, while the foundling portion of the poor-house is full of infants, found by the police on the road, deserted by their parents. Since the famine began 500,000 people have died of want and distress. The first big tragedy may be expected in Mysore. In that province, indeed, information has reached me from Bangalore of two cases of cannibalism already.

Wheat in the Northwest.

The Chicago Tribune says Mr. J. Z. Werst, of that city, has made a careful and independent survey of the situation, and gives the following as estimates of the wheat crop of the four States named this year. His estimates a year ago were very near to the afterward-published official figures:

	Bushels.
Iowa	30,397,000
Minnesota	29,716,000
Wisconsin	22,230,000
Kansas	13 666,000
Total	96,009,000

Mr. W. has also collected the following Chicago prices on the crop-years ending with August in the years named:

	Highest.	Lowest.	Average.
1876	$1.77	$0.92	$1.27
1875	1.19	.83	1.02
1874	1.30	.81	.96
1873	1.28	.89	1.14
1872	1.34	1.01	1.19
1871	1.61	1.06	1.26
1870	1.31	.89	1 16
1869	1.32	.73	.94
1868	1.63	1.01	1.21
1867	2.20	1.35	1.87

Average of last five years, $1.12; do of preceding five years, $1.29.

A Distinction.

The circus is coming again, and once more we will have the pleasure of witnessing the cheerful spectacle of seven church members taking one 2-year-old child "to see the animals." "I didn't go into the circus department," said a good deacon, after the last moral circus was here, "but I dropped in to look around the menagerie a few moments with my little grandson, and I do think the man that tied his legs in a bow-knot around his neck and then crawled through the hoop was alone worth the price of admission." — Burlington Hawk-Eye.

GLADSTONE.

The Great English Statesman Fells a Tree in the Presence of 1,400 People.

[From the London Times.]

The residence of the Right Hon. W. E. Gladstone, Hawarden Castle, near Chester, was on Saturday visited by the members of the Bolton Liberal Association and their friends, the party numbering about 1,400. The ex-Premier at once granted them permission to roam through the splendid grounds, but to the further request that he would address this large company of Lancashire admirers he at first gave a decided refusal. Then the committee who had the excursion in hand pressed him to at least show himself, and at last, after some hesitation, he said he and his son (Mr. W. H. Gladstone, M. P. for Whitby) were, in the course of the afternoon, going out to fell a tree in the park, and he would then respond to any vote of thanks that might be accorded him. With this assurance the Bolton Liberals were content, and the hall was anxiously watched by attentive scouts for the egress of the right honorable gentleman and his son. A little after 4 o'clock Mr. Gladstone and his son came from the hall, clad in rough working-suits, with slouch hats, and, ax in hand, proceeded to a distant portion of the park, and, the scouts having given the signal to the main body of excursionists, the woodmen were followed by large numbers of people. A halt was made under a huge ash tree of certainly not less than fifteen feet circumference at the base of the trunk, and father and son set to work in earnest in the presence of more spectators than ever before saw a tree felled, certainly on the demesne of Hawarden Castle. Before beginning, off went hat, coat, and neckerchief, till they had on only check shirts and rough light pants, and as the chips flew at the stroke of their axes the admiring excursionists picked up some of the fragments and carefully treasured them as mementoes of their visit. As some relief to the monotony of waiting, the excursionists sang several glees, which served as accompaniments to the thuds of the axes, and, as the ex-Premier paused to breathe awhile, crowds gathered round him with a view to shaking hands. Like a gallant man, Mr. Gladstone granted the favor to the ladies of the company, but sternly refused it to the male sex, who had to content themselves with lusty cheers at frequent intervals. The enthusiasm was intense, and, when the right honorable gentleman leaned on his ax to wipe away the perspiration from his brow, his scanty hair waving in the breeze, and in the fore and background a splendid landscape of woodland, the scene would have made a picture. In one of the pauses the right honorable gentleman complimented the excursionists on their excellent singing, which, he said, was not remarkable, seeing that Lancashire people were renowned for their musical ability; and, later on, when a perceptible inroad had been made into the trunk, two of the leading excursionists took the opportunity to propose and second a vote of thanks to the right honorable gentleman and Mrs. Gladstone for their kindness in allowing the use of the park, and for favoring them with their presence.

The vote was carried amid loud cheering.

Mr. Gladstone, leaning on his ax, acknowledged the compliment, and expressed his pleasure at seeing so many friends present enjoying the scenery of the park, as his wife and son had enjoyed them from their infancy, and he himself for half his life. The right honorable gentleman then continued: "I hope some of you will live to see the time when there will not be such a contrast between manufacturing towns and the country as there is now."

A Pet Dog Shot in Its Mistress' Arms.

A suit was commenced before Justice Semler, of Brooklyn, yesterday, by Miss Alice Begg, against George Huntington, to recover $5,000 damages. The action is brought under the following circumstances: The parties are neighbors, Miss Begg residing at the corner of Lewis avenue and Witherspoon street, and Mr. Huntington at No. 787 Willoughby avenue. The gentleman, it seems, found one of his favorite chickens dead in his yard, and, believing Miss Begg's dog was the cause, went to her residence, armed with a revolver, and demanded the animal's life. Miss Begg, to save her pet, grasped it in her arms, and Huntington, not to be defeated, shot the dog while its mistress held it. Miss Begg not only had Huntington arrested for shooting her pet, but also for trespassing. The father of the defendant is also brought into the case on the ground of attempted assault and battery on Miss Begg because of his son's arrest. It is alleged that he was prevented from committing violence only by the presence of an officer. The nervous system of the lady is said to have been very much shocked by the shot which ended the dog's life.—New York Herald.

Shocking Accident.

A terrible accident happened a few days ago at a railroad crossing about ten miles west of St. Louis. Mr. W. F. Ritchey, his wife and two children were crossing the Missouri Pacific railroad track in a covered wagon, when a passenger train going west struck the vehicle and tore it into splinters. Mr. Ritchey was tossed into the air and instantly killed. His wife and the two children were carried 250 yards on the engine front. Mrs. Ritchey was breathing when taken from the engine, but died while being carried to a wagon. The babe was fatally injured, and the remaining member of the family, a little girl named Gracie, has a broken thigh. One of the horses was killed outright and the other escaped unharmed. Mr. Ritchey was a nephew of Judge John F. Long, Collector of Customs at St. Louis.

Condensed Beer.

Condensed beer is the latest discovery in the drinking line. The process has been patented in England. The beer is evaporated in a vacuum until a large part of the water and alcohol is distilled away. Beer, it is said, may thus be reduced to one-eighth its original bulk. To restore the beer it is only necessary to add the bulk of water distilled off, with a small quantity of yeast or other ferment. Thus will the Briton who loves his drop of good beer be enabled to carry his nose-painter with him wherever he goes.

MY FIRST PROPOSAL.

At last, the long day's haying done,
I turned to leave the fragrant meadow,
Where, on the grass, the setting sun
Before me cast my lengthened shadow.

I struck a narrow path that ran
By Lovell's farm, a crooked by-way
Which somewhere thereabouts began,
And ended on the dusty highway.

It reached their barnyard first of all,
Then wandered through a wooded hollow,
And darted past an old stone wall,
As if inviting you to follow.

It climbed a hill where all the day
The crows rehearsed a mimic Babel;
It crossed a brook which flowed that way,
Then slid beneath our barn's brown gable.

A shorter cut it was, that led
To our own homestead from the meadow,
And so I followed it likewise,
And on before me went my shadow.

Then, nearing Lovell's farm, I heard
The white-horned cattle faintly lowing,
While, bubbling, in the bright pails stirred,
The milk from well-filled udders flowing.

I glanced behind the barnyard wall,
And there sat Katy milking "Speckle,"
The favorite cow among them all,
Her fine coat flecked with many a freckle.

Then up got Katy—so by that
I knew her milking done—and straightway,
While my own heart went pit-a-pat,
Came toward me through the open gateway.

The sun dropped down from out the sky,
And left the west with rich gold laden;
An awkward country lad was I,
And Katy but a simple maiden.

Her eyes met mine, as if by chance,
Not knowing who it was; then shyly,
'Neath drooping lids withdrew their glance,
Then back again to mine stole slyly.

With that last look my courage grew;
I said—it may have been I swore it—
She was the prettiest girl I knew,
And told her how I loved her for it.

Perhaps she gave me no reply,
Perhaps it was the night's gray curtain,
Slow-falling from the twilight sky,
Which left her answer so uncertain.

Then winding homeward, torn with doubt,
The tree-toads trilled their firm conviction;
The patriarch frogs, with deep-bass shout,
Grew hoarse and loud in contradiction;

The katydids pronounced both ways;
But ere the moon was one hour older
I sat beneath its silvery rays
With Katy's head upon my shoulder.

PITH AND POINT.

BEST thing out—A conflagration.

AN old-fashioned watering-place—A pump.

WHEN is a ship like a dressmaker? When she's rounding the cape or tacking about.

WHAT is the difference between charity and a tailor? The first covers a multitude of sins; the second a multitude of sinners.

A CLERGYMAN of ordinary abilities asked for a license to preach. "I grant you permission," said the Bishop, "but nature refuses it."

"THAT was very greedy of you, Tommy, to eat your little sister's share of cake." "You told me, ma, I was always to take her part," said Tommy.

A ST. LOUIS reviewer wrote an article entitled "Martin Luther—Diet of Worms," and the compositor set it up, "Martin Luther died of worms."

TRYING to do business without advertising is like winking at a pretty girl in the dark; you may know what you are doing, but nobody else does.

"YOU'RE a smart fellow," sneered a lawyer to a witness, the other day, in a Brooklyn court. "I'd return the compliment if I wasn't under oath," replied the witness.

IT is estimated that there are 2,400 disorders to which the human frame is liable. When a man is laid up with the rheumatism, he is apt to think that the entire number has struck him in concert.

A COUNTRY school-master's description of a money-lender: "He serves you in the present tense, he lends you in the conditional mood, keeps you in the subjunctive, and ruins you in the future."

AT a public contest lately held, the following was the prize conundrum: What is the difference between a tenant and the son of a widow? The tenant has to pay rents; but the son of a widow has not two parents.

THERE was some philosophy in the henpecked husband who, being asked why he had placed himself so completely under the government of his wife, answered, "To avoid the worse slavery of being under my own."

HAWK-EYTEMS.

Burlington man to fruiterer: "Give me 25 cents worth of grapes." Fruiterer, in amazement: "We don't cut our grapes; you'll have to take a whole one."

The potato-bug doesn't think of his stomach all the time. He is passionately fond of the odor of exquisite flowers, and his favorite resort is in the tuber rows.

The man with the white vest often looks disconsolately at the varying lines across the front of that garment, and wonders why all bars are not built the same height.

Striped stockings are going out of style, and the Sunday-school picnic will no more be electrified by a brilliant display of the northern lights every time a girl falls out of the swing.

Ex-Gov. Packard has gone out of politics, and spends all his time feeling the gums of the twins for teeth, and trying to teach them to talk. And, when the twins are simultaneously smitten with the worst kind of nocturnal anti-conciliation colic, Packard just sits up in bed, and holds his hands over his ears, and says: "Merciful Heavens! This is worse than the river-parishes."

Yesterday morning a man knocked a baker off the sidewalk down on Main street, and some one was heartless enough to speak of the victim as "knock-knead." Dough nut make ache the heart of the unfortunate by vile puns.

The cruel fates never appear half so grim and pitiless as when they marry a girl who has gone through Vassar, and can play divinely, paint like an angel, dance like a fairy, and slam the front door in seven languages, to a man who owes for the clothes he was married in, begs his tobacco, and buys his wood half a cord at a time.

NEARLY 3,000,000 of sheep were destroyed by disease or the depredations of dogs and wolves during the last year, representing a money value of nearly $8,000,000. The loss is greatest proportionately in North Carolina, Florida and Louisiana, and ranges from 17 per cent. in the former State, to 3.7 in Nebraska, the average being about 8.

THE last case of cow-hiding comes from Colorado, where a woman is said to have hidden her cow under the bed to save it from taxation.

A BAD FAILURE.

That of the State Savings Bank, at Chicago—Incidents of the Collapse—Heartrending Stories of the Wretched Depositors.

[From the Chicago Times.]

The particulars of the failure of the State Savings Institution, and the history of its criminal mismanagement during the last few years, the unfortunate depositors read in the morning papers. The villainies [illegible] early and often, and many a hard-working man and patient, thrifty woman read the shameless story with a chill at the heart and with the blanched cheek and scalding tears of keen misery.

The best phase that hope could put on the matter was but a sorry comfort, or rather [illegible] of their distress. [illegible] the whole thing up and putting the best face on the miserable business, it could be [illegible] that with time and care 25 or 30 per cent. of the deposits might be paid. In [illegible] the bitter moral of this [illegible] mismanagement might be continued thus: "Three millions owing to 16,000 depositors, and nary a cent to pay." The alarm was around the town, and many a one who had passed a sleepless night was on hand at the bank as early as 8 o'clock yesterday morning. A community of misfortune united them, and discussion of the bank's affairs soon become general.

The sidewalk around the bank was soon almost impassable for the throng, and in the roadway and upon the opposite sidewalk crowds gathered and stayed anxiously awaiting developments. They were hoping against hope; trusting that after all things would not turn out so badly as represented in the papers. It was plain to see from the trouble in their faces that most of them feared the loss of all they had in the world. The trial, trouble, and self-denial which that all had cost them was easily read in the feverish anxiety which prevailed. While the morning was yet early men walked about in a sort of dumb despair, fearful to confirm their worst fears. They dreaded to know the truth, the prospect looked so black. The apprehension of meeting dire necessity face to face this coming winter chilled many a brave heart and broke many a stout spirit. Not to be able to make the payment on the [illegible], to provide the usual comforts for the wife and children, to be robbed of the safeguard against idleness or sickness and the nest-egg for the business [illegible] or declining age; these thoughts made men change color and bite their lips and women weep and tremble—for there were women there. Women who had come from thrifty, prudent homes; wives and mothers who had sought to know the full extent of the disaster that had placed in jeopardy and perhaps entirely swept away the store which had been earned and garnered with so much toil and self-sacrifice. The business man was there, the small tradesman, and the prudent matron who had put by something for the "rainy day" that might overtake husband and children, the careful clerk and the horny-handed mechanic, the ill-paid, struggling working-girl, the common laborer, and the honest, hard-working help, house-servant, and toiling scrub-woman. Youth was there impatient and vituperative; and old age, looking very white and weak and wan, as though broken-hearted that ill-fortune could have played them so scurvy a trick in the helpless winter-time of their days. There were some there, too, whose presence touched the hearts of the most selfish and callous in the noisy, fretful, and disputative throng. They were women, and some of them had youngsters with them, the little ones far too young in the world's pleasures or griefs to be able to appreciate the full extent of the trouble that had fallen upon them. But the misery in the faces of the women to whom they clung was pitiful to witness and went to many a man's heart with the sharpness of a knife. They wore an armor that won the sympathy and moved the hearts of all within the selfish, anxious crowd. It was the armor of a black dress. It was the widow and the fatherless begging at the door of the bankrupt speculator for their own, begging under circumstances as hard as the polished granite of the empty bank for the pittance which was to stand between them and hunger and cold and despair.

Toward 10 o'clock, when the crowd had grown large, it became too painfully apparent that the heaviest portion of the cruel and wicked blow would be cast upon the shoulders of the aged and the unfortunate. The crowd increased, and swelled to Randolph street, and when it was found that it was actually the terrible truth that not a single nickel was forthcoming the intensity of feeling, the passion, despair and all the general features of the scene became dreadful. Men and women were fairly trembling with excitement, and spoke to each other in tones husky with emotion. The quiet agony of some of them who had for years put by, little by little, for some cherished and indeed sacred object, such as a home for aged parents, provision for the helpless and the sick, or toward some fondly anticipated plan of life, was perfectly heart-sickening to witness.

It is simply impossible to attempt to outline the circumstances of many of the most touching and necessitous cases. The hardships have fallen upon all with an almost equal force, and the scoundrelism that has deliberately wrought such wide-spread ruin among the dependent and inoffensive poor will not receive its due punishment until is meted out to it the terrors of that hell beyond the grave of which John Calvin used to attempt such a horrible description. One poor woman who has passed the last few years of her life in the toilsome pursuit of scrubbing in one of the public departments told a pitiful story of what she had gladly suffered that her only boy might receive a thorough professional education. The mother's tears ran down her face like rain, and many a man's fingers worked convulsively as he overheard the story. A very old lady, quite 70 or more, tottered with the weight of her woe as she told how she and the old man, some half a dozen years older than herself, and bed-ridden for years, had lost the little store upon which they subsisted, and part of which was to be devoted to their burial when their last of earth came upon them.

A broken-hearted German girl mourned the loss of no less than $600 worth of hardly-earned savings, part of which was to bring the old folks over to a happier home this side of the water.

Men were there who said but little except in curses, and who were thinking of the little ones at home when, with a mischievous light in their eyes, they said that they would like the opportunity of breaking "that fellow Spencer's d—d neck."

"Yes," said a respectable and elderly man, "this thing has got far enough now. We shall have to stretch a few of these fellows, I'm afraid. The sight of one of these d—d tinkering, gambling monopolists dangling from a lamp-post will be a wholesome lesson to others that they will be compelled to deal honestly with the people's money." "Curse them," said another, "they're not satisfied with making a decent interest by passing our money through their dirty, pawnbroking fingers, but they must play hell with it in wildcat stocks, in real estate, and bankrupt railroad bonds."

"Buying real estate for a rise, you know," said another speaker. "[illegible] Yes, I'd like to be one to give that man Spencer a rise. I'd rise him. I'd rise him higher than the level of any real estate in Cook county, you bet."

And so it went on. The officers of the bank would have been edified and somewhat surprised into the bargain could they have seen the sort of men that gave utterance to sentiments like these. They were not men rough in manner or extravagant in speech, but were of a respectable and good class of citizens. It would not have been very healthy for the president or cashier to have been extremely anxious to test the grim earnestness of either their opinions or their threats.

Remarkable Fulfillment of a Dream.

All the world loves to talk about dreams. The streaks of insanity which a French philosopher declares run through every man's brain show their edges in sleeping, if not in working hours, and as for the supernatural element, who is wholly without superstition in regard to dreams? Two English ladies were recently in attendance upon their brother, who was ill of common sore throat—severe and protracted, but not considered dangerous. At the same time one of them had borrowed a watch from a female friend, in consequence of her own being under repair. The watch was one to which particular value was attached, on account of family associations, and some anxiety was expressed that it might not meet with any injury. The sisters were sleeping together, in a room communicating with that of their brother, when the elder of them awoke in a state of great agitation; and, having aroused the other, told her that she had had a frightful dream. "I dreamed," she said, "that Mary's watch stopped, and that when I told you of the circumstance, you replied: 'Much worse than that has happened, for James' breath has stopped also!'"—meaning their brother who was ill. To quiet her agitation, the younger sister immediately got up and found the brother sleeping quietly, and the watch, which had been carefully put in a drawer, going correctly. The following night the very same dream occurred, followed by similar agitation, which was again composed in the same manner; the brother being again found in a quiet sleep, and the watch going well. On the following morning, soon after the family breakfasted, one of the sisters was sitting by her brother, while the other was writing a note in the adjoining room. When her note was ready for sealing, she was proceeding to take out for the purpose the watch she had put in her writing desk, when she was astonished to find it had stopped; and at the same instant she heard a scream from her sister in the next room. Their brother had been seized with a sudden fit of suffocation, and had just breathed his last.—New York Tribune.

Shocking Crime.

A dreadful occurrence is reported from Bellambi, New South Wales. The house of a man named Peter Brawen was burned down during the night, and in the morning it was found that the man and two of his children, aged 11 and 13 years, had perished in the flames. Within a few yards of the smoldering ruins there was also a dog with his head nearly chopped off, evidently by an ax lying beside him besmeared with blood. A slate was found near the burned house, with the following written, in the handwriting of Brawen: "25th May. I cannot live any longer. During the last ten years I have wished a thousand times I had never been born. I love my little children too well to leave them to be tortured by their brutal mother—that dirty, drunken, selfish, and unfeeling savage. I bequeath her to Satan, and curse her with my last breath, and rejoice at the near approach of my end."

Passage of the Dardanelles.

The reported closing of the Dardanelles by Turkey calls out the question, Can the passage be forced? The task would be extremely difficult; but twice within the last two centuries it has been done. In 1770 Capt. Elphinstone, a British officer in the service of Russia, ran through the Dardanelles with a single vessel, anchored in front of the Sultan's palace (off Seraglio point), drank a glass of grog, and ran out again. Thirty years later another British officer ran through the Dardanelles with a squadron, and menaced Constantinople with a bombardment.

The Debt of Paris.

The debt of Paris on Jan. 1, 1877, had reached $380,000,000. The population is 2,200,000. The debt of the Kingdom of Prussia, with 24,000,000 inhabitants, is not more than $230,000,000. Nine separate loans constitute the debt of Paris, and of these five, amounting to $200,000,000, were incurred under the imperial regime and before the Second Empire. The remaining $180,000,000 of the debt has been contracted since the close of the German war.

THE belle of a ball in Washington, Ky., was fought over by rival admirers, each of whom wanted to dance with her to the exclusion of all others. Two were wounded with pistol shots, and three with knives.

A TEXAS paper claims that its State has now 1,750,000 inhabitants, and predicts that by 1880 it will have more than 2,000,000, and be entitled to twenty Representatives in Congress.

THE Pennsylvania railroad has 8,000 tons of scrap iron for sale at Pittsburgh.

AT a church where there was a call for a minister, two candidates appeared whose names were Adam and Low. The latter preached an elegant discourse from the text, "Adam, where art thou?" In the afternoon, Adam preached from these words, "Lo, here am I."

A Theory Borne Out by Facts.

The theory that lack of vigor is the underlying cause of disease is receiving daily confirmation of the most positive kind in the cure of dyspepsia, liver disorders, and kidney, bladder and uterine complaints by Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, the ruling remedy for maladies attributable to weakness. This superb tonic is never employed without the most beneficial effects. The liver, the bowels, the organs of urination, and indeed the entire system acquires both vigor and regularity through its action, since it gives a healthful impetus to every failing function. It is an incomparable specific for chills and fever, and other maladies of a malarial type, prevents their attacks, is a reliable means of counteracting the effects of undue exposure [illegible] the nervous organism.

Purity, Strength, Economy.

These three requisites are combined in DOOLEY'S well-known YEAST POWDER. A few trials will convince you that it is not only the best, but also the cheapest.

SAFE, PERMANENT AND COMPLETE!—Wilhoft's Tonic cures Chills and Fever, Dumb Chills and Bilious Fevers—those Titans that kill their thousands where this remedy is unknown. It cures Enlargement of the Spleen. It cures Hypertrophy of the Liver. It hurts no one. It cures all types of Malarial Fevers and is perfectly protective in its effects. Try Wilhoft's Tonic, the great infallible Chill Cure. G. R. FINLAY & Co., Proprietors, New Orleans.

FOR SALE BY ALL DRUGGISTS.

I HAVE sold Hatch's Universal Cough Syrup since 1870. It has had the leading sale among all cough remedies, from its first introduction. My customers, as they get acquainted with it, become its friends almost without exception. After this trial of six years, I can recommend its use to all in need of a cough remedy. A. B. ARMSTRONG, Smethport, Pa.

Sold by J. Blocki & Co., Chicago, Ill.

THE name Cashmere Bouquet, as applied to Toilet Soaps and Perfumery, is registered and patented as a trade-mark by Colgate & Co., New York. Purchasers, however, need hardly to be warned against infringements; the genuine article is so universally esteemed as to have made the names Cashmere Bouquet and Colgate & Co. nearly synonymous.

THIRTY years' experience proves the Graefenberg Vegetable Pills to be the mildest and most effective medicine ever known for the complete cure of headache, biliousness, liver complaints, nervousness, fevers and diseases of digestion. Sold everywhere; price 25 cents per box. Send for almanacs. Graefenberg Co., New York.

THOUSANDS are entitled to increase of pension. They have been pensioned at rates below what their disabilities warranted, others as their disabilities have increased since first pensioned. All such can have their pensions increased, and those who are not pensioned, but entitled to pension, can secure the same by addressing, with stamp, McNeill & Birch, Washington, D. C. No fee till claim is allowed.

CHEW
The Celebrated
"MATCHLESS"
Wood Tag Plug
TOBACCO.
THE PIONEER TOBACCO COMPANY,
New York, Boston and Chicago.

Hofmann's Hop Pills cure the Ague at once.

If you feel dull, drowsy, debilitated, have frequent headache, mouth tastes badly, poor appetite, and tongue coated, you are suffering from torpid liver or "biliousness," and nothing will cure you so speedily and permanently as to take SIMMONS' LIVER REGULATOR OR MEDICINE.

PURELY VEGETABLE,

The Cheapest, Purest and Best Family Medicine in the World!

AN EFFECTUAL SPECIFIC for all diseases of the Liver, Stomach and Spleen.

Regulate the Liver and prevent CHILLS AND FEVER, MALARIOUS FEVERS, BOWEL COMPLAINTS, RESTLESSNESS, JAUNDICE AND NAUSEA.

SIMMONS LIVER REGULATOR

BAD BREATH!

Nothing is so unpleasant, nothing so common as bad breath, and in nearly every case it comes from the stomach, and can be so easily corrected if you will take SIMMONS' LIVER REGULATOR. Do not neglect so sure a remedy for this repulsive disorder. It will also improve your appetite, Complexion and General Health.

CONSTIPATION!

SHOULD not be regarded as a trifling ailment—in fact, nature demands the utmost regularity of the bowels, and any deviation from this demand paves the way often to serious danger. It is quite as necessary to remove impure accumulations from the bowels as it is to eat or sleep, and no health can be expected where a costive habit of body prevails.

SICK HEADACHE!

This distressing affliction occurs most frequently. The disturbance of the stomach, arising from the imperfectly digested contents, causes a severe pain in the head, accompanied with disagreeable nausea, and this constitutes what is popularly known as Sick Headache; for the relief of which, TAKE SIMMONS' LIVER REGULATOR OR MEDICINE.

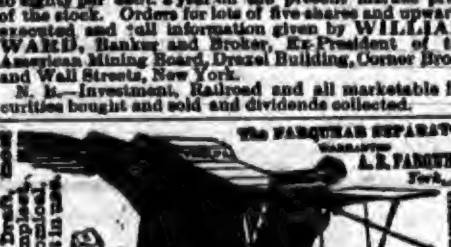
MANUFACTURED ONLY BY
J. H. ZEILIN & CO.,
PHILADELPHIA.

Price, $1.00. Sold by all Druggists.

SAFER THAN THE AVERAGE SAVINGS BANK.

The Shares of the Consolidated Virginia and the California Mining Companies are selling at twenty-eight to thirty-five dollars each. The two Companies have already paid more than forty-nine million dollars in monthly dividends. The rate is equal to eighty per cent. a year on the present market price of the stock. Orders for lots of five shares and upwards executed and full information given by WILLIAM WARD, Banker and Broker, Ex-President of the American Mining Board, Drexel Building, Corner Broad and Wall Streets, New York.

N. B.—Investment, Railroad and all marketable Securities bought and sold and dividends collected.



The FARQUHAR SEPARATOR
A. B. FARQUHAR
York, Pa.
Lightest Draft, durable, simplest, most economical, cheapest in use.
Wastes no Grain. One Belt only.
[illegible] Illustrated Catalogue.

JACKSON'S BEST
SWEET NAVY CHEWING TOBACCO

was awarded the highest prize at Centennial Exposition for its fine chewing qualities, the excellence and lasting character of its sweetening and flavoring. If you want the best tobacco ever made, ask your grocer for this, and see that each plug bears our blue-strip trade-mark, with words Jackson's Best on it. Sold wholesale by all jobbers. Send for sample to C. A. JACKSON & CO., Manufacturers, Petersburg, Va.

RIVERVIEW ACADEMY,
POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y.,
OTIS BISBEE, A. M., Principal and Proprietor.

Numbers its alumni by hundreds in all the honorable walks of life. Pupils range from twelve to twenty years in age. Next session opens Sept. 18th. Those wishing to enter should make an early application.

$777 is not easily earned in these times, but it can be made in three months by any one, of either sex, in any part of the country, who is willing to work steadily at the employment that we furnish. $66 per week in your own town. You need not be away from home over night. You can give your whole time to the work, or only your spare moments. We have agents who are making over $20 per day at the business. All who engage at once can make money fast. At the present time money cannot be made so easily and rapidly at any other business. It costs nothing to try the business. Terms and $5 Outfit free. Address, at once, H. HALLETT & CO., Portland, Maine.

DR. WARNER'S HEALTH CORSET.
With Skirt Supporter and Self-Adjusting Pads.

Secures HEALTH and COMFORT of Body, with GRACE and BEAUTY of Form. Three Garments in one. Approved by all physicians.

AGENTS WANTED.

Samples by mail, in Coutil, $2; Satteen, $1 75. To Agents at 25 cents less. Order size two inches smaller than waist measure over the dress.

Warner Bros, 351 Broadway, N.Y.

GRAFF'S TRADE MARK PATENTED
IMPROVED POTASH OR LYE
MAKE NINE POUNDS OF PURE SOAP IN ONLY ONE HOUR

PROF. BLOT'S LETTER SHOWING SUPERIORITY OF THIS ARTICLE OVER ALL OTHERS FOR SOAP MAKING SENT FREE BY MAIL ON APPLICATION TO H. M. ANTHONY 104 READE ST. NEW YORK.

ESTABLISHED 1844
STRAUB MILL COMPANY'S CINCINNATI
CHAMPION BEST SMUT SEPARATOR
FINE MILLING MACHINERY & MILLS, MILLING MACHINERY, MILLERS SUPPLIES
N.W. CORNER FRONT & JOHN STS. CINCINNATI

$1.00 $1.00
Osgood's Heliotype Engravings.
The choicest household ornaments. Price One Dollar each. Send for catalogue.
JAMES R. OSGOOD & CO.
BOSTON, MASS.
$1.00 $1.00

AGENTS WANTED FOR THE CENTENNIAL
HISTORY OF THE U. S.

The great interest in the thrilling history of our country makes this the fastest-selling book ever published. It contains over 500 fine historical engravings and 1,120 pages. It sells at sight. Send for our extra terms to Agents, and see why it sells faster than any other book. Address NATIONAL PUBLISHING CO., Chicago, Ill.

30,000 Copies Sold in Two Months!
MARK TWAIN'S
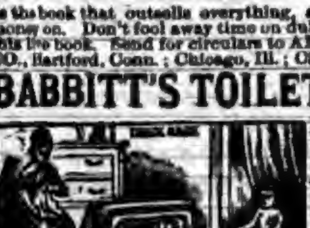
New Book, "Adventures of TOM SAWYER," is the book that outsells everything, and agents make money on. Don't fool away time on dull works, but get this live book. Send for circulars to AMERICAN PUB. CO., Hartford, Conn.; Chicago, Ill.; Cincinnati, Ohio.

BABBITT'S TOILET SOAP.



Unrivalled for the Toilet and the Bath. No artificial and deceptive odors to cover common and deleterious ingredients. After years of scientific experiment the manufacturer of B. T. Babbitt's Best Soap has perfected and now offers to the public The FINEST TOILET SOAP in the World.

Only the purest vegetable oils used in its manufacture.

For Use in the Nursery it has No Equal.

Worth ten times its cost to every mother and family in Christendom. Sample box, containing 3 cakes of 6 ozs. each, sent free to any address on receipt of 75 cents. Address

B. T. BABBITT, New York City.

For Sale by all Druggists.

Best Family Paper in America.
THE TOLEDO
WEEKLY COMMERCIAL
Successor to the local
Weekly Blade.

Publishes simultaneously with it all the attractive features of the Weekly Blade. As, by arrangement, the home news will appear only in the COMMERCIAL, this is the paper you want. All the news in a nutshell. The best stories, the choicest poetry, rarest wit and humor, best Home and Farm Departments, Department for the Young, Sunday-School Lesson, Sunday Reading, Markets, etc.

Four Months' Trial for 50 Cents.

Great inducements to Clubs. Gold and other valuable Premiums. No Chromos. No trash! Valuable goods at regular prices, and COMMERCIAL FREE. Send for list and specimens. Say where you saw this, and address

TOLEDO NEWSPAPER CO.,
TOLEDO, O.

THE GOOD OLD
STAND-BY.
MEXICAN MUSTANG LINIMENT.
FOR MAN AND BEAST.

ESTABLISHED 35 YEARS. Always cures. Always ready. Always handy. Has never yet failed. Thirty millions have tested it. The whole world approves the glorious old Mustang—the Best and Cheapest Liniment in existence. 25 cents a bottle. The Mustang Liniment cures when nothing else will.

SOLD BY ALL MEDICINE VENDERS.

TARRANT'S
SELTZER
APERIENT.

Punctual as a Timepiece. Unless the bowels do their duty with the regularity of clockwork, perfect health is impossible. Therefore, when disordered, control them immediately with TARRANT'S EFFERVESCENT SELTZER APERIENT, the most genial balsamic and effective laxative and alterative known to the medical profession. Sold by all druggists.

DUNHAM
PIANOS.
Dunham & Sons, Manufacturers,
Warerooms, 18 East 14th St.,
[Established 1834.] NEW YORK.
Prices Reasonable. Terms Easy.

DO NOT FAIL to send for our New Catalogue. It contains valuable information for every person contemplating the purchase of any article for personal, family or agricultural use. Free to any Address.

MONTGOMERY WARD & CO.,
Original Grange Supply House,
227 & 229 Wabash Ave., CHICAGO, ILL.

$10 to $25 A DAY SURE made by Agents selling our Chromos, Crayons, Picture and Chromo Cards. 125 samples, worth $5, sent, postpaid for 85 Cents. Illustrated Catalogue free. J. H. BUFFORD'S SONS, Boston. [Established 1830.]

POND'S EXTRACT.
POND'S EXTRACT.
The People's Remedy.
The Universal Pain Extractor.
Note: Ask for Pond's Extract.
Take no Other.

"Hear, for I will speak of excellent things."

POND'S EXTRACT—The great Vegetable Pain Destroyer. Has been in use over thirty years, and for cleanliness and prompt curative virtues cannot be excelled.

CHILDREN. No family can afford to be without Pond's Extract. Accidents, Bruises, Contusions, Cuts, Sprains, are relieved almost instantly by external application. Promptly relieves pains of Burns, Scalds, Excoriations, Chafings, Old Sores, Boils, Felons, Corns, etc. Arrests inflammation, reduces swellings, stops bleeding, removes discoloration and heals rapidly.

LADIES find it their best friend. It assuages the pains to which they are peculiarly subject—notably fullness and pressure in the head, nausea, vertigo, etc. It promptly ameliorates and permanently heals all kinds of inflammations and ulcerations.

HEMORRHOIDS or PILES find in this the only immediate relief and ultimate cure. No case, however chronic or obstinate can long resist its regular use.

VARICOSE VEINS. It is the only sure cure.

BLEEDING from any cause. For this it is a specific. It has saved hundreds of lives when all other remedies failed to arrest bleeding from nose, stomach, lungs, and elsewhere.

TOOTHACHE, Earache, Neuralgia and Rheumatism are all alike relieved and often permanently cured.

PHYSICIANS of all schools who are acquainted with Pond's Extract recommend it in their practice. We have letters of commendation from hundreds of Physicians; many of whom order it for use in their own practice. In addition to the foregoing they order its use for Swellings of all kinds, Quinsy, Sore Throat, Inflamed Tonsils, simple and chronic Diarrhœa, Catarrh (for which it is a specific), Chilblains, Frosted Feet, Stings of Insects, Mosquitoes, etc., Chapped Hands, Face, and indeed all manner of skin diseases.

TOILET USE. Removes Soreness, Roughness and Smarting; heals Cuts, Eruptions and Pimples. It revives, invigorates and refreshes, while wonderfully improving the Complexion.

TO FARMERS—Pond's Extract. No Stock Breeder, no Livery Man can afford to be without it. It is used by all the leading Livery Stables, Street Railroads and first Horsemen in New York City. It has no equal for Sprains, Harness or Saddle Chafings, Stiffness, Scratches, Swellings, Cuts, Lacerations, Bleedings, Pneumonia, Colic, Diarrhœa, Chills, Colds, etc. Its range of action is wide, and the relief it affords is so prompt that it is invaluable in every Farm-yard as well as in every Farm-house. Let it be tried once and you will never be without it.

CAUTION! Pond's Extract has been imitated. The genuine article has the words Pond's Extract blown in each bottle. It is prepared by the only persons living who ever knew how to prepare it properly. Refuse all other preparations of Witch Hazel. This is the only article used by Physicians, and in the hospitals of this country and Europe.

HISTORY and Uses of Pond's Extract, in pamphlet form, sent free on application to POND'S EXTRACT COMPANY, 98 Maiden Lane, New York.

THE
UNITED STATES
LIFE
INSURANCE COMPANY,
IN THE CITY OF NEW YORK.
261, 262, 263 Broadway.
ORGANIZED 1850

ASSETS, $4,827,176.52
SURPLUS, $820,000

EVERY APPROVED FORM OF POLICY ISSUED ON MOST FAVORABLE TERMS

ALL ENDOWMENT POLICIES
AND
APPROVED CLAIMS
MATURING IN 1877
WILL BE DISCOUNTED AT 7%
ON PRESENTATION.
JAMES BUELL, - - PRESIDENT.

Pensions, Prizes, Bounty and Claims of all kinds promptly collected. Soldiers disabled in the service (though but slightly) can get pension; if dead, the widow or child can get it. Most pensions can be increased. If discharged for wounds, injuries (rupture), full bounty is paid. Apply at once or you will be too late. Have had five years' experience at the front as a soldier; 11 years as Pension Agent. Letters cheerfully answered and full information given free where stamp is inclosed. Send 10c. for Bounty and Pension Laws. Please give me a trial.

Address E. S. WEEDEN, Chicago, Ill.

No charges unless claim is allowed and paid.

GRACE'S
SALVE

A VEGETABLE PREPARATION,

Invented in the 17th century by Dr. William Grace, Surgeon in King James' army. Through its agency he cured thousands of the most serious sores and wounds that baffled the skill of the most eminent physicians of his day, and was regarded by all who knew him as a public benefactor. 25 cents a box. For Sale by Druggists generally. Sent by mail on receipt of price. Prepared by SETH W. FOWLE & SONS, 86 Harrison Avenue, Boston, Mass.

PERPETUAL
SORGHUM EVAPORATOR.
$15. $20. $25.
Cheap and Durable
Send for Circulars.
Address the only Manufacturers
CHAPMAN & CO. Madison Ind.

KEEP'S SHIRTS—only one quality—The Best. Keep's Patent Partly-Made Dress Shirts can be finished as easy as hemming a Handkerchief. The very best, six for $7.00. Keep's Custom Shirts—made to measure, The very best, six for $9.00. An elegant set of genuine Gold-Plate Collar and Sleeve Buttons given with each half doz. Keep's Shirts. Keep's Shirts are delivered FREE on receipt of price in any part of the Union—no express charges to pay. Samples, with full directions for self-measurement, Sent Free to any address. No stamp required. Deal directly with the Manufacturer and get Bottom Prices. Keep Manufacturing Co., 165 Mercer St., N.Y.

HOMES IN KANSAS!

The State of Kansas, with her healthful climate, and offers great advantages to change their residence. For those wishing Cheap good grain, stock and lands, at Low Prices. tion of country and farms — Go West — with her fertile soil, abundance of pure water, to those who are about to either for health or profit. Homes we have a few fruit Farms, also raw We will give full description upon application.

CROSSMUN, WATTS & CO., Humboldt, Kas.

LADIES!
BEWARE of Imitations.

$350 A MONTH—AGENTS WANTED—36 best selling articles in the world; one sample free. Address JAY BRONSON, Detroit, Mich.

$66 a week in your own town. Terms and $5 outfit free. H. HALLETT & CO., Portland, Maine.

$55 to $77 a Week to Agents. $10 Outfit FREE. P. O. VICKERY, Augusta, Maine.

$20 a Day. HOW TO MAKE IT. Something new and salable. COE, YONGE & CO., St. Louis, Mo.

$5 to $20 per day at home. Samples worth $5 free. STINSON & CO., Portland, Maine.

AGENTS CAN MAKE $25 PER DAY selling our PATENT BEER FAUCET. Send for Circular. WORSWICK M'F'G CO., Cleveland, Ohio.

$12 A DAY at home. Agents wanted. Outfit and terms free. TRUE & CO., Augusta, Maine.

$5937 Made by 17 Agents in Jan. '77 with my 13 new articles. Samples free. Address C. M. Linington, Chicago.

REVOLVER FREE! Seven-shot revolver with box cartridges. Address J. Bown & Son, 136 & 138 Wood-st., Pittsburg, Pa.

$2500 a year to Agents. Outfit and a $25 Shot Gun free. For terms address, J. Worth & Co., St. Louis, Mo.

WANTED Traveling Salesmen. $85 a month and all expenses paid. No Peddling. Address Queen City Lamp Works, Cincinnati, O.

HOW TO MAKE $20 to $40 per week SELLING TEAS TO FAMILIES. Circulars free. THE CANTON TEA CO., 148 Chambers St., New York.

$25 PREMIUM WATCH AND CHAIN—a stem-winder. Free with every order. Outfit free. J. B. Gaylord & Co., Chicago, Ill.

$3½ MAGNETIC TIMEPIECE. Metal works. Hunter case. Sample Watch free to Agents. A. COULTER & CO., Chicago, Ill.

$400 A MONTH. AGENTS WANTED. 250 of the latest novelties. Send for Catalog. VAN & CO., Chicago.

$10 to $1,000 Invested in Wall St. Stocks makes fortunes every month. Book sent free explaining everything. Address BAXTER & CO., Bankers, 17 Wall St., N.Y.

YOUNG MEN! Learn Telegraphy here, and earn from $35 to $100 a month. Small salary while learning. Situations furnished. Address R. VALENTINE, Superintendent, Englewood, Ill.

CLOCKS E. INGRAHAM & CO.'S are superior in design and not equaled in quality, or as time-keepers. Ask your Jeweler for them. Manufactory—Bristol, Ct.

$100.00 R[illegible] HEAVY BEARD produced on a smooth face by the use of DYKES BEARD ELIXIR without injury, or will forfeit $100.00. Price by mail in sealed package, 25 cents; 3 packages only 50 cents. L. L. SMITH & CO., Palatine, Ill., Sole Agents. We caution the public against imitations.

Book-keepers, Reporters, Operators, School Teachers.
Penmen
Edited at Great Mercantile College, Keokuk, Iowa.

GUNS. THE BEST Breech and Muzzle Loading. Save 25 per cent. by buying of the Importers and Sole Agents. RUSSEL & HAYDENS, Send for price list. Jacksonville, Ill.

AWNINGS, TENTS,
Waterproof Covers, Stack Covers, Signs, Window Shades, &c. &c. MURRAY & BAKER, 100 South Desplaines st., Chicago. Send for Illustrated Price-List.

HUNT'S REMEDY
THE GREAT
KIDNEY MEDICINE

A positive remedy for Dropsy and all diseases of the Kidneys, Bladder and Urinary Organs. Hunt's Remedy is purely vegetable and prepared expressly for the above diseases. It has cured thousands. Every bottle warranted. Send to W. E. Clarke, Providence, R.I., for illustrated pamphlet. If your druggist don't have it, he will order it for you.

VEGETINE
Purifies the Blood, Renovates and Invigorates the Whole System.

Its Medical Properties are
ALTERATIVE, TONIC, SOLVENT AND DIURETIC.

Vegetine
Vegetine
Vegetine
Vegetine
Vegetine
Vegetine
Vegetine
Vegetine
Vegetine
Vegetine
Vegetine
Vegetine
Vegetine
Vegetine
Vegetine
Vegetine
Vegetine
Vegetine
Vegetine
Vegetine
Vegetine
Vegetine
Vegetine
Vegetine
Vegetine
Vegetine
Vegetine
Vegetine
Vegetine
Vegetine
Vegetine
Vegetine
Vegetine
Vegetine
Vegetine
Vegetine

Reliable Evidence.

MR. H. R. STEVENS:

Dear Sir—I will most cheerfully add my testimony to the great number you have already received in favor of your great and good medicine, VEGETINE, for I do not think enough can be said in its praise, for I was troubled over thirty years with that dreadful disease, Catarrh, and had such bad coughing spells that it would seem as though I never could breathe any more, and VEGETINE has cured me; and I do feel to thank God all the time that there is so good a medicine as VEGETINE, and I also think it one of the best medicines for coughs and weak, sinking feelings at the stomach, and advise everybody to take the VEGETINE, for I can assure them it is one of the best medicines that ever was.

MRS. L. GORE,
Cor. Magazine and Walnut Sts.,
Cambridge, Mass.

GIVES
Health, Strength, and Appetite.

My daughter has received great benefit from the use of VEGETINE. Her declining health was a source of great anxiety to all her friends. A few bottles of VEGETINE restored her health, strength and appetite.

N. H. TILDEN,
Insurance and Real Estate Agent,
No. 49 Sears' Building,
Boston, Mass.

CANNOT BE EXCELLED.

CHARLESTOWN, March 19, 1869.

H. R. STEVENS:

Dear Sir—This is to certify that I have used your "Blood Preparation" in my family for several years, and think that, for Scrofula or Cankerous Humors, or Rheumatic Affections, it cannot be excelled; and as a blood purifier or spring medicine, it is the best thing I have ever used, and I have used almost everything. I can cheerfully recommend it to any one in need of such a medicine.

Yours respectfully,
MRS. A. A. DINSMORE,
No. 19 Russell Street.

RECOMMEND IT
HEARTILY.

SOUTH BOSTON, Feb. 7, 1870.

MR. STEVENS:

Dear Sir—I have taken several bottles of your VEGETINE, and am convinced it is a valuable remedy for Dyspepsia, Kidney Complaint and General Debility of the System.

I can heartily recommend it to all suffering from the above complaints.

Yours respectfully,
MRS. MUNROE PARKER,
86 Athens Street.

Prepared by H. R. Stevens, Boston, Mass.
Vegetine is Sold by All Druggists.

SANDAL-WOOD

A positive remedy for all diseases of the Kidneys, Bladder and Urinary Organs; also, good in Dropsical Complaints. It never produces sickness, is certain and speedy in its action. It is fast superseding all other remedies. Sixty capsules cure in six or eight days. No other medicine can do this.

Beware of Imitations, for, owing to its great success, many have been offered; some are most dangerous, causing piles, &c.

DUNDAS DICK & CO.'S Genuine Soft Capsules, containing Oil of Sandalwood, sold at all drug stores. Ask for circular, or send for one to 35 and 37 Wooster street, New York.

WHEN WRITING TO ADVERTISERS, please say you saw the advertisement in this paper.

Auburn Courier.

AUBURN, INDIANA, SEPT. 13, 1877.

California O. K.

California turns up this year on the right side. The election last week resulted in a democratic victory, for they have thirty eight on joint ballot in the Legislature, which elects a democrat in place of effigy Sargeant. Good.

Hayes is at his home in Fremont, O., which he should never have left to accept a position obtained for him through fraud and treachery. He finds now that it is no fun to be a fraudulent President.

Why just see here. Maine came very near going Democratic last Monday. Several counties have been carried by the Democrats, a thing unheard of before in the State. The Republican Governor will not get much more than two thousand majority.

Niles G. Parker, Ex-State Treasurer of South Carolina, at present living in Jersey City, makes startling charges of corruption against Ex-Governors Moses, Chamberlain and Scott, United States Senator Paterson, Financial Agent Kimpton and other members of the ring, which plundered the Palmetto State of millions. Parker frankly acknowledges his own guilt in all this, since it appears by his statement that most of the stolen moneys were paid out by him in his official capacity. He is now under indictment. He professes sorrow for his crimes, and his readines to go to South Carolina for trial. His statement, if substantiated, will confirm the formal charges against Patterson, and doubtless lead to the indictment of Chamberlain. They are corroborated by voluminous of figures, dates, circumstances, &c., in which the connection of Governor Chamberlain with the fraudulent issue of bonds seems to be made clear.

The political campaign in Ohio is becoming earnest, but by no means excited. The people appear to be calm and are carefully viewing the situation. West, Garfield and Mathews are the principal Republican stumpers, while the Democrats, or Anti-Resumptionists are full as ably represented by Ewing, Payne, Pendleton and others. That the people earnestly desire the repeal of that odious and foolish enactment cannot be for a moment doubted, and it is confidently believed that they will not fail to say so at the polls in October. The fine figure, commanding appearance of Mr. Bishop appear to be making him hosts of friends wherever he goes. Some of the warmest commendations of our county ticket came from prominent Republicans who feel that it is time our county affairs were placed on an enconomical basis, and recognize the present as a suitable time to do so by electing what is universally pronounced to be one of the best tickets ever placed before the people by the Democracy of the county.—Bryan Argus.

A medium in Boston submitted to the fire test a few days ago, and it is alleged by the spiritualists that she came off victorious. Some skeptics in the audience believing that she rubbed her hands and arms with chemicals to protect them from the fire, she allowed a a preparation of alchohol and ether to be put over all the portions of her flesh submitted to the test. A kereosene lamp very hot was used. The medium grasped the nearly red hot chimney in her hands, meanwhile muttering some unintelligible words, and rubbed it over her face and lips. She then held her hands and arms in the flame until the skin was entirely blacked with the smoke. She also inhaled the flame all the while keeping up the whispering. The skeptics examined her and found that there were no marks of burning, that even the small hairs on her arms were uninjured. Her theory is that the spirits throw an invisible film about her that the fire can not penetrate. The unbelievers doubted the interposition of spirits, but admitted the immunity from any trace of burning.

Fluctuating Currency.

Did you ever think of it, that a fluctuating and uncertain currency served the rich man better than the poor? Before the rebellion a millionaire was a curiosity and a wonder among men. They were exceedingly few. Now it takes fifty millions to excite much surprise, and the fifty million men are quite as numerous as the single million men were before the exclusive paper money era. Gold gambling was wholly an institution of a paper money inflation period. Stock gambling grew mightily under its influences. When money contains within itself elements of speculation, monied men reap the profits of the speculation. A stable and sound currency is more to the poor man's interest than to the rich. The precious coins, gold and silver, furnish the only sure basis for a safe currency for the poor man. Paper money, convertible into such coin, and of equal value may be added as long as it can maintain such value. When it falls below this, the rich gain and the poor lose. When a man's note is huckstered around below par, it is the man of capital who gains, and the poor man, compelled to sell, who loses. A like result follows a public currency below par in value.

SENATOR MORTON.

Information obtained from an entirely reliable source is of a character to leave little if any hope for the recovery of Senator Morton. The condition of the distinguished Indianian is looked upon as hopeless. That his days are few on earth, seems to be the serious conclusion of those who have been at his bedside and looked upon the prostrate and suffering senator. Fortunately for his friends his mind is still clear, though conversation and articulation are difficult. It could be wished that the fullest powers of speech might be given him with his unimpaired mental faculties Not that his utterances should be given to the public unless so desired, but that friends might know the thoughts that crowd upon him as the hour of final dissolution approaches. The reviews of men and measures that are passing through the mind of a man during his closing hours who has played as conspicuous a part in public affairs as has fallen to the lot of O. P. Morton on earth would be regarded as con tributions to history. The country, or at least his friends, would like to know what he thinks of the south—of reconstruction, of the future of parties, and who he would like to have occupy his chair in the senate. Possibly all this has been talked over and that some one on a proper occasion is authorized to make known his views upon these and other topics of general concern. As the case now stands, the facts warrant the conclusion that very soon Senator Morton will fold the drapery of his couch about him and lie down—we hope to pleasant dreams.—Ind. Sentinel.

What an interesting time England is having with the potato bug. There they propose to use the law and its officers against this festive insect, and we fear its going to be a bad exchange, for the bug. This is the way they proceed: The council directs that "if the owner of, or any person having under his charge, any crop of potatoes, or other crop, or vegetable, or substance, finds, or knows to be found, thereon the Colorado beetle in any stage of existence, he shall with all practicable speed give notice of the fact to a constable of the police establishment for the place where the same is found." But the constable is not allowed to mash the beetle, or otherwise to lay voilent hands upon him; for the order proceeds: "The constable shall forthwith give notice thereof to the local authority." Still the local authority may not proceed rashly against the life or liberty of the beetle upon hearing of his presence, but "shall forthwith give notice by telegraph to the Privy Council." When the Privy Council receives this alarming intelligence it will doubtless proceed at once to swift and vigorous measures, and the wretched bug when brought before this august tribunal will be fortunate if he is allowed to choose between death by hemlock and death by the bowstring.

Death of Hon. John W. Dawson.

At his residence in Fort Wayne, Monday, September 10th, after a long and painful illness, John W. Dawson, in his 57th year, having been born Oct. 20th, 1820, in Dearborn county, in this state.

He was one of the pioneers of Fort Wayne and north-eastern Indiana, having first seen this part of the state as early as 1836. After arriving at majority, he settled for a short time in Noble county, in the practice of his profession—the law—but shortly after returned to Fort Wayne, where he continued to reside since 1843. From '53 until '64, he was sole editor and proprietor of the Fort Wayne daily and weekly Times, a paper noted for its honesty and outspoken denunciations of all wrongs, whether private or political state or national. The editor gave his paper more than a local reputation for its manly independence and fearlessness in upholding the right and condemning wrong.

In 1856, Mr. Dawson was defeated for Secretary of state on the ticket headed by Senator Morton, when first nominated for Governor. In 1861-2, he was appointed by President Lincoln, Governor of Utah Territory, which position he held for only a short time.

In politics, Mr. D. was of the school of Old Line Whigs, those who trained in the school of Webster, Clay, Fillmore Harrison and the Adams, whom he regarded almost to adoration as statesmen and patriots. And as he admired these, so he hated and denounced Bourbourism as exemplified by Cass, Buchanan, Jeff Davis and others of that class.

But he rests from his labor, valiant, strong and unyielding in his convictions of right and duty, yet sympathetic and kind of heart as a woman, tender in feeling and impulse as a child. The grave now closes over all that is mortal of one so brilliant, generous and sympathetic.

He leaves a widow but no children to mourn his death. Was a brother of the late Judge R. J. Dawson, of this county and an uncle of A. C. Dawson, J. W. and W. H. Dills, still residents of this county.

There is no controverting the fact that "Lawson's Curative" is the best, safest and surest preparation for counteracting Rheumatic diseases including Neuralgia, Nervous Headache, Tic Douloureux and Toothache, also for healing all inflammations and sores. Sold by F. E. Davenport.

Go to Davenport's for the boss five cent cigar.

Killed by Lightning.

Last Friday Mr. William Heckathorn, residing at Hudson, this county, with two of his sons, went to Waterloo with lumber. They had just started home when that storm came up in the evening and were perhaps half a mile north of town when a fatal bolt of the electric current struck Mr Heckathorn and killed him. His sons, one of whom was ahead and the other behind him, were neither of them hurt. The body was taken into the house of Mr. McKenterfer, near where the fatal stoke occured, but life was extinct. The funeral took place on Sunday afternoon, at the church near Hudson, and was very largely attended. A large family of children mostly grown up, and the estimable companion of the deceased are left to mourn this sudden bereavment. Mr. Heckathorn was a farmer in comfortable circumstances, and was esteemed a good citizen and kind nighbor.—Angola Herald.

We are now inclined to believe that the period of time generally denominated "after harvest," is somewhat mythical. Since the gathering of the golden grain in midsummer, we have patiently looked for its arrival, when a few of our subscribers who have been hard up for a year or two were to come in and square up A few have come in but they have a custom of doing so every year, and we thank them for it. We will be as thankful to all others, if they will let us have a dollar or two on subscription. Now don't think we are persistent dunner, as the Lagrange Standard says: "Let a farmer place himself in a similar business position and see if he wouldn't do the same. Suppose he raises 1,000 bushels of wheat and his neighbor should come and buy a bushel, and as the price was a small matter, only $1.50 or less, should say, I will hand you the amount in a few days; as the farmer did not want to be small about a small matter says all right and the man leaves with the wheat. Another one comes in the same way until the whole 1,000 bushels are trusted out to one thousand different persons, and none of the purchasers concerns himself about it' for it is only a small amount that he owed the farmer, and of course that would not help him any. He does not realize that the farmer has flitted away his large crop of wheat, and that its value is due him in a thousand little driblets, and that he is seriously embarrassed in his business because his debtors treat it as a small matter. But if all would pay them promptly, which they could do as well as not, it would be a very large amount to the farmer, and would enable him to carry on his business without difficulty. The above comparison is too true of the difficulties that the newspaper man has to contend.

NOTICE.

I hereby notify all persons indebted to me by note or book account that J. B. Casebeer, formerly a partner with me has now no authority whatever to receive collections on said accounts and any money paid to him after this date will receive no credit on my books.

A. R. COLLAR.

Sept. 4th, 1877.

A liberal reward will be given to any one who will inform me of the partnership refered to in the above notice of A. R. Collar. I know it was not in the practice of medicine he being only a student in my office. I can conceive of no excuse for such a barefaced falshood, only his pressing need of funds to defray expenses legally entailed by his own act a few years ago. Such an excuse would neither be creditable or legal for the collecting and expending of money belonging to me without my knowledge or consent, hence my notice forbidding payment to him.

J. B. CASEBEER.

MEEKS & WYER,

Our energetic

PLASTERS

Will do you a good job at reasonable rates. They always give satisfaction and are prompt in their work. Those having plastering to do should give them a call. no11 tf

FIFTH YEAR.

IND. ONSERVATORY OF MUSIC,

FORT WAYNE, IND.

FALL TERM COMMENCING

SEPTEMBER 11th, 1877.

Pupils attending this Conservatory can be accommodated with board at the M. E. College, at $3 per week.

no34tf S. B. MORSE, Principal.

READ THE FOLLOWING

Shearer & Wilson,

HAVING ERECTED A

STEAM PLANING MILL

Are now prepared to do all kinds of

Plaining,
Surfacing,
Matching Flooring
Scroll Work,
Mouldings,
Re-Sawing, &c.

DOORS AND SASH!

We are adding facilities for the manufacture of doors and sash to order, and will give special attention to this branch.

CONTRACTORS.

We also make a specialty of contracting for the erection of residences, barns and other buildings, and guarantee good work at reasonable figures. Mill on South Jackson Street, Auburn, Indiana.

SHEARER & WILSON.

Sheriff's Sale.

By virtue of an execution to me directed from the Clerk of the DeKalb Circuit Court, in a cause wherein the Bank of New Carlisle is plaintiff and Isaac Diehl and Solomon Hose are defendants, requiring me to make the sum of Two Hundred and Sixty-Eight dollars and Sixty-Eight cents, with interest on said judgment and costs, I will expose at public sale, to the highest bidder, on

SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER, 8th, 1877,

Between the hours of 10 o'clock A. M., and 4 o'clock P. M. of said day, at the door of the Court House, in DeKalb county, Indiana, the rents and profits for a term not exceeding seven years of the following real estate to-wit:

The north-west quarter of the south-east quarter and the south half of the south-east quarter and the east half of the east half of the south west quarter, all in section [illegible] township thirty-four (34), north of range fifteen [15] east, in DeKalb county, Indiana.

If such rents and profits will not sell for a sufficient sum to satisfy said decree, interests and costs, I will at the same time and place expose to public sale the fee simple of said real estate or so much thereof as may be sufficient to discharge said decree, interest and costs.

Said sale will be made without any relief whatever from valuation or appraisement laws.

J. C. St.CLAIR, Sheriff.

J. W. Rickel, Attorney for plaintiff.

Auburn, Aug. 8, A. D. 1877. P. f. $12.00

This sale has been postponed to September 22nd, 1877.

Sheriff's Sale.

By virtue of an execution and fee bill to me directed from the Clerk of the DeKalb Circuit Court, in a cause wherein Robert Work is plaintiff and Hiram Byers is defendant, requiring me to make the sum of Eighty Dollars and Twenty-Five Cents, with interest on said judgment and costs, I will expose at public sale to the highest bidder, on

SATURDAY, OCTOBER 6th, 1877,

Between the hours of 10 o'clock A. M. and 4 o'clock P. M. of said day, at the door of the Court House of DeKalb county, Indiana, the rents and profits for a term not exceeding seven years, of the following real estate, to-wit:

Lot number fifteen [15] in McFarland's addition to the town of Auburn, DeKalb county, Indiana.

If such rents and profits will not sell for a sufficient sum to satisfy said judgment. Interest and costs, I will at the same time and place, expose at public sale the fee simple of said real estate, or so much thereof as may be sufficient to discharge said judgment, interest and costs

Sale will be made without any relief whatever from valuation and appraisement laws.

J. C. St.CLAIR, Sheriff.
By Thos. D. Gross Deputy.

Auburn, Indiana, September 11th, 1877.

Pr. fee $6.00.

Sheriff's Sale,

By virtue of an execution to me directed from the Clerk of the DeKalb Circuit Court, in a cause wherein Sumner K. Randall is plaintiff, and Charles G. Smith and Daniel W. Smith are defendants requiring me to make the sum of Ninety-eight Dollars and Seventy-Two cents with interest on said judgment and costs. I will expose at public sale to the highest bidder, on

SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 29th, 1877.

Between the hours of 10 o'clock a. m., and 4 o'clock p. m., of said day at the door of the Court House of DeKalb County, Indiana, the rents and profits for a term not exceeding seven years of the following real estate to-wit:

Lot number forty-five [45] in Kuhlman's addition to the town of Auburn, DeKalb county Indiana.

If such rents and profits will not sell for sufficient sum to satisfy said judgment interests and costs, I will at the same time and place, expose at public sale the fee simple of said real estate, or so much thereof as may be sufficient to discharge said judgment interests and costs.

Sale will be made without any relief whatever from valuation or appraisement laws.

JOHN C. St. CLAIR, Sheriff.
By Thos. D. Gross, Deputy.

D. D. Moody, Attorney for plaintiff.

Auburn, Indianan, Sept. 4th, 1877.

Pr. fee $8.50.

Sheriff's Sale.

By virtue of a certified copy of a decree to me directed from the Clerk of the DeKalb Circuit Court in a cause wherein Mason M. Bowen is plaintiff and Gidlan Cogedill, Joseph Depew, Abraham and Dinna Depew are plaintiffs, requiring me to make the sum of four hundred and sixty-one (461) dollars and fifty-four (54) cents, with interest on said decree and costs I will expose at public sale to the highest bidder, on

SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 22nd, 1877

Between the hours of 10 o'clock a. m., and 4 o'clock p. m. at the door of the Court House of DeKalb County Indiana, the rents and profits for a term not exceeding seven years of the following real estate, to-wit:

Lot number one [1] in Tappin's addition to the town or village of Corunna, DeKalb county, Indiana.

If such rents and profits will not sell for a sufficient sum to satisfy said decree, interest and costs, I will at the same time and place expose at public sale the fee simple of said real estate, or so much thereof as may be sufficient to discharge said judgment, interest and costs.

Sale will be made without any relief whatever from valuations appraisement laws.

J. C. St. CLAIR, Sheriff.

A. A. Chaplin, Att'y. for Plaintiff.

Auburn, Ind., Aug. 29, 1877.

P. fee $8.50

BILL BRITTON

THE DRAY MAN

Will attend promptly to all orders for

DRAYING AND HAULING.

Rattling good teams and reasonable charges.

1877. 1877.

GRAND OPENING

OF

CARPETS,

ROOT & COMPANY.

Will display this week an elegant and choice assortment of extr, superfine.

INGRAINE.

30c, 40c, 50c, 60c, 75c, 85c, $1.00 per yard. Tapestry Brussels. English Body

BRUSSELS,

$1.00, $1.10, $1.15, $1.25, $1.35, $1.50, per yrrd. Also are opening new.

OIL CLOTHS,

Curtain Materials, Mattings, Rugs, Stair Rods, Upholstery Goops etc, etc. All at uniform low prices.

Root & Company,

46 and 48 Calhoun-st, Fort Wayne Ind

DR. J. NEWTON SMITH'S

HAIR RESTORATIVE

POSITIVELY RESTORES HAIR TO BALD HEADS.

SMITH'S
Is not a hair dye.
SMITH'S
Does not contain poison.
SMITH'S
Restores hair to the head.
SMITH'S
Checks hair from falling.
SMITH'S
Makes hair grow six feet.

SMITH'S
Makes whiskers grow.
SMITH'S
Takes out all dandruff.
SMITH'S
Is 1st class hair dressing.
SMITH'S
Is admired by all ladies.
SMITH'S
Is death to all wigs.

This is the only Hair Restorative manufactured expressly to promote the growth of hair, and to arrest its falling out.

Thousands of men who were bald-headed, now have a full suit of hair, and one lady in Kentucky, who was once bald, now has flowing hair SIX FEET in length produced by the use of Dr. J. Newton Smith's Hair Restorative.

Send for positive, unmistakable, and undeniable home proof in pamphlet form, free to all.

It stops the hair from falling out, at once cleanses the scalp from all dandruff, and is a highly perfumed and elegant hair dressing, much admired by the ladies.

Price $[illegible] for 3 bottles, expressed on receipt of price. Call on your druggist, or address, J. F. [illegible] & Co., Louisville, Ky.

Sheriff's Sale.

By virtue of an execution to me directed from the Clerk of the DeKalb Circuit Court, in a cause wherein Singer Manufacturing Co., is plaintiff, and Andrew Dailey is defendant, requiring me to make the sum of Ninety-Three Dollars and Thirty cents, with interest on said judgment and costs, I will expose at public sale, to the highest bidder, on

SATURDAY SEPTEMBER, 29th, 1877

between the hours of 10 o'clock a. m., and 4 o'clock p. m. of said day, at the door of the Court house of DeKalb county, Indiana, the rents and profits for a term not exceeding seven years, of the following real estate, to-wit:

A part of lot number twenty-eight [28] in the original plat of the town of Auburn, DeKalb Co., Indiana, bounded as follows, to-wit: Commencing at the south-west corner of said lot, and running north seventy-two [72] feet, thence east seventeen and one-half [17½] feet thence south seventy-two [72] feet, thence west seventeen and one-half [17½] feet to the place of beginning.

If such rents and profits will not sell for a sufficient sum to satisfy said judgment, interest and costs, I will at the same time and place, expose at public sale the fee simple of said real estate, or so much thereof as may be sufficient to discharge said judgment, interest and costs.

Sale will be made without any relief whatever from valuation and appraisement laws.

J. C. StCLAIR, Sheriff,
Thos. D. Gross, Dept.

Rose & Hartman, Attorneys for plaintiff.

Aubur Indiana, Sept. 4th, 1877.

Pr. fee $9.75.

Sheriff's Sale.

By virtue of an execution to me directed from the Clerk of the DeKalb Circuit Court in a cause wherein Wright, Taylor & Co are plaintiffs and Wm. I. Jones and Adolphus G. Jones (R. B.) are defendents, requiring me to make the sum of three hundred and two [302] dollars and twenty-six [26] cents, with interest on said judgment and costs, I will expose at public sale to the highest bidder, on

SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 22nd 1877

Between the hours of 10 o'clock A. M., and 4 o'clock P. M. of said day, at the door of the Court House in DeKalb county, Indiana, the rents and profits for a term not exceeding seven years, of the following real estate to-wit:

Part of the east half of the north-west quarter of section twelve 12, township thirty-four [34], north of range fourteen [14] east, bounded by a line commencing at a point where the south boundry line of the right of way of the Lake Shore & Michigan Southern railroad crosses the west boundry line of the said east half of the said north west quarter, and running thence south to the south west corner of the north east fourth of the north west quarter of said section twelve, (12) thence east twenty five [25] rods thence north parallel with the west line of the south boundry line of said right of way, thence along said boundry line of said right of way to the place of beginning, containing seven acres of land.

If such rents and profits will not sell for a sufficient sum to satisfy said decree, interest and costs, I will at the same time and place expose to public sale the fee simple of said real estate or so much thereof as may be sufficient to discharge said judgment and costs.

Said sale will be made without any relief whatever from valuation or appraisement laws.

J. C. StCLAIR, Sheriff.

Rose & Hartman, Atty's. for plaintiff.

Auburn, Ind. Aug. 22nd 1877.

Pr. fee $11.50.

EAGLE MILLS

FLOUR, CORN MEAL, FEED, &c.

The reputation of the Eagle Mills, its excellent facilities for making good flour together with the advantages it possesses in the way of improved machinery enables the proprietor to announce that he is now prepared to meet all demands in the way of custom work. The Eagle Mill brand of flour will be found on hand at reasonable rates. Orders delivered in any part of town free of charge. P. W. SILVERS.

Ice For Sale.

Messrs. Houston & Co., having put up several hundred tons of most splendid ice, are now ready to supply our citizens for the summer at reasonable rates.—With their delivery wagon they will put it down at your door in any quantity you may desire. tf

HOW

Is it that the New York Store sells goods so much cheaper than their neighbors is a question often asked. It is because they sell for cash and

DO

Not have to sustain losses from bad debts, besides it inables them to pay cash for goods and get the discounts which make quite an item to

YOU

As consumers. It also enables them to keep all the new and desirable styles and novelties, by being always ready to take hold of them without delay, and it is a well establishdd fact which all

KNOW

That there is no one concern more careful in selecting good and desirable goods than the New York Store.

IT

Being the object of the New York Store to give entire satisfaction to all their customers.

G. H. FORKNER & CO., Prop's.

GAZE ON THE BOOT UPSIDE DOWN

$10,000.00 WORTH OF

BOOTS AND SHOES

—TO BE SOLD—

25 Per Cent. CHEAPER

Than any House in DeKalb county. If you don't believe it, read our price list and then come in and examine the goods.

Ladies 12 thread serge polish		$ 90c
" 16 " " "		1.15c
" 18 " " "		1.40c
" side lace shoes	1 25	2.50c
" goat buskins "	70	95c
" serge " "	50	75c
" three button working shoes	1.25	1.60c
Mens 2 buckle plow shoes		1.40c
" brogans		1.20
" Solid comfort plow shoes made to order		2.00
" Calf sewed boots	3.00	4.75c
" " pegged "	3.00	4.50c
Boys fine boots		2.25c

—SIGN OF THE—

BOOT UPSIDE DOWN,

Next door to J. L. Davis' Hardware store, Auburn, Indiana.

W. J. USTIN & CO.

Auburn Courier.

Local and Miscellaneous.

THE AUBURN MARKET.

—Corn 55c.
—Oats 22c.
—Eggs 8c.
—Butter 13c.
—Potatoes 40c
—Live Turkeys 5c.
—Clover Seed $5 50.
—Live Chickens 4c
—Wheat $1.16 @ 1,18
—The COURIER $2.00 a year.

CHURCH DIRECTORY.

M. E. CHURCH,

Rev. J. E. Ervin, pastor. Services each Sabbath at 10½ o'clock A. M. and 7½ P. M. Sabbath school at 9 A. M

PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH,

Rev. Henry Johnson, pastor. Services each Sabbath at 10½ o'clock A. M., and 7½ P. M. Sabbath school at 9 A. M.

BAPTIST CHURCH,

Rev. E. L. Sanders pastor. Services each Sabbath at 10½ o'clock A. M., and 7½ P. M. Sabbath school at 9 A. M.

ENGLISH LUTHERAN CHURCH,

Rev. L. Rice, pastor. Services every two weeks forenoon and afternoon alternately. Sabbath school each Sabbath at 2½ o'clock P. M.

GERMAN METHODIST CHURCH,

Rev. Chas. Treuschel, pastor. Services each Sabbath at 10½ o'clock A. M. and 7½ P. M. alternately. Sabbath school at 2 P. M.

GERMAN LUTHERAN CHURCH,

Rev. Bohlman, pastor. Services every Sabbath at 10 o'clock P. M.

GERMAN REFORM CHURCH,

Rev. P. Ruhl, pastor. Services every other Sabbath at 10½ o'clock A. M. Sabbath school at 9 A. M.

CATHOLIC CHURCH,

Rev. R. Young, pastor. Services every Sabbath at 8 and 10 o'clock A. M., alternately.

Try the bread of the City Bakery. tf.

Mr. Gibson now runs the City Bakery. tf.

Finecut chewing at the little cigar store on the corner. tf.

Tom Gross rejoices in the arrival of a seven pound boy.

Cloverseed is now coming in, and is now worth $5.50 per bushel.

The Cass county fair, at Logansport, comes off this week.

Smoking tobacco at the little cigar store on the corner. tf.

Berry Lowrey continues at the old book stand with Willis &Co.

Go to the little cigar store on the corner for a good 5 cent cigar. tf.

Euchre players now say Schipka, when they can't make it.

Mrs. Raut died very suddenly last Monday of something like heart disease.

When is that flour going to sail on North Main Street. It is marked "For Sail."

Mr. and Mrs. Swinctord left last Saturday for Chicago and the northwest.

Col. John Casebeer, of Lagrange was in town yesterday, looking as dashing as ever.

Our friend Lewis of the lumber yard has over thanks for several splendid cabbages.

We are obliged to G. C. Ralston, our enterprising grocey merchant for a basket of nice peaches.

Mr. and Mrs. Lewis, parents of Miss Mary Lewis, who has been very ill, arrived here last Sunday.

Fine lunch served at the counter of the City Bakery by Mr. Gibson. Fresh pies, cakes, &c. always on hand. tf.

Thistles require radical treatment to remove them, and so do Boils and Pimples. Dr. Bull's Blood Mixture is a radical blood searcher, curing all skin eruptions. Sold by F. E. Davenport.

Brigham young left a will dividing about two millions of property between seventeen wives and fifty-eight children

J. T. Bryer's theater company will appear at Ensley's Hall Friday night in the Lady of Lyons Don't forget.

Clyde Moore has been to Cincinnatti and had an operation performed for strabismus of the eyes, which was successful.

We were glad to see a big trade at the popular grocery store of Coop Ralston's, last week. He keeps every thing, and sells cheap.

Several horses are now being fitted on the track at Waterloo, for the races to come off during the fair, the first week in October.

Davenport the druggist has a trade dollar, which he will exhibit free of charge. Manage to get some distance off when you ask him to show it.

"Pic-nic sandwiches" are the latest. "They are made," says an exchange, "by taking a good-looking fellow and putting him between two jealous girls."

The Russians are making up for some of their past blunders by splendid fighting lately, and a great victory is accorded them in the taking of Plevne last week.

Private Dalzell held a soldiers' reunion at Marietta, Ohio, last week at which the President and two members of his cabinet were present and made speeches.

Mrs. Mattie Birdsall, who has been a guest of her sister, Mrs. Austin, during the summer, returned to Indianapolis last Friday, leaving many friends here to regret her absence.

The Indiana soldiers' orphans' home, at Knightstown, was destroyed by fire last Saturday. The children were removed without loss of life. Damages, $100,000; insurance, $20,000.

Our friend Mr. Gibson at the City Bakery has now exclusive control of the baking department, and is ready with increased facilities to supply the demand for good bread. tf.

There is some complaint about the delay in putting down the street crossings on the east side of Jackson street. Mud and wet grass are not very agreeable substitutes for a walk.

The fair at Fort Wayne promises to be a good one, notwithstanding the weather. To-day and to-morrow will see a large crowd in attendance if the weather is favorable.

Owing to sickness of Mrs. Harland and one or two others the play of Uncle Tom's Cabin was not presented as announced. It will be forthcoming, however, as soon as the people are able to play.

Mr. Joseph P. Hale's pianoforte factory, which was destoryed by fire in New York a few days ago, is said to have turned out a hundred instruments every week. And yet who ever heard of a Hale pianoforte?

J. J. Kamm, a former postmaster at Fort Wayne, died suddenly last Thursday, although he has been ailing for some time. Mr. Kamm was a genial, clever gentleman, and a politician of considerable influence in Allen county.

Miss Laura Fair has just purchased a fine new Emerson Piano of Mike Long. The Emerson seems to be taking the lead in this locality, and they are really the best toned instrument in the market.

Suffering will exhibit its presence by the cries of the baby, and should be removed by the prompt use of that highly recommended remedy—Dr. Bull's Baby Syrup. It is free from Morphia. Price 25 cents. Sold by F. E. Davenport.

Mrs. Chas. Baker.

Would respectfully solicits washing and sewing and desires the patronage of our citizens. Washing for young men, and plain sewing perferred. She is a worthy lady in needy circumstances, and our citizens should come to her relief by giving her the employment she desires.

The Michigan State fair comes off at Jackson next week. No other point in the west gets up better fairs than Jackson. They offer very liberal premiums, and their facilities for exhibition are unsurpassed. Railroads carry articles free, and only half fare for passengers.

Fashion journals report that broad gauge gaiters of the style worn in the time of James I, are coming in use. "Madam," said a gentleman to a lady who accidently dropped one while passing down street, "You're loosing you're dog collar.

We are informed by Mr. Kennedy, of Waterloo, that poke root, is a good preventive and cure for hog cholera. Take and bruise a quantity of it and put it in the swill and feed it to them until a thorough physic is obtained. He claims it to be infallible.

Senator Conkling does not hesitate to declare publicly that Tilden was legally elected President. He says there may have been intimidation in some parts of the South, "but not of a sort to vitiate the result;" that "the election was as fair as elections are apt to be."

We understand that the Garrett Bank is now open for the transaction of a general banking business. Our business men will find this a great convenience, as money can be sent through the banks safer and at lower rates then by express or any other way.—Herald.

The great publishing house of Frank Leslie, of New York, has made an assignment The fall in real estate, the hard times and the resumption act, are the causes. And yet the President is traveling over the country pleasantly enjoying himself, while hundreds of men are being thrown out of work.

Mr. Lew Bowers returned from an extensive visit to Kansas last Saturday. He is well pleased with the country, and reports everything flourishing in that section. He owns land in Anderson county, and seems to look upon the investment as a good one. We are obliged to him for several peaches from that county which for beauty, size and flavor are seldom excelled.

Mr. Willis and brother, the reliable book merchants, of Waterloo, have purchased C. P. Houser's interest in that line of business at this place, and will continue the trade more extensively than before. Mr. Houser will continue in the school furniture trade. We wish the new firm every success.

We are glad to know that Prof: Tice has an explanation to offer, for his failure to guess the weather correctly. He says, "that the failure of one or two of his weather predictions led him to suspect the existence of other moons and now that the satellites of Mars have been discovered he will hit the weather on the head every time."

We could not help admiring the handsome court yard at Bryan, Ohio, the other day. It was in such beautiful contrast to our own. We do hope there is enterprise about the Commissioners sufficient to make some improvement in this direction. A few trees for this year is all that is needed.

The Stuben County agricultural association will hold its fair the week after the fair at Waterloo. Our neighbors are struggling manfully to make these occasions interesting to all, and though the organization is still in its infancy they are meeting with good success. We acknowledge the recept of a complimentary.

Cunningham Voorhees says he has a sure cure for hog disease, and offers $5 for every case which he cannot cure. It is as follows: For one dozen hogs, 2 ounces of antimony, quarter pound cayenne peper. Throw hog on the back and pour preparation into mouth with a spoon. He says he has tried this remedy in a number of cases and has not failed to effect a cure in a solitary instance.—[Ligonier Banner.

The excursion to Chicago last Tuesday was patronized by about 25 of our citizens. It was a most delightful trip to all. The exposition is very attractive, and everybody should see it. It is not expensive with the excursion rate down to $3. Mr. Morse, of Garrett, accompanied the excursion, and proved a pleasant, genial companion.

The Sunday school pic-nic, which was announced for August 23rd, near Zion's Lutheran church, about two miles south of Corunna, was postponed on account of the rain. Mr. Treesh writes us that another day has been selected, but fails to give us the date. Revs. Ward, Peddycord, Rice, Holmes, Lowman and others are expected to be present and make addresses.

BARN BURNED.—At about 6 o'clock Friday evening, lightning struck the barn of Amzi Myers, in Franklin township, and it was set on fire and totally destroyed. The barn was a frame, 36x56 feet, and was insured in the American of Chicago, but for what amount we have not learned. The farm was occupied by Billy Brown, as tenant, and he lost six acres of oats and a horse—one of Billy's valuable trading animals. He was not insured and his loss is a serious one.—[Waterloo Press.

Sunday School Excursion.

Arrangements are being made to give an excursion to North Manchester, on the Eel River railroad, in which all of the Sunday schools of the county may participate. Next Saturday week, the 22nd, it will take place, the train starting from Butler. The fare will be put down very low, and it is hoped a large number will be on hand. Mr. Meese, of this place, is interesting himself in the matter.

It is being claimed by several persons that Osman Pash, the hero of Plevna, is an American by the name of Clay Crawford, of Kentucky. A mistake sure. Its Joe Loveland. We have not seen Joe. for a month, and from his wonderful facility of travel, we are sure its him. His being a correspondent of the COURIER, has had its advantage in getting him the position.

The Auburn club went to Kendallville Tuesday, and beat the club of that place in a game of base ball, in one hour forty-five minutes. It was a close score. 12 to 11, and both clubs played well. There were ten white washes in the game, fairly divided between the two clubs. Hank Long, of the Standard, was particularly delighted with the game. Cigars.

No one can rightly estimate how much they can do in advancing the interests of the town in which they reside Persistency accomplishes a good deal. Here is a citizen, who by a well directed effort, has added a gross to our population, and the cry is still they come. Let there be a general advance along the whole line.

The Spencerville club came up on last Friday to play a return game, but would not do so unless they were permitted to use two members of the Garrett club to fill their nine. Our boys refused to play upon such conditions and there was no game. While our boys were techically right, we believe they could have made a good score as it was, and we would like to have seen a game played. We hope our neighbors will be able to give the boys a good whirl yet.

Important Notice.

The New York Store wishes it distinctly understood that they will not allow themselves undersold by any other merchant or merchants. They do not want their customers spirited away by the over exertions upon the part of other competitors no matter what the inducements are. Recolect the New York Store is ready to meet them, and when you get the prices of others be sure to go and see the prices at the New York Store before making your purchas. It will pay you.

G. H. FORKNER & Co.
Proprietors.

Our fellow townsman, Mr. J. H. Ehlers, went to Kendallville last Sabbath. This is the first time John has been out of town since seventeen hundred and —no, eighteen hundred and sixty-six, in fact since the war. For eleven years he has remained steadfastly at his post, and with his wonderful knowledge of chemistry, prepared specifics as a panacea for the ills of this locality. For eleven years the outer world has been ignored, while in his quiet labratory, mortar and pestle have held full sway. No outside attraction has equaled that within. Circuses have been as naught, excursions have passed unheeded and even a game of base ball failed to seduce him from his labor. For an industrious, attentive persevering citizen, Mr. Ehlers has not his equal in the county.

The Sands House is the best house in Chicago for the price, $2 a day. They set a good table, and their beds and rooms are elegant. It is close to the Baltimore depot and adjacent to the prominent business points of the city. Here is a bill of fare for dinner:

SOUP.—Mock Turtle, Julian.

FISH.—Broiled white, Sauce a la Maitre d' Hotel.

BOILED.—Leg of Mutton, Caper Sauce Corn Beef and Cabbage, Tongue, Ham.

ROAST.—Ribs of Beef, Mutton, Ham, Champagne Sauce.Loin of Pork, Lamb, Mint Sauce, Loin of Beef.

COLD DISHES.—Tongue, Mutton, Corned Beaf, Ham.

ENTREES.—Sweetbreads, Larded, a la Financier, Calves Brains, Breaded and Fried, Tomato Sauce. Breast of Spring Lamb Broiled, with Green Peas, Chicken Pie, Baked family style, Fried Cream a la Parisian, Baked Pork and Beans.

VEGETABLES.—New Potatoes, Cucumbers, Beets, Browned Potatoes, Boiled Rice, New Turnips, Asparagus, String Beans.

RELISHES.—Cheese, Pickled Beets, French Mustard, Horseradish, Tomato Catsup, Worchestershire Sauce, Crystal Lake Pickels, Halford sauce.

PASTRY.—Green Apple Pie, Strawberry Shortcake, Parisian Cake, Raspberry pie, English Plum pudding, Brandy Sauce, Charlotte Ruse, Lady Fingers.

DESSERT.—Filberts, Almonds, Pecans Brazil Nuts, English Walnuts, Vanilla Ice Cream, Crackers and Cheese, Tea, Coffee.

C. P. Houser has abandoned the school book and stationery trade and hereafter will give his attention to the furnishing of schools with desks and all kinds of apparatises. Office with Willis & Co.

Custom-made kip boots for $3.85, at the Boot Upside Down.

NEIGHBORHOOD NEWS.

CORUNNA.

The gradual advance in the price of wheat has had a tendency to call in a considerable quantity during the past ten days. The receipts will average probably two car loads per day. As the present time is the busy season with the farmer, there has been a slight falling off in receipts over last month. We quote prices yesterday in wheat at $1.22 for No. 1; oats, white, 26c., mixed do, 22@25c.; eggs, 12c., butter, 13½c., hides green, 5c., cured, 8c.

It will take a more reasonable liar than Joe Loveland to make the public believe Waterloo is not getting the lion's share of the wheat.—[Waterloo Press.

We dislike to multiply words over a matter that admits of no controversy—more do we dislike to be called a liar when we make a truthful statement. We could reply by calling Mr. Baxter a gentleman, and that would be a horrible lie, but we shall not. In a previous issue we gave the amount of grain in wheat, oats and corn, shipped from Corunna station for the year '76 and '77, as taken from the R. R. Company's freight books. We herewith again submit the statement, together with the account for the past 50 days: Number of lbs of wheat, from July 15th, 1876 to July 15th, 1877, 3,721,105. Number lbs. of wheat received from July 15th, 1877, to Sept. 7th, 1,393,910. We repeat what we said in a former issue, that until the breaking up of the "ring" and the appointment of a new agent at Waterloo, farmers shunned that market. It is true wheat is being bought there at present, but we are confident that the receipts will not pan out with Corunna. Let us hear from Waterloo officially—we want no off-hand statement from the Press—and then the reader can judge as to who is the greatest liar in the case, Loveland or Baxter. Charley, show up or shut up.

While at Fremont, Ohio, the other day, by the courtesy of General Superintendent J. H. Burgoon, we took a ride over the Lake Erie & Louisville Railroad, for the first time since the extension of the road to the Indiana line. By the Lake Shore prompt connections are made at Fremont with the L. E. & L. for the north, and at Burgoon Station connections are made for the north and south with the Tiffin & Toledo road at Fostoria with the Baltimore & Ohio, and at Lima with the Dayton & Michigan. When once completed to Huron, making connections with the Wheeling road, which will be done at no distant day, the Lake Erie will have become one of the prominent railway lines in Ohio.

We notice that Huron, O., has made considerable progress in the past four years. With a second railroad and harbor improvements, the place is rightfully taking on city airs. A very creditable paper called the Review, is edited by J. L. Sweeney, with whom we enjoyed a pleasant call. But the bright particular star of the village is A. H. Winchell, Esq., of the firm of Wickham & Co., in the fish, lumber, flour and lime trade We know that it was the star that piloted your correspondent from the depot to the city on a starless and stormy night, and for this and other favors we acknowledge ourself indebted until we shall meet again. We had not landed in town more than half an hour before we met Sherm. Hollister, all the way from Auburn, who claimed that he ran down for a little fun in the way of cat fishing.

The political Caldron is boiling in Ohio, and especially in Sandusky county the contest is growing red hot. Hayes will be at Freemont on the 15th when the re-union of his old regiment takes place, and great preparations are being made for a great "blow out." Following the example of Hayes, the Republicans at their county convention week before last, nominated a Democrat for Sheriff, and though formerly something of a leader of the German element in the northern part of the county, his defeat is insured by at least 1,000. The signs of the times point to the election of Bishop over West for Governor this fall by a majority that will silence the Radicals in Ohio for the next ten years, and probably forever.

When, in giving our customary market report we chanced to touch upon certain former crooked tiansactions in grain at Waterloo, we did not anticipate that the slumbering giasticutus of the Press could be so thoroughly aroused as to give your correspondent the lie direct. Now let us remind our pugnacious brother that there is such a thing as the trituration process, and that for similar reckless remarks the remains of weightier men than the redoubtable Charles K. B. have found their way into a cigar box, been taken out in the glooming and started on the road to the happy hunting grounds.

There is to be a congressman chosen this fall from the Toledo district, and the Democracy have an easy road to victory if they only start out on the course aright. We should like to see chosen as their standard-bearer in that district Dr. W. W. Jones, the present Mayor of Toledo. The position taken by that gentleman in the late strike has won for himself the lasting gratitude and admiration of the law-abiding and respectable class of that community, besides he has an extensive knowledge of our National affairs. Trot out Doctor Jones and you will see the radicals hunt their holes.

We learn of a serious accident by a runaway team at Stone's Corners, in Fairfield, on last Wednesday. As Mr. H. Smith and young I. V. Shipe were sitting on the water-tank wagon getting ready to leave the premises after the day's threshing, the horses started on the run throwing them off in such a manner that the former had three of his ribs broken, and the latter received a broken leg At latest accounts Mr. Smith was in a critical condition.

Joe Tarr, the Baker, has swopped the old family horse for a span of brindle ponies, nett weight; 825 lbs. His uncle Bill Adams suggests that all Joe needs now is a "No Humbug" cigar box duly stalled, in which to winter the rats over. Bill is rather severe on his Wood county "nevy."

Our friend James Carpenter, the Pittsburgh Painter and Grainer, is the 'boss' workman. Jim is a deserving young man and we are pleased to learn that he is meeting with success in business.

Three more of our citizens, Messrs. Masters, Brand and DeVore, took up their line of march last week for Arkansas, to found a pemanent home in the southwestern part of that State.

There are more cases of ague and chill fever in this neighborhood this season than has been known for a number of years.

Fourteen hundred bushels of wheat were recipted for a single firm in this place Saturday before last.

Our merchants are stocking up in anticipation of a brisk fall trade.

LOVELAND.

Commissioners' Proceedings.

The county Commissioners met Monday, Sept. 3rd, and transacted the following business:

A petition by Wm. Carr and others, for a road in Jackson township. Viewers appointed, W. L. Smith, Wm. Grube and John Shaffer, to meet Nov. 1st.

A petition by F. Gfeller and others, for a highway in Smithfield township, Viewers appointed, Jacob Myers, Henry McClish and Edwin Ervin, to meet Nov. 1st.

A petition by J. N. Chamberlain and others, for a change of road in Smithfield township. Viewers appointed, J. J. VanAuken, S. Tarney, Jr. and John Carper.

Peter Behler, and A Theinel, of Garrett and J. D. Williamson, of Corunna, were granted licenses to sell liquors.

G. F. Greenwood, of Franklin township, was appointed a student to Purdue University.

A petition by J. M. Shoudel and others, for an appropriation to bridge and ditch a road in Smithfield township Granted, Com. Duncan to superintend the work.

Mr. Duncan was also authorized to build a bridge in Smithfield township, on road from Fairfield Center to Jones' Corners.

Mr. Blair was authorized to build a bridge in Concord township.

A petition by O. H. Widney, for an appropriation for a bridge in Concord township. Granted. Com. Blair to superintend the work.

After allowing sundry bills the Board adjourned to meet Sept. 24th, 1877.

Buggies For Sale.

I am offering several new, well made buggies both double and single, at very reasonable rates They are of my own manufacture, and warrante for two years. I will sell them on one year time. Please call at my blacksmith shop & examine them. JAMES ANDERSON

Western Lands for Sale

One section of land in Montgomery county, Kansas, near Coffeyville, on the Leavenworth, Lawrence and Galveston railroad. Partly improved, 80 acres good timber, balance prairie land. Will be so d in 40 or 80 acre tracts. Apply to Altenburg & Lockwood, Auburn, Indiana, for particulars and abstract of land.
June 7, 1877. no 21-3m.

Hand-made boots for $3.50, stoga boots for $2.00 at the Boot Upside Down.

NEW GOODS

ARIVING DAILY!

AT THE

STAR CLOTHING HOUSE!

SAM, PETE & MAX, STAR CLOTHING HOUSE, FT. WAYN

AUBURN COURIER.

THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 13, 1877.

THE NEWS CONDENSED.

THE EAST.

At Pittsburgh, Pa., last week, three strikers were found guilty of contempt for interfering with the running of trains on the Central railroad of New Jersey, after the same had passed into the hands of a receiver appointed by the court. They were sentenced to pay the costs of prosecution and a fine of $100 and undergo ninety days' imprisonment.

A little boy supposed to be the missing Charley Ross was taken by the Sheriff of Clarke county, Ohio, to Germantown, Pa. There was much excitement in the town over the arrival of the child, and a great crowd [illegible] Ross mansion to get a view of him. Many of the neighbors who remembered Charley were firmly of the opinion that the lost boy had at last been recovered, but Mr. and Mrs. Ross, while admitting that the Ohio lad bore a strong resemblance of their child, were positive that he was not Charley.

A destructive conflagration visited the city of New York on the 3d inst. The extent of the fire, the immediate danger in which it involved many people, and the feverish excitement that prevailed, gave rise to many wild reports of a terrible loss of life, which were not corrected for many hours. Only two persons were killed, and some half a score injured. The fire began in J. P. Hale's piano factory, an old frame structure, and, owing to the scarcity of the water supply, spread so rapidly that in a very short time eighty buildings were destroyed. The burned structures were mostly factories and tenement-houses, and the occupants barely had time to escape with their lives. The total loss of property is estimated at $400,000.

THE WEST.

A Salt Lake dispatch says the government of the Mormon church has passed into the hands of the Twelve Apostles, ten of whom were present at the funeral of Young. Two of them (Joseph F. Smith and Orson Pratt) are in England. It is not likely there will be another President of the church appointed for some time.

A sad calamity occurred in Cincinnati one day last week. An excavation below the foundation of a dwelling-house caused it to tumble down. Three persons were killed, one fatally wounded, and three or four others severely injured.

The obsequies of Brigham Young, at Salt Lake City, were remarkably common-place, considering the eminence of the man in the community where he lived and died. The body was inclosed in a plain redwood coffin, and was borne to the grave by the employes of the late President. The cortege was preceded by a band and followed by the family, the different orders of the priesthood and the adherents, all on foot.

A national reunion and encampment of volunteer soldiers and sailors of the late war—people who fought on both sides—was held last week at Marietta, O., under the auspices of the irrepressible Private Dalzell. There was a good attendance, and a good time generally. Conciliatory speeches were made by ex-Federal and ex-Confederate officers.

THE SOUTH.

The town of Paris, Tex., was recently visited by a destructive conflagration. Ten blocks in the business part of the town were consumed, involving a loss of a million or more dollars.... L. Cass Carpenter, late Collector of Internal Revenue for South Carolina, has been indicted at Columbia for forgery.

Robert James, Samuel Goodrich and James Simmons were taken from the jail and hung by a mob at New Castle, Ky., a few nights ago. They were charged with murdering a number of persons in Owen and Henry counties.... Augusta, Ga., through its City Council, has invited President Hayes to extend his Southern trip that far, promising him a cordial welcome.

WASHINGTON.

It is stated in a Washington dispatch that the administration is considering the question of Canada's responsibility for any new depredations that may be committed by Sitting Bull. The savages obtained the protection of Canada by crossing the line, and if they now return to renew the war, it is insisted that the Dominion must pay the damages.... The Superintendent of the Government printing office has issued a circular to Senators and Representatives requesting them not to lend their influence in behalf of any person seeking appointment in the Government printing office, as he intends in future to run the office according to his own judgment.

Secretary of the Navy Thompson has gone on a visit to his Indiana home, and will be absent several weeks.... Gen. McNeill, of St. Louis, having declined to serve with Gen. Terry on the commission to meet Sitting Bull, A. G. Lawrence, of Rhode Island, has been substituted. The commission have been ordered to seek S. B., wherever he may be found, and negotiate a treaty of peace with the old sinner.

The public debt was reduced $3,869,538 during August, according to the official statement, herewith appended:

Six per cent. bonds	$ 814,341,050
Five per cent. bonds	703,266,650
Four and half per cent. bonds	185,000,000
Total coin bonds	$1,702,607,700
Lawful money debt	$ 14,000,000
Matured debt	19,357,660
Legal tenders	358,040,096
Certificates of deposit	50,430,000
Fractional currency	19,172,114
Coin certificates	38,526,400
Total without interest	$ 466,167,610
Total debt	$2,202,132,971
Total interest	26,268,694
Cash in treasury—coin	$ 106,904,936
Cash in treasury—currency	11,826,037
Currency held for redemption of fractional currency	8,365,412
Special deposits held for redemption of certificates of deposit	50,430,000
Total in treasury	$ 172,926,886
Debt less cash in treasury	2,055,469,779
Decrease of debt during August	3,869,538
Decrease since June 30	4,688,443
Bonds issued to Pacific Railroad Companies, interest payable in lawful money; principal outstanding	64,623,512
Interest accrued and not yet paid	646,235
Interest paid by the United States	35,957,620
Interest repaid by transportation of mails, etc	8,676,350
Balance of interest paid by the United States	27,281,270

Ill health, resulting from the arduous duties of the office, and intense suffering from a defect in his eyes, are the reasons assigned for the retirement of Assistant Secretary McCormick from the Treasury Department.... William Henry Smith, General Agent of the Western Associated Press, has been appointed Collector of Customs at Chicago, vice J. Russell Jones, suspended. Mr. Jones had been twice requested to resign, and, as he did not see fit to comply, his suspension was ordered.... Washington telegram: "Hon. Kenneth Raynor, Solicitor of the Treasury, meeting Mr. Soteldo, editor of the National Republican, on the treasury steps, ordered him to move out of his way, and then assaulted him with his fist. Soteldo struck back. Then followed a further exchange of blows, when the parties were separated. The provocation was repeated publications in the Republican of satirical remarks reflecting on the Solicitor's age and efficiency."

It is stated from Washington that two points have been agreed upon in regard to the course to be pursued by the Sitting Bull Commission. An effort will first be made to induce him to come over the line and surrender his arms and horses to the United States authorities, with the understanding that he is to go on the reservation and receive support there. Failing in this, there will be an attempt to complete arrangements for his remaining in the British possessions, and passing formally under the control of the authorities there.... Kenneth Raynor, Solicitor of the Treasury, paid $30 in the Washington Police Court for assaulting the editor of the Republican.

At a Cabinet meeting, the other day, it was determined to make a change in the Commissionership of Indian Affairs.

GENERAL.

The first advance has taken place in the telegraph rates under the amalgamation of the Western Union and Atlantic and Pacific interests. The tariff between the principal points at the East and Chicago and Cincinnati has been increased from 25 cents to 40 cents for messages of ten words, and to 50 cents to Louisville, St. Louis and Milwaukee.

Hon. S. S. Burdett, Commissioner of the United States General Land Office, who mysteriously disappeared in May, [illegible], and was supposed to have been murdered, turned up the other day in Sedalia, Mo. He is crazy, and has probably been wandering aimlessly about the world all these months, but is unable to give any account of his doings. It is certainly a most remarkable case.

Brigham Young was the father of fifty-six children. He has left seventeen wives, sixteen sons and twenty-eight daughters, and his grandchildren and great-grandchildren would make quite a respectable village.... E. L. Davenport, the well-known tragedian, died last week at his summer residence, in Canton, Pa., aged 61. His disease was gout.... Alvin Adams, the founder of the Adams Express Company, died recently at his home in Watertown, Mass.

L. B. Wickliffe, of Mount Washington, Ky., writes to the Louisville Courier-Journal that he knows all about Osman Pasha, the hero of the late Turkish victory at Plevna. According to this authority (whom, by the way, the Courier-Journal has every reason to credit), Osman Pasha is not Marshal Bazaine, but is a native Tennessean; his real name is B. Clay Crawford, an ex-Federal Colonel; he served in Mexico under Juarez, and subsequently went to Egypt and enlisted in the service of the Khedive, whence he was transferred to that of the Sultan.... Brigham Young, by his will, divides his estate, valued at $2,000,000, between his seventeen wives, sixteen sons and twenty-eight daughters.... The Illinois veterans of the Mexican war have been having a reunion in Chicago.... M. Thiers died of apoplexy.... The present summer has been the healthiest Chicago has experienced for many years. The deaths in August were nearly 400 less than for the corresponding month last year. ....The Chicago Common Council has voted to begin at once the erection of the new City Hall.... Gold in New York has reached the lowest figure it has touched since May 24, 1862, viz., 103⅛.... Business failures: The Perry Cotton Mill, Newport, R. I.; the Sandwich Savings Bank, Boston, Mass.; Edward B. White, metal broker, New York, liabilities $120,000, assets $30,000; John King, lard and oil merchant, St. Louis, liabilities heavy; S. A. Beekman & Co., straw goods, New York, liabilities heavy; Coffin & Lyon, paper-dealers, New York, liabilities $100,000; Newport Manufacturing Company, Newport, R. I., liabilities $250,000; James G. Kennedy & Co., clothing, Montreal, liabilities $75,000.

The annual meeting of the Society of the Army of the Tennessee has just been held at St. Paul, Minn. The attendance numbered about seventy-five, mostly from Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Wisconsin, and Missouri. Gen. Sherman was elected President for the ensuing year. ....Among the features of Private Dalzell's Federal and Confederate reunion at Marietta, Ohio, was a sham battle, in which some 700 or 800 soldiers engaged, and which was won by gentlemen representing the Union side.

INDIAN NEWS.

The following has been received at army headquarters in Chicago: "Howard, pursuing Nez Perces, has crossed to east bank of Yellowstone, at head of Yellowstone canon, and is following trail toward east fork of Yellowstone. Lieut. Doam, with one company and 100 Crows, at Borowell's bridge, below canon Sturges, has moved down from Crow agency to trail on Clark's fork. Hart is moving by way of Fort C. F. Smith, and will go up Stinking Water trail toward Yellowstone park. Merritt, moving out from Brown, will go up Jones trail on Wind river. Indians last reported to be on east fork, half way between canon and Clark's fork mine."

Chief Joseph's band are still roaming about Montana, confiscating stock and occasionally capturing a scalp. At last accounts they were in the vicinity of the Yellowstone, having burned the bridge over that stream. Gen. Howard's command was far in the rear, with every prospect of the relative positions being maintained.... Advices from Camp Robinson report that Shedding Bear's band, who have been robbing and murdering in the Black Hills, have surrendered and promised to be good Indians hereafter.

Advices from Camp Robinson, Neb., report that the chief Crazy Horse, who some months ago left the war path with his band and surrendered everything, grew restless and attempted to escape. He was pursued and captured. While being disarmed in the guard-house he drew a knife and attempted to make his escape, cutting Little Big Man in the arm severely. Crazy Horse himself was stabbed in the side and dangerously wounded. There was great excitement among the Indians, and an outbreak was feared.

A dispatch from Camp Robinson announces the death of Crazy Horse, who was stabbed by Big Little Man while resisting arrest.

POLITICAL.

The people of Georgia will vote on the new constitution the second Wednesday in December, and also choose between Atlanta and Milledgeville as a site for the State capital.... The Prohibition party of Iowa have nominated Hon. Elias Jessup, of Oskaloosa, for Governor.... A Washington dispatch says the President has determined to remove Naval Officer A. B. Cornell, of New York, as soon as a satisfactory person can be found to fill the vacancy.

The Pennsylvania Republicans met in State Convention at Harrisburg, on the 5th inst., and nominated J. P. Sterritt for Supreme Judge, William B. Hart for State Treasurer, and J. A. M. Passmore for Auditor General. The following resolutions were reported by a committee and adopted:

Resolved, 1. That while we recognize and respect the difference of opinion existing among us as to the course pursued by President Hayes toward the South, we are heartily in accord in honoring the patriotic motives which have guided him and in hoping that the results of this policy will be peace, good-will, and complete recognition of the equal rights of all men in every section of the country, and to efforts of his administration to carry into effect the principles of the platform upon which he was elected we pledge our hearty and cordial support.

2. The electoral commission having been created by the urgent solicitation of the Democratic party and after the oft-repeated declarations of its leaders in both houses of Congress that no faction could cavil at its decision, we witness with profound astonishment the assaults of that party upon this august tribunal of its own creation because its decisions disappointed their expectations of official patronage, which assaults, so far as they seek to impair the confidence of the people in the just title of the President to his high office, are equally childish and foolish, but may become extremely mischievous in assisting to diminish popular respect for the decisions of lawful tribunals.

The third resolution calls upon the members of the State and national Legislatures to assist in the return of prosperity to the country by adopting such measures as will conduce to that end.

The fourth and fifth resolutions oppose any grant of more than 160 acres of land to any one person, and also oppose the reissue of patents by act of Congress.

6. The long and successful existence under the laws of Congress of the double-coin standard warrants us in demanding an early repeal of the legislation which demonetized silver and established an almost exclusive gold standard, and we therefore favor a return to the free use and unrestricted coinage of the dollar of 1798, and its restoration to the position it held as a legal tender during eighty years of our national existence, thus preserving the equality of the commercial value of the silver dollar with the gold dollar, keeping both in circulation.

The seventh resolution indorses the administration of Gov. Hartranft.

8. We are in favor of law and against lawlessness and anarchy, with all their attendant horrors and crimes. Equal rights in making laws impose equal duties in obeying them when made, and we tender our hearty thanks to Gov. Hartranft and the officers and soldiers of his command for the prompt, and we hope effectual, suppression of the lawless disturbances which recently occurred in this State.

9. That we hold in equal respect the rights of capital to control its investments and of labor to determine the value of its services; that we deprecate any assertion by violence of the rights of either, and we assert it as the duty of all citizens to hold their respective rights in the just limitation of law, and that any attempt to coerce the other by unlawful means should be promptly repressed by such lawful authorities as the exigency demands.

The remaining resolutions, except the eleventh, which favors a protective tariff, relate entirely to State affairs.

The Massachusetts Independent Greenback party met in convention at Boston, on Sept. 5, and nominated Wendell Phillips for Governor. The platform is loud in its denunciations of class legislation, land grants and subsidies; protests against the further issue of gold bonds for sale in foreign markets; calls for retrenchment, and for the abolition of the taxation of mortgaged property, and demands the remonetization of silver.

After a long discussion in the Cabinet, just on the eve of the President's departure for the West, it was decided not to remove Cornell at present. His resignation from the National Committee has not been received, but it was thought best to let his case go with those of Collector Arthur and Surveyor Sharpe, and remove all of them soon after Congress meets, on the ground that an entire change in the New York custom-house is needed in order to insure the enforcement of the President's civil-service system.... A Long Branch telegram to the Cincinnati Enquirer says "it is now definitely and positively known that Roscoe Conkling will pronounce against the administration at the New York State Convention at Rochester.".... Justice Joseph Bradley, in a letter to the Newark Advertiser, denies the New York Sun's charges throughout. He says he did not read or express an opinion; that there was no discussion, and that the electoral vote was decided honestly and free from political or other extraneous considerations.

THE TURKO-RUSSIAN WAR.

Accounts are received by way of Constantinople of a battle fought in Bulgaria on the 31st ult. between the Russians and the Turks under Mehemet Ali. The latter made the attack, and his report of the fighting claims a victory for the Turks, with a loss of 3,000, while the Russians lost 4,000. A Shumla dispatch, also Turkish, confirms the claim of a decisive success, and represents that the Russian positions were carried after repeated assaults. Some minor victories are also claimed.... A Bucharest dispatch says every detail of the preparations shows that the Russians have made up their minds for a long war, unless, indeed, they are acting with the intention to deceive. In Asia Minor the Russians continue their advance toward Sookgoom-Kaleh. There has been some sharp skirmishing, resulting, according to Russian accounts, in the defeat of the Turks.

Cable dispatches state that Osman Pasha's attack on the Russian positions at Pelisat and vicinity was one of the most hardly-fought battles of the war, and resulted in a substantial victory for the Muscovites. The struggle was for the possession of a redoubt held by the Russians. The Turks, with the most desperate valor, charged the position time and again, only to be repulsed. They finally withdrew, leaving the valley in front of the enemy's batteries filled with dead and dying. The Turkish loss was 2,500 killed and wounded, the Russians losing about one-fifth that number.... A dispatch from Bucharest states that the bulk of Suleiman Pasha's army has retired from active operations against the Russian garrison in Schipka pass.... Prince Charles, of Roumania, has issued a manifesto to his troops, announcing that he has been appointed to the supreme command of the Russian and Roumanian armies before Plevna.... The Turks acknowledge the loss of 7,000 men in Schipka pass.

The Grand Duke Nicholas' long-expected attack upon the forces under Osman Pasha, by which he expected to retrieve the Plevna disaster, began at 10 o'clock on the morning of Tuesday, Sept. 4. The assault was made along the whole line, and was irresistible. The fighting that ensued as soon as the entire movement had been fairly unmasked by the Russians was of the most terrific character, both on the part of the Turks and their assailants. Almost every strategic point along the whole line of operations was the scene of desperate charges by the Russians. In nearly every instance where the Russians reached the Turkish positions they succeeded in carrying them, despite all the irregularity of the ground. The defense of the Turks was determined and desperate, but they were unable to withstand the onslaught of their opponents, and were compelled to retire sullenly from position after position.

The Turks have entirely evacuated Sookoom-Kale, a Russian port on the eastern shore of the Black sea, which they captured several months ago and held as a base of supplies for the insurrectionary Circassians. The scattered Turkish forces in that region, as well as all that could be spared from Batoum, Trebizond, and Mukhtar's department, have been hurried forward to reinforce the Bulgarian armies.

The battle at Loftscha, says a Bucharest dispatch, was commenced by the Turks, who, disquieted by the great increase of Russians before the town, attacked them fiercely. The Russians repulsed nine successive attacks, and finally drove the Turks back into the town, which they entered with them. The struggle continued in the streets, until the Turks were driven out from the other side of the town in great disorder. They retreated, followed by Gen. Skobeloff's cavalry brigade, which had by its gallantry largely contributed to the Russian success. The slaughter was great, especially among the Turks.—

According to Turkish accounts, Eyoub Pasha's army corps attacked the Twelfth Russian corps on the 6th inst., defeating and driving them in disorder across the river Lom. Russian loss, 3,000; Turkish loss, 900.

GENERAL FOREIGN NEWS.

Ex-President Grant was in Edinburgh, Scotland, and the freedom of the city was presented to him by Lord Provost Sir James Faulkner, in the Free Assembly Hall. Two thousand persons were present.... A Paris dispatch says the editor of the Journal des Alpes is summoned before the Correctional Tribunal for publishing an insulting remark relative to Gen. Grant.... Edward Cunard, second son of the late Sir Edward Cunard, of Staten Island, N. Y., was killed, the other day, in England, while playing a game of polo.

Ten thousand cotton-spinners are on a strike at Bolton, England.... Gov. Noyes has entered upon his duties as United States Minister to France, and Mr. Washburne has sailed for home.

Louis Adolph Thiers, the great French statesman, died suddenly at his residence at St. Germain, near Paris, on the 3d inst. He was 80 years old.

A cable dispatch says no event short of a coup-d'etat or Communist rising could have created so profound an impression throughout France as the death of ex-President Thiers. Its effect on the present political crisis cannot yet be properly weighed. Gambetta is now without a rival in the Republican party, but his advanced views are so alarming to the Left Center that the Republican party, as a whole, will probably seek to counteract the evil effects of Thiers' removal by putting forward M. Grevy, the ex-President of the Chamber of Deputies, as a candidate for the succession to the Presidency, in the event of President MacMahon's retirement.

A Berlin dispatch states that Austria and Germany have declared that they do not deem the present state of affairs one to induce them to offer their mediation to either belligerent, yet they would support vigorously an offer of mediation from any other power.

A report comes from the City of Mexico that ex-President Lerdo is to be tried for high crimes against the constitution, committed during his administration, and Gen. Escobedo will soon be tried for treason.... To fill up the thinned ranks of the Spanish soldiers in Cuba, 1,500 fresh troops have been landed at Havana and 1,100 at Santiago de Cuba.... The indictment against Gambetta, the French Republican leader, contains three counts charging offenses against the President and the republic, and six for insults to Ministers. The trial will not be reported, nor any publication concerning its progress allowed.... The Earl of Derby, British Foreign Minister, speaking at Liverpool a few evenings ago, said he did not think the present moment favorable for any interposition by third parties in favor of peace, but [illegible] far distant, when England's good offices would be acceptable.

A Lively Adventure with a Bear.

On Thursday last a young man named McDonald, belonging to Gay's river, had a narrow escape from being devoured by a bear in the woods near his home. He was walking through the woods, when he heard a rustling sound behind him. Turning around he saw a large-sized she-bear coming toward him. He had just time to spring for the nearest tree and climb up it. The bear sprung at him, and, catching one of his feet with her paw, tore off the shoe and stocking and badly lacerated the flesh. McDonald managed to crawl out on a limb, whither the bear attempted to follow, but the limb was too narrow. Foiled of its prey the bear tore savagely at the bark on the limb, while McDonald, holding on by his hands, screamed lustily for help. A man near by, hearing his cries, approached just as the bear dropped from the tree. McDonald called out to the new-comer to look out for the bear, and at that moment the savage animal rushed at the man, who nimbly climbed into the same tree, followed by the bear. The new-comer's only safety was to get out on the same limb as McDonald, and the bear, too, crawled out. Under the weight the limb broke, and bear and men fell a distance of some twenty feet. Fortunately the bear was stunned by the fall, and the men, though badly shaken, were able to get away. Obtaining arms, which they were entirely without, they returned to the place, but the bear could not be found.—Charlottetown (Va.) Herald.

The Stealing of Stark's Horse.

A readable article on the battle of Bennington and its particular hero, Gen. Stark, is published in Harper's Magazine for September. We find in it this advertisement, showing that Stark's horse was lost while he was engaged in a reconnoissance on foot during the action. The "ad" originally appeared in the Connecticut Courant (ancestor of the Hartford Courant) for Oct. 7, 1777:

TWENTY DOLLARS REWARD.

Stole from me the subscriber, from Walloomscock, in the time of action, the 16th of August last, a brown mare, five years old, had a star in her forehead. Also, a doe skin seated saddle, blue housing trim'd with white, and a curbed bridle. It is earnestly requested of all committees of safety and others in authority, to exert themselves to recover said thief and mare, so that he may be brought to justice, and the mare brought to me; and the person, who ever he be, shall receive the above reward for both, and for the mare alone one half of that sum. How scandalous, how disgraceful and ignominious must it appear to all friendly and generous souls to have such sly, artful, designing villains enter into the field in the time of action in order to pillage, pilfer and plunder from their brethren when engaged in battle.
JOHN STARK, B. D. G.

Bennington, 11th Sept., 1777.

The Wonder of Texas.

Living near Englewood, in this county, is a family of father, mother and twelve children, and, remarkable to state, they count 328 fingers and toes as naturally belonging to them. Each of the twelve children has twenty-four, fully developed, but the parents have only forty between them.

Prof. Hungleford, formerly of Calvert, but recently teaching at Englewood, had several of these children as scholars. One day, during recitation, one of this family was told to count his fingers with the view of impressing some number upon his mind. The child announced that the number was twelve. The teacher said the returning board was endeavoring to practice fraud, and bulldozed the little fellow into another count. The result was the same. "Come here," said the now-irate teacher, "and let me count your fingers." His numbering corresponded with the child's, for on each hand he found five fingers and a thumb.—Calvert Central Texan.

Rich Dairy Districts.

The wealth of some dairying districts is enormous. Herkimer, N. Y., is said to ship annually more than 17,000,000 pounds of cheese, and 300,000 pounds of butter, worth $4,500,000. Little Falls, N. Y., ships perhaps as much. St. Albans, Vt., ships 1,000,000 pounds of cheese, and 2,750,000 pounds of butter, worth in the market $1,250,000. The village of Wellington, O., shipped 4,000,000 pounds of cheese in 1869, worth $500,000. The products of the dairy are sold for cash, and hence the returns are quick. This industry enables the manufacturer to reduce a large bulk of food into small compass, through the two processes of feeding cows and manufacturing the productions.—Rural World.

Sarcastic.

Mrs. Cady Stanton is credited with making a very sensible and sarcastic reply to some one who asked her if she thought that girls possessed, as a general thing, the physique necessary for the wear and tear of a college course of study. Mrs. Stanton answered: "I would like to see you take 1,300 young men and lace them up, and hang ten to twenty pounds' weight of clothes on their waists, perch them up on three-inch heels, cover their heads with ripples, chignons, rats and mice, and stick 10,000 hairpins into their scalps; if they can stand all this they can stand a little Latin and Greek." When one wants to have a particularly neat thing said about women, the most judicious way is to get a woman to say it.

The application of soda immediately destroys the smarting pain of sunburn.

CURRENT AFFAIRS.

Capt. Eads is to leave a lasting mark of his hand in the East, as he has already done in the West. Having bridged the Mississippi at St. Louis and deepened its mouth at the gulf, he is now to bridge the Bosphorus and lead the tide of travel to India through the Valley of the Euphrates.

At the American Temperance Union, held recently at Cooper Institute, New York, not only were all intoxicating liquors denounced, but pepper, salt, mustard, vinegar, cakes, candies and other confectionery, as it was stated they were all calculated to breed intemperate habits in the young.

One of the Pittsburgh papers draws the line between a mob and an insurrection. The recent railroad strikes, it argues, had a common cause, and there was co-operation among the rioters everywhere; and the railroad property in that city was destroyed in the course of a domestic rebellion or insurrection, and not by the outbreak of a local mob, and hence the nation, or at least the State, ought to pay the costs.

The death of the great Mormon leader and despot will open an entirely new chapter in the history of our relations with Utah, and with its curious "chosen people." No living personage in the civilized world could repeat with so much truth as Brigham Young the arrogant saying of Louis XIV., "The state—is myself!" The United States down to this time have been dealing not with Mormonism but with the monarch of the Mormons. No successor can take his place; for even were a successor to come forward capable of filling it the conditions under which Brigham Young created the place and administered it will not exist for any man who comes after him.

Mr. E. B. Boutwell, late Commander in the United States navy, suggests a remedy for strikes and strikers. He thinks that the plan adopted by the British Government, of establishing free lines of transportation for emigrants unable to pay their own passage, and otherwise encouraging them, should be adopted by us. In the great West and South, he truly remarks, there are thousands of acres awaiting cultivation, and innumerable industries undeveloped. With a little assistance from the Government, private enterprise could very soon relieve large cities, mining and manufacturing districts, from an oppressive weight of unemployed, unhappy, and worse than useless population.

Thurlow Weed is the last and most powerful recruit of the silver dollar party. He goes the whole thing, including the payment of the national debt in silver as well as gold. If this affects our credit abroad, and sends our bonds home, so much the better. He thinks that we have money enough to carry our own debts. And he closes his discussion with, for him, quite a rhetorical tribute to the virtues of paper money. We can only indulge our readers in a brief specimen: "Gold is passive, paper active. Gold works out its mission in vaults and coffers. Paper courses like blood through the veins and arteries of business, from the extremities to the heart of the nation, imparting strength, vigor and health to the whole body."

Gen. Lew Wallace, of Indiana, proposes to raise a regiment or battalion of frontiersmen for permanent service in the United States army, specially to fight Indians. He contends that the army, as now constituted, is not competent for such service. He wants to raise a regiment of men to be mounted on Indian ponies, who can ride, and shoot, and subsist as the Indians do. He wants every man in the regiment to be familiar with the Indian mode of warfare, so they can cope with them on even terms. The Secretary of War thinks, and so replied to Gen. Wallace, that such a regiment as he describes would be very serviceable, but he does not consider himself possessed of the authority to order its enlistment.

Gen. N. P. Banks, Congressman-elect from Massachusetts, is preparing to urge upon Congress at the next session the need of increasing the inducements to settlement on the free lands of the Government in the West. Already 160 acres of the best farming lands in the world are given to every settler—any American citizen being eligible—at a cost of only about $20 in land-office fees, but Gen. Banks proposes to offer still further encouragement to homesteaders by providing one year's Government rations to each family, a few farming utensils, a horse, a cow and a pig, besides doing away with the fees which at present go to the land-office agents. To meet the expense of the increased bonus to the settler, he proposes that 4 per cent. bonds be issued for that purpose.

BUSINESS INTERESTS.

Commercial and Trade Matters.

The silk crop of France for the present year, it is estimated, will be more than three times as great as that of last year.

The straw and millinery trades of New York have suffered severely by depreciation in values, and several heavy failures are announced.

Texas will make this year 700,000 bales of cotton. From these will be obtained 840,000,000 pounds of seed; this converted into oil would bring over $14,000,000.

The wheat crop in Great Britain is much below the average this year, and potatoes are generally threatened with disease; oats and winter beans are better, and the hay crop is abundant. The crops in France and Germany are below rather than above the average, and, without much regard to the Eastern war, there must be a certain and large market in Europe for our American productions this year.

The New York Times has been interviewing business men of the metropolis as to the prospects of fall trade, and reports the outlook, on the whole, encouraging. Nobody looks for large business or great profits, but there is a general expectation of healthy activity and reasonable gains, which find justification in the improvement already shown by a comparison with a year ago. The long-continued hard times have fostered more conservative and healthy business habits, and there is a general preparedness to build up again on a sounder basis.

It is stated from Washington that the administration is indisposed to take any steps looking to the representation of the United States at the Paris Exposition next year, except in response to a direct order from Congress. In explanation of this apparent want of official interest in this great international undertaking, it may be said that neither the action of the French Government nor the character of the French exhibit at the Centennial last year was such as the United States had a right to expect from a nation with which it had so long been on friendly terms.

The great German capital, Berlin, is going through a terrible real-estate collapse. For the three or four years before 1873 it seemed impossible to build houses fast enough to supply the increasing population, or to advance prices beyond the takers. But the supply was pushed beyond the demand, prices have been so high that people went away, and now there are 20,000 vacant apartments in the city. There is a great deal of real estate that does not yield income enough to pay taxes, and a wide-spread distress and ruin among real-estate men who have done business on borrowed capital.

Mill, Shop and Labor Notes.

There are now in Philadelphia 450 co-operative and building loan associations, in which workingmen have nearly $70,000,000 invested.

Akron, Ohio, is a city of about 14,500 inhabitants, and has twenty-six manufacturing establishments, which turn out an annual aggregate value of [illegible]. This is a product of over $600 for every man, woman and child in the city.

Col. Scott says positively that the Pennsylvania Railroad Company will [illegible] in Pittsburgh, but will remove all their shops and machine works to some other point, as remote as possible from that neighborhood, or, in fact, from large cities, where the property of the company will not be under the influence and at the mercy of mobs.

During the past three months over 300 carpenters have left this country for England. They are under contract for three years each with building firms in Manchester at wages equal to $1.50 per day, eight hours to constitute a day's work, with a half-holiday on Saturdays. Their passage was paid by their employers, but it is to be deducted from their wages in small installments.

The United States Consul at Liverpool warns all persons contemplating returning to England for work that neither skilled nor unskilled workmen who have come from abroad can expect to find employment in England. The reason is very evident. Depression is felt in every branch of industry, from the manufacture of silk to the building of ships, and this winter is looked forward to as likely to prove one of unusual suffering and want.

George C. Benham, of Louisiana, writes to the Cincinnati Gazette that there is land in the South suffering for the want of labor, and urges workingmen to seek employment there. To reach the spot, he suggests that laborers get on planks and paddle their way down the Mississippi, stopping off at cornfields for supplies. Better men than rioters have done it, and he guarantees that a good living will be found by any man who takes his advice.

Harvest Gleanings.

The cotton crop is reported as panning out splendidly all over the South.

The sweet-potato crop will be a fine one throughout the State of Texas.

The Selma Argus says the growing crop in Alabama is the most promising since the war.

The pecan crop, which is a very important crop for Western Texas, promises to be enormous this year.

The reports from all parts of Indiana is that the crops are immense. From present appearances, the State will raise her greatest corn crop this year.

It is estimated that Louisiana this year will make about 40,000 bales of cotton, 200,000 hogsheads of sugar, 300,000 barrels of molasses, and 150,000 pounds of rice.

Farmers in Northwestern Kansas report a very heavy corn crop. Some expect as high as eighty to one hundred bushels per acre; general average not less than fifty.

THE MARKETS.

NEW YORK.
Beeves	$8 50	@12 75
Hogs	5 50	@ 5 85
Cotton	11	@ 11¼
Flour—Superfine Western	4 40	@ 5 50
Wheat—No. 2	1 36	@ 1 40
Corn—Western Mixed	58	@ 59
Oats—Mixed	38	@ 40
Rye—Western	68	@ 69
Pork—New Mess	12 90	@13 00
Lard	8¾	@ 9
CHICAGO.
Beeves—Choice Graded Steers	5 90	@ 6 25
Choice Natives	5 25	@ 5 75
Cows and Heifers	2 50	@ 3 75
Good Second-class Steers	3 75	@ 4 25
Medium to Fair	4 80	@ 5 10
Hogs—Live	4 75	@ 5 50
Flour—Fancy White Winter	6 75	@ 7 00
Good to Choice Spring Ex.	6 00	@ 6 25
Wheat—No. 2 Spring	1 14	@ 1 16
No. 3 Spring	1 07	@ 1 08
Corn—No. 2	44	@ 45
Oats—No. 2	23	@ 24
Rye—No. 2	54	@ 55
Barley—No. 2	66	@ 67
Butter—Choice Creamery	24	@ 26
Eggs—Fresh	12	@ 13
Pork—Mess	12 25	@12 35
Lard	8¼	@ 8½
MILWAUKEE.
Wheat—No. 1	1 20	@ 1 21
No. 2	1 15	@ 1 17
Corn—No. 2	43	@ 44
Oats—No. 2	23	@ 24
Rye—No. 1	55	@ 56
Barley—No. 2	66	@ 67
ST. LOUIS.
Wheat—No. 2 Red Fall	1 28	@ 1 30
Corn—No. 2 Mixed	41	@ 42
Oats—No. 2	26	@ 27
Rye	53	@ 54
Pork—Mess	12 70	@12 80
Lard	8	@ 9½
Hogs	4 75	@ 5 20
Cattle	4 00	@ 5 75
CINCINNATI.
Wheat—Red	1 12	@ 1 22
Corn	47	@ 49
Oats	27	@ 32
Rye	56	@ 58
Pork—Mess	12 60	@12 75
Lard	8½	@ 9½
TOLEDO.
Wheat—No. 2 Red Winter	1 27	@ 1 29
No. 1 White Michigan	1 37½	@ 1 38½
Corn	48	@ 49
Oats—No. 2	27	@ 28
DETROIT.
Flour—Choice White Winter	6 50	@ ....
Wheat—No. 1	1 30	@ 1 40
Corn—No. 1	48	@ 50
Oats—Mixed	28	@ 29
Barley (per cental)	90	@ 1 40
Pork—Mess	14 50	@ ....
EAST LIBERTY, PA.
Cattle—Best	6 00	@ 6 25
Medium to Good	5 00	@ 5 75
Common to Fair	4 00	@ 4 75
Hogs	4 00	@ 5 60
Sheep	3 00	@ 5 00

AUBURN COURIER.

T. C. MAYS, Publisher.

SILVER.

Letter from Thurlow Weed in Favor of Its Remonetization.

Paper Money as Indispensable as Gold or Silver.

To the Editor of the New York Tribune:

* * * * * * * * *

The law of 1873 demonetizing silver was quietly but skillfully worked through Congress. The purpose and effect were not understood by one out of five of the members who voted for it. Nor, until this discussion commenced, was the existence of such a law known to any considerable number of our citizens. It was passed simply to promote the interests of the bondholders, usurers and speculators in gold. Its effect has been to cripple industry and oppress labor. There seems in the minds of the advocates of the gold standard but one interest entitled to public consideration. Everything must yield to the bondholders. No matter what amount of loss or suffering reaches other interests and other classes, the bondholder must be protected. The bondholders are not only wards of the Government, but enjoy the sympathy of the press. Every other department and branch of business may suffer. Labor may seek in vain for employment, but the bondholder must have his interest in gold, which he immediately converts into greenbacks at a premium.

The vigilance of the Government and the press in the defense of the bondholders suggests an inquiry which is certainly pertinent, and may possibly prove useful. Foreign capitalists naturally took advantage of our necessities during the Rebellion to purchase our bonds at a low figure.

In November, 1862, gold sold at	131
In December, 1862, gold sold at	131
In January, 1863, gold brought	148
In February, 1863, gold brought	165
In March, 1863, gold brought	160
In April, 1863, gold brought	153
In May, 1863, gold brought	147
In June, 1863, gold brought	146
In July, 1863, gold brought	135
In August, 1863, gold brought	126
In September, 1863, gold brought	135
In October, 1863, gold brought	148
In November, 1863, gold brought	148
In December, 1863, gold brought	150
In January, 1864, gold brought	155
In February, 1864, gold brought	158
In March, 1864, gold brought	164
In April, 1864, gold brought	174
In May, 1864, gold brought	182
In June, 1864, gold brought	220
In July, 1864, gold brought	240
In August, 1864, gold brought	254
In September, 1864, gold brought	220
In October, 1864, gold brought	210
In November, 1864, gold brought	240
In December, 1864, gold brought	230

In 1865, 1866, 1867, and 1868 the premium on gold averaged 170. It was during these years of depression, when the fabulous premiums on gold opened the purse-strings of usurers, that American securities found purchasers in Europe. Our bonds, therefore, were purchased in Europe during those years at prices alternating between 30 and 50 cents on the dollar. Simultaneously our own citizens were subscribing for the 5-20 loan at par, paying for their bonds in greenbacks. Subsequently these bonds, the interest and principal payable in coin, rose in value to the coin standard, changing in value as the premium on gold changed; never, however, until recently, falling below 12 per cent. For twelve or more years, therefore, the foreign bondholder has been receiving 6 per cent. annually in gold on every $1,000 bond, for which he paid somewhere between $300 and $500; while the American bondholders, receiving their 6 per cent. interest semi-annually in gold, immediately converted their gold into greenbacks at a premium of from 12 to 20 per cent. In a season of financial embarrassment Government stocks fell considerably below par. Our banks, trust companies, savings institutions, and capitalists availed themselves of that opportunity to invest largely—realizing, a year or two afterward, besides their gold interest, from 25 to 30 per cent. profit. The stock of one of our city banks rose a full 100 per cent. in consequence of the money made by that institution by its large and lucky purchases of Government 6s. So far, therefore, both the foreign and American bondholders have been munificently rewarded.

But this is not all. The bondholders have had a "good thing" in the way of "usance." I have not been able to learn what proportion of our national debt is held by Americans. If we assume the amount thus held to be $1,000,000,000, and that the gold interest has, during the last twelve years, averaged 9 per cent., the bondholders who promptly convert their gold interest into greenbacks have pocketed the handsome sum of $5,400,000 annually, making, in twelve years, $64,800,000. The foreign bondholder who reinvested his gold interest in American securities was correspondingly benefited. In view of these facts, will it be said that we are dealing dishonestly, inequitably or illiberally with the Government bondholders by maintaining that they should be paid in exact accordance with the terms upon which they loaned the Government their money? Nor should it be forgotten that, during these weary twelve years of financial derangement, capital, which "toils not," has been squeezing these gold premiums out of labor. Yes, while capital "fares sumptuously every day," millions of laborers have sweat upon land and sea to appease a class whose ceaseless cry is, Give! give! These onerous and remorseless gold premiums, in the memorable language of President Jackson, make the rich richer and the poor poorer. Until 1840 the United States produced little or no silver. In 1846, in the infancy of our mines, their product was estimated at £1,864 sterling. Thenceforward the developments were rapid and rich; so much so, that in 1873 the United States was the largest silver-producing country in the world, as will be seen by the following estimates:

United States	$36,500,000
Mexico	25,000,000
Central and South America	8,000,000
German empire	3,000,000
France	2,000,000
Spain	2,000,000
Austro-Hungarian monarchy	1,600,000
Great Britain and colonies	1,000,000
Canada	900,000
Italy (Sardinia)	500,000
Prussia	500,000
Sweden and Norway	250,000
Total	$76,250,000

And then the one-standard agitation commenced. While for two centuries neither silver nor gold was produced in our country, we gratefully accepted both from abroad.

The mineral wealth of California was developed immediately after that Territory was ceded to the United States. The acquisition of that Territory with the immediate discovery of its treasures, was alike seasonable and auspicious. It seemed as if this vast deposit of gold and silver had been providentially reserved until it was most needed, and then so dispensed as to promote the prosperity and happiness of the American people. But now, because Latin Governments have discovered that a double standard is inconvenient, shall we voluntarily impoverish ourselves by rejecting a boon which has been so long held precious throughout the world? The idea that silver should cease to be a standard because our mines are too productive, is unsound. Silver has various other uses. There is an unlimited demand for it. It enters largely into the domestic requirements of civilized society. It constitutes a large proportion of the decorative habits and tastes of the world. In ancient times it was so abundant that Polybius says the tiles upon the roof of the temple at Ecbatana were of solid silver, and the beams and pillars of the temple were covered with plates of silver and gold. Not then, or in the days of King Solomon, when it is said to have been still more plentiful, did silver cease to be a standard. It was reserved for an American Congress to pass a law demonetizing silver, and for the American press to maintain that the payment of our national debt upon the terms agreed to between the borrower and lender is "repudiation."

I alluded in a former letter to the fact that gold as a medium of currency has no international character; that even between England and France, divided only by a narrow channel, there is no common gold standard. The English and the French gold coins bear the "superscription" of their respective sovereigns, and are restricted in their circulation to their respective countries. English gold coins that come to New York when the balance of trade is in our favor go not into circulation, but remain temporarily, or go to the mint for recoinage. Nor do any of the American gold eagles or half-eagles, exported to England or France, enter into the circulation of those countries. Until the Latin Governments so peremptorily demanded a single standard, silver coin enjoyed an international character.

The Spanish and Mexican dollars formed a part of the circulating medium of England, Europe and America, and were almost exclusively the currency of India, China and Japan. But now, without any public necessity or for any reason affecting the rights of nations or the welfare of peoples, we are arbitrarily required to discard a monetary standard with which the whole world is familiar, and which has furnished facilities for conducting the various business interests of all the nations of the earth with convenience and safety for more than twenty centuries. And, as I have before stated, the grounds upon which this demand is made, stripped of verbiage, are: First, that a double standard is inconvenient; and, second, that America is too rich in silver. Will it be seriously urged that these objections are sufficient to beguile us into a betrayal of vital interests—interests protected by our constitution and laws? The embarrassing and mortifying circumstance is, that the pressure comes not so much from abroad as from ourselves. In 1873, Congress, with a very imperfect understanding of the question, passed a law demonetizing silver. And now, with a better knowledge of our duty and interests, when the repeal of that law is demanded, vehement and denunciatory opposition is made by the leading and most influential journals of our city! The advocates of a constitutional currency incur the same reproaches and epithets applied to those who are avowedly in favor of an irredeemable paper currency. For insisting upon the payment of the public debt in the precise currency "nominated in the bond," we are flippantly stigmatized repudiators. This gratuitous imputation will lose its power as soon as silver is restored to its proper use. Both gold and silver were valueless as money until they were made "precious" by Governments. The mints, under the direction of Congress, can make the gold and silver dollar of equal intrinsic value. With all the artificial disadvantages under which silver labors, its relative value to gold is constantly approximating. The immediate effect of its remonetization will be to restore the equilibrium that had existed for centuries.

Among other devices against silver, it is said that its remonetization will so seriously affect our credit abroad that foreigners will send our bonds home. It is to be hoped they will do so. We shall be ready to take all they will send. American capital now seeking investment at 3, 4 and 5 per cent. would gladly invest their millions in Government 6's at par. We have lived through sixteen eventful years. The magnitude of our civil war is without a parallel. * * * Paper money is as indispensable as gold or silver. Indeed, we are far more largely indebted to "rags," as it is now the fashion to characterise bank notes, for our national prosperity, than silver or gold. In its most depreciated condition, paper money subsisted our forefathers during the Revolutionary war. Paper money carried our country through the war with England in 1812. Paper money preserved our Government and Union. Without paper money from 1776 to 1876 we should have made a poor show at the Philadelphia Centennial. With a metallic currency our progress would have been very tardy. The forests would not have disappeared, nor would the villages and cities have grown up with unprecedented rapidity. All our own interests, all our industries, and all our institutions have been cherished, sustained and protected by the use of paper money. With nothing but "hard money" from the landing of the Pilgrims, we should have had nothing but hard times. Paper, as the representative of silver and gold, was enabled to work out enlightened and munificent enterprises and objects conferring wealth and happiness on our people, and imparting strength to our Government! While, therefore, paper is convertible at all times and places into coin, bank notes are just as valuable as the precious metals. The great purpose and object of resumption is not so much to bring gold into circulation as to restore to the bank notes their convertible character. Gold is passive; paper active. Gold works out its mission in vaults and coffers; paper courses like blood through the veins and arteries of business, from the extremities to the heart of the nation, imparting strength, vigor, and health to the whole body.

T. W.

THEN AND NOW.

John Sherman on Resumption Eight Years Ago.

Said Secretary Sherman, in a speech delivered in the United States Senate, Jan 29, 1869:

* * * * If Senators want other examples of the severe process of passing from a depreciated currency to a currency convertible in gold, let them read the story of the times after the Revolution, and after the revulsion of 1812, and after the revulsion of 1837, all of which were periods of transition from a depreciated to a convertible paper currency. It is not possible to take this voyage without the sorest distress. To every person, except a capitalist out of debt, or to the salaried officer (the Secretary of the Treasury, for instance), or annuitant, it is a period of loss, danger, lassitude of trade, fall of wages, suspension of enterprise, bankruptcy and disaster. To every railroad it is an addition of at least one-third the burden of its debt, and, more than that, deduction from the value of its stock. It means the ruin of all dealers whose debts are twice the value of their capital, though one-third less than their property. It means the fall of all agricultural productions without any great reduction of taxes. To attempt this task by a surprise upon our people, by arresting them in the midst of their lawful business, and applying a new standard of value to their property, without any reduction of their debts, or giving them an opportunity to compound with their creditors, or to distribute their losses, would be an act of folly without example for evil in modern times. * * * If merchants, dealers and traders owe more than they can promptly collect on debts due to them, they must lose to the full extent of the appreciation (of the depreciated currency); and they must make good this loss by the sale of a part of their property at reduced prices, or by contracting new debts, to be paid in an appreciated currency. As a general rule, any appreciation of the currency is injurious to all these classes. * * * What does specie payments mean to a debtor? It means the payment of $125 where he has agreed to pay $100. Where he has purchased property and paid one-fourth of it, it means the loss of the property. It means the addition of one-fourth to all the currency debts in the United States. A measure to require a debtor now to pay his debt in gold, or currency equivalent to gold, requires him to pay 135 bushels of wheat when he agreed to pay 100; and, if this appreciation is extended through a period of three years, it requires him to pay an interest of 12 per cent. in addition to the rate he has agreed to pay. When we consider the enormous indebtedness of a new country like ours, where capital is scarce, and where credit has been substituted in the place of capital, it presents a difficulty that may well cause us to pause. * * * All the historical precedents show that fixing the day for resumption inevitably led to a contraction of the currency by the banks, so that, when the day came, the actual scarcity of currency prevented a demand for coin; and this process of contraction, both in England and the United States, produced the sorest distress, and was relieved in England by Parliament authorizing a loan of exchequer bills and new issues by the Bank of England. So, after the war of 1812, the sore distress caused by the failure of the State banks was only relieved by a new paper currency issued by the second United States Bank.

The Basis of Money.

All property is the product of labor. Wealth, being an accumulation of property, must of necessity be the accumulation of the products of labor. Money, being considered property, must of necessity be based upon labor. Every dollar, or fractional part of a dollar, put into circulation, should represent a certain amount of labor that has actually been performed. Money, then, must be based upon labor as all other property is. Not a dollar of money should be put in circulation that is not based upon labor. Under the old system of banking this was not the case. Banks were allowed to issue notes, which passed as money that represented no amount of labor whatever. Gold and silver are supposed to represent the amount of labor required to obtain them from the mines, and are therefore the real representatives of labor in this respect. But when the banks issue $3 or $4 in notes to one of specie held in their vaults they are forcing upon the people a sham instead of a reality. They are giving the people as money that which has no substantial basis whatever, but which represents no labor, and is therefore a fraud. The greenbacks that have been put in circulation do represent labor. Every dollar that was issued by the treasury was to pay for services rendered by the people during the war. It represents the work done by the soldier, the farmer, the mechanic, the merchant and the manufacturer. Thus it will be seen that every dollar of greenbacks represents an amount of labor that was performed by the people in their efforts to save the Government and the Union. This makes greenbacks genuine money, based upon labor, as all money should be. The national-bank notes that are now in circulation, on the contrary, are not based upon labor; they are based upon bonds that represent labor. The money in circulation should be based upon labor, and be issued by the Government, and be made a legal tender for all debts, public and private. This would give us a substantial, unchangeable, unfluctuating basis for our currency, and we cannot possibly have such a basis until we eliminate all forms of money not based upon actual work.—Wisconsin Greenback.

Mormonism.

The death of Brigham Young revives interest in the tenets of the church over which he has for so long a time presided. They are thus laid down by a recent writer:

"The priesthood of the Mormon church is organised into the following quorums: The First Presidency, the Twelve Apostles, the High Council, the Seventies, High Priests, elders, teachers, and deacons. The First Presidency (in 1875) consists of Brigham Young, George A. Smith, and Daniel H. Wells. They preside over and direct the affairs of the whole church. The Twelve Apostles constitute a traveling presiding high council. The whole hierarchy is divided into two bodies, the Melchizedek priesthood and the Aaronic priesthood. To the former, which is the highest, belong the offices of apostle, seventy, patriarch, high priest, and elder. The Aaronic priesthood includes the offices of Bishop, priest, teacher, and deacon, and can be held only by 'literal descendants of Aaron,' who are designated as such by revelation. The Mormon church teaches that there are many gods, and that eminent saints become gods in heaven, and rise one above another in power and glory to infinity. Joseph Smith is now the god of this generation. His superior god is Jesus, whose superior god and father is Adam. Above Adam is Jehovah, and above Jehovah is Elohim. All these gods have many wives, and they all rule over their own descendants, who are constantly increasing in number and dominion. The glory of a saint when he becomes a god depends in some degree on the number of his wives and children, and therefore polygamy is inculcated and wives are 'sealed' to saints here on earth to augment their power in the heavens. The gods are in the form of men, and they are the fathers of the souls of men in this world. The ten commandments are considered the rule of life, together with a revelation given to Joseph Smith, Feb. 27, 1833, which is called 'A Word of Wisdom.' It teaches that it is not good to drink wine or strong drink, excepting in the sacrament of the Lord's supper, and then it should be home-made grape wine; that it is not good to drink hot drinks, or chew or smoke tobacco; that strong drinks are for the washing of the body, and that tobacco is an herb for bruises and sick cattle; that herbs and fruits are for the food of man; that grain is for the food of man and beasts and fowls; and that flesh is not to be eaten by man except in winter, cold, and famine. This 'Word of Wisdom,' however, is not regarded precisely as a commandment, but as a revelation to show forth the will of God, and 'suited to the condition of all saints, young and old, male and female, without distinction.' Infant baptism is condemned, but the children of the saints are considered old enough at 8 years to be baptized. Baptism for the dead is practiced, a living person being publicly baptized as the representative of one or more deceased persons. Washington, Franklin, and other famous men have thus been vicariously baptized into the church."

Funny Scene in the Virginia Convention

A very funny passage occurred during the morning. Mr. Hinton alluded to a man in front of him as a "miserable dog." The gentleman indicated arose and wanted to know why he should be called a dog.

Mr. Hinton—"You called me a liar, sir."

The Gentleman—"I beg your pardon, sir; indeed, I did not."

Mr. Hinton—"I was within the sound of your voice."

The Gentleman—"You are mistaken; I said the 20th of July."

This was the key to the difficulty. Mr. Hinton thereupon made a graceful and ample apology.

Massachusetts pays out $5,600,919 per annum for farm wages.

SCRAPS OF HISTORY.

What Justice Field Has to Say About the New York Sun's Story Concerning Bradley.

[San Francisco Telegram.]

A few days ago the Daily Exchange published an editorial suggesting the propriety of some reply from Justice Field, of the United States Supreme Court, to the article recently published in the New York Sun, charging Justice Bradley with having read an opinion to Justices Field and Clifford to the effect that the electoral vote of Florida should be given to Tilden and Hendricks, the Democratic nominees, and reversing his conclusion without an alteration of the premises or agreements.

A number of attempts have been made by representatives of the press to interview Justice Field on the subject, but he has uniformly refused to say anything on the subject, and in most cases has refused to see them altogether.

The Exchange to-day publishes an interview with Justice Field. He at first demurred to giving any statement whatever, but finally said, after some reflection, and speaking with great deliberation, "Well, sir, all that I care to say with regard to that is that Justice Bradley read" [with peculiar emphasis on the word read]—"Justice Bradley read no opinion to me in advance of a formal submission of his opinion to the commission. Beyond that, I think, it would be improper for me to say anything. If I should enter upon the subject, I should probably say a great deal more than I wish to say."

"I think I comprehend your reply," said the interviewer. "The point you make is that the opinion which the Sun says was submitted to you and Justice Clifford in writing was so written, that it was a mere verbal communication of the opinion Justice Bradley had arrived at." To this the Justice replied: "You have my answer; all the answer I can now make. Justice Bradley did not read [again emphatically] any opinion to me as alleged."

"Very well. You," continued the questioner, "can raise no objection to my calling attention in my publication of this conversation to the emphasis you put on the word read. That will make the significance of your reply as clear to the reader as it is now to me?"

"You have all the answer I have to make," persisted the Justice. "I will not discuss the matter in any of its details."

In the course of some further conversation, the Justice urged his preference not to be dragged into the controversy at all. He says that he regretted that his name had been used, as he was associated with Justice Bradley on the bench of the United States Supreme Court, and it would be exceedingly unpleasant were their social relations to be disturbed by such a controversy. He also emphatically declined to go any further into the subject, urging that the members of the commission were bound by a resolution to respect the secrecy of their deliberations.

The Great Fraud.

The events of the last nine months have indicated very plainly what will be the leading question before the people for some time to come. It is the preservation of the right of the majority to rule. Last year the people elected Mr. Tilden President by a majority of a quarter of a million of the popular vote, and by a majority of twenty-three of the electoral vote. But Mr. Hayes was counted in notwithstanding. The man who was elected was counted out, and the man who was not elected was counted in, and seated, and holds the place. As Mr. Tilden has himself said, not long since, the question now is whether our elective system is to be maintained. This is the question of questions. Until it is settled there can be no politics founded on inferior questions of administrative policy. It involves all others finance, labor and the whole system of popular government. The people must signally condemn the great fraud put upon them. They must strip the example of everything that would attract imitation, and refuse a prosperous immunity to those who reap the benefit of the crime. Judgment is already overtaking them. I believe in keeping the great fraud before the people until we can have it definitely determined whether the majority shall rule or whether elections shall be decided by returning boards, and "by fraud, by perjury and by forgery," as the senior Justice of the Supreme Court of the United States says the last one was. It is now the mission of the Democratic party to see to it that this crime is kept always before the people, and that the memory of it shall not die out of the land. On this question it does not seem possible that any sincere patriot or honest man should hesitate long upon which side he will be found.—Letter from Editor M. M. Ham, of the Dubuque Herald.

Carpet-Bag Rule in South Carolina.

The investigation which is now going on in South Carolina, and is intended not only to expose the thieves who pillaged the treasury of the State during the period of carpet-bag rule, but to make those who are able to do so disgorge their ill-gotten gains, has created a panic among the ring chiefs and Republican leaders who controlled the legislation and the Government of the State. Many have fled beyond the reach of process, thus virtually confessing their guilt. Others who went off in disguise have been found and carried back. A noble band of these patriots is gathered at Washington, to avoid giving testimony and to escape the consequences of evidence given by others. Patterson is at the head of this crowd, seeking protection under the wing of the fraudulent administration.

There is hardly a doubt but conclusive proofs will be furnished to establish the complicity of Scott, Chamberlain, and others of even better repute, in the issue of bonds, jobbery in railroads, venal legislation, and a variety of rascally transactions. The revelations of Moses, who was an integral part of this organized robbery, who was in the confidence of all the parties implicated, and who was discreet enough to preserve a mass of original papers showing their guilt, are astounding, and, when published, must make a stir.—New York Sun.

A Standing Army to Awe Labor.

The time has come in the United States when the proposition to raise and equip a standing army for the sole purpose of suppressing strikes is advocated by a large fraction of the journals in the country, from the New York Nation down; finds favor and even indorsement with the administration in power, and nowhere seems to create a shock. At the same moment England is boasting of the final and peaceful termination of the long-lived difficulties between labor and capital. The London Standard, commenting on the topics suggested by the death of John Frost, the celebrated Chartist, takes occasion to say: "It may, we think, be fairly taken for granted that the whole cycle of questions connected with what used to be called the 'Rights of Labor,' in which the Chartism of forty years ago had its origin, are now practically settled, and that the relations between employers and employed, between labor and capital, will never again become the source of any widespread disaffection in this country." This country has been widely advertised as a home for the laboring man; as a land of refuge for the oppressed; as a country offering homes and plenty to the industry that would seek them, come from what shore they might. The workingmen of Great Britain have been taught, when longing for food and comfort and blessings, to look toward the setting sun; and, in this country, and in this year of our Lord, it is proposed, perhaps, for the first time in history, to raise a standing army to suppress strikes. England is a martial nation, her music the note of the bugle; but England, whence labor flees, never raised or kept a standing army to quench the wrath of long-suffering workingmen. What country ever did? Among the results of the late strike we have seen burning cities; the bodies of the slain; a Communistic platform adopted by a great party in this great State; millions of property in ashes; starvation made more and bitterer; but it is doubtful if any of the melancholy consequences of the recent disturbances is so much to be regretted as the fact that it is deliberately and widely proposed, and even by the executive branch of the Government itself, to raise a standing army, or to double the existing one, for the single object of crushing hungry and angry workingmen. The sad spectacle is presented in this broad, free land, longing for labor, of a Government with one hand driving laboring men to desperation, with the other bayoneting back their acts of despair; of a Congress enacting laws whose results it must raise a standing army to smother; of a great and peaceful republic whose legislation necessarily leads to insurrection and anarchy unless supported by arms! How long will our Congress continue to enact starvation and send it forth in statutes only to be compelled to raise an army to batter down the consequences of the hunger and want it has enacted? But this is the comment Congress is asked to make upon its own policy.—New York Herald.

Southern Pacific Railroad.

The Texas and Pacific railroad people have been holding an annual meeting, and settled upon what they are going to ask Congress for at the next session. They have wisely abandoned the branches to take care of themselves, and ask aid only for the 1,400 miles of main roadway from Fort Worth to San Diego. The form of the grant desired is $35,000 per mile in Government bonds of 5 per cent., $5,000 per mile to remain in the treasury as sinking fund and surety, besides which a first mortgage will be given on the road and its 18,000,000 acres of land; the limit of the Government's liability to be $2,500,000 a year, and this so secured as to forbid any ultimate loss. The company has already 408 miles of track this side of Fort Worth, of which 110 were built during the last year. For this amount of roadway, with fifty locomotives and 1,000 cars, the liabilities of the road are $18,500,000, of which the floating debt is less than three-quarters of a million, with $400,000 in bonds to meet this. The business of the running road the last year was $2,382,000, of which $319,000 were profits. The concerns of the corporation seem to be exceedingly well managed by its Vice President, Maj. Frank S. Bond, the value of its property constantly increasing, and its liabilities decreasing.—Springfield Republican.

Bridging the Bosphorus.

Capt. James B. Eads, engineer of the iron bridge at St. Louis, has made elaborate plans for a grand iron bridge over the Bosphorus, connecting Pera—European Constantinople—with the Asiatic shore. The bridge, if built, will be about 6,000 feet long—over a mile—will have fifteen spans, will be 100 feet wide, and, save the masonry and flooring, will be built of iron. The height of the roadway above the surface of the water will be 120 feet. The central arch will be 750 feet span. The two central piers will be fifty feet thick, of solid granite blocks, locked together with iron braces. The main piers will be 270 feet high from the foundation to the summit. It is estimated that the cost of construction will not exceed $25,000,000, and the time six years. Capt. Eads is now 58 years old. This bridge will probably be the crowning work of a great engineering experience.

A man in Boston made a savage assault the other day upon his doctor, while suffering from temporary insanity, brought on by a too-free indulgence in ham and eggs. The Globe calls attention to the fact that a too-free indulgence in that toothsome viand must therefore be regarded as a most dangerous and deadly practice.

Five lines of railroad furnished 77,000 men in the recent strike, or about one half of the whole number. The persons thrown out of employment by the strike were perhaps five time as many as the strikers.

"Gone to my husband's funeral—back in thirty minutes," is the notice found on the office door of a lady lawyer in Oregon, recently.

ALL SORTS.

Great Britain derives a revenue of £267,174 from the dog tax.

A lawyer in Warsaw, N. Y., has paid a neglected client $600 damages.

A guillotine that has cut off 22,000 French heads is exhibited in London.

Queen Victoria's maids of honor receive $3,000 a year and their board and washing.

Some one says: "It is human to fall into sin, devilish to remain in it, and angelic to rise from it."

It is stated that the United States Government still owns one-fifth of all the land in Alabama.

The leaders of the workingmen's movement in Baltimore claim to have 12,000 names already enrolled.

A hundred and forty-one railroads have gone into receivers' hands during the last eighteen months.

There are 12,000 dentists in the United States. The proportion of persons having sound teeth is only one in eighty.

The law against employing workmen or women in any kind of manufacture after 4 p. m. is carried out in England with great rigor.

A careful estimate of the hay crop of New Hampshire puts it at 660,265 tons, or 13,066 tons below that of 1876, worth over $6,500,000.

Louisiana's corn crop will be the largest since the war, and the crops generally are reported to be excellent throughout the State.

The peach was originally a poisonous almond tree, but cultivation and transplanting have made it one of the most delicious of all domestic fruits.

The pretty, little, odorous, and pungent spice we call a clove is an undeveloped flower, sun-dried in the bud. It is a native of the Molucca islands.

The great Corliss engine in Machinery hall, Philadelphia, has been taken down and packed, ready for removal to Providence. It will take seventy cars to carry it.

Mr. Robert Elliot estimates that there are 5,000,000 persons in the Madras Presidency of India, each of whose property is not worth at the most more than 3 or 4 shillings sterling.

The quickest ocean passage on record has just been made by the White Star steamer Britannic, which occupied only 7 days, 10 hours and 53 minutes from Queenstown to Sandy Hook.

A Chicago man has married three sisters, and all are living. He took them in the order of their ages, lived with each about a year, and then obtained a divorce. There are three more sisters left.

The steamer Eten, recently lost near Valparaiso, Chili, was another victim of the change of the sea currents caused by the great volcanic upheaval in the Pacific last May. The loss of life was 50, instead of 100, as at first reported.

The new Kentucky Legislature has a Hayes Democrat, who ran against the regular Democratic and Republican candidates in Carter and Elliot counties on a platform sustaining the administration, and was elected by a good majority.

An old farmer, on being asked why a peacock that was strutting through the yard was like the figure 9, couldn't see the resemblance; but light broke in on him when he was told that it was because it was nothing without its tail.

A Cincinnati liquor dealer applied to a customer for a letter of recommendation of a certain brand of whisky he had recently sold him. The customer wrote: "I have tried all sorts of insect poison and find none equal to your old cabinet whisky."

Chauncey Rose, of Terre Haute, Ind., was an exceedingly modest philanthropist. He once sent a check for $5,000 to another town to have it mailed there to the address of a charitable institution in Ohio, doing this to conceal the source of the donation.

The New York Sun says that Frank B. Carpenter, the artist, has sold his picture of "Signing the Proclamation of Emancipation" for $25,000 to a wealthy lady, a warm admirer of Mr. Lincoln, who, it is said, proposes to present it to the Government for permanent exhibition in the national capital.

According to the last census, there was in the country a manufacturing capital of $2,118,208,769, and to operate this workmen were employed to whom were paid annually $775,584,343. In farming there was a capital of $9,599,682,290, and the amount of wages and board paid annually to farm laborers was $310,286,285.

The story of Mehemet Ali, the new Commander-in-Chief of the Turkish army in Europe, is a dime-novel in a nutshell. He is the son of a French musician; when a boy ran away to sea; deserted his ship at Constantinople; afterwards fell under the favorable notice of Ali Pasha; was made a favorite in his household, was next sent to a military college; then in the army, where he has rapidly advanced.

It is estimated that there are 2,100,000 acres of wheat, this year, in Ohio, which, at eighteen bushels per acre, will give fully 37,800,000 bushels. The whole cereal crop of the State, including oats and corn, will be fully 170,000,000 bushels, worth at present rates $120,000,000, while the hay crop is worth not less than $20,000,000. It is thought that the clear gain to the farmers, after deducting all their own living expenses, will be at least $50,000,000.

The capacity of Louisiana to produce sugar is practically unlimited. The crop of last season, 190,672,570 pounds, was raised on about 105,000 acres of land only, being at the rate of 1,817 pounds of sugar and 114 gallons of molasses to each acre actually cultivated. Of the 26,000,000 acres of land in Louisiana, there are at the lowest calculation 5,000,000 adapted to the growth of sugar, and each of these acres would have to produce only 286 pounds of the staple to furnish the United States with all the sugar it need, which amounted last year to 1,429,000,000 pounds.

Iron Filings for Flower Beds.—Those who live near blacksmith and machine shops, and can get iron filings and rusty chips of iron to work into their flower beds, will add greatly to the rich and bright coloring of their flowers.—Farmers' Advocate.

FRUIT HOUSE PRICES!

GREATER BRGAINS THAN EVER.

All sugars reduced a half cent. All teas down 10 cents per pound. Choice raisins reduced to 7 cts. per pound. Sugar cured hams reduced to 11 cts. per pound. Shoulders reduced to 8 cts. per pound. Pickled pork down to 8 cts. per pound. No. white fish down to $4.50 half barrel.

SU CH LOW PRICES HAVE NEVER BEEN KNOWN

Our Tea Trade

Is constantly increasing. We now sell more in a day than we used to in a week—now sell a good tea at 25 cents a pound. Those who prefer a fancy article we have it up to the very finest article 60 and 90 cents per pound. No middlemen between us and our customers. We purchase direct of the importers and sell direct to the consumers, thereby saving them the profits of the speculator, jobber and wholesale dealer. All of these have to have their profits which adds 20 to 30 cents per pound to the tea before it reaches the consumer. This is the only secret of our success, doing away with the middlemen.

Young Hyson Tea,	25, 40, 50, best 90 cents per pound
Gunpowder Tea,	40, 60, best 90 cents per pound
Imperial Tea,	30 70, best 90 cents per pound
Oolong Tea,	25, 50, best 75 cents per pound
Japan Uncolored Tea,	30, 50, best 70 cents per pound
English Breakfast Tea,	50, best 80 cents per pound

SUGARS, SUGARS, SUGARS!

ALL DOWN HALF CENT PER POUND.

Coffee A, 11 cents. Coffee C, 10 cents. Choice Yellow, 10 cents.
Granulated and Crushed, 12 cents. Powdered, 12 cents.

COFFEE! COFFEE!

Our Best Rio, 25 cents. Good Fine Rio, 22 cents. Old Government Java, 30 cents.
Roasted Rio, 22 cents. Best Roasted, 28 cents.

No Advance on Meats.

Best Sugar Cured Hams, 11 cents.
Sugar Cured Shoulders, 8 cents.
Best Pickled Pork, 8 cents.

Syrups.

Cuba 40 and 50 cents.
White Drips, 75 cts. and $1.00.
New Orleans, 50 and 75 cents.

Raisins and Canned Peaches at a Terrible Sacrifice!

The large 3 lb. Can Peaches, 15 cents,
2 lb. Cans, 10 cents.
2 lb. Damsons, 15 cents.

Choice Valencia Raisins, 7 cents.
Strawberries, 10 and 12 cents.
2 lb. Green Gages, 25 cents.

FISH! FISH! FISH!

Harvest time being the great fish season, we laid in a large supply when they were low to supply our customers at the owest rates.
No. 1 White Fish, half bbls $4.00 New Pickerel in half bbls., $2.50 No. 1 White Fish in kits, $1.00.
New Pickerel, in kits, 75 cents, Boston Mackdrel, in kits, 75 cents and $1.25.
We have a No. 3 White Fish, small but sound fish, half barrels, $1.00.

OILS. OILS. OIL!!

Coal Oil per gallon, 20 cents. Headlight Oil per gallon 25 cents. Lard Oil, per gallon, $1.00
Fish Oil per gallon, $1.00. Best Golden Machine Oil per gal. 70c. Machine Oil per gal. 30cts

You can save at least 25 per cent. on the dollar at the

Fruit House, Fort Wayne, Ind

JOHN L. DAVIS,

OF THE

PIONEER HARDWARE STORE,

Would respectfully announce that he has made large additions in every department, and is prepared to furnish everything in the Hardwase line.

He keeps a full stock of

BUILDING MATERIAL.

Whichhe can sell at prices to suit the times. All kinds of

STOVES and TINWARE

on hand. He keeps a first-class TIN M R and is prepared todo all kinds of Eaves Trough hangnig Roofing, on short notice, and in a workmanlike manner.

MAIN STRFET, OPPOSITE COURT HOUSF AUBURN, IND

'THE REGULATOR'

DOWN! DOWN! DOWN!

FROM 10 TO 25 PER CENT.

HARNESS, SADELES, COLLARS, WHIPS, &c.,

At my new shop on seventh street, opposite Court House, in old Post Office building. Come and see me and I will sell you a good article for less money than you ever heard of before. All work warranted.

J. I. SMITH.

JAS. CLIFFORD,

WATERLOO, IND.

Keeps constantly on hand the best and choicest brands of all kinds of

Wines and Liquors,

Cigars, Tobaccos, &c.

He also has, in connection with the above a first class

BILLIARD HALL.

To our citizens and the traveling public, we would say that this is the popular resort at Waterloo. First door south of the railroad.

FOR SALE.

VALUABLE LANDS.

I offer for sale one section of land, in Kosciusko county, Ind., nine miles south west of Warsaw, adjoining W. Boybl, and a quarter section nearby, which I will sell as a whole or in lots of 40 acres or more, as the purchaser may desire. The land is well improved, well timbered and I will sell low for cash. Or I will sell on time, one-forth down, and the balance in ten years. Also a section in Fulton county on the same terms. For particulars address,

L. HEIST, Kendallville, Ind.

ELSWORTH, ANDREW & CO.

Have opened for the Spring Trade of 1877, an elegant line of

BRUSSELS & INGRAIN

CARPETS

In all the new and elegant designs; and will give very low figures to

CASH BUYERS.

A full line of

OIL CLOTHS.

MATTINGS.

LACE CURTAIS.

WINDOW SHADES,

STAIR RODS,

RUGS and MATS.

And a splendid stock of

WALL PAPER

AND DECRATIONS.

We solicit inspection from Auburn and vicininy,

ELLSWORTH, ANDREW & CO.

26 East Berry Street,
Fort Wayne, Indiana.

J. G. FLEDDERMAN

No. 27, East Main-St.

FORT WAYNE, IND'A

as the largest and finest stock of

CLOTHS, COATINGS, CHEVIOTS,

AND

CassimereS

in Ft. Wayne. The finest line of

Made up Clothing

ever shown in Fort Wayne

Youths' and Children's Clothing!

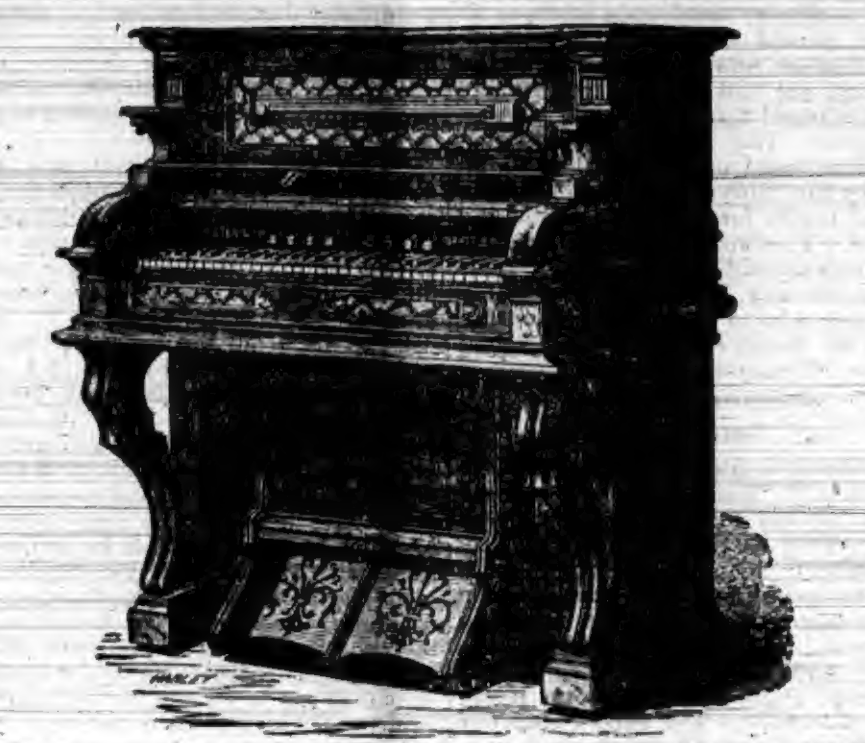
Furnishing Goods, &c.

Merchant Tailoring

All work done in all the latest styles, promptly attended. his largest stock

---

THE ONLY FIRST-CLASS INSTRUMENT.



The ESTEY ORGAN

Stands unrivalled. It has stood the test of years, and has never been excelled. Those wanting Organs should get the Estey, the very best there is made. Hundreds of testimonials in its favor, and increased rates every year. Call and examine them

G. H. YESBERA, Agt.

Next Door to Abright's, Main Street, Auburn, Indiana

Geo. De Wald & Co.

FORT WAYNE, IND.

Have always on hand the largest and best stock of Dry Goods and Ladies Dress Goods in the city. Our ctizens when of visiting Fort Wayne, should not fail call and examine their stock

DRY GOODS.

They can make it to the interest of every person who trade with them. They buy for cash and sell for cash, keep the best goods and sell for one price. Also agents for the Domestic Paterons
Their store is located at No. 1 Columbia Street.

GEO. DEWALD & CO.

STILL AHEAD AT F. E. DAVENPORT'S DRUG STORE!

A FINE ASSORTMENT OF

Fine Albums, Stereoscopes, Stereoscopic Views, Toilet Articles, Perfumery, Brushes &c.

School Books suitable for use in the Auburn and country schools. Writing paper, Pens, Inks, Copy Books, Slates, &c. Also a full line of Drugs and Medicines.

Perscriptions Carefully Compounded

The finest Tobaccos and Cigars to be found in the county Remember the place

DAVENPORT'S.

West of the Court House, Auburn, Ind.

RAIL ROADS.

Lake Shore & Mich Southern R R

AIR LINE DIVISION.

On and after June 10 1877, trains will run as follows:

GOING WEST

	Special Ex.	Pacific Ex.	Accm
Toledo	11 17a m	12 01 a m	4 00 p m
Wauseon	12 15 "	1 07 "	5 20 "
Bryan	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Butler	1 35 "	2 25 "	7 10 "
Waterloo	1 51 "	2 41 "	7 30 "
Sedan	2 00 "	2 49 "	7 40 "
Corunna	2 07 "	2 54 "	7 47 "
Kendallville	2 20 "	3 05 "	8 04 "
Ligonier	2 37 "	3 20 "	8 30 "
Goshen	3 28 "	4 12 "	9 25 "
Elkhart	3 50 "	4 35 "	10 00 "

GOING EAST.

Elkhart	7 53 p m	9 50 p m	7 10 "
Goshen	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Ligonier	8 25 "	10 42 "	8 12 "
Kendallville	8 49 "	11 17 "	8 45 a m
Corunna	8 56 "	11 31 "	9 00 "
Sedan	9 00 "	11 36 "	9 06 "
Waterloo	9 05 "	11 45 "	9 15 "
Butler	"	12 01 a m	9 35 "
Bryan	"	12 40 "	10 17 "
Wauseon	"	1 25 "	11 12 "
Toledo	"	2 40 "	12 30 "

CHAS. PAINE, Gen. Supt.
J. W. CARY, Gen Tic. Agt
J. M. CURTIS, Division Su

Pittsburg, Ft. W. & C. R. R

Condensed time card June 24, 1877.

GOING WEST.

	No 1 Fast ex.	No. 7 Pac. ex.	No. 3 Nigh ex	No 5 Mail.
Pittsburgh	11 45 pm	9 00 am	1 50 pm	6 00 am
Rochester	12 53 am	10 15	2 54	7 45
Alliance	3 10	12 50 pm	5 35	11 00
Orrville	4 46	2 30	7 12	12 55 pm
Mansfield	7 00	4 40	9 20	3 11
Crestl'e ar.	7 30	5 15	9 45	3.50
" lv.	7 50	5 40	9 55
Forest	9 25	7 55	11 15
Lima	10 40	9 00	12 25 am
Ft. Wayne	1 20 pm	11 55	2 10
Plymouth	3 45	2 46 am	4 55
Chicago	7 00	6 30	7 58

GOING EAST

	No. 4 Nig t ex	No. 2 Fast ex.	No. 6 Pac. ex	No. 8 Mail
Chicago	9 10 pm	8 20 a.m	5 15 pm
Plymouth	2 46 am	11 25	9 00
Ft. Wayne	6 55	2 10 pm	11 30
Lima	8 55	4 05	1 30 am
Forest	10 10	5 20	2 48
Crestl'e ar.	11 45	6 55	4 25
" lv.	12 05 pm	7 15 pm	4 35	6 05 am
Mansfield	12 35	7 41	5 05	6 55
Orrville	2 30	9 38	7 00	9 15
Alliance	4 05	11 15	9 00	11 20
Rochester	6 22	1 21 am	11 26	2 00 pm
Pittsburgh	7 30	2 30	12 15	3 30

Trains Nos 3 and 6 run daily. Train No. 1 leaves Pittsburg daily except Sunday. Train No 4 leaves Chicago daily except Saturday. All others daily except Sunday.

F. R. MYERS,
Gen Pass and Ticket Agent.

Ft. Wayne. Jackson & Sag. R. R

Short Line Between

Michigan and the South.

Time card in effect June 21—run by Chicago time

Going North.

Stations	Exp.	Accom.	Mail
Louisville	7 10pm
St. Louis	6 45
Indianapolis	4 25am
Ft Wayne	10 50 "	1 30	4 15p
Auburn	11 40 "	3 03	5 13
Waterloo	11 58 "	4 00	5 32
Summit
Pleasant Lake
Ar Angola	12 58 pm	5 30	6 35
Reading	1 49 "	7	7 32
Bankers	2 04 "	7	7 47
Jonesville	2 30 "	7	8 16
Jackson	3 45 "	9	9 20
Detroit	6 20 "	12	[illegible]
Grand Rapids	9 20 "	4	8 55
Lansing	6 00 "
Saginaw	9 13
Bay City

Going South.

Stations	Exp.	Accom.	Mail
Bay City
Saginaw	7 15 a m		3 50p
Lansing	10 40 ..		7 35
Grand Rapids	6 20 "	11 50a	7 00
Detroit	7 00 "		8 50
Jackson Dep	11 40 am	5 10p	6 00a
Jonesville	12 30 pm	7	7 12
Bankers	1 07 "	7	7 30
Reading	1 22 "	8	7 45
Ar Angola	2 22 "	9	8 43
Pleasant Lake
Waterloo	2 47 "	10 48	9 22
Auburn	3 02 "	11 31	9 36
Auburn Junction		1 10a
Fort Wayne Arrive	3 55 "		10 35
Indianapolis	9 45 "		5 55
St. Louis	8 30 am		7 25
Louisville	8 30 am		10 20

All trains daily except Sunday.

P. G. LOOMIS, Pres't

S. K. HOOPER Gen. Ticket Ag't.

Baltimore & Ohio Railroad.

IN EFFECT JUNE 24, 1877.

GOING WEST.

STATIONS:	Express	Express	Com'l A
lv New York	8 15am	8 25pm
Philadelphia	12 15pm	11 30
Baltimore	4 30	6 15am
Washington	5 43	7 55
Wheeling	8 00am	10 05pm	4 30pm
Bellaire	8 30am	10 30	5 00
Barnesville	9 45	11 46	6 16
Cambridge	10 46	1 00am	7 30
Zanesville	11 55	2 10	8 30
ar Newark	1 00pm	3 15	10 00
Columbus	3 00	5 00
Shawnee	4 30	10 0
lv Columbus	12 40	10 45pm
Newark	2 00	3 00am	4 20pm
Mt Vernon	3 00	4 35	6 25
Mansfield	4 28	6 15	10 00
Shelby	4 54	6 47	11 35
Monroeville
ar Sandusky
lv Chicago Junction	6 00	7 45	7 55am
Republic
Tiffin	7 15	8 30	10 20
Fostoria	7 45	9 10	11 40
Deshler	8 50	10 09	1 50pm
Defiance	9 52	11 06	3 50
Hicksville	10 41	11 53	6 13
Auburn Junction	11 22	12 35pm	7 50
Garrett	11 40pm	1 05	8 00am
Avilla	11 55	1 24	8 24
Albion	12 17	1 47	9 04
Milford Junction	1 06	2 37	10 34
Walkertown Junction	2 33	3 53	1 05pm
Chicago	5 40	6 40

GOING EAST.

Chicago	8 50am	9 40pm
Walkertown Junction	12 26pm	1 14am	11 29am
Milford Junction	1 45	2 34	2 37pm
Albion	2 30	3 10	4 15
Avilla	2 50	3 30	4 55
Garrett	3 20	3 55	6 00am
Auburn Junction	3 27	4 02	6 17
Hicksville	4 07	4 42	7 42
Defiance	4 54	5 27	9 10
Deshler	5 48	6 23	11 35
Fostoria	6 47	7 23	2 14pm
Tiffin	7 15	7 54	3 20
Republic
Sandusky
Monroeville
Chicago Junction	8 40	9 30	1 30
Shelby Junction	9 15	10 06	3 05
Mansfield	9 44	10 36	4 28
Mt. Vernon	11 14	12 06pm	7 40
ar Newark	12 15a m	1 10	9 45
lv Columbus	12 40	3 40
Shawnee	10 25
Newark	12 45am	2 05	5 55am
Lv Zanesville	1 50	3 10	7 10
Cambridge	2 51	4 10	8 14
Barnesville	3 58	5 10	9 23
Ar Bellaire	5 05	6 20	10 40
Wheeling	6 10	7 40	11 55
Washington	7 20pm	7 50am
Baltimore	8 30	9 00
Philadelphia	3 10am	1 15pm
New York	6 25	5 05pm

Zanesville Accommodation leaves Zanesville daily except Sunday at 6:30 a. m., and arrives at Columbus at 9:45 a. m.

Express trains run daily, other trains daily except Sunday.

L. M. COLE, Gen. Tick. Agt.

Detroit, Eel River & Illinois R. R.

TAKE EFFECT JULY 2, 1877.

GOING EAST.

	MAIL No. 2	ACCOM. No. 4	LOCAL FT No. 8
Lv. Logansport	7 45am	7 00	7 00
Mexico	8 27	8 07	8 27
Denver	8 37	8 25	9 00
Chili	8 45	8 39	9 20
Roann	9 03	9 08	10 05
Laketon	9 20	9 22	10 40
N. Manchester	9 31	9 50	11 15
Liberty Mills	9 40	10 05	11 37
Collamer	9 55	10 27	12 10pm
S. Whitley	10 00	10 35	[illegible]
Columbia City	10 25	11 18	1 30
Col-en's	10 42	11 43	2 30
Churubusco	10 56	12 00	2 50
La Otto	11 20	12 31pm	3 58
Cedar Creek	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Auburn Junction	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Auburn	11 48	1 12	5 10
Butler	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]

Going West.

	No. 1.	No. 3.	No. 7.
Logansport ar	[illegible]	1 00pm	[illegible]
Mexico	6 16	12 00 m.	4 20
Denver	6 07	11 40am	4 00
Chili	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Roann	5 47	11 12	2 40
Laketon	5 32	10 50	2 00
North Manchester	5 23	10 35	1 35
Liberty Mills	5 17	10 21	1 08
Collamar	5 05	10 05	12 30am
South Whitley	5 02	10 00	12 20
Columbia City	4 40	9 23	10 25
Colfin's	4 24	8 57	9 40
Cherubusco	4 14	8 42	9 28
La Otto	3 55	8 10	8 45
Cedar Creek	3 40	8 00	8 28
Auburn Junction	3 27	7 40	8 00
Auburn	3 22	7 34	7 34
Butler lv	2 45	6 30	6 30

FRANK J. HECKER,
Gen. Sup't

Ft. Wayne, Muncie & Cin. R. R.

Muncie Route.

THE SHORT LINE TO INDIANAPOLIS,
—AND—
THE SOUTHWEST.

Time Card in effect July 1st, 1877.

STATIONS.	GOING SOUTH. 1. Mail.	3. Express.	5. Accom
FORT WAYNE	5 10 am	6 35 pm
Bluffton	6 17 am	7 45 pm
Montpelier	6 55 am	8 20 pm
Hartford	7 20 am	8 43 pm
MUNCIE	8 10 am	9 30 pm	5 00 a m
Newcastle	9 05 am		6 35 p m
Cambridge City	9 45 am		7 45 p m
Connersville	10 20 am		8 50 p m
Cincinnati	1 20 pm		11 40 p m
INDIANAPOLIS	10 25 am	11 18 pm
Louisville	10 50 pm	8 20 am
Terre Haute	3 15 pm	1 50 am
St. Louis	9 10 pm	8 30 am

STATIONS	GOING NORTH 2	6. Express.	4 Accom.
St Louis		8 00 am
Terre Haute		2 55 pm
Louisville		3 20 pm
Cincinnati	am		7 00 am
Indianapolis		9 20 pm
Connersville	10 40 am		10 40 am
Cambridge City	11 13 am		11 44 am
New Castle	11 50 am		12 55 pm
Muncie	12 45 pm	10 45 pm	2 30pm
Hartford	1 30 pm	11 31 pm
Montpelier	2 01 pm	11 57 pm
Bluffton	2 40 pm	12 23 pm
Fort Wayne	3 50 pm	1 45 am

All trains daily except Sunday. Trains run on Columbus time "Through" cars attached to trains 1 and 4, and run between Fort Wayne and Indianapolis via Muncie

GEO. W. MULLEN, Act'g Gen. Tick. Ag't.
W. W. WORTHINGTON, Gen. Supt.

JUST RECEIV'D

—AT—

J. ABRIGHT'S

Fine Gold and Plated Jewelry,
Ladies Gold Watches,
American Watches,

Rogers & Bro. Silverware,

A splendid line of imported Vases
Watch Chains, magnificent
Holiday Gifts, Lockets,
Ladies Sets, Gents

GOLD & SILVER SET

Sleeve and Collar Buttons, Jet
Shell and Horn Jewelry,
All at astomshingly

LOW PRICES.

Watches and Jewelry repaired on short notice and in good style.

Dr. A. G. OLIN'S Private Hospital, 187 East Washington St., Chicago, Ills, for the cure of all Diseases of a Private nature, resulting from early abuses or Infection of either Sex. Seminal Weakness producing Emissions, Loss of Memory, Impaired Sight, Lost Manhood or Impotency, Nervous Debility, permanently cured; disease of the Bladder, Kidneys, Liver, Lungs, Asthma, Catarrh, Piles, all Chronic Diseases, and DISEASES OF FEMALES, yield to his treatment. Dr. Olin has had a life-long experience, and cures where others fail. He is a graduate of the Reformed School, uses no mercury, has the largest practice in the U. S. LADIES requiring treatment with private home and board, call or write. Every convenience for patients. Send fifty cents for sample of Rubber Goods and circular of important information by express. DR. OLIN'S Female Pills, $5 per Box. Consultation free.

MARRIAGE GUIDE 272 pages. Secrets & information for the young and middle aged of both Sexes, on all diseases of a private nature. Valuable advice to the married and those contemplating marriage. How to be healthy and truly happy in the married relation. Everybody should get this book. Price 50 cents, to any address, sealed.

A PHYSIOLOGICAL
View of Marriage!

WOMAN AND MARRIAGE

A Guide to Wedlock and confidential Treatise on the duties of marriage and the causes that unfit for it; the secrets of Reproduction and the Diseases of Women. A book for private, considerate reading. 260 pages, price 50 cts.

A PRIVATE MEDICAL ADVISER! On all disorders of a Private Nature arising from Self Abuse, Excesses, or Secret Diseases, with the best means of cure, 224 large pages, price 50 cts.

A CLINICAL LECTURE on the above diseases and those of the Throat and Lungs, Catarrh, Rupture, the Opium Habit, &c., price 10 cts.

Either book sent postpaid on receipt of price; or all three, containing 500 pages, beautifully illustrated, for 75 cts. Address DR. BUTTS, No. 12 N. 8th St. St. Louis, Mo.

$45 PREMIUM WATCH AND CHAIN—a stem-winder. Free with every order. Outfit free. J. B. Gaylord & Co., Chicago, Ill.

$3 GOLD PLATED WATCHES. Cheapest in the known world. Sample Watch Free to Agents. Address, A. COULTER & Co., Chicago.

OPIUM and Morphine Habit absolutely and speedily cured. Painless; no publicity. Send stamp for particulars. Dr. Carlton, 187 Washington St., Chicago, Ill.

$2500 A YEAR. Agents wanted. Business legitimate. Particulars free. Address J. WORTH & CO., St. Louis, Mo.

THE AUBURN COURIER.

Devoted to the Interests of the Democratic Party and to the Collection of Local and General News.

Volume 7. AUBURN, DeKALB COUNTY INDIANA, SEPTEMBER 20th, 1877. Number 38.

The Auburn Weekly Courier

PUBLISHED EVERY THURSDAY, BY

TOM. C. MAYS.

One Year,.........$2, | Six Months,.......

Advertising Rates.

Space.	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	1 y.
1 Square......	2 00	5 00	7 00	12 00
¼ Column.........	9 00	12 00	18 00	20 00
½ Column..........	10 00	18 00	30 00	50 00
1 Column........	15 00	30 00	50 00	100 00

Local Notices 10 cents per line, first insertion 5 cents each insertion thereafter. Business cards Five Dollars.

BUSINESS DIRECTORY

ATTORNEYS.

WOODHULL and CROXTON,

ATTORNEYS AT LAW Angola, Indiana. Practice in Steuben and DeKalb Counties.

H. C. PETERSON.

ATTORNEY AT LAW and notary public. Office over Davis' hardware store, Auburn, Ind.

J. W. RICKEL,

ATTORNEY AT LAW Auburn, Ind. Special attention given to collections. Office over First National Bank.

A. F. PINCHIN

ATTORNEY AT LAW and notary public, Butler, DeKalb Co., Ind. Insurance and real estate business promptly attended to.

GUY PLUM

ATTORNEY AT LAW and notary public. Office in the Court House. Special attention paid to the collection of claims. Also agent for Home Insurance Company.

D. D. MOODY. P. V. HOFFMAN.

Moody and Hoffman,

ATTORNEYS AT LAW. Office in Odd Fellows' building, opposite Court House, Auburn, Ind.

BEST and McCLELLAN.

ATTORNEYS AT LAW, Waterloo, Ind. Will practice in the Courts of DeKalb & Steuben counties. Liberal Advances Made on all first-class Claims left in our hands for collection.

COURTS IN STEUBEN CO.	COURTS IN DEKALB CO
1st Monday in February	3rd Monday in Feb
4th Monday in April	2nd Monday in May
1st Monday in September	3rd Monday in Sep.
[illegible] Monday in November	2nd Monday in Dec.

R. WES. M'BRIDE, J. L. MORLAN, W. H. LEAS

McBRIDE, MORLAN and LEAS

ATTORNEYS AT LAW, NOTARIES PUBLIC, COLLECTING AND INSURANCE AGENCY Office over Fisher's Clothing Store, corner of Wayne and Marion streets, Waterloo, Ind. Will practice in all parts of the State. Especial Attention given to collections in DeKalb, Steuben, LaGrange and Noble counties.

COURTS IN DEKALB CO.	COURTS IN STEUBEN CO.
4th Monday in February	1st Monday in Febr'y.
3rd Monday in May.	4th Monday in April.
4th Monday in Septem'r	1st Monday in Sept'r.
3rd Monday in Decem'r	4th Monday in Nov'r.

PHYSICIANS.

DR. J. A. COWAN,

PHYSICIAN & SURGEON, Auburn, Ind. Office on Main street, over Central Grocery.

J. J. LITTLEFIELD,

PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON. Office over McIntyre's Block, Auburn, Ind. All calls promptly attended to.

W. S. ALLEN.

PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON, Office West o Court House, on Main Street, over Eldridge's store. Same office lately occupied by Dr. Cowan.

DR. TRITCH.

HOMEOPATHIC PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON special attention given to Surgery and Chronic diseases. Office in Case's Block, Auburn Indiana.

DR. S. B. JOHNSTON.

DENTIST, WATERLOO, INDIANA, Does all work in the line of his profession at as low figures as possible. Special attention given to gold filling and making new teeth. All work warranted.

HOTELS.

AVELINE HOUSE,

MILLER & MORITZ, Prop's., corner Calhoun & Berry Sts., Fort Wayne, Ind.

BUTT'S HOTEL,

FORMERLY THE BIGLER HOUSE, JOHN BUTT & A. B. RICHARDS, Proprietors, Waterloo, Ind. Free omnibus to and from all trains Good sample rooms on first floor.

Central House,

MR. M. C. MARKEL, Prop. Corner Main and Seventh streets. Good Sample Rooms for Drummers.

MAYER HOUSE.

FORT WAYNE, IND., Messrs TAM & SCARBROUGH Lessees. Good Sample Rooms

SANDS HOUSE.

COR. WABASH AVE. & MADISON ST. CHICAGO, ILL. New House, elegantly furnished. Only $2.00 per day.

Geo. S. Palmer, O. Sands,
[Late of City Hotel,] C[illegible]. Proprietor

MISCELLANEOUS.

H. Wartenslaben

PAINTER and paper hanger. House painting a specialty. Residence corner Williams and Cedar street.

PRINTING.

COURIER OFFICE.

JOB PRINTING neatly executed. Fine work a specialty. Office in Odd Fellows' Building 2nd floor.

EXAMINATION OF TEACHERS.—Examinations will be held in Auburn on the first Saturday, and in Waterloo on the last Saturday in each month, beginning March 4, 1876. Examination begin at 10 o'clock A. M.

JAMES A. BARNES Co. Sup't.

Come to Auburn when you want to buy a good piano, and M. F. Long Co., will sell you one as low as the lowest.

ELLSWORTH, ANDREW & CO.

Have opened for the Spring Trade of 1877, an elegant line of

BRUSSELS & INGRAIN

CARPETS

In all the new and elegant designs; and will give very low figures to

CASH BUYERS.

A full line of

OIL CLOTHS,

MATTINGS.

LACE CURTAIS.

WINDOW SHADES,

STAIR RODS,

RUGS and MATS.

And a splendid stock of

WALL PAPER

AND DECRATIONS.

We solicit inspection from Auburn and vicininy,

ELLSWORTH, ANDREW & CO.

26 East Berry Street,
Fort Wayne, Indiana.

J. G. FLEDDERMAN

No. 27, East Main-St.

FORT WAYNE, IND'A

as the larbest and finest stock of

CLOTHS, COATINGS, CHEVIOTS,

AND

CassimereS

in Ft. Wayne. The finest line of

Made up Clothing

ever shown in Fort Wayne

Youths' and Children's Clothing!

Furnishing Goods, &c.

Merchant Tailoring

All work done in all the latest styles, from seehislargestock

---

JUST RECEIV'D

—AT—

J. ABRIGHT'S

Fine Gold and Plated Jewelry,
Ladies Gold Watches,
American Watches,

Rogers & Bro. Silverware,

A splendid line of imported Vases
Watch Chains, magnificent
Holiday Gifts, Lockets,
Ladies Sets, Gents

GOLD & SILVER SET

Sleeve and Collar Buttons, Jet
Shell and Horn Jewelry,
All at astonishingly

LOW PRICES.

Watches and Jewelry repaired on [illegible]tice and in good style.

JAS. CLIFFORD.

WATERLOO, IND.

Keeps constantly on hand the best and choicest brands of all kinds of

Wines and Liquors,

Cigars, Tobaccos, &c.

He also has, in connection with the above a first class

BILLIARD HALL.

To our citizens and the travelling public, we would say that this is the popular resort at Waterloo. First door south of the railroad.

LAWSON'S CURATIVE

FOR THE CURE OF

RHEUMATISM

AND

NEURALGIA.

This marvelous preparation has cured hundreds of the most distressing cases of Chronic Rheumatism and Neuralgia, even when all other remedies have failed. It is fast becoming the

Acknowledged Antidote

for these diseases and can be relied upon by sufferers to relieve them of their pains and effect a permanent cure.

Do Not Give Up

your case as hopeless and settle down to the conviction that no medicine will help you; all we ask is a fair trial of the CURATIVE, and that you bear in mind that the nature of these diseases require persistent and faithful application to insure a perfect cure. In every community where the CURATIVE has been placed will be found many witnesses who will testify to what it has done for them.

Diphtheria, Sore Throat, Burns, Scalds, Bruises, Sprains, Wounds, Cuts, Chilblains, Inflammation, Headache, Toothache, Catarrh, Dyspepsia, Sour Stomach,

can positively be cured by the free use of the CURATIVE. Send to us for testimonials if you have any doubts.

Sold by all Druggists.

Price $1.00 per Bottle, 6 for $5.00.

PREPARED BY

Lawson Chemical Co., Cleveland, O.

For sale by F. E. Davenport.

---

50 CENTS PER BOTTLE.

J. S. BAILEY'S SALINE APERIENT.

50 CENTS PER BOTTLE.

This is the CHEAPEST AND MOST DELIGHTFUL PURGATIVE

Before the public. It is a delicious beverage, and as pleasant and sparkling as a glass of Soda Water. Far superior to sickening pills. It is held in high repute by physicians and surgeons for the speedy cure of Constipation, Biliousness, Torpid Liver, Dyspepsia, Loss of Appetite, Heartburn, Colic, Sour Stomach, Flatulency, Sick Headache, Kidney Affections, etc., etc.

For those who lead a sedentary or closely confined life, and become of a constipated habit, it acts like a charm. It is specially prepared for the masses, is put up in large bottles, and sold by all Druggists, at fifty cents. No family, no mother, no one traveling, no close student, no sewing girl, should fail to use it.

J. P. DROMGOOLE & CO., Proprietors, Louisville, Ky.

Worth Its Weight in Gold.

Undoubtedly the greatest modern discovery in medicine is DaCosta's Radical Cure for dyspepsia, sick headache, sour stomach, costiveness, billousness, loss of appetite, distress after eating, and all disorders caused by indigestion or a deranged liver. Its results are astonishing, and sure relief is guaranteed in every case where it is faithfully used. It tones up the stomach, regulates the liver, restors the natural appetite, strengthens the delicate and expels all morbid humors from the system. Typhoid and billious fever might, in almost every case be prevented by its timely use. Trial size 25 cents A very few doses will relieve, and a little perseverance cure you. Sold by F. E. Davenport.

Also Agents for Prof. Parker's Pleasant Worm Syrup, which is sure death to worms. Pleasant to take and requires no physic. Price 25 cents. Try it.

FOR SALE.

VALUABLE LANDS.

I offer for sale one section of land, in Kosciusko county, Ind., nine miles south west of Warsaw, adjoining W. Beybi, and a quarter section nearby, which I will sell as a whole or in lots of 40 acres or more, as the purchaser may desire. The land is well improved, well timbered and I will sell low for cash. Or I will sell on time, one-forth down, and the balance in ten years. Also a section in Fulton county on the same terms. For particulars address,

H. HEIST, Kendallville, Ind.

BILL BRITTON

THE DRAY MAN

Will attend promptly to all orders for

DRAYING AND HAULING.

Rutt[illegible]ing good teams and reasonable charges.

Sheriff's Sale.

BY virtue of a certified copy of a decree to me directed by the clerk of the DeKalb County Circuit Court in a cause wherein The First National Bank of Auburn is plaintiff and [illegible] Palmer and [illegible] defendants, requiring me to make the sum of One Hundred and Twenty Nine Dollars and Thirty cents, with interest on said judgment and costs, I will expose at public sale, to the highest bidder, on

SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 29th, 1877

Between the hours of 10 o'clock a. m. and 4 o'clock p. m. of said day, at the door of the Court House in DeKalb County, Indiana, the rents and profits for a term not exceeding seven years, of the following real estate, to-wit:

Lot number twenty-two [22] in Kuhlman's addition to the town of Auburn, DeKalb county, Indiana.

If such rents and profits will not sell for a sufficient sum to satisfy said judgment interests and costs I will at the same time and place expose the fee simple of said real estate, or so much thereof as may be sufficient to discharge said judgment, interest and costs.

Sale will be made without any relief whatever from valuation or appraisement laws.

J. C. St. CLAIR, Sheriff,
By T. D. GROSS, Deputy.

Guy Plum, Att'y for plaintiff.
Auburn, Ind, Sept. 4, 1877.

Pr. fee $5.50.

Sheriff's Sale.

BY virtue of a certified copy of a decree to me directed by the Clerk of the Dekalb Circuit Court, in a cause wherein Humphery Shoub et al is plaintiff, and William E. Sargant is defendant, requiring me to make the sum of three hundred and ninety-one dollars and seventeen cents, [[illegible]], with interest on said decree and costs, I will expose at public sale to the highest bidder, on SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 22d, 1877.

Between the hours of 10 o'clock a. m. and 4 o'clock p. m. of said day, at the door of the Court House of DeKalb County, Indiana, the rents and profits, for a term not exceeding seven years of the following real estate, to wit:

Lot number twenty-four [24] and lot number twenty-three [23] in block number sixteen [16] in the town of Garrett in DeKalb county Indiana.

If such rents and profits will not sell for a sufficient sum to satisfy said decree interest and costs. I will, at the same time and place, expose at public sale the fee simple of said real estate, or so much thereof as may be sufficient to discharge said decree interests and costs.

Said sale will be made without any relief whatever from valuation or appraisement laws.

JOHN C. ST. CLAIR, Sheriff
By Thos. D. Gross, Deputy.

P. V. Hoffman, Att'y for plaintiff.
August 28th, 1877.

Pf. $9.25.

Sheriff's Sale.

BY VIRTUE of a certified copy of a Decree to me directed from the Clerk of the De Kalb Circuit Court, in a cause wherein Albert C. Dawson is plaintiff, and John B. Rinehart is defendant, requiring me to make the sum of twenty-six dollars and forty-five cents (26.45), with interest on said decree and costs. I will expose at public sale to the highest bidder, on SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER, 15, 1877.

between the hours of 10 o'clock A. M. and 4 o'clock P. M., of said day, at the door of the Court House in DeKalb county, Indiana, the rents and profits for a term not exceeding seven years, of the following real estate. Thirteen and one-half acres of land described as follows to-wit:

The west half (½) of the south half (½) of the south-east quarter of section thirty-six (36) township thirty five [35] north of range twelve [12] east, containing forty acres more or less in DeKalb county Indiana.

If such rents and profits will not sell for a sufficient sum to satisfy said decree, interest and costs, I will at the same time and place expose to public sale the fee simple of said real estate, or so much thereof as may be sufficient to discharge said decree, interests and costs. Said sale will be made without any relief whatever from valuation or appraisement laws.

J. C. StCLAIR, Sheriff DeKalb Co.
H. C. Peterson Attorney for plaintiff.

Aug. 22nd A. D. 1877. Ptr's. fee $4.75.

Sheriff's Sale.

BY virtue of an execution to me directed from the Clerk of the DeKalb Circuit Court in a cause wherein Henry Funk for the use of Charles Kloiz is plaintiff, and John Reesch is defendant requiring me to make the sum of Two Hundred and Thirty-Two Dollars, with interest on said judgment and costs, I will expose at public sale to the highest bidder, on

SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 29th, 1877

Between the hours of 10 o'clock a. m. and 4 o'clock p. m. of said day at the door of the Court House of DeKalb county, Indiana, the rents and profits for a term not exceeding seven years, of the following real estate to-wit:

Lots number one hundred and twenty-three [123] and one hundred and twenty-four [124] in the western addition to the town of Auburn, Dekalb county, Indiana.

If such rents and profits will not sell for a sufficient sum to satisfy said judgment interest and costs, I will at the same time and place, expose at public sale, the fee simple of said real estate, or so much thereof as may be sufficient to discharge said decree, interest and costs.

Sale will be made without any relief whatever from valuation or appraisement laws.

J. C. St. CLAIR, Sheriff.
By Thos. D. Gross, Dept.

Best & McClellan and Rickel & Taft Attorneys for plaintiff,
Auburn, Indiana, Sept 4th, 1877.

Pr. fee $8 75.

Sheriff's Sale.

BY virtue of a certified copy of a decree to me directed from the Clerk of the DeKalb Circuit Court in a cause wherein John L. Davis is plaintiff and Nathan Varney et al. are defendants, requiring me to make the sum of fifty-eight [58] dollars and fifty-eight [58] cents, with interest on said decree and costs, I will expose at public sale, to the highest bidder, on

SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 29th, 1877

Between the hours of 10 o'clock A. M., and 4 o'clock P. M., of said day, at the door of the Court House of DeKalb county, Indiana, the rents and profits for a term not exceeding seven years, of the following real estate to-wit:

Lot number one (1) in block number eighteen [18] in the town of Garrett, in DeKalb county, Indiana.

If such rents and profits will not sell for a sufficient sum to satisfy said decree, interest and costs, I will at the same time and place expose at public sale the fee simple of said real estate, or so much thereof as may be sufficient to discharge said decree, interest and costs.

Sale will be made without any relief whatever from valuation or appraisement laws.

J. C. StCLAIR, Sheriff.
By Thos. D. Gross, Deputy.

H. C. Peterson, Att'y for Plaintiffs.
Auburn, Ind., Aug. 29th, 1877.

Pr. fee $8.25

Sheriff's Sale.

BY virtue of an execution and fee bill to me directed from the Clerk of the DeKalb Circuit Court, in a cause wherein Robert Work is plaintiff and Hiram Byers is defendant, requiring me to make the sum of Eighty Dollars and Twenty-Five Cents, with interest on said judgment and costs, I will expose at public sale to the highest bidder, on

SATURDAY, OCTOBER 6th, 1877,

Between the hours of 10 o'clock a. m. and 4 o'clock p. m. of said day, at the door of the Court House of DeKalb county, Indiana, the rents and profits for a term not exceeding seven years, of the following real estate, to-wit:

Lot number fifteen [15] in Mc arland's addition to the town of Auburn, DeKalb county, Indiana.

If such rents and profits will not sell for a sufficient sum to satisfy said judgment, interest and costs, I will at the same time and place, expose at public sale the fee simple of said real estate, or so much thereof as may be sufficient to discharge said judgment, interest and costs.

Sale will be made without any relief whatever from valuation and appraisement laws.

J. C. StCLAIR, Sheriff.
By Thos. D. Gross Deputy.

Auburn, Indiana, September 11th, 1877.

Pr. fee $4.00.

Special Notice to Pupils of Music.

By special arrangement with Prof. S. B. Morse, the Indiana conservatory of music has become a part of the Fort Wayne College. Great advantage will result from this arrangement to pupils from abroad in reducing the expense of a thorough course of music. Board including furnished rooms, fuel and light, will be provided at an expense ranging from $2.50 to $3.50 per week according to accommodations. Pupils will also be enabled to prosecute other studies at the same time. City pupils who find it more convenient to do so can receive instructions as heretofore at the office of the conservatory Burges Block. Fall term begins September 4th. For further particulars address, W. F. Yocum Pres. Ft. W. F. College, or Prof. S. B. Morse, Fort Wayne Ind

Excursion to the Rocky Mountains.

The Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe Railroad has arranged with the various railroad lines in the country for special round trip rates to the Rocky Mountains, and has secured the following rates to Denver, Colorado Springs, Canon City, Puelo and return; from Kansas City and Atchison, $45; St. Louis, $50; Chicago, $65; Quincy, $50; Cincinnatti, $65; Buffalo, $75, and correspondingly low rates from all points east, north and south. These tickets are good for 90 days and to stop at all stations west of the Missouri river. Tickets are on sale at all principal stations throughout the country. This is the new route to Denver through the garden of Kansas and Colorado. Send for maps, circulars, time tables, etc., to

T. J. ANDERSON,
Gen. Pass. Agent, Topeka, Kan.

FIRST NATIONAL BANK.

The First National Bank of Auburn Indiana tenders to the citizens of DeKalb county its facilities for the transaction of business. We loan money, receive deposits subject to check at sight or payable at a fixed date with a stipulated rate of interest. Sell exchange on New York, Chicago, Toledo and Fort Wayne procure such foreign exchange as may be desired, buy exchange and make collections on all available points, and do all usual and ordinary business done by first class banks. We will also take on deposit for safekeeping valuable papers such as deeds mortgages, notes bonds, agreements etc., guardians, administrators, trustees and all other handling trust funds together with merchants, manufacturers and farmers are solicited to open an account with us. We will deal liberally with all who call.

J. H. FORD, President.
JAMES V. HAZZARD, Cashier.

A Few Words of Wisdom.

For all who are seeking new homes in the West. If you are going to change your location, by all means you should keep on about the same latitude as where you formerly lived for in this way you will escape the severe climatic changes in the weather incident to the extreme North or South, having none of these things to contend with, your self and family are healthy and you become a producer at once, consequently soon independent; on the other hand should you listen to the many glowing accounts of the sunny South, or the mild climate of the North, and thus be induced to try your fortunes there, you will find the reality is not all your fancy painted it. If you go South it usually takes about two years to get acclimated to the climate, during which time, not being able to work, yourself and family are consumers, besides being constantly exposed to the malarial fevers which abound there, and the experience of many is that they return discouraged, leaving not a few loved ones beneath the sod in the sunny South. Therefore, in going West keep on about the same latitude which will insure health and happiness. There are most excellent lands in Northern Missouri on the line of the Hannibal & St. Jo. R. R. and in Kansas, Nebraska and Colorado, "just as cheap and good as the sun ever shown upon," why not accept a certainty rather than run the risk of losing all? Through day and sleeping cars are run from Toledo, Ohio, via the Wabash R'y and Quincy to St. Jo., Atchison and Kansas city, and from Chicago via Chicago, Burlington & Quincy R. R., whereby all arre furnished firstclass accomodations.

Send for map and time-table to J. A. S. Reed, 59 Clark street, Chicago, C. W. Boardman, Decatur, Ill., or T. Penfield, G. P. and T. A., Hanibal, Mo.

Buggies For Sale.

I am offering several new, well made buggies both double and single, at very reasonable rates They are of my own manufacture, and warranted for two years. I will sell them on one year time. Please call at my blacksmith shop and examine them. JAMES ANDERSON.

IS IT SUPERSTITION?

Dogs Wailing for the Dying and the Dead.

Men and women rated as being of sound mind would feel ashamed if asked if they believed in dreams or warnings, and yet there are few families exempt from a nervous feeling in cases husband, wife or one of the children has a particularly bad dream to relate at the breakfast table. Let one of the bugs called "death-ticks" get into the wall of the house and begin his "tick! tick! tick!" and even men of sound sense and liberal education will become a bit nervous as they call up the legends and superstitions connected with the curious music sent forth by a little stranger. People have asserted that the bug is a forerunner of bad news or death, and the assertion has held good in many instances. Crowing hens and howling dogs have been long held as "bad signs" by many people, and yet the average newspaper reader would almost feel insulted if asked if he believed that the midnight howling of a dog was a warning of death and disaster. Nevertheless, it is the purpose of this article to disprove its own assertion that sensible people do not take heed of warnings.

A few years since the father of a lady living at present in the western part of the city was taken seriously ill. Before the doctors had fairly decided that the case was dangerous a strange dog entered the yard about midnight and set up a mournful howling. There were half a dozen people stirring around the house, and the dog was at once driven away. He returned in half an hour and repeated his howl, this time almost under the sick man's window. The patient awakened from sleep by the noise, and as the watchers started to drive the dog away he said:

"I shall be a dead man in less than three days!"

The strange brute could hardly be driven out of the yard, much to the wonder and amazement of the watchers. The patient was much worse the next morning and he lost no time in making his will. The doctors, nurses and friends made light of the dog's visit, and readily invented a number of excuses for his howling at that particular place and hour.

"That dog is warning me to prepare for death!" was the firm reply of the patient, and further arguments only annoyed him. At dark the shadow of death had crossed his face, and it was plain that his hour had come. An hour before midnight the strange dog reappeared, coming as softly as a spirit, and his long-drawn, lonesome howls startled the watchers so suddenly that none of the men could move from their chairs for half a minute. The dog refused to be driven away this time. When clubs and stones were hurled at him he would run around the house or across the grounds, and return as soon pursuit ceased. It was in summer, and the windows of the parlor, in which the man was dying, were raised to admit the air. Just at midnight the dog which had been clubbed away five minutes before, bounded into the rooms through one of the window, uttered a blood-curdling howl, and then dashed out of the open door. The effect upon the watchers may be imagined. It was several minutes before they recovered from the shock, and when they turned to the bed they saw the man was dead. The dog did not utter another howl after leaving the parlor; indeed, he at once disappeared and never was seen again.

Perhaps a still stranger case occurred in the city about two years ago. Two prominent citizens, living near each other, were drowned at the mouth of the river by the foundering of a yacht. Almost as soon as the news had reached home a dog belonging to one of them sat down on the lawn between the two houses and gave utterance to the most pitiful howls. The people about the house coaxed him from his position, but he refused to notice them. Pointing his nose from one house to the other he howled so dismally that the gardener was finally ordered to club him away.

When the bodies reached home they were met by such howls from the dog as made some men tremble. It would be idle to advance any theory or ask others to. The case has been simply and truthfully stated, and a score of witnesses can be had to substantiate every statement.

The third strange case occurred a few weeks since, and in this instance it secured the attention of a large number of people. At midnight the inmates of several residences were aroused by the dismal howls of a dog. The dog was not baying, but he sent forth a sound that made one's flesh creep. The note trembled and quavered and rose and fell for a minute at a time, and there was something so fearfully lonesome in the sound that several different parties left their beds about the same time and united in driving the brute away. Next morning it was known throughout the neighborhood that the wife of a prominent citizen was taken suddenly and seriously ill the night before, not half an hour before the strange dog set up his howling.

Next night the same dog returned and renewed his howling. The sound was even more lonesome than before. It penetrated every chamber for two or three blocks around, and people thus suddenly started from slumber were as frightened as if a burglar had been discovered in the house. The dog wold not leave the neighborhood until repeatedly attacked, and his persistency in remaining was not made clear till the next morning, when the people were shocked and surprised to find that the shadow of death had come to the patient's bedside. No dog had howled thus for years before, and that dog has not returned since. Why should he have come at that time? The accident fell under the observation of at least a score of highly respectable cizens, and every fact can be vouched for.—Detroit Free press.

PAPA'S LETTER.

I was sitting in the study,
Writing letters, when I heard:
"Please, dear mamma, Bridget told me
Mamma mustn't be 'sturbed.

"But I'se tired of the kitty;
Want some ozzer fing to do.
Writing letters, is 'ou, mamma?
Tan't I write a letter, too?"

"Not now, darling. Mamma's busy.
Run and play with kitty now."
"No, no, mamma. Me write letter.
Tan if 'ou will show me how."

I would paint my darling's portrait
As his sweet eyes searched my face—
Hair of gold and eyes of azure,
Form of childish, witching grace.

But the eager face was clouded
As I slowly shook my head,
Till I said: "I'll make a letter
Of you, darling boy, instead."

So I [illegible]
From his forehead high and white,
And a stamp in sport I pasted
'Mid its waves of golden light.

Then I said: "Now, little letter,
Go away and bear good news!"
And I smiled as down the staircase
Clattered loud the little shoes.

Leaving me, the darling hurried
Down to Bridget, in his glee.
"Mamma's writing lots of letters.
I'se a letter. Bridget, see!"

No one heard the little prattler,
As once more he climbed the stair,
Reached his little cap and tippet,
Standing on the entry chair.

No one heard the front door open,
No one saw the golden hair
As it floated o'er his shoulders
On the crisp October air.

Down the street the baby hastened,
Till he reached the office door.
"I'se a letter, Mr. Postman,
Is there room for any more?

"'Cause dis letter's doin' to papa,
Papa lives with God, 'ou know.
Mamma sent me for a letter.
Does 'ou fink that I tan go?"

But the clerk in wonder answered:
"Not to-day, my little man."
"Den I'll find anozzer office;
'Cause I must go if I tan."

Fain the clerk would have detained him;
But the pleading face was gone,
And the little feet were hastening,
By the busy crowd swept on.

Suddenly the crowd was parted,
People fled to left and right,
As a pair of maddened horses
At that moment dashed in sight.

No one saw the baby figure,
No one saw the golden hair,
Till a voice of frightened sweetness
Rang out on the autumn air.

'Twas too late! A moment only
Stood the beauteous vision there;
Then the little face lay lifeless,
Covered o'er with golden hair.

Reverent they raised my darling,
Brushed away the curls of gold,
Saw the stamp upon the forehead,
Growing now so icy cold.

Not a mark the face disfigured,
Showing where a hoof had trod;
But the little life was ended—
"Papa's letter" was with God.

—The Pacific Baptist.

A FLAT ROMANCE.

It was in a French-flat house—not one of those large, imposing structures, five or six stories high, where every suite of apartments consisted of a parlor, a sitting-room, a good-sized bedroom which opens into a smaller, which opens into a smallest, a comfortable airy dining-room, a well-lighted library, and one or two other rooms, but a rather shabby three-story dwelling that had been remodeled in ambitious rivalry of its more palatial neighbors, and on each floor of which there was a parlor, but no sitting-room, a smaller and smallest, but no good-sized bedroom, a dining-room as large as a respectable closet, a kitchen the size of a closet not quite so respectable, and no other rooms—that the following correspondence took place.

It was commenced by the third floor, who staid out late nights, and lay abed late mornings, on the afternoon of April 1, 1876, and lasted just five days—the barber's boy, who came at breakfast-time, and the grocer's boy, who called about dinner-time, in consideration of slight pecuniary rewards, acting as postmen.

"Madam—Though exceedingly reluctant to make any complaint in regard to those who reside under the same roof as myself, I am absolutely obliged in the present instance to do so. Unfortunately my business compels me to work during the better part of the night, and in consequence I am forced to make up for the rest denied me at the proper season by sleeping during the early part of the day. This I was able to do until a month ago, when your family took possession of the second floor. Since then I have tried in vain to slumber, or, if I succeeded in crossing the portals of the Land of Nod, my sleep was a sleep haunted by dreadful dreams of war and rumors of war, and thunder-storms, and earthquakes, and thinks of like nature, in consequence of loud stampings, strange skurryings, and shrill repetitions of the words, 'one, two, three,' or 'one, two, three, four,' or 'one, two, three, four, five,' or 'one, two, three, four, five, six,' to say nothing of occasional shrieks of wild laughter that have arisen from the apartment below me every morning between the hours of 8 and 9.

"If the annoyance can not be done away with, my aunt (who, happily for herself in this case, is deaf) and myself must seek other quarters, which we would be most loath to do, as this floor, which we have occupied for nearly a year, suited us—or perhaps I should say suited me—exactly until the mysterious performances of which I have written commenced in the second story.

"With respect,

"Elbert Muldrew."

"Sir—I am extremely sorry that the stamping, and one, two, threeing, and four-fiveing, and five-sixing, and wild shrieking, and apparent skirmishing, have disturbed your aunt (beg pardon—I forgot the old lady was 'happily deaf;' I meant to have said you) so much; but I fear it will be impossible for some time to come to do away with 'the annoyance.' And really, sir, to tell the honest truth, I don't think your health will suffer any more from your interrupted slumbers between the hours of 8 and 9 a. m. than mine from my loss of sleep between the earlier hours of 1 and 3—the hours that have heretofore been to me the sweetest hours of repose.

"Mabel Nelson."

"Madam—I fail to understand your insinuation about your 'loss of sleep.' Pray in what way do I interfere with 'the sweetest hours of repose' mentioned so pathetically in your note?

"Respectfully, E. M."

"Sir—I may be mistaken; perhaps it is your aged aunt, whom you consider so blessed in being deaf, and who, I understand, is the only occupant of the third floor besides yourself, who stumbles—excuse the expression—up stairs very often at the time named, sometimes singing snatches of melancholy songs, especially 'I'm leaving thee in sorrow, Annie,' and 'It may be for years, and it may be forever,' and sometimes uttering the most dismal groans and heart-rending sighs, and who, after reaching the room above mine, flings her boots down, one after the other, with two tremendous thumps right over my head. M. N."

"Dear Madam—If you but knew the cause of those miserable attempts at song, and 'dismal groans,' and 'heart-rending sighs,' I am sure your womanly heart would prompt you to sympathy instead of sarcasm.

"Yours truly, Elbert Muldrew."

"Dear Sir—If you were but aware of the very sufficient reason I could give you for the stamping and shouting and counting—that is, if you only knew why it was necessary that they should go on—I think your manly nature would come to my defense, and enable you to firmly resolve to sleep through the noise, or at least bear it a little more patiently. And, though a total stranger to you, some not-to-be-resisted impulse impels me to tell you 'why.' Besides which, I really don't want you and your aunt to think me unladylike and disobliging, and I wouldn't for the world drive you and your aunt away from the place you have lived in in comfort until my family became the tenants of the second flat.

"I am a poor, a very poor, girl, with one talent, which some good, far-seeing fairy must have bestowed upon me at my birth, the last one I, with human incapacity for peering into the future, should have chosen, if I had been capable of choosing for myself. I dance well, and have also, they tell me, a great gift at inventing pretty figures, and arranging tableaux to be introduced in fairy spectacles and performances of like nature.

"The wife of my father's last employer (poor father! he was an excellent book-keeper, but, having had a great deal of trouble with his eyes, is now nearly helpless), hearing of this one accomplishment of mine, and knowing that the support of the household would devolve almost entirely upon me, kindly interested herself in my behalf, and, thanks to her, I have and have had a great deal to do in the way of assisting at amateur theatricals and children's festivities.

"And one of the consequences of this pleasant occupation is that I have several little pupils in training for the great ball scene in the grand extravaganza of 'Cinderella; or, the Glass Slipper,' which is to be produced at the house of my principal patroness two weeks from to-day. They come to me every morning, between the hours of 8 and 9, as you unfortunately know too well, that being the most convenient time for both them and me.

"Little pupils will stamp, will skirmish, will indulge in extra steps, will laugh, will shriek, will join in a chorus of one, two, threeing, etc.; but little pupils give me and my old father and my young sister bread.

"Respectfully yours,

"Mabel Nelson."

"Dear Miss Nelson—Shout, dance, and laugh as much as you please—that is, let the little ones do so. I wish I were a pupil myself. It must be rather jolly ushering in the day with a merry dance. I'll change rooms with my aunt, who, being almost as hard of hearing as the old lady who, at the fifth or sixth tremendous round of cannon near her residence, became dimly impressed with the idea that somebody was knocking at the door, and, looking placidly over her knitting, feebly called out, 'Come in,' would never find out there was a dancing-class in the room below.

"Do forgive me for my bearishness to you. I am heartily ashamed of it—I am, upon my word. Your charming confidence reproved and delighted me, and I feel impelled, by the same mysterious influence of which you speak, to give you mine in return.

"I am a humble compositor, and still humbler occasional scribbler on a daily paper; a lonely sort of fellow, with no father or mother, no sister or brothers—no relatives, in fact, but the aged aunt to whom several references have already been made, and who is, God bless her! one of the most kind-hearted and affectionate creatures in the world, besides being a tip-top housekeeper and excellent cook.

"Some twelve or thirteen months ago a shadow fell upon my life, and, like many other foolish young fellows upon whose lives shadows have fallen, I once in a while stumble up stairs singing lugubrious songs at inappropriate hours. Of course you will guess at once that this shadow was a disappointment in love. It was, and being above all things constant in my nature, I cannot dispel it. Often, when coming home tired and heart-weary, I think of the dream I used to cherish a little over a year ago—a dream of a bright face that might ere long greet me when I returned from my labor, a sweet voice that would tenderly welcome me, a loving and devoted wife who would be the joy and sunshine of my life—and I suppose I do unconsciously sigh and groan. But since in so doing I disturb you, I will keep watch and guard over myself, and do so no more.

"Truly yours, Elbert Muldrew."

"My Dear Sir—I beg of you not to repress the sighs and groans on my account. Heaven forbid that I should be so selfish as to find fault with them if they afford any relief to your overcharged heart.

"A silent sorrow is the most dangerous. While we can indulge in audible regrets there is still hope for us. Believe me when I say you have my heartiest sympathy. But don't you think you yield too readily to the influence of a shadow? Were I a man, I should defy shadows; as I am only a girl, I laugh at them. But then, again, I've had no parallel experience to yours. With the exception of my father's misfortune, no great grief has fallen to my lot, my mother having died when I was too young to miss her; but I think that once I just escaped one.

"Don't change your sleeping-room. I received my scholars in mine because there was a fire there—in future I'll take them into the parlor.

"Respectfully yours,

"Mabel Nelson."

"Dear Miss Nelson—I shall change it. Don't fly to the parlor. If you do, you will be obliged to have a fire there, and coal is dear.

"So you have been near a great sorrow. May I tell you about mine?

"Very truly yours, E. M."

"My Dear Sir—You may. M. N."

"My Dear Miss Nelson—A year and seven months ago I was employed in a publishing house in a Western city, and my way to my place of business lay through a secluded street completely shaded by the wide-spreading branches of splendid old trees. Looking up this street, it seemed to end in a lovely green bower, and out of this bower came walking toward me one bright morning—the birds were chirping merrily, and the leaves rustling pleasantly—the prettiest girl I ever saw in my life.

"She had flashing steel-blue eyes, the most delicate complexion, short, loose golden curls, exquisite nose and mouth, and a springy, graceful step. But I won't dwell upon her manifold loveliness, for, young as I am, I have already learned that, no matter how kind and good a woman may be, she scarcely ever takes any interest in a man's enthusiastic description of the beauty of a member of her own sex. Suffice it to say that the moment my eyes fell upon her I said, with Geraint (Geraint of 'The Idyls of the King,' which I hope you have read and liked),

"'Here by God's rood is the one maid for me.'

"Well, almost every morning, for a month after that, at the same hour we met—when we didn't, I assure you I was blue enough for the rest of the day; and in a week or two more she began to blush prettily, then to smile faintly, then to smile more brightly; then I took courage and raised my hat to her, and she responded with a shy little nod, and then I offered her some flowers, which she took with a murmured 'thanks' as she sped hastily away.

"But I was beginning to despair of ever becoming acquainted with her, when one morning, as she emerged from the bower, an old friend and fellow-craftsman of mine, whom I had not seen for a long while, came suddenly around the nearest corner, started in surprise on beholding me, and then grasped me heartily by the hand.

"Much as I like him—for he is a real good fellow—I wished from the bottom of my heart that he had postponed his appearance for a few moments, until I saw him bowing with a pleased smile of recognition to the pretty fair-haired girl.

"'I'll see you again, old boy,' he said, starting to join her as she passed; but I held him fast. I feared to let the opportunity slip.

"'See her again?' said I, entreatingly. 'Who is she?'

"He looked at me a moment, as though he thought I had suddenly gone daft, and then quietly replied, 'A friend of my sister. Lovely girl, isn't she?'

"'Angelic,' said I. 'Will you introduce me?'

"'With her permission, most willingly.'

"'When? Let it be soon, very soon, and I'll owe you a debt of gratitude that I never shall forget the remainder of my life.'

"'You're hit hard,' said he, smiling. 'I'll call for you in the evening;' and we parted.

"I seemed to be treading on air the rest of my journey, and everything I beheld appeared to be endowed with new beauty and sweetness; the sun never shone so brightly; the birds never sung so cheerily; the trees never looked so green.

"Work? Bless you, Miss Nelson, I couldn't—I was too happy. 'Give me a half holiday, and I'll make it up to-morrow,' said I to the chief. He pushed up his spectacles and looked at me inquiringly—it was the first time I'd asked such a favor—and then granted it.

"I wandered about, the whole afternoon, in a sort of blissful dream, and full two hours before I expected my friend, went home to make ready for the promised interview. Never before had I been so hard to suit on the subject of cravats. I tried and rejected three—a black, a brown, and a crimson—and then went out and bought a lavender (the last color in the world I should have worn), because I remembered that was the color of the ribbon on her hat. I was putting on my gloves for the fiftieth time when Tom arrived, and, treating with scorn his proposition to have a smoke, I hurried him to the door and out into the street.

"When I found myself in the same room with her, I could scarcely believe in my happiness; yet there she sat before me, my friend's sister holding one of her pretty hands, and worshiping her as very young girls often worship other girls a little older and much more beautiful than themselves.

"Miss Nelson, she was charming—her voice low and sweet, and her laugh like rippling water. You know how often the charm of a sweet face is dispelled by a discordant voice and harsh laugh. When she talked and laughed, her face was sweeter than ever. And when I bade her 'good-night,' promising—the old excuse—to bring her, in a couple of days, a book of which I had been speaking, and which she had expressed a wish to read, I was more in love than ever.

"In just two days afterward—it had seemed like two months to me—book in hand, I presented myself at her door, and in answer to my ring an old woman appeared, who informed me, in an apathetic way, that 'the folks had gone, they had.'

"'Gone! impossible!' I exclaimed.

"'To Chicago,' she continued, in the same exasperating tone. 'His brother was a-dying, and sent a telegraph for him and her.'

"'Him and her,' I repeated, impatiently. 'Whom do you mean?'

"'Why, the father and the young girl.'

"'But they will return?'

"'No, they won't. They took what they wanted with them, and left the rest here in payment for some rent they owed me. You wouldn't be wanting a cook-stove or some flat-irons, would you?'

"'Haven't you their address?'

"'No, I hain't; they went in such a hurry, and it wasn't any use to me—Or a kitchen-table with a drawer?'

"Perfectly bewildered and awfully disappointed, I turned away.

"'Or a clothes-wringer almost as good as new?' called the old woman after me as I descended the steps.

"That night I didn't sleep at all, and the next morning, as I took my accustomed route to the office, the sunshine seemed faded, the street dreary, the song of the birds complaining and sad.

"I couldn't stand it. After a few days I gave up my position and started for Chicago. I had nothing but her name to guide me, and, of course, I didn't find her. Then I fancied I had discovered a slight clew, and hastened to a neighboring city. A letter from my friend followed me there, in which he stated that she was in New York, at a certain address, which he inclosed. I never stopped, day or night, after receiving the infoamrtion, until I arrived in New York. I reached the city at midnight. Early next morning I sought the house to which I had been directed. The sour-faced landlady told me 'they'd left the night before, and she knew nothing about them.' I suspect she must have had some ugly daughters.

"My old aunt, whom I had not seen since I was a little boy, I found in an 'old ladies' home.' She joyfully consented to leave, and come and keep house for me. A year has nearly passed away, and still no trace of her. I almost begin to despair of ever seeing her bright face or hearing her sweet voice again. But I am true to her memory. You may smile, Miss Nelson, but I am in solemn earnest when I declare I shall never love again. Wherever Ethel Brower is, my heart is with her.

"Most sincerely yours,

"Elbert Muldrew.

"My aunt talks of calling on you."

"My dear Mr. Muldrew—I cannot tell you how much, how very much I was interested in your story, which, by the strangest coincidence, forcibly recalls the period of my life when, for a little while, a cloud hovered near me. The similarity of our experiences strikes me as being so wonderful that I hasten to recount mine, that you may share in my wonder.

"About a year and a half ago I resided in a Western city, and almost every morning went to take lessons from an old French dancing-master, a dear old man, who, finding the number of his scholars increasing very rapidly, contemplated making me his assistant—a position I looked forward to with eagerness, as my father's eyesight had already begun to fail. Well, whenever I wended my way through a tree-shaded street—precisely like that you so graphically described in your last letter—to the residence of Monsieur Berant, I met a handsome young man, one of the handsomest I have ever seen. He had large honest eyes, dark wavy hair, and a certain sweet expression of face, not common among men, which led all vagrant dogs and other vagrants to approach him without fear. He was well formed; not tall; rather short, in fact; had— But I'll not bore you with a full description; for, inexperienced as I am, I have discovered that men, as a general thing, do not listen patiently to a woman's praise of the personal appearance of a man. After meeting him two or three times, I could not help becoming conscious of the glance of respectful admiration with which he regarded me. This look of respectful admiration continued for a month; then he greeted my appearance with a smile; then, in the most gallant way, raised his hat as I passed; then offered me courteously a fragrant bouquet (I have the flowers still—faded, but sweet); and at last one lovely September morning was about to present me, I am sure, with a lovely basket filled with fruit, when a friend of mine, who also proved, to my great surprise, to be a friend of his, appeared on the scene, and I left the rosy-cheeked peaches and luscious grapes behind me.

"Later in the day I met 'our mutual friend' again, and he was loud in the praises of the young man with the frank gray eyes, confirming in the most emphatic manner my own impressions as to his goodness and worth, and ending by asking permission to introduce him—a request that I granted, I will confess, with pleasure.

"That very evening they presented themselves—'our mutual friend's sister, a sweet, loving little thing, having spent the afternoon and taken tea with me—and a right merry happy time we four young people had, and when we parted it was with many promises to meet again.

"But, alas, we never met again. That night, soon after they had left, my father was summoned to the death-bed of his only brother, and at dawn we started for Chicago, leaving, as I afterwards discovered, Monsieur Berant inconsolable for the loss of his assistant. From Chicago we went to a neighboring city to meet my sister, who had been paying a long visit to an old friend; and from there we all three came to New York, my father wishing to consult a celebrated oculist resident here, and here we have been ever since.

"Now, don't you see, Mr. Muldrew, that if we had not been called away as suddenly as we were, I might—I write thus freely to you because you have been so frank with me—have become very much attached to the gray-eyed, dark-haired young man; and then, when at last obliged to separate from him, as I surely would have been, on account of the New York oculist, how great a sorrow would have been mine!

"As it was, my heart was only lightly touched—at least not deeply wounded enough to embitter my life, and render me unfit for the funny little parts that invariably fall to me in the amateur theatricals. Besides which, I have always had an idea that at some totally unexpected time I should meet Charles Lang again. In fact, I'm sure I shall.

"Very sincerely yours,

"Mabel Nelson.

"P. S.—Your aunt will be most cordially welcomed."

Down stairs in a hurry flew the third floor—he had taken to getting up early since the correspondence commenced—after reading this last note, and the second evidently expected him, for she opened the door instantly when he knocked, and swept him a dancing-school courtesy with a half-shy, half-mischievous look on her pretty face.

There stood the class of little pupils, prepared to stamp, shout, count, and shriek; there sat the old father, peering from under his shaggy eye-brows at the new-comer, but the bright-faced young fellow caught the little toil-worn hand held out to him, and pressed it to his lips in real old-fashioned lover style.

"And Mabel Nelson?" he said.

"My nom de theater. And Elbert Muldrew?"

"My nom de plume."—Harper's Weekly.

How to Make a Well.

Mr. J. W. Pinkham has a paper on "Wells and Cisterns," in Scribner for September, with plans showing how they are contaminated and how they should be constructed. He says of wells:

First, of course, the well must be so constructed that it cannot act as a drain for the neighboring soil. This can be done by making the wall above low-water mark of some material impervious to water, or by omitting this part of the wall altogether. The first can be accomplished by having the wall from a point two or three feet from the bottom made of brick with a coating of hydraulic cement on its exterior, or of hydraulic well-tubing with the joinings well protected with cement; in either case the earth should be thoroughly packed around the wall, and a slight embankment should be made around the orifice to prevent the in-flow of surface or storm water.

In such a well the draining surface is so reduced, and placed at such a distance below the surface of the ground, that in the great majority of the instances the introduction of foreign matter becomes impossible, except in so far as there is a chance that substances will fall into the well from above. To prevent this the well should be kept covered when not in use. In most cases, however, it is better to omit the upper part of the wall altogether. After the excavation is completed, the wall can be built in the usual manner for a distance of two or three feet, more or less, as circumstances may demand; the service pipe can then be placed in position, and the well arched over. The remainder of the excavation can then be filled with earth, well packed as it is thrown in, and the pipe carried to any convenient point. It will be necessary to place above the arch several layers of stones successively smaller to prevent the falling of earth into the space below.

The workmen will probably suggest a layer of turf or straw to accomplish this object, but the presence of either of these substances will cause the water to be unpleasant for a considerable time, and will prove the cause of much annoyance.

There is a prevalent notion that a well should be ventilated for the purpose of allowing noxious gases to escape; and that water is better for being exposed to the air. I hardly need state that the only noxious gases in a well (i. e., gases which render the water unwholesome) are the products of the decomposition of organic matter which has found its way into the well in ways which have been described above, and that water as in its subterranean passages is more perfectly aerated than it can be in any other way.

An Awful Night.

I passed a night once away from home. What I learned that night would fill a very large barrel. I had retired and was endeavoring to tangle myself up in sleep, when a most indescribable boquet of sounds stole into my room and entwined itself about my ears. It was the first strains of a cat-fight. I got out of bed and opened my mouth and dropped a "Scat!" out of the window. The yowling increased. I added a pair of $10 boots to the affair; a boot-jack followed the boots, but the noise continued with more zeal if possible than ever. My contribution was not the only one; from other windows a continuous fire was kept up; bottles, boots, shoes, slippers, and every available article that could be reached was shied into the darkness at the noise. Occasionally a more terrific yell would seem to indicate that the objective point had been reached, but still the yelling continued with unabating ardor.

At last I bethought me of a dark-lantern I had, and, lighting it, I turned the light down into the back yard, in the direction of the noise. What I saw I can tell about, but how I felt and looked would need a larger pen than mine to describe. To say that my hair stood up would be very tame. It not only stood up, but it fairly lifted me from the floor. I saw hanging from the clothesline a couple of Tom-cats, tied together by the tails, and engaged with all their might in tearing each other apart, while in the yard was a man with a bag, into which he was putting my boots, boot-jack and other contributions, making for him a fair night's work, and, after gathering up all the spoils, as he unslung the cats from the line and placed them in the bag and scaled the fence, it dawned upon me that I had been sold. I blew out my light and crept into bed, wondering if my angel grandfather was not smiling from beyond the clouds at his grandchild.—Boston Globe.

Jewelry Fashions.

In jewelry the newest designs for pins are long bars of gold or onyx set with diamonds, for scarf-pins or to be worn at the neck. Some of the handsomest designs shown at Tiffany's have onyx bars two inches long, from which the diamonds are hung as if they were slid on a gold bar resting on the onyx. Some of these pins are in such designs as lizards incrusted with diamonds, or long arrows barbed with diamonds, and a large diamond set near the tip. In ear-rings the designs are equally rich and unique. Arrows of gold, with the diamond set above the center, the diamond on a screw which passes through the ear, and the arrow is thus held in place; some of these arrows have large turquoises in the place of diamonds; they are very handsome, but not as beautiful as the ear-rings in the shape of small half-wreaths, the diamonds set in tiny leaves of gold. The two ends of the wreaths fasten by a spring, so that they look as if they hung through the ear; these are exceedingly graceful, and are imitated in pearls; in both cases the jewels swing free from the main setting, shaking and glittering with every motion of the wearer. Diamond aigrettes, or less-costly imitations, are worn with the feather aigrette set above them.—New York Evening Post.

The Pennsylvania Railroad Company is preparing a complete record of the tramps killed or injured on their line since the tramp business began, to include names of all the unfortunates as far as they can be determined.

THE SWEETEST NAME.

The name of mother! sweetest name
That ever fell on mortal ear;
The love of mother! Mightiest love
Which Heaven permits to flourish here.
Dissect a mother's heart and see
The properties it doth contain—
What pearls of love, what gems of hope—
A mother's heart beats on in vain.

The words of mother! when they flow
In love's true rhetoric from her lips,
The meteor stars of sin and shame
Are lost amid a bright eclipse;
And when we walk the glittering path
Wherein temptations oft we see,
O, then we realize how strong
The power of mother's love can be.

A mother's love! it never wanes;
What if her boy an ingrate seems?
The beauty of that wondrous love
Around the thankless offspring beams;
Though in the path of shame he walks,
Though crime hath driven him to the [illegible],
A mother's care can yet avail—
A mother's prayers may win his soul.

What heart like mother's can forgive
The peccadilloes of our youth?
What hand like her's can lead us back
From sin to innocence and truth?
O, name of mother! sweetest name
That ever fell on mortal ear;
O, love of mother! Mightiest love
That Heaven allows to flourish here.

PITH AND POINT.

A home ruler—The kitchen poker.

If you have failed at everything else, go to Turkey and be a Pasha.

A conscience void of offense is a good thing, but a farm void of a fence is quite another matter.

A Boston dealer in weathercocks has amassed a fortune. Who says nothing has been made in vane?

If a lady gives a gentleman the mitten the proceeding may be regarded as a slight-of-hand performance.

Give the tramps no quarter.—New York Herald. We don't. We seldom give them over 5 cents.—Norristown Herald.

When a man fools with stocks, he generally gets his foot in it. In the old times they had stocks that people sometimes got both feet into.

It tries a man's patience and faith in human nature most sorely to buy a coal-stove, and then see all his neighbors lay in a lot of wood for the winter.—Hawk-Eye.

Some one says old maids go by the name of "wilted lilies" now. Probably because, years ago, when certain young men asked them, "Wilt thou?" they wilted not.

Paterfamilias—"To-morrow is the tutor's birthday; now what can I get him for a birthday present?" Charley—"Get him a muzzle, papa; he's always biting the governess' cheek."

They were at a dinner party, and he remarked that he supposed she was fond of ethnology. She said she was, but she was not very well, and the doctor had told her not to eat anything for dessert except oranges.

"Do you know where I can get room to store a load of salt?" asked a countryman of a Boston clerk. "Perhaps my father can accommodate you," was the reply. "He has plenty of salt rheum on his hands."

The proprietor of a forge not remarkable for correctness of language, but who, by honest industry had realized a comfortable independence, being called on at a social meeting for a toast, gave, "Success to forgery."

Hair-Pins.—The Norristown Herald man says: "A reformer writes against hair-pins, but, as long as hair-pins are so much more convenient than forks for picking out walnuts and shellbark kernels, the women will not discard them."

When you see a dying fly come out of the butter and go crawling over the table-cloth with a disgusted look on its expressive countenance, you can bet your sesterces that you have been paying 35 cents a pound for oleomargarine.—Hawk-Eye.

An old darkey, fishing on the wharf, was heard talking to the fish he saw swimming around his line, in this fashion: "Gim me a bite, honey. De children am a-crying down to my house, and I tell you it's fish or nuffin' in dat 'stablishment."

At a duel the parties discharged their pistols without effect, whereupon one of the seconds interfered, and proposed that the combatants should shake hands. To this the other second objected as unnecessary, "for," said he "their hands have been shaking this half hour."

Six hundred million dollars are annually spent in the United States for drink. How many delinquent newspaper subscriptions does this sum contain? It is heartless to spend in the maddening cup what you owe the printer. He may be thirsty himself.—Catskill Recorder.

Aunt Emily—"Why, Nellie, don't you know it is unkind to catch hold of your sister and pull her hair?" Nellie (who doesn't see it)—"Well, auntie, I saw you holding Cousin Frank round the neck quite tightly yesterday when mamma was out, and pulling his hair, and he didn't say anything."

Old gentleman (examining what he believes to be a war map)—"Although I can trace the route of the Russians in their last movements, I do wish they would make these war maps a little plainer." Daughter—"Why, father, that's my Bazar pattern paper you have got hold of."—Harper's Weekly.

A little boy was noticed standing on the sidewalk on Main street, this morning, and crying bitterly. "What's the matter, sonny?" "Matter? Matter enough, I should say! Dad's got busted on stocks, mother's got the newraljy so bad she couldn't cook breakfast, sister's run off with a bullwhacker, baby's swallowed my top, and I've got a short bit so far down this here crack in the sidewalk that a feller with sixteen eyes in his head couldn't see one edge of it. That's what's the matter."—Austin (Nev.) Reveille.

At a Harrison county, Ky., wedding, we are informed, the bride danced several charming reels within a circle of three feet in diameter. She changed shoes once on account of her new ones not sounding right against the floor. The prompter gave the very unique commands during the dance, "Rock to the right, rock to the left, grind coffee, wring the dish-rag, rock the cradle," etc. At the wind-up of the dance the bride showed her agility by kicking the groom's hat off his head.

REBELLIOUS CRAZY HORSE.

An Exciting Episode at the Red Cloud Indian Agency.

[Camp Robinson (Neb.) Cor. Chicago Times.]

The arrival of Crazy Horse as a prisoner from Spotted Tail agency was attended with a number of exciting events. About 6 o'clock an ambulance drove up to the guard-house at Camp Robinson, bringing Lieut. Lee, Indian Agent at Spotted Tail; Crazy Horse, the fallen Chief; Spotted Tail himself, and several Indians as guards. The ambulance was escorted by about eighty Indian soldiers, partly from this agency and partly from Spotted Tail. On arriving at Camp Robinson Crazy Horse was led by Little Big Man and Touch-the-Cloud into the post Adjutant's office, which place was at once surrounded by Indian scouts and United States soldiers. The interpreter was then instructed to tell all the Indians that Crazy Horse would not be harmed, but would be put in the guard-house and be taken charge of by the soldiers. When they started to move him to the guard-house he held back and was forced along by Capt. Kennington, who was officer of the day, assisted by Little Big Man. It appears that Crazy Horse's revolver and knife had not been taken from him, and on being disarmed in the guard-house he secured his knife and attempted to make his escape. Little Big Man, however, hung on to him like a tiger, and received a severe cut on the arm from Crazy Horse. On emerging from the guard-house he was at once surrounded by soldiers, some of them with fixed bayonets. In the scuffle which ensued Crazy Horse received a wound in the abdomen which is serious but may not prove fatal. During the struggle to retain him, a number of the Indians who escorted him from Spotted Tail rushed up, guns and revolvers cocked in hand, motioning for the crowd to open so they might get a shot at him, but on receiving this wound Crazy Horse sank to the ground, groaning piteously. The Indians then refused to have him taken into the guard-house, and, when Capt. Kennington ordered four men to carry him in, one Indian, evidently a friend of Crazy Horse, leveled a pistol at the Captain's head, but his arm was pushed upward by an Indian standing by him. After having his arm dressed, Little Big Man returned to the scene of the disturbance, and gave some orders, whereupon Crazy Horse was placed upon blankets, and carried by the Indians into the Adjutant's office.

DEATH OF CRAZY HORSE.

A later account says: "Crazy Horse died last night from the effects of the wound received while attempting to make his escape. This morning the body was taken to his village, where the mourning friends paid their humble tribute to his memory, after which the village moved toward Spotted Tail agency to lay the remains away. They say Red Cloud agency is not on hallowed ground. The feeling among the Indians is generally good. They say that Crazy Horse was "the man without ears, who would not listen to counsel." His father remarked this morning that the whites had killed his son; but he was a fool and would not listen; it was a good thing. Good Voice, one of the Brule chiefs, says the Indians do not blame the whites for killing Crazy Horse, and that he brought it upon himself. These assertions go to show that most of the influential men among them are on the side of the whites."

Thurlow Weed's Hat.

It has been the daily custom of the venerable Thurlow Weed during the hot summer months to visit Washington Market, and to send to his residence, No. 12 West Twelfth street, from six to a dozen baskets of fruit. Punctually at 4 o'clock he has opened his hospitable doors to a company of pale women and sickly children, and the baskets have been speedily emptied.

The neighbors and intimate friends of Mr. Weed were considerably astonished on last Friday to see him walking bareheaded through the pouring rain. He stopped every little boy and girl he met, as well as many parents of little boys and girls, and asked of each, in a tone of sadness, whether he or she had seen a wicked little boy with a big hat.

In the war of 1812 Mr. Weed was a drummer boy in the Bluetail Regiment. The uniform he wore was severely simple. It consisted of a torn shirt, a well-patched pair of pants, and—a hat. After the wars he carefully laid aside the hat. It is kept in a box, and only taken out when Mr. Weed desires to buy a new hat. A week ago he sent for his hatter to come and see the old Bluetail hat, and make a new one as nearly like it as possible. The hat was made. It was to have been worn yesterday on the annual visit to Saratoga. On Friday afternoon the new hat reposed on the rack in the hall. Mr. Weed's eyes wandered to it as he stood dispensing fruit and kind words. Suddenly a little bareheaded boy approached him, holding a hat with an immense flappy rim. It was a very deep hat, and held nearly half a bushel of fruit. Mr. Weed is very near-sighted, but for a moment, as he emptied the fruit into that hat, he seemed staggered by its dimensions.

"Boy," he remarked, "either you have a very big head, or that hat doesn't belong to you."

The boy laughed, and darted out of the open door, carrying away the hat filled with fruit. The baskets were emptied, and Mr. Weed turned to enter his private room. As he passed by the hat-rack he stopped short. The hat was gone. Who could have taken it? Mr. Weed remembered, and, with a faint blush on his cheeks, walked out bareheaded into the rain, sheltered only by his umbrella, in quest of that boy. Capt. Byrnes, of the Mercer street police, was notified, and the family were informed by Mr. Weed that they could not leave town until the hat should be recovered.

THE LOST HAT RECOVERED.

A pleasant-faced, blue-eyed boy modestly rang at Mr. Thurlow Weed's door yesterday morning and asked to see him. Carefully wrapped up in paper he carried a parcel. As he stood in the presence of the venerable sage the tears filled his eyes and his voice trembled. "Mister," began the boy, "here's your hat; I didn't mean to steal it. While you were fillin' the other boys' hats with fruit I took it, for I had no hat, and I wanted to bring home some fruit to mother. I read in the Sun about the ungrateful boy stealing your hat, and I felt awful bad. Here's the hat, sir."

Mr. Weed patted the boy on the head. He took the much-prized hat, smiled affectionately upon it, gave the boy a few kindly words of advice, and encouraged him to do well.

Mr. Weed last night greeted his many friends and delighted in repeating the story of how he lost and found his hat—the famous hat of the Bluetail regiment of 1812.—New York Sun.

INTERNAL REVENUE.

Statistics of the Fiscal Year Ended June 30, 1877.

The following statement will show the amount of gallon-tax paid on spirits distilled from materials other than apples, [illegible] during the fiscal year ended, June 30, 1877:

ILLINOIS.

First district	$ 6,268,964
Second district	10,300
Third district	800,563
Fourth district	690,819
Fifth district	7,501,549
Seventh district	17,846
Eighth district	2,542,912
*Tenth district	650
Thirteenth district	13,323
Total	$17,847,305

*Abolished Oct. 2, 1876.

INDIANA.

First district	$ 9,695
*Second district	78,665
Fourth district	3,224,391
Sixth district	368,041
Seventh district	1,576,266
Eleventh district	4,212
Total	$ 5,259,410

*Abolished Nov. 1, 1876.

KENTUCKY.

Second district	$ 669,658
*Third district	2,742
Fifth district	1,578,978
Sixth district	2,304,942
Seventh district	1,332,357
Eighth district	157,067
Ninth district	55,964
Total	$ 7,099,718

*Abolished Sept. 20, 1876.

MISSOURI.

First district	$ 1,521,758
Second district	4,002
*Third district	5,301
Fourth district	18,424
Fifth district	653
Sixth district	23,083
Total	$ 1,573,747

*Abolished Sept. 20, 1876.

OHIO.

First district	$ 7,863,468
Third district	616,394
Fourth district	365,653
Sixth district	440,913
Seventh district	101,745
Tenth district	89,208
Eleventh district	792,730
Thirteenth district	7,364
Fifteenth district	14,093
Eighteenth district	39,721
Total	$10,351,484

WISCONSIN.

First district	$ 1,103,787
Second district	1,020
Third district	1,304
Total	$ 1,106,111

A comparison of the above figures with those of the preceding fiscal year shows the following result:

States	1877.	1876.
Illinois	$17,847,305	$19,457,817
Indiana	5,259,410	4,782,178
Kentucky	7,099,718	5,290,261
Missouri	1,573,747	135,253
Ohio	10,351,484	11,399,378
Wisconsin	1,106,111	1,456,776
Total	$43,237,675	$42,461,609

The following statement will show the internal-revenue receipts by States and Territories for the fiscal year ended June 30, 1877. This statement does not include the receipts for the sale of adhesive stamps, which cannot be apportioned among the several States and Territories:

Alabama	$ 106,010
Arizona	15,520
Arkansas	85,850
California	2,749,594
Colorado	75,775
Connecticut	661,420
Dakota	22,306
Delaware	470,175
District of Columbia	26,018
Florida	165,890
Georgia	278,879
Idaho	16,562
Illinois	21,670,203
Indiana	6,037,320
Iowa	810,399
Kansas	190,763
Kentucky	9,534,424
Louisiana	626,439
Maine	79,620
Maryland	2,705,246
Massachusetts	2,668,726
Michigan	1,821,892
Minnesota	239,464
Mississippi	78,063
Missouri	4,450,068
Montana	20,729
Nebraska	602,743
Nevada	58,312
New Hampshire	234,999
New Jersey	4,987,960
New Mexico	17,710
New York	14,452,180
North Carolina	1,775,348
Ohio	15,474,689
Oregon	53,100
Pennsylvania	6,279,046
Rhode Island	238,165
South Carolina	105,632
Tennessee	897,183
Texas	237,949
Utah	28,438
Vermont	50,093
Virginia	7,082,221
Washington	21,373
West Virginia	461,032
Wisconsin	2,867,432
Wyoming	15,204
Total	$112,544,668

The fifteen States from each of which over $1,000,000 were received contributed in the aggregate over $104,000,000, leaving less than $9,000,000 as the aggregate amount of tax paid by the rest of the States and Territories. Illinois alone paid nearly one-fifth of the aggregate amount collected, and the three States of Illinois, Ohio, and New York paid nearly one-half of the entire amount collected during the year. The six New England States paid less than $4,000,000, which is considerably below the amounts received from single districts in some of the Western States.

Mongolians in Australia.

We are not the only people who have on hand a troublesome Chinese immigration question. The Chinese are flocking to Australia in such vast hordes that the colonists are alarmed. In Queensland they are present in such numbers that the head of the Government has addressed the Governors of other states, asking for united action to check the inflow of the Mongolians. They are invaluable as workers, and there is not precisely such jealousy of them as is felt in California; but in Queensland they threaten to form a majority of the population, and much complaint is made of the vices they introduce. It is proposed now to impose a heavy poll-tax upon them, and to refuse to allow future immigrants to land unless they are accompanied by their wives.

THE great want in New York is civility in trade. Stewart, a short time before he died, said that one of the great plagues of his life was to find a salesman that would be civil to poor people who wanted a few needles and some tape.

BRIGHAM'S APOSTATE SON.

John W. Young Reclaimed to the Mormon Faith.

John W. Young, Brigham's apostate son, who renounced polygamy several years ago, along with two wives, to marry a handsome Philadelphia widow, has been lured back into the polygamic fold once more by the charms of one of his brother's widows, a daughter of Mrs. Stenhouse, who is now lecturing against Mormonism. Clara Stenhouse is the only member of her family that still clings to this religion, and she is so bigoted and fanatical that for a long time after her parents apostatized she refused to even speak to them, and treated them with the utmost contempt. John Young is the youngest child of the prophet's legal wife, and is the smartest, and has seen more of the outside world than any other of Brigham's children. He is a shrewd business man, a railroad magnate in a small way, and has been a very frequent operator in Wall street. His contact with the Gentiles in his long and frequent visits to the large Eastern cities has not tended to increase his faith in Mormonism, and it has long been well known that he only remains in the church for the emoluments which his father's position afforded him. Of course these privileges, including the handling of church tithing, were very convenient, but otherwise he had no belief in the doctrines of this gigantic religious fraud. Like the majority of prominent Mormons, John W. embraced polygamy, but for several years he has been a monogamist. His first wife was from Philadelphia, and it was while on a visit to her relatives that he met the woman for whom he discarded both first and second wives. He was a handsome, attractive man, and she a dashing young widow, and it seems it was a desperate case of love at first sight. She knew very well about his matrimonial entanglements, as his first wife was her own cousin, but that did not prevent her accompanying him to Utah under promise to marry him after their arrival if he would discard his other wives, which he accordingly did. This new marriage of course puts out of joint the nose of the monopolizing Philadelphia wife; but the popular verdict is that it serves her right, as she came out to Utah with the calm determination of betraying her own cousin by defrauding her of her husband, and carried her point with dogged pertinacity. She was an Eastern-born and educated girl, had already been once married, and could not find shelter under the excuse that she was raised in Mormonism and had been taught that polygamy was right. She may, perhaps, have loved John W., but most people believe that she was actuated by pure selfishness.

A Queer Little Beast.

The Norwegian lemming is an animal about the size of a mouse. It lives under stones in the summer—under snow in the winter. It is a savage little beast. It hisses and bites. About once in ten years they emigrate in the autumn, in large armies. They march in a straight line. They cross lakes and rivers. They go through haystacks rather than go around. Nothing stops them, not fire, cascades, nor swamps. If a man stands in the way they will jump at him as high as his knee. If struck they will turn around and bite and bark like a dog. Foxes, lynxes, owls, hawks, and weasels will follow them and destroy large numbers of them, but it does not check them. They continue their course until they reach the sea, into which they plunge, as persistent and progressive as ever, until the waves drown them and exterminate them.

M. RECORDON, of Geneva, has invented a machine by which blind people can write at once in characters meant for their blind brethren, and in ordinary letters legible with the eyes. A writer in a Paris paper says that he saw it in operation; and a few phrases which he himself wrote with it, without any preparatory study, were deciphered immediately with surprising rapidity.

The Misdirection of the Bile.

The misdirection of the bile, a consequence which ensues when the liver is inactive and the bowels torpid, produces a number of bodily evils. The blood becomes contaminated with the bilious fluid, causing the skin and the whites of the eyes to assume a yellowish tinge; dyspepsia and nausea supervene, the tongue becomes furred, the breath fœtid, there are pains in the side and between the shoulder blades, the urine is high-colored and scalding, and, in aggravated cases, jaundice and inflammation of the liver ensue. All these consequences may be prevented or obviated by using Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, a vegetable alterative tonic, which stimulates the inactive liver to exert itself in secreting and directing the bile, acts naturally upon the bowels, and removes every trace of indigestion.

It is a Well-Known Fact that many grocers sell DOOLEY'S YEAST POWDER at the same price they do the cheap, inferior kinds, and, as they pay more for it, make less money; hence they never sell it unless the purchaser demands and insists on having it. They keep it out of sight, and urge customers to take the common kinds because they are more profitable. Good, pure articles have a value, and cannot be sold as low as those that are adulterated.

THIRTY years' experience proves the Graefenberg Vegetable Pills to be the mildest and most effective medicine ever known for the complete cure of headache, biliousness, liver complaints, nervousness, fevers and diseases of digestion. Sold everywhere; price 25 cents per box. Send for almanac. Graefenberg Co., New York.

CHEW
The Celebrated
"MATCHLESS"
Wood Tag Plug
TOBACCO.
THE PIONEER TOBACCO COMPANY,
New York, Boston and Chicago.

THOUSANDS are entitled to increase of pension. They having been pensioned at rates below what their disabilities warranted, others as their disabilities have increased since first pensioned. All such can have their pensions increased, and those who are not pensioned, but entitled to pension, can secure the same by addressing, with stamp, McNeill & Birch, Washington, D. C. No fee till claim is allowed

Hofmann's Hop Pills cure the Ague at once

TEACHERS of VOCAL MUSIC,

Desiring the Best Book extant, should try FAVORITE SONGS An unequaled collection of Gems compiled for their use by Profs. H. R. and T. H. R. Christie, and supervised by Prof. R. M. McIntosh, the eminent author and teacher. Price $6.00 a dozen. Sample by mail, 50 cents. SPECIMEN PAGES FREE. R. W. CARROLL & CO., Publishers, Cincinnati, or LYON & HEALY, Chicago.

WANTED Men to travel and take orders of Merchants. Salary $1200 a year and all traveling expenses paid. Address GEM MAN'F'G CO., St. Louis, Mo.

If you feel dull, drowsy, debilitated, have frequent headache, mouth tastes badly, poor appetite, and tongue coated, you are suffering from torpid liver or "biliousness," and nothing will cure you so speedily and permanently as to take SIMMONS' LIVER REGULATOR or MEDICINE.

PURELY VEGETABLE.

The Cheapest, Purest and Best Family Medicine in the World! AN EFFECTUAL SPECIFIC for all diseases of the Liver, Stomach and Spleen.

Regulate the Liver and prevent CHILLS AND FEVER, MALARIOUS FEVERS, BOWEL COMPLAINTS, RESTLESSNESS, JAUNDICE AND NAUSEA.

SIMMONS LIVER REGULATOR

BAD BREATH!

Nothing is so unpleasant, nothing so common as bad breath, and in nearly every case it comes from the stomach, and can be so easily corrected if you will take SIMMONS' LIVER REGULATOR. Do not neglect so sure a remedy for this repulsive disorder. It will also improve your appetite, Complexion and General Health.

CONSTIPATION!

SHOULD not be regarded as a trifling ailment—in fact, nature demands the utmost regularity of the bowels, and any deviation from this demand paves the way often to serious danger. It is quite as necessary to remove impure accumulations from the bowels as it is to eat or sleep, and no health can be expected where a costive habit of body prevails.

SICK HEADACHE!

This distressing affliction occurs most frequently. The disturbance of the stomach, arising from the imperfectly digested contents, causes a severe pain in the head, accompanied with disagreeable nausea, and this constitutes what is popularly known as Sick Headache: for the relief of which, TAKE SIMMONS' LIVER REGULATOR OR MEDICINE.

MANUFACTURED ONLY BY
J. H. ZEILIN & CO.,
PHILADELPHIA.
Price, $1.00. Sold by all Druggists.

Four Months for One Dollar.

The CHICAGO DAILY NEWS, the only ONE-CENT newspaper published in the West, is a twenty-column paper, containing all the news of the day, in short, sharp, condensed form, aiming to give ONLY FACTS, and leaving to larger sheets the monopoly of the reporter's gush and the penny-a-liner's wearisome platitudes. It contains PRONOUNCED EDITORIALS upon the living questions of the day, copious TELEGRAPH and CABLE DISPATCHES, RELIABLE MARKET REPORTS, and, in short, a complete record of the news of the day the world over. In addition to being a complete newspaper, every issue contains a COMPLETED STORY, thrilling and romantic, and pointing a wholesome moral. The DAILY NEWS is INDEPENDENT IN POLITICS, espousing the cause of no party, but aiming to present exact and truthful statements of every political event or question, without fear or favor. It is LIVELY, ENTERPRISING, DECENT IN TONE, WIDE-AWAKE and SPICY, treating every subject briefly and pointedly, but in all things avoiding flippancy. It is a DAILY paper at the price of a weekly. It has a larger circulation, as has been proven by published affidavits, than any other daily paper published in Chicago. It has printed and sold over 77,000 copies in a single day. The subscription price is $3.00 a year, $1.00 FOR FOUR MONTHS. No subscription received for less than four months. ☞ We offer no Chromos or Patent Lightning Rods as Premiums, but guarantee to give you the worth of your money a hundred fold. Address
CHICAGO DAILY NEWS, Chicago. Ill.

TARRANT'S SELTZER APERIENT

Three Warnings.—A Sick Stomach—an Aching Head—and considerable general debility, are three warnings which it is madness to disregard. Dangerous diseases may be expected to follow them if not arrested without delay. Tone the relaxed stomach, calm the excited brain, invigorate the nervous system, and regulate the bowels, with

Tarrant's Effervescent Seltzer Aperient

If you wish to escape the evils which the premonitory symptoms indicate. How many consuming fevers, violent bilious attacks, nervous paroxysms, and other terrible ailments might be prevented if this agreeable and incomparable SALINE TONIC and ALTERATIVE were always taken in time! Sold by all druggists.

"The Best Polish in the World."

THE RISING SUN STOVE POLISH

IT IS BEING DONE ALL AROUND YOU.

Are you out of work? Don't you make money fast enough? Send for Circulars of "TOM SAWYER,"

MARK TWAIN'S NEW BOOK,

or Catalogue of all our books, and select one to please you, and make from $25 to $100 per week selling it. A trial will cost nothing. We will give you the Best Book and Largest Commissions, and you cannot fail to succeed. Write at once to the AMERICAN PUBLISHING CO., Chicago, Ill.

ONLY $1

For SIX BEAUTIFUL PICTURES, (different subjects,) 14x17 inches; Or for FIVE PICTURES, 17x22; Or for FOUR PICTURES, 19x24. Fac-simile copies of FINE STEEL ENGRAVINGS, made by the celebrated GRAPHIC process, printed on Heavy Plate Paper for framing. Send ten cents for Illustrated Catalogue containing over 100 pictures. Address, THE DAILY GRAPHIC, New York City.

ELASTIC RUPTURE BELT

The Best Truss without Metal Springs ever invented. No humbug claim of a certain radical cure, but a guarantee of a comfortable, secure and satisfactory appliance. We will take back and pay FULL PRICE for all that do not suit. Price, single, like cut, $4; for both sides, $6. Sent by mail, post-paid, on receipt of price. N. B.—This Truss WILL CURE more Ruptures than any of those for which extravagant claims are made. Circulars free.
POMEROY TRUSS CO., 746 Broadway, New York.

DO NOT FAIL to send for our New Catalogue. It contains valuable information for every person contemplating the purchase of any article for personal, family or agricultural use. Free to any Address.
MONTGOMERY WARD & CO.,
Original Grange Supply House,
227 & 229 Wabash Ave., CHICAGO, Ill.

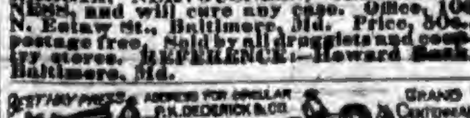
WHITNEY & HOLMES
ORGANS.
The Finest Toned and Most Durable Made.
New Styles. New Solo Stops.
Warranted Five Years. Send for Price-Lists.
WHITNEY & HOLMES ORGAN CO., QUINCY, ILL.

ORGANS!

Owing to the hard times and consequent reduction in wages and in cost of all material, and especially because we are contented with small profits, we are able to sell our New Style Organ, which has a chaste and elegant upright case, with lamp stands, carved brackets, curved lids and all other late improvements, and contains TWELVE STOPS FOR $67.00. On Pianos we can make equally favorable prices. For Illustrated Catalogue and full particulars address the manufacturers,
Alleger, Bowlby & Co., Washington, N. J.

HEADACHE.

DR. C. W. BENSON'S CELERY AND CHAMOMILE PILLS are prepared expressly to cure SICK HEADACHE, NERVOUS HEADACHE, DYSPEPTIC HEADACHE, NEURALGIA, NERVOUSNESS, SLEEPLESSNESS, and will cure any case. Office, 106 N. Eutaw St., Baltimore, Md. Price, 50c., postage free. Sold by all druggists and country stores. REFERENCE:—Howard Bank, Baltimore, Md.



A KEY TO BOOKKEEPING!

The Best Text Book and Self-Instructor in the World. Sent by mail, post-paid, on receipt of Fifty Cents, by the author, GEO. B. WELSH, Savannah, Georgia.

THE UNITED STATES
LIFE
INSURANCE COMPANY,
IN THE CITY OF NEW YORK,
261, 262, 263 Broadway.
ORGANIZED 1850
ASSETS, $4,827,176.52
SURPLUS, $820,000
EVERY APPROVED FORM OF POLICY ISSUED ON MOST FAVORABLE TERMS
ALL ENDOWMENT POLICIES
APPROVED CLAIMS
MATURING IN 1877
WILL BE DISCOUNTED AT 7%
ON PRESENTATION.
JAMES BUELL, - - PRESIDENT.

COLGATE'S CASHMERE BOUQUET TOILET SOAP. THE novelty and exceptional strength of its perfume are the peculiar fascination of this luxurious article, which has acquired popularity hitherto unequaled by any Toilet Soap of home or foreign manufacture.

WILHOFT'S Anti-Periodic, — OR — FEVER AND AGUE TONIC.
For All Diseases Caused by Malarial Poisoning of the Blood.
A Warranted Cure!
G. R. FINLAY & CO.,
New Orleans, Prop's.
☞ FOR SALE BY ALL DRUGGISTS.

SETH THOMAS CLOCKS RUN WELL WEAR WELL AND KEEP GOOD TIME

THOMSON'S PATENT GLOVE-FITTING CORSETS.

The friends of this UNRIVALLED CORSET are now numbered by MILLIONS. Prices are much reduced. MEDAL RECEIVED AT CENTENNIAL. Get the Genuine, and beware of imitations. ASK ALSO FOR THOMSON'S UNBREAKABLE STEELS. The best goods made. See that the name of THOMSON and the Trade Mark a CROWN, are stamped on every Corset & Steel.
SURPASSES ALL OTHERS FOR COMFORT
GIVE COMPLETE SATISFACTION
FITS THE FIGURE PERFECTLY

THE CHEAPEST & BEST
ADVERTISING
TO REACH READERS OUTSIDE OF THE LARGE CITIES.
We represent over 1,000 Newspapers, having a weekly circulation of over 600,000 Copies, divided into six different lists, covering different sections of the country.
Advertisements received for one or more lists. For catalogues, containing names of papers and other information, and for estimates, address
BEALS & FOSTER,
41 Park Row (Times Building), New York.

GRACE'S
SALVE

A VEGETABLE PREPARATION.
Invented in the 17th century by Dr. William Grace, Surgeon in King James' army. Through its agency he cured thousands of the most serious sores and wounds that baffled the skill of the most eminent physicians of his day, and was regarded by all who knew him as a public benefactor. 25 cents a box. For Sale by Druggists generally. Sent by mail on receipt of price. Prepared by SETH W. FOWLE & SONS, 86 Harrison Avenue, Boston, Mass.

NATURE'S REMEDY. VEGETINE THE GREAT BLOOD PURIFIER.

A SOURCE OF GREAT ANXIETY.
BOSTON, MASS., June 5, 1872.
My daughter has received great benefit from the use of VEGETINE. Her declining health was a source of great anxiety to all of her friends. A few bottles of the VEGETINE restored her health, strength and appetite.
N. H. TILDEN,
Insurance and Real Estate Agent,
No. 49 Sears Building.
Vegetine is Sold by all Druggists.

PERPETUAL
SORGHUM EVAPORATOR.
$15. $20. $25.
Cheap and Durable
Send for Circulars.
Address the only Manufacturers
CHAPMAN & CO., Madison, Ind.

Ho! Farmers, for Iowa!

Send a Postal Card for description and maps of 1,200,000 acres of R. R. Lands for sale on long terms, and first-class. Tickets FREE to land-buyers from Chicago and return. Address J. B. CALHOUN, Land Commissioner Iowa R. R. Land Co., 92 Randolph Street, CHICAGO, or CEDAR RAPIDS, IOWA.

$66 a week in your own town. Terms and $5 outfit free. H. HALLETT & CO., Portland, Maine.

$12 A DAY at home. Agents wanted. Outfit and terms free. TRUE & CO., Augusta, Maine.

$5 to $20 per day at home. Samples worth $5 free. STINSON & CO., Portland, Maine.

$5937 Made by 17 Agents in Jan. '77 with my 13 new articles. Samples free. Address C. M. Linington, Chicago.

$25 PREMIUM WATCH AND CHAIN—a stem-winder. Free with every order. Outfit free. J. B. Gaylord & Co., Chicago, Ill.

$3½ MAGNETIC TIMEPIECE. Nickel works. Hunter case. Sample Watch free to Agents. A. COULTER & CO., Chicago, Ill.

$400 A MONTH. AGENTS WANTED. 250 of the latest novelties. Send for Catalog. VAN & CO., Chicago.

$350 A MONTH—AGENTS WANTED—36 best selling articles in the world; one sample free. Address JAY BRONSON, Detroit, Mich.

REVOLVER FREE! Seven-shot revolver, with box cartridges. Address J. Bown & Son, 136 & 138 Wood-st., Pittsburgh, Pa.

AGENTS CAN MAKE $25 PER DAY selling our PATENT BEER FAUCET. Send for Circular. WORSWICK M'F'G CO., Cleveland, Ohio.

PENSIONS Procured, or NO PAY, for every wounded [illegible] [illegible] FITZGERALD, U. S. Claim Agt'y, Washington, D. C.

GUNS. THE BEST Breech and Muzzle Loading. Save 25 per cent. by buying of the Importers and Gen'l Agents. RUSSELL & HAYDENS, Jacksonville, Ill. Send for price list.

CLOCKS E. INGRAHAM & CO.'S are superior in design and not equaled in quality, or as timekeepers. Ask your Jeweler for them. Manufactory—Bristol, Ct.

$10 to $25 A DAY SURE made by Agents selling our Chromos, Crayons, Picture and Chromo Cards. 125 samples, worth $5, sent, postpaid, for 85 Cents. Illustrated Catalogue free. J. H. BUFFORD'S SONS, Boston. [Established 1830.]

$1.00 $1.00
Osgood's Heliotype Engravings.
The choicest household ornaments. Price One Dollar each. Send for catalogue.
JAMES R. OSGOOD & CO.
BOSTON, MASS.
$1.00 $1.00

JACKSON'S BEST
SWEET NAVY CHEWING TOBACCO
was awarded the highest prize at Centennial Exposition for its fine chewing qualities, the excellence and lasting character of its sweetening and flavoring. If you want the best tobacco ever made, ask your grocer for this, and see that each plug bears our blue-strip trade-mark, with words Jackson's Best on it. Sold wholesale by all jobbers. Send for sample to C. A. JACKSON & CO., Manufacturers, Petersburg, Va.

RIVERVIEW ACADEMY,
POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y.,
OTIS BISBEE, A. M., Principal and Proprietor.
Numbers its alumni by hundreds in all the honorable walks of life. Pupils range from twelve to twenty years in age. Next session opens Sept. 12th. Those wishing to enter should make an early application.

KEEP'S SHIRTS—only one quality—The Best. Keep's Patent Partly-Made Dress Shirts Can be finished as easy as hemming a Handkerchief. The very best, six for $7.00. Keep's Custom Shirts—made to measure, The very best, six for $9.00. An elegant set of genuine Gold-Plate Collar and Sleeve Buttons given with each half doz. Keep's Shirts. Keep's Shirts are delivered FREE on receipt of price In any part of the Union—no express charges to pay. Samples, with full directions for self-measurement, Sent Free to any address. No stamp required. Deal directly with the Manufacturer and get Bottom Prices. Keep Manufacturing Co., 165 Mercer St., N. Y.

AGENTS WANTED FOR THE ILLUSTRATED HISTORY
THE GREAT RIOTS
It contains a full account of the reign of terror in Pittsburgh, Baltimore, Chicago and other cities. The conflicts between the troops and the mob. Terrible conflagrations and destruction of property. Thrilling scenes and incidents, etc., etc. Send for a full description of the work and our extra terms to Agents. Address,
NATIONAL PUBLISHING CO., Chicago, Ill.

BABBITT'S TOILET SOAP.

Unrivalled for the Toilet and the Bath. No artificial and deceptive odors to cover common and deleterious ingredients. After years of scientific experiment the manufacturer of B. T. Babbitt's Best Soap has perfected and now offers to the public The FINEST TOILET SOAP in the World. Only the purest vegetable oils used in its manufacture.
For Use in the Nursery it has No Equal.
Worth ten times its cost to every mother and family in Christendom. Sample box, containing 3 cakes of 6 oz. each, sent free to any address on receipt of 75 cents. Address
B. T. BABBITT, New York City.
☞ For Sale by all Druggists.

THE
GOOD OLD
STAND-BY.
MEXICAN MUSTANG LINIMENT.
FOR MAN AND BEAST.
ESTABLISHED 35 YEARS. Always cures. Always ready. Always handy. Has never yet failed. Thirty millions have tested it. The whole world approves the glorious old Mustang—the Best and Cheapest Liniment in existence. 25 cents a bottle. The Mustang Liniment cures when nothing else will.
SOLD BY ALL MEDICINE VENDERS.

The N. Y. Daily Bulletin
IS NOW GENERALLY RECOGNIZED TO BE THE LEADING BUSINESS JOURNAL OF THE UNITED STATES.
Without political bias or alliances, it seeks to subordinate legislation to the material interests of the people. It favors Freedom in Banking, Freedom in Commerce, and Freedom of Corporations; demanding for the individual and the association the largest liberty to buy or sell, to lend or to borrow, anywhere and on any terms and conditions, without legal restriction.
Its Domestic Market Reports and its Commercial Statistics are fuller than those of any other paper.
IT IS THE ONLY JOURNAL THAT HAS EVER SUCCEEDED IN GIVING FULL AND FRESH REPORTS OF THE EUROPEAN AND ASIATIC MARKETS.
It is acknowledged to be one of the ablest exponents of the Banking and Financial Interests of the United States.
The DAILY BULLETIN has a Larger Circulation among Banks and Bankers, the Dry Goods Trade, and the buyers at auction, than any other Daily Commercial Journal in the United States.
The DAILY BULLETIN publishes the Official Circulars of the New York Produce Exchange, together with all matters connected with its particular interests. The BULLETIN has the Largest Circulation among the merchants who deal in the commodities bought and sold at that Exchange of any Commercial Journal in the United States.
Send for Specimen Copy.
TERMS OF SUBSCRIPTION:
Postage Prepaid.........$11.00 per Annum.
OFFICES:
5 and 7 South William St., New York.

SANDAL-WOOD
A positive remedy for all diseases of the Kidneys, Bladder and Urinary Organs; also, good in Dropsical Complaints. It never produces sickness, is certain and speedy in its action. It is fast superseding all other remedies. Sixty capsules cure in six or eight days. No other medicine can do this.
Beware of Imitations, for, owing to its great success, many have been offered; some are most dangerous, causing piles, &c.
DUNDAS DICK & CO.'S Genuine Soft Capsules, containing Oil of Sandalwood, sold at all drug stores. Ask for circular, or send for one to 35 and 37 Wooster street, New York.

WHEN WRITING TO ADVERTISERS please say you saw the advertisement in this paper.

Auburn Courier.

AUBURN, INDIANA, SEPT. 20, 1877.

NOTICE.

I hereby notify all persons indebted to me by note or book account that J. B. Casbeer, formerly a partner with me has now no authority whatever to receive collections on said accounts and any money paid to him after this date will receive no credit on my books.

A. R. COLLAR.

Sept. 4th, 1877.

A liberal reward will be given to any one who will inform me of the partnership refered to in the above notice of A. R. Collar. I know it was not in the practice of medicine he being only a student in my office. I can conceive of no excuse for such a barefaced falshood, only his pressing need of funds to defray expenses legally entailed by his own act a few years ago. Such an excuse would neither be creditable or legal for the collecting and expending of money belonging to me without my knowledge or consent, hence my notice forbidding payment to him.

J. B. CASEBEER.

The above libelous and slanderous article of J. B. Casebeer, forces us to "rise and explain," however much we may dislike the settling of any difficulties through the columns of a local newspaper, but since the publication of his article, there seems no alternative left me, but an appeal to the "bar of public opinion," before which he asks that we shall be judged and before which tribunal he shall be arraigned and tried. Before proceeding, however, it will be necessary to state a few facts by way of an explanation to the public; but in our statements we will exercise care that no facts shall be stated, but such as are admitted by both parties, and over which there has been no controversy. I went into his office on the 20th day of March, 1876, and remained until Jan. 1st, 1877. When I left his office there were differences existing—each claiming dues from the other. Those differences were settled by a board of arbitration, and said board awarded me $66.67, as due me from J. B. Casebeer. So much for facts over which there is no dispute. After I left his office he tried to collect monies due me for services rendered by me after leaving his office, and warned different parties not to pay me as I owed him—to which I refer to the action of the board of arbitration to prove was false, thereby compelling me to publish a notice forbiding payment to him, which notice provoked his contemptible and malicious assault upon my private character. In his article he offers a liberal reward to anyone who will inform him of the partnership that existed between us. In regard to that I would say that the first intimation I ever had that he pretended to deny the existence of such a partnership, was when I read his article. I treated a great many cases with him and a great many cases he knew nothing about, except when related to the charges, and I received a proportion of the earnings of the office. I do not understand that any of the elements of a partnership were lacking, except the fulfillment of his part of the contract, which he frequently violated. While I was with him he voluntarily told his customers that I was his partner. Now he can choose either horn of the dilema but he either lied then or now. He says, "he being only a student." I certainly plead guilty to the charge of being a student while in his office, and hope I shall ever be found studious, but if he claims I was a student of his, I shall object, for the simple reason that he never discharged the duties of a preceptor five minutes in his life—receiving my labor without rendering an equivalent in open violation of an express contract, thereby robbing me of my earnings. Again he says, "I can conceive of no excuse for such a barefaced falshood only his pressing need of funds to defray expenses legally entailed by his own act." We hope we shall not be held responsible for the feeble and futile efforts of a disordered conception, and would say for the benefit of an inquisitive public, that any obligations legally entailed by my own act, were legally canceled before entering his office. "People who live in glass houses should not throw stones." "He who is without sin among you, let him first cast a stone." By his abusive attack upon my private character, he has arrogantly paraded himself before the public as a standard of piety, virtue and morality and invited criticism, metophorically speaking, he has undressed and dared comment. His efforts shall be laughed at—his deformities despised. It is well known that J. B. Casebeer is a prominent member of the M. E. church—one of the official board, and holds a membership for life in the foreign Bible society, that was bought with the money of a poor kitchen girl. His name was written in the society record, but kind reader, do you suppose that his name is written in the Lord's Book of Life. I guess that he was afflicted with such an intensity that his gaze was fixed upon the cross of his Christ, and he heeded not the tears of the heart broken girl, who had deprived herself of the necessaries of life, to advance the cause of her Devine Master, but whose name was crowded off the record to give him credit of the same. While I was with him in his office, he asked me to go down to Jones' and get Miss Viola to work for him; she refused to and he charged her $2.00 for the visit. His avarice is a collossal affair. He stole $2,000 from an insurance company, when he had the life of his first wife insured, whom he knew to be tuberculuous and perjured himself when he swore to an ignorance of the fact. But worse and worse and more of it, it is a well known fact that he solicited an adultrous intercourse with a young lady and then offered her ten dollars to sign a libel to shield himself from the disgrace of an exposure. In the fall of 1876 he rendered his professional services to a prostitute from Albion, as a recompense for which he received her favors when she was no longer physically disqualified to render such services but right here comes in the beautiful application of his religion for while the star gazer has his eye of faith fixed upon calvary, his concubine cons-it weeds her wicked way down to h—ll. We have adduced only two or three examples in each of the catalogue of his crimes as illustrations. Volumes might be written, any one of which would glut the nasty scandal market of the community. Why is it that all virtuous women shun him as a viper, and his bosom friends are among the demreps with whom the word good is synonymous with the French word "blase." He is a fine specimen of a disciple of a meek and lowly Savior to bawl out liar when every page in the record of his past life is a polimpsest over which he has scribbled a thousand. Why do so many church members refuse to commune with him and literally entomb their religion rather than act in unison with the infamous hypocrite? And he yet remains the stone at the door of the sepulcher of their religious freedom, the only motives of his life being those of a nice hate and lust! And the end of the begining is not yet.

A. R. COLLAR.

EAGLE MILLS

PURELY [illegible]

FLOUR, CORN MEAL, FEED, &c.

The reputation of the Eagle Mills, its excellent facilities for making good flour together with the advantages it possesses in the way of improved machinery enables the proprietor to announce that he is now prepared to meet all demands in the way of custom work. The Eagle Mill brand of flour will be found on hand at reasonable rates. Orders delivered in any part of town free of charge.

P. W. SILVERS.

A PHYSIOLOGICAL
View of Marriage!

WOMAN AND MARRIAGE

A Guide to Wedlock and [illegible] Treatise on the duties of marriage and the [illegible] the secrets of Reproduction and the Diseases of Women. A book for private, considerate reading. 250 pages, price 50 cts.

A PRIVATE MEDICAL ADVISER!

On all disorders of a Private Nature arising from Self Abuse, Excesses, or Secret Diseases, with the best [illegible]

A CLINICAL LECTURE on the above diseases and those of the Throat and Lungs, Catarrh, Rupture, the Opium Habit, &c., price 10 cts.

Either book sent postpaid on receipt of price; or all three, containing 500 pages, beautifully illustrated, for 75 cts.

Address DR. BUTTS, No. 12 N. 8th St. St. Louis, Mo.

Dr. A. G. OLIN'S Private Hospital, 181 East Washington St., Chicago, Ills, for the cure of all Diseases of a Private nature, resulting from early abuses or infection of either Sex. Seminal Weakness producing Emissions, Loss of Memory, Impaired Sight, Lost Manhood or Impotency, Nervous Debility, permanently cured; diseases of the Bladder, Kidneys, Liver, Lungs, Asthma, Catarrh, Piles, all Chronic Diseases, and DISEASES OF FEMALES, yield to his treatment. Dr. Olin has had a life-long experience, and cures where others fail. He is a graduate of the Reformed School, uses no mercury, has the largest practice in the U. S. LADIES requiring treatment with private home and board, call or write. Every convenience for patients. Send fifty cents for sample of Rubber Goods and circular of important information by express. DR. OLIN'S Female Pills, $5 per Box. Consultation free.

MARRIAGE GUIDE 275 pages. Secrets & information for the young and middle aged of both Sexes, on all diseases of a private nature. Valuable advice to the married and those contemplating marriage. How to be healthy and truly happy in the married relation. Every body should get this book. Price 50 cents, to any address, sealed.

$45 PREMIUM WATCH AND CHAIN—a stem-winder, Free with every order. Outfit free. J. B. Gaylord & Co., Chicago, Ill.

$3 GOLD PLATED WATCHES. Cheapest in the known world. Sample Watch Free to Agents. Address, A. COULTER & Co., Chicago.

DOWN! DOWN! DOWN!

FROM 10 TO 25 PER CENT.

HARNESS, SADELES,
COLLARS, WHIPS, &c.,

At my new shop on seventh street, opposite Court House, in old Post Office building. Come and see me and I will sell you a good article for less money than you ever heard of before. All work warranted.

J. I. SMITH.

STILL AHEAD
AT
F. E. DAVENPORT'S
DRUG STORE!

A FINE ASSORTMENT OF Fine Albums, Stereoscopes,
Stereoscopic Views, Toilet
Articles, Perfumery,
Brushes &c.

School Books suitable for use in the Auburn and country schools, Writing paper, Pens, Inks, Copy Books, Slates, &c. Also a full line of Drugs and Medicines.

Perscriptions Carefully Compounded

The finest Tobaccos and Cigars to be found in the county Remember the place

DAVENPORT'S,

West of the Court House, Auburn, Ind.

THE ONLY
FIRST-CLASS INSTRUMENT.

The ESTEY ORGAN

Stands unrivalled. It has stood the test of years, and has never been excelled. Those wanting Organs should get the Estey, the very best there is made. Hundreds of testimonials in its favor, and increased rates every year. Call and examine them

G. H. YESBERA, Agt.
Next Door to Abright's, Main Street, Auburn, Indiana

Sheriff's Sale.

BY virtue of an execution to me directed from the Clerk of the DeKalb Circuit Court, in a cause wherein the Bank of New Carlisle is plaintiff and Isaac Diehl and Solomon Hess are defendants, requiring me to make the sum of Two Hundred and Sixty-Eight dollars and Sixty-Eight cents, with interest on said judgment and costs, I will expose at public sale, to the highest bidder, on

SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER, 8th, 1877,

Between the hours of 10 o'clock A. M. and 4 o'clock P. M. of said day, at the door of the Court House, in DeKalb county, Indiana, the rents and profits for a term not exceeding seven years of the following real estate to-wit:

The north-west quarter of the south-east quarter and the south half of the south-east quarter and the east half of the east half of the south west quarter, all in section [7] township thirty-four [34], north of range fifteen [15] east, in DeKalb county, Indiana.

If such rents and profits will not sell for a sufficient sum to satisfy said decree, interests and costs, I will at the same time and place expose to public sale the fee simple of said real estate or so much thereof as may be sufficient to discharge said decree, interest and costs.

Said sale will be made without any relief whatever from valuation or appraisement laws.

J. C. StCLAIR, Sheriff.

J. W. Rickel, Attorney for plaintiff.
Auburn, Aug. 9, A. D. 1877. P. f. $12.00

This sale has been adjourned to September 22nd, 1877. J. C. StCLAIR, Sheriff.

Sheriff's Sale.

BY VIRTUE of a certified copy of a Decree to me directed from the Clerk of the De Kalb Circuit Court, in a cause wherein Albert C. Dawson is plaintiff, and John B Rinehart is defendant, requiring me to make the sum of twenty-six dollars and forty-five cents (26.45), with interest on said decree and costs, I will expose at public sale, to the highest bidder, on

SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER, 15, 1877,

between the hours of 10 o'clock A. M. and 4 o'clock P. M., of said day, at the door of the Court House in DeKalb county, Indiana, the rents and profits for a term not exceeding seven years, of the following real estate. Thirteen and one-half acres of land described as follows to-wit:

The west half (½) of the south half (½) of the south-east quarter of section thirty-six (36) township thirty five (35) north of range twelve (12) east, containing forty acres more or less in DeKalb county Indiana.

If such rents and profits will not sell for a sufficient sum to satisfy said decree, interest and costs, I will at the same time and place expose to public sale the fee simple of said real estate, or so much thereof as may be sufficient to discharge said decree, interests and costs. Said sale will be made without any relief whatever from valuation or appraisement laws.

J. C. StCLAIR, Sheriff DeKalb Co.
H. C. Peterson Attorney for plaintiff.
Aug. 22nd A. D. 1877. Ptr's. fee $4.75.

Sheriff's Sale.

BY virtue of an execution to me directed from the Clerk of the DeKalb Circuit Court, in a cause wherein Singer Manufacturing Co., is plaintiff, and Andrew Daley is defendant, requiring me to make the sum of Ninety-Three Dollars and Thirty cents, with interest on said judgment and costs, I will expose at public sale, to the highest bidder, on

SATURDAY SEPTEMBER, 29th, 1877

between the hours of 10 o'clock a. m., and 4 o'clock p. m. of said day, at the door of the Court house of DeKalb county, Indiana, the rents and profits for a term not exceeding seven years, of the following real estate, to-wit:

A part of lot number twenty-eight [28] in the original plat of the town of Auburn, DeKalb Co., Indiana, bounded as follows, to-wit: Commencing at the south-west corner of said lot, and running north seventy-two [72] feet, thence east seventeen and one-half [17½] feet thence south seventy-two [72] feet, thence west seventeen and one-half [17½] feet to the place of beginning.

If such rents and profits will not sell for a sufficient sum to satisfy said judgment, interest and costs, I will at the same time and place, expose at public sale the fee simple of said real estate, or so much thereof as may be sufficient to discharge said judgment, interest and costs.

Sale will be made without any relief whatever from valuation and appraisement laws.

J. C. StCLAIR, Sheriff,
THOS. D. GROSS, Dept.

Rose & Hartman, Attorneys for plaintiff.
Auburn Indiana, Sept. 4th, 1877. Pr. fee $9.75.

Sheriff's Sale.

BY virtue of a certified copy of a decree to me directed by the Clerk of the Dekalb Circuit Court in a cause wherein Sumner R. Randall is plaintiff, and Ira A. West and Rosanna A. West is defendants, requiring me to make the sum of two hundred and forty one dollars and thirty cents ($241.30), with interest on said decree and costs, I will expose at public sale, to the highest bidder, on

SATURDAY, OCTOBER 13th, 1877.

Between the hours of 10 o'clock a. m. and 4 o'clock p. m. of said day, at the door of the Court House of DeKalb County, Indiana the rents and profits, for a term not exceeding seven years of the following real estate, to wit:

West half of the north-east quarter and east half of the north-west quarter of section thirty four (34) township thirty-three (33) north of range twelve (12) east.

If such rents and profits will not sell for a sufficient sum to satisfy said decree interest and costs, I will, at the same time and place expose at public sale the fee simple of said real estate, or so much thereof as may be sufficient to discharge said decree interests and costs.

Said sale will be made without any relief whatever from valuation or appraisement laws.

JOHN C. ST. CLAIR, Sheriff
By THOS. D. GROSS, Deputy.

P. A. Randall, Attorney for plaintiff.
Sept. 13th 1877. Pf. $8.00.

In a Nursery wherein all is life and laugh instead of crying and fretting, there is sure to be found Dr. Bull's Baby Syrup. Price 25 cents per bottle. For sale by F. E. Davenport.

1877. 1877.

GRAND OPENING OF
CARPETS,
ROOT & COMPANY.

Will display this week an elegant and choice assortment of extra superfine.

INGRAINE.

30c, 40c, 50c, 60c, 75c, 85c, $1.00 per yard. Tapestry Brussels. English Body

BRUSSELS,

$1.00, $1.10, $1.15, $1.25, $1.35, $1.50, per yard. Also are opening new.

OIL CLOTHS,

Curtain Materials, Mattings, Rugs, Stair Rods, Upholstery Goods etc, etc. All at uniform low prices.

Root & Company,
46 and 48 Calhoun-st. Fort Wayne Ind

GOLDEN OPPORTUNITY.

In order to introduce our 40-page Illustrated Catalogue (in book form) of Jewelry and Watches, with full information How to Become Agents, and Make Money, we will send, on receipt of One Dollar, by return mail, this Illustrated Catalogue, together with

OUR ONE DOLLAR GOLDEN CASKET.

OUR DOLLAR CASKET Contains one elegantly engraved Lady's Brooch and Ear Drops, Amethyst settings, inlaid with Pearls; one beautiful Cut Cameo Ring; one fine pair of Engraved Sleeve Buttons; three (3) grand spiral Amethyst Studs, inlaid with Pearls; one nobby Collar Button; one latest pattern Lady's or Gent's Pompadour Neck Chain; one elegant Cameo Scarf; one beautiful chased Band Ring; one solitaire Lake George Diamond Pin; one pair (2) elegant engraved Bracelets. All the above are the Finest Gold Plate, and arranged in a beautiful white, pink-lined casket. Illustrated Catalogue of Jewelry and Watches sent with each casket. On receipt of One Dollar we will send one of these Dollar Caskets, by mail, post-paid, or Four Caskets on receipt of $3.50. Address,

GEO. G. JACOBY & CO., Importers of Jewelry and Watches,
117 Wisconsin Street, Milwaukee, Wis.

Sheriff's Sale,

BY virtue of an execution to me directed from the Clerk of the DeKalb Circuit Court, in a cause wherein Sumner K. Rhoda is plaintiff, and Charles G. Smith and Daniel W. Smith are defendants requiring me to make the sum of Ninety-eight Dollars and Seventy-Two cents with interest on said judgment and costs. I will expose at public sale to the highest bidder, on

SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 29th, 1877.

Between the hours of 10 o'clock a. m., and 4 o'clock p. m., of said day at the door of the Court House of DeKalb County, Indiana, the rents and profits for a term not exceeding seven years of the following real estate to-wit:

Lot number forty-five [45] in Kuhlman's addition to the town of Auburn, DeKalb county Indiana.

If such rents and profits will not sell for sufficient sum to satisfy said judgment interests and costs, I will at the same time and place, expose at public sale the fee simple of said real estate, or so much thereof as may be sufficient to discharge said judgment interests and costs.

Sale will be made without any relief whatever from valuation or appraisement laws.

JOHN C. ST. CLAIR, Sheriff.
By THOS. D. GROSS, Deputy.

D. D. Moody, Attorney for plaintiff.
Auburn, Indiana, Sept. 4th, 1877. Pr. f'e $8.50.

Sheriff's Sale.

BY virtue of a certified copy of a decree to me directed from the Clerk of the DeKalb Circuit Court in a cause wherein Mason M. Bowen is plaintiff and Gidian Cogsdill, Joseph Depew, Abraham and Diana Depew are plaintiffs, requiring me to make the sum of four hundred and sixty-one (461) dollars and fifty-four (54) cents, with interest on said decree and costs I will expose at public sale to the highest bidder, on SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 22nd, 1877.

Between the hours of 10 o'clock a. m., and 4 o'clock p. m. at the door of the Court House of DeKalb County Indiana, the rents and profits for a term not exceeding seven years of the following real estate, to-wit:

Lot number one [1] in Tappin's addition to the town or village of Corunna, DeKalb county, Indiana.

If such rents and profits will not sell for a sufficient sum to satisfy said decree, interest and costs, I will at the same time and place expose at public sale the fee simple of said real estate, or so much thereof as may be sufficient to discharge said judgment, interest and costs.

Sale will be made without any relief whatever from valuations appraisement laws.

J. C. ST. CLAIR, Sheriff.

A. A. Chaplin, Att'y. for Plaintiff.
Auburn, Ind., Aug. 29, 1877. P. fee $8.50

HOW

Is it that the New York Store sells goods so much cheaper than their neighbors is a question often asked. It is because they sell for cash and

DO

Not have to sustain losses from bad debts, besides it inables them to pay cash for goods and get the discounts which make quite an item to

YOU

As consumers. It also enables them to keep all the new and desirable styles and novelties, by being always ready to take hold of them without delay, and it is a well established fact which all

KNOW

That there is no one concern more careful in selecting good and desirable goods than the New York Store.

IT

Being the object of the New York Store to give entire satisfaction to all their customers.

G. H. FORKNER & CO., Prop's.

Auburn Courier.

Local and Miscellaneous.

THE AUBURN MARKET.

—Corn 35c.
—Oats 22c.
—Eggs 8c.
—Butter 13c.
—Potatoes 40c
—Live Turkeys 5c.
—Clover Seed $5 50.
—Live Chickens 4c
—Wheat $1.16 @ 1.18
—The Courier $2.00 a year.

Pumpkin pies will soon be in order.

Try the bread of the City Bakery. tf.

Mr. Gibson now runs the City Bakery. tf.

Wild plums are said to be plenty this year.

T. J. Saxton has his yard arranged in tasty style.

A. F. Pinckin, of Butler, was in the city Monday.

Fort Wayne claimes a Murphy army 8,000 strong.

Finecut chewing at the little cigar store on the corner. tf.

Bro. Parker, of the Garrett News, is suffering from ague.

Noble county hogs are falling by the ravages of cholera.

Smoking tobacco at the little cigar store on the corner. tf.

Some one poisened Sam Pommerts rat-tarrier dog, Tuesday

Mrs. E. D. Hartman is visiting friends and relatives in Ohio.

The laborers can give five days this month to the Lord's service.

A lamp post has been erected in front of Miller and Getrost store.

J. H. Ehlers has added two oval show cases to his business room.

Go to the little cigar store on the corner for a good 5 cent cigar. tf.

Mrs. Bodine is paying her daughter, M. Lamb, a visit in Ohio.

The recent rains have added considerable water to Cedar Creek.

Henry Mader has been under the weather for a couple of weeks.

The hook and ladder boys held a regular meeting last Monday night.

Fred Davis and Will Spangler have recently returned to college life.

Ade Hare returned home Tuesday after a legthy visit from the city.

Betting on the ball game Monday was light. Tallies what we like to see.

Ben williams has had a "fat take" in the sprinkling line for a few days.

Be sure to read the New York Store's card before you put your paper away.

Circuit Court commences next Monday, with over 300 cases on the docket.

The Richland township Sunday school pic-nic will be held next Saturday, Sept. 20th.

Hank Little has disposed of the Hicksville Independent and is again in the city.

Marshal Galloway was to work last Saturday scraping and leveling Main street.

A new chimney is going up on the Woodford building, occupied by Sam Pommert.

Mrs. Wm. Sheffer has been suffering for several days with rheumatism in the face.

Senator Morton is still in a critical condition. President Hayes visited him last week.

You can buy goods cheaper at the New York Store, than any other place in Auburn.

You will find the largest and best assorted stock of dress goods at the New York store.

Mr. Berry, living on Jackson street, is having a new tin roof put upon his front porch.

Henry M. Stanley the African Explorer, has been heard from on the west coast of Africa.

Farmers stop at the Boot Upside Down and save money. Winter goods coming in daily.

Richard Elson and wife are visiting abroad. They expect to return in a couple of weeks.

The lowest bidder received the job of printing the bar docket. Weamer was the lucky man.

Don't forget the excursion to North Manchester next Saturday Sept. 22d. Fare only 65 cents.

Constable Shull sold one two-horse buggy, one grey mare, four hogs and an organ on Tuesday.

Mr. Grubb, the cigar manufacturer, has been confined to the house for several days with ague.

Those of our citizens who visited the Fort Wayne fair were very much pleased with the sights.

M. F. Long, Sr., is able to be about the house and yard again. His wife still continues quite ill.

Many of our leading Republicans manifest a deep anxiety about the health of Senator Morton.

Mrs. Bulkely and daughter, of Connecticut, are the guests of Mrs. Davenport sister-in-law to Mrs. B.

Harry Rush, at Angola, accompanied the base ball boys to this place on Monday, guest of A. Dawson.

C. D. Hare has been filling up the vacancy of a sick clerk in Geo. Ralston's grocery for a few weeks.

Dr. Tritch has removed to the residence of Mr. Lewis, on Van Buren street, rear of lumber yard.

Squire Allison hung himself at Striker, on Monday of last week, on account of financial difficulties.

Wheat market lively. Farmers begin to understand that they can always get outside prices in this market.

The deputy marshal was shooting dogs at the north end Monday night—shooting at them we learn.

Steve Jerardot has abandoned the St Nicholas Saloon and the former proprietor, [illegible] is in charge.

A great deal of sickness is reported in and about the city. No more, however, than at other neighboring places.

We learn that Mr. Benedict, agent at the Saginaw depot, contemplates leaving our city and locating in Iowa.

Hague, Craig and Gregg, are all lame in the left leg, was a discovery made by one of our juveniles the other day.

Prayer meeting was held at the M. E. church last Tuesday evening, conducted by our friend Joe Rainier.

M. S Osgood takes a deep interest in the newly organized base ball club. He is a worker in whatever he undertakes.

Begin to move your house plants toward the parlor, as Jack Frost cometh now when no man looketh for him.

The Butler Plows cannot be beat in either loam or sod ground, and will scour equal to the best steel or chilled plow. 6t

Hank Brandon, with Dave Snyder, left Monday for Freemont, Ind., where he has a contract for doing a job of work.

Johny Knoder talks of opening out a blacksmith and repair shop on Seventh Street in the building owned by Dr. Casebeer.

The old settlers of Whitley county held a social pic-nic and basket dinner in the court square, at Columbia City, last week.

Not one-half of the ladies can attend church now, simply because they have not made their purchases of fall millinery goods.

When people begin to hunt up their winter clothes, the water-melon season is about closed, and warm punch will be in order.

The late rains were quite inopportune for our farmers. Ten days good weather will be necessary to put in a good crop.

Daniel Kiser, brother of Peter Kiser, of Fort Wayne, committed suicide by taking morphene, last Monday morning in that city.

We experienced a light frost last Tuesday morning. A great deal of corn is yet standing which will be somewhat injured.

The wheat market has been a trifle dull from the fact that the roads have been too heavy for our farmers to draw an average load.

The Williams county fair commences September 26th and continues until the 28th. We acknowledge the kindness of a complimentary.

Sem. Rainier, of Fayette, Ohio, attended the wedding of his sister Anna last Saturday. Also a brother of Mr. Harris, of Chicago.

Sammy Pommert, as a tonsorial artist, is certainly a success. We here many strangers speak in complimentary terms of his rooms.

The greatest fraud, whose presence has afflicted Auburn for many a day, was the fellow styling himself Prof. Bond, a rope walker.

Mrs. Alph. Carter has returned from an extensive visit in the east. Her mother accompanied her and will remain for some time.

Howard Griswold, who has been confined to the house for several weeks with inflamatory rheumatism, was out Sunday for the first time.

The commissioners have let the contract for a bridge over Cedar Creek, on Nineth street, to Dan'l Culver, and men are now at work driving piles.

The Waterloo Press says that all reports agree that, the weather being favorable, the coming fair will be the largest ever held in this place.

Horse shoeing promptly attended to. The Best workmen in town. Prices reasonable. Don't fail to give me a call. James Anderson. tf.

The Flowers troup marched up and down Main street Monday with a very creditable brass band, composed of ladies and gentlemen, all one family.

The grasshopper is working upon the clover in this part of county, and in many places entire fields have been rendered worthless and will not pay for harvesting.

The trial between W. D. Rickel and I. Eaton before Justice Butt, at Waterloo, was decided in favor of the former. Now Doc. holds the room the balance of the year.

The late band contest at Goshen does not seem to have been an entirely harmonious affair. There are mutterings, not loud but deep at the decision of the judges.

Rev Mr. Tedrow and family have taken up their abode in our place, occupying the Dills property on Main street. Mr. T. has formerly resided at Benton, and is a minister of the United Brethren church.

The Kendallville base ball club will play the "Strikers," of this city to-Saturday, on the grounds of the latter. Those who wish to see a good game should be present.

The Court yard in front of the Jail presents quite a "flowery appearance" under the management of Mrs. St. Clair. Many ladies who admire flowers visit the scene every day.

The President visited Senator Morton last Thursday, and as the report says, shed "manly tears." We always thought such an act was considered womanly and therefor graceful.

Another theater company put up at Auburn House last Saturday. Three shows of this nature in our city all in one week, is too strong on the pocket books of our people.

The Boot Upside-Down advertises that they are all crazy. Selling good kip boots for boys at $1.50 explains the matter without them sending out bills to inform the public.

Hon Allen Zollers, Judge of the Superior Court created by the last Legislature and located at Fort Wayne, resigned last Monday. Judge Lowry is his probable sucessor.

Our friend Mr. Gibson at the City Bakery has now exclusive control of the baking department, and is ready with increased facilities to supply the demand for good bread. tf.

School commenced one week ago last Monday, under the efficient management of Prof. Seiler. Both parents and scholars are well pleased with the management of all the teachers.

If you have anything you regard as worth seeing by other people, bring it to the fair. The grounds ought to be filled with the productions of our people during the exposition.

We wish to impress upon a few of our subscribers the fact that there are small amounts due us, and we need them very much. Those in arrears will please make no further delay.

Last Monday was the day for Jewish Atonement, when people of that persuasion, fast from sun up until sun down. It will not be observed in our city as we have nary a Jew in town.

Dr. Brown, of Ohio, has rented the Auburn House and will have it conducted by other parties. He will engage in the practice of medicine, having his office in the hotel above named.

And now many an anxious thought will pass over the mind of the young teacher, as to where he or she will preside during the coming winter, and whether or not they will have to board 'round.

Mrs. Gains tried patience and compromise as long as possible. She has sent out writs of posession for five different pieces of her property in New Orleans. Somebody must move now, or pay up.

Considerable water melon pilfering going on in this section. Boys be careful that you don't have to summon the surgeon to remove the effects of an accidental discharge of your pistol or shot gun.

Three tons of oysters were sent north yesterday morning on the Saginaw road to Jackson, from the Baltimore road. The trade is looming up, and the bivaloes will have to suffer during the fair there this week.

Mr. Willis, who purchased the book store formerly owned by C. P. Houser, has moved his family to this place. We also learn that a gentleman from Hudson will locate here within a few weeks and engage in business.

The trial of Eaton vs. Rickel, at Waterloo, last Friday, must have been a red-hot affair if rumors are true. Lawyers, clients and witnesses used all the words in the "English language" to get up a square knock-down.

Columbia City Post. The Auburn Courier boasts of the amounts of wheat marketed at that place with the B. & O., and D. E. R. & I. Railroads, both leading direct to the great markets of the east. We see no reason why that point should not be one of the best in the the State for a good market.

We hear of a little trouble a few miles east of the city, wherein several of our best farmers are interested. It is said one of them was arrested for whipping two boys, and when the boys were cross examined they revealed the secret. It was a put up job on one of the neighbors and the case will be taken into court.

There is no discription of nervous diseases, rheumatism, neuralgia, headache or Sciatcia, that will not succumb to the healing and comforting curative properties of "Lawson's Curative." Without question it is the only sure remedy that can be relied upon. For sale by F. E. Davenport.

A blind man with a small hand-organ and a little boy did all they could do to entertain the passer-by for a penny, now and then, yesterday. If there is anything that should open the heart of a close-fisted man, it is certainly a spectacle like this

The Flowers family gave an entertainment at Ensley's Hall Monday evening. If this company can't make money the show business is no good. They are all of the same family the head of which acts as treasurer.

A lady by the name of Mrs. Hollopeter, living in the west end, died last Friday after an illness of seven years. She was a victim to the horrid disease consumption, and we learn has been confined to her bed the greater part of the last three.

Another cheap excursion to Chicago, by the Saginaw and Baltimore roads. Fare for round trip only $2.75 from Auburn. Next Wednesday Sept. 20th, and tickets good for six days. Stop at the Sands House, only $2.00 per day, with splendid accommodations.

As yet, but little of the second installment of taxes has been paid. Not one-third of the delinquent tax have been paid. The Treasurer will no doubt be crowded on the last days, when a rush is made for that office. Those who have the money should be on hand in time, and avoid the great crowd.

If a merchant wants to have a quiet storeroom and save his clerks from over exertion; bury his books as in the dust of ages; keep constantly on hand a well-selected stock of old moth eaten, dust-covered goods, let him refuse to advertise in his home paper. This reciept is only the experiments of facts well established.

Auburn business men continue to avail themselves of the large circulation The Courier enjoys to advertise their stock of goods. When you want anything in the dry goods, clothing or grocery line, call upon the firms who have the enterprise to let people know what they have to sell.

The splendid brass band that appeared on our streets last Monday and composed of members of th Flowers Troup will accompany the Sunday School excursion to North Manchester next Saturday. They will join it at Columbia City. Their "Sweet by and by," and "Hold the Fort," are simply splendid.

Isaac Cool, Esq., met with a painful accident while taking a drummer to Waterloo last Friday night. Going down the Robt. Reed hill one of the wheels of the vehicle slid into a rut, throwing Mr. Cool to the ground. His shoulder was badly cut and bruised while the end of his probosis resembles a "reformer."

Of course you will not fail to read the large advertisement of the Boot upside down, on the eighth page. Why is it this house is drawing trade from points fifteen and twenty miles away? Because they keep a good stock, sell cheap, and advertise liberally, three requisites that will win every time.

Plymouth Democrat. While Hayes and his crowd are junketing over the country in Tom Scott's palace car, it is refreshing to note the fact that Gov. Tilden, in his European tour, has steadily refused every offer to free passes for any purpose whatever. He was proffered a special train to Dover and a press pass on the steamer to Calais, both of which he refused, as well as public or civic courtesies.

Sunday Notes.

Elder Ward delivered the sermon at the Presbyterian church last Sabbath morning, owing to the illness of Rev. Henry Johnson, the present pastor.

Rev. Mr. Ervin delivered a temperance sermon at the M. E. church in the evening which was highly appreciated by the large audience.

Communion services were held at the Lutheran church last Sabbath. The attendance was very large.

There must have been "trouble in the camp" the night our theater troupe went over to Albion. Some of them came home by rail and others returned in the vehicle they went over in—Bill Britton's "street car." One of the party informs us that it was not money that was wanted, as Charley Folliet was flush with "legal tender." The company did very well financially and we learn the Albion people were much pleased with the performance.

Sunday School Excursion.

Don't forget that the Sabbath Schools of the county will take an excursion to North Manchester on next Saturday. Mr. Meese has made arrangements for a special train, and coaches will be furnished. The fare from Butler is only 75 cents. Everybody should avail themselves of this opportunity to spend the day pleasantly. Train will leave Butler at 7 o'clock in the morning, Auburn 7:34, and return at 7 o'clock to Butler. Bring your baskets well filled.

Mem. from Society Journal. "Miss S—— appeared to positive disadvantage because of cloudiness of complexion and—must we write it?—Pimples spoiling an otherwise beautiful countenance." [She should by all means procure and use Dr. Ball's Blood Mixture. Rep.] Sold by F. E. Davenport.

One of the Angola boys was so confident that their boys could beat our boys, he swung twenty-five dollars under the noses of several at the Saginaw depot. Windy Bill Britton was there and the fellow got his "huckelberry" as soon as Bill could get out his wallet The understanding was that the winner donate ten dollars to their respective nine. We do not uphold betting on ball games or any other games, yet it will be done, and cannot but "glory in Bill's spunk" for standing up for his own boys.

A lady and four children arrived here Tuesday evening in very distitute circumstances. They were on their way to Jackson, Michigan, where she has relatives living. They were compelled to ask for assistance from our citizens and a collection was taken up for their relief. The Marshal took them to the hotel where they were properly cared for. The sobs and pleadings of a faithful mother's heart will wake the sympathies of the hardest heart, and especially of our citizens as we have a most liberal community.

To Indianapolis. Grand Excursion Sept. 26th by way of Eel River road. Only $2.75 for round trip. Special train. Train to leave Butler at 3:55 a. m. Auburn 4:30. This will be the only chance to see the State fair at a cheap rate. By the arrangement you can see the State fair at little cost, and visit the Capitol of your State one of the most beautiful cities of the west. No passengers will be taken on the train after leaving Denver, making it a special excursion train. Refreshments will be furnished on the train at reasonable rates. Now is your time.

J. F. Breyer's dramatic troupe gave the Lady of Lyons and Enoch Arden last Friday and Saturday evenings, at Ensley's Hall. The hard times, sickness and short notice combined, prevented a large attendance, nevertheless, the plays were presented in an admirable manner by this fine troupe. Miss Drury as Pauline, was most excellent. Her fine facial expression and splendid voice gave an interest to the character not often realized. She was well supported. Breyer's Enoch Arden was good, but his Handy Andy, brought down the house. We hope they will come again soon.

Base Ball.

Monday afternoon the Angola club and the "Strikers," of this city, came together for a social game. The Angola boys being rugged fellows, it was the general opinion that our boys would be badly beaten. It was almost impossible to get a wager on our boys and some of our own townsmen bet their money on the neighboring nine. The second inning Angola scored one on a bad throw by the third baseman and after that they failed to make another "count." The game ended with this result: Angola, 1, Auburn, 24. The second game will be played at Angola one week from to-morrow.

Important Notice.

The New York Store wishes it distinctly understood that they will not allow themselves undersold by any other merchant or merchants. They do not want their customers spirited away by the over exertions upon the part of other competitors no matter what the inducements are. Recolect the New York Store is ready to meet them, and when you get the prices of others be sure to go and see the prices at the New York Store before making your purchas. It will pay you.

G. H. Forkner & Co.
Proprietors.

Columbia City Post. On Tuesday of last week, while Messrs Knight and Deck were thrashing grain at the barn of Geo. W. Egolf, in Thorncreek township with a steamer, the sparks from the smoke stack set fire to the barn, which was totally burned, together with a fine rick of straw, about ten bushels of wheat, lumber, and rail fence. Mr. Samuel Egolf's house, standing a short distance from the barn, was only saved by the greatest exertion from being burned The fire occurred by the carelessness of throwing the sieve back on the smoke stack and letting the cinders have the range. Those using steamers should take warning from the lesson taught by the above accident.

Married—On Sunday evening Sept. 16th, 1877, at the residence of the bride's mother, by Rev. J. E. Ervin, Mr. Bradford D. Harris to Miss Anna Rainier, all of Auburn, Ind.

The marriage was attended by relatives and a few very intimate friends, but the occasion was a happy one. We wish the newly married couple a joyous and prosperous life, and may they live long and prosper.

NEIGHBORHOOD NEWS.

CORUNNA.

On Monday the wheat market opened at $1.25, for amber No. one. Tuesday advanced one cent, and Wednesday dropped down to $1.23. There is no change in oats over last quotations—buyers are offering for white 26c., and for mixed 25c. Eggs 13c., butter 14c., hides green 6c.

Mr. Oliver Raber. It is a boy, and a bouncer at that.

In the way of a personal, we yesterday met Mr. Borst of Canton, Ohio, now visiting with his brother, Frank Borst.

The last heard from our Arkansas emigrants, they reported themselves in camp near Danville, Illinois, and all well.

Jack Frost gave this part of the mundane a mild visit Monday night. Corn is too far advanced to receive much damage.

A rumor gained currency in town Sunday that William Wallock, living on the boarders of north Richland, had died suddenly Saturday night. We learn it is a false report—though having been dangerously ill, he is now improving and will soon be around again.

Our compliments are due Powell, over at Garrett, the walking grave yard all the way from the cat tail swamps of Chicago Junction. Occasionally an ignoramus of the dampool order, will experiment in the printing business, and, like the itch, is an affliction that must be endured until cured. We do most sincerely sympathise with the people of that village in this their latest affliction.

We this week surrender our trust as the rural correspondent for Corunna, as we go hence to seek our fortune It is with many regrets that we are called upon to sever this connection, for while thus engaged our associations with the Courier people, have been most royally pleasant, and as we step out from the threshold for the last time, we carry with us many fond recollections. May you live long and prosper.

J. C. Loveland.

We don't know what to do with Bro. Parker. We have been trying to propitiate him for some weeks past, but still he will not be good natured. Why, would you believe it, he calls us a "silly fool," though just what that is we don't know. The next thing he will be calling us an ignorant ignoramus Somebody has been chafing the doctor, and we trust hereafter they will let him alone. By some inscrutable manner, he has conceived the idea that we want to kill off his paper. Never sir, never. We stand by the News, and will make any sacrifice, and will stand the bitter scorn of its editor that it may not perish, but have everlasting life. While in the lion's den, we say, "Oh, News live forever."

Some fellow down at St. Joe has been swindled by the clothes line or bed bottom dodge. He gives the following advice in last week's Press to farmers, gratuitous: Attend to your legitimate business, (I am talking to farmers now) and let the agency business entirely alone; you know nothing about it, and if you did, you are too honest to make a living at it. It takes sharpers, and swindlers to make anything at that business. In the next place never sign your name to any writing when you don't understand its full import. In the third place set your dog on the next peddler, agent, tramp or scamp that comes along; then kill your dog, subscribe for your county paper, pay for it, read it and be contented with your lot.

Sheriff's Sale.

BY virtue of an execution to me directed from the Clerk of the DeKalb Circuit Court in a cause wherein Ferman Frechlich is plaintiff, and William B. Danner is defendant, requiring me to make the sum of forty-two dollars and forty cents ($42.40), with interest on said judgment and cost, I will expose at public sale to the highest bidder, on

SATURDAY, OCTOBER 13th, 1877.

Between the hours of 10 o'clock A. M., and 4 o'clock P. M. of said day, at the door of the Court House in DeKalb county, Indiana, the rents and profits for a term not exceeding seven years, of the following real estate to-wit:

The undivided one-half of the west half of the south-east quarter of section twenty (20) in township thirty-three (33) north of range thirteen (13) east in DeKalb and State of Indiana.

If such rents and profits will not sell for a sufficient sum to satisfy said decree, interest and costs, I will at the same time and place expose to public sale the fee simple of said real estate or so much thereof as may be sufficient to discharge said judgment and costs.

Said sale will be made without any relief whatever from valuation or appraisement laws.

J. C. St.CLAIR, Sheriff.
By Thos. D. Gross, Deputy.
Rose & Hartman, Attorneys for plaintiff.
Auburn, Indiana, Sept. 18th, 1877. Pf. $8.25.

$2500 A YEAR. Agents wanted. Business legitimate. Particulars free. Address J. WORTH & CO., St Louis, Mo.

OPIUM and Morphine Habit absolutely and speedily cured. Painless; no publicity. Send stamp for particulars. Dr. Carlton, 187 Washington St., Chicago, Ill.

NEW GOODS
ARIVING DAILY!
AT THE
STAR CLOTHING HOUSE!
SAM, PETE & MAX, STAR CLOTHING HOUSE, FT. WAYN

AUBURN COURIER.

THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 20, 1877.

THE NEWS CONDENSED.

PRESIDENT HAYES.

HE TELLS WHY HE ADOPTED HIS SOUTHERN POLICY.

A correspondent of the Cincinnati Evening Times, who interviewed President Hayes while en route from Marietta to Fremont, Ohio, asked the President how he came to construct his policy, which was seemingly so at variance with his recent views while on the stump in his last presidential campaign. Did it grow upon him gradually as circumstances seemed to require? The President replied as follows:

"Well, those views began to take form in the words of my letter of acceptance. I considered the situation of things in the South; saw how impossible it seemed to restore order, and peace, and harmony; saw the violence and bloodshed at their elections; how white Republicans as well as black were shot down during their political contests, and I asked myself, Why is it, and how long must this continue? Those men down South, the white, educated citizens, are as good men as you or I. They are Christians, not thieves, nor cut-throats, nor bandits; yet they see these things and approve them, if they do not take part in them. Why is it, and how long will they continue? While thinking these questions over, my mind reverted to the scene of the war, and the incident at the battle of Cedar Mountain came to my mind. It was a hard-fought engagement, and for a time we could not tell how it would end. We who were in command had determined that if a certain movement resulted in one way we would give certain orders, but, if it resulted otherwise, different orders would be given. With our field-glasses we were watching the course of things. All at once I saw a commotion in the thickest of the fray. The artillery had got to work, and were throwing shells fast and with unerring aim into the solid ranks of the enemy. Heads were being blown from their bodies, arms and legs torn from their sockets, and souls sent to one world or the other unprepared, and yet I rejoiced and congratulated my fellow-officers that we were victorious. How could this be? Why was it? It was because we were at war. That one word solved in my mind the problem of the South. The people there were at war. There was a conflict going on. The social and political relations of the people were not natural, not harmonious. There were disturbing elements among them, and while they existed or were unduly active there would be conflict. Let the causes of the conflict be removed and there will be peace and ultimately harmony and prosperity."

"But," said the reporter, "we do not see much disposition in the South to manifest a loving temper toward us in the North."

The President mildly retorted: "How do you know? You form your opinions, no doubt, from reading the papers, but editors of newspapers do not always represent the popular general feeling of the people, either North or South. I think most of the people in the South, as I know they are in the North, are more disposed to encourage fraternal, harmonious, social and business relations than the extremists, who unfortunately too often get control of newspapers, but even these, or most of them, will come around all right in time."

THE EAST.

Frank Leslie, the well-known New York publisher of newspapers, periodicals, miscellaneous pamphlets, etc., has made an assignment of his property for the benefit of his creditors. Isaac W. England, publisher of the New York Sun, is the assignee, and will conduct the business of Mr. Leslie's establishment. The liabilities are put at $320,000.

Thomas F. Curley was hanged last week at Norristown, Pa., for the murder of Mary Ann Whitley.

Augustin Daly, the well-known New York theatrical manager, has failed.... Father McElroy, said to have been the oldest Catholic priest in the United States, died at Frederick, Md., last week, aged 95 years.

United States Senator Spencer, of Alabama, was married in New York, the other day, to an actress named Nunez.... The Boston and Albany railroad shops at Springfield, Mass., have been burned. Loss, $100,000.... During a thunder-storm at Georgetown, Del., Gideon B. Hitchens, with four sons and two daughters, took refuge under a tree in a field. The lightning struck, and three of the children, two sons and one daughter, were instantly killed. The father and remaining children were seriously but not fatally hurt.

THE WEST.

The Mormons have chosen John Taylor to succeed Brigham Young as President of the Twelve Apostles. He will be assisted in his labors by John W. Young, George Q. Cannon and Daniel H. Wells.

There is stored in Chicago elevators 311,184 bushels of wheat, 678,794 bushels of corn, 382,578 bushels of oats, 96,524 bushels of rye, and 189,298 bushels of barley, making a grand total of 1,658,378 bushels, against 3,130,583 bushels at this period last year.

A bloody chapter of crime comes to us from the town of St. Elmo, Fayette county, Ill. Mr. John Scoles, an estimable citizen of the place, returned home with his family, after an absence of several days, and found a tramp in possession of the house. The latter made for a cornfield, where he was pursued. Being brought to bay, he coolly shot Mr. Scoles dead. News of the murder spread, causing the wildest excitement, and in a few minutes upward of 100 armed men were in pursuit of the murderer. Mr. Frank Barnes, an estimable young man, was the first to overtake him. The fiend turned upon his pursuer, and, holding a revolver in each hand commenced firing. Barnes was shot through the head and instantly killed. Mr. Frank Wiseman, another excellent citizen, came up about this time and also received a bullet through the head, from the effects of which he died in a short time. Still coolly facing the advancing citizens, he aimed with his right-hand revolver, and fired, killing a horse from under a pursuing farmer, whose name is not learned. Then, giving a terribly demoniac yell, he rushed toward the entire party of about a dozen horsemen. This bold and utterly unlooked-for action by the demon disconcerted the party, and caused them to turn and flee in all directions. Still intent with devilish murderous deeds, he again aimed and hit a horse, wounding it so it fell unable to move further, and the rider was obliged to escape on foot. The desperado then turned and fled to the woods, making his escape.

A telegram from Camp Robinson, Neb., chronicles the arrival there of Lame Deer's band of Indians, which completes the surrender of all the hostile Sioux, clearing the Black Hills and Big Horn country, as Sitting Bull and party are in the British Possessions.... The Hyde Park Hotel, the finest of Chicago's suburban hostelries, has been destroyed by fire. Loss estimated at $125,000 to $150,000.... A monument was unveiled at the Soldiers' Home, near Dayton, Ohio, last week, in the presence of over 30,000 people. Addresses were delivered by President Hayes, Secretary of War McCrary, Gen. Butler, ex-Gov. Cox, Chief Justice Waite and others.... Emil Josephat, a private banker and shipping agent of Chicago, has failed for $40,000.

President Hayes last week paid a flying visit to Senator Morton, at Richmond, Ind. The interview between the President and the sick Senator was very brief, at the conclusion of which the former took the train and returned to Fremont, Ohio, where he participated in the reunion of his old regiment.... Wade Hampton and Sam Cary delivered addresses before the Winnebago County (Ill.) Agricultural Fair at Rockford, on the 13th inst. A big crowd turned out to hear the South Carolina Governor.... A cattle plague, said to be a species of the Texas cattle fever, has broken out in sections of Ohio, Michigan, and other Western States, and it proving quite fatal.

THE SOUTH.

The Texas cotton crop prospects are not so good as last year. The weather has not been so favorable, and the ravages of the army worm have been considerable, only eight counties escaping the visitation of this destructive pest.

Yellow fever has made its appearance in some of the coast towns of Florida, causing a panic and stampede among citizens and visitors at Jacksonville and other points.

At the late session of the Kemper county (Miss.) Circuit Court, the presiding Judge, in his charge to the Grand Jury, called special attention to the Chisholm assassination, and expressed the hope that, for the honor of the county, [illegible] the circumstances of the affair.

GENERAL.

Friday, Sept. 7, was a big day for Marietta, Ohio, and a big day for Private Dalzell. President Hayes, Postmaster General Key and Attorney General Devens arrived in the morning and took part in the grand reunion of ex-soldiers and ex-sailors. An immense concourse, estimated at 20,000, welcomed the party at the train and escorted them through the streets of the city to the residence of Gen. T. C. H. Smith, where the President remained a guest. In the afternoon there was speech-making and a general love-feast. The President, in his speech, avoided any discussion of political topics, his whole effort being in defense of his Southern policy. As usual, he introduced Judge Key, who spoke of the North and South to-day, contrasting it with the position before the war. Gen. Devens followed in a speech of half an hour. The Presidential party left in the evening for Fremont, where they were accorded a cordial reception.

The New York, Philadelphia, Baltimore and Chicago press concur in the general report that business is very perceptibly improving in those cities.... It is now estimated by those who keep posted that this year's wheat crop of the United States will aggregate 325,000,000 bushels, being a surplus of about 111,000 bushels for export. It is believed that this surplus will find a ready market in Europe.

The Turkish Minister to Washington has authorized the statement that Osman Pasha is neither Marshal Bazaine nor B. Clay Crawford, but is a genuine Turk, native and to the manor born.

A dispatch from San Antonio, Texas, reports that three of the Mexican brigands who attacked the jail in Rio Grande City have been surrendered by Canales, the Diaz Governor at Matamoras.... Since the inauguration of the national-bank system sixty banks have failed, Chicago having contributed four of the collapsed concerns.

The greatest achievement in the matter of railroad speed on record in America was that of a train on the Canada Southern railroad, which accomplished a continuous run of 111 miles in 109 minutes.

POLITICAL.

California held an election for members of the Legislature on the 5th inst., which resulted in the Democrats securing about thirty-five majority on joint ballot. This insures the election of a Democratic Senator to succeed Mr. Sargent.

Connor, Republican, has been re-elected Governor of Maine by a majority of 6,000 to 7,000. The Legislature is largely Republican.... A State convention of the Workingmen's party of Pennsylvania was held at Harrisburg last week. The following nominations were made: Judge of the Supreme Court, William L. Elwell; Auditor General, John M. Davis; State Treasurer, James L. Wright.

The Wisconsin Republican Convention for nominating State officers assembled at Madison on the 11th inst. E. W. Keyes called the convention to order, and announced his resignation of the Chairmanship of the State Committee. D. M. Kelley, of Green Bay, was chosen to preside. Hon. William E. Smith, of Milwaukee, was nominated for Governor on the first ballot. The other nominees are as follows: Lieutenant Governor, J. M. Bingham; Secretary of State, Hans Warner; State Treasurer, Richard Guenther; Attorney General, W. E. Carter; State Superintendent of Schools, W. C. Whitford. Horace Rublee was elected Chairman of the State Committee. The following platform was reported and adopted:

1. That we reaffirm the principles which have guided the National Republican party hitherto.

2. That we declare it to be the steadfast purpose of the Republicans of Wisconsin to co-operate with all good citizens in maintaining in letter and spirit the constitutional amendments framed to secure equal rights and protection to all in maintaining the plighted faith of the nation, and in promoting reforms to secure economy and efficiency in every branch of the Government.

3. That, most earnestly desiring the pacification of the Southern section of our Union, and its speedy return to material prosperity, we are mindful that this can be gained only by obedience to the law, by protection to all in every right, and by a careful regard for that class of citizens less able to protect themselves. In the efforts of the present national administration to restore peace and concord to the South we recognize a magnanimous purpose to remove every semblance of excuse for lawlessness and violence. We hope that the magnanimity will be duly appreciated, and that the reciprocal pledges made by prominent citizens and officials of the South will be faithfully kept. We shall rejoice if the Southern policy of the President produces the hoped-for results of order and peace, but, if these results shall not follow this experiment, we demand that other measures be adopted which shall secure to all citizens, without distinction of race or color, the fullest enjoyment of their constitutional rights.

4. That the determination of the National Executive to render the civil service more efficient and less obnoxious to criticism meets our approval. The perfection of our system of government in every detail of administration is one of the most important duties of the hour. All efforts in that direction should be fairly considered, neither hastily approved nor condemned.

5. That in the purposes and patriotism of President Hayes we declare our unshaken confidence.

6. That the attention of Congress is called to the necessity of such modification of the Patent laws as shall, while affording adequate recompense to the inventor, at the same time secure the complete protection of the people from undue exactions for the use of patented articles.

7. That we rejoice that the fidelity of the Republican party in upholding the national credit has brought our currency so near the point of resumption of specie payment. We hold that the silver dollar should be restored to its former place as money, and made a legal tender for the payment of debts, except where otherwise distinctly provided by law, with the coinage so regulated as to maintain an equality of value and preserve the harmonious circulation of gold, silver and legal notes as money.

8. While we earnestly condemn all violence, outlawry and mob rule, yet the Republican party expresses its heartfelt sympathy with the condition of the workingmen who are willing to work, but are unable to find employment, and public attention should be called to the grave importance of the labor question, and the most careful consideration should be given to the same by Federal and State legislation.

9. That we oppose any further bestowal of public lands upon railroad corporations, and urge the establishment of such governmental regulation over inter-State railroads as their importance as nations, highways and the interests of the people demand.

10. That we congratulate the people of Wisconsin that, during the many years in which the Republican party has been in the ascendency, no stain has been found upon its record in this State, and, therefore, confidently point to its whole history, and especially to the wise and economical administration of Gov. Harrison Ludington, as the best evidence and guaranty of its intentions and purposes for the future.

The New York Democratic State Convention will meet at Albany Oct. 3.... State conventions of the Prohibition party were held in Pennsylvania and Massachusetts last week, and full tickets placed in nomination.

A State Convention of the Workingmen's party of Ohio was held at Columbus last week. The Greenback Executive Committee were present, and consented to withdraw their State ticket and unite with the new movement if their ideas of currency reform were heartily acquiesced in, which was agreed to in open convention. The following ticket was then nominated: For Governor, Stephen Johnson; Lieutenant Governor, Christopher Lewis; Supreme Judge, Milton L. Clark; Treasurer, James Jenkins; Clerk of the Supreme Court, E. P. Pitkin; Attorney General, George A. Duncan; School Commissioner, John C. Logan; Board of Public Works, C. C. Strong.

The Democrats of Massachusetts, in convention at Worcester last week, and nominated the following ticket: Governor, William Gaston; Lieutenant Governor, William R. Plunket; Secretary of State, Weston Howland; Treasurer and Receiver General, David N. Skillings; Auditor, John E. Fitzgerald; Attorney General, Charles P. Thompson. The following platform was adopted:

We reaffirm and announce the National Democratic platform of 1876 as the authoritative exposition of principles of our party, and we congratulate our political brethren of the whole country that those principles were indorsed in the national canvass by the suffrages of a decided majority of the American people. We believe the people fairly elected a majority of the Electoral College in favor of the Democratic candidates, and while, in the high interest of public tranquillity, we submit to the authority of the constituted Federal administration, we denounce upon the guilty Republican party the condemnation for the great public crime by which the people were defrauded of their right to be governed by rulers of their own choice, and by which the elective principle was wounded in its most vital part. We challenge for it the opprobrium of history and the indignant judgment of all honest men. We congratulate the country, and supporters of free government everywhere, upon the happy results of restored public order and reviving industrial prosperity, the inauguration of a new reign of domestic peace and liberty, regulated by law, in the southern section of the Union that have ensued upon the adoption of Democratic principles and measures of administration by the Executive Department of the Federal Government in reference to the Southern States. We recognize in these auspicious results the signal vindication and practical triumph of the constitutional doctrines so faithfully contended for by the Democrats in the late political contest, and the statesmanship of the wise fathers which seeks the welfare of the republic by the support of the equal rights and dignities of all the States in the Federal Union. We trust that hereafter there will be no Southern policy, no Northern policy, but one common policy for the whole Union, and equality of rights and duties of all men before the law.

Resolved, That we are opposed to the re-enactment of a Prohibitory law.

Resolved, That the practice of borrowing money for other objects than those of a strict public necessity has generated schemes of extravagant expenditures until taxation has become well-nigh an intolerable burden. Honesty, economy, and "pay as we go" should be the rule in all appropriations of the people's money. The power of States, counties, cities and towns to borrow money ought to be rigidly limited, so that an end may be put to the system which "anticipates the labor of coming ages and appropriates the fruits of it in advance; which coins the industry of future generations into cash, and snatches the inheritance from children yet unborn."

Resolved, That we are in favor of the honest payment of the public debt, and of a currency on a gold basis.

Resolved, That the present depression of the industrial, commercial and financial interests of the country is largely due to our inability under present laws to dispose of the surplus products which other countries want, and which but for restrictions and injurious legislation of the United States would, to a great extent, produce and sell better and cheaper than any other nation.

THE TURKO-RUSSIAN WAR.

Reports from Hobart Pasha to the Porte represent the new fortifications of Sebastopol strong enough, without the addition of torpedoes, to destroy the finest fleet afloat.... Turkey will make a further issue of 6,000,000 piasters of paper money.... The carnage in the Schipka battles was absolutely horrible. A cable dispatch says: "Three thousand wounded from Suleiman Pasha's army have reached Adrianople; 4,000 are at Kazanlik, and at Schipka the wounded and dead lie all over the hillsides."

Regarding the war in Asia Minor, a telegram from Erzeroum says the Russians are confining themselves to a defensive attitude. The Russian center is bringing up artillery from Alexandropol to defend their camp at Baldirval in the event of an attack by Mukhtar Pasha, while on the left Gen. Tergukassoff is fortifying his positions near Igdyr to command the roads leading to the plain of Erivan.... The Montenegrins have captured Nicsics.

The German and French Ambassadors at Constantinople have presented remonstrances to the Porte against the release of persons condemned to five years' penal servitude for the murder of the German and French Consuls at Salonica, in May last.

A dispatch from Belgrade says: "Information has been received from Turn-Severin that the Prefects have been ordered to have everything in readiness for 50,000 Russians who will march through Turn-Severin on their way to cross the Danube, and enter Servian territory. On the Servian bank everything is prepared for the crossing of the Russians."

The following is the Russian official bulletin of the operations against Plevna, issued on the 11th inst.: "Our batteries cannonaded Plevna all Sunday and Monday. The Turks made a considerable sortie against our left wing, but were repulsed, losing heavily. The Roumanians made a broad reconnoissance of the enemy's redoubts, which opened a heavy fire, but were silenced by the concentrated fire from our batteries. The position of one of our siege batteries was changed to have it cannonade the fortified Turkish encampment. All is quiet at the other points of the theater of war. At the capture of Lovatz we took two Turkish standards and a quantity of arms and ammunition. We buried 2,200 Turkish dead. Large numbers were sabered by our cavalry during the pursuit. Our loss was 1,000.".... A dispatch from Ragusa reports that the Montenegrins at Jesero defeated Hafiz Pasha, who was marching to the relief of Nicsics. Six hundred Turks were killed and 100 taken prisoners.

Dispatches from Vienna on the 13th inst. report the capture of Osman Pasha's strongest position in front of Plevna. The point was carried by assault, on the morning of Wednesday, the 12th. Six Russian batteries and one Roumanian battalion took part in the assault. Two standards and five guns were captured, and the Turks driven pell-mell out of the Grivica redoubt. This victory was achieved at heavy cost. The Russian official report admits a loss of over 5,000 wounded. The numbers engaged are estimated at about 57,000 on the Russian side, against from 50,000 to 70,000 Turks.... It is announced from Ragusa that a majority of the Bosnia insurgents have submitted to the Turkish Government.

GENERAL FOREIGN NEWS.

The funeral of Louis Adolph Thiers, ex-President of France, took place in a pouring rain. Notwithstanding the inclement weather, the remains of the lamented deceased were followed to the grave by an immense concourse, and hundreds of thousands of mourning French people of all sexes and ages lined the roadways. There was no political demonstration, and the body of the dead statesman was laid away decently and in order, without provoking any of the disturbances that might be expected of Paris in such troublous times.... Dispatches from Minister Foster represent our relations with Mexico as in a very unsatisfactory condition. Of the eight marauders whose extradition is asked for by the United States, only two who are American citizens will be given up in any event.

The Paris police, the other day, seized five of the principal Republican papers, and one Bonapartist paper. The seizure was only maintained as regards one—Le Bien Public.... Gambetta was sick when his case was called in the Paris Police Court. A continuance, however, was refused, default entered up, and he was condemned to three months' imprisonment and a fine of 2,000 francs. He will take an appeal, however, and in a higher court test the question whether speaking the truth in moderate and respectful words is a felony under the laws of France.

We have news of a terrible disaster in the English channel, by which upward of a hundred lives were lost. The British ship Avalanche, Capt. Williams, from London for New Zealand, came in collision with the British ship Forest, Capt. Lockhart, from London for New York, off Portland, and both vessels foundered. Ninety-six persons were drowned. The Forest was in ballast and had a crew numbering twenty-one. Capt. Lockhart, chief mate and seven others were saved. The Avalanche had a crew of thirty-two, and fifty passengers. The third officer and two seamen only were saved.

BUSINESS INTERESTS.

Commercial and Trade Matters.

The press of Chicago is a unit in advocacy of a national-savings system.

Shipping dressed meats in refrigerator cars to Eastern cities is to be attempted by prominent cattle men in Nevada, as business is not remunerative in San Francisco.

There were thirty-nine failures in the city of New York during August, a greater number than in any previous month of the year. The total liabilities were $2,295,557; assets, $920,514.

An exhibition of hops, and of tools and implements used in the cultivation of hops, to which all nations are invited to contribute, will be held in Nuremburg, Bavaria, from the 7th to the 15th of October.

The cotton-manufacturing interest in Great Britain is suffering a reverse; stocks are accumulating, and there is a contest with operatives on the question of wages, from both which causes many mills are closing.

Manufacturers at Fall River continue to pile up print-cloths, and will do so until their present stocks of cotton are run out, when, if there is no improvement in prices, a general stoppage for a few weeks will probably be resorted to. The demand from the West and South has improved a little of late.

Notes of the manufacturing firm of A. & W. Sprague, to the amount of $75,000, were recently sold by auction at the Providence (R. I.) Board of Trade. The terms of the sale were that the notes should be sold in lots of $25,000 each, with privilege of the whole. The bidding was somewhat lively, and the paper was finally sold at 21¼ cents on a dollar, the purchaser taking the entire lot.

Our foreign business for the seven months to the 1st of August shows an increase in both exports and imports, but greater in imports, having so far this year a small excess of imports. This is on merchandise and produce, however; on specie, we have made a net export of only $25,000,000, a gain as compared with last year of over $11,000,000, and showing that we must have kept at least $25,000,000 of our gold and silver production this year. The total amount of the transactions with foreign countries for the first seven months of 1877 is $680,007,557. For a corresponding period in 1876 it was $634,196,319, an increase for this year, so far, of $45,811,238, or 7.2 per cent.

The United States is again beginning to draw specie from England, somewhat to the alarm of financial circles over there, and the Bank of England has raised its rate of discount to 3 per cent. in order to counteract if possible this outflow of gold. In explanation of the situation on that side, the London Times says: "The Black sea is practically closed, and we have, therefore, every reason to expect that we must not only take a very much larger quantity of grain from the United States than has been required in former years, but that we must pay much higher prices for it. This being the case, the bank has no other course open but to place itself in a strong defensive position in good time. If the bad weather in this country continues, the position can easily become serious for the Bank of England, for the export of gold in that case, looking at the comparatively small general imports of the United States from Europe, soon runs into many millions sterling."

Shop, Mill and Labor Notes.

The recent railroad strike cost the State of Illinois about $200,000.

Taxation and smoke and bad odor nuisances are driving many heavy manufacturing concerns out of the large cities into country localities.

The Waumbek Lumber Company, of Bethlehem, N. H., one of the largest lumber companies of New England, has gone into voluntary bankruptcy.

The Pennsylvania Coal Company has closed its works and put everything in order for a suspension as long or as short as the miners choose to make it.

The orders on hand in locomotive shops throughout the country show that life in the railroad department of the industries is more than beyond the minimum scale.

A colony of about 150 families has left Indianapolis for Mississippi, in hope of bettering their condition, founded on promises of work on farms and other kinds of labor.

The Providence Tool Company, having re-established satisfactory financial arrangements with the Turkish Government, has resumed work, with 1,300 men employed on full time.

The lamp-chimney blowers at Wheeling and Pittsburgh are on a strike, the latter demanding that production shall be increased to offset the economy effected by a machine newly introduced.

Ohio labor statistics show that there are employed in the State 396,267 persons in agriculture, against 77,690 in trades and transportation, 179,394 in manufactures and mining, and 104,018 in personal and professional occupations. The unemployed persons in the State are reported at 219,219.

Donahue's new paper, the Striker, advocates the immediate stoppage of contraction, redemption of all the United States bonds by new issues of greenbacks, the abolition of national banks, and the seizure and management of all railroads, telegraphs, express offices, banks and savings banks by the Government.

Harvest Gleanings.

The army worm has appeared in large numbers in sections of Tennessee and Arkansas.

It is a Southern estimate that Georgia's dried peaches this year will be worth $1,500,000.

The cotton-crop reports from Texas and Mississippi describe a good deal of damage by worms, and some by drought, causing the squares to shed. From Georgia reports are more favorable.

The Calcutta correspondent of the London Times sums up the prospect of the autumn crops in India in this way: Hopeless in Southern India, most critical in Western, Central, and Northern India, and fairly good in Eastern India.

The prospects of the French wheat harvest in 2 departments are very good; in 16 good; in 2 pretty good; in 32 poor; and in 9 bad. The prospects of the oat crop are very good in 4 departments; good in 27; pretty good in 28; poor in 21; and bad in 2. The rye prospect is very good in 4 departments; good in 10; pretty good in 15; poor in 32; and very bad in 11.

The crops are turning out better in Dakota Territory this year than was ever known before. The grasshoppers have done no damage to speak of. The small grain is all harvested and mostly thrashed, and the corn is nearly all ripe, so that no damage can be done now. Vegetables of all kinds are abundant, and of the first quality. Potatoes are plenty, and of the choicest kind.

WASHINGTON NOTES.

There is no truth whatever in the report that Postmaster General Key contemplates resigning from the Cabinet at an early day. Judge Key himself gives it out that he will stick.

In reference to the Speakership, the Washington Star thinks Randall's chances are the best, though he nor any other candidate has a sure thing of it. Morrison and Sayler each have a strong following, and either one of them may capture the prize.

Just now Washington is overrun with an ugly malaria that is very severe upon strangers unused to the climate. The Board of Health has just made a report upon the subject, and finds the great source of trouble in the marsh lands near the Potomac.

Great distress and destitution prevail in Washington, largely among the families of discharged Government clerks and employes. Many of these, unable to find work of any kind that they would be able to do, are reduced to actual beggary. The new Commissioner of the District, Mr. Bryan, is endeavoring to organize some system of relief that may at least prevent starvation.

The recently-discovered frauds in coloring foreign sugars, in order to reduce the duties on those of certain grades, has induced the State Department at Washington to adopt prompt and vigorous measures for their suppression. Proper warnings will probably be sent to interested parties, and, after October 1, all sugars found to be colored for fraudulent purposes will be seized and the penalties enforced.

Secretary Schurz has recently been paying special attention to the subject of land steals and timber depredations. It is not improbable that special legal counsel will be sent out to Minnesota to sue for recoveries there. He has adopted the rule that no compromises shall be made with lumber depredators except for the full market price of the timber, instead of the cost price, as has hitherto been the case.

Efforts have been made recently, on the part of claim-agents, to get the Treasury Department to reopen a number of the cotton cases which were rejected under previous administrations. Thus far Secretary Sherman and Assistant Secretary French have decided against all these applications, and refused to refer the cases to Solicitor Raynor for an opinion, which the persons were very desirous should be done.

The fact that 3,234,800 dead letters were received from the various postoffices of the country at the Postoffice Department during the year ending June 30, 1877, shows a large degree of carelessness in not properly preparing and directing letters, although other causes aided in swelling the number of defunct missives. Over $50,000 in money was found in these notes, besides bills, drafts, notes, jewelry, etc., to a much greater amount.

A Washington correspondent says the position which the United States is understood to hold is: First, that the Diaz Government must be proved to be acceptable to the people of Mexico, and not the temporary triumph of a revolutionist; and, second, that it possesses power to carry out strictly to the letter all its treaty obligations with the United States. When President Hayes' administration is convinced on these two points Senor Mato will undoubtedly be recognized as the accredited representative of the Mexican republic. In other words, the United States has in effect placed the Mexican Government on its good behavior.

An Editor Assaulted.

For some days past the National Republican, of this city, has had several allusions to the age and physical infirmities generally of Kenneth Raynor, Solicitor of the Treasury Department. To-day it had the following: "It has now transpired that Right Hon. Kenneth Raynor, Solicitor of the Treasury, has been enabled to maintain the perpetual bloom of youth by the constant and generous use of strong plug tobacco." For more than a week Raynor has declared that if he ever encountered A. W. Soteldo, managing editor of the paper, there would be blood. Only last week the old man went to the newspaper office, armed with a North Carolina horse-pistol, to slay or be slain. To-day, just as the female clerks were departing from the day's work, Raynor met Soteldo on the steps of the treasury, and, with violent expletives, assaulted him with his fist. The first blow being unexpected, the editor received it full in the mouth, and the old man got the first blood. The assaulted party recovered quickly, and retorted in kind, but a friend threw himself in the breach, and, by covering Raynor's face with his hands, saved him from severe punishment. Benson, Chief of Detectives, then held Raynor to restrain his impetuosity, and a newspaper correspondent did likewise to the editor. Meanwhile, Raynor's oaths filled the atmosphere. He called Soteldo the pirate of the press, a blackmailer, thief, and other epithets more sulphurous than delicate. Soteldo remained quite cool, and called on the large crowd which had gathered to bear witness to the indecent and ribald exhibition the Solicitor of the Treasury was making of himself. Finally friends walked off with the belligerents in opposite directions, and peace again reigns on the Potomac.—Washington Cor. Cincinnati Enquirer.

Five sons and seven daughters of the late Mr. and Mrs. Jonathan Parker, of Nantucket, are now living, whose ages are respectively 78, 76, 73, 70, 68, 65, 63, 59, 57, 55, 53, 51. These twelve constitute all the children of the family, except one who died in infancy. The father was at the time of his death 88, and the mother died at the age of 77.

THE CHICAGO COLLECTORSHIP.

Letter from J. Russell Jones to Secretary Sherman.

[From the Chicago Journal.]

A reporter called upon Hon. J. Russell Jones to interview him relative to the report that he had been suspended from the office of Collector of the Port, and that Mr. William Henry Smith had been appointed to the place.

Mr. Jones stated that he had no information on the subject other than appeared in the papers. The first official knowledge he had that a change was contemplated was a letter from Secretary Sherman stating:

> I am directed by the President to write to you that, after careful consideration, he thinks it would be best, and he wishes me to ask you to resign your office as Collector of Customs of the Port of Chicago, at a time and in a mode that will be agreeable to you.

In a subsequent note from the Secretary, said Mr. Jones, he indicated a desire that my resignation should not take place later than the 10th of September. To this request I replied as follows:

Sir: I have the honor to acknowledge the receipt of your letter informing me that you are directed by the President to write me that, after careful consideration, he thinks it would be best, and he wishes me to ask you to resign the office of Collector of Customs of the Port of Chicago, at a time and in a mode that will be agreeable to me.

The President, in his letter of acceptance, said "the founders of the Government meant that public officers should be secured in their tenure as long as their personal character remained untarnished and the performance of their duties was satisfactory. If elected, I shall conduct the administration of the Government upon these principles, and all constitutional powers vested in the Executive will be employed to establish this reform," and in his inaugural he reasserted the same principles.

He has since repeatedly said that with officers whose commissions had not expired and who were in the faithful discharge of their duties changes would not be made.

In the absence of any intimation to the contrary I am warranted in asserting that no charge has been made against me that I have failed faithfully, efficiently and economically to discharge my duty. My commission has not yet expired.

An officer of your department has within the last month made a thorough examination of this office, and he informed me that he found everything pertaining to the conduct of the office in a satisfactory condition. The only criticism he made was that in examining the record of the expenses of the office he discovered that there were a number of inspectors employed at $4 per diem, but I informed him that, although the inspectors who have been in the service at this port for years, experienced men, upon whose shoulders the bulk of inspectors' duties are laid, were paid but $3 per diem, those to whom he called my attention were men sent here by you, with orders to assign them to duty at $4 per diem.

The officer referred to has undoubtedly recommended that the men sent by you shall not receive greater compensation than is paid to men occupying the same position who have been in the service a number of years.

The records of your department show that the expenses of this office have been reduced since my appointment (a period of less than two years) in the aggregate $37,000.

In view of these facts my self-respect impels me to decline compliance with the President's request through you for my resignation.

Your obedient servant,

J. R. Jones.

Hon. John Sherman, Secretary of the Treasury, Washington.

Tragic Death on the Polo Field.

Mr. Edward Cunard, who was a brother of Sir Bache Cunard, was Lieutenant of the Tenth English Hussars, and was attending the school of musketry at Hyde, a small military station a few miles from Folkestone, on the southwest coast of Kent. On Wednesday last he was one of a team of officers from Thorncliffe camp to play a game of polo, against another team composed of holiday visitors from Folkestone. In the sixth goal, between 6 and 7 o'clock, Mr. Cunard approached to strike the ball, when his pony suddenly swerved to the left and came into collision with the pony following. Mr. Cunard fell, and his pony fell over him, stunning him and causing general consternation. A stretcher was sent for and he was immediately removed from the field in an insensible condition. He was attended by several doctors, who did everything that medical skill suggested, but the fact that the base of his skull was fractured rendered all treatment difficult. After a brief return to consciousness he died at 9 o'clock the same evening.—London Cor. New York Herald.

The restoration of Strasburg Cathedral will soon be completed. Fourteen statues of Emperors and Kings who have ruled that part of Germany, from King Pepin down to Henry IV., have been added to the sculptural embellishments.

THE MARKETS.

NEW YORK.
Beeves	$8 50	@12 50
Hogs	5 75	@ 6 25
Cotton	11¼	@ 11¾
Flour—Superfine Western	4 90	@ 5 60
Wheat—No. 2	1 36	@ 1 38
Corn—Western Mixed	53	@ 58½
Oats—Mixed	32	@ 39
Rye—Western	70	@ 71
Pork—New Mess	13 25	@13 50
Lard	9	@ 9¾
CHICAGO.
Beeves—Choice Graded Steers	5 75	@ 6 00
Choice Natives	5 00	@ 5 50
Cows and Heifers	2 65	@ 4 00
Good Second-class Steers	3 60	@ 4 15
Medium to Fair	4 25	@ 4 75
Hogs—Live	5 05	@ 5 65
Flour—Fancy White Winter	6 75	@ 7 25
Good to Choice Spring Ex.	6 00	@ 6 25
Wheat—No. 2 Spring	1 09	@ 1 10
No. 3 Spring	1 05	@ 1 06
Corn—No. 2	45	@ 46
Oats—No. 2	24	@ 25
Rye—No. 2	55	@ 56
Barley—No. 2	66	@ 67
Butter—Choice Creamery	25	@ 28
Eggs—Fresh	15	@ 16
Pork—Mess	12 50	@12 75
Lard	8¾	@ 9
MILWAUKEE.
Wheat—No. 1	1 14	@ 1 15
No. 2	1 10	@ 1 11
Corn—No. 2	44	@ 45
Oats—No. 2	23	@ 24
Rye—No. 1	55	@ 57
Barley—No. 2	67	@ 68
ST. LOUIS.
Wheat—No. 2 Red Fall	1 26	@ 1 27
Corn—No. 2 Mixed	41	@ 42
Oats—No. 2	26	@ 27
Rye	55	@ 56
Pork—Mess	13 25	@13 35
Lard	8¾	@ 9
Hogs	5 10	@ 5 45
Cattle	4 00	@ 5 75
CINCINNATI.
Wheat—Red	1 15	@ 1 25
Corn	47	@ 48
Oats	26	@ 30
Rye	59	@ 60
Pork—Mess	13 00	@ ....
Lard	8¾	@ 10
TOLEDO.
Wheat—No. 1 Red Wabash	1 34	@ 1 35
No. 1 White Michigan	1 38	@ 1 40
Corn	48	@ 50
Oats—No. 2	27½	@ 28½
DETROIT.
Flour—Choice White Winter	6 75	@ 7 00
Wheat—No. 1	1 39	@ 1 40
Corn—Mixed	49	@ 51
Oats—Mixed	28	@ 29
Barley (per cental)	1 25	@ 1 30
Pork—Mess	14 00	@14 50
EAST LIBERTY, PA.
Cattle—Best	6 00	@ 6 25
Medium to Good	5 50	@ 5 80
Common to Fair	4 75	@ 5 25
Hogs	5 40	@ 5 90
Sheep	4 25	@ 5 50

AUBURN COURIER.

T. G. MAYS, PUBLISHER.

THE IOWA CAMPAIGN.

Speech of the Hon. John P. Irish at Council Bluffs.

The Crimes of the Republican Party Vividly Portrayed.

FELLOW-CITIZENS: As the country proceeds through a long-drawn settlement of the questions out of which grew the war and which grew out of the war, it yearly became plainer that the old strings had been harped until they were out of tune. The sympathies and impulses of the North, so often melted to tears by the slavery question, strung to a high key for so long, had lost their tone, and the whispers of love and mercy drawn from them by the real and fancied wrongs of slavery had changed to a coarse twang of vengeance and vulgar revenge.

The needs of the national soul had long been the text of the agitator and the theme of the philanthropist, but, as a settlement of sentimental political questions was reached, the wants of the national body were asserted. Debt was upon us, carrying an interest charge annually upon the labor of the land double the volume of the entire national debt in 1860. The management and payment of this debt became in the eye of the publicist and statesman at once the leading question in American politics, for in its management and a proper system of revenue lay every economic interest of the whole country. As a few wise men were seeking to put these practical questions forward, there arose another school of politicians headed by Jay Cooke and commissioned to teach the people that a national debt is a national blessing, and from this germ grew financial fungi of all sorts, until it is no wonder that the ideas of good and sensible men have grown into antagonism to the sound principles of political economy—the laws of finance and commerce. I think the great need of the day is a frequent recurrence to fundamental principles; a constant teaching of the truth in respect to money and its relations to the welfare and happiness of civilized people. The Republican party has taken good care not so to teach. It has kept the public mind busy with other things. The negro vote and voter, negro equality, the rebel debt and claims, the bloody shirt, each has had its brief day on the stage to tickle the popular fancy or fan the popular temper into a roaring rage, while the prosperity of the country was being sapped, and we seemed content to remain a nation producing more of gold and silver than any other on the planet, and yet do all our great trade in a fluctuating, uncertain paper currency. From this condition of inattention to our material interests we were aroused for a time by the panic of 1873, which ruined thousands where every avenue was gorged with credit currency, and left colossal enterprises like the North Pacific road in sprawling ruin. Again Republican politicians drew off public attention by the old war cries, and carried the party through the last Presidential election to a fraudulent seizure of the Presidency lost by it at the polls, and was in the act of further diverting public attention by pointing with pride to Gen. Grant snoring under a silk quilt at Windsor Castle, the elated recipient of the first British honors bestowed upon an American General since Benedict Arnold's day, when with a soundin crash came the August strikes which clouded seven States with anarchy for a week, and so jarred the whole country as to set every man looking for the cause and cure of an evil which could no longer be ignored. With the national finances, the labor and trade questions, the Iowa Democracy has dealt in its platform, and I am here to construe that platform and defend it within the limits of its own language and give each part an interpretation consistent with the whole.

The Democratic party of Iowa declares for a revenue tariff only. This declaration is consistent with the delivery against subsidies, since a protective tariff—the Republican plan—is but a tax levied on the people, not to support the Government, but to fatten the manufacturers. It is a tax on the many for the benefit of the few, and is the basest form of subsidy because of its indirection. It is robbery of the people in such a way that they note the theft only in their poverty and nakedness, and cannot readily fix the responsibility for the crime. American manufacturers fattened by this tax levied upon other industries are to-day exposing their wares in England, paying freight and selling them to Englishmen for less than they sell the same goods here at home, within sight of the factory smoke. We read of this driving Englishmen out of English markets, and are expected to go into patriotic ecstacies over it, and forget that if our manufacturers do this at a profit they are able to sell at the same ates at home, less the freight across the Atlantic, plus the carriage to whatever American market they choose to sell in. I believe John Randolph defined protection to mean paying a New Englander $2 for what we can buy of an Old Englander for $1. This may now be paraphrased into asking $2 at home for what we sell at a profit abroad for $1.

We next pass on to our children the warning that came to us from our fathers, and declare further supremacy of the civil over the military power. It needs no argument. The Republican party ruled the South through eleven years of peace by the army. For eleven years the Democrats protested against this abuse, and last year carried the country upon that protest by a majority so emphatic that an acting President, who usurped without shame an office that belonged to another, and struck down without pity or remorse the foul instruments of his fraudulent elevation, dared not disobey the majesty of a white majority of 1,000,000 votes; and so we find Mr. Hayes subordinating the military to the civil power, and returning the army to its proper functions. We declare for separation of church and state; a principle so salutary that the times in which we live are satirized in the apparent necessity for its reiteration. We affirm the equal rights of all citizens before the law, under whihh principle the Democratic party took shape under Jefferson's master hand. The Federalists denied the equality of foreign-born citizens, no matter what their character, culture, or patriotic services were, and the political heirs of the Federalists, the Republicans of to-day, put foreign-born citizens under the same ban by excluding in at least one Republican State in the Union the vote of a foreigner unless he has a property qualification not exacted of a native. So, again, the Republicans compel us to nail to our mast this trite declaration, which we will repeat so long as they are anywhere in power and continue to persecute and oppress men for their birth or religion.

Opposition to subsidies is another Democratic principle, foully violated by the Republican party and in need of agitation now because it is understood that Mr. Hayes rode to office in Tom Scott's car, on the back of a grand gift enterprise which reached from the corpse of the North Pacific to the cradle of its South Pacific twin, showering offices, jobs, and juicy things between, and reaching into a slimy oblivion to materialize the ghost of dead Whiggery. We declare Republican class legislation to be responsible for the pauperism of labor. It is true. Every striker struck because for seventeen years there had been a Republican party in this country. Wherever a mob roared, its noise was notice to the world of the presence of the pest of Republican partyism here. Every incendiary who did arson was the embodied consequence of a Republican party. Every murderer who shed blood was a red-handed witness that the Republican party had been in power in this land. Every rioter who groans from a jail is in prison for the crimes of this party. Every murderer who will swing from a scaffold dangles there to expiate crimes done by the Republican party. There is no evasion of this. If there are bread riots in Manchester, Paris, or Brussels, we charge them upon maladministration of the Government, and by this judgment we must be judged ourselves or no longer assume to sit in the judgment seat. To the vicious laws which bear this bad responsibility reference is already made. The tariff and subsidy legislation have, in part, done the work.

The demonetizing of silver was accomplished by peculiarly Republican methods, in the dark and secretly, so that even those who voted for it were unaware of the effect of the bill. It is no wonder the people should reject scientific discussion of the propriety of a measure passed in that way, and should indignantly demand the reinstatement of silver as a legal-tender coin before examining into the merits of the double or single standard. The reinstatement I favor in the conviction that scientific conclusions will be reached that will condemn the employment of any unstable standard of value, and that the Democratic party will bring legislation upon the subject out of the dark corner into which Republicanism has crowded it. If it prove that the double standard will not work, that the silver will float the gold out of the country and leave us to bear the load of cast-off silver from Germany and the other single-standard countries, an intelligent adjustment will soon relieve us of the evils which would follow. Upon the general matter of currency and resumption the Democrats of Iowa declare: "We favor the retention of a greenback currency and declare against any further contraction, and we favor the substitution of greenbacks for national-bank bills." The legal-tender law, under which the greenbacks were issued, fixes their volume at $400,000,000. This law was denounced as unconstitutional by the Democracy of this country when it was passed, and a Republican Supreme Court has since decided that in time of peace it would have been unconstitutional, but was all right in war. That law nearly doubled the cost of the war. Greenbacks fell as low as 35 cents on the dollar, so that the Government paid nearly $3 for every dollar's worth of material it used. They rallied a little, but averaged so low that it is fair to say they doubled the cost to the people of a war of which they rank among the most troublesome relics. The Government should have issued treasury notes, and, promptly enforcing its taxing power, should have maintained a credit that would have floated its bonds, by their sale raising means far more cheaply than by the costly and unconstitutional experiment of a forced loan, for the greenback issue was a forced loan in all its characteristics. As we told the truth in declaring the issue unconstitutional, and as the Republicans only justify it as a war measure, it is plain that there can be no further issue of greenbacks unless we go to war for the authority. There can be no objection to the retention of the greenbacks as a permanent paper currency, in preference to the national-bank notes, which have not the legal-tender quality, so I take our declaration to mean that, as the national-bank charters expire—and we cannot disturb them short of their expiration—these institutions should not be re-chartered, and, as their circulation shrinks with each dying charter, the greenbacks are to take its place. The result will be a constant appreciation of the purchasing power of the greenback and a constant approach of that currency to par in gold; so that if no other causes operated we would reach specie payments over the dead vaults of national banks, which I am sure the people of this country will never consent to rechartering, as banks of issue. I have never seen a more intelligent and compact plan for bringing greenbacks to par than is proposed by this plank in our platform, and I commend it to the attention and examination of financiers East and West. I discuss under this head the general question of resumption. Let us remember that the bank note and bank check—considering for the purpose of this examination the greenback to be a bank note since it performs the same office—are substantially the same thing in the sense that neither is in itself value, but each implies the presence somewhere of value upon which it is an order for payment. If no deposit lie behind the bank check it is worthless. If no deposit or power or disposition to pay in value lie behind the greenback it is worthless. Resumption then means that the Government shall have the ability to pay its checks, notes, greenbacks, on demand in value; that is to say in gold. When that time comes private debtors will have a place at which to buy the gold called for by individual contracts, and the difference between gold and paper will be a thin margin of one-fourth of 1 per cent., with a possibility that occasionally the paper may command a premium over the metal, because of convenience of carriage and certainty of reconversion at par. I may be asked why repeal the resumption date, January, 1879, if it is desirable to resume at all? The Democratic party demands a repeal of the date, because the Democratic party has common sense on its side and is guided by the example of nations that have trodden hard the path we are now in. England experimented with her finances during a long grapple with the first Napoleon, and at the close of her complications on the continent was financially prostrate; with specie payment to all appearance hopelessly suspended. During nearly a quarter of a century the British Parliament attempted to resume by fixing dates at which to resume eleven different times, and at last, after ten repeals, resumption occurred in advance of the farthest date fixed. You may query why the date should hinder. It is because resumption is in the nature of payment of a debt. No debt is ever easy to pay when the debtor is in poverty and distress, groaning under the pinch of hard times. Payment is voluntary and easy when times are good and prosperity is the rule. Resumption is an event which excites apprehension, it is waited for with an expectation of great change in all commercial and financial relations. It is getting down to hard-pan.

If a date is fixed people wait rather than work. It will not do to make this investment or start that enterprise, for there is no telling what effect resumption will have upon it, so we wait and wait, a nation of Micawbers; business is paralyzed and times grow hard. Men think it is a lack of currency, and clamor for more. If the cry is heeded and inflation occurs resumption is postponed. If the paralysis continue and resumption is attempted at the date, without the degree of prosperity and confidence to warrant it, death follows paralysis and ruin whelms the country. As soon as the Resumption act of 1875 passed times began tightening. Enterprise ceased. Real estate cannot be sold. Manufactures are idle. Railroad building stopped, and we all sat down to wait. In 1876 the Democratic party, desiring resumption, demanded the repeal of the date as a hindrance thereto. The Democratic House repealed the date. Men began to venture upon business operations. The Russo-Turkish war gave us dominion of the grain market of the world. Crops at home are good. Republican Senators, like Allison, of Iowa, are joining the Democrats in the cry for repeal, and greenbacks, feeling the impulse of this new-born prosperity, have crept up to 97. I am not sure but we will resume before 1879. If I knew the Senate would join the Democratic House in the repeal I would confidently predict resumption before that time, as the natural result of a prosperity which grows up to the volume of currency, using all the circulating medium, and demanding an invariable standard of value, into which the paper currency is convertible at par, and by which the products of the country are measured. Above all, we want an end to tinkering. No business can grow, based upon the fluctuations of an irredeemable paper currency, or the play of shifting Congressional policies. The business men of the country want stability. John Sherman is no guarantee of stability, nor is Morton, nor Hayes, nor Stanley Matthews. They shift with the tide. The Democrats offer their past financial record as proof that stability may be expected under their domination. Our party first forced the payment of the poor man's wages and the rich man's profits in the same kind of money—gold; and under that policy our growth was the world's eighth wonder. Here was the world's labor market. There were no tramps, no bread riots, no war for wages degenerating into a base assault upon property and a bloody attack upon life. To take the country far from the evils of a mixed and fluctuating credit currency, from trade destroyed and labor turned beggar, out of the treacherous quicksands of Republican financial folly to the solid ground of safety and confidence, where waving fields and rattling mills on either hand lift high the yellow banners and sing the glad song of plenty and prosperity, is our mission and purpose.

SMOKED OUT.

Honest Senator John Patterson—Out of His Own Mouth and by His Own Signature is He Condemned.

[Columbia (S. C.) Cor. Cincinnati Enquirer.]

Ex-Gov. Scott, at present in Ohio, can probably explain the letter I send you below. It was seen by him on the night it was written, and was, by his consent photographed before reaching its destination, himself and another distinguished Republican receiving each a copy. The money alluded to was used to bribe members of the Legislature for passing bills in the interest of the Blue Ridge railroad when "Honest John Patterson" was President of the road.

Although this document is in itself a bad-looking feature in the Senator's case, it is mere bagatelle compared with the evidence produced before the committee to-day. The face of the Chairman of that committee is wreathed in smiles over his big find to-day. Not only "Honest John," whose rallying cry to the thieves when they became despondent was, "Why, gentlemen, there is five more years of good stealing in South Carolina," will be brought to taw, but Maxwell, a famous negro rascal, representing the good county of Marlboro, and known as the Duke of Marlboro among the thieves; "Buck Nash," Richland's Senator; Myers, ex-member from Columbia; Swails, a Philadelphia Albino, ex-President of the Senate, and, in short, every other scoundrel, white, yellow and black, who was in the ring, took a part of this money, and their receipts in their own hand writing, or their marks, witnessed by responsible witnesses, will bear witness against them when the hour of trial arrives, which will not be far off. The following is the order:

VICE PRESIDENT'S OFFICE,
GREENVILLE AND COLUMBIA RAILROAD CO.,
COLUMBIA, S. C., March 4, 1872.

Hon. Miles G. Parker, State Treasurer, South Carolina:

Please deliver to H. H. Kimpton revenue bond scrip due the Blue Ridge Railroad Company according to act passed March 2, 1872, amounting to $114,250 at par, upon the following conditions: That $42,857 of said scrip at par value is to be used for paying the expenses of passing through the House of Representatives bills styled "A bill relating to the bonds of the State of South Carolina" and "A bill to authorize the Financial Board to settle the accounts of the Financial Agent." Now, if these above-named bills are passed and become laws, this order for $42,857 in scrip at par is to be paid said Kimpton; and, if not passed, then this order for that amount to be void, and the scrip is not to be delivered. Also, that $71,414 of scrip at par you shall deliver to said Kimpton if said bills shall become laws, and provided that he shall pay the sum of $50,000, the proceeds of said scrip at 70 cents on the dollar, in paying the expenses incurred in passing through the Senate the bill known as "A bill to relieve the State of all liability on account of the guaranty of the Blue Ridge railroad bonds," etc., passed March 2, 1872, which said expenses said Kimpton has contracted to pay; and if said Kimpton fails or refuses to pay said amount in defraying said expenses when required by me, then this order to be void. If said conditions are complied with, and the amount of scrip delivered to said Kimpton, he is not to be held liable for or to account for its value. The above two sums of $42,859 and $71,414, in scrip, at par, make up the amount of scrip first mentioned in this order.

JOHN J. PATTERSON,
President Blue Ridge Railroad Company in South Carolina.

Witness: R. B. ELLIOTT.

The authenticity of this precious and carefully-drawn contract is beyond cavil, as it is attested by the two photograph copies, by the evidence of Judge Mackey and Gov. Scott, who saw the original, and by the testimony of Elliott, whose signature as witness is attached. Elliott was before the Grand Jury on Thursday, at the same time the indictment was being considered by them, and, as a true bill was found, the inference is irresistible that he testified in person to the genuineness of the signature and of the paper itself. The next link in the chain is supplied by the indictment of Patterson, Parker and Kimpton for conspiracy, etc., concerning which it is sufficient to repeat here that the evidence of Prince Rivers, S. J. L. Lee and J. B. Dennis has been given as to the manner in which the money so obtained was misapplied. The comments of the New York Times and of the Washington Republican in regard to this branch of the pending Democratic prosecution of innocent and honorable Republicans will be anxiously looked for, and will no doubt furnish interesting reading.

Temperate State Officials.

The Minneapolis Tribune has the following gratifying statement concerning the executive officials of Minnesota: "An uncompromising temperance man made a thorough canvass of the State Capitol recently for the purpose of ascertaining the per cent. of intemperate officials and employes, with a view of framing an argument for nominating a State ticket on a total abstinence platform. He closed his labors convinced that little could be gained while much might be lost by the temperance element by bringing forward a ticket. There is not a single State officer that may even be classed as a moderate drinker, and there is but one departmental employe, and he holds an insignificant position, who ever indulges in strong drink."

The Widow Stearns' Case.

Mrs. Wm. Stearns, widow of the eldest son of the late President Stearns, is debarred by the courts from receiving her husband's share of the Alabama claims money because he was a British subject. He became so to protect his business interests in India, and his family suffer the loss of about $400,000 in consequence. He was patriotically American in his sympathies, of course, giving generously to local volunteers and to aid the Government in the rebellion. Mrs. Stearns has opened her school in the late President's house, at Amherst.—Boston Transcript.

THE Cobden Club, of London, has an active membership of 603, and an honorary membership of 185. Sixty-three of its honorary members are American citizens, and only three of that number are of foreign birth, namely, Carl Schurz, Hamilton A. Hill, and William Downie. Among the others are Charles Francis Adams, Henry W. Longfellow, William Cullen Bryant, Gen. Garfield, Ralph Waldo Emerson, W. E. Dodge, Henry Ward Beecher, Cyrus Field, and Edward Atkinson.

LABOR AND FINANCE.

Views of an Extensive Iron-Manufacturing Firm—Our Swindling Financial System the Cause of the Hard Times—Government Non-Interest-Bearing Paper Money an Industrial Necessity.

The following letter of Reis, Brown & Berger, the great iron manufacturers of New Castle, Pa., in answer to a request of the Chief of the Bureau of Industrial Statistics at Harrisburg to give their opinions as to the causes of the stagnation of business, should be read by every workingman. It shows very clearly that our dishonest money system is the great cause of the poverty and degradation resulting from the depression of trade:

W. Hays Grier, Esq., Chief of Bureau of Industrial Statistics, Harrisburg, Pa.:

DEAR SIR: In your circular you request our "ideas of the causes of the present condition of trade, and then say, "Do not hesitate to express your opinions."

With this desire for our "ideas" let us be frank and say that the policy of the Government in trying to reach specie payments by contracting the lawful money of the country is the primary cause of the universal prostration which marks every branch of the productive industry of the country. Ten years ago every department of our productive power was fully employed and adding millions to the wealth of the nation.

It is a fact that the Government undertook to reach specie payments by contracting the currency; and it is just as much a fact that from the time the contraction of the currency commenced the productive industries of the country have been declining. Here we have the cause and the effect—the one so closely following the other that the most stupid ought to see the policy that is destroying our industries.

The paper currency of the country is the means by which the consumer reaches the producer. And trade has always kept pace with the volume of this currency. When the currency was expanded business was expanded; when the currency was contracted business contracted.

But the effect of the currency upon the productive industries of the country appears in the following table, showing the volume of paper currency for each year named and the total consumption of domestic iron and foreign iron and steel and the manufacture thereof in the United States:

Year.	Currency.	Consumption.
1830	$61,323,898	$11,155,171
1837	149,185,890	23,298,530
1840	106,968,572	16,057,984
1841	107,290,214	16,554,149
1842	83,734,011	12,541,899
1843	58,563,608	10,217,865
1844	75,167,646	17,644,410
1848	128,506,091	35,802,467
1849	114,743,415	29,033,479
1854	204,689,207	58,896,419
1855	186,952,223	51,378,935

That which is true of iron and iron manufactures is true of all our productive industries. Just as the Government provides the means by which exchanges are made, the demand for the productions of labor increases or decreases. Here is the power that stimulates the productive wealth of the nation. The people will consume all they are able to produce if the Government will only permit them to reach each other through their own natural channels.

In connection with the foregoing table let the following figures be studied. This statement shows the volume of currency, including coin, number of hands, and wages paid for labor employed in the workshops of the United States for the years 1850, 1860 and 1870:

Year.	Currency.	Hands Employed.	Wages.
1850	$280,000,000	957,059	$229,933,473
1860	425,000,000	1,311,256	378,870,966
1870	800,000,000, paper.	2,053,996	775,584,343

These figures show that our productive power keeps pace with the increase of the currency, and bears no relation to the increase of population. Then take the product of the manufactures for each of the above years, and we see the enormous increase of our national wealth by promoting our industrial power. Production for 1850, $1,019,106,616; 1860, $1,885,861,676; 1870, $4,232,325,442.

The primary lesson, however, to be gathered from the foregoing figures teaches the advantages of a purely national currency. The wealth of a nation consists solely in its productive power. Build up the productive interests and the evidences of the wealth thus created can everywhere be seen in the building of roads, ships and telegraphs; in the opening of mines, building of factories, and improvement of machinery; in the clearing of land, building of houses, and education of the people. On the other hand, destroy the productive industries of the country (as we have been doing in trying to reach specie payments by contraction of the currency), and the ruinous effects can just as plainly be seen in the idleness, misery and crime which multiplies with every step we take in this mistaken policy. For several years this war upon the productive industries has been crowding our highways with tramps, our almshouses with paupers, and our prisons with criminals.

That paper currency is a necessity incident to the wants of trade is apparent to every business man. But must a paper currency be made to fluctuate with every change of the wind? Is it possible that whenever we reach a condition of industrial prosperity we must, from necessity, have a panic, followed by the wholesale ruin of producers?

When we look into the nature of banks of issue, we see at once the danger of bank currency. In the first place, we provide that nothing but coin shall be lawful money. Then we authorize a few private adventurers to issue their own promises to pay for the purpose of providing the means of commercial exchange. These promises to pay are three, four or five times the paying power of the banks in coin. Business men are compelled to procure this currency, and just as these notes increase in circulation the business of the country increases. But the notes must be paid, and there are but two ways to pay—either in coin or in satisfaction of loans; and the volume of this currency is liable to be contracted at any time to the limit of the paying power or specie basis. When contracted, the business of the country goes under just as certainly as the fact that $1 will not pay $3 of debt.

These banks of issue, however, contain a more pernicious power than that of contraction or expansion. That is, their power to absorb the productive capital of the country. Take, for illustration, our national banking system. Any man or company of men holding national bonds may get the power to issue bank notes to the extent of 90 per cent. of the actual value of the bonds. These bonds are an actual investment in themselves, and one of the best investments, as seen in their market value. Yet any man, by becoming the holder of these bonds and depositing them with the Comptroller of the Currency, may get authority to issue bank notes, and all the law requires of him is that he keep a lawful-money reserve of 25 per cent. and 10 per cent. at Washington with which to redeem his notes. Here, then, is his entire cash capital. Suppose he gets authority to issue $100,000. He is required by law to have of lawful money 35 per cent., or $35,000, which is the whole of the cash capital involved in the issue of the $100,000 in currency. The manufacturer must have currency with which to carry on his business, and from necessity must go to the bank for it, and the bank loans the $100,000 of its own promise to pay at 6 per cent., which is nearly 18 per cent. upon its entire cash capital. In five years (close banking) the bank will have doubled its cash capital, and in less than twelve years, by a careful manipulation of its discounts, will have absorbed the $100,000 originally issued, and still hold the borrowers' paper to the extent of every dollar of currency in circulation. Thus, this system of providing currency for the people is consuming the productive capital of the country, and thereby destroying our productive and commercial power.

At 10 per cent. discount (the rate at which most of the banks put out their circulation) they will have doubled their cash capital in three years, and in less than eight will have absorbed every dollar of their issues, and still leave the country in debt to the banks for every dollar of currency in circulation. A more ingenious system to absorb the productive wealth of the people could hardly be devised. It requires no argument to convince the manufacturer that he cannot long survive with such a power preying upon his vitals.

And here we have an explanation of the cause of the abundance of currency in the hands of the banks. The borrower, after returning to the bank in the shape of discounts all the currency originally issued, is yet in debt for all he borrowed. He cannot double his loan every time the currency is absorbed or returned to the bank in payment of discounts, and therefore must contract or suspend his business. In the meantime the currency remains without a market. To show the full force of this absorbing power, look at the overwhelming indebtedness of the country to the national banks. The report of the Comptroller of the Currency shows their loans or discounts to be nearly $950,000,000. Almost double the entire volume of currency in circulation.

But how is the currency to be relieved? This question most interests every business man.

There was no greater delusion than that specie payments can in any way relieve the manufacturing interests throughout the country. The manufacturer, to prosper, must have a paper currency adequate to the consuming power of the people. The history of the legal-tender currency proves beyond controversy that it was in every way the best currency the country ever had. With it the productive power was developed as it never had been before. There are many reasons for this. In the first place, there is no antagonism between the power that issues the legal-tender currency and the people. Banks of issue from the nature of the relation they sustain to the producer antagonise the productive power just as the wolf antagonises the lamb.

In the second place, there should be no two kinds of money. Every dollar in currency should be lawful money, and a legal tender in the payment of all debts and receivable for taxes. Then the borrower and lender could be on even footing.

In the third place, with a legal-tender currency issued by the Government, the people are not exposed to the fluctuations incident to bank issues, which are but an expansion of credit upon a specie basis. Nothing can be more uncertain than the volume of this credit or its value. The bank may issue its notes to-day, and by so doing put every man to work and every wheel in motion. To-morrow a whisper of suspicion may send every dollar of these notes home for payment, thus withdrawing and contracting the currency and causing a suspension of business with the correlative consequences, bankruptcy and ruin.

Until our representatives learn the purpose and nature of currency and the wants of American industry, this depressed condition of the people must continue. Let the Government provide a paper currency adequate to the industrial wants of the country, making this currency lawful money for all purposes. Then we will have prosperity.

Pursue the present policy but a few years longer, and we will not only be a nation of bankrupts and paupers, but will be a nation of repudiators. Respectfully yours,

REIS, BROWN & BERGER,
Iron manufacturers.

NEW CASTLE, PA.

THE BANK RESERVES.

Secretary Sherman's Statements at Mansfield Called in Question—Facts Hurled at Him.

J. W. Schuckers, the friend and biographer of Chief Justice Chase, writes the following to the New York Herald:

In his speech at Mansfield, Mr. John Sherman made certain statements, the intent of which was to create a belief in the public mind that there is a vast accumulation of unloaned and unloanable paper money at this time lying idle and unemployed in the vaults, and at the command of the national banks. "There are now deposited with the treasury," says Mr. John Sherman, "by private corporations, banks, and individuals, $57,000,000, of which there were deposited by the national banks at the date of their last statement, made June 22, $44,500,000; and they—the national banks—have, in the cash reserves held by them, $42,500,000 more than the amount required by law, thus clearly showing," said Mr. John Sherman, "that there is no want of currency when demanded for the requirements of business."

There is no mistaking Mr. Sherman's designs in making these statements. He intended to create a belief that the national banks have in their vaults and at their command $87,000,000 of surplus unemployed money, which they are ready to loan upon adequate securities, but for which there is no demand; $44,500,000 lying idle and unemployed in the custody of the Federal treasury, and $42,500,000 lying idle and unemployed in their own vaults.

Now what are the actual facts?

An examination of the condition of the national banks on the 22d of June last, as appears from the Comptroller's statement, shows that they held at the close of business on that day certificates of deposit with the Federal treasury amounting to $44,410,000. If these certificates of deposit represented idle, unemployed, and surplus funds, they assuredly would not appear among the "lawful-money reserves" of the banks. But they do so appear, and without their appearance there the returns made by the banks on the 22d of June last would show them to be short of the reserves required by law to an amount aggregating nearly $25,000,000. It happens, moreover, that these certificates of deposit form, as we see, not only an integral part of the lawful-money reserves of the national banks, but are used for clearing-house purposes also, and in this respect perform a most important office. It is very doubtful, indeed, whether the $44,500,000 of United States notes, as represented by these certificates—which Mr. John Sherman seeks to make us believe are idle and surplus funds—do not perform functions more extensive and important than those performed by any other equal sums either in or out of the custody of the banks. Undoubtedly the existence of these certificates does not warrant the belief Mr. John Sherman seeks to establish.

Mr. John Sherman alleged, also, in his speech a Mansfield, that the national banks held in their "cash reserve," on the 22d of June last, $42,500,000 "more than the amount required by law." It would be interesting to have Mr. John Sherman point out where this $42,500,000 excess of "cash reserve" is found. The cash reserve is made up of four items—specie, legal-tender notes, United States certificates of deposit, and the 5 per cent. redemption fund. On the 22d of June last the national banks held, according to the statement of the Comptroller, of specie, $21,340,111; of legal tenders, $78,004,386; of United States certificates of deposit, $44,410,000; and of 5 per cent. redemption fund, $14,612,241—total "cash reserves" of the national banks, $158,366,830. The statement of the Comptroller does not show the amount of cash reserves the banks ought to have held on the 22d of June last, but assuming $140,000,000 to be a correct estimate (the amount at the date of the last preceding statement of the Comptroller, April 14, 1877, was $144,700,000), and we find the amount of "cash reserve" in excess of the amount required by law to be slightly over $18,000,000, or wide of Mr. Sherman's report nearly $25,000,000! Clearly, Mr. Sherman's "cash reserve in excess of the amount required by law" exists somewhere else than in the banks!

One of the methods by which the inflationists are confronted with large accumulations of "surplus paper money" in the national banks is as follows: The banks are divided into three classes—"country" banks, "city" banks, and "New York" city banks. Under the National Bank acts the "country" banks may deposit a certain per cent. of their reserves with the "city" banks (located in Albany, Baltimore, Boston, Charleston, Chicago, Cincinnati, Cleveland, Detroit, Louisville, Milwaukee, New Orleans, New York, Philadelphia, Pittsburgh, Richmond, St. Louis, San Francisco and Washington), and in turn the "city" banks may deposit a certain per cent. of their reserves with the "New York city" banks. But while it is quite true that these deposits of the "country" banks with the "city" banks, and with the "New York" banks, are technically "lawful-money reserves," it is perfectly well known that the "city" banks and the "New York" banks loan these deposits just as they loan the deposits of their private customers. But it is only by counting these purely technical reserves as real potential reserves that the banks are made to appear stuffed with money for which they can find no employment.

An example will illustrate: On the 14th of April last 1,839 "country" banks had on deposit with 185 "city" banks $56,600,000, besides $48,000,000 in their own vaults, and 185 "city" banks had on deposit with 47 "New York" banks $29,000,000, besides $42,300,000 in their own vaults; the reserves of the "New York" banks being at the same moment $54,900,000. Putting these several sums together and the apparent reserve would be $230,400,000. But the real reserve held by the banks on the 14th of April last at once available for the redemption of their liabilities was as follows:

1,839 country banks	[illegible]
185 city banks	[illegible]
47 New York banks	[illegible]
3 San Francisco banks	$97,000
Total	$146,[illegible]

or less than one million and a half in excess of the actual cash reserve required by law, which was on the 14th of April last $144,700,000.

Mr. Sherman cannot take refuge behind technical reserves, because there is no question about such reserves. The issue is, whether or not, in seeking to create a public belief that there is a large surplus of money lying idle and unemployed in the banks or at their command, he is borne out by the facts. The foregoing analysis proves beyond doubt that he is not borne out by the facts, but that he has availed himself of his great office to mislead the people. The truth is that the national banks have no more "cash reserves," or any other kind of reserves, than are necessary to the safe administration of their current business. There is no plethora of money either in or out of the banks; certainly not in New York, at any rate, if it be true—as a contemporary of the Herald stated on the morning of the 8th inst.—that the national banks of that city were employing stock-exchange brokers to borrow money for them. The credit of the national banks is strained at this very hour; and their condition, no less than that of the country at large, witnesses the urgent necessity of a prompt expansion of the currency.

ALL SORTS.

MICHIGAN is assessed this year at $630,000,000.

THE elegant feather bordering will be used on winter cloaks.

SENATOR MORTON has property to the value of about $25,000.

THE State of Virginia offers a bounty of $1 for the scalp of every gray fox, and $1.50 for red ones.

THE Tennessee Historical Society claims to have Israel Putnam's commission, signed by John Hancock.

BARON ROTHSCHILD of Paris has purchased the celebrated picture gallery of Van Loon at Amsterdam for $800,000.

SEVERAL of the counties in Northern Texas have established poor-farms, which have, so far, been operated with profit.

AN imperial edict has been issued prohibiting the smoking of opium in China, the order to take effect three years from its date.

THE colored people of Hillsboro, Tex., are holding a religious meeting that has been going on incessantly for three months.

LORD PALMERSTON once said, speaking of the Turks, "What energy can be expected of a people with no heels to their shoes?"

THE United States Supreme Court decides that a State bank may lawfully become a national bank without the consent of the State.

SIXTY-ONE sheep, which had congregated under a tree during a storm, were struck by lightning and killed in California the other day.

A VERMONT hotel-keeper has whitewashed a big cliff in sight of his house, that it may resemble a snow-bank, and cause curious people to ask questions.

NOT a shipmaster could be found in Baltimore, recently, who would take a cargo of petroleum to Constantinople, though advantageous terms were offered.

THE negroes comprise only about one-fourth of the population of Memphis, Tenn., and yet of the 1,253 deaths in that city last year 601, or nearly one-half, were negroes.

A RAILROAD ballasted with silver! That is partly true of one in Nevada, over which ore trains run. Silver dust has been sprinkled along the road-bed until the earth assays at $50 a ton. The gathering of this metal would cost more than it would be worth at present, but in time the accumulation will repay the trouble.

ONE of the curiosities of next year's great exhibition at Paris will be the building of the Persian national palace, which is to cover not less than 170 square metres, and is to be erected by Persian architects and workmen. These have just arrived in Paris, and are immediately to set to work on its construction.

A DESERTED babe in Buffalo had a peculiar nose. A detective learned that the parents lived in Simcoe, Canada, but he did not know their names. He went to Simcoe, and hunted for somebody with a nose like the baby's. At length he met a man in the street whose nose was of that kind, and who proved to be the baby's father.

A CLOUD of sand which obscured the sun's rays lately fell in Rome. The phenomenon has frequently occurred before. The sand rises into the air from African deserts, and floats a long time in the atmosphere. The rigging of ships is often covered with it at a distance of over 1,000 miles from the African coast. The particles are exceedingly fine and of a red tint.

ONE Van Valkenburgh, a hostler, recently agreed for $5 to take an ordinary pleasure boat out on Saratoga lake, upset it, leave it himself, right it, re-enter it, bail the water out and row to the shore. A wager was put upon his ability to do so, and a crowd assembled on the shore of the lake to witness the novel feat, which was accomplished with apparent ease.

ACCORDING to a Paris paper, a French lady of rank has just died, at the age of 84, who had been accustomed, for the last thirty years, to smoke a pipe twice a day as a penance. In 1845 she married a wealthy sea Captain, and obtained from him a promise to abandon smoking of which he was extremely fond. He kept his word, but died shortly after from regret—so it is alleged. His widow was so overwhelmed with grief and remorse that from that time to the day of her death she smoked a couple of pipes a day, and desired at her death that her pipe should be buried with her.

THE BOOT UPSIDE-DOWN

Can beat the World on

BOOTS AND SHOES!

If you like to

SAVE MONEY!

Don't buy a dollars worth of goods before you see our

GOODS AND PRICES!

We have all our goods made to order

FOR CASH

And will sell you the best Boot or Shoe for the money on Earth.

Mens Stoga Boots, hand made, $2.00 to $3.00, Mens Kip Boots, custom made, $3.50 to $3.85, All Calf, hand made Boots $4.50, Womens Winter Shoes, $1.00 to $2.00 Womens Grain Shoes, 99c to $1.25.

COME AND SEE US!

We like to show goods whether you buy or not, for we are always happy and you can't make us mad. We will give a pair of

LADIES BEST RUBBERS!

With every bill of goods bought that amounts to $14.00.

BOYS BOOTS FROM $1.50 TO 2.50!

MENS RUBBER BOOTS $3.25.

Look outforthe BOOT UPSIDE-DOWN, Auburn, Indiana.

W. J. AUSTIN & CO.

Recorder's Office

THE AUBURN COURIER.

Devoted to the Interests of the Democratic Party and to the Collection of Local and General News.

Volume 7. AUBURN, DeKALB COUNTY INDIANA, SEPTEMBER 27th, 1877. Number 39.

The Auburn Weekly Courier

PUBLISHED EVERY THURSDAY, BY

TOM. C. MAYS.

One Year..........$2, | Six Months.......

Advertising Rates.

Space.	1m.	3m.	6m.	1y.
1 Square	2 00	5 00	7 00	12 00
¼ Column........	8 00	12 00	18 00	30 00
½ Column........	10 00	18 00	30 00	50 00
1 Column........	15 00	30 00	60 00	100 00

Local Notices 10 cents per line, first insertion 5 cents each insertion thereafter. Business cards Five Dollars.

BUSINESS DIRECTORY

ATTORNEYS.

WOODRULL and CROXTON,

ATTORNEYS AT LAW Angola, Indiana. Practice in Steuben and DeKalb Counties.

H. C. PETERSON,

ATTORNEY AT LAW and notary public. Office over Davis' hardware store, Auburn, Ind.

J. W. RICKEL,

ATTORNEY AT LAW Auburn, Ind. Special attention given to collections. Office ove First National Bank.

A. F. PINCHIN

ATTORNEY AT LAW and notary public, Butler, DeKalb Co., Ind. Insurance and real estate business promptly attended to.

GUY PLUM

ATTORNEY AT LAW and notary public. Office in the Court House. Special attention paid to the collection of claims. Also agent for Home Insurance Company.

D. D. MOODY. P. V. HOFFMAN.

Moody and Hoffman,

ATTORNEYS AT LAW. Office in Odd Fellows' building, opposite Court House, Auburn, Ind.

BEST and McCLELLAN.

ATTORNEYS AT LAW, Waterloo, Ind. Will practice in the Courts of DeKalb & Steuben counties. Liberal Advances Made on all first-class Claims left in our hands for collection.

COURTS IN STEUBEN CO.	COURTS IN DEKALB CO
1st Monday in February	3rd Monday in Feb.
4th Monday in April	2nd Monday in May
1st Monday in September	3rd Monday in Sep.
1st Monday in November	2nd Monday in Dec.

R. WES. McBRIDE, J. L. MORLAN, W. H. LEAS

McBRIDE, MORLAN and LEAS

ATTORNEYS AT LAW, NOTARIES PUBLIC, COLLECTING AND INSURANCE AGENCY Office over Fisher's Clothing Store, corner of Wayne and Marion streets, Waterloo, Ind. Will practice in all parts of the State. Especial Attention given to collections in DeKalb, Steuben, LaGrange and Noble counties.

COURTS IN DEKALB CO.	COURTS IN STEUBEN CO.
4th Monday in February	1st Monday in Febr'y.
3rd Monday in May.	4th Monday in April.
4th Monday in Septem'r	1st Monday in Sept'r.
3rd Monday in Decem'r	4th Monday in Nov'r.

PHYSICIANS.

DR. J. A. COWAN,

PHYSICIAN & SURGEON, Auburn, Ind. Office on Main street, over Central Grocery.

J. J. LITTLEFIELD,

PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON. Office over McIntyre's Block, Auburn, Ind. All calls promptly attended to.

W. S. ALLEN.

PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON, Office West o Court House, on Main Street, over Eldridge's store. Same office lately occupied by Dr. Cowan.

DR. TRITCH,

HOMEOPATHIC PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON Special attention given to Surgery and Chronic diseases. Office in Case's Block, Auburn Indiana.

DR. S. B. JOHNSTON.

DENTIST, WATERLOO, INDIANA, Does all work in the line of his profession at as low figures as possible. Special attention given to gold filling and making new teeth. All work warranted.

HOTELS.

AVELINE HOUSE,

MILLER & MORITZ, Prop's., corner Calhoun & Berry Sts., Fort Wayne, Ind.

BUTT'S HOTEL,

FORMERLY THE BIGLER HOUSE, JOHN BUTT & A. B. RICHARDS, Proprietors, Waterloo, Ind. Free omnibus to and from all trains Good sample rooms on first floor.

Central House,

MR. M. C. MARKEL, Prop. Corner Main and Seventh streets. Good Sample Rooms for Drummers.

MAYER HOUSE.

SCARBROUGH & KEPLER, Prop's., Corner Calhoun and Wayne Streets, Fort Wayne, Ind. Good Sample Rooms.

SANDS HOUSE.

COR. WABASH AVE. & MADISON ST. CHICAGO, ILL. New House, elegantly furnished. Only $2.00 per day.

Geo. S. Palmer, [Late of City Hotel,] C erk. O. Sands, Proprietor

MISCELLANEOUS.

H. Wartenslaben

PAINTER and paper hanger. House painting specialty. Residence corner Williams and Cedar street.

PRINTING.

COURIER OFFICE,

JOB PRINTING neatly executed. Fine work a specialty. Office in Odd fellows' Building 2nd floor.

EXAMINATION OF TEACHERS.—Examinations will be held in Auburn on the first Saturday, and in Waterloo on the last Saturday in each month, beginning March 4, 1876. Examination begin at 10 o'clock A. M.

JAMES A. BARNES Co. Sup't.

Come to Auburn when you want to buy a good piano, and M. F. Long Co., will sell you one as low as the lowest.

ELSWORTH, ANDREW & CO.

Have opened for the Spring Trade of 1877, an elegant li e of

BRUSSELS & INGRAIN

CARPETS

In all the new and elegant designs; and will give very low figures to

CASH BUYERS.

A full line of

OIL CLOTHS,

MATTINGS.

LACE CURTAIS.

WINDOW SHADES,

STAIR RODS,

RUGS and MATS.

And a splendid stock of

WALL PAPER

AND DECRATIONS.

We solicit inspection from Auburn and vicinity,

ELLSWORTH, ANDREW & CO.

26 East Berry Street,
Fort Wayne, Indiana.

J. G. FLEDDERMAN

No. 27, East Main-St.

FORT WAYNE, IND'A

as the largest and finest stock of

CLOTHS, COATINGS, CHEVIOTS,

AND

CassimereS

in Ft. Wayne. The finest line of

Made up Clothing

ever shown in Fort Wayne

Youths' and Children's Clothing!

Furnishing Goods, &c.

Merchant Tailoring

All work done in all the latest styles, from seeinlarge stock

JUST RECEIV'D

—AT—

J. ABRIGHT'S

Fine Gold and Plated Jewelry.
Ladies Gold Watches,
American Watches,

Rogers & Bro. Silverware,

A splendid line of imported Vases Watch Chains, magnificent Holiday Gifts, Lockets, Ladies Sets, Gents

GOLD & SILVER SET

Sleeve and Collar Buttons, Jet Shell and Horn Jewelry, All at astonishingly

LOW PRICES.

Watches and Jewelry repaired on short notice and in good style.

JAS. CLIFFORD.

WATERLOO, IND.

Keeps constantly on hand the best and choicest brands of all kinds of

Wines and Liquors,

Cigars, Tobaccos, &c.

He also has, in connection with the above a first class

BILLIARD HALL.

To our citizens and the traveling public, we would say that this is the popular resort at Waterloo. First door south of the railroad

NO PEOPLE IN THE WORLD

suffer as much with Neuralgic or Rheumatic complaints as Americans, and no nation is so prolific in remedies to cure, yet we come in contact every day with scores who are suffering without having found the cure they have sought for. To those who have used

Lawson's Curative

we need only to say that it is compounded with the same scientific skill and care as heretofore, and maintains the deserved reputation which it has acquired by the wonderful cures it has performed. To those who have never tested the CURATIVE we urge a trial of its virtues for the diseases named below.

Eminent and Skillful Physicians

use the CURATIVE largely in their practice, and prominent clergymen and editors recommend it from a knowledge of its effects.

Rheumatism, Diphtheria,
Dyspepsia, Sciatica,
Neuralgia, Toothache,
Pleurisy, Sore Throat,
Swollen Joints, Chilblains,
Headache, Sprains,
Lame Back, Burns,
Erysipelas, Scalds,

All yield to the magic influence of the CURATIVE, no matter of how long standing. It is only necessary to use it faithfully and perseveringly, according to the directions which accompany each bottle, and you will be cured.

Lawson's Curative

Is Healing and Cooling to Wounds, Sores, Burns and Scalds.

Try it and you will never be without it.

SOLD BY ALL DRUGGISTS.

Price $1.00 per Bottle, 6 for $5.00.

PREPARED BY

Lawson Chemical Co., Cleveland, O.

For sale by F. E. Davenport.

$45 PREMIUM WATCH AND CHAIN—a stem-winder. Free with every order. Outfit free. J. B. Gaylord & Co., Chicago, Ill.

$3 GOLD PLATED WATCHES. Cheapest in the known world. Sam le Watch Free to Agents. Address, A. COULTER & Co., Chicago.

$2500 A YEAR. Agents wanted. Business legitimate. Particulars free. Address J. WORTH & CO., St Louis, Mo.

OPIUM and Morphine Habit absolutely and speedily cured. Painless; no publicity. Send stamp for particulars. Dr. Carlton, 187 Washington St., Chicago, Ill.

A PHYSIOLOGICAL

View of Marriage!

WOMAN AND MARRIAGE

A Guide to Wedlock and confidential Treatise on the duties of marriage and the causes that unfit for it; the secrets of Reproduction and the Diseases of Women. A book for private, considerate reading. 260 pages, price 50 cts.

A PRIVATE MEDICAL ADVISER! On all disorders of a Private Nature arising from Self Abuse, Excesses, or Secret Diseases, with the best means of cure, 224 large pages, price 50 cts.

A CLINICAL LECTURE on the above diseases and those of the Throat and Lungs, Catarrh, Rupture, the Opium Habit, &c., price 10 cts.

Either book sent postpaid on receipt of price; or all three, containing 500 pages, beautifully illustrated, for 75 cts. Address DR. BUTTS, No. 12 N. 8th St. St. Louis, Mo

EAGLE MILLS

FLOUR, CORN MEAL, FEED, &c.

The reputation of the Eagle Mills, its excellent facilities for making good flour together with the advantages it possesses in the way of improved machinery enables the proprietor to announce that he is now prepared to meet all demands in the way of custom work. The Eagle Mill brand of flour will be found on hand at reasonable rates. Orders delivered in any part of town free of charge. P. W. SILVERS.

FOR SALE.

VALUABLE LANDS.

I offer for sale one section of land, in Kosciusko county, Ind., nine miles south west of Warsaw, adjoining W. Beybl, and a quarter section nearby, which I will sell as a whole or in lots of 40 acres or more, as the purchaser may desire. The land is well improved, well timbered and I will sell low for cash. Or I will sell on time, one-forth down, and the balance in ten years. Also a section in Fulton county on the same terms. For particulars address,

H. HEIST, Kendallville, Ind.

BILL BRITTON

THE DRAY MAN

Will attend promptly to all orders for

DRAYING AND HAULING.

Rattling good teams and reasonable charges.

MEEKS & WYER,

Our energetic

PLASTERS

Will do you a good job at reasonable rates. They always give satisfaction and are prompt in their work. Those having plastering to do should give them a call. no21 6w

FIFTH YEAR.

IND. ONSERVATORY OF MUSIC,

FORT WAYNE, IND.

FALL TERM COMMENCING

SEPTEMBER 11th, 1877.

Pupils attending this Conservatory can be accommodated with board at the M. E. College, at $2 per week.

no34tf S. B. MORSE, Principal.

Sheriff's Sale.

BY virtue of an execution to me directed from the Clerk of the DeKalb County Circuit Court in a cause wherein The First National Band of Auburn is plaintiff and E. H. Palmer and Charles G. Smith are defendants, requiring me to make the sum of One Hundred and Twenty Nine Dollars and Thirty cents, with interest on said judgment and costs, I will expose at public sale, to the highest bidder, on

SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 29th, 1877

Between the hours of 10 o'clock a. m. and 4 o'clock p. m. of said day, at the door of the Court House in DeKalb County, Indiana, the rents and profits for a term not exceeding seven years, of the following real estate, to-wit:

Lot number twenty-two [22] in Kuhlman's addition to the town of Auburn, DeKalb county, Indiana.

If such rents and profits will not sell for a sufficient sum to satisfy said judgment interests and costs I will at the same time and place, expose the fee simple of said real estate, or so much thereof as may be sufficient to discharge said judgment, interest and costs.

Sale will be made without any relief whatever from valuation or appraisement laws.

J. C. St. CLAIR, Sheriff,
By T. D. Gross, Deputy.

Guy Plum, Att'y for plaintiff.
Auburn, Ind., Sept. 4, 1877. Pr. fee $8.50.

Sheriff's Sale.

BY virtue of an execution to me directed from the Clerk of the DeKalb Circuit Court in a cause wherein Henry Funk for the use of Charles Klotz is plaintiff, and John Reusch is defendant requiring me to make the sum of Two Hundred and Thirty-Two Dollars, with interest on said judgment and costs, I will expose at public sale to the highest bidder, on

SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 29th, 1877

Between the hours of 10 o'clock a. m. and 4 o'clock p. m. of said day at the door of the Court House of DeKalb County, Indiana, the rents and profits for a term not exceeding seven years, of the following real estate to-wit:

Lots number one hundred and twenty-three [123] and one hundred and twenty-four [124], in the western addition to the town of Auburn, DeKalb county, Indiana.

If such rents and profits will not sell for a sufficient sum to satisfy said judgment interest and costs, I will at the same time and place, expose at public sale, the fee simple of said real estate, or so much thereof as may be sufficient to discharge said decree, interest and costs.

Sale will be made without any relief whatever from valuation or appraisement laws.

J. C. St. CLAIR, Sheriff.
By THOS. D. GROSS, Dept.

Best & McClellan and Rickel & Tefft Attorneys for plaintiff.
Auburn, Indiana, Sept 4th, 1877. Pr. fee $8.75.

Sheriff's Sale.

BY virtue of a certified copy of a decree to me directed from the Clerk of the DeKalb Circuit Court in a cause wherein John L. Davis is plaintiff and Nathan Tarney et al. are defendants, requiring me to make the sum of fifty-eight [58] dollars and fifty-eight [58] cents, with interest on said decree and costs, I will expose at public sale, to the highest bidder, on

SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 29th, 1877

Between the hours of 10 o'clock A. M. and 4 o'clock P. M., of said day, at the door of the Court House of DeKalb county, Indiana, the rents and profits for a term not exceeding seven years, of the following real estate to-wit:

Lot number one [1] in block number eighteen [18] in the town of Garrett, in DeKalb county, Indiana.

If such rents and profits will not sell for a sufficient sum to satisfy said decree, interest and costs, I will at the same time and place expose at public sale the fee simple of said real estate, or so much thereof as may be sufficient to discharge said decree, interest and costs.

Sale will be made without any relief whatever from valuation or appraisement laws.

J. C. St. CLAIR, Sheriff.
By THOS. D. GROSS, Deputy.

H. C. Peterson, Att'y for Plaintiffs.
Auburn, Ind., Aug. 29th, 1877. Pr. fee $8.25

Sheriff's Sale.

BY virtue of an execution and fee bill to me directed from the Clerk of the DeKalb Circuit Court, in a cause wherein Robert Work is plaintiff and Hiram Byers is defendant, requiring me to make the sum of Eighty Dollars and Twenty-Five Cents, with interest on said judgment and costs, I will expose at public sale to the highest bidder, on

SATURDAY, OCTOBER 6th, 1877,

Between the hours of 10 o'clock A. M. and 4 o'clock P. M. of said day, at the door of the Court House of DeKalb county, Indiana, the rents and profits for a term not exceeding seven years, of the following real estate, to-wit:

Lot number fifteen [15] in McFarland's addition to the town of Auburn, DeKalb county, Indiana.

If such rents and profits will not sell for a sufficient sum to satisfy said judgment, interest and costs, I will at the same time and place, expose at public sale the fee simple of said real estate, or so much thereof as may be sufficient to discharge said judgment, interest and costs

Sale will be made without any relief whatever from valuation and appraisement laws.

J. C. St. CLAIR, Sheriff.
By Thos D. Gross Deputy.

Auburn, Indiana, September 11th, 1877. Pr. fee $8.00.

Sheriff's Sale,

BY virtue of an execution to me directed from the Clerk of the DeKalb Circuit Court, in a cause wherein Sumner K. Randall is plaintiff, and Charles G. Smith and Daniel W. Smith are defendants requiring me to make the sum of Ninety-eight Dollars and Seventy-Two cents with interest on said judgment and costs, I will expose at public sale to the highest bidder, on

SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 29th, 1877.

Between the hours of 10 o'clock a. m., and 4 o'clock p. m., of said day at the door of the Court House of DeKalb County, Indiana, the rents and profits for a term not exceeding seven years of the following real estate to-wit:

Lot number forty-five [45] in Kuhlman's addition to the town of Auburn, DeKalb county Indiana.

If such rents and profits will not sell for sufficient sum to satisfy said judgment interests and costs, I will at the same time and place, expose at public sale the fee simple of said real estate, or so much thereof as may be sufficient to discharge said judgment interests and costs.

Sale will be made without any relief whatever from valuation or appraisement laws.

JOHN. C. St. CLAIR, Sheriff.
By THOS. D. GROSS, Deputy.

D. D. Moody, Attorney for plaintiff.
Auburn, Indianan, Sept. 4th, 1877. Pr. fee $8.50.

Sheriff's Sale.

BY virtue of a certified copy of a decree to me directed by the Clerk of the Dekalb Circuit Court in a cause wherein Sumner R. Randall is plaintiff, and Ira A. West and Rosanna A. West is defendants, requiring me to make the sum of two hundred and forty-one dollars and thirty cents ($241.30) with interest on said decree and costs, I will expose at public sale, to the highest bidder, on

SATURDAY, OCTOBER 13th, 1877.

Between the hours of 10 o'clock a. m. and 4 o'clock p. m. of said day, at the door of the Court House of DeKalb County, Indiana, the rents and profits, for a term not exceeding seven years of the following real estate, to wit:

West half of the north-east quarter and east half of the north-west quarter of section thirty four [34] township thirty-three (33) north of range twelve (12) east.

If such rents and profits will not sell for a sufficient sum to satisfy said decree interest and costs, I will, at the same time and place, expose at public sale the fee simple of said real estate, or so much thereof as may be sufficient to discharge said decree interests and costs.

Said sale will be made without any relief whatever from valuation or appraisement laws.

JOHN C. ST. CLAIR, Sheriff
By THOS. D. Gross, Deputy.

P. A. Randall, Attorney for plaintiff.
Sept. 18th 1877. Pf. $9.00.

Excursion to the Rocky Mountains.

The Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe Railroad has arranged with the various railroad lines in the country for special round trip rates to the Rocky Mountains, and has secured the following rates to Denver, Colorado Springs, Canon City, Puelo and return; from Kansas City and Atchison, $45; St. Louis, $50; Chicago, $65; Quincy, $50; Cincinnatti, $65; Buffalo, $75, and correspondingly low rates from all points east, north and south These tickets are good for 90 days and to stop at all stations west of the Missouri river. Tickets are on sale at all principal stations throughout the country. This is the new route to Denver through the garden of Kansas and Colorado. Send for maps, circulars, time tables, etc., to

T. J. ANDERSON,
Gen. Pass. Agent, Topeka, Kan.

Worth its Weight in Gold.

Undoubtedly the greatest modern discovery in medicine is DaCosta's Radical Cure for dyspepsia, sick headache, sour stomach, costiveness, biliousness, loss of appetite, distress after eating, and all disorders caused by indigestion or a deranged liver. Its results are astonishing, and sure relief is guaranteed in every case where it is faithfully used. It tones up the stomach, regulates the liver, restors the natural appetite, strengthens the delicate and expels all morbid humors from the system. Typhoid and bilious fever might, in almost every case be prevented by its timely use. Trial size 25 cents A very few doses will relieve, and a little perseverance cure you. Sold by F. E. Davenport.

Also Agents for Prof. Parker's Pleasant Worm Syrup, which is sure death to worms. Pleasant to take and requires no physic. Price 25 cents. Try it.

FIRST NATIONAL BANK.

The First National Bank of Auburn Indiana tenders to the citizens of DeKalb county its facilities for the transaction of business. We loan money, receive deposits subject to check at sight or payable at a fixed date with a stipulated rate of interest. Sell exchange on New York, Chicago, Toledo and Fort Wayne, procure such foreign exchange as may be desired, buy exchange and make collections on all available points, and do all usual and ordinary business done by first class banks. We will also take on deposit for safekeeping valuable papers such as deeds mortgages, notes bonds, agreements etc., guardians, administrators, trustees and all other handling trust funds together with merchants, manufacturers and farmers are solicited to open an account with us. We will deal liberally with all who call.

J. H. FORD, President.
JAMES V. HAZZARD, Cashier.

A Few Words of Wisdom.

For all who are seeking new homes in the West. If you are going to change your location, by all means you should keep on about the same latitude as where you formerly lived for in this way you will escape the severe climatic changes in the weather incident to the extreme North or South, having none of these things to contend with, your self and family are healthy and you become a producer at once, consequently soon independent; on the other hand should you listen to the many glowing accounts of the sunny South, or the mild climate of the North, and thus be induced to try your fortunes there, you will find the reality is not all your fancy painted it. If you go South it usually takes about two years to get acclimated to the climate, during which time, not being able to work, yourself and family are consumers, besides being constantly exposed to the malarial fevers which abound there, and the experience of many is that they return discouraged, leaving not a few loved ones beneath the sod in the sunny South. Therefore, in going West keep on about the same latitude which will insure health and happiness. There are most excellent lands in Northern Missouri on the line of the Hannibal & St. Jo. R. R. and in Kansass, Nebraska and Colorado, "just as cheap and good as the sun ever shown upon," why not accept a certainty rather than run the risk of losing all? Through day and sleeping cars are run from Toledo, Ohio, via the Wabash R'y and Quincy to St. Jo., Atchison and Kansas city, and from Chicago via Chicago, Burlington & Quincy R. R., whereby all arre furnished firstclass accomodations.

Send for map and time-table to J. A. S. Reed, 59 Clark street, Chicago, C. W. Boardman, Decatur, Ill., or T. Penfield, G. P. and T. A., Hanibal, Mo.

Go to the little cigar store on the corner for a good 5 cent cigar. tf.

WAR NEWS.

BY THE MACHINE.

The latest from Kalifat
Is that the Czar
Has sent Gen. Noozfeloff
Into the war,
And when he meets Takeitup-
Playyourleftbower-
Wipeoffyourchinovitch,
Then look out for fun!

The Turks have bombarded on Lake Lemonwhisky,
A city defended by Count Wrigglefrisky;
When surrender was ordered by Hobart Pasha,
Proudly the answer came:
"Hoop la! Hoop la!

But what will the Sultan do
If the Russians get Hold of the harem at Port Wellyoubet?
Will he call for the gory head
Of Ismail Pasha,
And order a countermarch
On Krackoffyourja——
Here the machine was irreparably broken.

Were-Wolves.

Last summer there was a picnic under the trees quite near me, and I overheard a tallish man in green glasses telling a party of youngsters that according to the ancient myths, there used to be in certain countries were-wolves, —persons who, through some bad influence, had changed into wild beasts.

Just to think of it! It fairly made me shudder; but the story-teller went on to say that these were-wolves often became themselves again through a kind word, or by being recognized by their fellow-creatures. To illustrate this, he told the following legend:

"One christmas-eve, a woman, whose husband had years before turned into a wolf and disappeared, went at night to the pantry to lay aside a joint of meat for to-morrow's dinner. There she saw a wolf standing with its paws on the window-sill, looking wistfully in at her. 'Ah, dearest,' said she, 'if I knew that thou wert really my husband, I would give thee a bone!' Whereupon the wolf-skin fell off, and her husband stood before her in the same old clothes that he had worn on the day when he became a wolf."

Ah, my beloved, I am afraid there are were-wolves yet in the world—men and women, and even little children who, through want and suffering and vice, have become brutal. But underneath the wolf-skin is the human heart, and a kind word in recognition of the fact that they are still human will go a long way toward changing them to their better selves. The old charm has not lost its power. Try it. I daresay you girls and boys may some day meet with were-wolves,—coarse, gruff, brutal creatures Don't be afrid of them, and, above all, don't speak rudely to them. Say a kind word to them, and see if the wolf-skin dosn't fall off.—St. Nicholas.

Wasn't the Man.

[From the Burlington Hawkeye.]

A man with weak eyes and green spectacles came wandering into the office the other day, and wanted us to head a subscription to build a monument over the grave of Brigam Young. We declined. We flatly refused, saying that Mr. Young's family was big enough and rich enough to provide him with enough monuments to reach from the grave half way to heaven.

"So you won't put down a dollar?" asked the weak-eyed man.

"Not a solitary dollar," we said, "not a nickel, not a stingy cent."

"What!" he replied in amazement, "And here is the very place I expected to get the list headed, right here at the literary center of this busy metropolis, You won't give a paltry dollar in irredeemable fluctuating currency for a monument over the grave of the author of 'Night thoughts,' won't you? You'll—"

But we assured him that Brigham Young never wrote a line of "Night Thoughts," and that the author of that poem died more than one hundred years ago.

"What!" exclaimed the weak-eyed man, "Brigham Young did not write 'Night Thoughts?'"

"Not a thought,' we said, "he never thought after dark; he went to sleep.'

"Well, what did he write?' the monument canvasser asked.

"Never wrote anything,' we told him; "he didn't know how to write; signed his receipts for money with an X, and preached all his sermons off-hand, because he didn't know how to make notes.'

"Well, well, well,' the agent said musingly, "how this world is given to lying. What did Brigham Young do, if he never thought anything?"

"Married,' we said, "married. Didn't need to think to do that. The less he thought the more he married, and when he died he had so many wives and children that his funeral looked like a foundling hospital and charity school picnic procession.'

The man rose wearily and started for the door, pausing to ask:

"Where is the public libary? I must read up a little on the public men of our day. Strange, passing strange, that I should have got this stranger named Brigham, of whom I never heard before so badly mixed up with Mr. Edwin Young."

WHEN MAIDENS SHOULD LOVE.

FROM THE SPANISH.

Spring-time passes fleetly, maidens,
Spring-time passes fleetly.

Maidens, in our village home,
Prattling over thus so boldly,
Be wary lest the time should come
When age and trust shall chest you coldly.
Fear to let youth's giddy hours
Wile to over-fond believing,
For with cast and faded flowers
Time his garlands still is weaving.
Spring-time passes fleetly, maidens,
Spring-time passes fleetly.

Lightly flit the years away,
While, on eager pinions pressing,
Harpies watch, and as their prey,
Snatch from us each choicest blessing.
The bloom, that but a day endures,
Of truth like this give ever warning,
As evening's chilling blight obscures
The charms that opened with the morning.
Spring-time passes fleetly, maidens,
Spring-time passes fleetly.

Take heed lest, when your fancies worn
Of dawning's chimes they hear the greeting,
For other call life's peal should mean,
And warn of night, and time's retreating.
Then, bereft of beauty's glow,
Lost your gentleness and graces,
Your missing charms no more shall show
Themselves as first in all our places.
Spring-time passes fleetly, maidens,
Spring-time passes fleetly.

An aged dame I've known, whose face
Once was sweetly soft and blooming,
Though now 'twere hard such charms to trace
Through coat of false enamel looming.
For her painted cheeks and brow,
O'er which love's smile no longer twinkles,
Show like bishop's surplice now,
Puckered into folds and wrinkles.
Spring-time passes fleetly, maidens,
Spring-time passes fleetly.

And yet another dame I know,
Who had but one sole tooth remaining,
And saw it sink, some days ago,
Within a posset she was draining.
Then, wailing, thus she cried—Oh, tooth!
That long my soul has loved to cherish,
A pearl I knew thee in thy youth,
A worthless wall I see thee perish.
Spring-time passes fleetly, maidens,
Spring-time passes fleetly.

This lesson, hence, fond maids, unfold,
That, ere cold, niggard age bereave you
Of all your locks of ruddy gold,
And but the pearl's gray luster leave you,
'Tis yours to seek while you are sought,
And love while you are ripe for wooing,
Lest luck's bald hind-head set at naught
The clutch of fools too late pursuing.
Spring-time passes fleetly, maidens,
Spring-time passes fleetly.

MY OWN NAME.

Mr. Robert Edward Rommelaine pushed back his morocco-lined arm-chair from his comfortable breakfast-table and opened the morning newspaper.

He read the editorials, studied carefully a column of commercial quotations, scanned the "Cleared" and "Arrived" of the Marine Intelligence, and, turning back the sheet, proceeded leisurely to investigate the miscellaneous items.

Suddenly his eye became fixed with an expression of astonishment; the color flushed to his cheeks. He read quickly, with an absorbed air, the paragraph whose first sentence had aroused him. The expression of astonishment gave place to one of keen pain. He re-read the paragraph slowly, and, sighing deeply, folded the paper across his knees.

"My own name!" he said.

The ejaculation was made aloud, but no ear recorded it. Simon, the antiquated butler, had brushed away the crumbs, and had placed upon a dainty porcelain tray before Mr. Rommelaine the bright red apple that invariably concluded his morning repast; then disappeared. And there was no guest at the table.

For two months, indeed, and more the sociable long oval had been drawn to round and laid for solitude. This contraction marked the absence of Mrs. Rommelaine, Mrs. Rommelaine's mother, Mr. Rommelaine's mother, the five Misses Rommelaine, and Robert Edward Rommelaine, Junior, the pride of the household heart.

"My own name!" Mr. Rommelaine repeated, reading for the third time the paragraph that had caused him to feel astonishment and pain.

When, after due interval, Simon returned to the dining-room, he found the red apple untouched. He lifted it scrutinizingly, rubbed it on his coat-sleeve to be sure if it could have been susceptible of one glimmer more of polish, and then put it ruefully into his own pocket. "What 'as 'appened to marster?" was the mental reflection of this philosophical personage.

In the meantime Mr. Rommelaine, without any of the leisurely preliminaries that usually marked his departure, had left his house, and was hastening "down town" by an unfamiliar route, toward a quarter of the city quite removed from business streets, and filled with dingy habitations. He studied the small signs visible at the street corners, and presently, alighting from the avenue car, turned into the dingiest of these dismal byways. Walking slowly, and observant of every house that he passed, he reached at last a small, old-fashioned domicile standing in a courtyard, penned in between two towering tenement-houses of the modern type. There he paused.

"And here it is." His face actually flushed with chagrin as this conclusion was made; flushed again when, having passed through the rickety gate, up the dingy little court, he asked of a ragged loiterer in the open doorway, "Is Mrs. Robert Edward Rommelaine within?"

"Second floor front," answered the lounger, removing the pipe from his mouth, and nonchalantly puffing a whiff of rank tobacco into the inquirer's face. "Walk right up. There's been plenty enough to see her since the night of the—"

Mr. Rommelaine had walked right up. From the head of the stairs a narrow passage led to the door of second floor front. Closed as this door was, it could not conceal the presence of misery within. There came the sound of a woman's moan and heavy sighs, and a child's voice: "Don't cry so, dear mamma! oh, don't cry so, dear mamma!"

But when Mr. Rommelaine knocked all became still. He waited, and knocked again. No sound. Five minutes of silence passed, and then he turned the door-knob deliberately, and, finding the door unlocked, entered the room.

A woman knelt beside a bed, with her face hidden in her hands. A little girl, standing by her side and clinging to her, turned with alarm toward Mr. Rommelaine. The place they occupied was poverty-stricken in the extreme.

"You must not hurt my mamma," said the child. She added, as she saw fully in his face, "You will not hurt dear mamma; she is ill."

The woman, whose moans had suddenly ceased, did not stir, and Mr. Rommelaine, approaching her, took the little girl's trusting hand.

"I have come to help her," he said. "I have come to make her well. Rouse yourself, Mrs. Rommelaine."

He did not for one moment hesitate to decide the identity of the object of his search. But, when the young woman with difficulty arose and staggered to a chair, and gazed helplessly with haggard eyes upon her guest, he had but one thought, and that thought audibly crossed his lips in the same tone of wonder and pain as in his solitude that morning—"My own name."

The woman looked at him with a weary apathy; her lips mechanically framed a question, "What do you know of it?" she asked.

"I know everything of it," Mr. Rommelaine answered. "I know that he is charged with the gravest crime that man can commit against man; I know that he has been torn away from you and cast into prison. But I know that he is innocent." He paused a moment; the name in full crossed his mind—Robert Edward Rommelaine. "Yes," he continued, very earnestly, "he is innocent. It is impossible that it should be otherwise. His innocence must be proved."

Half an hour later a carriage ordered to the door received three occupants. "To the City Prison," was the direction given to the driver, and thither they drove in silence toward the wretched owner of a valued name, who all that day, as all the night before, paced his narrow cell in the misery of imprisonment, goaded by every passionate grief that can overtake a man when pursuit is inevitable and flight impossible.

It was one of those days that sometimes occur in late January, when, with snow still lying on the ground, the air seems full of spring. The busy streets of the great city, in the sudden thaw that followed unprecedented "good sleighing," were almost impassable. Foot passengers were ankle-deep in the flood, and their clothes were bespattered by the horses that slipped and stumbled through the mire. Overhead the weather was glorious; underfoot nothing could be more inglorious than the effect of the unseasonable warmth. The contrasts that the day assumed were mental as well as physical. It was the sort of day that makes labor irksome, that tempts vagrancy, and repudiates routine.

Frank Thursten, a studious young lawyer, became unaccountably restless about noon that day. He left his companions bending over their desks, and, opening the window of an outer office, one of two or three used especially for consultation, he drew a chair to the window and gazed out. The opening was only upon a court, but a break in height between opposite buildings gave a generous space of sky. Across this sky, tenderly blue as April's own, floated a few light clouds. Frank Thurston's eye followed them; they were in accord with the gentle balm of the spring air that midwinter surreptitiously breathed.

He fell into one of those moods that the most active and content-to-work souls must sometimes fall into—the mood of dreamy discontent. Twenty-six years of life already passed, and what had come of it? Fortune? No. Happiness? No. A moderate success? Yes. Much to be thankful for in health, friends, and a congenial field of work? Yes. But, after all, on such a day as this there comes an ennui, a sense of incompleteness, a vague longing for experience, for possession, for life, so exquisite and so intense that the achievements of youth seem paltry in comparison, and its finest pleasures awaken disgust. A morbid mood; Frank Thurston knew it, but he yielded to the spell, nevertheless.

A faint knock on the door aroused him. "Come in," he shouted, in no particularly well-attuned voice.

A lady entered—a young lady richly costumed; velvet, dark fur, silk, diamonds perhaps; such was the soft, dark tinted, yet brilliant effect. A beautiful girl with a face like April; that is, if April has laughing blue eyes, and "baby roses on the cheeks, a pearly brow and a tangle of gold-brown hair; and a way with her at once delicate and insinuating, spirited yet shy, altogether fresh and new and yet familiar as an old, old song.

Frank Thurston did not wait to make this comparative analysis. He applied himself instantly to courtesy and respectful attention, and the young lady told her errand.

"Is this Mr. Thurston? My father, Mr. Rommelaine, is at home to-day; he has taken a severe cold, and the doctor says he must not go out of the house for a week. He has sent me in his place to give you a little note; he would not trust it to messenger or telegraph. It is very important. You are to read it, please, and send a verbal answer."

She gave him a letter inclosing another letter. He read them carefully. She watched him while he read.

"Do you know the particulars of this case, Miss Rommelaine?" he asked.

"Yes; I am the only one at home that enters completely into my father's feelings concerning it. I have heard from him all its perplexities. I was with him when the news came of the verdict of 'guilty.' He has told me that 'twas by your ingenuity and exertion that the new trial has been ordered, and delay gained. I know, too, the contents of the letter that you have now read. Do you think it encourages any reliable hope?"

"I do think so," Mr. Thurston answered.

"I am so glad, so very glad. I am now on my way to see Mrs. Rommelaine; and my father said that, with your permission, I might tell her that a gleam of favorable evidence has at last reached us."

Mr. Thurston objected to this as premature, but promised a speedy investigation of the new source of information opened by a letter sent in answer to foreign advertisements made by Mr. Rommelaine, who had been indefatigable in seeking the assurance of an innocence in which, with stubborn unreasonableness, and in contradiction to much circumstantial evidence, he kept faith.

"Are you walking this morning, Miss Rommelaine?" asked Mr. Thurston, as his visitor was about to depart.

"Yes, I am prepared for a walk; but I hardly realized when I started how wet the streets would be down town."

Mr. Thurston, with a strange flutter of anxiety lest he should be refused, begged to be allowed to accompany Miss Rommelaine on her way, so far, at least, as the crossing of thoroughfares made that way difficult. She accepted readily.

And so it happened that Frank Thurston, on that spring-like day of January, suddenly thrown into a protective relation toward a very lovely girl, found himself presently in something of the condition of Marius when "the water went through his boots, and the stars went through his soul."

Conversation was simple enough. It related exclusively to the case in which Mr. Thurston's senior partner had been engaged as counsel, and in preparing whose evidence he had himself taken most active part.

"The wife is so young and so amiable," said Miss Rommelaine. "She was a governess brought from England by a family in B——. And there she fell in love with her husband. They are both orphans, and they were both poor, I think, from the first, but not so poor as after his long illness they became. I suppose that poverty was against him in the case as proving motive for the deed; was it not Mr. Thurston?"

"It had its weight, no doubt," the lawyer answered.

And here they reached a crossing, where, in the throng and upon unsafe pavement, certain little attentions became imperative; at one juncture Mr. Thurston even seized the hand of his beautiful companion, and did so quite consciously. It was, indeed, a little gloved "angel" of a hand, not oft entertained by men-folks "unaware."

On they went, still talking over the case. "'Tis really wonderful," Miss Rommelaine said, "how the poor man's own theory is sustained by the letter that father received this morning. That corroboration, I imagine, causes you to hope."

"I have felt from the first," Mr. Thurston answered, "that the death was by suicide, not by murder. But the prisoner's earnest assertion on this point could not be brought before the jury in offset of the proved facts. The watch and money were found beside the pistol several paces beyond the place where the dead man lay, and certainly had the appearance of being laid together for the purpose of removal. The direction of the shot-wounds was possible by suicide, but not probable."

"'Twas strange, too, that the accused man should have chosen that lonely by-way for returning home so late at night."

"Yet it was the most direct course, almost parallel with the railway. Poor fellow, he says he hesitated some moments whether to take the car or walk. Even in the assurance that he had found at last a saving employment, and had 'a chance of life again,' his habit of poverty made him cling to the few cents that walking could save."

The words "a chance of life again" brought vividly to Miss Rommelaine's mind the vital interest. "Can you save him?" she asked, and added, with girlish warmth, "oh, if you can save him, I think you will win the best love of three people to the very end of your life—my father's beyond all; he has taken this whole affair into his heart of hearts."

"The water went through his boots, and the stars went through his soul." Frank Thurston, returning to his office after taking leave of Miss Rommelaine, accepted the whole day as the most beautiful of days. The very contrast of overhead and underfoot had become idealized. If he looked up into the spring-like sky, he thought of her sweet face; if he looked down into the miry path, he thought of her bewitching little feet. "Overhead" had actually not done as much for him as "underfoot."

When he reached the office, every trace of ennui and of disgust at the want of harmony between the work-a-day and ideal worlds had vanished.

Miss Rommelaine visited the prisoner's wife, still occupying, by her own wish, the same room where Mr. Rommelaine had found her; but everything in it was changed. An anteroom adjoining had been added, so the main room could be a comfortable parlor; it contained now pretty sofas and chairs, a sweet-toned cottage piano, pictures on the walls, and delicious groups of flowering plants. The poor wife, no longer haggard and utterly hopeless, had been surrounded with every comfort by her powerful friend, and she leaned devoutly upon his assurance that all would yet be well. She occupied herself with the care and teaching of her child.

The child, a loving little creature, flew to greet Miss Rommelaine; and, during the half-hour visit, both mother and child so perceptibly drew comfort and hope from her face and her words that she was quite absorbed in thoughts of them. But when she had left them, and had taken the avenue car for home, their images gave place to that of the young lawyer, Mr. Thurston. Was it the strange loveliness of the winter day that gave the delicious atmosphere to that reverie?

She ended a day-dream with one practical thought. "If Richard Willoughby was like Mr. Thurston, I think perhaps—perhaps I could love him, and please mamma; and, oh! I should like so much to please mamma!"

Early February brought storms of wind and sleet and bitter cold. Winter once more reigned. And on one wintry evening Frank Thurston was summoned to visit Mr. Rommelaine, who, although convalescent, was still confined to his house.

The lawyer was received in the library, where Mr. and Mrs. Rommelaine were enjoying a tete-a-tete in the warm firelight; while Miss Rommelaine, at a low-lamped table near by, bent over her embroidery, for which a foppish-looking young man at her side appeared to be assorting the colors.

Miss Rommelaine had not forgotton Mr. Thurston, but their words of recognition were brief, for Mr. Rommelaine appropriated him immediately. Mrs. Rommelaine became an indifferent auditor of the talk, and her daughter withdrew herself from it to entertain the young man, for whom Frank Thurston conceived at first sight a dislike.

As the legal conversation proceeded, Mr. Rommelaine became more and more excited. His voice grew loud. He recapitulated with earnest delight the details of the favorable turn apparent in the progress of "the case." The attention of all in the room was soon drawn to his remarks.

Mrs. Rommelaine interposed. "Dear Robert, do not be too hopeful. You were disappointed before; you may be again. Mr. Thurston, I do not sympathize with my husband's intense appropriation of this case. I don't think there is so much in a name that a man should sacrifice himself indiscriminately to keep it in repute. What if John Smith should interest himself vitally in the doings and sufferings of every other John Smith? To be sure, Rommelaines are not so common as Smiths, but the principle is the same. Well, Frank, you might as well speak; I know you want to."

Frank Thurston started, but one glance at Mrs. Rommelaine was sufficient to assure him that this closing address of her speech was not made to him, but to Miss Rommelaine—Frances, "Frank," as they called her en famille.

"My own name," he thought; and he felt a thrill of delight, as from one of those fond little proclivities for coincidence that one indulges in when the object of the coincidence happens to be interesting or dear.

Miss Rommelaine, being allowed, spoke, but her cheeks flushed and her voice slightly trembled. Mr. Thurston looked at her with that gaze which draws into itself the strength of the conscious nerves. She dared not return his gaze, for to do that would be to lose composure.

"I cannot help feeling as father does," timidly yet earnestly said Miss Rommelaine. "It seems to me right that he should have taken just this interest in these people, although they are in no way related to us. They certainly have father's name, and dear Robbie's name; there is something sacred about that. I am so glad that father has worked very hard and spent a great deal; and you, too, Mr. Thurston, to save this man. I believe he will be saved; then he will indeed bless the name. And then, and then"—brighter glowed her cheek; her voice still slightly trembled—"I think more than ever now, since I see the just and kind effect, that people should consider that they are related to each other. For my part, I wish I could be to every one just as I would be if they were my own, of my blood and of my name. I believe that would be really the 'fulfilling of the law,' as dear father fulfills it."

And here Miss Rommelaine very gracefully, but altogether girlishly, arose from her place and came close behind her father's chair, and, putting her arms around his neck, gave him a little kiss on the side of his cheek; and then came her silvery little laugh, and they all laughed at her enthusiasm; and she went back to her embroidery and to the gentle fop whom Mr. Thurston detested; and very soon thereafter Mr. Thurston took his leave.

But one month from that day he came again; he came to congratulate Mr. Rommelaine upon the successful issue of the second trial. The message conveyed to him by Frances Rommelaine was the proof, now collaterally sustained, that the death of an eccentric misanthrope had been by suicide, and not by the hand of the fellow-man who was found near him in his extremity under circumstances of convicting suspicion, and who was arraigned for "highway robbery and murder." A letter written by the suicide, and mailed upon the day that the fatal act took place, described, as part of his plan, the very details which had told heavily against the accused. This letter was directed to an obscure merchant in an obscure town in Germany. Only the most indefatigable and unstinting assiduity on the part of Mr. Rommelaine had reached that obscurity and brought the hidden thing to light

Winter came again, after a brief summer—are not summers always brief?—and after an autumn eventful to more than one expectant heart. The new year had begun, and the gay city was astir with New Year's calls. Never was there a clearer, whiter New Year's day upon which to make good resolutions; never a more crisp, white, sparkling sheet of snow to receive new tracks and footprints. The air rang with sleigh-bells and merry voices; the houses were gay with bright costumes, bright lights, and bright fires.

Mrs. Rommelaine was receiving calls, and in the pleasurable excitement she did not heed a package of letters that the postman had brought to the door. But one of these, as it was directed to her name, Frances Rommelaine seized, and escaping from the drawing-room, till mamma missed her and sent word immediately to return, she found time to read:

MY DEAREST KIND FRIENDS—Your good and most welcome letter was received to-day, and, in answer to your inquiries for all the particulars of our life here and our new home, I find great pleasure in trying to sketch for you the scenery, and giving you an idea of our plans.

The pencil drawing I inclose will show you the house and garden, and the lovely river that runs close by the garden wall. The large buildings in the distance are the factories, and never have I seen my husband so happy as he is now. It seems that the factories are almost completely under his control. He comes home at evening, being absent all day, but not at all weary. Our evenings are so happy—I know you will be pleased to hear, dear Miss Rommelaine, for you take interest in us, I know—and little Lucy sits up till 9. I teach her in the mornings, and am busy about the house all day. It is a delightful home. The neighbors are pleasant, and we all like the place, and think this Western valley the garden of the world. It seems that our great and terrible misery has gone forever, and I wish that all women could be as happy as I am now.

And the letter continued with a strain of gratitude that never in the hearts of the Rommelaines in the far West could cease to flow to their benefactors at home.

"This letter comes on the right day," said Frances Rommelaine. "Everything is bright and happy to-day. The first thing this morning dear father called me to him and whispered, 'I have said yes,' and the next thing was Frank Thurston's happy, happy face. I love him so much! And now these poor dear people are happy; and mamma is—at least mamma looks happy; I know she can hardly forgive me about Richard Willoughby, but I really was conscientious about him, for he is very rich, I know, and I tried to love him, and I tried not to love Frank Thurston; but I suppose such things cannot be helped, and it really was fate that he should be just where we were all summer—oh, what a sweet summer, only too short! And to-day is so bright and beautiful; I wonder what happy thing will come next!"

Almost as she spoke it came.

It came in the library by the fire-light of the closing day. The hum of voices rushed from the hall and the drawing-room, for New Year's calls were at their height. But in the library there were only two people.

And then he took it out of its little case and put it upon her finger; but first he kissed her hand; he kissed that particular finger too, first.

Her engagement ring. The diamond was not big; perhaps Frank Thurston thought that his love engagement should correspond with business engagements in the size of proclaiming sign. The diamond was not big, but it was a very pure, a very bright, little stone. It was big enough to hold all the colors of the rainbow in its small adamantine heart, and to reflect every movement of the New Year, that should have clear, sweet light.

Before he put it upon her finger he looked within its circle; they both looked within, with their young faces very close together, and their hands clasped, and read together the word engraved beneath the stone: "Frank." She understood the choice.

"My own name," she said.

"My own name," he repeated; and then, although it was extremely dangerous, for both the library doors were open, and people were going from the drawing-room and hall wherever they liked, and might have seen, and it would have been wiser to wait—although it was extremely dangerous, he took her into his arms and gave her his engagement kiss.—Harper's Weekly.

A Needle Causes a Girl's Death.

About a month ago a 12-year-old daughter of Rev. J. A. J. Williams, of Roaring Spring, complained of a difficulty in swallowing and breathing. She also alleged that she had swallowed a needle or a pin. Dr. Stayer was sent for, and examined her throat and gave her some medicine. She soon recovered and appeared to be restored to her usual health. Two weeks ago the little girl again complained of the difficulty in her throat. She became quite sick, nor did any remedy alleviate her sufferings. One week ago Dr. C. Irwin, of this borough, was called to consult with Dr. Stayer in reference to the condition of the patient. They found her suffering with a difficulty in breathing; her pulse was hurried; one of the fingers of the left hand was gangrened; the right lung was apparently solidified; there was no circulation in her left arm. The physicians informed the parents that there was no hope for the child. She died on Friday. In accordance with the wishes of the father, a post-mortem examination was held on Saturday by Drs. Irwin and Stayer. In the cavity of the chest was found a pint or more of blood. This blood had forced the left lung upward, stopping the circulation in the left arm. It had forced the heart out of its position, over toward the right side, and had also crowded the right lung out of position. The left lung was solidified and gangrened. In this lung was found a long, fine cambric needle, the evident cause of her death. The child was right. She had swallowed a needle, and it had resulted in her death.—Hollidaysburg (Penn.) Standard.

The Devil's Daughters.

The wounded were fearfully tortured and mutilated by the Nez Perces squaws on the Big Hole battle-ground. The soldiers had taken the Indian village, but being overpowered by numbers they were obliged to fall back and fight their way to a position on the side of the mountain which the enemy had already taken possession of. They had a desperate encounter, but carried the point, and immediately dug trenches with their trowel bayonets. In the meantime the wounded had been left on the bottom by the creek, and, while the bucks set fire to the grass and tried to burn the little band of soldiers out of their trenches, the squaws mangled and tortured the poor fellows who were still alive but unable to help themselves. The atrocities perpetrated upon the helpless boys in blue by these she-devils can hardly be realized by anyone unaccustomed to tales of savage barbarity. They heated their camas-hooks red-hot and then thrust them into the bodies of the wounded; mangled them in every conceivable manner, and slowly tortured them to death in ways known only to red devils. Early in the action a bugler, a mere boy, was wounded in both legs. One of his comrades carried him off the field and then returned to the fight, the bugler saying that he would rest there a few minutes and then try and walk off to a place of safety. The Indians got possession of the creek and bottom land, the squaws discovered, mutilated him and burned both his eyes out. The boy's sufferings can be imagined, and death was certainly a welcome relief to him.—Salt Lake Tribune.

Whisky as a Detective.

That there is some good in evil is fully exemplified in the following singular incident, which occurred a few evenings since: A lady, the wife of a well-known citizen, residing on Broad street, whose name, by special request, we withhold from publication, entered her sleeping apartment late one night, after having returned from an evening social, and was somewhat annoyed at smelling whisky. Knowing that liquor was not used in the house, she became frightened, and thought perhaps some intoxicated person had entered the premises during her absence. She called her husband and another gentleman, who were in the parlor below, and when they arrived an investigation of the room began. Mr. ——, the husband, crawled under the bed, and while groping about his head came in contact with something projecting from the under part of the mattress. The latter-named article was removed, and snugly secreted between the slats and ticking was found a rough-looking man. When discovered, he sprung up, struck one of the gentlemen a stinging blow on the forehead, drew a revolver, rushed down the front stairway, out of the door, and was lost in the dark. It was very evident that the intruder was a thief, who, knowing that the lady had valuable jewels in her possession, had secreted himself with a view of robbing her when she had retired for the night. Now comes the important part the whisky detective acted. The fellow, whoever he was, had carried a bottle or flask in his pocket, and the cork had fallen out, thus causing the liquor to run out on the carpet and warn the lady.—Philadelphia Press.

THE late Mr. Hart, the sculptor, devoted himself for many years to his statue of the ideal woman. One day an acquaintance in Italy spoke to him of the long time he had given to the work. "Well," said he, smilingly, "since it takes nature eighteen years to make a beautiful woman, why should I finish my work more quickly?"

THE FOLLOWER.

BY RICHARD HENRY STODDARD.

We have a youngster in the house,
A little man of ten;
Who dearest to his mother is
Of all God's little men.
In-doors and out he clings to her,
He follows up and down;
He steals his slender hand in hers,
He plucks her by the gown.
"Why do you cling to me so, child?
You track me everywhere;
You never let me be alone."
And he, with serious air,
Answered, as closer still he drew,
"My feet were made to follow you."

Two years before the boy was born,
Another child, of seven,
Whom Heaven had lent to us awhile,
Went back again to Heaven.
He came to fill his brother's place,
And bless our failing years;
The good God sent him down in love,
To dry our useless tears.
I think so, mother, for I hear
As what the dead one said,
A something that he knows not of,
A message from the dead.
He answered wiser than he knew,
"My feet were made to follow you."

Come here, my child, and sit with me,
Your head upon my breast;
You are the last of all my sons,
And you must be the best.
How much I love you, you may guess
When, grown a man like me,
You sit as I am sitting now,
Your child upon your knee.
Think of me then, and what I said
(And practiced when I could),
'Tis something to be great and wise,
'Tis better to be good.
O, say to all things good and true,
"My feet were made to follow you."

Come here, my wife, and sit by me,
And place your hand in mine
(And yours, my child), while I have you
'Tis wicked to repine.
We've had our share of sorrows, dear,
We've had our graves to fill;
But, thank the good God overhead,
We have each other still;
We're nothing in the world beside,
For we are only three;
Mother and child, my wife and child,
How dear you are to me!
I know—indeed, I always knew,
My feet were made to follow you!

PITH AND POINT.

COAL-OIL comes near being the fat of the land.

A YOUNGSTER who had been stung a bee told his father he had kicked a bug that had a splinter in his tail.

THEY say "cowards only strike in the dark," but we were of the opinion that it was the person who wanted to light a match.

THE Russian eagle had two heads when this war began. He now has three. The Turks put the other head on him.

FROM a boy's composition on hens: "I cut my Uncle William's hen's head off with a hatchet, and it scared her to death."

A PUPIL in an English school, when asked to define the word "buttress," wrote out its meaning, "A female who makes butter."

"I'LL call to-borrow," said the man with a cold in his head, as he went out of a doctor's office. "No, you needn't," was the reply. "I never lend."

A YOUNG man woke up the other night and saw a ghost in his room. Seizing his six-shooter, he approached it, and found it was his collar, which happened to be standing on the floor.

"MAMMA," asked a precious youngster at a tea-table, the other evening, after a long and yearning gaze toward a plate of doughnuts, "do you think I could stand another of those fried holes?"

A GENTLEMAN had occasion to correct his daughter, aged 4, recently. After it was over and she had sat a while, she went to her mother and inquired, "Don't you think it would do papa good to go out of doors?"

HE ran somewhat hastily into a cigar store and said pompously, "Give me one of your best Matilda cigars." "I guess you mean a Marguerite," said the clerk. "Oh, yes," he said, "I was thinking of another girl."

"FATHER," said a boy who got kicked in the face by a mule, "will I ever be as good-looking as I was?" "No, my son," answered the parent, "I don't think you'll be as handsome as you were, but you'll know a great deal more."

THE man who thought to drive this office to the wall by stealing the shears is respectfully informed that—ah, um-m; by gracious, what is he respectfully informed, anyhow? Without those shears we feel sort of dazed like.—Oil City Derrick.

AN agent, soliciting subscription for a book, showed the prospectus to a man who, after reading "One dollar in boards and $1.25 in sheep," declined subscribing, as he might not have boards or sheep on hand when called upon for payment.

SAYS Josh Billings: I am willing to rock the baby while wimmen folks are biling soap; I am reddy to kut rags to work into rag carpets; they kan keep me hunting hen eggs; or picking green kurrents; or I will even dip kandles or kore apples for sass, but I won't churn."

"OH, my life, my love, my sweety, may heaven's angels whisper golden words as they kiss your peachy cheeks!" wrote a lover to his sweetheart only six months ago; and now he wishes the angels would whisper to him how his breach of promise suit is likely to end, as his lawyer frankly says he can't tell.

A STONE-CUTTER once received from a German the following epitaph, to be engraved on the tombstone of his deceased wife: "My vife Susan is dead; if she had lif to next Friday, she'd been dead shust two weeks. As a tree fall so she must stand. All things is impossible mit God."

A NEGRO having been brought up before a magistrate and convicted of pilfering, the magistrate began to remonstrate: "Do you know how to read?" "Yes, massa—little." "Well, don't you ever make use of the Bible?" "Yes, massa, strap him razor on him sometimes."

A SHOCKING case of fratricide and suicide occurred in Baltimore a few days ago. Henry Barloge shot and killed his brother John, and, placing the muzzle of a revolver to his own breast, fatally wounded himself. The brothers were in easy circumstances. Henry was about 30 years old, and about three years since lost his wife, since which time it is claimed that he has labored under temporary aberration of mind. Neighbors deny the insanity claim, and state that the shooting was the result of a quarrel arising from business troubles. Both men were well known in Baltimore, and possessed the good-will and confidence of a large circle of friends.

FAMILY SHOPPING.

A Burlington Man's Experience in That Line.

[From the Burlington Hawk-Eye.]

Mr. Jasper Throckmorton, who lives out on Summer street, is the father of ten children. The other morning Mr. Throckmorton was just on the point of putting on his hat to start for the office, when Mrs. Throckmorton called after him from the kitchen:

"Stop at Sodder's and tell him to come up and fix the water pipe, and get a big tin dipper and bring it with you this noon. Don't tell them to send it; they'll forget it."

Mr. Throckmorton said he would, and then he put on his hat and started. As he reached the front door his eldest daughter shouted from up-stairs:

"Pa! pa!! pa!!! Go to Greenbaum & Schroder's and ask Mr. Scott to give you two yards and a half of brown satin, cut on the bias, to match the dress I got last week; he'll know the kind. Bring it with you. I don't want to wait for it."

And Mr. Throckmorton, pausing with his hand on the door, said he would get it, and then sighed and opened the door. Just then his oldest son shouted from the sitting-room:

"Father! The man was up here twice yesterday for the money for my new boat, and I just gave him a note to you, and he'll call at the office to-day for his money, and will give you a pair of patent oarlocks and a dip-net. Bring them up with you when you come to dinner."

Mr. Throckmorton kind of stifled a groan like, and, saying he would attend to it, went out. As he passed down the porch steps his second daughter leaned out of a window and cried:

"Oh, pa; do stop at Parsons' as you come to dinner and tell them to send a man to lay the new hall carpet when they send it up, and you get ten pounds of cotton batting and bring it up with you, for we want it right away and can't wait."

The parent paused with his hand on the gate latch, and with a visible effort promised to remember the errand and bring up the cotton batting, and opened the gate. But the voice of his younger son from the side yard caught his ear and held him for a moment.

"Pap, oh pap! Want ten cents to pay for a winder I broke in the schoolhouse, and I can't go to Sunday-school till I get a new hat and some shoes, and please can't I have a quarter to go to the picnic?"

Mr. Throckmorton silently registered a flogging for the broken glass, a negative for the picnic, and said he would get the boots and hat. Then he turned to go, but as he passed down the street his six younger children came running after him.

"Oh, pa, don't forget to stop and see if the old umbrella's fixed, ma says."

"Stop at the dentist's and see when he can fill my teeth."

"Bring my shoe home from the shoemaker's."

"Ma says be sure and tell the doctor to come up to-day and vaccinate the baby!"

"Pap! Kin I go swimmin' in Hawkeye krick, to-night?"

"Pa, oh pa, gimme five cents to ride on the street-cars."

And Mr. Throckmorton went down town and amazed Fred Scott by telling him to cut him off about thirteen feet of water-pipe, on the bias, and he asked Mr. Parsons to let him have eleving dozing skeins of cotting batting and send him up a man with a tin dipper; he told Dr. Cochran, the dentist, to come right up and fill the baby's teeth, and begged the doctor to hurry right away and put a half-sole on the school-house window, and then he ran to the shoemaker's and asked him if he had vaccinated his little girl's shoe, and amazed a street-car driver by asking him for a bath ticket, and when the man came around with the oar-locks and dip-net he told him to take them up and lay them in the front hall, the girls would show him where. And by 3 o'clock in the afternoon it had got all around town that old Mr. Throckmorton was drinking as bad as ever again and hadn't drawn a sober breath all day. —Burlington Hawk-Eye.

Singular Attachment.

There is a curious case at Rockport of the singular attachment sometimes instituted between man and the lower animals. A Mr. Hale has been for a long time accustomed to throw some bites of food for some eels in a little brook that runs along back of his lot. Latterly he observed that they seemed to be waiting for his visit, and, with a little training, they were induced to eat food directly from his hand. Then they learned to play and fondle about his fingers, held in the water, and enjoyed his caresses. More recently the largest one of the four, a huge fellow, over two feet long and very large around, allows Mr. H. to take him entirely out of the water, slide him about freely from hand to hand, apparently enjoying the novel gymnastics. When Mr. H. goes to the brook he calls them with a peculiar whistle, and they soon come rushing down the stream. Not long ago he brought them his usual lunch of fish and mackerel, when only the large one came. The eel waited a few moments, then turned down the stream and soon came back, bringing his tardy family to supper. This shows that there is no touch of the human in them, for an ordinary biped boarder would have pitched in without waiting, and cleared the table.—Boston Globe.

A Remarkable Petrification.

Judge E. C. Bronaugh has attached to his watch chain a little amulet or charm, which, aside from its peculiar history, is very pretty in itself. It is nothing more or less than a petrified rosebud. During the rebellion, a young nephew of Judge Bronaugh, while in one of the Southern States, wrote home to his mother, and inclosed in the letter a rosebud. The letter arrized safely at its destination, and, after having been perused, was laid aside with the rosebud in a drawer, where it remained for eight or nine months. When the drawer was overhauled and the letter again brought to light, the rosebud it contained was found to be petrified. The Judge's aunt recently sent the stone to him at this place, and he placed it in the hands of a jeweler for the purpose of having it fitted to carry on his watch chain. The petrification was so very hard that while trying to drill a hole in it two or three tools were broken before the object was accomplished. It is a perfect rosebud, and so well preserved that the finest fibers can be seen. What peculiarities of air, earth, or water could have changed the tender rosebud into a hard, almost diamond-like substance in the short space of nine months is to us a mystery.—Portland Oregonian.

WHAT TO WEAR.

Fall Fashions for Feminines.

[From Harper's Bazar.]

This being the season of prediction, general ideas of the fall fashions can be given. Changes are taking place slowly, and, so far, any very decided revolution seems improbable.

The idea of combination in materials used in the same costume, which has had its fluctuations the last year, is to be an established rule this autumn, few dresses being made entirely of one material, unless for the simplest traveling purposes, when the very fact of a uniform fabric asserts it as a negligee toilet, or one unsuited for any dress occasion. The newest fabrics shown are the bourettes, brocatelles, damasses of closely raised figures known as faconnes, plush grenadines and stalactites. The bourettes are of mingled threads of silk and wool in various colors, two shades of bronze being shot with cardinal or garnet, dead-leaf and tilleul having a salmon-tinted thread loosely woven, giving a mossy texture to the surface of the goods. In the rich tones of bronze, smoke, olive green and blue-black the combination of tints is beautiful, and the fabric has all the richness of a brocaded velvet or old-fashioned satine. Old-gold-color is among the new tints. This is wrought in with a tiny figure of velvety black or rich deep blue, and shot with the mossy thread of cream white which appears in many combinations. The old colors are reappearing in new shades, a dash of wine-color blending with the dull cardinal, a mazarine blue weaving softly in and out of the dullest olive green, and here and there a loose fringy-looking thread of black lying on the surface. The damasses have undergone a radical improvement, the texture being closer, the figures in heavier, finer relief, and the material itself rendered more durable. These are to be shown in combination of two shades—old-gold and black, two bronzes, seal brown with intense blue, cardinal with cream white, and garnet with black; also in the solid color, or in two shades of one color, the darkest being in relief. For evening dresses ciel blue, rose and other pale tints are shown in exquisite damasses on groundwork of white and salmon. The matelasses continue popular, and are to be shown this fall equally improved. Some rich black matelasses have tiny diamond-shaped figures raised in a rich relief.

A new departure is taken in velvets; following the guiding principle of the season, all stylish velvets will be figured or like a rich brocade. The simply embossed velvet may also be worn, but its texture is less fine and durable than the regular faconne velvet which Worth and Pingat are introducing in their richest costumes. As a natural result of this, plain velvet loses its place, and will not be so much worn as it was last season; but the plain will undoubtedly combine with the figured or faconne, since modistes must in a measure accommodate themselves to a variety of tastes and various demands. Satins are to be worn to a certain extent, finding their way into trimmings, wraps, costumes, etc., and exquisite rich dark hues are predicted for calling or carriage costumes, as well as reception dresses.

The all-wool materials will be used extensively in combination with silk, and will be shown in various new designs—light stripes upon a dark ground, crossbars, figures, and also in solid form. The grays, greens and browns have undergone the merest suspicion of change in hue, and are to be extensively used. Close-woven flannel of navy blue and seal brown will be used for every day or traveling purposes.

The galloons of varied design and quality will still be worn, in some cases blending the same hues as those in the dress fabric, and used in such cases as a finish more than a set trimming. Marabout trimmings will also be extensively worn, and combination fringes are one of the suggestions which time only can entirely carry out.

A Great Natatorial Feat.

The following account of Mr. Cavill's passage across the channel is sent to us by one of the party who accompanied him: "Cavill was first rubbed over with porpoise oil, over which was placed a silk jacket and an india rubber jacket overall. He walked into the sea half a mile on the Calais side of Cape Grisnez at half-past 3 on Monday afternoon, and started with a powerful side stroke, accompanied by two boats. Cavill went out direct for the Folkstone. In the first hour three and a half miles were accomplished, and then Cavill put on a splendid spurt of hand-over-hand swimming. At half-past 5 the lugger, which had had to make a long detour on account of a sand-bank, overtook the swimmer, and coffee was given to him. The water was then sixty-five degrees, and it was arranged that, the temperature of the atmosphere being very low, it would be well to give the swimmer stimulants almost every half hour. At a quarter past 6 we gave him beef tea. The sea was then washing over him at every stroke, and he was only swimming a chest stroke. He said: 'If the sea goes on like this, I haven't the slightest chance of doing it.' At 7 o'clock he took cocoa; the sea was then calm. At a quarter past he had cocoa, milk and egg mixed together. The tide had changed, and shortly afterward the master of the lugger, Jacques Maignet, said we were half way. Cavill said he was 'sure to do it,' and we all cheered. Just then a storm broke, thunder and lightning and heavy rain. At 9 o'clock he took cocoa, milk and eggs, which was the staple stimulant administered all the way. The storm was now clearing away. He complained of cold, and at five minutes past 10 had the same stimulant as before. He said he was going on all right. We next saw Dover town lights, and cheered. The temperature of the water was fifty-nine degrees. At half-past 10 the wind freshened, and there was a slight swell, the sky tolerably clear, the moon shining, and the stars out. At forty-five minutes past 10 we gave him beef tea. He seemed very exhausted. At fifteen minutes past 12 the doctor said Cavill was as bad as he could be, and asked for brandy to give to the swimmer, and for a supply in case of need. The sea was calm now, and Cavill was swimming a side stroke. At a quarter to 1 he had brandy and curacoa, mixed with hot water. Cavill was then very weak. The South Foreland lights appeared quite close. At a quarter past 1 we gave him cocoa and milk, with a little curacoa. The wind was going down, but the sea was rough. At this moment the doctor came on board in a state of nervous prostration, and went below almost insensible. At twenty-five minutes to 3 we gave the swimmer his last stimulant—milk and curacoa hot. We were now fast approaching the land. At a quarter to 4 we took Cavill out of the water. He was laid down on the deck, carefully covered up, hot bricks put around him, and stimulants applied. Strange to say, he did not feel so exhausted as we had expected.—London Times.

Marriage in India.

A marriage was arranged between two young people living some distance apart, near Bengal, India, but who had never seen one another. The bridegroom duly arrived at the bride's village, and the ceremonies had actually begun, when a report reached the bride and her mother that the intended husband was an incurable cripple. They both declared that they would commit suicide rather than complete the ceremony, and, as it was a fact that the would-be bridegroom was a cripple, he was dismissed. But, according to the prevailing superstition, eternal disgrace would have attended the bride if she had not been married on that day when matters had progressed so far. So another bridegroom had to be sought, and, after searching the highways and by-ways a boy was captured and duly married in the place of the cripple. The latter being in the same plight, had also to provide himself with a bride before the day closed, and thus there were two marriages instead of one.

Mr. Ralph Waldo Emerson is 74 years of age. He speaks of himself as a man whose work is nearly ended; but the only sign of failing power noticeable in conversation is a slight hesitation and apparent effort in recalling a needed word—especially a proper name.

A Remedy that Defies Competition.

Hostetter's Stomach Bitters defy competition. Of the host of rival tonics that have cropped up during its long career, not one has gained and retained such a large share of public favor, though many have enjoyed an ephemeral popularity. The reason is this, that whereas many of these medicines were advertised to perform cures of the most startling nature, they have, when tested, almost invariably turned out to be of little or no value, while the great invigorant, whose reputation they were intended to rival, has never disappointed those who have placed their confidence in it. It has vindicated in the amplest manner its claims to be considered a positive specific remedy for liver complaint, dyspepsia, malarious fevers, debility, constipation, and numerous other maladies arising from general weakness and disorders of the stomach, liver and bowels.

Elegant Cookery.

It is easy enough to have your breakfast and tea rolls or biscuit, waffles, crullers, muffins, etc., nice, light and nutritious by using Dooley's Yeast Powder. Try it.

Wilhoft's Anti-Periodic or Fever and Ague Tonic.—This invaluable and standard family medicine is now a household word and maintains its reputation unimpaired. It is indorsed by the medical profession, and prescribed daily in the Charity Hospital and other Hospitals in New Orleans. Wilhoft's Tonic is thus highly recommended by the leading medical men of the country, and is worthy of such indorsement. G. R. Finlay & Co., Proprietors, New Orleans.

For sale by all Druggists.

The essentials for wide popularity are fully met in Colgate & Co.'s Cashmere Bouquet Soap. It is universally esteemed by the tasteful and refined as the most delicate and recherche of perfumes, and the name and trade-mark of Colgate & Co. on each package are aguarantee of superior and uniform quality. With such nice adaptation the success of this article is not surprising.

Thirty years' experience proves the Graefenberg Vegetable Pills to be the mildest and most effective medicine ever known for the complete cure of headache, biliousness, liver complaints, nervousness, fevers, and diseases of digestion. Sold everywhere; price 25 cents per box. Send for almanacs. Graefenberg Co., New York.

CHEW
The Celebrated
"Matchless"
Wood Tag Plug
Tobacco.
The Pioneer Tobacco Company,
New York, Boston and Chicago.

Grasshoppers, potato bugs, tramps and traveling agents are the farmer's curse. The last can be avoided by buying direct. Five Ton Wagon Scales are sold at $50 each. On trial, freight prepaid, by Jones, of Binghamton, Binghamton, N. Y.

Our sale for Hatch's Universal Cough Syrup, for four years past, has been greater than for any similar preparation.

Waldo & Tracey, Wavesly, N. Y.

Sold by Van Schaack, Stevenson & Reid, Chicago, Ill.

Hofmann's Hop Pills cure the Ague at once.

If you feel dull, drowsy, debilitated, have frequent headache, mouth tastes badly, poor appetite, and tongue coated, you are suffering from torpid liver or "biliousness," and nothing will cure you so speedily and permanently as to take Simmons' Liver Regulator or Medicine.

PURELY VEGETABLE,

The Cheapest, Purest and Best Family Medicine in the World!

An Effectual Specific for all diseases of the Liver, Stomach and Spleen.

Regulate the Liver and prevent

CHILLS AND FEVER, MALARIOUS FEVERS, BOWEL COMPLAINTS, RESTLESSNESS, JAUNDICE AND NAUSEA.

SIMMONS LIVER REGULATOR

BAD BREATH!

Nothing is so unpleasant, nothing so common as bad breath, and in nearly every case it comes from the stomach, and can be so easily corrected if you will take Simmons' Liver Regulator. Do not neglect so sure a remedy for this repulsive disorder. It will also improve your appetite, Complexion and General Health.

CONSTIPATION!

SHOULD not be regarded as a trifling ailment—in fact, nature demands the utmost regularity of the bowels, and any deviation from this demand paves the way often to serious danger. It is quite as necessary to remove impure accumulations from the bowels as it is to eat or sleep, and no health can be expected where a costive habit of body prevails.

SICK HEADACHE!

This distressing affliction occurs most frequently. The disturbance of the stomach, arising from the imperfectly digested contents, causes a severe pain in the head, accompanied with disagreeable nausea, and this constitutes what is popularly known as Sick Headache; for the relief of which, Take Simmons' Liver Regulator or Medicine.

Manufactured only by

J. H. ZEILIN & CO.,
PHILADELPHIA.

Price, $1.00. Sold by all Druggists.

TILTON'S PATENT CALF MUZZLE.

To prevent calves from sucking, and Cows from sucking themselves. Retail prices: Calves, 50 cts. Yearlings, 75 cts. Cows, $1.00. An article that will find ready sale at the coming State and County Fairs. Send 50 cents to W. D. PETTENJILL, Manufacturer, East Brookfield, Mass., and get a sample. Right in Canada for sale. Would like a partner with small capital to carry out business in United States. Address SMILIE TILTON, Patentee, Atlantic, Cass Co., Iowa.

BABBITT'S TOILET SOAP.

Unrivalled for the Toilet and the Bath. No artificial and deceptive odors to cover common and deleterious ingredients. After years of scientific experiment the manufacturer of B. T. Babbitt's Best Soap has perfected and now offers to the public The FINEST TOILET SOAP in the World. Only the purest vegetable oils used in its manufacture.

For Use in the Nursery it has No Equal.

Worth ten times its cost to every mother and family in Christendom. Sample box, containing 3 cakes of 6 oz. each, sent free to any address on receipt of 75 cents. Address

B. T. BABBITT, New York City.

☞ For Sale by all Druggists. ☜

TARRANT'S SELTZER APERIENT.

The Healthiest of us are Liable to obstructions in the bowels. Don't neglect them. It is not necessary to outrage the palate with nauseous drugs in such cases. The most effective laxative known is Tarrant's Effervescent Seltzer Aperient, and it is also the most agreeable. Its operation is soothing, cooling, painless. Sold by all druggists.

Four Months for One Dollar.

The CHICAGO DAILY NEWS, the only one-cent newspaper published in the West, is a twenty-column paper, containing all the news of the day in short, sharp, condensed form, aiming to give only facts, and leaving to larger sheets the monopoly of the reporter's gush and the penny-a-liner's wearisome platitudes. It contains Pronounced Editorials upon the living questions of the day, copious Telegraph and Cable Dispatches, Reliable Market Reports, and, in short, a complete record of the news of the day the world over. In addition to being a complete newspaper, every issue contains a Completed Story, thrilling and romantic, and pointing a wholesome moral. The DAILY NEWS is independent in politics, espousing the cause of no party, but aiming to present exact and truthful statements of every political event or question, without fear or favor. It is lively, enterprising, decent in tone, wide-awake and spicy, treating every subject briefly and pointedly, but in all things avoiding flippancy. It is a daily paper at the price of a weekly. It has a larger circulation, as has been proven by published affidavits, than any other daily paper published in Chicago. It has printed and sold over 77,000 copies in a single day. The subscription price is $3.00 a year, $1.00 for four months. No subscription received for less than four months. ☞ We offer no Chromos or Patent Lightning Rods as Premiums, but guarantee to give you the worth of your money a hundred fold. Address

CHICAGO DAILY NEWS, Chicago, Ill.

DR. WARNER'S HEALTH CORSET

With Skirt Supporter and Self-Adjusting Pads.

Unequaled for Beauty, Style & Comfort.

Approved by all Physicians.

For Sale by Leading Merchants

Samples, any size, by mail. In Satteen, $1.50; Coutil, $1.75; Nursing Corset, $2.00; Misses' Corset, $1.00.

AGENTS WANTED

WARNER BROS., 351 Broadway, N. Y.

DAVIS' PAIN-KILLER!

The Great Family Medicine of the Age. 1840 to 1877. For Thirty-seven Years. Has been tested in every variety of climate, and by almost every nation known to Americans. It is the almost constant companion and inestimable friend of the missionary and the traveler, on sea and land, and no one should travel on our lakes and rivers without it. Sold by all medicine dealers.

HUNT'S REMEDY
THE GREAT
KIDNEY MEDICINE

A positive remedy for Dropsy and all diseases of the Kidneys, Bladder and Urinary Organs. Hunt's Remedy is purely vegetable and prepared expressly for the above diseases. It has cured thousands. Every bottle warranted. Send to W. E. Clarke, Providence, R.I., for illustrated pamphlet. If your druggist don't have it, he will order it for you.

IT IS BEING DONE ALL AROUND YOU.

Are you out of work? Don't you make money fast enough? Send for Circulars of "TOM SAWYER,"

MARK TWAIN'S NEW BOOK,

or Catalogue of all our books, and select one to please you, and make from $25 to $100 per week selling it. A trial will cost nothing. We will give you the Best Book and Largest Commissions, and you cannot fail to succeed. Write at once to the AMERICAN PUBLISHING CO., Chicago, Ill.

DO NOT FAIL to send for our New Catalogue. It contains valuable information for every person contemplating the purchase of any article for personal, family or agricultural use. Free to any Address.

MONTGOMERY WARD & CO.,
Original Grange Supply House,
227 & 229 Wabash Ave., CHICAGO, Ill.

DUNHAM PIANOS.

Dunham & Sons, Manufacturers,
Warerooms, 18 East 14th St.,
[Established 1834.] NEW YORK.
☞ Prices Reasonable. Terms Easy. ☜

LADIES! BEWARE of Imitations.

AGENTS WANTED FOR THE ILLUSTRATED HISTORY THE GREAT RIOTS

It contains a full account of the reign of terror in Pittsburgh, Baltimore, Chicago and other cities. The conflicts between the troops and the mob. Terrible conflagrations and destruction of property. Thrilling scenes and incidents, etc., etc. Send for a full description of the work and our extra terms to Agents. Address, NATIONAL PUBLISHING CO., Chicago, Ill.

PERPETUAL
SORGHUM EVAPORATOR.
$15, $20, $25.
Cheap and Durable
Send for Circulars.
Address the only Manufacturers
CHAPMAN & CO. Madison Ind.

JACKSON'S BEST
SWEET NAVY CHEWING TOBACCO

was awarded the highest prize at Centennial Exposition for its fine chewing qualities, the excellence and lasting character of its sweetening and flavoring. If you want the best tobacco ever made, ask your grocer for this, and see that each plug bears our blue-strip trade-mark with words Jackson's Best on it. Sold wholesale by all jobbers. Send for sample to C. A. JACKSON & CO., Manufacturers, Petersburg, Va.

$5937 Made by 17 Agents in Jan. '77 with my 13 new articles. Samples free. Address C. M. Linington, Chicago.

$350 A MONTH—AGENTS WANTED—36 best selling articles in the world; one sample free. Address JAY BRONSON, Detroit, Mich.

THE
UNITED STATES
LIFE
INSURANCE COMPANY,
IN THE CITY OF NEW YORK.
261, 262, 263 Broadway.
ORGANIZED 1850.
ASSETS, $4,827,176.52
SURPLUS, $820,000
EVERY APPROVED FORM OF POLICY
ISSUED ON MOST FAVORABLE TERMS
ALL ENDOWMENT POLICIES
AND
APPROVED CLAIMS
MATURING IN 1877
WILL BE DISCOUNTED AT 7%
ON PRESENTATION.
JAMES BUELL, - - PRESIDENT.

POND'S EXTRACT.
POND'S EXTRACT.

The People's Remedy.

The Universal Pain Extractor.

Note: Ask for Pond's Extract.

Take no Other.

"Hear, for I will speak of excellent things."

POND'S EXTRACT—The great Vegetable Pain Destroyer. Has been in use over thirty years, and for cleanliness and prompt curative virtues cannot be excelled.

CHILDREN. No family can afford to be without Pond's Extract. Accidents, Bruises, Contusions, Cuts, Sprains, are relieved almost instantly by external application. Promptly relieves pains of Burns, Scalds, Excoriations, Chafings, Old Sores, Boils, Felons, Corns, etc. Arrests inflammation, reduces swellings, stops bleeding, removes discoloration and heals rapidly.

LADIES find it their best friend. It assuages the pains to which they are peculiarly subject—notably fullness and pressure in the head, nausea, vertigo, etc. It promptly ameliorates and permanently heals all kinds of inflammations and ulcerations.

HEMORRHOIDS or PILES find in this the only immediate relief and ultimate cure. No case, however chronic or obstinate can long resist its regular use.

VARICOSE VEINS. It is the only sure cure.

BLEEDING from any cause. For this it is a specific. It has saved hundreds of lives when all other remedies failed to arrest bleeding from nose, stomach, lungs, and elsewhere.

TOOTHACHE, Earache, Neuralgia and Rheumatism are all alike relieved and often permanently cured.

PHYSICIANS of all schools who are acquainted with Pond's Extract recommend it in their practice. We have letters of commendation from hundreds of Physicians; many of whom order it for use in their own practice. In addition to the foregoing they order its use for Swellings of all kinds, Quinsy, Sore Throat, Inflamed Tonsils, simple and chronic Diarrhoea, Catarrh (for which it is a specific), Chilblains, Frosted Feet, Stings of Insects, Mosquitoes, etc., Chapped Hands, Face, and indeed all manner of skin diseases.

TOILET USE. Removes Soreness, Roughness and Smarting; heals Cuts, Eruptions and Pimples. It revives, invigorates and refreshes, while wonderfully improving the Complexion.

TO FARMERS—Pond's Extract. No Stock Breeder, no Livery Man can afford to be without it. It is used by all the leading Livery Stables, Street Railroads and first Horsemen in New York City. It has no equal for Sprains, Harness or Saddle Chafings, Stiffness, Scratches, Swellings, Cuts, Lacerations, Bleedings, Pneumonia, Colic, Diarrhoea, Chills, Colds, etc. Its range of action is wide, and the relief it affords is so prompt that it is invaluable in every Farm-yard as well as in every Farm-house. Let it be tried once and you will never be without it.

CAUTION! Pond's Extract has been imitated. The genuine article has the words Pond's Extract blown in each bottle. It is prepared by the only persons living who ever knew how to prepare it properly. Refuse all other preparations of Witch Hazel. This is the only article used by Physicians, and in the hospitals of this country and Europe.

HISTORY and Uses of Pond's Extract, in pamphlet form, sent free on application to POND'S EXTRACT COMPANY, 98 Maiden Lane, New York.

GRAFF'S IMPROVED POTASH OR LYE
TRADE MARK, PATENTED
SOAP MADE IN ONE HOUR
WILL MAKE NINE POUNDS OF PURE SOAP IN ONLY ONE HOUR

PROF. BEDFORD'S LETTER SHOWING SUPERIORITY OF THIS ARTICLE OVER ALL OTHERS, FOR SOAP MAKING, SENT FREE BY MAIL ON APPLICATION TO H. M. ANTHONY 104 READE ST. NEW YORK.

ESTABLISHED 1844.
STRAUB MILL COMPANY'S CHAMPION
CINCINNATI
BEST SMUT & SEPARATING
MACHINE.
MILLS, MILLING MACHINERY &
MILLERS SUPPLIES.
COR. FRONT & JOHN STS.
CINCINNATI.

GRACE'S
SALVE

A VEGETABLE PREPARATION,

Invented in the 17th century by Dr. William Grace, Surgeon in King James' army. Through its agency he cured thousands of the most serious sores and wounds that baffled the skill of the most eminent physicians of his day, and was regarded by all who knew him as a public benefactor. 25 cents a box. For Sale by Druggists generally. Sent by mail on receipt of price. Prepared by SETH W. FOWLE & SONS, 86 Harrison Avenue, Boston, Mass.

THE
GOOD OLD
STAND-BY.
MEXICAN MUSTANG LINIMENT.
FOR MAN AND BEAST.

Established 35 Years. Always cures. Always ready. Always handy. Has never yet failed. Thirty millions have tried it. The whole world approves the glorious old Mustang—the Best and Cheapest Liniment in existence. 25 cents a bottle. The Mustang Liniment cures when nothing else will.

SOLD BY ALL MEDICINE VENDERS.

YOUNG MEN! Learn Telegraphy here, and earn from $35 to $100 a month. Small salary while learning. Situations furnished. Address R. VALENTINE, Manager, Englewood, Ill.

$66 a week in your own town. Terms and $5 outfit free. H. HALLETT & CO., Portland, Maine.

$12 A DAY at home. Agents wanted. Outfit and terms free. TRUE & CO., Augusta, Maine.

$5 to $20 per day at home. Samples worth $5 free. Stinson & Co., Portland, Maine.

$25 PREMIUM WATCH AND CHAIN—a stem-winder. Free with every order. Outfit free. J. B. Gaylord & Co., Chicago, Ill.

$8½ MAGNETIC TIMEPIECE. Metal works. Hunter case. Sample Watch free to Agents. A. COULTER & CO., Chicago, Ills.

$400 A MONTH. AGENTS WANTED, 500 of the latest novelties. Send for Catalog. VAN & Co., Chicago.

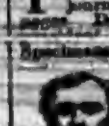
AGENTS CAN MAKE $25 PER DAY selling our PATENT BEER FAUCET. Send for Circular. WORSWICK M'F'G CO., Cleveland, Ohio.

REVOLVER FREE! Seven-shot revolver with box cartridges. Address J. Bown & Son, 136 & 138 Wood st., Pittsburgh, Pa.

HOW TO MAKE $80 to $40 per week SELLING TEA TO FAMILIES. Circulars free. Address THE CANTON TEA CO., 148 Chambers St., New York.

CLOCKS E. INGRAHAM & CO.'S are superior in design and not equaled in quality, or as timekeepers. Ask your Jeweler for them. Manufactory—Bristol, Ct.

THE RAILWAY AGE—Leading, largest and best journal of transportation published. Weekly, 16 pages. Departments for every class of railway [illegible]. Specimens free. Ad's RAILWAY AGE PUB. Co., Chicago.



$100.00 R[illegible] S. L. SMITH & CO., [illegible]

AWNINGS, TENTS,

Waterproof Covers, Stack Covers, Flags, Window Shades, &c., &c. MURRAY & BAKER, 100 South Desplaines st., Chicago. ☞ Send for Illustrated Price-List.

$10 to $25 A DAY SURE made by Agents selling our Chromos, Crayons, Picture and Chromo Cards. 125 samples, worth $5, sent, postpaid, for 85 Cents. Illustrated Catalogue free. J. H. BUFFORD'S SONS, Boston. [Establ'hed 1830.]

U. S. SCHOOL AND COLLEGE DIRECTORY FOR 1877. 200 Pages, with Map and Illustrations. Circulars of all leading schools combined in this one publication. Compiled expressly for those having children to educate. Enables parents to select schools for their children without trouble or expense. Sent for this purpose on receipt of 6 cents postage; to all others 50 cents. T. COTESWORTH PINCKNEY, Dealer in School Supplies, and Agency for Schools and Teachers, 30 Union Sq., New York.

KEEP'S SHIRTS—only one quality—The Best. Keep's Patent Partly-Made Dress Shirts Can be finished as easy as hemming a Handkerchief. The very best, six for $7.00. Keep's Custom Shirts—made to measure. The very best, six for $9.00. An elegant set of genuine Gold-Plate Collar and Sleeve Buttons given with each half doz. Keep's Shirts. Keep's Shirts are delivered FREE on receipt of price in any part of the Union—no express charges to pay. Samples, with full directions for self-measurement, Sent Free to any address. No stamp required. Deal directly with the Manufacturer and get Bottom Prices. Keep Manufacturing Co., 165 Mercer St., N.Y.

$1.00 $1.00
Osgood's Heliotype Engravings.
The choicest household ornaments. Price One Dollar each. Send for catalogue.
JAMES R. OSGOOD & CO.
BOSTON, MASS.
$1.00 $1.00

VEGETINE

Purifies the Blood, Renovates and Invigorates the Whole System.

Its Medical Properties are

ALTERATIVE, TONIC, SOLVENT AND DIURETIC.

Vegetine
Vegetine
Vegetine
Vegetine
Vegetine
Vegetine
Vegetine
Vegetine
Vegetine
Vegetine
Vegetine
Vegetine
Vegetine
Vegetine
Vegetine
Vegetine
Vegetine
Vegetine
Vegetine
Vegetine
Vegetine
Vegetine
Vegetine
Vegetine
Vegetine
Vegetine
Vegetine
Vegetine
Vegetine
Vegetine
Vegetine
Vegetine
Vegetine
Vegetine
Vegetine
Vegetine

Reliable Evidence.

Mr. H. R. Stevens:

Dear Sir—I will most cheerfully add my testimony to the great number you have already received in favor of your great and good medicine, Vegetine, for I do not think enough can be said in its praise, for I was troubled over thirty years with that dreadful disease, Catarrh, and had such bad coughing spells that it would seem as though I never could breathe any more, and Vegetine has cured me; and I do feel to thank God all the time that there is so good a medicine as Vegetine, and I also think it one of the best medicines for coughs and weak, sinking feelings at the stomach, and advise everybody to take the Vegetine, for I can assure them it is one of the best medicines that ever was.

Mrs. L. GORE,
Cor. Magazine and Walnut Sts.,
Cambridge, Mass.

GIVES Health, Strength, and Appetite.

My daughter has received great benefit from the use of Vegetine. Her declining health was a source of great anxiety to all her friends. A few bottles of Vegetine restored her health, strength and appetite.

N. H. TILDEN,
Insurance and Real Estate Agent,
No. 49 Sears' Building,
Boston, Mass.

CANNOT BE EXCELLED.

CHARLESTOWN, March 19, 1869.

H. R. Stevens:

Dear Sir—This is to certify that I have used your "Blood Preparation" in my family for several years, and think that, for Scrofula or Cankerous Humors, or Rheumatic Affections, it cannot be excelled; and as a blood purifier or spring medicine, it is the best thing I have ever used, and I have used almost everything. I can cheerfully recommend it to any one in need of such a medicine.

Yours respectfully,
Mrs. A. A. DINSMORE,
No. 19 Russell Street.

RECOMMEND IT
HEARTILY.

SOUTH BOSTON, Feb. 7, 1870.

Mr. Stevens:

Dear Sir—I have taken several bottles of your Vegetine, and am convinced it is a valuable remedy for Dyspepsia, Kidney Complaint and General Debility of the System.

I can heartily recommend it to all sufferers from the above complaints.

Yours respectfully,
Mrs. MUNROE PARKER,
86 Athens Street.

Prepared by H. R. Stevens, Boston, Mass.

Vegetine is Sold by All Druggists.

SANDAL-WOOD

A positive remedy for all diseases of the Kidneys, Bladder and Urinary Organs; also, good in Dropsical Complaints. It never produces sickness, is certain and speedy in its action. It is fast superseding all other remedies. Sixty capsules cure in six or eight days. No other medicine can do this.

Beware of Imitations, for, owing to its great success, many have been offered; some are most dangerous, causing piles, &c.

DUNDAS DICK & CO.'S Genuine soft Capsules, containing Oil of Sandalwood, sold at all drug stores. Ask for circular, or send for one to 35 and 37 Wooster street, New York.

O. S. U. No. 38

WHEN WRITING TO ADVERTISERS, please say you saw the advertisement in this paper.

Auburn Courier.

AUBURN, INDIANA, SEPT. 27, 1877.

Tom. Ewing and Stanley Mathews, of Ohio, are holding a joint debate in that state. Stanley's record as an agent between the electoral commission and the south is being shown up.

* * *

The proprietor of the Grand Hotel, a Republican, has been sued under the civil rights law, by a troupe of colored minstrels, for refusing them seats with other guests at the dining table in that aristocratic hotel of Indianapolis.

* * *

Will some old bloody-shirt republican please rake up the transparencies used in the late campaign and read the motoes about rebels. It would be refreshing and induce an increased love for Rebel Keys, and further acquiescence in His Fraudulency's southern policy.—Rep. Exchange.

* * *

Offerered in the Pennsylvania Republican convention, but not adopted: "Resolved, That this convention regards with admiration the president's faithful attention to his Christian duties, and we cordially recommend that to the morning and evening services at the white house be added the little hymn, 'When I can read my title clear.'"

* * *

Hon. R. M. Bishop, the Democratic standard bearer in the Ohio campaign, who has been classed among the silent candidates, delivered an excellent speech in Cincinnatti on Monday evening. It compares very favorably with the obscure, uncertain and semi-communistic address of his competitor, Judge West.

* * *

The office of President, it seems, is one of those which, like that of Secretary of Treasury, can not be abused by its incumbent entering into a political campaign. President Hayes has earnestly undertaking the work of electioneering in Ohio, just where Secretary Sherman left it off: and it may be doubted whether Sherman himself was not less bodily a politician than Mr. Hayes has been himself.

* * *

Three years ago Republican papers had a great deal to say about the old fossil, Bill Allen, who was in vigorous and robust health, with good eyesight and lungs, able to stand erect and look his audience in the face, eye to eye, while addressing them. But they have not a word to say about West their candidate for Governer, who is so nearly blind that he can't see his audience before him, and so feeble as to be unable to stand up while speaking.

* * *

The banner Democratic township in Ohio in which not a single Republican vote was cast at the last election—is in Auglaize county. It may be, only a coincidence, but an official of that county, and member of the Democratic ring, is now in jail charged with robbing the treasury that he was elected to protect, of $31,000.—Kendalville Standard.

That's all right. We are glad to see such officials in jail, be they what they may. If we was so minded, we might refer to the Republican Treasurer, of Cass county, this State, who has stolen $15,000 from the people, and he ain't in jail, either. Belknap who robbed the soldiers is not in a bastile, as he should be, but under the protection of a Republican President was permitted to escape. As the Standard is anxious to give these things a partizian bearing, we would add our mite with pleasure.

A True Representative.

While the editor of this paper was connected with the House of Representatives during the Forty-forth Congress, he was enabled to ascertain the amount of labor, and the fidility with which it was performed, that falls to the lot of a member of the House. Not a moment is to be lost by an honest, true Representative of the people, and instead of an easy life, as is generally supposed, many anxious hours of intense exertion are required of those who have the interest of their constituents at heart. While some evade their duty there are others who labor night and day to advance the work of a session, and among this latter class none were more unceasing in the prompt discharge of their duties than

Hon. William Hartzell, of Illinois.

In the great mass of investigations that were brought about during the last session, and in the unparalelled amount of legislation accomplished, he devoted his entire energies and attention. He was always at the front of importent measures, and his genial pleasant style, and polished manners, won for him a place among his co-laborers of a most gratifying character. No petty schemes engrossed his attention, but with broad liberal views he labored earnestly, zealously, and unceasingly for the good of his constituency, and that of the whole country

* * *

The patent office building the finest in architectural beauty and magnificence in Washington, was greatly damaged by fire last Monday. The loss to the building is estimated at $500,000. The fire originated in the model room in the upper story, and many models were destroyed, which will prove a great loss to the Government. The east part of the edifice was an exact counterpart of the famous Parthenon, built by Pericles at Athens, with the exception of the statuary onaments, and this part, from the report seems to be seriously damaged. The land office and Indian office were also in this building. It is claimed that the fire originated by spontaneous combustion.

NEIGHBORHOOD NEWS.

CORUNNA.

There is a great deal of sickness here being mostly the ague.

Mrs. DeLong has just completed a new addition to her residence.

E. Orr, assisted by S. Bruebecker, is putting a new roof on his dwelling.

Kade Mack continues to finger the telegraph instrument on the day run.

James Finch has erected a very creditable dwelling house on south Main street.

Kline and Osborn are putting a new foundation under their residence. Bill Shook has the contract.

Mrs. Loveland and family left for Clyde, Ohio. Monday where they intend to make their future home.

Not many of our citizens attended the "Tri State Fair" at Toledo, however, there were a few took it in.

The band boys have erected a stand near the railroad bridge where they "blow off" every Tuesday evening.

Mr. Clark purchased the Loveland property, and has given it a thorough repairing, re-plastering and a new roof.

J. D. Williamson has added a pigeon-hole table to his institution, and we hear the familiar sound on the street of "checks, landlord."

Mrs. Edward Orr and Miss Toppings leaves to-day for a several weeks' visit to Plymouth, Ohio, where they have relatives and feiends.

The red ribben club held a social at Mr. Kline's, a short distance from town on Tuesday evening. The regular club meeting was held yesterday.

Senator Mercer is repairing his brick residence—we might say building it over. It will compare with any dwelling in Corunna when completed.

The red ribbon movement is yet flourishing at this place, and the saloon business is below par. A large number of our citizens ornament their coats and watch chains with the "cardinal red."

County Recorder Boland and family paid this place a visit Sunday last, whiling away the time under their paternal roof enjoying a visit with their uncle, Mr. Newton, of Newton, Ohio.

Lafe Miller still hangs to his posish as freight agent. The amount of wheat handled here keeps him quite buisy. The buyers paid $1.28, on Monnay, and think the market will hold at that figure through the week.

You Know.

* * *

FIRST NATIONAL BANK.

The First National Bank of Auburn Indiana tenders to the citizens of DeKalb county its facilities for the transaction of business, We loan money, receive deposits subject to check at sight or payable at a fixed date with a stipulated rate of interest. Sell exchange on New York, Chicago, Toledo and Fort Wayne procure such foreign exchange as may be desired, buy exchange and make collections on all available points, and do all usual and ordinary business done by first class banks. We will also take on deposit for safekeeping valuable papers such as deeds mortgages, notes bonds, agreements etc., guardians, administrators, trustees and all other handling trust funds together with merchants, manufacturers and farmers are solicited to open an account with us. We will deal liberally with all who call.

J. H. Ford, President.
James V. Hazzard, Cashier.

Worth its Weight in Gold.

Undoubtedly the greatest modern discovery in medicine is DaCosta's Radical Cure for dyspepsia, sick headache, sour stomach, costiveness, biliousness, loss of appetite, distress after eating, and all disorders caused by indigestion or a deranged liver. Its results are astonishing, and sure relief is guaranteed in every case where it is faithfully used. It tones up the stomach, regulates the liver, restors the natural appetite, strengthens the delicate and expels all morbid humors from the system. Typhoid and bilious fever might, in almost every case be prevented by its timely use. Trial size 25 cents. A very few doses will relieve, and a little perseverance cure you. Sold by F. E. Davenport.

Also Agents for Prof. Parker's Pleasant Worm Syrup, which is sure death to worms. Pleasant to take and requires no physic. Price 25 cents. Try it.

Sheriff's Sale.

BY virtue of an execution to me directed from the Clerk of the DeKalb Circuit Court, in a cause wherein Singer Manufacturing Co., is plaintiff, and John Treesh is defendant, requiring me to make the sum of Sixty-Three Dollars and Fifty cents, with interest on said judgment and costs, I will expose at public sale, to the highest bidder, on

SATURDAY OCTOBER, 20th, 1877.

Between the hours of 10 o'clock a. m. and 4 o'clock p. m. of said day, at the door of the Court house of DeKalb county, Indiana, the rents and profits for a term not exceeding seven years, of the following real estate, to-wit:

Lot number twenty-seven (27) in the western addition to the town of Auburn, DeKalb county and State of Indiana.

If such rents and profits will not sell for a sufficient sum to satisfy said judgment, interest and costs, I will at the same time and place, expose at public sale the fee simple of said real estate, or so much thereof as m y be sufficient to discharge said judgment, interest and costs.

Sale will be made without any relief whatever from valuation and appraisement laws.

J. C. StClair, Sheriff,
Thos. D. Gross, Dept.

Bope & Baxter, Attorneys for plaintiff.
Aubur Indiana, Sept. 20th, 1877.

Pr. fee $8.50.

Dr. A. G. OLIN'S Private Hospital, 187 East Washington St. Chicago, Ills, for the cure of all Diseases of a Private nature, resulting from early abuses or infection of either Sex. Seminal Weakness producing Emissions, Loss of Memory, Impaired Sight, Lost Manhood or Impotency, Nervous Debility, permanently cured; diseases of the Bladder, Kidneys, Liver, Lungs, Asthma, Catarrh, Piles, all Chronic Diseases, and DISEASES OF FEMALES, yield to his treatment. Dr. Olin has had a life-long experience, and cures where others fail. He is a graduate of the Reformed School, uses no mercury, has the largest practice in the U. S. LADIES requiring treatment with private home and board, call or write. Every convenience for patients. Send fifty cents for sample of Rubber Goods and circular of important information by express. DR. OLIN'S Female Pills, [illegible] per Box. Consultation free.

MARRIAGE GUIDE [illegible] pages. Secrets & information for the young and middle aged of both sexes, on all diseases of a private nature. Valuable advice to the married and those contemplating marriage. How to be healthy and happy in the married relation. Everybody should get this book. Price [illegible] cents, to any address, sealed.

BIG STOCK COMING

AT

SCHAAB, BEUGNOT & CO'S.

AUBURN, INDIANA.

DRESS GOODS.

New Calicos, Shirtings, Woolens,
Jeans, Cloths and Cashmeres,
For Men, Boys and
Everybodys Wear

OUR SUCCESS.

No Goods Allowed to be Misrepresented. All the Newest Novelties in Fall and Winter Suits for Men, Youths and Boys

CLOTHING CUT

In the most approved pattern and warranted to be perfect fitting, at Hard Time Prices.

GOLDEN OPPORTUNITY.

In order to introduce our 40-page illustrated Catalogue (in book form) of Jewelry and Watches, with full information How to Become Agents, and Make Money, we will send, on receipt of One Dollar, by return mail, this Illustrated Catalogue, together with

OUR ONE DOLLAR GOLDEN CASKET.

OUR DOLLAR CASKET Contains one elegantly engraved Lady's Brooch and Ear Drops, Amethyst settings, inlaid with Pearls; one beautiful Cut Cameo Ring; one fine pair of Engraved Sleeve Buttons; three (3) grand spiral Amethyst Studs, inlaid with Pearls; one nobby Collar Button; one latest pattern Lady's or Gent's Pompadour Neck Chain; one elegant Cameo Seal; one beautiful chased Band Ring; one solitaire Lake George Diamond Pin; one pair (2) elegant engraved Bracelets. All the above are the Finest Gold Plate, and arranged in a beautiful white, pink-lined casket. Illustrated Catalogue of Jewelry and Watches sent with each casket. On receipt of One Dollar we will send one of these Dollar Caskets, by mail, post-paid, or Four Caskets on receipt of $3.50. Address,

GEO. G. JACOBY & CO., Importers of Jewelry and Watches,
117 Wisconsin Street, Milwaukee, Wis.

DOWN! DOWN! DOWN!

FROM 10 TO 25 PER CENT.

HARNESS, SADELES, COLLARS, WHIPS, &c.,

At my new shop on seventh street, opposite Court House, in old Post Office building. Come and see me and I will sell you a good article for less money than you ever heard of before. All work warranted.

J. I. SMITH.

Sheriff's Sale.

BY virtue of an execution to me directed from the Clerk of the DeKalb Circuit Court in a cause wherein Herman Froehlich is plaintiff, and William B. Dancer is defendant, requiring me to make the sum of forty-two dollars and forty cents ($42,40), with interest on said judgment and cost, I will expose at public sale to the highest bidder, on

SATURDAY, OCTOBER 20th, 1877.

Between the hours of 10 o'clock A. M., and 4 o'clock P. M. of said day, at the door of the Court House in DeKalb county, Indiana, the rents and profits for a term not exceeding seven years, of the following real estate to-wit:

The undivided one-half of the west half of the south-east quarter of section twenty (20) in township thirty-three (33) north of range thirteen (13) east in DeKalb and State of Indiana.

If such rents and profits will not sell for a sufficient sum to satisfy said decree, interest and costs, I will at the same time and place expose to public sale the fee simple of said real estate or so much thereof as may be sufficient to discharge said judgment and costs.

Said sale will be made without any relief whatever from valuation or appraisement laws.

J. C. StCLAIR, Sheriff,
By Thos. D. Gross, Deputy.

Rose & Hartman, Attorneys for plaintiff.
Auburn, Indiana, Sept. 15th, 1877. Pf. $6.25.

Sheriff's Sale.

BY virtue of an execution to me directed from the Clerk of the DeKalb Circuit Court in a cause wherein J. W. Case is plaintiff and Thomas L. Brown is Defendant, requiring me to make the sum of Fifty-Two Dollars and Ninety-Three cents with interest on said judgment and costs. I will expose at public sale to the highest bidder on

SATURDAY, OCTOBER 20th, 1877.

Between the hours of 10 o'clock a. m. and 4 o'clock p. m. of said day at the door of the Court House of DeKalb County, Indiana, the rents and profits for a term not exceeding seven years, of the following real estate to-wit:

The undivided two-fifteenths (2-15) of the west half of the south-west quarter of section thirty-one (31), township thirty-four (34) north of range fourteen (14) east.

If such rents and profits will not sell for a sufficient sum to satisfy said judgment interest and costs, I will at the same time and place, expose at public sale, the fee simple of said real estate, or so much thereof as may be sufficient to discharge said decree, interest and costs.

Sale will be made without any relief whatever from valuation or appraisement laws.

J. C. St. CLAIR, Sheriff,
By Thos. D. Gross, Dept.

W. L. Penfield, Attorney for Plaintiff.
Auburn, Indiana, Sept 20th, 1877.

Pr. fee $6.50.

1877. 1877

GRAND OPENING

OF

CARPETS,

ROOT & COMPANY.

Will display this week an elegant and choice assortment of extra superfine.

INGRAINE.

30c, 40c, 50c, 60c, 75c, 85c, $1.00 per yard. Tapestry Brussels English Body

BRUSSELS,

$1.00, $1.10, $1.15, $1.25, $1.35, $1.50, per yrrd. Also are opening new.

OIL CLOTHS,

Curtain Materials, Mattings, Rugs, Stair Rods, Upholstery Goods etc, etc. All at uniform low prices.

Root & Company,
46 and 48 Calhoun-st. Fort Wayne Ind

DAY'S AGUE TONIC

CURES EVERY FORM OF CHILLS, OR MONEY RETURNED.

DAY'S TONIC Cures Chills and Fever.
DAY'S TONIC Cures Dumb Chills.
DAY'S TONIC Supersedes Quinine.
DAY'S TONIC Cures Old Chronic Chills.
DAY'S TONIC Is pleasant for Children.
DAY'S TONIC Cleanses the Stomach.
DAY'S TONIC Acts on Liver and Bowels.
DAY'S TONIC Don't Buzz the Head.
DAY'S TONIC Don't contain Quinine.

DAY'S TONIC

Is a new innovation, and possesses advantages heretofore unknown and unclaimed by others.

It does not contain Quinine or any poison; it does not produce buzzing or roaring in the head, which follows the use of Quinine; it is retained by delicate stomachs; it acts upon the liver and bowels without the use of any other medicine; it never fails to cure, and our agents are authorized to return the money in each and every case of failure; one bottle will cure two cases. Try it and see. Sold by all Druggists at $1.00.

J. P. DROMGOOLE & CO., Proprietors, Louisville, Ky.

STILL AHEAD

AT

F. E. DAVENPORT'S

DRUG STORE!

NE ASSORTMENT OF

Fine Albums, Stereoscopes, Stereoscopic Views, Toilet Articles, Perfumery, Brushes &c.

School Books suitable for use in the Auburn and country schools. Writing paper, Pens, Inks, Copy Books, Slates, &c. Also a full line of Drugs and Medicines.

Perscriptions Carefully Compounded

The finest Tobacces and Cigars to be found in the county. Remember the place

DAVENPORT'S.

West of the Court House, Auburn, Ind.

HOW

Is it that the New York Store sells goods so much cheaper than their neighbors is a question often asked. It is because they sell for cash and

DO

Not have to sustain losses from bad debts, besides it inables them to pay cash for goods and get the discounts which make quite an item to

YOU

As consumers. It also enables them to keep all the new and desirable styles and novelties, by being always ready to take hold of them without delay, and it is a well established fact which all

KNOW

That there is no one concern more careful in selecting good and desirable goods than the New York Store.

IT

Being the object of the New York Store to give entire satisfaction to all their customers,

G. H. FORKNER & CO., Prop's.

Auburn Courier.

LADIES FANCY DRY GOODS

AND

MILLINERY STORE

North of Court House, Auburn, Ind.

You will find there the very newest shapes and styles in

LADIES HATS,

AND MILLINERY GOODS

Fancy Dry Goods,

Dress Goods, Feathers, Plumes and ties in all designs. Also

LADIES CLOAKS,

Of the latest patterns. Hosiery and Gloves in every discription. The lines in the new goods are complete.

J. R. LANNING.

THE AUBURN MARKET.

—Corn 55c.
—Oats 25c.
—Eggs 8c.
—Butter 18c.
—Potatoes 40c
—Live Turkeys 5c.
—Clover Seed $5 25.
—Live Chickens 4c
—Wheat $1.22 @ 1.23
—The COURIER $2.00 a year.

Do Not be a Fool.

If a gentleman on the street looks at a lady intently he is considered impolite, but if he meets her in the waltz he my hug her all he pleases, no matter whose wife she is. If you do not like it, then meet your own lovely wives at the waltz, and hug them for your own dear selves, until you waltz into Ward's China Store, and bless the day when you waltzed with your own wife, and have the great honor of making your own dear wives happy. The Meridian plated silver ware, Rogers & Bro.'s silver plated knives, spoons and forks. Fifty per cent saved to cash buyers at Ward's Cheap Crockery Store. Sign of the big iron dog, Fort Wayne.

Local and Miscellaneous.

Mrs. Penfield is visiting in Ohio.

Court is in session and attoneys are plenty.

Davenport and family are off to Chicago.

Excursions yesterday to Chicago and Indianapolis.

The Baltimore pay car went through last Saturday.

Mr. W. Martin, of Ohio, a former resident here, is in town.

We hear of no hog cholera in this imediate neighborhood.

J. P. Widney, Esq., is again about after a short illness.

We will give another excellent letter from Maj. McFadin, next week.

Coop Ralston's wife went to Iowa yesterday, and now f—un commences.

Mr. Gibson of Newville will move his foundry to Hicksville in a short time.

See notice of new arrival of millinery goods, ladies hats and cloaks in another column.

Fine Michigan and New York salt now kept at the Eel River elevator at lowest price.

A boy by the name of Tyler was accidentally shot on the McQuiston farm, near Huntertown last Saturday.

After this week the Garrett News will be discontinued, and the office will be removed to Kendallville.

Wheat is lower to-day, ranging at $1.23 for best grade. Oats steady at 25c, and clover seed is quoted at $5.25.

Circuit Court is in full blast with Judge Tousley at the helm. Defaults, motions &c. have engaged their attention so far.

Look out for the cheapest stock of goods ever brought to Auburn. Forkner of the New York Store is in the market this week.

A coffin was seen going out of town in a wagon. A doctor was standing on the corner and a wag near by asked, "who done that ?"

Cuppy and Ralston can always be found at the Eel River elevator, ready to wait upon their customers with their usual promptness and attention.

Horse shoeing promptly attended to. The Best workmen in town. Prices reasonable. Don't fail to give me a call. JAMES ANDERSON. tf.

See the new announcement of our enterprising dry goods and clothing merchants, in another column. Don't forget if you want goods in their line to call at Schaab, Beugnot & Co.'s.

Continuous effort impoverishes the blood unless it be kept pure by suitable food and (when needed) Dr. Bull's Blood Mixture. For Sale by F. E. Davenport.

When the disorders of babyhood attack your baby use at once Dr. Bull's Baby Syrup and notice its rapid and beneficial effect. 25 cents per bottle. Sold by F. E. Davenprt.

The Mayer House, at Fort Wayne, is now under the management of Scarbrough & Kepler, two gentlemen who understand their business, and attend to it.

The Wabash round house at Defiance was burned Tuesday of last week, in which two men perished, Richard Cantlon and Michael Dwyer. Loss $20,000.

Angola Herald. The Athletics went to Auburn Monday, but the club there got away with them handsomely.—Through sympathy, we decline to record the score.

A libel suit for ten thousand dollars has been commenced by Dr. Casebeer against Dr. Collar, growing out of the controversy in the COURIER between these two physicians.

Davenport has ordered a new brand of cigars which he can sell at 5 cents apiece, that are equal to the best dime cigar. They will be hear in a few days so look out for them.

Our friend Mr. Gibson at the City Bakery has now exclusive control of the baking department, and is ready with increased facilities to supply the demand for good bread. tf.

The fair at Fort Wayne just about paid expenses. It was not the most attractive exhibition we ever saw, but the citizens of that place have no one to blame but themselves.

Senator Bogy, of Missouri, died last week at St. Louis. The Governor will appoint a successor, and we would like to see it fall upon Hon. Erastus Wells, a late member of the House.

The editor of the Pierceton Free Press has been united in the holy bonds of padlock or wedlock or some other kind of lock, for he has locked forms and is enjoying the Free Press, indeed.

Garrett Herald. We are sorry to learn of the severe illness of the editor of the News, and hope that he will soon be around again. He has been confined to his room for nearly a week.

Now is the time to bring in that wood on subscription. The few who are to pay us in that way should bring it in by the first of November, and we will not promise to receive any after that.

It is amusing to notice the little spites yet exhibited by the Republican press towards Gov. Williams. His election last fall was a terrible Waterloo defeat to them and they can't forget it.

We must have some of the money due us on subscription. We cannot pay out money any longer without some return. Will those in arrears please give attention, and let us have what is our due.

Angola and Fort Wayne are to have Queen's Circus in a few days. Well, we can say truthfully that it is a splendid show, the best on the road this year His exhibition here in August pleased everybody.

The Turks seem to be ahead again. If their good luck continues, they will soon be accorded the consideration and toleration, that always follows close in footsteps of success, no matter whether deserved or not.

We are enjoying the tilt between the Press, and a correspondent of the Butler Record, one Servius, alias Argus, alias Bope, and Baxter knows now how it is himself. "Let the galded jade wince, our withers are unwrung."

The base ball players of the county should be thankful that those Auburn batters did not risk the championship of the county.—Press.

Why ? Those Auburn batters have played three games with outside clubs and were victorious in all of them.

You should not fail to see the splendid new stock of goods just received by Schaab Beugnot & Co. They are selling very low, and you should not fail to call and ascertain their prices before purchasing elsewhere. They can give you good bargains.

Garrett News. Three or four Garrett Doctors have been or are now sick with malarial fever. They now know now it is themselves, and make a worse face at a dose of quinine than any of the children to whom they have been dosing for the last two months.

The Sabbath school excursion to North Mancester Saturday was all that could be desired. The Flowers band furnished good music, and the citizens there received the picnicers with open arms. Mr. Meese had every arrangement perfect and was indefatigable in his attention.

The Haw patch in Noble county is a wonderful locality. Fifty bushels of wheat to the acre, is an ordinary crop and 70 bushels of clover seed have been gathered from ten acres this season in fertile patch. If it keeps on, a new grade of wheat will have to be introduced called the Hawpatch.

For years Lawson's Curative has given universal satisfaction, and every day it is growing in popular favor. It is an indispensable remedy for family use. For aches, pains, sores, bruises, burns and scalds it acts with rapidity, affording great comfort for the sufferer. For Sale by F. E. Davenport.

Smoking tobacco at the little cigar store on the corner. tf.

We are under many obligations to Messrs. Mallory & Plank, of the Home City Mills, Toledo, for a barrel of their choice brand of flour. This saves us from starvation for a short time, but we trust those who are in debt to us will relax no effort to pay up on this account.

Columbia City Post. Reports from all sections of Northern Indiana fully confirms the worst fears of the farmers as to the ravages of the hog cholera. The disease is prevailing generally, hundreds of hogs dying daily. It seems thus far no absolute remedy has been found that will cure the disease.

O. Z. Hubbell, Esq., of Butler, has been admitted to the bar as an attorney. Mr. H. is a graduate of Bloomington College, and has made rapid and thorough progress in his studies. We wish him all the success a bright future can bestow. He is associated with Mr. Franks of that place, in the practice.

When you buy a lamp chimney if you place it in a kettle of cold water and let it boil, it will be impossible to break it, unless you threw a flat iron at it—won't then if you miss it. We give this suggestion much against the wishes of our store keepers, who deal in this perishable necessity, but expect to gain the everlasting praise of all economical houskeepers.

Albion New Era. It is said the wheat crop this year is larger than any that we have had for fourteen years. Fourteen years ago this season the yield was good, averaging about thirty bushels to the acre. The crop of the year preceding that was an average one, while the crops of eleven and twelve years ago were failures, caused by weevil and freezing.

Butler Record. The barn owned by Dan Hall, about three miles west of Hamilton was burned one day last week. The barn contained all of Mr. Hall's hay and grain amounting to about $500. The cause of the fire is unknown but suspicion points to a tramp who was seen in the vicinity of the barn about the time the fire was discovered.

LECTURES,—Mrs. Dr. Potts an elequent and popular speaker, will give a series of lectures at Ensley's Hall, commencing Monday evening, Oct, 1st. She discusses Physiology, Health and Disease, and is highly spoken of by the Press, as an able practicle scientific lecturer. She has a complete and artistic outfit for showing the anatomy and constitution of the human body. First lecture free. See advertisement.

Auction Sale.

On Saturday Oct. 5th, 1877, A. J. Creigh will offer for sale a car load of carriages manufactured by Emerson Fisher & Co. at Cincinnatti, Ohio. These buggies are durable, plainly finished, well seasoned hickory patent wheels, Oil tempered steel springs, and Anchor brand axles, warranted for one year, at fair price. Come in and look at them as they must be sold.

A subscriber in ohio has just sent us a remittance for the COURIER. He is a miller and says he could not do without the COURIER as it gives the markets, and the names of the candidates running for office in Ohio. He says "I regard the COURIER as the best paper published west of the Alleghany mountains. (We fear he intends to flatter us) I am surprised that any one should be in arrears for a county paper, as I always pay in advance, and I sleep peacefully and without bad dreams."

The remarkable rifle contest a Creedmoor, between the American Rifle Team and the English Rifle Team, on Thursday and Friday of last week, created almost a much excitement as the bloody struggle around Plevna. For the fourth time, the Americans won over the Englishmen. The record shows remarkable progress made by both Teams since last year's shoot The Americans won in all the ranges by a small score.

Waterloo Press. CANADA SOUTHERN.—A reorganization of the Chicago & Canada Southern road has been effected with Sidney Dillon as President. This organization is entirely independent of the Canada and Detroit and Toledo lines, and gives rise to rumors that the road is to be speedily built through to Chicago, practically on the original route. If this should be true, it will greatly exalt Hamilton, Steubenville and Hudson; and settle an old quarrel between Parker and Weamer, as to whether Garrett or Auburn will be benefitted most, when the Canada road is made to connect with the Eel River.

The special attention of the ladies is desired. When you have an opportunity, don't fail to see the late fashions in bonnets, and the handsome styles of millinery goods, for they are very fine. A very large and varried assortment of fancy goods, millinery goods, bonnets, cloakings, &c., has just been opened at Stamet's, opposite Swineford House, and it will give him pleasure to show you the latest and most beautiful styles now worn. He desires all to call and learn his prices, as he has them marked down very low. Several large boxes arrrived yesterday, from the center of fashion, and you will now find a most excellent supply on hand.

Finecut chewing at the little cigar store on the corner. tf.

People are getting tired of this trash about kicking a man when he is down. No humane, liberal hearted gentleman will do such a thing, and all those outside of this class are not to be controlled by advice. It has been charged against the rich man that he feeds and clothes his children in the best manner and so he should. We believe the rich man has the same rights as the poor man, and they ought to be respected. If a man is down and always has been down and don't intend to get up, it is his own fault, and railing out at the morefortunate, more interesting is not going to help him. A liberal, active gentleman of wealth is a blessing to any community, and the more wealth the better. If we cannot be rich after years of [illegible] don't let us be envious of those who can. The laboring man can be as respectable, as useful in his sphere as the man of property. All cannot be rich, so let us labor for a greater object a more blessed possession, peace and contentment, which all may acquire.

The clever, good-looking boys of Kendallville, came over here last Saturday to play our boys a game of base ball. The game started out finely, and an interesting game was promised, with nothing positive as to the outcome. At the close of the second inning the score stood 2 to 2. During the first part of the third inning, a foul tip took Mr. Sloat, the Kendallville catcher, square in the left eye, which placed him hors du combat for the game. There was a general regret by all present over the accident, not only on account of the suffering of Mr. Sloat, but also because of the interruption of a good game. Of course, our visitors had no chance, with the best man out, and though they finished the game, it was without the encouragement of a close score. There are no provisions in the rules for an umpire to call a game until after the fifth inning, except on account of rain or darkness, and the boys concluded to play rather than give it away. We would like to see the two clubs meet again. The scord stood, Auburn, 28; Kendallville, 6.

MR EDITOR.—I was pained and grieved at an article which appeared in last week's COURIER, under the signature of A. R. Collar, reflecting on the standing and character of our widely known, and respected fellow-citizen, Dr J. B. Casebeer, a gentleman that I have been personally and intimately acquainted with during the past twelve years, and know of no one more deserving of the public's confidence, and who has always sustained a moral character above reproach. The enviable position he now holds in this community, and wherever he is known, as a man, a christian and physician, has been acquired by an honorable, upright and manly career, and no malicious, slandering language can tarnish his fair name. When a man is driven to the necessity of begging, or purchasing silence in regard to his own deeds, though desperation may prompt an attack others, yet the effect will be harmless, but fall with crushing weight on his own head. A young man of high and noble aspirations would not suffer himself to be so lost to every principle of manhood, as to make such an uncalled for attack upon one of our most deserving and esteemed citizens. We think as do a large respectable portion of the citizens of this community, that instead of adding laurels, the article add its auther will be held in detestable execration. AN OLD CITIZEN.

MR. EDITOR :—

I do not propose to engage in a newspaper controversy, and especially with one irresponsible and without an established reputation or character at this place, but I feel forced to notice the vulgar, base and libelous attack made upon me by one A. R. Collar, in last week's issue of the COURIER. What I have formerly written is to correct the false notice of a partnership, which he testified before the court, never existed. I will not stop to notice or reply to each item seperately as from first to last. It is made up of the basest falshoods, conceived only in the imaginations of the vilest of the vile, and is in keeping with the dastardly and cowardly attack made upon my brother, last week, in the dead hour of the night, and with the vile and malicious threat, I am told he has made, that he was determined to ruin me before he left this town if it is in his power. With the record of his past life, which is now coming slowly to light, which present indications will stamp him as not only the greatest fraud but one of the worst characters in Northern Ohio, as well as a dangerous person in any society. But we will let the records speak for themselves when fully revealed. It is very apparent to me, and I think to others who are at all acquainted with said Collar, and with his limited literary attainments, as well as his meagre supply of the article known as good common sense—notwithstanding, his superabundance of self esteem that he could not of himself produce an article clothed with the terse and scholarly language therein displayed, therefore we suspect that others are aiding and abetting in the dirty work, and if so, to such I will say, if you will only be manly enough to put your signature or in any way signify to us your appropriate part of the responsibility we will endeavor to bestow on you our compliments in due season.

J. B. CASEBEER.

Try the new cigar at F. E. Davenport's.

A Female Tramp.

Just think of it. A being like our mothers and sisters, our wives, our sweethearts, preambulating the country as a tramp And not bad looking either. She was not richly dressed, you may be sure, but still there was a neatness about the disposition of what she wore, quite discernable to the ordinary eye. She made an attempt at style or sentiment, and yet did not seem abandoned. She came around the back way, rapped at the door and asked for something to eat, in a very firm, practical manner. A woman's perceptive faculties were instantly put to work to discover something wrong, but the tramp stood there unflinchingly, returning a mingled expression of sadness, indifference and regret. She said her home was in Erie, Pennsylvania, where her mother and sister resided, that she went to Illinois last winter at the request of a friend there, to teach school, had taught two months, when she was taken sick with fever, and a few days ago concluded to go home. She got a ticket to Chicago and with a few dollars besides started on her journey. She had walked part of the way from Chicago here, and was determined to reach home. She was provided with a ticket to Butler and was told to get on the train there for Toledo, and not leave it until she got home, money or no money, a thing she never had thought of before.

Waterloo Press. Church Dedication.—The new church edifice, the eighth building of the kind now completed in Waterloo, which the Evangelical Association has been engaged in erecting for several months, was dedicated to the service of God on Sunday last. The house is a frame, standing on the elevated plat of ground south-east of the Saginaw depot. Considering the material of which it is built, it is the most elegant and tastily finished house of worship in town. The audience room is large, high, well-seated and splendidly lighted. Services Sunday forenoon were held by Bishop Dubs, of Cleveland, who preached an elegant sermon. The sum still due on the building, $1,408.00, not all being pledged at the morning service, the dedicatory services were postponed until evening. In the afternoon, at 3 o'clock, German services were held in the new church. At the evening service, the balance of the indebtedness having been raised or pledged, the edifice was dedicated to its intended use. The building complete has cost very nearly $4,000.00. The denomination is not very strong, numerically or financially, and while considerable help has been received from outsiders, the weight of the undertaking has been born by the membership They have certainly done a good work both in furnishing themselves a comfortable house of worship, and in the valuable improvement they have added to the town.

Our versatile correspondent at Corunna has left us, and as we brush away the gathering tears, we can only think of our loss and the fight between Baxter and Bope. By the way, Bope can say some awful sweet things of Baxter. For instance, "he (Baxter) drags himself along through the filth of his own creation," will fill the bill as we have described it. But there is one point we don't quite grasp. He says Charley "belongs to a class of men who can use language that would only be tolerated in a third-class bagnio." Now a bagnio is a very bad place, if Webster is correct where, we are told, vice and sin predominate. It's a bad place with which to become familiar, and we did not suppose that the writer visited—but we have forgotten the theme which inspired us at the beginning of this item. Joseph Columbus Loveland, late of Corunna has departed from our midst. He has wrapped his mantle about him and silently rode away to Ohio, where he will make an earnest attempt to retrieve his falling fortunes. We are sorry to loose him, as he was a most excellent correspondent Joe has his faults, but with them he possesses some excellent traits of character. We could never find it in our heart to refuse him a loan, and he never proved ungrateful. He has gone to Clyde, Ohio, to engage in the printing business. If he will avoid the use of intoxicating drinks, he can make good progress as he has both ability and experience.

Buggies For Sale.

I am offering several new, well made buggies both double and single, at very reasonable rates They are of my own manufacture, and warrante or two years. I will sell them on one year time. Please call at my black-smith shop and examine them. JAMES ANDERSON.

Kendallville Standard. There was quite a large gathering of the personal friends of Capt. Hiram Iddings, at his residence one mile south of this city, last Friday evening, most of whom are connected with the railway mail service, who "met by chance, the usual way," for the purpose of having a social visit, and also giving an expression of the high esteem in which the Captain is held by his numerous friends, by presenting him with an elegant goldheaded cane. The presentation speech was made by Mr. M. E. Griswold, Esq., of Auburn, to which the Captain responded in 'words fitting the occasion,' although completely "unbalanced" by the unexpected present. "Remarks" were made by a number of the gentlemen present, and the old manor house has seldom held a more pleasant social gathering. A sumptious repast was served, and the hospitalities for which the Captain and his estimable lady are so justly noted, were enjoyed with a relish that demonstrated the fact that it was a pleasure to receive as well as to give. The party broke up at a late hour, and the "boys" scattered to take their "run."

The cane is a most elegant piece of workmanship, elaborately chased, and bears the following inscription: "Presented to Capt. Hiram Iddings, by his young friends, Sept. 14th, 1877."

The doners were: James Harper, D. S. Keil, S. L. Lewis, Rob't Stratton, M. E. Griswold, Richard Hayes, A. R. Walters, Thos. Sullivan, A. K. Irey, Cyrus Fike, O. J. Bearss, W. S. Mathews, Frank Bearss, Ogden Pierce, S. H. Pierce, Z. C. Thomas, A. H. Tyner, C. O. Myers.

ENSLEY'S HALL!

—ON—

TUESDAY EVENING,

OCTOBER 1, 1877.

The Popular and well known Speaker,

ANNA M. L. POTTS, M. D.

Will commence a series of Lectures on

Anatomy, Physiology and The Laws of Life, Health and Happiness

FIRST LECTURE FREE!

MRS. POTTS will deliver a free lecture to ladies exclusively on Tuesday afternoon at 3 o'clock.

One of the cheering signs of the times is the general tone of returning confidence and good feeling prevailing among the agricultural, laboring and business classes of the country. The marvelous crops of the year, and fair prices being realized, has the effect of enabling the debtor class to meet their obligations, and as a natural consequence, lifted the business classes out of financial difficulty.

Important Notice.

The New York Store wishes it distinctly understood that they will not allow themselves undersold by any other merchant or merchants. They do not want their customers spirited away by the over exertions upon the part of other competitors no matter what the inducements are. Recolect the New York Store is ready to meet them, and when you get the prices of others be sure to go and see the prices at the New York Store before making your purchas. It will pay you.

G. H. FORKNER & Co.
Proprietors.

Sheriff's Sale,

BY virtue of an execution to me directed from the Clerk of the DeKalb Circuit Court, in a cause wherein Joseph Boyer et al. are plaintiffs, and John Moser and William Moser are defendants requiring me to make the sum of One Hundred and Forty-Nine Dollars and fifty-two cents with interest on said judgment and costs, I will expose at public sale to the highest bidder, on

SATURDAY, OCTOBER 20th, 1877.

Between the hours of 10 o'clock a. m., and 4 o'clock p. m., of said day at the door of the Court House of DeKalb County, Indiana, the rents and profits for a term not exceeding seven years of the following real estate to-wit:

The north-west quarter of the north-west quarter of section twenty-five [25] township thirty-three [33], north of range thirteen [13] east, taken as the property of John Moser.

If such rents and profits will not sell for sufficient sum to satisfy said judgment interests and costs, I will at the same time and place, expose at public sale the fee simple of said real estate, or so much thereof as may be sufficient to discharge said judgment interests and costs.

Sale will be made without any relief whatever from valuation or appraisement laws.

JOHN C. ST. CLAIR, Sheriff.
By THOS. D. GROSS, Deputy.
McBride, Morlen & Leas, Att'y's for plaintiff.
Auburn, Indianan, Sept. 26th, 1877.
Pr.fee $8.75.

Notice of Administration.

NOTICE is hereby given, that the undersigned has been appointed by the Clerk of the DeKalb Circuit Court, of the State of Indiana, administrator of the estate of Wm. Heckathorn, deceased, late of said county.

Said estate is supposed to be solvent.

DAVID HECKATHORN, Adm'r.
September 27, 1877 no39.

NEW GOODS

ARIVING DAILY!

AT THE

STAR CLOTHING HOUSE!

SAM, PETE & MAX, STAR CLOTHING HOUSE, FT. WAYN

AUBURN COURIER.

THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 27, 1877.

THE NEWS CONDENSED.

THE EAST.

WILLIAM M. TWEED has given to the public, through an investigating committee of the New York Common Council, another chapter of his history of municipal rings. According to his story, he disbursed about $600,000 to secure the passage through the Legislature of the celebrated charter by which he was enabled to plunder the city. This money was furnished by various tradesmen and politicians, the Erie railway, through Jay Gould, contributing a considerable sum. He gives the names of a number of members of the Legislature who were bribed to vote for the charter, the [illegible] Tweed charges explicitly that Oakey Hall, the Mayor, was the most exacting of all the thieves in the ring.

BOSTON dedicated her soldiers' monument on the 17th inst. The occasion was a general holiday. A large number of seats that had been erected for the accommodation of the city authorities and chosen guests gave way on the ground, tumbling about 2,000 people on the grounds, a number of whom suffered the fracture of limbs, but luckily none were killed.... An extraordinary chapter of horrors occurred in Baltimore on Sunday last: A man blew his brains out on the street. A boy was disemboweled by a street-car, and died in ten minutes. A blind convict attempted to murder a fellow-convict in the penitentiary, and then cut his own throat. An unknown man was beheaded by a railway train. A man fell from a third-story window and was found a corpse. A boy had his skull fractured by a kick from a horse, and will die. At midnight a man attacked another violently, and, while handling his pistol, accidentally shot a child.

THE coal companies at Wilkesbarre, Pa., have offered the striking miners an advance of 10 per cent. on their wages. The proposition was unanimously rejected.

THE WEST.

THE Chicago Tribune reports that there are eight theaters now in good running order in that city, not counting the many unmentionable basements where fiddles are heard to squeak and improper persons are seen to obtrude their so-called attractions upon the vulgar gaze. Out of the eight there is but a very few devoted to the production of dramas, whether of the legitimate or illegitimate order. The most of the managers are engaged in fostering that kind of entertainment which can never be described by ordinary adjectives, or in ordinary type. McVicker's Theater forms an agreeable exception. At this house Edwin Booth is playing one of the most successful engagements he has ever filled in the West, appearing in a round of his favorite Shakspearean characters.

MR. AND MRS. ODER and Mr. Sargent, living near Rocklin, Placer county, Cal., were recently murdered and robbed by some Chinamen. The citizens were so incensed at the terrible deed that they drove all the Mongolians out of the town and demolished their houses. Some of the Chinese who had been arrested on suspicion of committing the murders narrowly escaped lynching.... Lewis Myers, the County Treasurer, from whose office at Wapakanetta, Ohio, some $30,000 was claimed to have been taken on the night of Sept. 6, has been arrested, charged with complicity in the robbery. Myers claimed to have been waylaid in the street by a gang of highwaymen, gagged, and forced by torture to disclose the combination of the safe.

NEWS comes by way of San Francisco that the Warm Spring Indians had left their reservation in Arizona, killed fourteen men, wounded eight and captured a train of freight wagons, killing the teamsters and destroying the goods. Maj. Tupper, with all the Arizona and New Mexico troops he could gather, pursued and attacked the Indians, killing forty, and at last accounts was in pursuit of the remainder.... Sitting Bull, from the other side of the border, makes a proposition. He and his followers will consent to occupy the Big Horn country provided plenty of ammunition is furnished them and they are allowed to roam at will. One thing S. B. will not do. He says he will not go on the reservation and suffer the indignity of living on weevilod beans and musty flour.

COL. STURGIS, commanding the Seventh Cavalry, overtook the Nez Perces Indians near the Yellowstone river, in Montana, on the 13th of September, and had a severe fight, lasting nearly all day. A considerable portion of the encounter was hand-to-hand battles, and the Indians only quitted the ground upon the approach of night, and after a great number of their band had been either killed, wounded, or taken prisoners, and after their stock and several hundred ponies had been run off as plunder by the troops.... Gen. Crook, in explanation of the failure of Howard's campaign, says the country in which he is operating is the roughest in the whole Rocky mountain range, and offers insurmountable barriers to the progress of troops. Gen. Crook coincides with one or two other prominent army officers in the belief that Joseph's intention has been to form an alliance with the Indians under Sitting Bull, and probably other bands.

A PASSENGER train on the Union Pacific railroad was stopped and robbed by highwaymen on the night of the 18th inst., at Big Springs, a small way station in Nebraska, 162 miles east of Cheyenne. Thirteen masked men rode up to the station in the evening, took possession of the telegraph office, destroyed the instruments and forced the agent to hang out a red light, as the express did not stop at the station. The express arrived at 10:48 and came to a stop. The robbers seized the engineer and firemen and guarded the doors of the cars. The express car was broken into, the messenger overpowered and about $60,000 in coin and $40,000 in currency, secured. The passengers were then robbed of money and valuables, and after detaining the train an hour the robbers mounted and rode away to the northwest. Parties were ordered out on horseback from Julesburg, Ogallala, and North Platte. Superintendent Davis telegraphed the Sheriffs at Denver and Deadwood offering $5,000 for the capture of the thieves and $5,000 for the recovery of the money.

ANOTHER savings bank failure is reported from Chicago. The Merchants' Farmers' and Mechanics' savings institution, of which Sidney Myers, the well-known Greenback advocate, is President, has passed into the hands of a receiver. About half a million dollars is owing to 2,500 depositors. It is thought the assets, if prudently managed, will fully realize this amount.... The broken spans of the Union Pacific railroad bridge at Omaha have been repaired, and trains are again running across the Missouri at that point.

HON. LOUIS V. BOGY, United States Senator from Missouri, died at his residence in St. Louis the other day. Mr. Bogy was a native of Missouri, and was 65 years old.

THE SOUTH.

THE Texas coast has been visited by a destructive storm. Considerable damage was inflicted at Galveston, Houston and other ports.

THE Great Republic, the finest steamer that ever plied the Mississippi, took fire while lying at her wharf in St. Louis, a few nights ago, and was totally consumed. She was valued at $350,000. The steamer Carondelet, lying alongside the Republic, was also burned.

WASHINGTON.

RED CLOUD, Spotted Tail, No-Water, Man-Afraid-of-his-Horses and other distinguished wielders of the scalping-knife are booked for a visit to Washington about the 1st of October. They go to have a talk with the "Great White Father."

THE treasury at Washington has received from the sub-treasury at Chicago a counterfeit $1,000 greenback. The note is one of the issue which was first detected four months ago, and which has since been so successfully entered into circulation. Its spuriousness was not detected until after it had passed through several hands. The sub-treasury at Chicago received it from the First National Bank.

GENERAL.

SCORE another victory for the Yankee over the "blarsted Britisher." In the international contest between the American and British rifle teams at the Creedmoor range, New York, the immense superiority of the Yankees in the use of the long-range rifle was attested by a most creditable victory. The teams consisted of eight men on a side, selected, after long and careful practice, as the crack marksmen of their respective countries. The shooting lasted two days, each man firing forty-five shots in each day's contest—fifteen shots at 800 yards' distance, fifteen at 900 yards, and fifteen at 1,000 yards. The following is the score:

Americans, 800 yards	1,143
Americans, 900 yards	1,101
Americans, 1,000 yards	1,090
Total	3,334
British, 800 yards	1,117
British, 900 yards	1,073
British, 1,000 yards	1,052
Total	3,242

The Americans winning by ninety-two points.

PRESIDENT HAYES dropped into Cincinnati on Saturday evening, the 15th inst., and was accorded a hearty reception. After the formal reception and the delivery of the customary speeches he was driven to the residence of Dr. John Davis, where he remained until Monday, on which day he left for Louisville. In the latter city his reception partook of the nature of a grand ovation, nearly the whole population turning out to greet him. He was met at the depot by an immense throng, and escorted to the Galt House. In the afternoon the President was escorted by the military and Reception Committee to the Exposition building, where he was received by the children of the public schools. In the evening the President and Mrs. Hayes gave a reception at the Galt House; Tuesday they devoted to sight-seeing, and in the evening they gave another reception at the Exposition building. Tuesday night, the 18th, the President and his family, accompanied by Secretaries Evarts, Schurz and Key, and several other dignitaries, left on a special train for Nashville.

THE Cuban revolutionists received, very recently, a cargo of arms and munitions of war, which were landed on an unfrequented part of the coast by a schooner which sailed from one of the Southern ports. The Spanish emissaries in Washington got wind of the matter, but too late to do any good.

CAPT. DOLLARD, of the schooner W. F. March, just arrived from the Arctic ocean, reports that the crew of an American vessel, name not ascertained, had recently killed thirteen natives near Cape Prince of Wales. The trouble is understood to have arisen in the course of trade with the natives.

EX-MINISTER WASHBURNE has arrived home from Paris.

THE President's journey from Louisville southward must have been an exceedingly pleasant one, judging from the hearty manner in which he was greeted by the multitudes of people who flocked to the railway stations to get a view of his features and a shake of his hand. One feature of the trip was the anxiety of the colored people to see the Chief Magistrate, for which purpose they flocked to the various stations in vast numbers. The reception of the President at Nashville, Chattanooga and other points in Tennessee was very enthusiastic.

POLITICAL.

THE Republican State Convention of Massachusetts met at Worcester last week and nominated the following ticket: Governor, Alexander H. Rice; Lieutenant Governor, Horatio G. Knight; Secretary of State, Henry B. Pierce; Attorney General, Charles R. Train; Treasurer and Receiver General, Charles Endicott; Auditor, Julius L. Clarke. The following resolutions were adopted:

Resolved, That we reaffirm, first of all, our unwavering allegiance to the fundamental truth and principles which have inspired the triumph of the Republican party. We accept the responsibility of the national administration again committed to Republican hands as a trust to be exercised for the welfare of all the people, without distinction of race, color, locality, or creed. The armed struggle for union and equal rights is at an end. The grand results are accepted facts in national history. Watchful, guarding, and finally maintaining all that has been achieved, we do not propose to abandon the helm or drift with the tide, but to address ourselves with vigor and courage to the pending issues, and to insist upon their settlement in the interest of good government, national progress and enduring union.

2. That we congratulate the country upon the rightful accession of the Republican President, whose conspicuous integrity, honesty of purpose, wisdom, moderation, and firmness command the confidence of the people, give assurance of pure, economical, and beneficent administration of public affairs, and thus afford opportunity and encourage the prospect of the speedy restoration of confidence and revival of business activity.

3. That we hail with unspeakable pleasure every sign of promise of the final and permanent pacification of the Southern section of our country under local self-government, based upon the full recognition of the equal rights of all by all, and we cordially approve the spirit of the administration as wisely adapted to hasten this result, as directed by a just sense of constitutional right and duty, as tending to promote the spirit of peace and reconciliation between the citizens of all sections, and as already largely justified by the bettered feeling and condition of the country.

4. That the faith of the country is solemnly pledged to the early resumption of specie payments. Public honor and private interest alike demand the fulfillment of this pledge. We approve the steps already taken, and rejoice at the progress already made. We insist upon the adoption of all measures necessary to secure resumption on a day not later than that now fixed by law, and it is the duty of the Government to maintain its coin and currency at all times at par with gold, the standard of the commercial world.

5. That the work of reforming and improving the civil service which the Republican party has undertaken, and to which it alone stands committed, ought to be persistently and resolutely carried forward.

6. That the order recently promulgated by the President for the purpose of restraining executive officers of the Government from exercising an undue and improper influence upon the action of the people in the selection of candidates for office and in the management of political affairs is in accordance with the principles and practices established by the founders of the Government.

7. That the Congress of the United States has already passed a reasonable limit in grants of land and money awards to private enterprises; that the interests of the nation demand that no more grants shall be made, either from the public domain or public treasury, as subsidies to private corporations, and that appropriations for Government works shall henceforth be limited by the strict rule of necessity.

THE Democrats of New Jersey met in State convention at Trenton last week, nominated Gen. George B. McClellan for Governor on the first ballot, and adopted the following platform:

Resolved, That the Democracy of the State of New Jersey, in convention assembled, reaffirm the principles contained in the National Democratic platform adopted at St. Louis in 1876. We denounce the frauds and crimes by which our candidates for President and Vice President are prevented from occupying the positions to which they were chosen by a decided majority of the popular electoral vote.

2. We congratulate the supporters of free government throughout the United States that even the man who was placed in the Presidential chair by means of these frauds and crimes has found it necessary, in order to receive the respect and support of any portion of the American people, to adopt the Democratic policy of local self-government, and abandon all further devices to perpetuate sectional jealousies.

3. The Democratic party, embracing within its ranks all classes of our citizens, most of whom are workingmen, believes that all legislation should have for its object the greatest good to the greatest number. We, therefore, oppose all special legislation for corporate or individual interests at the expense of the people. We recognize their needs and sympathize with the workingmen of the State in the prevalent distress. We advise the enactment of such legislation as will enable us to collect information relating to the interests of labor and capital, with a view to harmonize these interests and place our industries upon a more permanent and scientific basis.

4. Honest toil and legitimate business are the true basis of a nation's prosperity. Official salaries ought never to be so high as to be sought after for mere pecuniary gain. Salaries, fees and costs of litigation have, during the past years of Republican legislation been so largely increased as to become absolutely burdensome. The times demand and the necessities of the people require a radical reduction of all such salaries, fees and costs. The usury laws should be revised and reformed, and 6 per cent. should be restored as the uniform legal rate of interest in this State, without the impairing obligations of contracts.

THE Prohibitionists of New Jersey have nominated Rudolphus Bingham for Governor.... The Pennsylvania Greenbackers met in convention at Williamsport, the other day, and placed the following State ticket in the field: Supreme Judge, Benjamin S. Bentley; Auditor, Gen. J. E. Emerson; State Treasurer, James L. Wright.

THE Maryland Republican Convention met at Baltimore on the 20th inst., and nominated Dr. G. E. Porter for State Comptroller. The resolutions indorse the President's Southern policy, and oppose the repeal of the Resumption law.

THE TURKO-RUSSIAN WAR.

THE Russian official bulletin, dated Poredin, 13th, says: "Yesterday (Wednesday) we made no further attacks, but bombarded the Turkish fortifications and town of Plevna at short range. Toward 5 p. m. the town began to burn, and [illegible] fortifications. The Turks made little reply to our fire, and directed all their efforts against our left wing, which threatened their rear. At this point Gen. Skobeleff repulsed five furious attacks, but was compelled in the evening, after the sixth attack, to evacuate the fortifications which he captured Tuesday. During Wednesday night our troops intrenched themselves in their positions. From the beginning of the battle up to 1 o'clock Wednesday afternoon 6,000 wounded have been brought to the field hospital."....The armies in Asia Minor are reported as being still inactive. According to Turkish reports, the Russians have retreated from Ardahan and fallen back to a stronger position. There is little prospect that any event of significance will transpire in that quarter for some time to come.

ADVICES from the Russian position before Plevna, up to the 16th inst., report that the attack on Osman Pasha cannot be resumed until reinforcements are received. The Grivitza redoubt, the capture of which cost the Russians thousands of men, was still held, but was heaped full of dead Russians and Roumanians, and likely to become wholly untenable under the incessant fire of the Turks. In the lull of the Russian operations on his main lines, Osman had found time to fall upon a Russian force which had intrenched itself on the road to Sofia for the purpose of cutting his communications. A Shumla dispatch, reporting this affair, claims that the Russians were badly beaten, and lost some thousands of men....A dispatch from Bucharest on Sunday, the 7th, states that the Turks had made desperate efforts to recapture the Gravitza redoubt, making seven ineffectual assaults, and losing 10,000 men.... A correspondent with the Turkish army in Roumelia telegraphs as follows: "There is a reign of terror from Adrianople to the Balkans. All respectable male Bulgarians are hunted down by order or connivance of the authorities. Fever has broken out in Suleiman Pasha's camp. Every house in Kasanlik is a hospital. The place reeks with the fever-stench. All the country from Schipka to Yeni Saghra can only be ridden over with camphor in one's mouth. Dead bodies are lying on the roadsides and in fields and gardens. From 400 to 600 bodies are in Yeni Saghra, and have been there ever since the battle some weeks ago."

DISPATCHES from the Russian headquarters in front of Plevna, dated the 18th, state that "the military operations closed when the Turks recaptured the double redoubt taken by Skobeleff. When the Russian Commander-in-Chief could not or would not send reinforcements to hold this redoubt, it was only too evident the attack was at an end. Gen. Skobeleff lost 2,000 men in attacking the redoubt; he lost 3,000 more holding it; an immense proportion of officers were either killed or wounded. Only one commander of a regiment is alive, and scarcely a head of a battalion is left. The Russians have not, however, abandoned their positions, and do not seem disposed to do so. On the contrary, they are fortifying them. The Russians are moving up siege guns and receiving reinforcements of infantry. Maj. Gens. Skobeleff, Dragomiroff and Imeritinsky have been promoted to be Lieutenant Generals."....A Shumla dispatch dated the 18th states that Suleiman Pasha had assaulted and captured Fort St. Nicholas, in Schipka pass. The loss of this position, it was claimed, would compel the Russians to evacuate the pass....Russia has now settled down to the conviction that the war is not a three-months affair, and is making preparations to quarter her armies in Bulgaria during the winter. Gen. Todleben, of Sebastopol fame, has been directed to furnish plans for the fortification of the winter camps, at Matchin, Hirsova, Sistova, and Nikopolis, the purpose being to render the latter place impregnable and to hold it even though the Russians should be driven from every other position.

THE reported capture by the Turks of Fort St. Nicholas, in the Schipka pass, turns out, like nearly every report that comes from Constantinople, to be a canard. The Russian Gen. Radetsky's official account of the fighting states that "after five days' bombardment the Turks made a sudden attack on the fort. The attack subsequently extended along the whole line, and was repulsed with enormous loss to the Turks after a desperate fight, which lasted nine hours. The Russian loss was 500 killed and wounded."....A correspondent at the headquarters of the Czarowitch at Biela telegraphs under date of Monday, Sept. 17, that a desperate engagement was fought in the valley of the Lom on that day. Thirty-two battalions and eight batteries, comprising the whole of the troops under the command of the Czarowitch, attacked Assaf Pasha's division at Sirakeny. The Turks were strongly reinforced at once, and the Russians were driven back with great slaughter. The battle was in every respect a decisive one.... A telegram from Tiflis contradicts Mukhtar Pasha's report that Ardahan has been evacuated by the Russians, and states, on the contrary, that the garrison has been increased to twelve battalions of infantry and six squadrons of cavalry.

A CORRESPONDENT telegraphs from the Russian headquarters before Plevna on the 21st of September: "The capture of Plevna is an affair of time and trenchwork. When the reinforcements that are coming up arrive, it ought to fall easily. The spirit and temper of the Russian soldiers are admirable. The Russians have upward of 320 guns, and are constantly firing on the Turkish works, which scarcely ever reply. It is said that the ammunition of the Turks is failing, but there are no means of verifying this. They walk about their redoubts most unconcernedly. The Russians are strongly intrenched all along their front with shelter-trenches—rifle-pits and redoubts....A Constantinople dispatch says: "It is stated in well-informed circles that the Porte will not accept mediation while a single Russian soldier remains on Turkish soil, nor will it consent to an armistice unless the basis of subsequent peace proposals is at the same time defined."

GENERAL FOREIGN NEWS.

AFTER nearly twelve months of suspense, during which the gravest fears were entertained for the safety of the gallant African explorer, the welcome news has come that Henry M. Stanley has arrived on the west coast of Africa. Stanley's last dispatch is dated from Emboma, Congo river, west coast of Africa, Aug. 10, and states that he arrived at that point on Aug. 8, from Zanzibar, with only 115 souls, the entire party in an awful condition after their long and terrible journey through the heart of the African continent.

TURKEY being unable to supply additional troops to act against Montenegro, orders have been sent to the General commanding the Turkish forces to keep more on the defensive. It is announced that the Montenegrins intend to march on Trebinje and Spuz.

ACCORDING to the Mark Lane Express, the wheat harvest in England has been nearly completed, and much of the product threshed, but it is in bad condition and of exceedingly inferior quality. On this account, and in consequence of the large supply of Russian wheat at present in market, the prices are not advancing. The Scotch harvests are also inferior, grain and potatoes being damaged by frost, and hay ruined by excessive rains. A liberal demand for the splendid American crop seems certain, therefore, as soon as the Russian and poor home supply are reduced by consumption....Reports from the famine districts of India are more encouraging.

MARSHAL MACMAHON has issued an extraordinary proclamation to the electors of France. He "awaits with full confidence the manifestation of the people's sentiments," he says; but he takes care to notify the people in advance that their sentiments must be manifested in accordance with his own. He is entirely willing that the form of an election shall proceed, but he wants it distinctly understood that it will be nothing more than a barren form. The manifesto has created an immense sensation in France. It is loudly applauded by the Bonapartist and clerical organs, while the Republican papers manifest serious alarm at the Marshal's threats.

BUSINESS INTERESTS.

Harvest Gleanings

COTTON worms are increasing in Mississippi to an alarming extent.

THE grape crop of Florida is unusually heavy, and the orange groves are reported in fine condition.

THE harvest in Spain in wheat, fruit, and wine has been so magnificent that it is estimated that half can be exported.

THE yield of wheat in Canada this season is stated to be about forty bushels to the acre, and the quality is pronounced better than usual.

THE Indianapolis Sentinel says: "Farmers are evidently holding back their crops of wheat, and scarcely any is offered on the market."

THE State Department of Agriculture of Illinois, on the basis of returns of the corn crop received from the various counties of the State, estimates that 8,905,411 acres were planted with corn this year, and that the total yield of that staple will be at least 272,766,121 bushels, which, at 40 cents per bushel, is worth over $109,100,000.

WHILE we in the United States have reason to congratulate ourselves over our excellent crops, the Scottish farmers are down in the dumps. Their hay crop has been almost lost, and by reason of the weather their growth of grain is far from successful this year. In South and Middle England the farmers though not badly unsuccessful, have no great reason to be proud of their harvests. In Ireland, though crops have not turned out so badly as in Scotland, yet in some districts they have greatly suffered.

Commercial and Trade Matters.

PHILADELPHIA dry-goods dealers are in high spirit over the condition of the fall trade.

MR. JAMES BYARS, living ten miles from Gonzales, Tex., in boring a well struck coal oil at a depth of thirty-five feet.

THE brandy production of North Carolina is immense. Over 300 distillers are registered in the internal revenue division about Statesville.

A LEADING Eastern exchange thinks "merchants and businessmen at the West and trade centers are either blowing very hard, else there is some improvement in business."

THE New York Tribune has "encouraging reports of a good fall trade, caused by the return of the jobbing business to that city. Orders are coming in in greater numbers than had been expected."

THE $8,000,000 loan of the Baltimore and Ohio railroad was taken by Morgan & Co., the American bankers in London, at 5 per cent., but at what discount, if any, does not appear. It is secured by a first and only mortgage on the 250 miles of their Chicago end.

SOME remarkable prices were paid for Canadian cattle at a recent stock sale in England. Forty-two head of shorthorns, bred near Quebec, Canada, realized 16,280 guineas, or an average of about $2,000 per head. This average has never before been reached in England or on this continent, and has only been exceeded once in Australia.

IN Delaware and Eastern Maryland there are upward of 60,000 acres of land under peach trees. This land is the best on the peninsula, estimated to be worth $50 per acre, or $3,000,000. To ship this fruit requires 2,000,000 baskets, or nearly that many, which cost $250,000. The money invested in necessary implements for cultivating and shipping the peaches to market is estimated at $10 for 100 trees, or $600,000. The cultivation of peach orchards and the picking of the fruit gives employment to upward of 25,000 laborers.

THE New York Evening Post says: "It is doubtful whether at any time in the past fifteen years there has been so great an amount of various kinds of stocks afloat in Wall street—that is, in the hands of people who hold stocks on margins and who are dependent on money lenders for the means with which to carry their holdings—as there is to-day. At the same time, we never remember when there was so much capital engaged in a speculative way in 'bulling' stocks as now."

Mill, Shop and Labor Notes.

THE lead interests of Galena, Ill., have been seriously injured by the superabundance of lead production in the reduction of Nevada and Colorado silver ores.

THE building has been completed and the machinery placed for a new cotton-mill at Savannah, Ga. It will have 7,300 spindles and 123 looms, and will be exempt from taxation.

SOME Massachusetts capitalists are about to establish a manufactory of cotton hosiery at Paducah, Ky. It is stated that this will be the only establishment of the kind south of Philadelphia.

THE emigration of carpenters from this country to England is managed under the auspices of an employers' union at Manchester, who are endeavoring to break down a strike carried on by the English carpenters, and the demand for workmen from this country is therefore not a natural one.

THE great need in the South at present is cotton-pickers. It is said that 30,000 laborers could find employment at this work during the present season, which extends over four months. In 1867 over one-fourth of the cotton crop was plowed under, because it was impossible to get it picked. Cotton-picking is a simple operation, easily learned. The Chinese in Louisiana had never seen a cotton stalk before they went there, but were soon able to pick 200 pounds a day. The price paid is 50 to 60 cents a hundred with board.

LYMAN BRADLEY, of Naugatuck, Conn., the first American cutler, is dead. He made the first pocket cutlery ever made in America. He was born in 1798. At the outset of his career in Waterbury he advertised in a Sheffield newspaper for some cutlers, paid their fare to this country and set them at work. The enterprise was successful from the beginning, though friends of Mr. Bradley's advised him against going into the enterprise, arguing that he could not sell a knife in the United States that had not the Sheffield stamp on it.

IN the Lehigh region the workingmen have won a substantial victory, having succeeded in obtaining an increase of wages. The situation is quiet in the Susquehanna valley, but the miners have not been so successful as elsewhere. The miners charge Frank B. Gowen, President of the Philadelphia and Reading Railroad Company, with bad faith in coal operations, and openly accuse him of instigating the strikes in the Lehigh region and northern coal fields, through the agency of paid emissaries, to overreach them in the business.

WASHINGTON NOTES.

SAM COX expresses himself as confident of his election to the Speakership.

THERE is evidently no foundation for the numerous stories relative to Secretary Schurz's probable retirement from the Cabinet, or his appointment to a foreign mission.

THE Mexican war veterans will renew their attempts to secure a law granting pensions to 1,000 veterans at the next session. The Pension Bureau is said to favor the project.

SO FAR as is now expected in the departments, says a Washington dispatch, there will be no appropriations asked at the extra session aside from the Army bill, except the deficiency to meet the requirements of navy pay and the necessities of the courts. Friends of Representative Atkins, who has an Army bill prepared, say that, from such an interchange of views as have been had by letter during the recess, he thinks the Democrats will go no farther in their opposition to the Army bill than to insist upon a reduction from 25,000 to 20,000.

THE present is the second year since the establishment of the money-order system that there has been any decrease in the amount issued by the Postoffice Department. Last year, however, the decrease was comparatively slight, being little less than $400,000. During the fiscal year ending in June the decrease was largely in excess of $4,000,000.

OUR Mexican relations are now understood to be far more amicable than recent dispatches would have one to believe. Instead of the bitter hostility said to have been lately animating the administration of Mexican affairs, the State Department and the Mexican Minister at Washington respectively recognize and proclaim only the most pacific endeavors to break away all barriers to a cordial understanding.

IN the spring of last year Congress passed a joint resolution requesting the people of the counties of the several States to assemble on the centennial anniversary of independence at the county seats, and have there read a succinct narrative of their county history, and to have one copy of such narrative deposited at the county Court House and another sent to the Congressional Library. The limited extent to which this centennial observance was carried out may now be judged by the fact that, although there are several thousand counties in the Union, yet only some twenty-five or thirty county narratives have been received at the Library of Congress.

THE question with regard to the President's sending the usual annual message and reports of the Executive Departments to the extra session was not long ago considered in the Cabinet, when it was agreed that the message and accompanying documents should relate only to the business for which Congress is to be especially convened, and not to general subjects of legislation. It is thought, therefore, that the message will be brief.

SEVERAL numerously-signed memorials will be presented to Congress next month, proposing amendments to the constitution abolishing the Presidency. An Executive Council, Council of State, or Cabinet is to be substituted therefor, composed of seven Secretaries, without any superior officer, all to have equal authority—that is, simply to strike out the President and authorize the Secretaries to have the execution of the laws and the general supervision of the Government. Four of the Council are to be elected by the House and three by the Senate, from members of their respective houses, for two years, one or all to be removed at any time by the House electing them, and all to have the rights of members in both houses.

THE Postoffice money-order system, it must be admitted, is one of the most convenient, safest and cheapest methods of making transfers of small sums of money from place to place yet devised. Yet, with all its advantages, within the past two years the business has considerably diminished. During the fiscal year ending June 30, 1876, the amount of money transferred was about $400,000 less than during the previous year, and the falling off during the year ending the 30th of June last was $4,000,000. It is not to be supposed for a moment that the money-order system is responsible for this decline in its business, the cause of which must be looked for in the competition of the express companies and the hard times.

The Largest of American Farms.

Miller & Lux are said to have 700,000 acres in all in California, an area nearly as great as the State of Rhode Island. There must be at least 400,000 acres in one body, running in a strip ten or twelve miles wide and sixty miles long from Hill's ferry southward. The canal farm is, therefore, a very small proportion of it. It is covered with farmhouses as well equipped in all respects as the canal farm. They own about 80,000 head of cattle, and last year their new-born calves numbered 25,000 head. Of sheep they have a vast number, as well as of hogs, and they furnish the largest share of fresh meat for the San Francisco market. They can start a herd from Kern county and drive it through to San Francisco, and have good pasturage on their own land for the cattle to feed on every night on the route.—Stockton (Cal.) Independent.

Giving Him a New Skin.

A boy named Frank Hanafin, who had been injured in a sawmill the other day, was supplied with a new skin by taking pieces from the arms of eight or nine other boys. In the accident a very large wound was made on his back, the surface being one mass of red, quivering flesh, though healthy in appearance. The wound, of course, was very sensitive, and the operation must have been quite painful to him. The Advertiser says that Drs. Picot and Maynard and an assistant performed the operation. Around the bed were gathered six or eight Irish boys, from 8 to 16 years of age, from whose arms had been taken, or was to be taken the skin needed to replace that which was lost. As each was called on by the doctor, he came forward, and baring his arm, a small piece of skin was skillfully cut out with the lancet and gently placed upon the raw flesh. About thirty pieces in all were so put on. Several of the boys gave up more than one piece, and Folger Picot, the doctor's son, contributed eight pieces. A younger brother of Hanafin's gave nearly as many. While the operation was going on the boys joked among themselves on helping to made up Hanafin, and bantered each other on the number of times they had submitted to be cut for the benefit of their playmate.—Auburn (N. Y.) Advertiser.

A Unique Bill of Fare.

At the recent reunion of veterans of the Mexican war in Chicago, an old-fashioned camp banquet was spread at the Grand Pacific Hotel, which was something of a novelty in its way. Long new deal tables were erected of plain boards, and entirely destitute of tablecloths. Upon these tables plates were laid for 300. The plates were shining tin, the cups were of the same metal, and the huge piles of hard-tack which dotted the tables reminded one of old army days. The following is the

BILL OF FARE:

Agua pura, del Brasos de Santiago.

Soup—Bean, a la Palo Alto; rice, a la Hasty Plate.

Boiled—Corned beef, a la Cerro Gordo; pickled pork, a la Monterey; bacon, dried and smoked, a la Buena Vista.

Roast—Mutton, de Mejico; bull neck, a la Vera Cruz.

Vegetables—Pickled onions, Caballo y Ajo blanco de Cherubuscy; sour krout, Berza de Perro, a la Chepultepec, con vinagre de Tobasco.

Entrees—Baked beans, con Tocno Salado, a la Frijoles de Perote; boiled rice, con Miel de Cana de Linaria.

Bread—Corn bread, a la pan de Maize o Tortilla; wheat bread, a la Farina, del Molino del Rey; hard tack(ties), de Winfield Scott.

Dessert—Coffee, del Rio; sugar, Pardo a terciado de Tampico; Muscal, de Mejico; Aguardiente da San Pascal.

Hard Times in 1843.

Though the hard times since 1873 have been of much longer duration than at any previous period, such absolute impecuniosity has never prevailed in the last four years as occurred thirty-five years ago. Then Mr. Ticknor writes to Sir Charles Lyell, under date November, 1843: "There has been great suffering in all our States, and in some, like Indiana and Illinois, a proper currency has disappeared, and men have been reduced to barter in the common business of every-day life. What you saw in Philadelphia was nothing to the crushing insolvency of the West and South. The very postoffice felt the effects of it—men with large landed estates being unable to take out their letters, because they could not pay the postage in anything the Government officers could properly receive."

Married, Despite Objections.

After service in a church in Houston county, Ga., Gus Riley, of Houston county, and Miss Mattie Calloway, of Macon, walked up the aisle, showed the minister a license, and asked him to marry them. He proceeded to do so, but the woman with whom Miss Mattie had been visiting for some weeks objected, saying that Miss Calloway was a guest at her house, under age, and her father knew nothing about it. The preacher said that that was not a legal objection, but put it to a vote of the congregation whether he should marry the couple or not. The congregation voted solid, "Marry them," and they were married.—Savannah News.

THE MARKETS.

NEW YORK.

BEEVES	$8 00	@	12 25
HOGS	5 75	@	6 25
COTTON	11½	@	11⅝
FLOUR—Superfine Western	5 50	@	5 65
WHEAT—No. 2	1 38	@	1 41
CORN—Western Mixed	56	@	59
OATS—Mixed	31½	@	37
RYE—Western	71	@	72
PORK—New Mess	13 00	@	13 37½
LARD	9	@	9½

CHICAGO.

BEEVES—Choice Graded Steers	5 75	@	6 00
Choice Natives	4 75	@	5 40
Cows and Heifers	2 50	@	4 00
Good Second-class Steers	3 80	@	4 00
Medium to Fair	4 10	@	4 65
HOGS—Live	5 00	@	5 75
FLOUR—Fancy White Winter	6 75	@	7 25
Good to Choice Spring Ex.	5 75	@	6 00
WHEAT—No. 2 Spring	1 14½	@	1 15
No. 3 Spring	1 09	@	1 09½
CORN—No. 2	44	@	45
OATS—No. 2	24	@	25
RYE—No. 2	54	@	55
BARLEY—No. 2	62	@	63
BUTTER—Choice Creamery	25	@	28
EGGS—Fresh	14	@	15
PORK—Mess	12 75	@	12 80
LARD	8½	@	8¾

MILWAUKEE.

WHEAT—No. 1	1 18	@	1 19½
No. 2	1 14	@	1 15
CORN—No. 2	43	@	44
OATS—No. 2	24	@	25
RYE—No. 1	56	@	57
BARLEY—No. 2	64	@	65

ST. LUOIS.

WHEAT—No. 2 Red Fall	1 30	@	1 31
CORN—No. 2 Mixed	42	@	43
OATS—No. 2	25½	@	26½
RYE	56	@	57
PORK—Mess	13 00	@	....
LARD	8½	@	9
HOGS	5 00	@	5 65
CATTLE	4 00	@	5 75

CINCINNATI.

WHEAT—Red	1 20	@	1 32
CORN	49½	@	50
OATS	27	@	32
RYE	60	@	62
PORK—Mess	12 75	@	13 00
LARD	8½	@	10

TOLEDO.

WHEAT—Amber Michigan	1 33	@	1 35
No. 2 Red Winter	1 32	@	1 33
CORN	48	@	49
OATS—No. 2	26	@	27

DETROIT.

FLOUR—Choice White	6 75	@	7 00
WHEAT—No. 1	1 39	@	1 45
CORN—Mixed	48	@	50
OATS—Mixed	28	@	29
BARLEY (per cental)	1 00	@	1 30
PORK—Mess	16 00	@	16 75

EAST LIBERTY, PA.

CATTLE—Best	5 75	@	6 00
Fair	5 50	@	5 60
Common	4 25	@	4 75
HOGS	5 00	@	5 90
SHEEP	4 25	@	5 00

AUBURN COURIER.

T. G. MAYS, PUBLISHER.

FINANCIAL FACTS.

Resumption Without Contraction Impossible.

[From the Chicago States.]

A certain degree of obscurity has always hung about the subject of national finance, which has deterred a great majority of people from investigating it thoroughly. We have even heard great American statesmen and constitutional lawyers candidly admit that they literally knew nothing of finance; that it was a sealed book to them. A great deal of the obscurity in which this subject is involved has arisen from the use of the technical terms of the science, if we may say so, in a sort of Pickwickian sense. Thus, we hear money called a standard of value, a measure of value, and a representative of value. Even many eminent politico-economic writers use these terms when writing upon the subject of money. J. B. Say, John Stuart Mill and Prof. J. L. Perry so use them. Yet, in the very same works in which they do so, they insert treatises to show that money is none of these things. The terms are used precisely in the same manner that we speak of the sun and the moon rising and setting. In other words, when using such terms in speaking of money, we speak or write according to the appearances, not the realities, of things.

Money, then, is neither a standard, a measure, nor a representative of value. It is simply a commodity, governed by the laws or operations of supply and demand, precisely as other commodities. The more of it there is, and the less the demand, the less it is worth and the less it will purchase. The less of it there is, and the greater the demand, the more it is worth and the more it will purchase.

What constitutes, then, the superiority of money, as compared with other commodities, and its power over such commodities? These arise from the fact that, while other articles have only special exchanging or purchasing powers, money has a general and universal exchanging or purchasing power. It is the universal exchanger of other commodities. Thus, by turning his other property into money, a man may command any one among the thousand commodities in the market that he desires.

Then, again, in considering the question of money, we must rigidly define what it really is; because, before being able to make our readers comprehend our positions, and the arguments by which we support them, they and ourself must limit and define our technical term. Money in reality is whatever will exchange other property. Thus specie—gold, silver, and copper—is money. But so is paper made legal tender by governments, and bank-notes issued by corporations and individuals. Still further, the drafts, checks, bills of exchange, inscribed accounts, and deposits of banks, and even the notes of individual merchants, are, to all intents and purposes, money. They exchange property; they pay debts; they render all business transactions complete and perfect. Furthermore, they enhance or depress the value of property, accordingly as they are issued or withheld from issue.

But all descriptions of money are not alike. The difference consists in the limit to the purchasing power of the various kinds. It is vulgarly supposed that gold and silver have a universal purchasing power. This is an error. Our gold and silver will not purchase commodities in Great Britain and Ireland. It must first be exchanged into the money of that country, which latter, compared with ours, ounce Troy for ounce Troy, is 9¼ per cent. more valuable. The established value of the coin of one country, when expressed in another, is the par of exchange, and is invariable, though the exchange itself varies, according to the law of supply and demand.

The gold and silver of any country, and its legal-tender paper money, have a universal purchasing power within the limits of that country. All other descriptions of money, including the notes of corporations and individuals, have only a limited purchasing power, depending on the credit of the parties issuing the same.

The purchasing and exchanging power of gold and silver and legal-tender money depends upon the force of the Government and the business necessities of the people. The purchasing and exchanging power of all other descriptions of money depends upon the credit of the issuer and the business necessities of the public. The exchanging and purchasing power of all money, however, primarily depends upon the necessities of the people, and is based upon the present and future prosperity of the country's industries. Money is thus a loan, or a debt, based upon the present and future prosperity of the country, upon which its value, and even existence, depends. All money thus partakes of the nature and character of legal tender—is a forced loan. Legal-tender money is a universally forced loan. All other money is also a forced loan, but limited, because its purchasing power is limited.

Lastly, the value of all money depends upon its quantity, not quality, in circulation, as compared with the value of all other property in exchange. Thus, increase the quantity of gold and silver mining in any one country, and at the same time prohibit its export, and its value will decline in proportion to the increase, unless increased exchanges absorb it. The value of silver has declined because its quantity has been increased on the one hand, while its use has been diminished on the other.

There is one law of finance, however, that should ever be borne in mind: When any country is on a specie basis, and thus its paper money is convertible into specie at will, any increase in either the specie or paper money will cause a decline in the whole mass of specie and paper. Without a knowledge and acknowledgment of this fact, no intelligent comprehension of the whole subject of finance can be had. Yet this knowledge is generally ignored by our modern statesmen, and by many of our so-called political economists. These persons think that by the resumption of specie payments the money of the country will be accorded a fixed value, which will never hereafter vary. But the truth is, the fluctuation of convertible or specie-basis money in any country depends upon the quantity of that kind of money afloat, compared with the vent of the exchanges.

Bearing the above principles and facts on finance in view, it will be seen that Secretary Sherman and Mr. West (the latter the candidate for Governor of Ohio), in their late speeches exhibit a total ignorance of the commonest principles of national finance. Mr. West proposes to resume specie payments without contraction. He says, very truly, that contraction would destroy what is left of our industries, and produce, besides, a labor revolution, compared with which the last would be mere child's play. In this he is correct. But resumption without contraction would simply be throwing the specie and paper money of the whole country, as it were, into one pot. The effect of this would be to depress the value of the whole mass. This would make the specie part so cheap that every man who had any commodity to sell in any other country would dump it into ours, and, taking the cheapened specie in exchange, he would ship it to that country in which it was dearer.

Secretary Sherman is a little more specious, if not more sagacious, in his utterances, than Mr. West. Still, he thinks resumption can be effected by 1879, either by contraction, or by Mr. West's plan of expansion. It seems to him, from what we can gather, to be immaterial which way it is brought about. He thinks the prospect at present is very hopeful of better times, in which view he is the one solitary exception in these United States. Nevertheless, even now greenbacks and bank notes are at a discount of 4 per cent. with gold, which represents, in case of resumption, a discount of from 20 to 30 per cent. on all other descriptions of property. When the Bank of England resumed specie payments, the discount on the paper money of Great Britain was but 3 to 3½ per cent. Still, 250 banks and an innumerable number of mercantile houses failed, while the distress and destitution among the artisans of the country was so great that they thronged the streets of the great cities in thousands, crying for bread or blood. In Bristol and Glasgow and other cities they were shot down in large numbers by the military.

Have we not had a sufficiently appalling specimen of this sort of thing in this country, without further inviting what possibly may end in a social revolution such as the world has never witnessed?

No resumption can take place in this or any country without contraction, and contraction is destruction to American industry at home, and American credit abroad.

SPECIE-RESUMPTION.

Judge Doolittle's Views—His Objections to the Present Legislation on the Subject.

A reporter for the Chicago Tribune recently called upon ex-Senator Doolittle with a view to ascertain his opinion as to the effect of specie-resumption on Jan. 1, 1879—that is, in about sixteen months. In the course of a lengthened conversation on the subject, Mr. Doolittle said:

To answer your question, I must first put another question, and answer that, and that question is this: How much must the volume of paper money, including greenbacks and Treasury notes, be decreased; and how much must the volume of coin now in this country be increased, in order to resume specie payments, and to maintain resumption? I repeat, to resume and to maintain resumption; for I think all will agree that to resume for a week and then to suspend would be disastrous.

I assume as a fact beyond dispute that no nation, by any system of paper money, ever has maintained or can maintain specie payments, unless there is at least as much coin in the country as there is paper in circulation. I do not say it must all be in the vaults of the banks or the treasury. But if not in their vaults, it must be in the hands of the people.

The treasury and the banks may get on and maintain specie payments with one-half the amount of coin in reserve; and sometimes with one-third, when there is, at the same time, a large supply of coin in the hands of the people which, when pushed, the banks or the treasury may command. The history of our own country, of England, France, Prussia, and every other country shows this.

In 1861, before the civil war, when we were in a normal financial condition—when we had specie payments—we had of bank paper, in round numbers $200,000,000; of coin money on deposit, $100,000,000; of coin circulating among the people, according to estimates, $165,000,000. There was then about $65,000,000 more of coin than of paper to be redeemed. Even during the suspension in 1857 there was more coin in the country than there was of bank issues; but it was in the pockets of the people and not in the vaults of the banks.

"Bear in mind," continued the ex-Senator, "I do not say that specie payments can be always maintained when the stock of coin in the country is equal to the volume of paper. But, what I do say is, that specie payments cannot be maintained when the stock of coin in the country is less than the volume of paper."

In England, where specie payments are maintained, the volume of paper money does not exceed $225,000,000; the coin reserve in the Bank of England is a little over $100,000,000; the coin in circulation is estimated at $525,000,000. In Prussia, where specie payments are maintained, the paper money is about $202,000,000; the coin reserve of the bank is $154,000,000; the coin in circulation is about $500,000,000. In France, where the bank still remains in suspension, the amount of paper money is about $512,000,000, its coin reserve is about $253,000,000; the coin in circulation among the people is $500,000,000. The notes of the bank are par with coin; and yet that bank, conducted by the greatest financiers of this generation, does not resume specie payments, though its stock of coin reserve is more than one-half the amount of its notes, and there is more than $200,000,000 more of coin in the country than paper to be redeemed if demanded. To make a long story short, before we can resume specie payment, and stay resumed, we must increase our stock of coin, and decrease our volume of paper until the coin shall at least be equal to the paper.

The currency is to the country what the blood in circulation is to the human body. Since 1875 one-seventh part of the blood has been drawn out, business is stagnant, men of enterprise are paralyzed; many who will stand are weakening; they feel themselves beginning to stagger. If drawing out one-seventh part of the blood in the system in two years has produced that result, what effect will follow if you draw out in one year more than one-third of all that is left in the system? There is but one answer. The patient will die in the operation. Two-thirds of all the business men still standing will go to the wall. Every property under mortgage for one-half its present value will change hands. The forced and sudden change in the meaning and increase in the value of the dollar will bring upon the country more destruction of fortunes and values than a civil war.

Reporter—But how can that be, as gold and greenbacks are now so near par? Is it not simply a question of 4 per cent?

Mr. Doolittle—I am glad you asked that question, and I am glad to answer it. Let me assure you it is not a simple question of 4 per cent. Ten times 4 per cent. is involved in it. Facts are worth more than theories. The history of resumption in England is full of instruction upon the very question. During the wars with Napoleon and after they were over for nearly twenty years the Bank of England suspended specie payments. But in 1819, after four years of peace, the value of paper currency was only 3 per cent. below coin. Peel and Ricardo urged upon Parliament resumption in four years. They said, as some say now: "We are almost at the point of resumption; we have already discounted our sufferings. It is only a question of 3 per cent. Ricardo said, "The whole difficulty would be in raising the value of the currency 3 per cent."

Though the business men protested—though the Governor and Directors of the Bank of England warned Parliament of the danger of contracting the currency, as they must be compelled to do to resume in four years—yet such was the influence of Peel and Ricardo that they carried "Peel's Resumption act" through the House of Commons by a unanimous vote. But one man stood out against it, and they even persuaded him to leave the Chamber when the vote was taken, so that it would appear unanimous. What was the result? Sir Archibald Alison, in his history, tells the sad story:

"The effects of this extraordinary piece of legislation were soon apparent. The industry of the nation was speedily congealed, as a flowing stream is by the severity of an Arctic winter. * * * The entire circulation of England fell from $232,545,000 in 1818, to $142,757,000 in 1821. The effects of this sudden and prodigious contraction of the currency were soon apparent; and they rendered the next three years a period of ceaseless distress and suffering in the British islands." The discounts at the "Bank of England, which in 1810 had been $115,000,000, and in 1815 not less than $103,000,000, sunk in 1820 to $23,360,000, and in 1821 to $13,610,000. The effect upon prices was not less immediate and appalling." The rate of wages fell one-half.

"From the tremendous reduction in the price of land," says Mr. Doubleday, "which now took place, the estates barely sold for as much as would pay off the mortgages, and the owners were stripped of all and made beggars."

History repeats itself. Like causes produce like effects.

We are blessed this year with a bounteous harvest. There is a prospect of a foreign demand for our surplus. And yet, if when Congress meets the policy of the Secretary of the Treasury and of the National Board of Trade at Milwaukee shall be followed, there are disasters before our country which no pen can portray.

Reporter—But, Senator Doolittle, are you not in favor of a return to specie payments at some time?

Mr. Doolittle—Certainly I am, but not by any such sudden and violent contraction as resumption by January, 1879, will force upon the country. To use the strong language of Gen. Ewing, of Ohio, I would come to resumption by "the pleasant paths of industry, economy and prosperity, and not be dragged through hell to reach it."

The Eruption at Cotopaxi.

Detailed reports are just coming to hand of the late eruption of the volcano of Cotopaxi, which occurred as long ago as June 26. Telegraphic communications with Peru, it is well known, have been interrupted, and the full extent of the calamity was not understood in this country from the meager reports which at first arrived. It is estimated that the loss of life will exceed 1,000, and property worth many millions of dollars has been destroyed. A correspondent of the Nation reports that the volcano poured forth a stream of water "ten times the bulk of Niagara," which submerged the country, converting the plain of Callo into an immense lake. Quito was spared, but the surroundings of the city suffered heavily, and the city of Latacunga only escaped total wreck through its fortunate position, three river beds intervening between it and the volcano.

The peculiarity of this eruption is the vast flood caused by it. Cotopaxi has heretofore thrown out streams of lava, but never before, so far as history reveals, has anything like the same torrent of water been seen. The damage to the country is therefore comparatively of a temporary nature, and easier to be borne than in the case of devastation by an eruption of lava and ashes. The openings of Vesuvius have been much more serious matters. It may be correct, strictly speaking, to say that this volume of water was thrown out from the volcano, although it did not come from the interior of the earth. A large body of water may have collected in the crater from rains and melting snows—Cotopaxi is perpetually covered with snow—and this would be ejected by the eruption from below. A lake or river on the earth's surface may have been displaced at the same time. Whatever explanation of the facts may be given by science, the horror of them will be unabated. The story of death and suffering can have few mitigating circumstances, and it will be read with pain wherever humanity has learned to pity the sorrows of others.

Duration of the Pope's Reign.

There is, or has been till now, a superstition that none of the Popes can outlive St. Peter, and, as far as the history of the Papacy can be traced, no Pope till now has reigned longer than the apostolic founder of the holy see. Pius VI. reigned within three or four months of five-and-twenty years; and, till the reign of Pius IX., this was the nearest approach to the alleged pontificate of Peter. The duration of that is said to have been twenty-five years, two months and seven days. Sylvester I. reigned twenty-four years, and Adrain's reign fell short of that only by about ten days. The longest reign next to these is the reign of Pius VII. That was twenty-three years and a half. But Pius IX. is now in the fiftieth year of his episcopate, in the thirty-first year of his pontificate, and in the 85th year of his age. He has, with one or two exceptions, outlived all the Cardinals who took part in his election in the June of 1846; has confuted the old belief embodied in the words Non videbis annos Petri, and is to-day, with one exception—that of Queen Victoria—the oldest reigning sovereign in Europe. Her Majesty is the Pope's senior as a sovereign by nearly ten years. But, with this exception, the Pope has seen every throne in Europe change its occupant since the triple crown was placed on his brows in St. Peter's, and some of them he has seen refilled more than once.

A KENTUCKY newspaper says that an investigation of the records of the State shows that not a single man or woman within its borders has been legally married.

PALMETTO PLUNDERERS.

Revelations of Carpet-Bag Rule in South Carolina.

[From the Springfield Republican.]

The true inwardness of the mongrel misgovernment under which South Carolina so long suffered is sharply illumined by the revelations of the just-concluded Grand Jury investigation. There was nothing in the history of the Albany Legislature in the day of Tweed which the carpet-bag Legislature of Columbia did not more than rival, as the sample chapter from its records, soon to take form in the trial of United States Senator Patterson for conspiracy and bribery, which is given by the special correspondent of the New York Herald, well shows.

The first indictment against Patterson is of conspiracy with ex-Treasurer N. G. Parker and ex-Financial Agent Kimpton to carry three bills through the Legislature. One, and the biggest of these, was the Blue Ridge Scrip bill. The Blue Ridge railroad was once a bona fide enterprise. It was entered into in 1853, with the object of obtaining a short freight line for the products of the West. The State subscribed $1,310,000, the city of Charleston $1,000,000 and private parties $200,000 at the outset; $1,700,000 was paid in, and with this sum fifty miles of road was completed before the war put a stop to all such enterprises in the South. The project came to the front again in the dawn of reconstruction, and was industriously worked up in the Legislature of 1868 by the northern speculators into whose hands it had fallen, among whom the Herald mentions Patterson, McClure, Parker, Neagle and Chamberlain—names familiar enough in the recent history of the State. An act was passed authorizing the issue of $4,000,000 of bonds and their indorsement by the Controller General of the State, the only consideration to be rendered being, of course, the completion of the road; and it was also provided in the bill that these bonds should not be sold at less than par in currency. The company went into the markets with their guaranteed bonds, but failed to gain the confidence of capitalists, and the road was again at a dead stop. The course now taken by Patterson and his companions is thus described by the Herald:

"They had borrowed $200,000 of the State's money from the financial agent on the pledge of $600,000 of their bonds, and they had a bill introduced into the Legislature (of 1872) requiring the State Treasurer, on the surrender of the remaining $3,400,000 of their bonds, to issue revenue-bond scrip for $1,800,000, which was to be redeemed by the State at the rate of $600,000 a year for three years by the levy of a special tax for that particular purpose. The Sinking-Fund Commissioners had already sold the $1,310,000 of stock in the company owned by the State to Patterson and others individually for $13,100—that is, at the rate of 1 cent on the dollar—and the bill in question validated and confirmed that swindling sale. That is to say, the State, after having subscribed $1,310,000 for the building of the road, and indorsing the company's bonds for $4,000,000 for the sake of completing it, was made by this bill to give up all hope of having the road built and to ratify the sale of its stock for 1 cent on the dollar, and to pay $1,800,000 for the privilege of getting back a part of the bonds which it had indorsed without any other consideration than securing the completion of the road."

A more outrageous piece of rascality in its way was seldom, if ever, perpetrated, and the means were worthy of the object. The Legislature was made up of as purchasable stuff, white and black, as any that ever met, and it was bought, some of the bribes being enormous; the "reward" of the redoubtable Moses being stated as $10,000 or more, and Senators averaging $5,000. These bribes were paid—for Patterson had no ready money—in the shape of orders on the Treasurer for scrip, in case the bill was passed. By the same means were put through the "Validation bill," legalizing the illegal issues of fraudulent bonds by the "financial board," consisting of Gov. Scott, Atty. Gen. D. H. Chamberlain, since Governor, and Treasurer Parker; and the "Financial Agent's Settlement bill," authorizing the above board to settle with the finacial agent (Kimpton) without report to the Legislature—as good a device as Tweed's Board of Audit.

This ingenious arrangement, devised to keep the knowledge of these frauds in the ring, whatever the public suspicion might be, was defeated by a piece of arrant treachery. The Herald correspondent states that Judge T. J. Mackey was one day in Patterson's house, in Columbia, when Patterson, Kimpton, Parker, Senator B. F. Whittemore (subsequently of cadetship-trading fame) and Hardy Solomon were in another. Parker and Kimpton left together, and a while after their departure Patterson intrusted a sealed package to Mackey to deliver to Kimpton. Mackey accepted the trust, but it occurred to him that there might be something interesting in the envelope, and so he called on Gov. Scott—who like himself had been left out of the ring—and the two decided that it would be eminently proper to inspect its contents. Their expectations were justified; the document within was so interesting that they had two photographic copies taken, and the negative destroyed on the spot. Gov. Scott took one copy, Judge Mackey another, and the original document, securely resealed, was handed to the unsuspecting Kimpton, who turned it over to Treasurer Parker in the Judge's presence. Judge Mackey's copy it is which has made the mischief before the Grand Jury.

This document was an order on the Treasurer for the delivery to Kimpton of $114,250 of revenue-bond scrip, specifying that it was to be used for the purpose of "paying the expenses" of passing through the Legislature the bills above described. The order was signed by Patterson, as President of the Blue Ridge Railroad Company, and was witnessed by R. B. Elliott, the colored Congressman from the Columbia district. The items of the second indictment against Mr. Patterson indicate what these "expenses" were. They charge bribery of Speaker S. H. Lee in the sum of $3,000; of our ex-Connecticut friend, Representative John B. Dennis, $2,000; of Representative Prince R. Rivers (the Major General of the State militia under the Republican administrations, and chief of the secret Republican "True Brotherhood,") $500; of Senator B. F. Whittemore (ex-chaplain and ex-Congressman, and last week howling at a soldiers' reunion up at Fitchburg against President Hayes for not keeping him and his crowd in power in South Carolina), $5,000; of Senator (afterward Secretary of State) Hayne, $5,000; of Senator W. B. Nash (Hayes elector), $5,000; of Senator Owens, who has just died, $5,000; etc., etc. The correspondent states that this bill of particulars is based upon the testimony of Dennis, Rivers and Lee, all Republicans, and hardly likely, one would think, to be willing witnesses to their own and their party's shame. It is evident that the cry of "political persecution" is hardly an effectual answer to such an indictment as this; and it is also evident that his conversion to the virtues of President Hayes' policy will not be sufficient to give Mr. Patterson a decent standing, even if it can save him his place in the United States Senate, at the next session.

SHERMAN IN NEW ORLEANS.

How Returning Board Anderson Secured His Commission—Secretary Sherman Telling a Part of the Truth, and the Sun Finding the Rest.

[From the New York Sun.]

The Washington correspondent of the New York Evening Post telegraphs that journal as follows:

Secretary Sherman to-day, in reply to an inquiry as to whether the appointment of Mr. Anderson, of the Louisiana Returning Board, to be Deputy Collector at New Orleans had been made directly by the President, said that the President had nothing to do with it; that the Collector of the Port at New Orleans, Judge King, made a written request for the appointment of Anderson, and that the recommendation was duly approved by himself. "And," added Mr. Sherman, "you can say as coming from me that every appointment asked for by Collector King has been made, and neither the department nor the President has attempted to interfere with or suggest what appointments should be made there."

This is an important admission respecting the removals recently made in the New Orleans Custom House. Collector King was appointed solely upon the request of Tom Anderson, one of the members of the infamous Returning Board. King was one of the Judges of Kellogg's Supreme Court, to which position he had been elevated at the dictation of Anderson. He owes his political advancement solely to Anderson, whose pliant tool he has always been. There were a number of respectable citizens recommended by the business men of New Orleans for Collector of that port, among them Mr. Phelps, President of the Cotton Exchange—one of the leading citizens—and Hayes virtually promised to appoint him. But Anderson came to Washington, saw John Sherman, and demanded the appointment of King. His demand was sufficient, and, to the surprise of respectable Republicans in New Orleans, and the disgust of other citizens, the appointment was made. It was understood at that time that Anderson was to be the chief deputy of King, but he was not appointed. The reason was this: King was impecunious, but his friends, Anderson and Wells, could not accommodate him with ready money. Herwig, who was Casey's deputy and political guardian for eight years, had plenty of money. He monopolized the stealings of the Custom House under Casey, and wanted to continue to reap the harvest under King through his tool, Champlin. He lent King money, and then demanded that Champlin and his other friends should be retained in the Custom House. Anderson wanted King to turn out Champlin and put him in. The fellows who had manufactured evidence for the Returning Board wanted positions in the Custom House, and they threatened that if they were not taken care of they would tell all they knew. Thus the pressure on King was very great, but he did not dare to make the dismissals without some pretext, like an order from Washington. Accordingly he made out a list of subordinates, with Champlin at the head, and sent the same to Sherman, asking him to approve their discharge. Sherman sent the list to Hayes without explanation, as none had come from King. Hayes thought this was a fine opportunity to exercise the civil-service rules, and he returned the list to Sherman indorsed in substance as follows: "Under the civil-service rules these dismissals should not be made, as no cause therefor is assigned." Thus indorsed, the list was returned to King. When Anderson saw it he was angry. He hunted up Wells, and the two started for the North. They came to Cincinnati, and learned that John Sherman was in Cleveland or Toledo. They went thither, but Sherman was pleasure-seeking on the lake on board a revenue cutter. Missing him at both points named above, they followed him to Mansfield, where they found him. They had an interview with him, and then came to Washington. Sherman followed. They saw Hayes, and the next day Anderson left for New Orleans with his commission as Deputy Collector in his pocket. The removals which Hayes said should not be made under the civil-service rules have commenced, and will continue till every one of the fellows who manufactured evidence for the Returning Board and the visiting statesmen are provided for. The statement of John Sherman to the correspondent of the Evening Post is therefore true, but it is not the whole truth. King did make a written request for the dismissal of certain people and the appointment of Anderson as chief deputy, but when that request was referred to Hayes he said it could not be done under the civil-service rules. Then Anderson and Wells were angry, and swore it should be done under the agreement made with them by the visiting statesmen. They came to Washington and demanded the fulfillment of the written pledge made to them—demanded what was nominated in the bond, and got all they asked. It is true also that neither the "department nor the President has attempted to interfere with or suggest what appointments should be made there," but John Sherman and Returning Board Hayes did, in defiance of the civil-service rules, and in the face of the latter's indorsement, agree that every appointment asked for by King, the alter ego of Anderson, should be made. In other words, they did not dare to refuse anything demanded of them by Wells and Anderson, and I venture the prediction here that John Sherman will order the claim of J. Madison Wells to be paid before Congress meets, or shortly after it adjourns, notwithstanding it has been over and over again proved to be a fraud. I venture to predict also that after John Sherman and Returning Board Hayes have doubly damned themselves by their efforts to compensate Wells and Anderson for stealing the vote of Louisiana, and thereby making Hayes de facto President, they will not be able to prevent the whole truth about that "great fraud of 1876" from coming to the light.

FRIGHTFUL DEATH.

A Seller of Fire-Escapes Falls to the Sidewalk from the Third Story and is Instantly Killed—Singular Circumstances of the Fatal Accident.

[From the New York World.]

Samuel E. Hardman, of Providence, R. I., while exhibiting a new fire-escape at the Astor House yesterday, fell from the window next but one to the roof to the sidewalk and was instantly killed. Mr. Hardman arrived at the Astor House yesterday morning, engaged a room, and at about 1 o'clock asked at the office for a room more conveniently situated, where he might have an opportunity of exhibiting the Kenyon fire-escape of which he was the manufacturer. The clerks at the office accordingly directed Walter Hatton, one of the negro bell-boys, to show Hardman to No. 322, one of the rooms on the top story in a direct line above the porch on the Broadway entrance. Hardman entered the room, opened the window, looked out, and, shaking his head, remarked to the bell-boy that it was too high. The boy asked him whether he would not prefer to make the experiment from some room where the archway would not interfere with his descent. "Oh, no," said Hardman, confidently: "I want to come down directly in front of the Broadway entrance, where everybody will see me."

He was then shown to room No. 232, just beneath the first. Hardman, as before, looked out, apparently measuring the height from the window to the ground. Satisfied with his inspection, he began at once the preparations for his descent. He fastened a cable-wire to the lower part of a bed-post. This wire rolls on a drum, circular in shape, and about six inches in diameter; the wire, which is not much larger than a piece of ordinary twine, revolves about the drum, while attached to the wire itself is a brake which increases or retards the speed of the person descending.

While Mr. Hardman was engaged in his preparations two chambermaids entered the room, and they, together with the negro porter, were the only persons with the unfortunate man at the time of the disaster. While fastening the rope to the bed-post Hardman said, "I hope that some of the boys will be about." The negro, thinking that the man referred to the crowd in the street, replied, "I guess there'll be enough when you get out of the window."

"Oh, I don't mean that crowd," said Hardman; "I mean the boys from home." "Why," said the boy, "do you wish to bid them a last farewell?" At this Hardman frowned, and murmured some reply in an undertone. During the conversation he had fastened the belt about his body, and was engaged in getting out of the window, with his back to the street and holding on by the inside of the sill. He then allowed himself to drop slowly, still clinging to the window. Then letting go one hand he began adjusting the machine with the other. This done, he began to descend, but before his head had disappeared below the stone coping of the window the wire snapped and he fell, shrugging himself together in a crouching position, to the sidewalk. He cleared the porch entirely, as well as the steps. His head struck first, with a sound which, as the negro described it, resembled the bursting of a paper bag inflated with air. The man must have been swinging outward pretty forcibly at the time when the wire snapped, for otherwise he could scarcely have gained sufficient impetus to have carried his body outside of the porch and steps leading to the Broadway entrance. He was probably trying to swing clear of them when the wire broke. Strangely enough, although the entrance to the Astor House is thronged with business men coming to and from the restaurant, no one was directly in the way of the fall. One gentleman, who was walking up Broadway at the time, and was knocked off his feet by a slight touch, turning around, angrily, said, "What do you mean?" and saw the mutilated and bleeding body at his side. The remains, as they lay upon the sdewalk, were at once, surrounded by a striong cordon of police who kept back the tremendous crowd which gathered. Nearly every bone in the unfortunate man's body was broken, so that when the police endeavored to carry it to the Twenty-seventh Precinct police station they found great difficulty in lifting it to the stretcher. The left hand was bent in, and the bone of the arm protruded for several inches; the skull was terribly crushed and mangled, and the left shoulder pressed upward toward the head. The sidewalk in front of the hotel was quite discolored with a pool of blood.

THE British House of Commons consists of 658 members, 493 of whom are returned by English and Welsh, 60 by Scotch, and 105 by Irish constituencies. Though it has varied in the past, the membership has remained at the mystical number of 658 since the union with Ireland, at the close of the last century, in spite of the numerous changes which have been made in the distribution of the electoral franchise by reform bills within the last fifty years.

A GRATIFYING proof of the quieter condition of Ireland is found in the reduction of the police force. The Dublin Gazette contained, last month, an official notice reducing the force from about 12,000 to 9,381. The number needed in the north is far smaller than in the south. Tipperary needs the most, and has 711.

THE BOOT UPSIDE-DOWN

Can beat the World on

BOOTS AND SHOES!

If you like to

SAVE MONEY!

Don't buy a dollars worth of goods before you see our

GOODS AND PRICES!

We have all our goods made to order

FOR CASH

And will sell you the best Boot or Shoe for the money on Earth.

Mens Stoga Boots, $2.00 to $3.00, Mens Kip Boots, custom hand made, $3.50 to $3.85, All Calf, hand made Boots $4.50, Womens Winter Shoes, $1.00 to $2.00 Womens Grain Shoes, 99c to $1.25.

COME AND SEE US!

We like to show goods whether you buy or not, for we are always happy and you can't make us mad. We will give a pair of

LADIES BEST RUBBERS!

With every bill of goods bought that amounts to $14.00.

BOYS BOOTS FROM $1.50 TO 2.50!

MENS RUBBER BOOTS $3.25.

Look out for the BOOT UPSIDE-DOWN, Auburn, Indiana.

W. J. AUSTIN & CO.

Recorder's

THE AUBURN COURIER.

Devoted to the Interests of the Democratic Party and to the Collection of Local and General News.

Volume 7. AUBURN, DeKALB COUNTY INDIANA, OCTOBER 4th, 1877. Number 40.

The Auburn Weekly Courier

PUBLISHED EVERY THURSDAY, BY

TOM. C. MAYS.

One Year........$2. | Six Months.......

Advertising Rates.

Space.	1m.	3m.	6m.	1 y.
1 Square......	2 00	5 00	7 00	12 00
¼ Column.........	8 00	12 00	18 00	30 00
½ Column.........	10 00	18 00	30 00	50 00
1 Column.........	15 00	30 00	60 00	100 00

Local Notices 10 cents per line, first insertion 5 cents each insertion thereafter. Business cards Five Dollars.

BUSINESS DIRECTORY

ATTORNEYS.

H. C. PETERSON,

ATTORNEY AT LAW and notary public. Office over Davis' hardware store, Auburn, Ind.

J. W. RICKEL,

ATTORNEY AT LAW Auburn, Ind. Special attention given to collections. Office over First National Bank.

A. F. PINCHIN

ATTORNEY AT LAW and notary public, Butler, DeKalb Co., Ind. Insurance and real estate business promptly attended to.

GUY PLUM

ATTORNEY AT LAW and notary public. Office in the Court House. Special attention paid to the collection of claims. Also agent for Home Insurance Company.

D. D. MOODY. F. V. HOFFMAN.

Moody and Hoffman,

ATTORNEYS AT LAW. Office in Odd Fellows' building, opposite Court House, Auburn, Ind.

R. A. FRANKS. O. Z. HUBBELL.

Franks & Hubbell,

ATTORNEYS at law, will practice in DeKalb and adjoining counties. Special attention given to the collection of claims, settlements of decendent estates and conveyance. Office on Broadway opposite Haskins & Son's livery stable, Butler, Ind.

BEST and McCLELLAN.

ATTORNEYS AT LAW, Waterloo, Ind. Will practice in the Courts of DeKalb & Steuben counties. Liberal Advance Made on all first-class Claims left in our hands for collection.

COURTS IN STEUBEN CO.	COURTS IN DE KALB CO
1st Monday in February	3rd Monday in Feb
4th Monday in April	2nd Monday in May
1st Monday in September	3rd Monday in Sep.
Monday in November	2nd Monday in Dec.

R. WES. M'BRIDE. J. L. MORLAN. W. H. LEAS

McBRIDE, MORLAN and LEAS

ATTORNEYS AT LAW, NOTARIES PUBLIC, COLLECTING AND INSURANCE AGENCY Office over Fisher's Clothing Store, corner of Wayne and Marion streets, Waterloo, Ind. Will practice in all parts of the State. Especial Attention given to collections in DeKalb, Steuben, LaGrange and Noble counties.

COURTS IN DEKALB CO.	COURTS IN STEUBEN CO.
4th Monday in February	1st Monday in Febr'y.
3rd Monday in May.	4th Monday in April.
4th Monday in Septem'r	1st Monday in Sept'r.
3rd Monday in Decem'r	4th Monday in Nov'r.

PHYSICIANS.

DR. J. A. COWAN,

PHYSICIAN & SURGEON, Auburn, Ind. Office on Main street, over Central Grocery.

J. J. LITTLEFIELD,

PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON. Office over McIntyre's Block, Auburn, Ind. All calls promptly attended to.

W. S. ALLEN.

PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON, Office West of Court House, on Main Street, over Eldridge's store. Same office lately occupied by Dr. Cowan.

DR. TRITCH,

HOMEOPATHIC PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON Special attention given to Surgery and Chronic diseases. Office in Case's Block, Auburn Indiana.

DR. S. B. JOHNSTON.

DENTIST, WATERLOO, INDIANA, Does all work in the line of his profession at as low figures as possible. Special attention given to gold filling and making new teeth. All work warranted.

HOTELS.

AVELINE HOUSE,

MILLER & MORITZ, Prop's., corner Calhoun & Berry Sts., Fort Wayne, Ind.

BUTT'S HOTEL,

FORMERLY THE BIGLER HOUSE, JOHN BUTT & A. B. RICHARDS, Proprietors, Waterloo, Ind. Free omnibus to and from all trains Good sample rooms on first floor.

Central House,

MR. M. C. MARKEL, Prop. Corner Main and Seventh streets. Good Sample Rooms for Drummers.

MAYER HOUSE.

SCARBROUGH & KEPLER, Prop's., Corner Calhoun and Wayne Streets, Fort Wayne, Ind. Good Sample Rooms.

SANDS HOUSE.

COR. WABASH AVE. & MADISON ST. CHICAGO, ILL. New House, elegantly furnished. Only $2.00 per day.

GEO. S. PALMER, [Late of City Hotel,] Clerk. O. SANDS, Proprietor

MISCELLANEOUS.

H. Wartenslaben

PAINTER and paper hanger. House painting specialty. Residence corner Williams and Cedar street.

PRINTING.

COURIER OFFICE.

JOB PRINTING neatly executed. Fine work a specialty. Office in Odd Fellows' Building 2nd floor.

EXAMINATION OF TEACHERS.—Examinations will be held in Auburn on the first Saturday, and in Waterloo on the last Saturday in each month, beginning March 4, 1876. Examination begin at 10 o'clock A. M.

JAMES A. BARNES Co. Sup't.

BILL BRITTON

THE DRAY MAN

Will attend promptly to all orders for

DRAYING AND HAULING.

Rattling good teams and reasonable char

EAGLE MILLS

FLOUR, CORN MEAL, FEED, &c.

The reputation of the Eagle Mills, its excellent facilities for making good flour together with the advantages it possesses in the way of improved machinery enables the proprietor to announce that he is now prepared to meet all demands in the way of custom work. The Eagle Mill brand of flour will be found on hand at reasonable rates. Orders delivered in any part of town free of charge.

P. W. SILVERS.

FOR SALE.

VALUABLE LANDS.

I offer for sale one section of land, in Kosciusko county, Ind., nine miles south west of Warsaw, adjoining D. Beybl, and a quarter section nearby, which I will sell as a whole or in lots of 40 acres or more, as the purchaser may desire. The land is well improved, well timbered and I will sell low for cash. Or I will sell on time one-forth down, and the balance in ten years. Also a section in Fulton county on the same terms. For particulars address,

H. HEIST, Kendallville, Ind.

FIFTH YEAR.

IND. CONSERVATORY OF MUSIC,

FORT WAYNE, IND.

FALL TERM COMMENCING

SEPTEMBER 11th, 1877.

Pupils attending this Conservatory can be accommodated with board at the M. E. College, at $2 per week.

no34tf S. B. MORSE, Principal.

ELSWORTH, ANDREW & CO.

Have opened for the Spring Trade of 1877, an elegant line of

BRUSSELS & INGRAIN

CARPETS

In all the new and elegant designs; and will give very low figures to

CASH BUYERS.

A full line of

OIL CLOTHS,

MATTINGS.

LACE CURTAIS.

WINDOW SHADES,

STAIR RODS,

RUGS and MATS.

And a splendid stock of

WALL PAPER

AND DECRATIONS.

We solicit inspection from Auburn and vicinity,

ELLSWORTH, ANDREW & CO.

26 East Berry Street,
Fort Wayne, Indiana.

J. G. FLEDDERMAN

No. 27, East Main-St.

FORT WAYNE, IND'A

as the largest and finest stock of

CLOTHS, COATINGS, CHEVIOTS,

AND

CassimereS

in Ft. Wayne. The finest line of

Made up Clothing

ever shown in Fort Wayne

Youths' and Children's Clothing!

Furnishing Goods, &c.

Merchant Tailoring

All work done in all the latest styles, promptly attended. [illegible]

Excursion to the Rocky Mountains.

The Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe Railroad has arranged with the various railroad lines in the country for special round trip rates to the Rocky Mountains, and has secured the following rates to Denver, Colorado Springs, Canon City, Pueblo and return; from Kansas City and Atchison, $45; St. Louis, $50; Chicago, $65; Quincy, $50; Cincinnatti, $65; Buffalo, $75, and correspondingly low rates from all points east, north and south These tickets are good for 90 days and to stop at all stations west of the Missouri river. Tickets are on sale at all principal stations throughout the country. This is the new route to Denver through the garden of Kansas and Colorado. Send for maps, circulars, time tables, etc., to

T. J. ANDERSON,
Gen. Pass. Agent, Topeka, Kan.

Worth its Weight in Gold.

Undoubtedly the greatest modern discovery in medicine is DaCosta's Radical Cure for dyspepsia, sick headache, sour stomach, costiveness, billiousness, loss of appetite, distress after eating, and all disorders caused by indigestion or a deranged liver. Its results are astonishing, and sure relief is guaranteed in every case where it is faithfully used. It tones up the stomach, regulates the liver, restores the natural appetite, strengthens the delicate and expels all morbid humors from the system. Typhoid and billious fever might, in almost every case be prevented by its timely use. Trial size 25 cents A very few doses will relieve, and a little perseverance cure you. Sold by F. E. Davenport.

Also Agents for Prof. Parker's Pleasant Worm Syrup, which is sure death to worms. Pleasant to take and requires no physic. Price 25 cents. Try it.

FIRST NATIONAL BANK.

The First National Bank of Auburn Indiana tenders to the citizens of DeKalb county its facilities for the transaction of business. We loan money, receive deposits subject to check at sight or payable at a fixed date with a stipulated rate of interest. Sell exchange on New York, Chicago, Toledo and Fort Wayne procure such foreign exchange as may be desired, buy exchange and make collections on all available points, and do all usual and ordinary business done by first class banks. We will also take on deposit for safekeeping valuable papers such as deeds mortgages, notes bonds, agreements etc., guardians, administrators, trustees and all other handling trust funds together with merchants, manufacturers and farmers are solicited to open an account with us. We will deal liberally with all who call.

J. H. FORD, President.
JAMES V. HAZZARD, Cashier.

A Few Words of Wisdom.

For all who are seeking new homes in the West. If you are going to change your location, by all means you should keep on about the same latitude as where you formerly lived for in this way you will escape the severe climatic changes in the weather incident to the extreme North or South, having none of these things to contend with, your self and family are healthy and you become a producer at once, consequently soon independent; on the other hand should you listen to the many glowing accounts of the sunny South, or the mild climate of the North, and thus be induced to try your fortunes there, you will find the reality is not all your fancy painted it. If you go South it usually takes about two years to get acclimated to the climate, during which time, not being able to work, yourself and family are consumers, besides being constantly exposed to the malarial fevers which abound there, and the experience of many is that they return discouraged, leaving not a few loved ones beneath the sod in the sunny South. Therefore, in going West keep on about the same latitude which will insure health and happiness. There are most excellent lands in Northern Missouri on the line of the Hannibal & St. Jo. R. R. and in Kansass, Nebraska and Colorado, "just as cheap and good as the sun ever shown upon," why not accept a certainty rather than run the risk of losing all? Through day and sleeping cars are run from Toledo, Ohio, via the Wabash R'y and Quincy to St. Jo., Atchison and Kansas city, and from Chicago via Chicago, Burlington & Quincy R. R., whereby all arre furnished firstclass accomodations.

Send for map and time-table to J. A. S. Reed, 59 Clark street, Chicago, C. W. Boardman, Decatur, Ill., or T. Penfield, G P. and T. A., Hanibal, Mo.

Horse shoeing promptly attended to. The Best workmen in town. Prices reasonable. Don't fail to give me a call. JAMES ANDERSON. tf.

For the COURIER.

Hunting Reminiscences.

BY [illegible]

MY DEAR EDITOR.—My last left us camped in the Quakensap grove, whose leaves are heaver still, hence the name. We were six or seven miles from the great pigeon roost, where every two or three years, pigeons come by the millions, and remain as long as the country, for many miles around, will support them. The roost is two or three miles long, and a mile wide. They come in the evening and leave early in the morning in search of food. While they remain it is a great feast for hucters, animals, and birds of prey of all kinds. It was the right time of year for them, and they began to come in flocks miles long, and sometimes fairly darkened the air. We concluded to go to the roost, and started early one morning with a team, having for a guide a Dutch boy by the name of John Keis. After hunting all day, we arrived near the place in the evening, and the pigeons were coming in by the acre, making a noise like distant thunder. We camped and made a fire, the evening being quite cool, and the fun commenced. The roost was in the barrens, consisting of scrub oak and thick bushes, and everything was alive with them. We found the Harvey boys and others there from Royal Center, who had come on horseback, bringing with them guns an two bushel sacks to put the game in. We commenced shooting about and hour before sun down, and kept it up until midnight, and the firing was like the rattle of musketry in a battle. You fire indiscriminately and cannot miss them, thus killing them by the dozens at every shot. We enjoyed the sport finely, but suffered a great deal for the want of provisions and water, having failed to bring a sufficient supply with us and were compelled to go about a mile to a ditch to get a little muddy water to cool our parched tongues. At last the morning came, finding us tired, hungry, our guns dirty and empty, and our ammunition all gone. Then came the grandest sight of all. The pigeons for miles beyond us started to go south for food, and had to pass us, and they fly low at starting. For half an hour we were litterally wrapped up in pigeons, all around and above us, and you remember how mortifying it was that we had shot away all our ammunition the night before, and had not saved any for the grand and unexpected occasion. But as it was we killed a great many with our ramrods, clubs and stones. At last the battle was over and they were all gone. We then commenced to gather up the dead that we had slain during the night, and we filled our two-horse wagon bed full to overflowing, and had to leave a great many on the ground. The Harvey boys went home loaded down with their sacks full, which they salted down for winter use. As the weather was warm we could save but few, and gave a great many away. At last we arrived at camp, tired and weary, and had a great picking frolic, and lived fat on pigeon liver and gizzard. They are very fat this time of year, and are splendid roasted on a stick by the fire. The feathers we gave to Robinson Crusoe's mother a good old mother in Israel, over eighty years old, and she was very thankful for them. I had heard that the person who died on pigeon feathers died hard, and wanting some information on this subject, I asked her if such was the case. She said she had also heard the same thing, but did not know as to its truthfulness, as she had never tried the experiment. It might have originated from the fact that she knew a family once, who had a pigeon feather bed, and all who slept on it, or died on it, thought they felt something pricking them and died hard. At last they opened out the old feather bed and lo! there was a big black snake in it. It was supposed that while laying the bed on a brush heap to sun it, that the snake crawled into a hole in the tick, which was afterwards sewed up, and the snake was in there for years and, could not get out, and hence the story about dying hard, &c.

She also told me another snake story. She knew a family once, the father of which was a large strong man, with several grown up sons. While working in the field on day, he was struck on his heavy boots by a rattlesnake. He killed the snake and supposed it had not hurt him through his boot, and paid no more attention to it, but his foot began to swell up and he died before they could save him. The boots laid around, and one of the sons concluded to use them, and in a short time his foot began to swell up, and he died not thinking that the snake had anything to do with it. Another son tried the boots, and his foot swelled up, and he, too, died. They then examined the boot, and sure enough one of the snake's fangs or teeth, had gone clear through the leather, broke off, and left the sharp point sticking on the inside, with enough poison to kill [illegible] big, strong men. This is a fact, [illegible] thus endeth the snake story.

One evening four or five of [illegible] were returning from hunting two [illegible] three miles from camp. It was getting dark, and we noticed a farmer's wagon coming along containing several men, women and children. Before reaching us they turned off the road to a little elevated spot, surrounded by an old fence and some bushes. Coming to look closer we found it was a funeral, which had come for many miles to bury a little child in that lonely spot. As there were so few of them, we thought we might be of some help to them in their distress, and set down our gun by the road side, and went to them and helped carry the little box to the grave in the woods. As we stood around that little grave in the gloom of the shadowy evening, and sang those beautiful words, no minister of the gospel being present

> "I think when I read that sweet story of old,
> When Jesus was here among men;
> How he called little children > like lambs to the fold,
> I should like to have been > with him then."

This sad scene had quite an effect on all of us, and it made us better men, and I thought more of my companions after that, at seeing them weep beside the grave of a strange little child. I like to wander in the city of the silent dead, and contemplate and meditate on the uncertanty of the thing of this world, and some times we see some very funny epitaphs in a grave yard. I noticed one that read,

> "Notice take, as you pass by,
> As you are now, so once was I,
> As I am now, so you must be.
> Prepare yourself to follow me."

And some wag had written under it.

> "To follow you I am not content, > Unless I know which way you went."

There were two persons who were neighbors and rivals in every thing. At last one died and he had placed on his tombstone.

> "Here I lay as snug as a bug."

The other one died and he had placed on his.

> "Here I lay snugger than that other bugger."

* * *

TIME 2:13 1-2.

A Romance of the Race Track.

New York Sun.

"Go!"

It was a free for all race and there was not a driver behind one of the five horses who did not mean to take the first money. Not a shout, not a touch of the whip, not a whisper from one of the drivers as the trotters went around the turn in a bunch. The crowd at the grand stand were breathless as they watched them down to the half-mile flag.

Not a horse fell behind, not a horse left his feet. Down around the back stretch, into the home stretch, and an old veteran on the judges' stand shaded his eyes and whispered:

"Great heavens, I never saw anything like it before!"

Down they thundered, not a brake or a skip, and the driver with the orange collored cap drove under the wire only a neck ahead.

It was half a minute before there was a word from the thunderstruck crowd, but then such a shout went up as was heard over the meadows for a long mile.

The timer chalked his figures on the board and hung it up—"2:16¼!" and the crowd shouted again.

When the horses scored again there was a new driver under the orange colored cap. "Honest Jack" had been hurled from his sulky in pulling up behind the wire. Some said he was only shaken up, and others looked grave as they saw his white face and the bloody froth on his lips. They took him to the track-keeper's house and the doctor examined him and said:

"He won't drive again this summer, and I fear he has met his death blow."

"What was the time?" whispered the driver.

A brother driver answered him despite the surgeon's warning gesture, and Jack's white face showed disappointment as he said:

"I thought we were flying, but we were only jogging. I'll yet see Little Nell beat that by three seconds."

Fever came and his wild ravings were about weight, over-checks, handholders, trainers and rubbers.

The public forgot him in a day, but the trainers and others about the track inquired about him every hour in the day and took turns sitting up with him nights.

It was plain that death was coming nearer every hour, but they could neither break his fever nor lead his wild thoughts into other channels.

"There goes the bell! Get ready! All right! Out 'o the way there! I take the pole!" he kept calling out, and they saw that he would die with his thoughts on the stables and track.

One night when the air braced up and the sultry heat was driven away, the patient rested better than usual. He ceased his raving, and fell into a sweet sleep, and by and by his tired watchers slept.

When they opened their eyes again they heard the ding! ding! ding! of the bell on the judges' stand.

Honest Jack's bed was empty, and for a moment they could not comprehend the situation.

Ding! ding! ding! went the bell again, and the watchers ran over to the track. Two of the stable boys joined them, having been arouse by the bell and in another minute the trackman was there.

Through the gloom of midnight they made out a human figure beside the bell.

Ding! ding! rang the bell and they heard the beat of hoofs on the soft track. One glance showed them Little Nell before her sulky, and behind her was a half clad figure, with a face so white that it seemed almost like a star in the gloom. Long white fingers clutched the lines and a pair of eyes almost on fire shown down upon the little crowd as Honest Jack walked his horse down to the stand as if to confer with the judge.

"The boy has left his bed, harnessed his horse and is going to trot against time!" whispered the trackman, but they dare not stop foot upon the track to stop him. In the judges stand was a—what? Was it a human being or the spirit of some driver gone before? They crowded closer together as each one asked himself the question, and they saw the unknown bend down, gesture and act as a living judge would have done.

Little Nell worked her ears and stamped her feet as she stood there and the trainer whispered:

"See how nervous she is—she smells the dead."

The bell rang out sharp and clear, and horse and driver dashed past to the score. Every ear in the group heard the sulky turn, and the next instant the little mare was down upon them. Her ears were pointed forward, her eyes blazing, and in the one instant all took notice that she had a free head. The overcheck bit had been taken off, check was down and her feet was not weighted as before.

"Go!" shrieked a strange tremulous voice as the horse reached the wire and the watchers had not got time to wink before the gloom had swallowed up everything except the ghostly whitewashed stand and the strange judge; yet they could hear the pat, pat, pat of the horse's feet as she flew around the turn and went down the side stretch. Then they were lost for two or three seconds as the lone horse thundered into the back stretch.

"God save us! but I never seen such a night as this!" whispered the trackman, whose hair had grown gray in the long forty years he had put on this and other tracks.

"Hist! he's coming!" replied one of the stable boys, and the pat, pat, pat of Little Nell's feet could be heard as she came off the back stretch.

There was a chuckle of delight from the judge's stand. The being up there was facing the home stretch. He could follow the flying horse around the track at that midnight hour, as well as the men below could have seen in the bright light of noon-day.

"Splendid—beautiful—not even a skip!" he chuckled, rubbing his hands together. "She won't quite make it this time, but she will on the next! How she comes! What knee action! What a reach! How she keeps the bit!"

In another second almost, the little horse reaching out as no one had ever seen her before, passed under the wire. The white face of the driver seemed whiter to the men beside the track, but he was loosing strength ahead and holding the lines with a firm grip.

Ding, ding, ding, rang the bell—the horse came back at a jog. As she stopped at the stand the strange time keeper bent down and whispered:

"You made it in 2:14¼. You'll beat that by a second next time."

Honest Jack nodded his head, and as his wheels almost brushed the trackman it was seen that his white face wore an exultant smile.

The stable boys stretched out their hands as if they would stop him, but the old man shook his head and whispered;

"It's a race agin death, and the timekeeper's a ghost."

It wasn't a minute before the bell called the horse to the score, and the watchers hardly dared to breathe.

She had scarcely caught her breath, and yet when she came down under the wire and heard the hoarsely whispered word, "Go," she shot into the darkness like an arrow

"Don't move so much as a finger—don't even breathe!" warned the old trackman as he listened.

Pat, pat, pat, came to his ear as regularly as the ticking of a clock.

Down the side stretch into the back stretch he followed the flying feet, and lost the sound for just a second—just long enough to hear the time keeper say:

"She'll do it—she'll do it—she's coming like a bull!"

So she was. Never a skip, but pat, pat, pat, and she went under the wire like a flash.

The bell struck to recall her and the watchers looked into the gloom and up at the dark figure.

A minute crept by—another—then a third and all at once the judges' stand was vacant.

The man or ghost had vanished out of sight.

"Something wrong here!" said the trackman.

Down near the first quarter they came upon the body of Honest Jack. He was dead.

Even in the midnight gloom they could see the smile on his cold face.

A hundred feet further on they found Little Nell and the broken sulky.

"Be tender with him!" said the old trackman, as the men lifted up the corpse of the driver.

They bore it past the deserted stand, and looking up they saw the time board hanging on its hook. On its black surface was chalked in bold figures:

"Time: 2:13½."

POETIC GEMS.

Culled From the October Magazines.

WOODBINE IN OCTOBER.

As dyed in blood, the streaming vines appear,
While long and low the wind about them grieves;
The heart of Autumn must have broken here,
And poured its treasure out upon the leaves.
—Charlotte F. Bates, in Scribner.

THERE'S A SHIP ON THE SEA.

There's a ship on the sea. It is sailing to-night,
Sailing to-night.
And father's aboard, and the moon is all bright,
Shining and bright!
Dear mama! he'll be sailing for many a night—
Sailing from mother and me.
Oh! follow the ship with your silvery light
As father sails over the sea.
—Joel Stacy, in St. Nicholas.

RIPE CORN.

The golden ear peeps through the husk,
The faded tassels dryly rustle.
So, ho, boys, ho! From morn till dusk,
We'll at it with a [illegible] and hustle!
So, ho, boys, ho! Now for the tussle!
The lively work, we'll weather it;
The ripened corn, we'll gather it—
Ho, boys, ho! We'll gather it!
—C. L. Cleaveland, in Scribner.

THE MIRROR.

I would my lady's mirror be,
So might I hold her image fair,
And [illegible] she'd smile on me,
Seeing her face reflected there.

I never could her mirror be,
For when she smiled on me, ah, then
My heart would hold the image sweet
And never give it back again.
—Walter Learned, in Scribner.

LIFE.

Our lives are like a half-forgotten strain
From some great symphony, that, sad and slow,
Through memory's silent halls glides to and fro,
Seeking its kindred harmony in vain.
And thus—oh thought to all so fraught with pain!—
How many times do we complete in woe
The scanty measure of our days below,
If, seeking eagerly, we fail to gain
The lives that with our own make harmony!
What though our earthly lives seem jangling chords?
In patience let us wait our destiny;
The loving Master's plan of sweet accords
We know not; but our strains shall ever roll,
A part of His sublime harmonious whole!
—Kate A. Sanborn, in Galaxy.

CLEMATIS.

Coy frequenter of woodland ways! It flings
A frolic wealth of sweetness broadcast where
The undergrowths are thickest and the air
Is vibrant with the rush and whir of wings!
From branch to branch its hardy tendril swings
In wild, dense tangles, where no foot will care
To follow, and the brown wood-thrushes rear
Their broods unstartled. Here the vireo sings
In answering cadence through the fleet, free hours
Unto the rhythmic growing of the flowers,
Whose revelation in each dusky place
Is of blithe strength, unworn, and fine, shy grace,
As of rare souls, that joyously their own
Best lives do live, though knowing them unknown
—Mary Christine Kipp, in Scribner.

THE POET'S ART.

Call it not art; that sad, laborious name,
Oh, gentle poet, does thy warblings wrong.
When at still eve the nightingales prolong
Delicious melody, who would not blame
The cold, mechanic term for that which came,
Born of sweet throats, a gushing stream of song?
So from thy soul pours forth, oh, free and strong,
Thine own deep music on the air of fame.
Thy art is nature's; thou dost only hear
The whispered secrets of her woods and skies,
And then repeat them to the common ear
That cannot catch her finer harmonies.
Thou art her voice, and unto her so dear,
Her inmost heart is open to thine eyes.
—Charles T. Dazey, in Scribner.

UNRECOGNIZED.

What words are these you speak to her?
Ah, tranquil words and worldly wise!
You cannot see her soul astir,
On tiptoe, in her waiting eyes.

You come and go; you touch her hair,
The ring upon her slender hand.
The smiling trouble of her air
You note, but cannot understand.

You cannot understand. Ah, so
Our foolish hearts make sport of fate!
We sit and dream, while love bends low,
A kingly beggar, at the gate!
—Mary Ainge De Vere, in Galaxy.

SLEEP.

The weary portals of the sight we close;
And, in the bark of Somnus, sails unfurled,
In snowy wreaths of cloud, our souls are hurled,
At mercy of each fitful breeze that blows.
Then from the depths that prescience never knows
We through a varied flood of dreams are whirled,
And wake to find the life-stream that has curled
For ages round our planet changeless flows.
And so, when drowsy death shall seal our eyes,
And from lamenting friends we pass away,
It may be that, awaking, we shall rise
Refreshed and strengthened for a longer stay,
And find the same old earth, the same blue skies
That we but lost in slumber yesterday.
—Andrew B. Saxton, in Scribner.

HAROUN AL RASCHID.

One day, Haroun Al Raschid read
A book wherein the poet said:

"Where are the kings, and where the rest
Of men who once the world possessed?

"They're gone with all their pomp and show,
They're gone the way that thou shalt go,

"Oh, thou who choosest for thy share
The world, and what the world calls fair,

"Take all that it can give or lend,
But know that death is at the end!"

Haroun Al Raschid bowed his head;
Tears fell upon the page he read.
—Henry W. Longfellow, in St. Nicholas.

A SONG.

What time the violets bloom, my dear,
In ways that you and I regret,
I saw your gray eyes first grow clear
With love I cannot fathom yet,
But never may forget, my dear—
But never may forget!

What time the winds blow fresh, my dear,
A fragrant balm was blown to me;
I felt the blossom-time draw near;
My blood, like sap in flower or tree,
Swelled for the fruit to be, my dear—
The hope of fruit to be!

What time the violets fade, my dear,
What time the winds blow chill and wet,
Through changeful seasons year on year,
Though moons may wane and suns may set,
Oh, say you won't forget, my dear—
Oh, say you won't forget!
—Atlantic Monthly.

GHOST STORIES.

The events which I record in this paper have taken place either in my own family or in the families of intimate friends, or are from the narration of persons of strict veracity. I begin with one told me very lately by a pious and useful minister of the Church of England. I give this anecdote of his boyish days as much as possible in his own words.

"I was brought up by my grandfather and grandmother, who resided in the old family mansion on the banks of the Derwent, in Derbyshire. This venerable place, which had belonged to our family from the time of the Norman Conquest, had a wide reputation for being haunted, and indeed the strange noises which were heard and the strange tricks which were played, for which nothing rational could account, made the belief of general acceptance. From generation to generation no death had occurred in our family without some supernatural warning being given, and in what I am about to tell you I was the person visited for this purpose.

"When I was about 17 years of age, it was rather suddenly agreed that I should go with 'granny,' as I called her, to pay a visit of a few days to my parents, who lived in the suburbs of Manchester. During the past summer my youngest sister, Lizzie, with whom I had been very little acquainted before, had paid us a visit at the time of hay-making, and I remember thinking that she was the most beautiful child I had ever seen. Always in white, with lovely auburn hair floating in long curls over her shoulders, and playfully darting in and out among the hay-makers, she appeared to me something angelic, and when her visit was ended—I quite grieved over her departure. I was therefore much pleased when granny asked me to accompany her to Manchester, as I should see my dear little sister again. A year before we had lost an aunt to whom we were deeply attached, and her bereaved husband was at the present time inhabiting one wing of our old family mansion. It was the 19th of December, 186–, that, after carefully packing my box for the journey and laying quite at the bottom of the box, as it stood in a corner of my room, some articles of black crape which I had worn at my aunt's funeral, I went to pay a farewell visit to my uncle in his part of the house. After I had sat with him for some time the hall clock struck 4, and just at that moment I felt a deadly chill and shivering all over me, exactly as if I had been suddenly plunged into cold water. I became deadly pale, and my uncle in an alarmed tone asked what was the matter with me. I said I did not know, but that I had never felt such a strange sensation before. My uncle imagined that I must have taken cold and recommended my going early to bed, as I was to travel the following day.

"Having quite recovered from my unpleasant feelings, I spent the evening as usual, and retired to bed at the accustomed time. Now, my bedroom was at the end of a long, narrow corridor, and exactly opposite the door by which I entered was the door of a room said to be haunted, which was always kept closed, and which no servant in the house could be persuaded to enter; indeed, they very unanimously avoided going into the corridor itself after dark, though it opened into many bedrooms besides my own. I had two or three times, while a boy, been in the haunted room with my grandfather; I saw nothing remarkable about it but a good deal of moldy, old-fashioned furniture, and an immense, funereal-looking bed at one end, with hangings which had once been splendid but were now dropping to pieces from age and neglect. The bed in my room stood exactly facing the door by which I entered and the door of the haunted room across the passage. Another door on the same side of the room was blocked up by my box, which stood against it. I cannot distinctly remember whether or not in entering for the night I closed my bedroom door, but think it almost certain that I did so, for it was December and the weather very cold. I went to bed full of my to-morrow's journey, and not giving a single thought to either ghosts or haunted rooms went fast to sleep. How long I slept I cannot guess, but I found myself sitting up in bed intently watching the door of my room, which was wide open, and the door of the haunted room, which was also open, and which I could see distinctly across the corridor as the moonlight fell upon it. From this room came a figure which I watched across the passage, and which, on approaching my bed, I at once recognized as the aunt I had lost the year before, dressed in the same clothes I had last seen her in. She had a most fond and tender expression on her face, but it changed into an angry frown when, stretching over the side of the bed, I tried to embrace her, exclaiming, 'Oh, dear aunt, is that you?' I felt that I clasped the empty air, the figure vanishing in an instant from my sight. I thought I had been dreaming, and lay down again, to wake up a short time afterward and see again the figure of my aunt, but now differently dressed, advancing from the haunted room into mine, this time not coming to the bed but going to the box I had packed and placed in the corner ready for the next day. This she appeared to rummage over, displacing the contents and then tossing the things back again. I watched her with the greatest astonishment, and saw her go slowly out of my door into the door of the haunted room. I don't know whether I slept again or not, but a third time I was sitting up in bed, a third time my aunt came in, this time close up to the bed, in long, flowing white clothes—a dress in which I had never seen her. I almost gasped out, 'Dear aunt, why do you come?' to which she replied very clearly and distinctly, but with something of effort, 'I come to make an important communication, but it is all comprised in these words: Poor Lizzie! But don't grieve; Lizzie is quite happy!' As she finished these words I started from the bed with outstretched arms, but she had vanished, and I fell heavily to the floor where she had stood. I suppose that after getting back to bed I slept till morning, but as soon as I saw my grandmother I told her all the circumstances and made her look at my box, which was in the greatest disorder, and all the articles of mourning which I had placed at the bottom of the box I found at the top. My grandmother looked grave but said nothing. I still persisted in thinking it but a curious dream, and we started on our journey that very morning. I was quite in my usual spirits when we arrived at the last railway station. From here we had still a long walk to where my parents lived, and, as we were not expected, I pleased myself by thinking how surprised they would all be. We arrived, and just as I laid my hand on the latch of the garden gate to open it for granny, I felt exactly the same deathly chill and shivering which had come over me while sitting with my uncle the evening before. When I had recovered and we were going up the long gravel walk, I said to my grandmother, 'How strange the house looks, granny! All the windows are draped with white, and I never remember my mother's room having white curtains before.' Granny made no answer, and as we knocked at the door my mother opened it, led us into the hall, and received us most affectionately, but spoke in a hushed, subdued tone which frightened me. Her first words were, 'How glad I am you are come! we looked for you some hours ago.' 'How can that be,' we replied, 'when we meant to surprise you, and did not write that we were coming?' 'But did you not,' said she, 'get my two letters?—the one in which I wrote of dear Lizzie's dangerous illness from scarlet fever a week ago, and one to tell you of her death at 4 o'clock yesterday, which last ought to have reached you before you started this morning?' This was a dreadful blow to us, for, as we told my mother, we had received neither letter. When we were a little recovered from the shock, my mother told us that, the day before, Lizzie knew she was dying and said she felt quite happy; she took leave of all the family then at home, and referring to me said, 'I should have liked to say good-by to dear Tom—poor Tom! Give my love to Tom!' As she said these last words she fell back and passed away; just at that moment the clock struck 4. She died, then, exactly at the time when I felt the deathly chill while sitting with my uncle.

"After my grandfather's death I was placed till I was five-and-twenty in business with a master who proved to be a professed atheist. Finding me to be an intelligent lad and more than usually well grounded in the scriptures, he made it his daily business, by specious argument and covert ridicule, to undermine my Christian belief, and often flattered himself that he was on the point of succeeding. He certainly would have done so but for my remembrance of my aunt's appearance in my bedroom at the time of Lizzie's death. Whenever I had time for reflection and thought of that, I felt assured that there was not only a state of being after death, but a directing power by whose agency even a disembodied spirit could return to the scene of its earthly pilgrimage."

A young English lady nearly connected with our family married, while visiting in Germany, a gentleman of rank and fortune, with whose mother, who lived at a distance of about forty miles away, she became a great favorite. At the birth of her first baby she was much distressed that her kind mother-in-law, the Frau von B——, was not present, nor did her husband venture to tell her that illness—not, however, supposed to be dangerous—was the cause. All went well in the sick-room, and five days afterward Madame B——, her baby boy by her side, was sleeping soundly, with her curtains drawn, just as darkness had settled down at the close of a winter's day. Contrary to her usual custom the nurse, seeing the lady so fast asleep, had left the room to get something necessary for the night. Madame B—— awoke on feeling the pressure of an icy-cold hand on her arm, and, looking up hastily, saw by the light of the lamp her mother-in-law hanging over her and the baby with a very sad expression on her face, which was ashy pale. Raising herself in the bed, the young mother exclaimed, "O dearest mother! when did you come? I am so glad!" The mother-in-law sighed deeply, and replied, "I am only come, dear Alice, to say farewell forever; you will never see more on earth!" She instantly vanished out of sight, and the nurse, returning, found her lady in state of great excitement and alarm, calling for her mother-in-law and saying that she must be in the house, having just left her bedside. The poor lady was ill for many days, and it was long before she was told that her husband's mother had died at her own castle, forty miles away, at the very moment when she stood beside her.

A sister of this young Madame B—— was staying at Brighton, with the family of a young friend, in a deplorable state of health, but who was gradually getting better under the care of a doctor, clever and zealous, who visited her daily, and took the greatest interest in her case. He was a tall, slender man, with long, thin fingers, most remarkably white, and a countenance which seemed to bear the impress of all the woes and troubles of his numerous patients, so deep was the sympathy he felt for those who suffered. One day there was much sorrow in the family; the kind physician, on whose visits they so much depended, died suddenly; none of them dared to tell the invalid, and, for a few days, nothing was said, but the family noticed that poor Minnie S—— looked very pensive and grave. At length her mother thought it best to tell her, when she quietly replied, "I have known it from the first; he came and told me himself, and comes to see me every night!" A few nights after this, for some reason or another, the invalid went to sleep in a different room, and the young friend staying on a visit took her place in the vacated bed. Toward midnight the family, who kept late hours, retired for the night, and Georgy D—— took possession of her friend's bed, quite ignorant of the doctor's nightly visits. In about an hour loud shrieks were heard from the room, and the young girl was found on the side of the bed, pale, trembling, and almost convulsed with terror. She said that, having undressed and gone to bed, first shutting and locking the bedroom door, she went fast to sleep, leaving her curtains undrawn, and the lamp on the dressing-table alight. She was awakened by a rustling noise beside her bed, and, starting up, saw the doctor, dressed just as he was in life, standing there. He then sat down on the side of the bed and laid his long, pale hand on her arm, but the moment he saw that the occupant of the bed was changed he got up, and vanished from her sight before reaching the door. Strange to say, that very instant he went to the room where Minnie S—— was sleeping, and held his customary conversation with her, quite unseen and unheard by Annie D——, a younger sister of the one to whom he had just been so plainly visible. After a time his visits ceased.

At the close of the Burmese war, Lieut. K——, a young officer who had been severely wounded in one of the actions and subsequently attacked by fever, was sent home on a sick certificate some months before the return of his regiment, whose term of service in India had nearly expired. He left many friends behind him, but none from whom he more deeply regretted to part than Mr. P——, the British collector at Madura, with whom he had been for years on terms of most familiar intimacy. The very first night of his landing in England, after an absence which dated from boyhood, he lay long awake in his bed at the hotel where he had taken up his quarters. He felt very restless, and thought over all he had gone through in India, and the friends he had left, to see, probably, no more. Among these he thought of his friend P——. It was past midnight, and he was still meditating, when he heard some one in the room, though he had locked the door before undressing. He looked to the side from which the sound came, and distinctly saw his friend P——, not far from the bed, gazing at him very mournfully. Astonished beyond measure, he prepared to step out of bed, exclaiming, "Why, P——! Whatever brings you here?" His friend waved his hand as if to keep him off, shook his head sadly, and, gliding toward the door, suddenly disappeared. K—— remained awake nearly the whole night, quite unable to account for what had happened. In due course of time the mails from India brought word that P—— had died of cholera, at Madura, after a few hours' illness, on the very night in which he appeared to Lieut. K——.

Some time after my dear mother's death, I was sitting with my father, Col. D——, in his dressing-room, and we were mutually deploring our dreadful misfortune, and going over, as we were too prone to do, many of the circumstances attending her last illness. I remarked to him, among other things, that her illness was in the beginning so slight that I should not have felt the least fear as to the result had I not been extremely discouraged by the sadness and preoccupation of mind manifested by himself at that time. My father, after some hesitation, related to me the occurrence which had occasioned his unwonted depression of spirits, which I can truly say I listened to in dumb astonishment, so unlikely a person did he appear to have experienced anything of the sort.

He was sitting one evening after dinner with my mother, conversing on various subjects. The wine and dessert having been placed on the table, they drew their chairs up to each corner of a blazing fire, the evenings being chilly, though it was only the early autumn. After a time my mother appeared to be dozing in her chair, and my father drew out his pocket-book to make a note of some visit he had to pay the next day. He found, however, that the pencil-case he always carried in his pocket, and much valued as the gift of an old friend, was not there, and, concluding that he had left it on his dressing-table before dinner, quietly left the room to fetch it. The staircase went up from the hall, and at the first landing branched off into two smaller staircases, the one to the left leading to my mother's apartments, a bedroom and dressing-room fronting the lawn, with a wide landing-place and window between the two rooms; the one to the right, through an arched door-way into a long corridor, with bedrooms on each side, and a back staircase at the end. My father's dressing-room was in the middle of the corridor. Having found his pencil-case, he was coming out of the arched door-way before mentioned, when he saw my mother before him on the small flight of stairs leading to her own rooms. She turned into her dressing-room, and my father, much surprised to see her, followed to give her his arm in coming down again, as she was rather infirm. What was his astonishment on entering the room to find no one there. He could hardly believe the evidence of his senses, and when, on returning to the dining-room, he found my mother in her chair by the fire exactly as he had left her, he knew not what to think. When she roused up before tea, he asked whether she had left the room since dinner, to which she answered, "Not for a moment." When my father was on his death-bed, he was for some time delirious, but, on the last morning, a few hours before death, he was perfectly lucid, and said to me, "I shall soon leave you, my child; your dear mother has come to fetch me!" Then, seeing, doubtless, my look of awed astonishment, he added, "Yes, my dear wife has lain by my side all night." I had never left his bedside, but had neither seen nor heard anything unusual, except that during the night he seemed, at intervals, to be talking fondly to some one near him.—H. B. K., in Atlantic Monthly for October.

A Wonderful Hunt.

Sol Kimball, of Warren county, saw from his breakfast-table a young buck grazing on the side of a ravine about 300 yards from the house. He seized his rifle, and, without any other ammunition than the one ball therein contained, proceeded, by the aid of the garden fence, to slip up on the buck. He reached the ravine, and noiselessly made his way to within a good gunshot distance of the buck, which had then descended to the ravine. He fired, and, though a good marksman, missed his shot, but killed two deer that were grazing just beyond. As he went up the ravine to recover his game, he flushed a flock of wild turkeys, which by the way was his favorite game. He soon erected a "blind," and with his mouth yelped up a fine gobbler. It was not until he drew a "bead" on the trusty rifle that he was reminded that there was no load in it and that he had no ammunition along. By much perseverence he finally got the gobbler within three feet of his "blind," and, jumping out suddenly and at the same time making a very hideous yell, so frightened his turkeyship as to prevent him from flying. Sol ran him down, caught him, and wrung off his head. After getting his two deer and the turkey-gobbler, he started home, and upon his way came upon a covey of partridges. He imitated by his voice a young partridge in distress, whereupon the entire flock, with ruffled feathers, made an attack upon him. He drew his ramrod from the rifle and took his time in killing each and every one of the covey as they approached him for battle. Hugh J. Jones, Esq., of Warren county will vouch for the foregoing facts.—Raleigh (N. C.) Observer.

Women Telegraphers.

In Berlin there are about 100 females employed in the telegraph office, and among them are to be found women of good standing in society. Those who enter are trained in the necessary theoretical and practical knowledge in a special school, established by the post-office authorities. The preliminary examination is higher in its requirements than in England, comprising English, French, geography, and the construction of German sentences. A three months' course is required in the practising rooms, where the management of the apparatus is taught, and a practical examination is then passed. Lectures upon physics and chemistry are then attended twice a week for five months, after which an appointment is given. Then another written and verbal examination must be passed upon the internal management of the telegraph service, and the uses of the various portions of the apparatus. When all these trials have been successfully passed the candidate receives a permanent appointment. The service is in great demand, and the work of the ladies is said to be highly satisfactory.

A PUMPKIN that measures over six feet in circumference, and weighs above 200 pounds, is now growing on a farm in California.

HOW TO KILL DEER.

A Young Texan Tells of His First Attack of "Buck Fever."

[From the San Antonio Herald.]

We give the following letter from an enthusiastic young Antonian, now visiting the Western hills for the benefit of his health:

"This morning I was sauntering along the banks of your romantic stream, and, in the absence of a gun, was enjoying a little hunt with my pistol and a hatchet which I had slung in my belt. Turning around in the stream I saw a short distance in advance two deer standing in the edge of the stream. I quietly crept up, and, taking a careful aim, fired, wounding the largest of the two somewhere in the leg. At the crack of my old pistol the deer made a spring for deep water, and I, in the [illegible] (my first case of genuine "buck fever"), made a leap into the stream in pursuit of my prize. Strange as it may seem, I reached the plunging animal, grasped hold of the tail, and hung there for dear life. The deer, more frightened than hurt, now commenced a frantic voyage of discovery, trying to discover what style of rearing and plunging was best calculated to free itself from the firm grasp of my muscular hand. It swam into deep water and into shallow water, across the stream, up the stream and down the stream, but to no purpose. I could sometimes touch bottom, and sometimes couldn't, but I held on all the same. The deer tried to kick me off, but, being in the water, the force of its kicking did not avail much.

"After towing me all over the stream, and down about a quarter of a mile, the deer seemed to resolve on a new style of tactics. It every little while made a frantic effort to turn about and fight me with its front feet and horns, and I had to do some tall swimming around the circle to prevent the accomplishment of its design. After it had tried this repeatedly, I struck an idea—that as soon as we struck bottom again, and where I thought I could get a footing, to court this turning-around motion of the deer and kill the animal with my little hatchet. As we went sailing along through a deep channel I succeeded in getting my hatchet out of my belt, and we soon struck a bar, where we both found good footing. The deer had no sooner touched bottom than it made a turn on me again, and I, letting up on the tail, allowed it to turn and come for me, and, as it did so, I delivered a well-poised blow that laid it out. You can well imagine what a blow it must have been when I had drank about three-fourths of a quart of fresh milk before starting on the expedition. After getting my breath a little, I dragged my fine prize ashore, and went back to change my clothes and get a team to take it home. I think that I justly claim the champion's belt until some fellow actually catches a deer in his hat."

Scarlet Fever Precautions.

Among the various State Boards of Health, those of Massachusetts and Michigan deserve special prominence for the character of their researches and their application of the principles of sanitary science. Quite lately the Michigan board has issued a circular in reference to the restriction and prevention of scarlet fever, believing that by proper precaution epidemics of this kind can be easily prevented.

They set out with the proposition that scarlet fever is now believed to be one of the most contagious diseases, and requires as careful treatment of the patient and of his excretions as in cases of small-pox, like which, also, it has a period of incubation of from one to fourteen days.

The first precaution is the isolation of the sick from the well, and the prevention of contact with the patient. The room should be cleared from all unnecessary clothing, carpets, or other substances in which the poison may lurk and be thence transferred elsewhere. The patient should use rags in place of handkerchiefs, so that they may be burned. Body and bed linen should be placed in vessels of water containing chloride of lime or similar substance. Discharges should be received in a solution of sulphate of iron or copper, and be afterward buried. Persons recovering from this disease should be considered dangerous as long as there is any scaling of the skin, soreness of the eyes, etc. Many other precautions are inculcated, all of which are considered more or less important.—Harper's Weekly.

Tax Oppression in Turkey.

It is a marvel to me how any people in the world can persist in engaging in agriculture under a system of such outrageous taxation as is carried out by the Turkish Government. This oppression is by no means confined to Christians; the Mohammedan farmers are subject to the same drawbacks. It seems as if the Sultan's officers impose the heaviest taxes where they are the easiest collected, without the slightest regard for justice or fitness. The tillers of the soil cannot run away or hide their crops or avoid a valuation of their crops as merchants and traders can, and therefore they are made to pay more than any other class. The revenue officers simply farm out the grain and cattle tax (to be paid in kind) of each village or district to contractors, who pay in cash and are furnished with a police force to collect their dues, enjoying complete liberty for practicing all sorts of tricks and oppression on their own account.—Letter from Turkey.

The Prince of Wales' Indian Presents.

I doubt if Solomon ever saw anything so gorgeous as this collection at Bethnal Green. Fancy a whole large glass case full of gold and silver gems. All ablaze with diamonds! Imagine a bedstead, whose coverlet, pillows and curtains are made of India shawls of the finest texture ever turned out from the looms of Cashmere! Conjure up a dressing-gown composed of the plumage off the backs of millions of gorgeous-hued humming-birds! See for yourself a palanquin of tortoise shell, inlaid with gold, with downy cushions covered with strange stuffs whose woof seems as if it were diamonds, its web rubies and emeralds. One glass case is full of jeweled swords, all of enormous value and great beauty. The handsomest came from Delhi, and, with its jeweled hilt and scabbard and waist belt, is valued at $50,000.—London Letter.

CRICKETS.

BY JOHN WEISS.

In twilight of the waning year,
When days abridge their summer smiles,
The cricket [illegible] to hear
His broodings o'er the season's joys.

His note is Nature's retrospect,
That solaces her mind in change;
A hundred [illegible] of flowers are wrecked
And strayed on its tender range.

Broad dawns that stirred the lids of earth,
First breaths of the unsullied days,
Long hours whose only toil was mirth,
Whose sails we set for western bays,

And shook our sunset colors out
As signals to the evening star
That in the offing beat about
To show us reefs of dusk afar;

The summer shade that thrilled to keep
A blitheness in the silent trees
All night, to pipe us from our sleep—
The cricket broods and thinks of these.

[illegible]
To [illegible] among the grass
And stems no longer flame [illegible]
To light short afternoons that pass.

My summer life's [illegible]
Along the ground, and listens well,
As all the footsteps of the year
Upon the edge of distance [illegible]

They fade, they shrink to this thin tone,
On every trembling nerve it plays;
Of roses plucked, of meadows mown,
It tells, of all my perfect days;

Of moments tuned by new delight,
Of thoughts that soared upon their wing
And balanced sung my secret plight—
That whole surprise of blossoming;

Those bumpers of a dauntless vein,
Poured often as my June came near
To pledge to nature's new refrain;
That kiss-warm solstice of my year!
—Atlantic Monthly for October.

PITH AND POINT.

A COLORED postmaster is now called a black mailer.

AFFECTION which is never reciprocated—Neuralgic affection.

A PARTIAL libel—Most men love little women, and little women love most men.

THERE'S one melancholy fact about a calendar—there's no time when its day are not numbered.

WHY are some women very much like tea-kettles? Because they sing away pleasantly, and then all at once boil over.

IN New Jersey, when they want to praise a man, they say, "He has such a mean-looking face that a fly wouldn't light on it.

WHY is a young lady who has just left boarding-school like a building committee? Because she is ready to receive proposals.

THE Hawk-Eye notes the fact that the boy who does not know that the gun is loaded is nevertheless always to be found at the safe end of the gun.

A MAN declares that it is impossible for him to keep out of trouble, for in the best times his business drives him to the wall. He is a bill-poster.

IT is suggested that one reason why Californians hate Chinese is because the latter introduced the fashion of having shirts washed at least once a week.

WOMEN like to be loved; but if the woman with a high hat at the church knew how much she is hated for several pews round she might not feel so vain.

"GRANDMA, why don't you keep a servant any longer?" "Well, you see, my child, I am getting old now, and can't take care of one as I used to, you know."

"WHY don't you mount a clean collar, Brown? I do three times a day." "Yes," replied Brown to the boaster; "but every one's mother isn't a washer-woman."

AN Irish pilot being asked if he knew the rocks in the harbor, replied with confidence, "I do, yer honor, ivery wan ov thim. That's wan," he said, calmly, as the ship struck, filled and sunk.

THE wide columns of the New York Tribune are very advantageous during the European war. They can, once in a while, get in a Russian General's name without overrunning into the next line.

SPORTSMAN (after a fruitless tramp)—"I say, boy, is there anything to shoot about here?" Boy—"Well, nothing about here; but the schoolmaster is down the hill yonder; you can pop him over."

MABEL: "Do take me out, mamma!" Mamma: "I can't, darling, to-day; I am going to shop, and make so many calls." Mabel: "Well, it's very hard; you shouldn't keep a child if you cannot take it out."

MEDICAL authorities unite in denouncing hair-dyes as dangerous, because of their influence on the brain. When we find a man who has any brains using hair-dye we will warn him.—Toledo Blade.

HANDSOME BUT SHY: "Ah! good morning, miss. Is your father at home? I have some important matters to propose to him." Demure miss: "I am very sorry that my father is out, but why not propose to me? I'm not engaged." (Handsome but Shy retreats in dismay.)

"YES," said she, "a dish of ice-cream relaxes the muscles of my heart, but two dishes—Oh, two dishes! makes me feel as though I could love on and on forever." So he ordered the waiter to bring on another dish, and he counted not the cost.

THE latest addition to the English language is the word "suiciding." The San Francisco News Letter, writing the biography of a fellow-citizen, says: "Mr. Jones felodesesd this morning successfully. He hymeneated three years ago, and he will be sepulchred to-morrow."

THE following are two stanzas of a song which is very popular among the colored worshipers of this city and which is often sung at revivals:

I shake de dus' off ob my feet,
An' walk barefoot on the golden street.
I know my hide's chuck full of sin,
But I know old Peter will let me in.
Den rise, children, rise up in a crowd,
An' shout an' sing to the angels loud;
An' fix your eyes on de lan' ob rest,
Kase hell am hot as a hornet's nest.
—Raleigh Observer.

DR. W. R. BARTLETT, of New Haven, treats in the September number of the Sanitarian of the causes of disease in country homes. The causes are bad air, impure water, improper food and clothing, unsuitable dwellings, and exhausting occupations. More attention is now given, Dr. Bartlett says, to healthful conditions of life in the city than in the country, although the country is more favorable to health if right conditions are observed.

CINCINNATI consumed 52,000 barrels of beer during August.

AGRICULTURAL AND DOMESTIC.

The American Farmer.

Farm labor, 'tis the primal toil
That dates from Eden, on whose soil
The [illegible]
And [illegible]

The farmer [illegible]
Among his fields and pastures wide;
His home-like house and happy nest,
With cheerful wife and children blest.

The swallow-haunted barns, well stored
With full and generous harvest hoard—
This little world, which he has planned,
Has grown and thriven 'neath his hand.

He walks beneath the grateful shade
Of trees he planted [illegible] his aide
Before his well-grown boys were born,
And neither give him cause to mourn.

The [illegible]
And lift their heads above the wall;
And [illegible] the gate
Looks fondly in his kindly face.

He takes delight—and who would not?—
In showing one his garden plot;
His orchards laughing in the sun,
A well-deserved praise have won.

To Nature's beauties never blind,
Its good in everything can find.
The voice of Poverty he heeds—
Forgets its faults and feeds its needs.

By duty done and time well spent
He earns the best of boons—content,
That in its train [illegible]
Brings health and wealth [illegible]

Around the Farm.

TO MAKE cabbages head properly, a pinch of salt to each head, or a slight watering with weak lime, is very beneficial.

THE swamps are now dry, and work on them should not be neglected. Getting out muck for use in winter and digging ditches can be better done in August than at any other time.

GATHER and put in the compost heap all the weeds that have not yet seeded. Burn all that have ripe seeds. This work should not be neglected. Upon many farms the roadsides, barnyard fences and the sites of old grain-stacks are most prolific nurseries for weeds. These should be cleared up at once.

"PUSLEY," or purslane, anathematized here as a pest by our farmers and gardeners, is carefully cultivated and considered a very choice and delicious vegetable by those of Europe. Prejudice alone prevents people in every part of the world from using many edibles highly prized by those equally civilized elsewhere.

A MANLIUS, Onandaga county (N. Y.) farmer writes that last fall he sowed twenty acres to wheat, applying 225 bushels of damaged salt, and this season he has harvested from the same land 1,120 bushels of fine wheat, averaging forty bushels to the acre. He keeps eight horses, twenty-five cows, a large flock of sheep, and forty-seven hogs, and believes in genuine grain-growing, stock-raising husbandry.

FARM HORSES in the fall are often ungratefully neglected. Their hard toil in helping with the heavy work of the season once over, when only odd jobs await them, it is too frequent a custom to dock them of their grain and allow them to shift for themselves on the pastures, often without needed shelter from the bleak winds and early frosts of autumn nights. After feeding a while the poor animals get chilled, and run about in the dark in search of warmth, which they often find only at the cost of a stumble or fall, resulting often in a sprain or a cut that disfigures them for life. Then, when warm and tired they lie down to rest, what wonder if they rise up stiff, spiritless and not rarely suffering from a severe cold after their heated blood and relaxed sinews have been exposed to the blasts and frosts of a chilly night! When the days are not stormy, it is well enough to let horses run in the pasture, but every autumn night should find them comfortably bedded and fed in the stable. Ingratitude to our fellow men is justly considered an odious vice, but is there not often a strong taint of it also in the treatment of these noble animals, to whose faithful help in all kinds of drudgery farmers are deeply indebted for full barns and comfortable homes?

CARE of the privy is by far too rare on the farm. By a little management, however, the premises might be kept from disagreeable odors, the contents of the vault utilized for garden purposes, and "night work" done at one's leisure in the day-time, without offense to the most sensitive nose in the neighborhood. A correspondent of the agricultural department of the Weekly Tribune tells how this can be effected: First, allow no slops to be poured into the vault; otherwise you will have a nuisance in spite of all you can do. Second, have some other place of deposit for broken dishes, bottles and other rubbish that will not decay; if put into the vault these must eventually be sorted out again, and they hinder the action of absorbents. Third, have on hand, for use from time to time, some road-dust, dry loam, hard-wood sawdust, or sifted coal ashes. There is no disinfectant or absorbent better than road-dust gathered in dry weather, though many other materials are almost as good. If these be frequently and liberally sprinkled into the vault, there will never be any bad odor, and the vault need not be emptied oftener than once in two years. The composted deposit can be removed without offense to the eye or nose, and, with a little diluting with dry earth, is excellent dressing for almost any crop.

About the House.

SMALL BEER.—A handful of hops to a pail of water, 1 pint of bran, ½ pint of molasses, 1 cupful yeast, 1 spoonful of ginger.

HARVEST DRINK.—Five gallons of water, ½ gallon of molasses, 1 quart of vinegar, and 2 ounces of powdered ginger.

REMEDY FOR POISON IVY.—E. A. Blood, of Bloomington, Ill., says that bran poultice is an infallible cure for poison ivy.

GINGER BEER.—One cup of ginger, 1 pint of molasses, 1½ pails of water, and 1 cup of lively yeast, slightly warm; bottle and cork securely.

WHITE SPRUCE BEER.—Three pounds of loaf-sugar, 5 gallons of water, with essence of spruce to taste, 1 cupful of good yeast, and some lemon peel.

TO REMOVE FRUIT STAINS.—To remove an apple stain on cloth: Dampen the spots and hold them over a lighted match; the sulphur smoke will bleach it out. This will also remove apple and berry stains from the hands.—Ohio Farmer.

GOOD-TEMPLAR BEER.—One pin. of bran, a handful of hops, [illegible] spruce, hemlock, or cedar, a little sassafras, roots of burdock, plantain, docks and dandelion; boil and strain, and add a spoonful of ginger molasses and a cupful of yeast. The above will make a gallon.

RELIEF FOR FROSTED FEET.—For frosted feet, take pure flaxseed oil, bathe your feet, and heat in by the fire well before going to bed; wrap some old clothes around the feet to keep the oil from rubbing off, and bathe again in the morning. A few applications will remove all soreness and itching.—American Farm Journal.

HOME-MADE INK.—Take half an ounce of [illegible] and [illegible] of bichromate of potash, and dissolve them in a quart of rain water in a bottle kept uncorked. The bottle should be perfectly clean and free from any other ink. Running the logwood through a fine strainer will remove all sediment.—Evening Wisconsin.

MOTE FROM THE EYE.—Take a horsehair and double it, leaving a loop. If the mote can be seen, lay the loop over it, close the eye, and the mote will come out as the hair is withdrawn. If it cannot be seen, raise the lid of the eye as far as possible, and place the loop in it as far as you can, close the eye and roll the ball a few times, then draw out the hair. The substance which caused so much pain will be sure to come out with it.—Scientific American.

HOW TO TEND A COAL FIRE.—Replenish a coal fire as soon as the coals begin to show ashes on the surface; then put on merely enough to show a layer of black coal covering the red. This will soon kindle, and, as there is not much of it, an excess of heat will be given out. Many persons almost put out the fire by stirring the grate as soon as fresh coal is put on, thus leaving all the heat in the ashes when it should be sent to the new supply of coal. The time to stir the fire is just when the new coal laid on is pretty well kindled. This method saves fuel, gives a more uniform heat, and prevents the discomfort of alternations of heat and cold.—Housekeeper.

ARTIFICIAL LEMONADE.—Loaf sugar 2 pounds, tartaric acid ½ ounce, essence of lemon 30 drops, essence of almonds 20 drops. Dissolve the tartaric acid in 2 pints of hot water, add the sugar, and lastly the lemon and almond; stir well, cover with a cloth, and leave until cold; put 2 table-spoonfuls into a tumbler, and fill up with cold water. The drink, it is said, will be found much more refreshing and more palatable than either ginger beer or lemonade, and costs only 60 cents for 10 pints. The addition of a very little bicarbonate of potash to each tumblerful just before drinking will give a wholesome effervescing drink.—Scientific American.

A Prisoner's Trained Mouse.

The New Haven (Conn.) Register tells the following of the alleged murderer, Andersen, who is waiting a new trial at the county jail in that city.

"He some time since caught a mouse in his cell, caged him, and has carefully trained him. Andersen will hold a string suspended from his fingers, and in broken English command the mouse to 'up, like a sailor,' whereupon the little animal will lay hold of the string with his feet and climb to the prisoner's hand. The mouse will also sit at command on his hind legs on a teacup, will crawl up the prisoner's face through his mustache and over his nose, and finally jump from the man's head to his hand, completing his performance with a graceful bow. One of the most interesting things concerning the history of this little acrobat is the great love it has for the prisoner. When Andersen was moved a few weeks ago to another and a darker cell, the mouse was lost, and, although carefully sought after by the keeper, could not be found. Andersen was deeply grieved over the disappearance of his tiny companion, who he feared had been killed, and even the prison officials expressed regret that the little creature should have dropped so completely and mysteriously out of the usually dull routine of prison life. Great was the joy, therefore, of Andersen, and of all in the jail, when one day the mouse made its appearance at the door of Andersen's new cell, and, running in, resumed its accustomed place by the prisoner's side. It is stated that the little animal seemed as greatly rejoiced as its master over the reunion."

De Garden ob Eden.

"Allus blow'n' about de wah in Europe whenever I comes around heah," remarked brother Gardner yesterday to a colored crowd on the benches at the Central market.

"It's a big wah and I likes to keep posted," replied one who had been reading the news to the rest.

"Charles Henry, look dis way fur an hour or so," said the old man as he put down his whitewash brush. "Now, den, whar' was de Garden ob Eden?"

"Woosh! what I know 'bout dat garden?"

"Dar it am—dar it am, Charles Henry!" exclaimed the old man as he wiped his bald head on his coat-sleeve. "Here you is, whoopin' aroun' 'bout de Russian wah an' all dat, when you doan' know nuffin 'bout de history ob your own State! Dat's de way wid lots o' folks. Dey'll make de biggest kind o' fuss 'bout Europe, when, fur all dey know, some of de watermelons which growed in de Garden ob Eden kin be picked in de fence corners not six miles from dis market—purwided de night am dark 'nuff!"—Detroit Free Press.

DURING the recent convention of Governors at New York, the Governor of North Carolina rose to make his usual remark, but, observing that the Governor of Boston was present, he so far amended the original resolution as to say to the Governor of South Carolina that the leaden hours on the slow, unfolding wings had dragged their weary lengths in mock eternities nigh half way round the tiresome dial-plate since last night they bent the pregnant hinges of the elbow and touched with earthly nectar rare, from old Kentucky's copper-bottomed hills, the parch-ed lips, to cool with gurgling dewiness the dry and whistling throat.—Burlington Hawk-Eye.

THE supply of lithographic stone is rapidly falling off. Over $10,000,000 worth is consumed annually.

Are Soldiers' Tents to be Abolished?

The Avenir Militaire, commenting on some articles recently contributed by Gen. Lewal to the Journal des Sciences Militaires, agrees with this latter that tents must be proscribed during war. A man requires, the Avenir Militaire remarks, during a night of seven hours two [illegible] cubic meters of pure air. [illegible] consequently, should have eighteen and two-thirds cubic meters of fresh air; but eight men sheltered by two tentes d'abri placed together, as is the custom in French camps in bad weather, have only about one-seventeenth of this quantity to breathe, and the circulation of air through the tent is not sufficient to make up for the deficiency. The men, therefore, must breathe an impure atmosphere throughout the night, and their health must suffer in consequence. Even in the bell-tent, which, relatively to the number of men who sleep in it, is of larger dimensions, the amount of air is insufficient; and, moreover, the tents, being of considerable weight, must be carried in wagons for the men, and, consequently, would almost invariably have to be left behind during rapid operations in the field. Troops, therefore, on active service will generally be obliged either to bivouac in the open or to be cantoned in towns and villages adjacent to the line of march. As a rule, the Avenir Militaire holds it will be possible to find accommodation for the main body of a column, but the advanced guards, and especially the screen of cavalry which should cover the front of an army, will almost always be obliged to bivouac.

Ingersoll, Paine and Voltaire.

Col. Robert G. Ingersoll recently challenged the religious world to prove that either Thomas Paine or Voltaire recanted his convictions on his death-bed, or died exhibiting remorse on account of his teachings. The New York Observer accepted the challenge, and offered to prove it in regard to one or both. Col. Ingersoll having returned to Peoria, Ill., and heard of the acceptance, says he will immediately deposit $1,000 in gold in bank, subject to the order of Dr. Prime when indorsed by the tribunal, which shall consist of three men—one to be chosen by Ingersoll, one by Prime, and a third by the agreement of the two. Col. Ingersoll adds:

"From the date of accepting this offer you may have ninety days to collect and present your testimony, giving me notice of time and place of taking depositions. I shall have a like time to take evidence upon my side, giving you like notice, and you shall then have thirty days to take further testimony in reply to what I may offer. The case shall then be argued before the persons chosen; and their decision shall be final as to us. If Paine and Voltaire died filled with childish and silly fear, I want to know it, and I want the world to know it. On the other hand, if the believers in superstition have made and circulated these cruel slanders concerning the mighty dead, I want the world to know that."

Allied Enemies to Health.

In many of the fairest and most fertile districts of North and Tropical America, air and water are allied enemies to health, both being impregnated with the poisonous miasmata which produce chills and fever, bilious remittents and febrile disorders of a still more malignant type. Fortunately, a sure preventive and curative of such destructive maladies is to be found in Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, a vegetable preparation which is infinitely to be preferred, both on account of its efficacy and freedom from all hurtful properties, to the deleterious mineral and alkaloid remedies of the pharmacopœ. It is moreover, the reigning specific for dyspepsia, debility, constipation, urinary troubles, rheumatism, and nervousness, promotes appetite and sleep, and is a capital antidote to depression of spirits.

The Latest Fashion for Ladies.

Our attention has recently been called to the Raritan Matelasse Cloakings, something entirely new in the way of heavy, thick, warm, woolen goods, specially adapted for ladies' wear during the cold weather now approaching. These goods are the handsomest and most stylish ever seen, and, so far as price is concerned, are a miracle of cheapness. They are intended for cloaks, sacques, dolmans, circulars and jackets, for both ladies and children, and are to be found at all the leading dry-goods stores in the country. Be particular to ask for the Raritan Cloakings, and take no others.

Delicious Cookery.

The lightest, sweetest, most wholesome and delicious Vienna rolls, tea biscuits, bread, muffins, flannel cakes, crullers, and all articles prepared from flour, are always possible to every table by using DOOLEY'S YEAST POWDER. This celebrated Baking Powder has stood the critical test of the best housekeepers and the consuming public generally of America for twenty years. It is absolutely pure, and always of uniform strength. The genuine is put up in cans. Most all good grocers sell it.

CHEW
The Celebrated
"MATCHLESS"
Wood Tag Plug
TOBACCO.
THE PIONEER TOBACCO COMPANY,
New York, Boston and Chicago.

"CURSE the whole lot. That scale agent cheated me out of $50, clean, for I could have bought a better Five Ton Wagon Scale for $50, on trial, freight paid to my own door, of Jones, of Binghamton, Binghamton, N. Y."

PATENTEES and inventors should read advertisement of Edson Bros. in another column.

Hofmann's Hop Pills cure the Ague at once.

CHICAGO VOLTAIC AND TRUSS CO.

Their Voltaic Belts and Bands cure Rheumatism, Dyspepsia, Nervous Diseases. Belt, $5; Bands according to size. The Digital Syringe combines Syringe, Speculum, Forceps; a complete article, $3. Adjustable Uterine Supporter. Most natural in use. $6. It is easily converted into a Truss. Extra, $1; or alone, $4. Pile Supporter, cures Piles. Worn sitting, walking, riding horseback. $2.50. Discount to Trade and Physicians. Goods sent C. O. D. For circulars address, with stamp, CHICAGO V. & T. CO., 66 Washington Street, CHICAGO.

BEGINNERS' QUADRILLE BAND, contains 12 sets of Waltzes and Quadrilles; 30 Contra Fancy Dances; 1st and 2d Violin, Clar., Cornet and Bass, in 5 separate books—highest note in 1st violin pt. is B in 1st position; 5 books $3, single pts. 75c. 100 EASY DUETS for Piano and Violin or Flute, 75c.; No. 14 Howe's Piano and Violin or Flute, 75c. OVERTURES for small Orchestra—Zampa, Norma, Martha, Bohemian Girl, Wm. Tell, Tancredi, Fra Diavolo, Crown Diamonds, Morn, Noon and Night; Poet and Peasant, Medley by Catlin, Comique Medley, pts. of 50 airs; for 6 instruments $1, full orchestra $2. Howe's 1000 Jigs, Reels, etc., for Violin, etc., $1. Sent by mail. ELIAS HOWE, 103 Court Street, Boston.

ONLY $1

For SIX BEAUTIFUL PICTURES, (different subjects,) 14x17 inches; Or for FIVE PICTURES, 17x22; Or for FOUR PICTURES, 19x24. Fac-simile copies of FINE STEEL ENGRAVINGS, made by the celebrated GRAPHIC process, printed on Heavy Plate Paper for framing. Send ten cents for Illustrated Catalogue containing over 100 pictures. Address, THE DAILY GRAPHIC, New York City.

Ho! Farmers, for Iowa!

Send a Postal Card for description and maps of 1,300,000 acres of R. R. Lands for sale on long terms. Soil first-class. Tickets FREE to land-buyers from Chicago and return. Address J. B. CALHOUN, Land Commissioner Iowa R. R. Land Co., 92 Randolph Street, CHICAGO, or CEDAR RAPIDS, Iowa.

$5937 Made by 17 Agents in Jan. '77 with my 13 new articles. Samples free. Address C. M. Linington, Chicago.

[illegible]

PURELY VEGETABLE.

The Cheapest, Purest and Best Family Medicine in the World! An Effectual Specific for all [illegible] CHILLS AND FEVER, BOWEL COMPLAINTS, RESTLESSNESS, JAUNDICE AND NAUSEA.

SIMMONS LIVER REGULATOR

BAD BREATH!

Nothing is so unpleasant, nothing so common as bad breath, and in nearly every case it comes from the stomach, and can be so easily corrected if you will take SIMMONS' LIVER REGULATOR. Do not neglect so sure a remedy for this repulsive disorder. It will also improve your appetite, Complexion and General Health.

CONSTIPATION!

SHOULD not be regarded as a trifling ailment—in fact, nature demands the utmost regularity of the bowels, and any deviation from this demand paves the way often to serious danger. It is quite as necessary to remove impure accumulations from the bowels as it is to eat or sleep, and no health can be expected where a costive habit of body prevails.

SICK HEADACHE!

This distressing affliction occurs most frequently. The disturbance of the stomach, arising from the imperfectly digested contents, causes a severe pain in the head, accompanied with disagreeable nausea, and this constitutes what is popularly known as Sick Headache; for the relief of which, TAKE SIMMONS' LIVER REGULATOR OR MEDICINE.

MANUFACTURED ONLY BY
J. H. ZEILIN & CO.,
PHILADELPHIA.
Price, $1.00. Sold by all Druggists.

HULL & SCOTNEY,
GENERAL
COMMISSION
MERCHANTS,
346 NORTH WATER ST.,
PHILADELPHIA,

And wholesale dealers in Butter, Cheese, Eggs, Poultry, Game, Potatoes, Apples, Grain, Flour, Fur, Wool, Cotton, Peanuts, Broom Corn, Sorghum and Domestic Fruits, and, in fact, we can sell any and everything at the highest market price, make prompt returns, and LIBERAL CASH ADVANCES made on all shipments except perishable articles. To show that we do an extensive business, any game dealer in Philadelphia will tell you we handled more game last season than all other Houses in Philadelphia put together. Send for Price-List, Stencil, &c., &c. REFERENCE CASH, or we refer you to Any RESPONSIBLE HOUSE in Our City.

Butter, Cheese, Poultry, EGGS. GAME.

JACKSON'S BEST
SWEET NAVY CHEWING TOBACCO

was awarded the highest prize at Centennial Exposition for its fine chewing qualities, the excellence and lasting character of its sweetening and flavoring. If you want the best tobacco ever made, ask your grocer for this, and see that each plug bears our blue-strip trade-mark with words Jackson's Best on it. Sold wholesale by all jobbers. Send for sample to C. A. JACKSON & CO., Manufacturers, Petersburg, Va.

DAVIS'
PAIN-KILLER!

The Great Family Medicine of the Age. 1840 to 1877. For Thirty-seven Years. Has been tested in every variety of climate, and by almost every nation known to Americans. It is the almost constant companion and inestimable friend of the missionary and the traveler, on sea and land, and no one should travel on our lakes and rivers without it. Sold by all medicine dealers.

IT IS BEING DONE ALL AROUND YOU.

Are you out of work? Don't you make money fast enough? Send for Circulars of "TOM SAWYER."

MARK TWAIN'S NEW BOOK,

or Catalogue of all our books, and select one to please you, and make from $25 to $100 per week selling it. A trial will cost nothing. We will give you the Best Book and Largest Commissions, and you cannot fail to succeed. Write at once to the AMERICAN PUBLISHING CO., Chicago, Ill.

DO NOT FAIL to send for our New Catalogue. It contains valuable information for every person contemplating the purchase of any article for personal, family or agricultural use. Free to any Address.
MONTGOMERY WARD & CO.,
Original Grange Supply House,
227 & 229 Wabash Ave. CHICAGO ILL.

$1.00 $1.00
Osgood's Heliotype Engravings.
The choicest household ornaments. Price One Dollar each. Send for catalogue.
JAMES R. OSGOOD & CO.
BOSTON, MASS.
$1.00 $1.00

PERPETUAL
SORGHUM EVAPORATOR.
$15. $20. $25.
Cheap and Durable
Send for Circulars.
Address the only Manufacturers
CHAPMAN & CO. Madison Ind.

WHITNEY & HOLMES
ORGANS.
The Finest Toned and Most Durable Made.
New Styles. New Solo Stops.
Warranted Five Years. Send for Price-Lists.
WHITNEY & HOLMES ORGAN CO., QUINCY, ILL.

TEACHERS of VOCAL MUSIC,

Desiring the Best Book extant, should try FAVORITE SONGS. An unequaled collection of Gems compiled for their use by Profs. H. R. and T. H. R. Christie, and supervised by Prof. R. M. McIntosh, the eminent author and teacher. Price $4.00 a dozen. Sample by mail, 50 cents. SPECIMEN PAGES FREE. R. W. CARROLL & CO., Publishers, Cincinnati, or LYON & HEALY, Chicago.

HEADACHE.

DR. C. W. BENSON'S CELERY AND CHAMOMILE PILLS are prepared expressly to cure SICK HEADACHE, NERVOUS HEADACHE, DYSPEPTIC HEADACHE, NEURALGIA, NERVOUSNESS, SLEEPLESSNESS, and will cure any case. Office, 106 N. Eutaw St., Baltimore, Md. Price, 50c., postage free. Sold by all druggists and country stores. REFERENCE:—Howard Bank, Baltimore, Md.

WORK FOR ALL

In their own localities, canvassing for the Fireside Visitor (enlarged), Weekly and Monthly. Largest Paper in the World, with Mammoth Chromos Free. Big Commissions to Agents. Terms and Outfit Free. Address P. O. VICKERY, Augusta, Maine.

TRUTH IS MIGHTY!

[illegible]

PATENTS AND INVENTORS. EDSON BROS., U. S. and Foreign Patent Agents, 711 G St., Washington, D. C. Established in 1866. Fee after allowance. Copy of instructions, etc., sent free.

PENSIONS Procured, or NO PAY, for every wounded, ruptured, accidentally injured or diseased Soldier. Address Col. N. W. FITZGERALD, U. S. Claim Att'y, Washington, D.C.

BALL PROGRAMMES
AND
FANCY VISITING CARDS

[illegible]

COLGATE'S
CASHMERE
BOUQUET
TOILET
SOAP.

THE novelty and exceptional strength of its perfume are the peculiar fascinations of this luxurious article, which has acquired popularity hitherto unequaled by any Toilet Soap of home or foreign manufacture.

THE
UNITED STATES
LIFE
INSURANCE COMPANY,
IN THE CITY OF NEW YORK,
261, 262, 263 Broadway.
ORGANIZED 1850
ASSETS, $4,827,176.52
SURPLUS, $820,000
EVERY APPROVED FORM OF POLICY ISSUED ON MOST FAVORABLE TERMS
ALL ENDOWMENT POLICIES
AND
APPROVED CLAIMS
MATURING IN 1877
WILL BE DISCOUNTED AT 7%
ON PRESENTATION.
JAMES BUELL, - - PRESIDENT.

POND'S
EXTRACT

CATARRH.—Pond's Extract is nearly a Specific for this disease. It can hardly be excelled, even in old and obstinate cases. The relief is so prompt that no one who has ever tried it will be without it.

CHAPPED HANDS AND FACE. Pond's Extract should be in every family this rough weather. It removes the soreness and roughness, and softens and heals the skin promptly.

RHEUMATISM.—During severe and changeable weather, no one subject to Rheumatic Pains should be one day without Pond's Extract, which always relieves.

SORE LUNGS, CONSUMPTION, COUGHS, COLDS.—This cold weather tries the Lungs sorely. Have Pond's Extract on hand always. It relieves the pain and cures the disease.

CHILBLAINS will be promptly relieved and ultimately cured by bathing the afflicted parts with Pond's Extract.

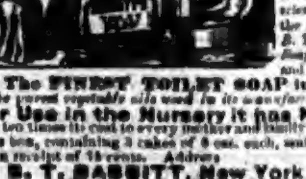
FROSTED LIMBS.—Pond's Extract invariably relieves the pain and finally cures.

SORE THROAT, QUINSY, INFLAMED TONSILS AND AIR PASSAGES are promptly cured by the use of Pond's Extract. It never fails.

HISTORY and Uses of Pond's Extract, in pamphlet form, sent free on application to POND'S EXTRACT CO., 98 Maiden Lane, New York. Sold by Druggists.

THOMSON'S PATENT
GLOVE-FITTING
CORSETS.
The friends of this UNRIVALLED CORSET are now numbered by MILLIONS. Prices are much reduced. MEDAL RECEIVED AT CENTENNIAL. Get the Genuine, and beware of imitations. ASK ALSO FOR THOMSON'S UNBREAKABLE STEELS. The best goods made. See that the name of THOMSON and the Trade Mark, a CROWN, are stamped on every Corset & Steel.
SURPASSES ALL OTHERS FOR COMFORT
GIVE COMPLETE SATISFACTION
FITS THE FIGURE PERFECTLY

BABBITT'S TOILET SOAP.



Unrivalled for the Toilet and the Bath. No artificial and deceptive odors to cover common and deleterious ingredients. After years of scientific experiment the manufacturer of B. T. Babbitt's Best Soap has perfected and now offers to the public The FINEST TOILET SOAP in the World. Only the purest vegetable oils used in its manufacture. For Use in the Nursery it has No Equal. Worth ten times its cost to every mother and family in Christendom. Sample box, containing 3 cakes of 6 oz. each, sent free to any address on receipt of 75 cents. Address
B. T. BABBITT, New York City.
For Sale by all Druggists.

"The Best Polish in the World."
THE RISING SUN
STOVE POLISH

A Special Offer
TO THE READERS
OF THIS PAPER.

A Genuine Swiss Magnetic Time-Keeper, a perfect Gem for everybody desiring a reliable Time-Piece, and also a superior Compass, usual watch size, steel works, glass crystal, all in a superb Oroide Hunting-Case, warranted to denote correct time, and keep in order for two years—Perfection guaranteed—will be Given away, to every patron of this paper as a Free Gift.

CUT OUT THIS COUPON AND MAIL IT.

COUPON.
On receipt of this Coupon and 50 cents to pay for packing, boxing and mailing charges, we promise to send each patron of this paper a GENUINE SWISS MAGNETIC TIME-KEEPER.
Address, Magnetic Watch Co.,
ASHLAND, MASS.

This is your ONLY OPPORTUNITY to obtain this beautiful premium, so order AT ONCE. This offer will hold good for 30 days.
If currency cannot be sent conveniently, postage stamps will be taken instead.

KEEP'S SHIRTS—only one quality—The Best. Keep's Patent Partly-Made Dress Shirts Can be finished as easy as hemming a Handkerchief. The very best, six for $7.00. Keep's Custom Shirts—made to measure, The very best, six for $9.00. An elegant set of genuine Gold-Plate Collar and Sleeve Buttons given with each half doz. Keep's Shirts. Keep's Shirts are delivered FREE on receipt of price In any part of the Union—no express charges to pay. Samples, with full directions for self-measurement, Sent Free to any address. No stamp required. Deal directly with the Manufacturer and get Bottom Prices. Keep Manufacturing Co., 165 Mercer St., N.Y.

The Best Truss without Metal Springs ever invented. No humbug claim of a certain radical cure, but a guarantee of a comfortable, secure and satisfactory appliance. We will take back and pay FULL PRICE for all that do not suit. Price, single, like cut, $4; for both sides, $6. Sent by mail, post-paid, on receipt of price. N. B.—This Truss will cure more Ruptures than any of those for which extravagant claims are made. Circulars Free.
POMEROY TRUSS CO., 746 Broadway, New York.

$66 a week in your own town. Terms and $5 outfit free. H. HALLETT & CO., Portland, Maine.

WORTHINGTON BUSINESS COLLEGE, Evanston. [illegible]

$12 A DAY at home. Agents wanted. Outfit and terms free. TRUE & CO., Augusta, Maine.

$50 to $75 a week with our popular Books, Bibles, Chromos & Maps. [illegible] Chicago.

$5 to $20 per day at home. Samples worth $5 free. Stinson & Co., Portland, Maine.

$25 PREMIUM WATCH AND CHAIN—a stem-winder. Free with every order. Outfit free. J. B. Gaylord & Co., Chicago, Ill.

$7½ [illegible] works. [illegible] Watch free to Agents. A. COULTER & CO., Chicago, Ill.

$400 A MONTH. AGENTS WANTED. [illegible] Send for Catalog. VAN & Co., Chicago.

A GOOD WELL can be made in one day with our 4-foot Well Auger. Send for our auger book. U. S. AUGER CO., St. Louis, Mo.

AGENTS CAN MAKE $10 PER DAY selling [illegible] WORSWICK M'F'G CO., Cleveland, Ohio.

[illegible] ING STRUGGLE, P. O. Box 3069, New York City.

WANTED Men to travel and take orders of Merchants. Salary $1,200 a year and all travelling expenses paid. Address Cline Man'f'g Co., St. Louis, Mo.

$350 A MONTH—AGENTS WANTED—36 best selling articles in the world; one sample free. Address JAY BRONSON, Detroit, Mich.

CLOCKS E. INGRAHAM & CO.'S are superior in design and not equaled in quality, or as timekeepers. Ask your Jeweler for them. Manufactory—Bristol, Ct.

THE RAILWAY AGE—Leading, largest and best journal of transportation published. Weekly, 36 pages. Departments for every class of railway men, president to station agent. $4 per year; $1 for 3 mos. Specimens free. Add. RAILWAY AGE PUB. CO., Chicago.

$10 to $25 A DAY SURE made by Agents selling our Chromos, Crayons, Picture and Chromo Cards. 125 samples, worth $5, sent postpaid, for 85 Cents. Illustrated Catalogue free. J. H. BUFFORD'S SONS, Boston. [Established 1830.]

A KEY TO BOOKKEEPING!

The Best Text Book and Self-Instructor in the World. Sent by mail, post-paid, on receipt of Fifty Cents, by the author. GEO. S. WELSH, Savannah, Georgia.

AGENTS WANTED FOR THE ILLUSTRATED HISTORY
THE GREAT RIOTS

It contains a full account of the reign of terror in Pittsburgh, Baltimore, Chicago and other cities. The conflicts between the troops and the mob. Terrible conflagrations and destruction of property. Thrilling scenes and incidents, etc., etc. Send for a full description of the work and our extra terms to Agents. Address, NATIONAL PUBLISHING CO., Chicago, Ill.

WILHOFT'S
Anti-Periodic,
— OR —
FEVER AND AGUE
TONIC.
For All Diseases Caused by Malarial Poisoning of the Blood.
A Warranted Cure!
G. R. FINLAY & CO.,
New Orleans, Prop's.
FOR SALE BY ALL DRUGGISTS.

TARRANT'S
SELTZER
APERIENT

Three Thousand Miles Away, in another hemisphere, sparkles the Seltzer Spring. In every drug store in America you may obtain its equivalent, put it in your pocket, and carry it with you to the world's end, if you choose.

Tarrant's Effervescent Seltzer Aperient

is simply the living fountain of health, in the form of a powder capable of being converted into a bubbling, flashing fac simile of the liquid product of nature in one minute. Armed with this antidote, all climates and every atmospheric change may be faced without fear. As a remedy in malarious fevers, stomach complaints, irregularities of the bowels, nervous disorders, mental depression, headache, an overflow of bile, dropsical ailments, nausea, and constipation, it has no equal. Sold by all druggists.

THE
GOOD OLD
STAND-BY.
MEXICAN MUSTANG LINIMENT.
FOR MAN AND BEAST.

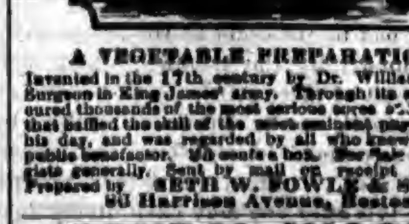
ESTABLISHED 35 YEARS. Always cures. Always ready. Always handy. Has never yet failed. Thirty millions have tested it. The whole world approves the glorious old Mustang—the Best and Cheapest Liniment in existence. 25 cents a bottle. The Mustang Liniment cures when nothing else will.
SOLD BY ALL MEDICINE VENDERS.

NATURE'S REMEDY.
VEGETINE
THE GREAT BLOOD PURIFIER

A SOURCE OF GREAT ANXIETY.
BOSTON, MASS., June 5, 1872.
My daughter had received great benefit from the use of VEGETINE. Her declining health was a source of great anxiety to all of her friends. A few bottles of the VEGETINE restored her health, strength and appetite.
N. H. TILDEN,
Insurance and Real Estate Agent,
No. 49 Sears Building.

Vegetine is Sold by all Druggists.

GRACE'S
SALVE



A VEGETABLE PREPARATION,
Invented in the 17th century by Dr. William Grace, Surgeon in King James' army. Through its agency he cured thousands of the most serious sores and wounds that baffled the skill of the most eminent physicians of his day, and was regarded by all who knew him as a public benefactor. 25 cents a box. For sale by Druggists generally. Sent by mail on receipt of price. Prepared by SETH W. FOWLE & SONS,
86 Harrison Avenue, Boston, Mass.

SANDAL-WOOD.

A positive remedy for all diseases of the Kidneys, Bladder and Urinary Organs; also, good in Dropsical Complaints. It never produces sickness, is certain and speedy in its action. It is fast superseding all other remedies. Sixty capsules cure in six or eight days. No other medicine can do this.

Beware of Imitations, for, owing to its great success, many have been offered; some are most dangerous, causing piles, &c.

DUNDAS DICK & CO.'S Genuine Soft Capsules, containing Oil of Sandal-Wood, sold at all Drug Stores. Ask for circular, or send for one to 35 and 37 Wooster street, New York.

G. N. U. No. 39

WHEN WRITING TO ADVERTISERS, please say you saw the advertisement in this paper.

POETIC GEMS.

Culled From the October Magazines.

WOODBINE IN OCTOBER.

As dyed in blood, the streaming vines appear,
While long and low the wind about them grieves;
The heart of Autumn must have broken here,
And poured its treasures out upon the leaves.
—Charlotte F. Bates, in Scribner.

THERE'S A SHIP ON THE SEA.

There's a ship on the sea. It is sailing to-night,
Sailing to-night;
And father's aboard, and the moon is all bright,
Shining and bright!
Dear moon! he'll be sailing for many a night—
Sailing from mother and me.
Oh! follow the ship with your silvery light
As father sails over the sea.
—Joel Stacy, in St. Nicholas.

RIPE CORN.

The golden ear peeps through the husk,
The faded tassels dryly rustle.
So, ho, boys, ho! From morn till dusk,
We'll at it now with cheer and bustle!
So, ho, boys, ho! Now for the tussle!
The lively earth, we'll weather it!
The ripened corn, we'll gather it—
Ho, boys, ho! We'll gather it!
—C. L. Cleaveland, in Scribner.

THE MIRROR.

I would my lady's mirror be,
So might I hold her image fair.
And then perchance she'd smile on me,
Seeing her face reflected there.

I never could her mirror be,
For when she smiled on me, ah, then
My heart would hold the image sweet
And never give it back again.
—Walter Larned, in Scribner.

LIFE.

Our lives are like a half-forgotten strain
From some great symphony, that, sad and slow,
Through memory's silent halls glides to and fro,
Seeking its kindred harmony in vain.
And thus—oh thought to all so fraught with pain!—
How many times do we complete in woe
The scanty measure of our days below,
If, seeking eagerly, we fail to gain
The lives that with our own make harmony!
What though our earthly lives seem jangling chords?
In patience let us wait our destiny;
The loving Master's plan of sweet accords
We know not; but our strains shall ever roll,
A part of His sublime harmonious whole!
—Kate A. Sanborn, in Galaxy.

CLEMATIS.

Coy frequenter of woodland ways! It flings
A frolic wealth of sweetness broadcast where
The undergrowths are thickest and the air
Is vibrant with the rush and whir of wings!
From branch to branch its hardy tendril swings
In wild, dense tangles, where no foot will care
To follow, and the brown wood-thrushes rear
Their broods unstartled. Here the vireo sings
In answering cadence through the fleet, free hours
Unto the rhythmic growing of the flowers,
Whose revelation in each dusky place
Is of blithe strength, unworn, and fine, shy grace,
As of rare souls, that joyously their own
Best lives do live, though knowing them unknown
—Mary Christine Kipp, in Scribner.

THE POET'S ART.

Call it not art: that sad, laborious name,
Oh, gentle poet, does thy warblings wrong.
When at still eve the nightingales prolong
Delicious melody, who would not blame
The cold, mechanic term for that which came,
Born of sweet throats, a gushing stream of song?
So from thy soul pours forth, oh, free and strong,
Thine own deep music on the air of fame.
Thy art is nature's; thou dost only hear
The whispered secrets of her woods and skies,
And then repeat them to the common ear
That cannot catch her finer harmonies.
Thou art her voice, and unto her so dear,
Her inmost heart is open to thine eyes.
—Charles T. Dazey, in Scribner.

UNRECOGNIZED.

What words are these you speak to her?
Ah, tranquil words and worldly wise!
You cannot see her soul astir,
On tiptoe, in her waiting eyes.

You come and go; you touch her hair,
The ring upon her slender hand.
The smiling trouble of her air
You note, but cannot understand.

You cannot understand. Ah, so
Our foolish hearts make sport of fate!
We sit and dream, while love bends low,
A kingly beggar, at the gate!
—Mary Ainge De Vere, in Galaxy.

SLEEP.

The weary portals of the sight we close;
And, in the bark of Somnus, sails unfurled,
In snowy wreaths of cloud, our souls are hurled,
At mercy of each fitful breeze that blows.
Then from the depths that prescience never knows
We through a varied flood of dreams are whirled,
And wake to find the life-stream that has curled
For ages round our planet changeless flows.
And so, when drowsy death shall seal our eyes,
And from lamenting friends we pass away,
It may be that, awaking, we shall rise
Refreshed and strengthened for a longer stay,
And find the same old earth, the same blue skies
That we but lost in slumber yesterday.
—Andrew B. Saxton, in Scribner.

HAROUN AL RASCHID.

One day, Haroun Al Raschid read
A book wherein the poet said:

"Where are the kings, and where the rest
Of men who once the world possessed?

"They're gone with all their pomp and show,
They're gone the way that thou shalt go.

"Oh, thou who choosest for thy share
The world, and what the world calls fair,

"Take all that it can give or lend,
But know that death is at the end!"

Haroun Al Raschid bowed his head;
Tears fell upon the page he read.
—Henry W. Longfellow, in St. Nicholas.

A SONG.

What time the violets bloom, my dear,
In ways that you and I regret,
I saw your gray eyes first grow clear
With love I cannot fathom yet,
But never may forget, my dear—
But never may forget!

What time the winds blow fresh, my dear,
A fragrant balm was blown to me;
I felt the blossom-time draw near;
My blood, like sap in flower or tree,
Swelled for the fruit to be, my dear—
The hope of fruit to be!

What time the violets fade, my dear,
What time the winds blow chill and wet,
Through changeful seasons year on year,
Though moons may wane and suns may set,
Oh, say you won't forget, my dear—
Oh, say you won't forget!
—Atlantic Monthly.

GHOST STORIES.

The events which I record in this paper have taken place either in my own family or in the families of intimate friends, or are from the narration of persons of strict veracity. I begin with one told me very lately by a pious and useful minister of the Church of England. I give this anecdote of his boyish days as much as possible in his own words.

"I was brought up by my grandfather and grandmother, who resided in the old family mansion on the banks of the Derwent, in Derbyshire. This venerable place, which had belonged to our family from the time of the Norman Conquest, had a wide reputation for being haunted, and indeed the strange noises which were heard and the strange tricks which were played, for which nothing rational could account, made the belief of general acceptance. From generation to generation no death had occurred in our family without some supernatural warning being given, and in what I am about to tell you I was the person visited for this purpose.

"When I was about 17 years of age, it was rather suddenly agreed that I should go with 'granny,' as I called her, to pay a visit of a few days to my parents, who lived in the suburbs of Manchester. During the past summer my youngest sister, Lizzie, with whom I had been very little acquainted before, had paid us a visit at the time of hay-making, and I remember thinking that she was the most beautiful child I had ever seen. Always in white, with lovely auburn hair floating in long curls over her shoulders, and playfully darting in and out among the hay-makers, she appeared to me something angelic, and when her visit was ended—I quite grieved over her departure. I was therefore much pleased when granny asked me to accompany her to Manchester, as I should see my dear little sister again. A year before we had lost an aunt to whom we were deeply attached, and her bereaved husband was at the present time inhabiting one wing of our old family mansion. It was the 19th of December, 185–, that, after carefully packing my box for the journey and laying quite at the bottom of the box, as it stood in a corner of my room, some articles of black crape which I had worn at my aunt's funeral, I went to pay a farewell visit to my uncle in his part of the house. After I had sat with him for some time the hall clock struck 4, and just at that moment I felt a deadly chill and shivering all over me, exactly as if I had been suddenly plunged into cold water. I became deadly pale, and my uncle in an alarmed tone asked what was the matter with me. I said I did not know, but that I had never felt such a strange sensation before. My uncle imagined that I must have taken cold and recommended my going early to bed, as I was to travel the following day.

"Having quite recovered from my unpleasant feelings, I spent the evening as usual, and retired to bed at the accustomed time. Now, my bedroom was at the end of a long, narrow corridor, and exactly opposite the door by which I entered was the door of a room said to be haunted, which was always kept closed, and which no servant in the house could be persuaded to enter; indeed, they very unanimously avoided going into the corridor itself after dark, though it opened into many bedrooms besides my own. I had two or three times, while a boy, been in the haunted room with my grandfather; I saw nothing remarkable about it but a good deal of moldy, old-fashioned furniture, and an immense, funereal-looking bed at one end, with hangings which had once been splendid but were now dropping to pieces from age and neglect. The bed in my room stood exactly facing the door by which I entered and the door of the haunted room across the passage. Another door on the same side of the room was blocked up by my box, which stood against it. I cannot distinctly remember whether or not in entering for the night I closed my bedroom door, but think it almost certain that I did so, for it was December and the weather very cold. I went to bed full of my to-morrow's journey, and not giving a single thought to either ghosts or haunted rooms went fast to sleep. How long I slept I cannot guess, but I found myself sitting up in bed intently watching the door of my room, which was wide open, and the door of the haunted room, which was also open, and which I could see distinctly across the corridor as the moonlight fell upon it. From this room came a figure which I watched across the passage, and which, on approaching my bed, I at once recognized as the aunt I had lost the year before, dressed in the same clothes I had last seen her in. She had a most fond and tender expression on her face, but it changed into an angry frown when, stretching over the side of the bed, I tried to embrace her, exclaiming, 'Oh, dear aunt, is that you?' I felt that I clasped the empty air, the figure vanishing in an instant from my sight. I thought I had been dreaming, and lay down again, to wake up a short time afterward and see again the figure of my aunt, but now differently dressed, advancing from the haunted room into mine, this time not coming to the bed but going to the box I had packed and placed in the corner ready for the next day. This she appeared to rummage over, displacing the contents and then tossing the things back again. I watched her with the greatest astonishment, and saw her go slowly out of my door into the door of the haunted room. I don't know whether I slept again or not, but a third time I was sitting up in bed, a third time my aunt came in, this time close up to the bed, in long, flowing white clothes—a dress in which I had never seen her. I almost gasped out, 'Dear aunt, why do you come?' to which she replied very clearly and distinctly, but with something of effort, 'I come to make an important communication, but it is all comprised in these words: Poor Lizzie! But don't grieve; Lizzie is quite happy!' As she finished these words I started from the bed with outstretched arms, but she had vanished, and I fell heavily to the floor where she had stood. I suppose that after getting back to bed I slept till morning, but as soon as I saw my grandmother I told her all the circumstances and made her look at my box, which was in the greatest disorder, and all the articles of mourning which I had placed at the bottom of the box I found at the top. My grandmother looked grave but said nothing. I still persisted in thinking it but a curious dream, and we started on our journey that very morning. I was quite in my usual spirits when we arrived at the last railway station. From here we had still a long walk to where my parents lived, and, as we were not expected, I pleased myself by thinking how surprised they would all be. We arrived, and just as I laid my hand on the latch of the garden gate to open it for granny, I felt exactly the same deathly chill and shivering which had come over me while sitting with my uncle the evening before. When I had recovered and we were going up the long gravel walk, I said to my grandmother, 'How strange the house looks, granny! All the windows are draped with white, and I never remember my mother's room having white curtains before.' Granny made no answer, and as we knocked at the door my mother opened it, led us into the hall, and received us most affectionately, but spoke in a hushed, subdued tone which frightened me. Her first words were, 'How glad I am you are come! we looked for you some hours ago.' 'How can that be,' we replied, 'when we meant to surprise you, and did not write that we were coming?' 'But did you not,' said she, 'get my two letters?—the one in which I wrote of dear Lizzie's dangerous illness from scarlet fever a week ago, and one to tell you of her death at 4 o'clock yesterday, which last ought to have reached you before you started this morning?' This was a dreadful blow to us, for, as we told my mother, we had received neither letter. When we were a little recovered from the shock, my mother told us that, the day before, Lizzie knew she was dying and said she felt quite happy; she took leave of all the family then at home, and referring to me said, 'I should have liked to say good-by to dear Tom—poor Tom! Give my love to Tom!' As she said these last words she fell back and passed away; just at that moment the clock struck 4. She died, then, exactly at the time when I felt the deathly chill while sitting with my uncle.

"After my grandfather's death I was placed till I was five-and-twenty in business with a master who proved to be a professed atheist. Finding me to be an intelligent lad and more than usually well grounded in the scriptures, he made it his daily business, by specious argument and covert ridicule, to undermine my Christian belief, and often flattered himself that he was on the point of succeeding. He certainly would have done so but for my remembrance of my aunt's appearance in my bedroom at the time of Lizzie's death. Whenever I had time for reflection and thought of that, I felt assured that there was not only a state of being after death, but a directing power by whose agency even a disembodied spirit could return to the scene of its earthly pilgrimage."

A young English lady nearly connected with our family married, while visiting in Germany, a gentleman of rank and fortune, with whose mother, who lived at a distance of about forty miles away, she became a great favorite. At the birth of her first baby she was much distressed that her kind mother-in-law, the Frau von B——, was not present, nor did her husband venture to tell her that illness—not, however, supposed to be dangerous—was the cause. All went well in the sick-room, and five days afterward Madame B——, her baby boy by her side, was sleeping soundly, with her curtains drawn, just as darkness had settled down at the close of a winter's day. Contrary to her usual custom the nurse, seeing the lady so fast asleep, had left the room to get something necessary for the night. Madame B—— awoke on feeling the pressure of an icy-cold hand on her arm, and, looking up hastily, saw by the light of the lamp her mother-in-law hanging over her and the baby with a very sad expression on her face, which was ashy pale. Raising herself in the bed, the young mother exclaimed, "O dearest mother! when did you come? I am so glad!" The mother-in-law sighed deeply, and replied, "I am only come, dear Alice, to say farewell forever; you will never see more on earth!" She instantly vanished out of sight, and the nurse, returning, found her lady in state of great excitement and alarm, calling for her mother-in-law and saying that she must be in the house, having just left her bedside. The poor lady was ill for many days, and it was long before she was told that her husband's mother had died at her own castle, forty miles away, at the very moment when she stood beside her.

A sister of this young Madame B—— was staying at Brighton, with the family of a young friend, in a deplorable state of health, but who was gradually getting better under the care of a doctor, clever and zealous, who visited her daily, and took the greatest interest in her case. He was a tall, slender man, with long, thin fingers, most remarkably white, and a countenance which seemed to bear the impress of all the woes and troubles of his numerous patients, so deep was the sympathy he felt for those who suffered. One day there was much sorrow in the family; the kind physician, on whose visits they so much depended, died suddenly; none of them dared to tell the invalid, and, for a few days, nothing was said, but the family noticed that poor Minnie S—— looked very pensive and grave. At length her mother thought it best to tell her, when she quietly replied, "I have known it from the first; he came and told me himself, and comes to see me every night!" A few nights after this, for some reason or another, the invalid went to sleep in a different room, and the young friend staying on a visit took her place in the vacated bed. Toward midnight the family, who kept late hours, retired for the night, and Georgy D—— took possession of her friend's bed, quite ignorant of the doctor's nightly visits. In about an hour loud shrieks were heard from the room, and the young girl was found on the side of the bed, pale, trembling, and almost convulsed with terror. She said that, having undressed and gone to bed, first shutting and locking the bedroom door, she went fast to sleep, leaving her curtains undrawn, and the lamp on the dressing-table alight. She was awakened by a rustling noise beside her bed, and, starting up, saw the doctor, dressed just as he was in life, standing there. He then sat down on the side of the bed and laid his long, pale hand on her arm, but the moment he saw that the occupant of the bed was changed he got up, and vanished from her sight before reaching the door. Strange to say, that very instant he went to the room where Minnie S—— was sleeping, and held his customary conversation with her, quite unseen and unheard by Annie D——, a younger sister of the one to whom he had just been so plainly visible. After a time his visits ceased.

At the close of the Burmese war, Lieut. K——, a young officer who had been severely wounded in one of the actions and subsequently attacked by fever, was sent home on a sick certificate some months before the return of his regiment, whose term of service in India had nearly expired. He left many friends behind him, but none from whom he more deeply regretted to part than Mr. P——, the British collector at Madura, with whom he had been for years on terms of most familiar intimacy. The very first night of his landing in England, after an absence which dated from boyhood, he lay long awake in his bed at the hotel where he had taken up his quarters. He felt very restless, and thought over all he had gone through in India, and the friends he had left, to see, probably, no more. Among these he thought of his friend P——. It was past midnight, and he was still meditating, when he heard some one in the room, though he had locked the door before undressing. He looked to the side from which the sound came, and distinctly saw his friend P——, not far from the bed, gazing at him very mournfully. Astonished beyond measure, he prepared to step out of bed, exclaiming, "Why, P——! Whatever brings you here?" His friend waved his hand as if to keep him off, shook his head sadly, and, gliding toward the door, suddenly disappeared. K—— remained awake nearly the whole night, quite unable to account for what had happened. In due course of time the mails from India brought word that P—— had died of cholera, at Madura, after a few hours' illness, on the very night in which he appeared to Lieut. K.

Some time after my dear mother's death, I was sitting with my father, Col. D——, in his dressing-room, and we were mutually deploring our dreadful misfortune, and going over, as we were too prone to do, many of the circumstances attending her last illness. I remarked to him, among other things, that her illness was in the beginning so slight that I should not have felt the least fear as to the result had I not been extremely discouraged by the sadness and preoccupation of mind manifested by himself at that time. My father, after some hesitation, related to me the occurrence which had occasioned his unwonted depression of spirits, which I can truly say I listened to in dumb astonishment, so unlikely a person did he appear to have experienced anything of the sort.

He was sitting one evening after dinner with my mother, conversing on various subjects. The wine and dessert having been placed on the table, they drew their chairs up to each corner of a blazing fire, the evenings being chilly, though it was only the early autumn. After a time my mother appeared to be dozing in her chair, and my father drew out his pocket-book to make a note of some visit he had to pay the next day. He found, however, that the pencil-case he always carried in his pocket, and much valued as the gift of an old friend, was not there, and, concluding that he had left it on his dressing-table before dinner, quietly left the room to fetch it. The staircase went up from the hall, and at the first landing branched off into two smaller staircases, the one to the left leading to my mother's apartments, a bedroom and dressing-room fronting the lawn, with a wide landing-place and window between the two rooms; the one to the right, through an arched door-way into a long corridor, with bedrooms on each side, and a back staircase at the end. My father's dressing-room was in the middle of the corridor. Having found his pencil-case, he was coming out of the arched door-way before mentioned, when he saw my mother before him on the small flight of stairs leading to her own rooms. She turned into her dressing-room, and my father, much surprised to see her, followed to give her his arm in coming down again, as she was rather infirm. What was his astonishment on entering the room to find no one there. He could hardly believe the evidence of his senses, and when, on returning to the dining-room, he found my mother in her chair by the fire exactly as he had left her, he knew not what to think. When she roused up before tea, he asked whether she had left the room since dinner, to which she answered, "Not for a moment." When my father was on his death-bed, he was for some time delirious, but, on the last morning, a few hours before death, he was perfectly lucid, and said to me, "I shall soon leave you, my child; your dear mother has come to fetch me!" Then, seeing, doubtless, my look of awed astonishment, he added, "Yes, my dear wife has lain by my side all night." I had never left his bedside, but had neither seen nor heard anything unusual, except that during the night he seemed, at intervals, to be talking fondly to some one near him.—H. B. K., in Atlantic Monthly for October.

A Wonderful Hunt.

Sol Kimball, of Warren county, saw from his breakfast-table a young buck grazing on the side of a ravine about 300 yards from the house. He seized his rifle, and, without any other ammunition than the one ball therein contained, proceeded, by the aid of the garden fence, to slip up on the buck. He reached the ravine, and noiselessly made his way to within a good gunshot distance of the buck, which had then descended to the ravine. He fired, and, though a good marksman, missed his shot, but killed two deer that were grazing just beyond. As he went up the ravine to recover his game, he flushed a flock of wild turkeys, which by the way was his favorite game. He soon erected a "blind," and with his mouth yelped up a fine gobbler. It was not until he drew a "bead" on the trusty rifle that he was reminded that there was no load in it and that he had no ammunition along. By much perseverence he finally got the gobbler within three feet of his "blind," and, jumping out suddenly and at the same time making a very hideous yell, so frightened his turkeyship as to prevent him from flying. Sol ran him down, caught him, and wrung off his head. After getting his two deer and the turkey-gobbler, he started home, and upon his way came upon a covey of partridges. He imitated by his voice a young partridge in distress, whereupon the entire flock, with ruffled feathers, made an attack upon him. He drew his ramrod from the rifle and took his time in killing each and every one of the covey as they approached him for battle. Hugh J. Jones, Esq., of Warren county will vouch for the foregoing facts.—Raleigh (N. C.) Observer.

Women Telegraphers.

In Berlin there are about 100 females employed in the telegraph office, and among them are to be found women of good standing in society. Those who enter are trained in the necessary theoretical and practical knowledge in a special school, established by the post-office authorities. The preliminary examination is higher in its requirements than in England, comprising English, French, geography, and the construction of German sentences. A three months' course is required in the practising rooms, where the management of the apparatus is taught, and a practical examination is then passed. Lectures upon physics and chemistry are then attended twice a week for five months, after which an appointment is given. Then another written and verbal examination must be passed upon the internal management of the telegraph service, and the uses of the various portions of the apparatus. When all these trials have been successfully passed the candidate receives a permanent appointment. The service is in great demand, and the work of the ladies is said to be highly satisfactory.

A PUMPKIN that measures over six feet in circumference, and weighs above 200 pounds, is now growing on a farm in California.

HOW TO KILL DEER.

A Young Texan Tells of His First Attack of "Buck Fever."

[From the San Antonio Herald.]

We give the following letter from an enthusiastic young Antonian, now visiting the Western hills for the benefit of his health:

"This morning I was sauntering along the banks of your romantic stream, and, in the absence of a gun, was enjoying a little hunt with my pistol and a hatchet which I had slung in my belt. Turning around in the stream I saw a short distance in advance two deer standing in the edge of the stream. I quietly crept up, and, taking a careful aim, fired, wounding the largest of the two somewhere in the leg. At the crack of my old pistol the deer made a spring for deep water, and I, in the flush of excitement (my first case of genuine "buck fever"), made a leap into the stream in pursuit of my prize. Strange as it may seem, I reached the plunging animal, grasped hold of the tail, and hung there for dear life. The deer, more frightened than hurt, now commenced a frantic voyage of discovery, trying to discover what style of spring and plunging was best calculated to free itself from the firm grasp of my muscular hand. It swam into deep water and into shallow water, across the stream, up the stream and down the stream, but to no purpose. I could sometimes touch bottom, and sometimes couldn't, but I held on all the same. The deer tried to kick me off, but, being in the water, the force of its kicking did not avail much.

"After towing me all over the stream, and down about a quarter of a mile, the deer seemed to resolve on a new style of tactics. It every little while made a frantic effort to turn about and fight me with its front feet and horns, and I had to do some tall swimming around the circle to prevent the accomplishment of its design. After it had tried this repeatedly, I struck an idea—that as soon as we struck bottom again, and where I thought I could get a footing, to court this turning-around motion of the deer and kill the animal with my little hatchet. As we went sailing along through a deep channel I succeeded in getting my hatchet out of my belt, and we soon struck a bar, where we both found good footing. The deer had no sooner touched bottom than it made a turn on me again, and I, letting up on the tail, allowed it to turn and come for me, and, as it did so, I delivered a well-poised blow that laid it out. You can well imagine what a blow it must have been when I had drank about three-fourths of a quart of fresh milk before starting on the expedition. After getting my breath a little, I dragged my fine prize ashore, and went back to change my clothes and get a team to take it home. I think that I justly claim the champion's belt until some fellow actually catches a deer in his hat."

Scarlet Fever Precautions.

Among the various State Boards of Health, those of Massachusetts and Michigan deserve special prominence for the character of their researches and their application of the principles of sanitary science. Quite lately the Michigan board has issued a circular in reference to the restriction and prevention of scarlet fever, believing that by proper precaution epidemics of this kind can be easily prevented.

They set out with the proposition that scarlet fever is now believed to be one of the most contagious diseases, and requires as careful treatment of the patient and of his excretions as in cases of small-pox, like which, also, it has a period of incubation of from one to fourteen days.

The first precaution is the isolation of the sick from the well, and the prevention of contact with the patient. The room should be cleared from all unnecessary clothing, carpets, or other substances in which the poison may lurk and be thence transferred elsewhere. The patient should use rags in place of handkerchiefs, so that they may be burned. Body and bed linen should be placed in vessels of water containing chloride of lime or similar substance. Discharges should be received in a solution of sulphate of iron or copper, and be afterward buried. Persons recovering from this disease should be considered dangerous as long as there is any scaling of the skin, soreness of the eyes, etc. Many other precautions are inculcated, all of which are considered more or less important.—Harper's Weekly.

Tax Oppression in Turkey.

It is a marvel to me how any people in the world can persist in engaging in agriculture under a system of such outrageous taxation as is carried out by the Turkish Government. This oppression is by no means confined to Christians; the Mohammedan farmers are subject to the same drawbacks. It seems as if the Sultan's officers impose the heaviest taxes where they are the easiest collected, without the slightest regard for justice or fitness. The tillers of the soil cannot run away or hide their crops or avoid a valuation of their crops as merchants and traders can, and therefore they are made to pay more than any other class. The revenue officers simply farm out the grain and cattle tax (to be paid in kind) of each village or district to contractors, who pay in cash and are furnished with a police force to collect their dues, enjoying complete liberty for practicing all sorts of tricks and oppression on their own account.—Letter from Turkey.

The Prince of Wales' Indian Presents.

I doubt if Solomon ever saw anything so gorgeous as this collection at Bethnal Green. Fancy a whole large glass case full of gold and silver gems. All ablaze with diamonds! Imagine a bedstead, whose coverlet, pillows and curtains are made of India shawls of the finest texture ever turned out from the looms of Cashmere! Conjure up a dressing-gown composed of the plumage off the backs of millions of gorgeous-hued humming-birds! See for yourself a palanquin of tortoise shell, inlaid with gold, with downy cushions covered with strange stuffs whose woof seems as if it were diamonds, its web rubies and emeralds. One glass case is full of jeweled swords, all of enormous value and great beauty. The handsomest came from Delhi, and, with its jeweled hilt and scabbard and waist belt, is valued at $50,000.—London Letter.

CRICKETS.

BY JOHN WEISS.

In twilight of the waning year,
When day bestrides their summer noise,
The cricket wishes me to hear
His brooding o'er the season's joys.

His note is nature's retrospect,
That solaces her mind in change;
A hundred [illegible] of flowers are wrecked
And strewed on its tender range.

Broad dawns that stirred the lids of earth,
First breaths of the unsullied days,
Long hours whose only toil was mirth,
Whose sails we set for western bays.

And shook our sunset colors out
As signals to the evening star
That in the offing beat about
To show us reefs of dusk afar;

The summer mists that throbbed to keep
A blitheness in the silent trees
All night, to pipe us from our sleep—
The cricket broods and thinks of these.

[illegible]
To sort regret among the grass
And dreams no longer [illegible]
To light short afternoons that pass.

My summer days a-pondering [illegible]
Along the ground, and listens well,
As all the footsteps of the year
Upon the edge of distance swell.

They fade, they shrink to this thin tone,
On every trembling nerve it plays;
Of roses plucked, of meadows mown,
It tells, of all my perfect days;

Of moments tuned by new delight,
Of thoughts that soared upon their wing
And balanced sung my secret plight—
That whole surprise of blossoming;

Those bumpers of a dauntless vein,
Poured often as my June came near
To pledge to nature's new refrain;
That kiss-warm epistles of my year!
—Atlantic Monthly for October.

PITH AND POINT.

A COLORED postmaster is now called a black mailer.

AFFECTION which is never reciprocated—Neuralgic affection.

A PARTIAL libel—Most men love little women, and little women love most men.

THERE'S one melancholy fact about a calendar—there's no time when its day are not numbered.

WHY are some women very much like tea-kettles? Because they sing away pleasantly, and then all at once boil over.

IN New Jersey, when they want to praise a man, they say, "He has such a mean-looking face that a fly wouldn't light on it.

WHY is a young lady who has just left boarding-school like a building committee? Because she is ready to receive proposals.

THE Hawk-Eye notes the fact that the boy who does not know that the gun is loaded is nevertheless always to be found at the safe end of the gun.

A MAN declares that it is impossible for him to keep out of trouble, for in the best times his business drives him to the wall. He is a bill-poster.

IT is suggested that one reason wh Californians hate Chinese is because th latter introduced the fashion of havi shirts washed at least once a week.

WOMEN like to be loved; but if the woman with a high hat at the church knew how much she is hated for severa pews round she might not feel so vain.

"GRANDMA, why don't you keep a servant any longer?" "Well, you see, my child, I am getting old now, and can't take care of one as I used to, you know."

"WHY don't you mount a clean collar, Brown? I do three times a day." "Yes," replied Brown to the boaster; "but every one's mother isn't a washer-woman."

AN Irish pilot being asked if he knew the rocks in the harbor, replied with confidence, "I do, yer honor, ivery wan ov thim. That's wan," he said, calmly, as the ship struck, filled and sunk.

THE wide columns of the New York Tribune are very advantageous during the European war. They can, once in a while, get in a Russian General's name without overrunning into the next line.

SPORTSMAN (after a fruitless tramp)—"I say, boy, is there anything to shoot about here?" Boy—"Well, nothing about here; but the schoolmaster is down the hill yonder; you can pop him over."

MABEL: "Do take me out, mamma!" Mamma: "I can't, darling, to-day; I am going to shop, and make so many calls." Mabel: "Well, it's very hard; you shouldn't keep a child if you cannot take it out."

MEDICAL authorities unite in denouncing hair-dyes as dangerous, because of their influence on the brain. When we find a man who has any brains using hair-dye we will warn him.—Toledo Blade.

HANDSOME BUT SHY: "Ah! good morning, miss. Is your father at home? I have some important matters to propose to him." Demure miss: "I am very sorry that my father is out, but why not propose to me? I'm not engaged." (Handsome but Shy retreats in dismay.)

"YES," said she, "a dish of ice-cream relaxes the muscles of my heart, but two dishes—Oh, two dishes! makes me feel as though I could love on and on forever." So he ordered the waiter to bring on another dish, and he counted not the cost.

THE latest addition to the English language is the word "suiciding." The San Francisco News Letter, writing the biography of a fellow-citizen, says: "Mr. Jones felodesed this morning successfully. He hymeneated three years ago, and he will be sepulchred to-morrow."

THE following are two stanzas of a song which is very popular among the colored worshipers of this city and which is often sung at revivals:

I shake de dus' off ob my feet,
An' walk barefoot on the golden street.
I know my hide's chuck full of sin,
But I know old Peter will let me in.
Den rise, children, rise up in a crowd,
An' shout an' sing to the angels loud;
An' fix your eyes on de lan' ob rest,
Kase hell am hot as a hornet's nest.
—Raleigh Observer.

DR. W. R. BARTLETT, of New Haven, treats in the September number of the Sanitarian of the causes of disease in country homes. The causes are bad air, impure water, improper food and clothing, unsuitable dwellings, and exhausting occupations. More attention is now given, Dr. Bartlett says, to healthful conditions of life in the city than in the country, although the country is more favorable to health if right conditions are observed.

CINCINNATI consumed 52,000 barrels of beer during August.

AGRICULTURAL AND DOMESTIC.

The American Farmer.

Farm labor, 'tis the primal toil
That dates from Eden, on whose soil
The angels [illegible]
And [illegible]

The farmer [illegible]
Among his fields and pastures wide;
His home-like house and happy nest,
With [illegible]

The [illegible] well stored
With full and generous harvest hoard—
This little world, which he has planned,
Has grown and thriven 'neath his hand.

He walks beneath the spreading shade
Of trees he planted [illegible] his [illegible] do
Before his well-grown boys were born,
And neither give him cause to mourn.

The cattle [illegible] his call,
And toss their heads above the wall;
And every creature round the place
Looks fondly in his kindly face.

He takes delight—and who would not?—
In showing one his garden plot;
His orchards laughing in the sun,
A well-deserved praise have won.

To Nature's beauties never blind,
He good in everything can find.
The voice of Poverty he heeds—
Forgets its faults and feeds its needs.

By duty done and time well spent
He earns the best of boons—content,
That in its train [illegible]
Brings [illegible]

Around the Farm.

To make cabbages head properly, a pinch of salt to each head, or a slight watering with weak lime, is very beneficial.

The swamps are now dry, and work on them should not be neglected. Getting out muck for use in winter and digging ditches can be better done in August than at any other time.

Gather and put in the compost heap all the weeds that have not yet seeded. Burn all that have ripe seeds. This work should not be neglected. Upon many farms the roadsides, barnyard fences and the sites of old grain-stacks are most prolific nurseries for weeds. These should be cleared up at once.

"Pusley" or purslane, anathematized here as a pest by our farmers and gardeners, is carefully cultivated and considered a very choice and delicious vegetable by those of Europe. Prejudice alone prevents people in every part of the world from using many edibles highly prized by those equally civilized elsewhere.

A Manlius, Onandaga county (N. Y.) farmer writes that last fall he sowed twenty acres to wheat, applying 225 bushels of damaged salt, and this season he has harvested from the same land 1,120 bushels of fine wheat, averaging forty bushels to the acre. He keeps eight horses, twenty-five cows, a large flock of sheep, and forty-seven hogs, and believes in genuine grain-growing, stock-raising husbandry.

Farm horses in the fall are often ungratefully neglected. Their hard toil in helping with the heavy work of the season once over, when only odd jobs await them, it is too frequent a custom to dock them of their grain and allow them to shift for themselves on the pastures, often without needed shelter from the bleak winds and early frosts of autumn nights. After feeding a while the poor animals get chilled, and run about in the dark in search of warmth, which they often find only at the cost of a stumble or fall, resulting often in a sprain or a cut that disfigures them for life. Then, when warm and tired they lie down to rest, what wonder if they rise up stiff, spiritless and, not rarely suffering from a severe cold after their heated blood and relaxed sinews have been exposed to the blasts and frosts of a chilly night! When the days are not stormy, it is well enough to let horses run in the pasture, but every autumn night should find them comfortably bedded and fed in the stable. Ingratitude to our fellow men is justly considered an odious vice, but is there not often a strong taint of it also in the treatment of these noble animals, to whose faithful help in all kinds of drudgery farmers are deeply indebted for full barns and comfortable homes?

Care of the privy is by far too rare on the farm. By a little management, however, the premises might be kept from disagreeable odors, the contents of the vault utilized for garden purposes, and "night work" done at one's leisure in the day-time, without offense to the most sensitive nose in the neighborhood. A correspondent of the agricultural department of the Weekly Tribune tells how this can be effected: First, allow no slops to be poured into the vault; otherwise you will have a nuisance in spite of all you can do. Second, have some other place of deposit for broken dishes, bottles and other rubbish that will not decay; if put into the vault these must eventually be sorted out again, and they hinder the action of absorbents. Third, have on hand, for use from time to time, some road-dust, dry loam, hard-wood sawdust, or sifted coal ashes. There is no disinfectant or absorbent better than road-dust gathered in dry weather, though many other materials are almost as good. If these be frequently and liberally sprinkled into the vault, there will never be any bad odor, and the vault need not be emptied oftener than once in two years. The composted deposit can be removed without offense to the eye or nose, and, with a little diluting with dry earth, is excellent dressing for almost any crop.

About the House.

Small Beer.—A handful of hops to a pail of water. 1 pint of bran, ½ pint of molasses, 1 cupful yeast, 1 spoonful of ginger.

Harvest Drink.—Five gallons of water, ½ gallon of molasses, 1 quart of vinegar, and 2 ounces of powdered ginger.

Remedy for Poison Ivy.—E. A. Blood, of Bloomington, Ill., says that bran poultice is an infallible cure for poison ivy.

Ginger Beer.—One cup of ginger, 1 pint of molasses, 1½ pails of water, and 1 cup of lively yeast, slightly warm; bottle and cork securely.

White Spruce Beer.—Three pounds of loaf-sugar, 5 gallons of water, with essence of spruce to taste, 1 cupful of good yeast, and some lemon peel.

To Remove Fruit Stains.—To remove an apple stain on cloth: Dampen the spots and hold them over a lighted match; the sulphur smoke will bleach it out. This will also remove apple and berry stains from the hands.—Ohio Farmer.

Good-Templar Beer.—One pin. of [illegible] handful of hops, [illegible] spruce, hemlock, or [illegible] little sassafras, roots of burdock, plantain, docks and dandelion; boil and strain, and add a spoonful of ginger molasses and a cupful of yeast. The above will make a gallon.

Relief for Frosted Feet.—For frosted feet, take pure flaxseed oil, bathe your feet, and rub in by the fire well before going to bed; wrap some old clothes around the feet to keep the oil from rubbing off, and bathe again in the morning. A few applications will remove all soreness and itching.—American Farm Journal.

Home-Made Ink.—Take half an ounce of extract of logwood and ten grains of bichromate of potash, and dissolve them in a quart of rain water in a bottle kept uncorked. The bottle should be perfectly clean and free from any other ink. Running the logwood through a fine strainer will remove all sediment.—Evening Wisconsin.

Mote from the Eye.—Take a horse-hair and double it, leaving a loop. If the mote can be seen, lay the loop over it, close the eye, and the mote will come out as the hair is withdrawn. If it cannot be seen, raise the lid of the eye as far as possible, and place the loop in it as far as you can, close the eye and roll the ball a few times, then draw out the hair. The substance which caused so much pain will be sure to come out with it.—Scientific American.

How to Tend a Coal Fire.—Replenish a coal fire as soon as the coals begin to show ashes on the surface; then put on merely enough to show a layer of black coal covering the red. This will soon kindle, and, as there is not much of it, an excess of heat will be given out. Many persons almost put out the fire by stirring the grate as soon as fresh coal is put on, thus leaving all the heat in the ashes when it should be sent to the new supply of coal. The time to stir the fire is just when the new coal laid on is pretty well kindled. This method saves fuel, gives a more uniform heat, and prevents the discomfort of alternations of heat and cold.—Housekeeper.

Artificial Lemonade.—Loaf sugar 2 pounds, tartaric acid ½ ounce, essence of lemon 30 drops, essence of almonds 20 drops. Dissolve the tartaric acid in 2 pints of hot water, add the sugar, and lastly the lemon and almond; stir well, cover with a cloth, and leave until cold; put 2 table-spoonfuls into a tumbler, and fill up with cold water. The drink, it is said, will be found much more refreshing and more palatable than either ginger beer or lemonade, and costs only 80 cents for 10 pints. The addition of a very little bicarbonate of potash to each tumblerful just before drinking will give a wholesome effervescing drink.—Scientific American.

A Prisoner's Trained Mouse.

The New Haven (Conn.) Register tells the following of the alleged murderer, Andersen, who is waiting a new trial at the county jail in that city.

"He some time since caught a mouse in his cell, caged him, and has carefully trained him. Andersen will hold a string suspended from his fingers, and in broken English command the mouse to 'up, like a sailor,' whereupon the little animal will lay hold of the string with his feet and climb to the prisoner's hand. The mouse will also sit at command on his hind legs on a teacup, will crawl up the prisoner's face through his mustache and over his nose, and finally jump from the man's head to his hand, completing his performance with a graceful bow. One of the most interesting things concerning the history of this little acrobat is the great love it has for the prisoner. When Andersen was moved a few weeks ago to another and a darker cell, the mouse was lost, and, although carefully sought after by the keeper, could not be found. Andersen was deeply grieved over the disappearance of his tiny companion, who he feared had been killed, and even the prison officials expressed regret that the little creature should have dropped so completely and mysteriously out of the usually dull routine of prison life. Great was the joy, therefore, of Andersen, and of all in the jail, when one day the mouse made its appearance at the door of Andersen's new cell, and, running in, resumed its accustomed place by the prisoner's side. It is stated that the little animal seemed as greatly rejoiced as its master over the reunion."

De Garden ob Eden.

"Allus blow'n' about de wah in Europe whenever I comes around heah," remarked brother Gardner yesterday to a colored crowd on the benches at the Central market.

"It's a big wah and I likes to keep posted," replied one who had been reading the news to the rest.

"Charles Henry, look dis way fur an hour or so," said the old man as he put down his whitewash brush. "Now, den, whar' was de Garden ob Eden?"

"Woosh! what I know 'bout dat garden?"

"Dar it am—dar it am, Charles Henry!" exclaimed the old man as he wiped his bald head on his coat-sleeve. "Here you is, whoopin' aroun' 'bout de Russian wah an' all dat, when you doan' know nuffin 'bout de history ob your own State! Dat's de way wid lots o' folks. Dey'll make de biggest kind o' fuss 'bout Europe, when, fur all dey know, some of de watermelons which growed in de Garden ob Eden kin be picked in de fence corners not six miles from dis market—purwided de night am dark 'nuff!"—Detroit Free Press.

During the recent convention of Governors at New York, the Governor of North Carolina rose to make his usual remark, but, observing that the Governor of Boston was present, he so far amended the original resolution as to say to the Governor of South Carolina that the leaden hours on the slow unfolding wings had dragged their weary lengths in mock eternities nigh half way round the tiresome dial-plate since last night they bent the pregnant hinges of the elbow and touched with earthly nectar rare, from old Kentucky's copper-bottomed hills, the parch-ed lips, to cool with gurgling dewiness the dry and whistling throat.—Burlington Hawk-Eye.

The supply of lithographic stone is rapidly falling off. Over $10,000,000 worth is consumed annually.

Are Soldiers' Tents to be Proscribed?

The Avenir Militaire, commenting on some articles recently contributed by Gen. Lewal to the Journal des Sciences Militaires, agrees with this latter that tents must be proscribed during war. A man requires, the Avenir Militaire remarks, during a night of seven hours two [illegible] of pure air. [illegible] consequently, should have eighteen and two-thirds cubic meters of fresh air; but eight men sheltered by two tentes d'abri placed together, as is the custom in French camps in bad weather, have only about one-seventeenth of this quantity to breathe, and the circulation of air through the tent is not sufficient to make up the deficiency. The men, therefore, must breathe an impure atmosphere throughout the night, and their health must suffer in consequence. Even in the bell-tent, which, relatively to the number of men who sleep in it, is of larger dimensions, the amount of air is insufficient; and, moreover, the tents, being of considerable weight, must be carried in wagons for the men, and, consequently, would almost invariably have to be left behind during rapid operations in the field. Troops, therefore, on active service will generally be obliged either to bivouac in the open or to be cantoned in towns and villages adjacent to the line of march. As a rule, the Avenir Militaire holds it will be possible to find accommodation for the main body of a column, but the advanced guards, and especially the screen of cavalry which should cover the front of an army, will almost always be obliged to bivouac.

Ingersoll, Paine and Voltaire.

Col. Robert G. Ingersoll recently challenged the religious world to prove that either Thomas Paine or Voltaire recanted his convictions on his death-bed, or died exhibiting remorse on account of his teachings. The New York Observer accepted the challenge, and offered to prove it in regard to one or both. Col. Ingersoll having returned to Peoria, Ill., and heard of the acceptance, says he will immediately deposit $1,000 in gold in bank, subject to the order of Dr. Prime when indorsed by the tribunal, which shall consist of three men—one to be chosen by Ingersoll, one by Prime, and a third by the agreement of the two. Col. Ingersoll adds:

"From the date of accepting this offer you may have ninety days to collect and present your testimony, giving me notice of time and place of taking depositions. I shall have a like time to take evidence upon my side, giving you like notice, and you shall then have thirty days to take further testimony in reply to what I may offer. The case shall then be argued before the persons chosen; and their decision shall be final as to us. If Paine and Voltaire died filled with childish and silly fear, I want to know it, and I want the world to know it. On the other hand, if the believers in superstition have made and circulated these cruel slanders concerning the mighty dead, I want the world to know that."

Allied Enemies to Health.

In many of the fairest and most fertile districts of North and Tropical America, air and water are allied enemies to health, both being impregnated with the poisonous miasmata which produce chills and fever, bilious remittents and febrile disorders of a still more malignant type. Fortunately, a sure preventive and curative of such destructive maladies is to be found in Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, a vegetable preparation which is infinitely to be preferred, both on account of its efficacy and freedom from all hurtful properties, to the deleterious mineral and alkaloid remedies of the pharmacopœa. It is moreover, the reigning specific for dyspepsia, debility, constipation, urinary troubles, rheumatism, and nervousness, promotes appetite and sleep, and is a capital antidote to depression of spirits.

The Latest Fashion for Ladies.

Our attention has recently been called to the Raritan Matelasse Cloakings, something entirely new in the way of heavy, thick, warm, woolen goods, specially adapted for ladies' wear during the cold weather now approaching. These goods are the handsomest and most stylish ever seen, and, so far as price is concerned, are a miracle of cheapness. They are intended for cloaks, sacques, dolmans, circulars and jackets, for both ladies and children, and are to be found at all the leading dry-goods stores in the country. Be particular to ask for the Raritan Cloakings, and take no others.

Delicious Cookery.

The lightest, sweetest, most wholesome and delicious Vienna rolls, tea biscuits, bread, muffins, flannel cakes, crullers, and all articles prepared from flour, are always possible to every table by using Dooley's Yeast Powder. This celebrated Baking Powder has stood the critical test of the best housekeepers and the consuming public generally of America for twenty years. It is absolutely pure, and always of uniform strength. The genuine is put up in cans. Most all good grocers sell it.

CHEW
The Celebrated
"Matchless"
Wood Tag Plug
Tobacco.
The Pioneer Tobacco Company,
New York, Boston and Chicago.

"Cuss the whole lot. That scale agent cheated me out of $50, clean, for I could have bought a better Five Ton Wagon Scale for $50, on trial, freight paid to my own door, of Jones, of Binghamton, Binghamton, N. Y."

Patentees and inventors should read advertisement of Edson Bros. in another column.

Hofmann's Hop Pills cure the Ague at once.

CHICAGO VOLTAIC AND TRUSS CO.

Their Voltaic Belts and Bands cure Rheumatism, Dyspepsia, Nervous Diseases. Belt, $5; Bands according to size. The Digital Syringe combines Syringe, Speculum, Forceps; a complete article, $5. Adjustable Uterine Supporter, Most natural in use. $6. It is easily converted into a Truss. Extra, $1; or alone, $4. Pile Supporter, cures Piles. Worn sitting, walking, riding horseback. $2.50. Discount to Trade and Physicians. Goods sent C. O. D. For circulars address, with stamp, CHICAGO V. & T. CO., 88 Washington Street, CHICAGO.

BEGINNERS' QUADRILLE BAND, contains 12 sets of Waltzes and Quadrilles; 30 Contra Fancy Dances; 1st and 2d Violin, Clar., Cornet and Bass, in 5 separate books—highest note in 1st violin pt. is B in 1st position; 5 books $3, single pts. 75c. 100 Easy Duets for Piano and Violin or Flute, 75c.; No. 14 Howe's Piano and Violin or Flute, 75c. Overtures for small Orchestra—Zampa, Norma, Martha, Bohemian Girl, Wm. Tell, Tancredi, Fra Diavolo, Crown Diamonds, Morn, Noon and Night; Poet and Peasant, Medley by Catlin, Comique Medley, pts. of 30 airs; for 8 instruments $1, full orchestra $2. Howe's 1000 Jigs, Reels, etc., for Violin, etc., $1. Sent by mail. ELIAS HOWE, 103 Court Street, Boston.

ONLY $1

For SIX BEAUTIFUL PICTURES, (different subjects,) 14x17 inches; Or for FIVE PICTURES, 17x22; Or for FOUR PICTURES, 19x24. Fac-simile copies of FINE STEEL ENGRAVINGS, made by the celebrated GRAPHIC process, printed on Heavy Plate Paper for framing. Send ten cents for Illustrated Catalogue containing over 100 pictures. Address, The Daily Graphic, New York City.

Ho! Farmers, for Iowa!

Send a Postal Card for description and maps of 1,200,000 acres of R. R. Lands for sale on long terms. Soil first-class. Tickets FREE to land-buyers from Chicago and return. Address J. B. CALHOUN, Land Commissioner Iowa R. R. Land Co., 92 Randolph Street, Chicago, or Cedar Rapids, Iowa.

$5937 Made by 17 Agents in Jan. '77 with my 13 new articles. Samples free. Address C. M. Linington, Chicago.

[illegible]

PURELY VEGETABLE.

SIMMONS
LIV R REGULATOR

[illegible] CHILLS AND FEVER, [illegible]

BAD BREATH!

[illegible] SIMMONS' LIVER REGULATOR. [illegible]

CONSTIPATION!

SHOULD not be regarded as a trifling ailment—in fact, nature demands the utmost regularity of the bowels, and any deviation from this demand paves the way often to serious danger. It is quite as necessary to remove impure accumulations from the bowels as it is to eat or sleep, and no health can be expected where a costive habit of body prevails.

SICK HEADACHE!

This distressing affliction occurs most frequently. The disturbance of the stomach, arising from the imperfectly digested contents, causes a severe pain in the head, accompanied with disagreeable nausea, and this constitutes what is popularly known as Sick Headache; for the relief of which, Take Simmons' Liver Regulator or Medicine.

Manufactured only by
J. H. ZEILIN & CO.,
PHILADELPHIA.
Price, $1.00. Sold by all Druggists.

HULL & SCOTNEY,
GENERAL
COMMISSION
MERCHANTS,
346 NORTH WATER ST.,
PHILADELPHIA,

And wholesale dealers in Butter, Cheese, Eggs, Poultry, Game, Potatoes, Apples, Grain, Flour, Fur, Wool, Cotton, Peanuts, Broom Corn, Foreign and Domestic Fruits, and, in fact, we can sell any and everything at the highest market price, make prompt returns, and LIBERAL CASH ADVANCES made on all shipments except perishable articles. To show that we do an extensive business, any game dealer in Philadelphia will tell you we handled more game last season than all other Houses in Philadelphia put together. Send for Price-List, Stencil, &c. &c. REFERENCE CASH, or we refer you to Any RESPONSIBLE HOUSE in Our City.

Butter. Cheese. Poultry.
EGGS. GAME.

JACKSON'S BEST
SWEET NAVY CHEWING TOBACCO

was awarded the highest prize at Centennial Exposition for its fine chewing qualities, the excellence and lasting character of its sweetening and flavoring. If you want the best tobacco ever made, ask your grocer for this, and see that each plug bears our blue-strip trade-mark with words Jackson's Best on it. Sold wholesale by all jobbers. Send for sample to C. A. JACKSON & CO., Manufacturers, Petersburg, Va.

DAVIS'
PAIN-KILLER!

The Great Family Medicine of the Age. 1840 to 1877. For Thirty-seven Years. Has been tested in every variety of climate, and by almost every nation known to Americans. It is the almost constant companion and inestimable friend of the missionary and the traveler, on sea and land, and no one should travel on our lakes and rivers without it. Sold by all medicine dealers.

IT IS BEING DONE ALL AROUND YOU.

Are you out of work? Don't you make money fast enough? Send for Circulars of "Tom Sawyer,"

MARK TWAIN'S NEW BOOK,

or Catalogue of all our books, and select one to please you, and make from $25 to $100 per week selling it. A trial will cost nothing. We will give you the Best Book and Largest Commissions, and you cannot fail to succeed. Write at once to the AMERICAN PUBLISHING CO., Chicago, Ill.

DO NOT FAIL to send for our New Catalogue. It contains valuable information for every person contemplating the purchase of any article for personal, family or agricultural use. Free to any Address.
MONTGOMERY WARD & CO.,
Original Grange Supply House,
227 & 229 Wabash Ave. CHICAGO Ill.

$1.00 $1.00
Osgood's Heliotype Engravings.
The choicest household ornaments. Price One Dollar each. Send for catalogue.
JAMES R. OSGOOD & CO.
BOSTON, MASS.
$1.00 $1.00

PERPETUAL
SORGHUM EVAPORATOR.
$15. $20. $25.
Cheap and Durable
Send for Circulars.
Address the only Manufacturers
CHAPMAN & CO. Madison Ind.

WHITNEY & HOLMES
ORGANS.
The Finest Toned and Most Durable Made.
New Styles. New Solo Stops.
Warranted Five Years. Send for Price-Lists.
WHITNEY & HOLMES ORGAN CO., QUINCY, ILL.

TEACHERS of VOCAL MUSIC,

Desiring the Best Book extant, should try FAVORITE SONGS An unequaled collection of Gems compiled for their use by Profs. H. R. and T. H. R. Christie, and supervised by Prof. R. M. McIntosh, the eminent author and teacher. Price $4.00 a dozen. Sample by mail, 50 cents. SPECIMEN PAGES FREE. R. W. CARROLL & CO., Publishers, Cincinnati, or LYON & HEALY, Chicago.

HEADACHE.

DR. C. W. BENSON'S CELERY AND CHAMOMILE PILLS are prepared expressly to cure SICK HEADACHE, NERVOUS HEADACHE, DYSPEPTIC HEADACHE, NEURALGIA, NERVOUSNESS, SLEEPLESSNESS, and will cure any case. Office, 106 N. Eutaw St., Baltimore, Md. Price, 50c., postage free. Sold by all druggists and country stores. REFERENCE:—Howard Bank, Baltimore, Md.

WORK FOR ALL

In their own localities, canvassing for the Fireside Visitor (enlarged), Weekly and Monthly. Largest Paper in the World, with Mammoth Chromos Free. Big Commissions to Agents. Terms and Outfit Free. Address P. O. VICKERY, Augusta, Maine.

TRUTH IS MIGHTY! [illegible]

PATENTS AND INVENTORS. EDSON BROS., U. S. and Foreign Patent Agents, 711 G St., Washington, D. C. Established in 1866. Fee after allowance. Circulars of instructions, etc., sent free.

PENSIONS Procured, or NO PAY, for every wounded, ruptured, accidentally injured or diseased Soldier. Address Col. N. W. FITZGERALD, U. S. Claim Att'y, Washington, D.C.

BALL PROGRAMMES
AND
FANCY VISITING CARDS
[illegible]

COLGATE'S
CASHMERE
BOUQUET
TOILET
SOAP.

This novelty and exceptional strength of its perfume are the peculiar fascinations of this luxurious article, which has acquired popularity hitherto unequaled by any Toilet Soap of home or foreign manufacture.

THE
UNITED STATES
LIFE
INSURANCE COMPANY,
IN THE CITY OF NEW YORK.
261, 262, 263 Broadway.
ORGANIZED 1850
ASSETS, $4,827,176.52
SURPLUS, $820,000
EVERY APPROVED FORM OF POLICY ISSUED ON MOST FAVORABLE TERMS
ALL ENDOWMENT POLICIES
AND
APPROVED CLAIMS
MATURING IN 1877
WILL BE DISCOUNTED AT 7%
ON PRESENTATION.
JAMES BUELL, - - PRESIDENT.

POND'S
EXTRACT

CATARRH.—Pond's Extract is nearly a Specific for this disease. It can hardly be excelled, even in old and obstinate cases. The relief is so prompt that no one who has ever tried it will be without it.
CHAPPED HANDS AND FACE.—Pond's Extract should be in every family this rough weather. It removes the soreness and roughness, and softens and heals the skin promptly.
RHEUMATISM.—During severe and changeable weather, no one subject to Rheumatic Pains should be one day without Pond's Extract, which always relieves.
SORE LUNGS, CONSUMPTION, COUGHS, COLDS.—This cold weather tries the Lungs sorely. Have Pond's Extract on hand always. It relieves the pain and cures the disease.
CHILBLAINS will be promptly relieved and ultimately cured by bathing the afflicted parts with Pond's Extract.
FROSTED LIMBS.—Pond's Extract invariably relieves the pain and finally cures.
SORE THROAT, QUINSY, INFLAMED TONSILS AND AIR PASSAGES are promptly cured by the use of Pond's Extract. It never fails.
HISTORY and Uses of Pond's Extract, in pamphlet form, sent free on application to POND'S EXTRACT CO., 98 Maiden Lane, New York. Sold by Druggists.

THOMSON'S PATENT
GLOVE-FITTING
CORSETS.
SURPASSES ALL OTHERS FOR COMFORT
GIVE COMPLETE SATISFACTION
FITS THE FIGURE PERFECTLY

The friends of this UNRIVALLED CORSET are now numbered by MILLIONS. Prices are much reduced. MEDAL RECEIVED AT CENTENNIAL. Get the Genuine, and beware of imitations. ASK ALSO FOR THOMSON'S UNBREAKABLE STEELS. The best goods made. See that the name of THOMSON and the Trade Mark, a CROWN, are stamped on every Corset & Steel.

BABBITT'S TOILET SOAP.

Unrivalled for the Toilet and the Bath. No artificial and deceptive odors to cover common and deleterious ingredients. After years of scientific experiment the manufacturer of B. T. Babbitt's Best Soap has perfected and now offers to the public The FINEST TOILET SOAP in the World. Only the purest vegetable oils used in its manufacture.
For Use in the Nursery it has No Equal.
Worth ten times its cost to every mother and family in Christendom. Sample box, containing 3 cakes of 6 oz. each, sent free to any address on receipt of 75 cents. Address
B. T. BABBITT, New York City.
For Sale by all Druggists.

"The Best Polish in the World."
THE RISING SUN
STOVE POLISH

A Special Offer
TO THE READERS
OF THIS PAPER.

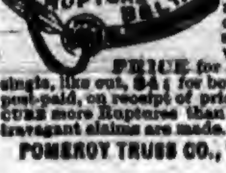
A Genuine Swiss Magnetic Time-Keeper, a perfect Gem for everybody desiring a reliable Time-Piece, and also a superior Compass, usual watch size, steel works, glass crystal, all in a superb Oroide Hunting-Case, warranted to denote correct time, and keep in order for two years—Perfection guaranteed—will be Given away to every patron of this paper as a Free Gift.

Cut out this Coupon and Mail it.

COUPON.
On receipt of this Coupon and 30 cents to pay for packing, boxing and mailing charges, we promise to send each patron of this paper a Genuine Swiss Magnetic Time-Keeper.
Address, Magnetic Watch Co.,
ASHLAND, MASS.

This is your ONLY OPPORTUNITY to obtain this beautiful premium, so order AT ONCE. This offer will hold good for 30 days.
If currency cannot be sent conveniently, postage stamps will be taken instead.

KEEP'S SHIRTS—only one quality—The best. Keep's Patent Partly-Made Dress Shirts Can be finished as easy as hemming a Handkerchief. The very best, six for $7.00. Keep's Custom Shirts—made to measure, The very best, six for $9.00. An elegant set of genuine Gold-Plate Collar and Sleeve Buttons given with each half doz. Keep's Shirts. Keep's Shirts are delivered FREE on receipt of price in any part of the Union—no express charges to pay. Samples, with full directions for self-measurement, Sent Free to any address. No stamp required. Deal directly with the Manufacturers and get Bottom Prices. Keep Manufacturing Co., 165 Mercer St., N.Y.



ELASTIC RUPTURE BELT.

The Best Truss without Metal Springs ever invented. No humbug claim of a certain radical cure, but a guarantee of a comfortable, secure and satisfactory appliance. We will take back and pay FULL PRICE for all that do not suit. Price, single, like cut, $4; for both sides, $6. Sent by mail, post-paid, on receipt of price. N. B.—This Truss WILL CURE more Ruptures than any of those for which extravagant claims are made. Circulars free.
POMEROY TRUSS CO., 746 Broadway, New York.

$66 [illegible]
WORTHINGTON'S BUSINESS COLLEGE, Evanston. [illegible]

$12 A DAY at home. Agents wanted. Outfit and terms free. TRUE & CO., Augusta, Maine.

$50 to $75 a week with our popular Books, Maps, Charts & Maps. [illegible]

$5 to $20 per day at home. Samples worth $5 free. STINSON & CO., Portland, Maine.

$25 PREMIUM WATCH AND CHAIN. [illegible] free. F. B. Gaylord & Co., Chicago, Ill.

$7½ MAGNETIC TIMEKEEPER. [illegible] works. Hunter case. Sample Watch free to Agents. A. COULTER & CO., Chicago, Ill.

$400 A MONTH. AGENTS WANTED. [illegible] Send for Catalog. VAN & CO. Chicago.

A GOOD WELL can be made in one day with our 4 feet Well Auger. Send for our auger book. U. S. AUGER CO., St. Louis, Mo.

AGENTS CAN MAKE $10 PER DAY, selling our PATENT SKEIN GAUGE. Send for Circular. WORSWICK M'F'G CO., Cleveland, Ohio.

JUST OUT!—"How and Henry!" [illegible] and free!" A boom in the [illegible] Specimen sent. Agents wanted. Address THE COMING STRUGGLE, P. O. Box 2060, New York City.

WANTED Men to travel and take orders of Merchants. Salary $1,200 a year and all traveling expenses paid. Address Queen City Man'f'g Co., St. Louis, Mo.

$350 A MONTH—AGENTS WANTED—36 best selling articles in the world; one sample free. Address JAY BRONSON, Detroit, Mich.

CLOCKS E. INGRAHAM & CO.'S are superior in design and not equaled in quality, or as timekeepers. Ask your Jeweler for them. Manufactory—Bristol, Ct.

THE RAILWAY AGE—Leading, largest and best journal of transportation published. Weekly, 24 pages. Departments for every class of railway men, president to station agent. $4 per year; $1 for 3 mos. Specimens free. Address RAILWAY AGE PUB. CO., Chicago.

$10 to $25 A DAY SURE made by Agents selling our Chromos, Crayons, Picture and Chromo Cards. 125 samples, worth $5, sent postpaid for 85 Cents. Illustrated Catalogue free. J. H. BUFFORD'S SONS, Boston. [Established 1830.]

A KEY TO BOOKKEEPING!

The Best Text Book and Self-Instructor in the World. Sent by mail, post-paid, on receipt of Fifty Cents, by the author. GEO. R. WELSH, Savannah, Georgia.

AGENTS WANTED FOR THE ILLUSTRATED HISTORY
THE GREAT RIOTS

It contains a full account of the reign of terror in Pittsburgh, Baltimore, Chicago and other cities. The conflicts between the troops and the mob. Terrible conflagrations and destruction of property. Thrilling scenes and incidents, etc., etc. Send for a full description of the work and our extra terms to Agents. Address, NATIONAL PUBLISHING CO., Chicago, Ill.

WILHOFT'S
Anti-Periodic,
—OR—
FEVER AND AGUE
TONIC.
For All Diseases Caused by Malarial Poisoning of the Blood.
A Warranted Cure!
G. R. FINLAY & CO.,
New Orleans, Prop's.
FOR SALE BY ALL DRUGGISTS.

TARRANT'S
SELTZER
APERIENT.

Three Thousand Miles Away, in another hemisphere, sparkles the Seltzer Spring. In every drug store in America you may obtain its equivalent, put it in your pocket, and carry it with you to the world's end, if you choose.

Tarrant's Effervescent Seltzer Aperient is simply the living fountain of health, in the form of a powder capable of being converted into a bubbling, flashing fac-simile of the liquid product of nature in one minute. Armed with this antidote, all climates and every atmospheric change may be faced without fear. As a remedy in malarious fevers, stomach complaints, irregularities of the bowels, nervous disorders, mental depression, headache, an overflow of bile, dropsical ailments, nausea, and constipation, it has no equal. Sold by all druggists.

THE
GOOD OLD
STAND-BY.
MEXICAN MUSTANG LINIMENT.
FOR MAN AND BEAST.

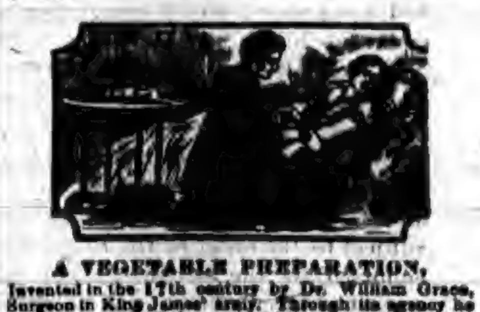
Established 35 Years. Always cures. Always ready. Always handy. Has never yet failed. Thirty millions have tested it. The whole world approves the glorious old Mustang—the Best and Cheapest Liniment in existence. 25 cents a bottle. The Mustang Liniment cures when nothing else will.
SOLD BY ALL MEDICINE VENDERS.

NATURE'S REMEDY.
VEGETINE
THE GREAT BLOOD PURIFIER

A SOURCE OF GREAT ANXIETY.
Boston, Mass., June 5, 1872.
My daughter has received great benefit from the use of Vegetine. Her declining health was a source of great anxiety to all of her friends. A few bottles of the Vegetine restored her health, strength and appetite.
N. H. TILDEN,
Insurance and Real Estate Agent,
No. 49 Sears Building.

Vegetine is Sold by all Druggists.

GRACE'S
SALVE



A VEGETABLE PREPARATION,
Invented in the 17th century by Dr. William Grace, Surgeon in King James' army. Through its agency he cured thousands of the most serious sores and wounds that baffled the skill of the most eminent physicians of his day, and was regarded by all who knew him as a public benefactor. 25 cents a box. For sale by Druggists generally. Sent by mail on receipt of price. Prepared by SETH W. FOWLE & SONS, 86 Harrison Avenue, Boston, Mass.

SANDAL-WOOD.

A positive remedy for all diseases of the Kidneys, Bladder and Urinary Organs; also, good in Dropsical Complaints. It never produces sickness, is certain and speedy in its action. It is fast superseding all other remedies. Sixty capsules cure in six or eight days. No other medicine can do this.

Beware of Imitations, for, owing to its great success, many have been offered; some are most dangerous, causing piles, &c.

DUNDAS DICK & CO.'S Genuine Soft Capsules, containing Oil of Sandal-Wood, sold at all Drug Stores. Ask for circular, or send for one to 35 and 37 Wooster street, New York.

WHEN WRITING TO ADVERTISERS, please say you saw the advertisement in this paper.

Auburn Courier.

AUBURN, INDIANA, OCT. 4, 1877.

Governor Wade Hampton is not the historic southerner of the gloomy eye, the melancholy mouth, the drooping mustache and lean frame. He has a rosy and genial face, pleasant blue eyes, iron grey whiskers, a portly figure, and a voice full, agreeable and sonorous.

Of Senator Morton Dr. Bliss says that there is no hope that he can ever recover from his paralysis, but that his general health will doubtless be restored that he can be carried to and from his seat in the Senate.

Senator Conkling of New York, went for Hayes at the Republican Convention in that State last week. He says he holds the Presidency by the decision of the Electoral Commission only. He has drawn his sword and thrown away the scabbard.

We thought that Ohio, with her six political parties, would take the ribbon for political variety; but she is only second best. New Jersey leads the score with seven, as follows: Republicans Democrats, temperance men, labor reformers, greenbackers, grangers and tax-payers—each of which has a ticket, a platform, and a squad of orators in the field.

There is an intimation that the president will fill the vacancy on the supreme bench before the court meets Monday. The names of Herschel V. Johnson, of Georgia, and Judge Hughs, of Virginia, now United States district judge, were pressed on his attention again to-day. There is no longer any doubt that the appointment will be made from the south.

Senator Conover of Florida, is in Washington. Mr. Conover makes an announcement of considerable political interest. He says that, although he is a republican, he intends to vote from his own convictions, and act independently as regards men and measures during the coming session of the Senate. Owing to the close vote of the parties, Mr. Conover's position and vote promise to be of importance.

Gen. Grant will reach Paris about the 20th of October. He contemplates a six week's stay there. Then in regular order comes Marseilles, Nice, Genoa, various ports of Spain, Malta, Cicily, Egypt and Turkey. He will reach Naples in February, spend a month in Rome, return to Paris, then on to Denmark, Sweden, Norway, Russia and Austria, reaching Switzerland in September, 1878.

Edwardsport Journal; James D. Williams is the best governor the State of Indiana ever had. He saved the city of Indianapolis from ruin during the great strike by his cool and decisive actions; and had he been governor of Pennsylvania instead of Indiana at that time he would have saved all the property destroyed in Pittsburg. Notwithstanding all that he has done and will do for this state, republican hirelings and partizans lose no opportunity to heap calumny upon him through their wrath and jealously.

True every word, notwithstanding the little yelps given now and then by the press of a badly beaten party.

An attempt was made a few days ago to work up a little political thunder in Defiance county in favor of the Republican party. The Treasurer of that county, a Democrat was reported to be a defaulter, and the auditor of State was requested to appoint an examiner to investigate the matter. On an examination it was found that the Treasurer, Mr. Shaw was all right in his accounts, and is now in possession of his office. The whole thing was a political dodge, and we believe the gallant Democracy of Defiance will show these demagogues in October, that they are not to be swerved from their purpose.

Bob Ingerson, the celebrated infidel lecturer, has created a sensation by challenging the religious world to prove that either Thomas Paine or Voltaire recanted his conviction on his deathbed, or died exhibiting remorse on account of his infidel teachings. The New York Observer accepted the challenge, and offered to prove it in regard to one or both. Col. Ingersoll having returned to Peoria, Illinois, and heard of the acceptance, says he will immediately deposit $1,000 in gold in bank, subject to the order of Dr. Prime when endorsed by the tribunal, which shall consist of three men—one to be chosen Ingersoll, one by Prime and a third by the agreement of the two. Col. Ingersoll adds: "From the date of accepting this offer you may have ninety days to collect and present your testimony, giving due notice of time and place of taking depositions. I shall have a like time to take evidence upon my side, giving you like notice, and you shall then have thirty days to take further testimony in reply to what I may offer. The case shall then be argued before the persons chosen and their decisions shall be final as to us. If Paine and Voltaire died filled with childish and silly fear, I want to know it, and I want the world to know it. On the other hand, if the believers in superstition have made and circulated these cruel slanders concerning the mighty dead, I want the world to know that."

Senator McDonald.

In yesterday's Sentinel we expressed our unbelief in the truth of a statement made by the Journal that Senator McDonald had agreed to pair off with Senator Morton should the latter be able to go to Washington. We cannot believe that Mr. McDonald has agreed to neutralize the loss of senator Morton's vote to the radical party by the with-holding of his own on any measure that may come before the senate. Indiana sent him to Washington as a democrat, and she expects him to represent the policy and interests of those who gave him his office. If senator Morton continues sick and is unable to take his seat in the senate, and on account of this fact Mr. McDonald refuses to vote upon questions which comes before that body of a party character, he will fail to comply with the wishes of those who made him a senator. The democracy of this state expects their senator to vote upon all questions affecting the interests of the country, and particularly do they expect him to vote upon the organization of the senate and the admission of the senators from Louisiana and South Carolina. In the present condition of parties in the senate a single vote might decide the political complexion of that body, and the senator's political friends will not be satisfied if democratic measures fail in the senate for lack of the vote of Mr. McDonald.

We have not been able to see Senator McDonald since the appearance of the article in the Journal to which we have referred, but we hope in our next issue to give by his authority a denial of its truth.—Indianapolis Sentinel.

Commissioners' Allowances.

SEPTEMBER TERM, COMMISSIONERS' COURT, 1877.

Expense of Poor.

Jacob Kuhn	$17 87	G C Ralston	$ 44 47
Same	7 00	Same	41 10
Alice Sawyer	4 51	J A Potter	8 00
W B Stone & Co	10 84	Schaab, Beugnot	15 85
D D Snyder	39 18	F E Davenport	29 80
J B Bennett	9 00	W J Austin & Co	6 50
Same	20 00	G P Neck	3 40
Meek & Weyer	9 00	J L Davis	4 91
Peter High	3 00	S W Ralston	22 54
J Rummel	130 00	P W Silvers	51 48
G H Duncan	4 00	J Spooner	65 00
H F Blair	4 00	Horace Jos'lin	2 00
Brand & Duncan	55 08	Smith & Parker	1 70
Henry Frank	85 00	Sam'l Hickman	2 00
J S Chamberlain	30 00	M Houston	21 44
J & J A Shull	18 50	S T Galloway	1 91
Same	48 56	J H Ehlers	1 25
Lena Shoudel	10 38	I Hague	1 15
T L Baker	51 00	Geo Wagoner	6 25
Lydia Bowman	21 45	H P Stoy	12 00
Alice Wyatt	9 18	Guy Plum	31 00
Wm Britton	3 00	H W Coburn	30 00
Chas Fox	15 00	S G Flint	9 00
R F Metcalf	20 00	C C Shaffer	12 50
P Gerardot	4 00	W H Mader	10 00
L Hoodelmyer	10 00	G W Hanes	3 00
Isaac Davidson	7 00	Sheets & Hofman	24 40
Same	12 00	A S Leas	4 00
F W Fanning	20 75	John Link	17 00
W H Green	2 00	Henry Levi	14 00
R N Crooks	24 25	Peter Shoup	39 50
H J Parent	1 50	I Cool	5 00
Jarvis Porter	10 00	M Long	16 95
J K Marsh	8 00	L Houghton	5 00

Books, Stationery and Printing.

T C Mays	$ 11 00
C K Baxter	11 10
T C Mays	6 90
C P Houser	75
W B Burford	391 45

Interest on Jail Bonds

W H McIntosh	$32 79

Expense of [illegible]

James A[illegible]	$[illegible]
G H Duncan	[illegible]
Daniel Gonser	[illegible]
A D Goetschius	28 00
Isaac Hague	102 50
B F Blair	23 03

Expense of Insane.

Wm. Britton	$1 00
J C St. Clair	10 90

Expense of Criminals.

J Anderson	$[illegible]	J C St Clair	$110 15

Expense Roads, Bridges and Ditches.

Smith & McOsker	$51 00	Peter Bowman	$32 00
M Rhodes	24 00	Same	40 00
Samuel Frets	94 30	S H Bartlett	37 00
H Griswold	62 50	Same	41 00
Same	23 00	G N Farrington	11 65
Same	61 75	B Snyder	14 18
G H Duncan	31 50	J W McKay & Co	52 71
Same	28 50	Same	650 00
B F Blair	68 00	Same	50 00
Same	4 00	Same	200 00
Daniel Culver	30 00	Same	400 00
Same	30 00	Same	152 80
Same	80 00	Same	30 00
Same	25 00	Same	2000 00
Same	25 00	A S Leas	22 50
Same	25 00	Ezra Hopkins	28 50
Same	5 40	Same	10 00
Same	25 00	J W Clark	1 50
Same	25 00	Same	6 00
David Culver	25 00	J M Goetschius	3 00
Same	121 20	F D Ryan	2 00
Same	10 00	Same	3 40
Same	[illegible]	R N Crooks	3 00
E D White	[illegible]	Same	1 50
Freeman Bishop	28 00	J J VanAuken	20 10
J D Leukens	[illegible]	Same	10 00
Same	24 00	Same	45 00
R Brown	16 00	Same	55 00
F McOsker	20 00	Same	5 00
Same	27 70	Same	80 00
S R Rickel	26 10	Same	30 00
D Heckathorn	20 00	Same	15 00
Francis Heard	8 00	Wm Goodchild	5 00
Same	8 00	Wilson Dancer	18 00
John Low	12 00	Wm Lessig	6 00
Benj Gaskell	15 00	S Haverstock	4 00
A D Goetschius	30 45	Wm Seely	2 00
J C St Clair	28 00	J [illegible]	6 15
Philip Parsell	4 00	J M Brumbach	3 00
H J Parent	4 00	J Plum	1 50
Dan'l Swihart	1 50	I Cool	8 00
T C Elson	3 00	Charles Stimely	1 50
A W Hair	1 50	G W Downs	3 00
J McClellan	6 00	Jacob Meyers	1 50

Expense of public Buildings.

A L Fassett	$75 10	Curtis & Hanes	$228 01
Same	57 00	F E Davenport	5 00
Same	68 25	J L Davis	119 77
Shearer & Wilson	119 00	Joseph Stafford	7 00

Illegal Tax Refunded.

John Sheffer	$5 70

Miscellaneous Expenses.

H Griswold	$1 00	W H McIntosh	$10 00
I Hague	75	Guy Plum	51 00
Daniel Gonser	2 00	S Shilling	10 00
M Boland	1 65	C C Shaffer	5 50
D D Snyder	1 50	J L Davis	51 73
Peter High	20 00	A D Goetschius	2 00

Auditors Office, Oct 1st, 1877.
ISAAC HAGUE, Auditor.

Sheriff's Sale.

BY virtue of an execution to me directed from the Clerk of the DeKalb Circuit Court, in a cause wherein G. Y. Harner is plaintiff and Robert Shaffer et al. are defendants, requiring me to make the sum of Three Hundred and sixty dollars and Seven cents, with interest on said judgment and costs, I will expose at public sale to the highest bidder, on

SATURDAY, OCTOBER 27th, 1877,

Between the hours of 10 o'clock A. M. and 4 o'clock P. M. of said day, at the door of the Court House, in DeKalb county, Indiana, the rents and profits for a term not exceeding seven years of the following real estate to-wit:

Part of lot twelve (12) in the old plat of the town of Auburn, DeKalb county and state of Indiana, described as follows, to-wit: Commencing at the south east corner of said lot No. (12) running thence north thirty (30) feet, thence west forty two (42) feet, thence south thirty (30) feet, thence east forty two (42) feet to the place of beginning.

If such rents and profits will not sell for a sufficient sum to satisfy said decree, interests and costs, I will at the same time and place expose to public sale the fee simple of said real estate or so much thereof as may be sufficient to discharge said decree, interest and costs.

Said sale will be made without any relief whatever from valuation or appraisement laws.

J. C. St CLAIR, Sheriff.
By Thos. D. Gross, Deputy.
Guy Plum, Attorney for plaintiff.
Auburn, October 3, A. D. 1877.
Pr. fee $9 50

GAZE ON THE BOOT UPSIDE DOWN

$10,000.00 WORTH OF

BOOTS AND SHOES

—TO BE SOLD—

25 Per Cent. CHEAPER

Than any House in DeKalb county. If you don't believe it, read our price list and then come in and examine the goods.

Ladies	12 thread serge polish		$ 90c
"	18 " " "		1.15c
"	18 " " "		1.40c
"	side lace shoes	1.25	2.50c
"	goat buskins "	70	95c
"	serge " "	50	75c
"	three button working shoes	1.25	185c
Mens	2 buckle plow shoes		1.40c
"	brogan " "		1.25c
"	Solid comfort plow shoes made to order		2.00
"	Calf sewed boots	3.00	4.75c
"	" pegged "	3.00	4.50c
Boys	fine boots		2.25c

—SIGN OF THE—

BOOT UPSIDE DOWN,

Next door to J. L. Davis' Hardware store, Auburn, Indiana.

GOLDEN OPPORTUNITY.

In order to introduce our 40-page illustrated Catalogue (in book form) of Jewelry and Watches, with full information How to Become Agents, and Make Money, we will send, on receipt of One Dollar, by return mail, this Illustrated Catalogue, together with

OUR ONE DOLLAR GOLDEN CASKET.

OUR DOLLAR CASKET Contains one elegantly engraved Lady's Brooch and Ear Drops, Amethyst settings, inlaid with Pearls; one beautiful Cut Cameo Ring; one fine pair of Engraved Sleeve Buttons; three (3) grand spiral Amethyst Studs, inlaid with Pearls; one nobby Collar Button; one latest pattern Lady's or Gent's Pompadour Neck Chain; one elegant Cameo Seal; one beautiful chased Band Ring; one solitaire Lake George Diamond Pin; one pair (2) elegant engraved Bracelets. All the above are the Finest Gold Plate, and arranged in a beautiful white, pink-lined casket. Illustrated Catalogue of Jewelry and Watches sent with each casket. On receipt of One Dollar we will send one of these Dollar Caskets, by mail, post-paid, or Four Caskets on receipt of $2.50. Address,

GEO. G. JACOBY & CO., Importers of Jewelry and Watches,
17 Wisconsin Street, Milwaukee, Wis.

Sheriff's Sale.

BY virtue of an execution and fee bill to me directed from the Clerk of the DeKalb Circuit Court, in a cause wherein Robert Work is plaintiff and Hiram Byers is defendant, requiring me to make the sum of Eighty Dollars and Twenty-Five Cents, with interest on said judgment and costs, I will expose at public sale to the highest bidder, on

SATURDAY, OCTOBER 6th, 1877,

Between the hours of 10 o'clock A. M. and 4 o'clock P. M. of said day, at the door of the Court House of DeKalb county, Indiana, the rents and profits for a term not exceeding seven years, of the following real estate, to-wit:

Lot number fifteen [15] in McFarland's addition to the town of Auburn, DeKalb county, Indiana.

If such rents and profits will not sell for a sufficient sum to satisfy said judgment, interest and costs, I will at the same time and place expose at public sale the fee simple of said real estate, or so much thereof as may be sufficient to discharge said judgment, interest and costs.

Sale will be made without any relief whatever from valuation and appraisement laws.

J. C. St CLAIR, Sheriff.
By Thos. D. Gross Deputy.
Auburn, Indiana, September 11th, 1877.
Pr. fee $5.00.

Sheriff's Sale.

BY virtue of an execution to me directed from the Clerk of the DeKalb Circuit Court in a cause wherein Herman Froehlich is plaintiff, and William B. Dancer is defendant, requiring me to make the sum of forty-two dollars and forty cents ($42.40), with interest on said judgment and cost, I will expose at public sale to the highest bidder, on

SATURDAY, OCTOBER 20th, 1877.

Between the hours of 10 o'clock A. M., and 4 o'clock P. M. of said day, at the door of the Court House in DeKalb county, Indiana, the rents and profits for a term not exceeding seven years, of the following real estate to wit:

The undivided one-half of the west half of the south-east quarter of section twenty (20) in township thirty-three (33) north of range thirteen (13) east in DeKalb and state of Indiana.

If such rents and profits will not sell for a sufficient sum to satisfy said decree, interest and costs, I will at the same time and place expose to public sale the fee simple of said real estate or so much thereof as may be sufficient to discharge said judgment and costs.

Said sale will be made without any relief whatever from valuation or appraisement laws.

J. C. St CLAIR, Sheriff.
By Thos. D. Gross, Deputy.
Rose & Hartman, Attorneys for plaintiff.
Auburn, Indiana, Sept. 18th, 1877. Pf. $8.25.

Sheriff's Sale,

BY virtue of an execution to me directed from the Clerk of the DeKalb Circuit Court, in a cause wherein Joseph Boyer et al. are plaintiffs, and John Moser and William Moser are defendants requiring me to make the sum of One Hundred and Forty-Nine Dollars and fifty-two cents with interest on said judgment and costs, I will expose at public sale to the highest bidder, on

SATURDAY, OCTOBER 20th, 1877.

Between the hours of 10 o'clock a. m., and 4 o'clock p. m., of said day at the door of the Court House of DeKalb County, Indiana, the rents and profits for a term not exceeding seven years of the following real estate to-wit:

The north-west quarter of the north-west quarter of section twenty-five (25) township thirty-three (33), north of range thirteen [13] east, taken as the property of John Moser.

If such rents and profits will not sell for sufficient sum to satisfy said judgment interests and costs, I will at the same time and place, expose at public sale the fee simple of said real estate, or so much thereof as may be sufficient to discharge said judgment interests and costs.

Sale will be made without any relief whatever from valuation or appraisement laws.

JOHN C. St. CLAIR, Sheriff.
By Thos. D. Gross, Deputy.
McBride, Morlen & Leas, Atty's for plaintiff.
Auburn, Indiana, Sept. 20th, 1877.
Pr fee $8.75

Buggies For Sale.

I am offering several new, well made buggies both double and single, at very reasonable rates. They are of my own manufacture, and warrant them for two years. I will sell them on one year [illegible] call at my blacksmith shop in Auburn [illegible]

JAMES ANDERSON.

Sheriff's Sale.

BY virtue of a certified copy of a decree to me directed by the Clerk of the DeKalb Circuit Court in a cause wherein Samuel R. Randall is plaintiff, and Ira A. West and Rosanna A. West is defendants, requiring me to make the sum of two hundred and forty-one dollars and thirty cents ($241.30) with interest on said decree and costs. will expose at public sale, to the highest bidder, on

SATURDAY, OCTOBER 13th, 1877.

Between the hours of 10 o'clock a. m. and 4 o'clock p. m. of said day, at the door of the Court House of DeKalb County, Indiana the rents and profits, for a term not exceeding seven years of the following real estate, to wit:

West half of the north-east quarter and east half of the north-west quarter of section thirty four [34] township thirty-three (33) north of range twelve (12) east.

If such rents and profits will not sell for a sufficient sum to satisfy said decree interest and costs, I will, at the same time and place, expose at public sale the fee simple of said real estate, or so much thereof as may be sufficient to discharge said decree interests and costs.

Said sale will be made without any relief whatever from valuation or appraisement laws.

JOHN C. ST. CLAIR. Sheriff
By Thos. D. Gross, Deputy.
P. A. Randall, Attorney for plaintiff.
Sept. 18th 1877. Pf. $9.00.

Sheriff's Sale.

BY virtue of an execution to me directed from the Clerk of the DeKalb Circuit Court in a cause, wherein J. W. Case is plaintiff and Thomas L. Brown is Defendant, requiring me to make the sum of Fifty-Two Dollars and Ninety-Three cents with interest on said judgment and costs, I will expose at public sale to the highest bidder on

SATURDAY, OCTOBER 20th, 1877.

Between the hours of 10 o'clock a. m. and 4 o'clock p. m. of said day at the door of the Court House of DeKalb County, Indiana, the rents and profits for a term not exceeding seven years, of the following real estate to-wit;

The undivided two-fifteenths [2-15] of the west half of the south-west quarter of section thirty-one (31), township thirty-four (34) north of range fourteen (14) east.

If such rents and profits will not sell for a sufficient sum to satisfy said judgment interest and costs, I will at the same time and place, expose at public sale, the fee simple of said real estate or so much thereof as may be sufficient to discharge said decree, interest and costs.

Sale will be made without any relief whatever from valuation or appraisement laws.

J. C. St. CLAIR, Sheriff.
By Thos. D. Gross, Dept.
W. L. Penfield, Attorney for Plaintiff.
Auburn, Indiana, Sept 20th, 1877.
Pr. fee $8.50.

Sheriff's Sale.

BY virtue of an execution to me directed from the Clerk of the DeKalb Circuit Court, in a cause wherein Singer Manufacturing Co., is plaintiff, and John Troesh is defendant, requiring me to make the sum of Sixty-Three Dollars and Fifty cents with interest on said judgment and costs, I will expose at public sale to the highest bidder, on

SATURDAY OCTOBER, 20th, 1877.

between the hours of 10 o'clock a. m., and 4 o'clock p. m. of said day, at the door of the Court house of DeKalb county, Indiana, the rents and profits for a term not exceeding seven years, of the following real estate, to-wit:

Lot number twenty-seven (27) in the western addition to the town of Auburn, DeKalb county and State of Indiana.

If such rents and profits will not sell for a sufficient sum to satisfy said judgment, interest and costs, I will at the same time and place, expose, at public sale the fee simple of said real estate, or so much thereof as may be sufficient to discharge said judgment, interest and costs.

Sale will be made without any relief whatever from valuation and appraisement laws.

J. C. St.CLAIR, Sheriff.
Thos. D. Gross, Dept.
Rope & Baxter, Attorneys for plaintiff.
Aubur Indiana, Sept. 20th, 1877.
Pr. fee $8.50.

Smoking tobacco at the little cigar store on the corner. tf.

ROOT & COMPANY.

GRAND FALL OPENING!

Will commence Thursday, October 11th, and continue during the week. Upon that occasion we shall desplay by far the finest line of

SEAL SACQUES!

And Circulars, fur lined Silk Garments, Matalasse and plain Cloaks, made and trimmed in the most elegant modes ever before shown by us. Also a magnificent line of made

SILK AND STUFF DRESSES AND SUITS

Also Silks and Dress goods, in all the new and elegant colors and effects, with trimmings to match. Also many elegant designs in well worth seeing. Besides articles of taste and elegance, not to be found elsewhere. We are now selling all goods kept by us much cheaper than they have ever been sold since 1860, and cotten goods generally are much lower than before the war. People living within a distance of 50 miles of Fort Wayne, can well afford to come and do their trading with us, if they wish to buy but ten dollars worth of goods. Our stock is so large and well assorted that no one can fail to fine what is wanted, and the immense business we are doing is ample evidence that our prices are satisfactory.

CARPETS, RUGS, MATS, OTTOMANS, &C.

Root & Company,
46 and 48 Calhoun-st, Fort Wayne Ind

BIG STOCK COMING

AT

SCHAAB, BEUGNOT & CO'S.

AUBURN, INDIANA.

DRESS GOODS.

New Calicos, Shirtings, Woolens,
Jeans, Cloths and Cashmeres,
For Men, Boys and
Everybodys Wear

OUR SUCCESS.

No Goods Allowed to be Misrepresented. All the Newest Novelties in Fall and Winter Suits for Men, Youths and Boys

CLOTHING CUT

In the most approved pattern and warranted to be perfect fitting at Hard Time Prices.

STILL AHEAD

AT

F. E. DAVENPORT'S

DRUG STORE!

AN ASSORTMENT OF

Fine Albums, Stereoscopes, Stereoscopic Views, Toilet Articles, Perfumery, Brushes &c.

School Books suitable for use in the Auburn and country schools. Writing paper, Pens, Inks, Copy Books, Slates, &c. Also a full line of Drugs and Medicines.

Perscriptions Carefully Compounded

The finest Tobaccos and Cigars to be found in the county. Remember the place

DAVENPORT'S.

West of the Court House, Auburn, Ind.

DAY'S AGUE TONIC

CURES EVERY FORM OF CHILLS, OR MONEY RETURNED.

DAY'S TONIC Cures Chills and Fever.
DAY'S TONIC Cures Dumb Chills.
DAY'S TONIC Supersedes Quinine.
DAY'S TONIC Cures Old Chronic Cases.
DAY'S TONIC Is pleasant for Children.

DAY'S TONIC Cleanses the Stomach.
DAY'S TONIC Acts on Liver and Bowels.
DAY'S TONIC Don't Buzz the Head.
DAY'S TONIC Don't contain Quinine.

DAY'S TONIC

Is a new innovation, and possesses advantages heretofore unknown and unclaimed by others. It does not contain Quinine or any poison; it does not produce buzzing or roaring in the head, which is the general use of Quinine. It is retained by delicate stomachs; it acts upon the liver and bowels without the use of any other medicine; it never fails to cure, and [illegible] are authorized to return the money in each and every case of failure; one bottle will cure two cases. Try it and see. Sold by all Druggists at $1.00.

J. P. DROMGOOLE & CO., Proprietors, Louisville, Ky.

Auburn Courier.

CHURCH DIRECTORY.

M. E. CHURCH.

Rev. J. E. Ervin, pastor. Services each Sabbath at 10½ o'clock A. M. and 7½ P. M. Sabbath school at 9 A. M.

PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH.

Rev. Henry Johnson, pastor. Services each Sabbath at 10½ o'clock A. M., and 7½ P. M. Sabbath school at 9 A. M.

BAPTIST CHURCH.

Rev. W. L. Sanders pastor. Services each Sabbath at 10½ o'clock A. M., and 7½ P. M. Sabbath school at 9 A. M.

ENGLISH LUTHERAN CHURCH.

Rev. L. Rice, pastor. Services every two weeks forenoon and afternoon alternately. Sabbath school each Sabbath at 2½ o'clock P. M.

[illegible]

Rev. Chas. [illegible], pastor. Services each Sabbath at 10½ o'clock A. M. and 7½ P. M. alternately. Sabbath school at 2 P. M.

GERMAN LUTHERAN CHURCH.

Rev. Bohlman, pastor. Services every Sabbath at 10 o'clock A. M.

GERMAN REFORM CHURCH.

Rev. P. Gold, pastor. Services every other Sabbath at 10½ o'clock A. M. Sabbath school at 9 A. M.

CATHOLIC CHURCH.

Rev. H. Young, pastor. Services every Sabbath at 8 and 10 o'clock A. M., alternately.

LADIES FANCY DRY GOODS

AND

MILLINERY STORE

North of Court House, Auburn, Ind:

You will find there the very newest shapes and styles in

LADIES HATS,

AND MILLINERY GOODS

Fancy Dry Goods,

Dress Goods, Feathers, Plumes and ties in all designs. Also

LADIES CLOAKS,

Of the latest patterns. Hosiery and Gloves in every discription. The lines in the new goods are complete.

J. R. LANNING.

THE AUBURN MARKET.

—Corn 55c.
—Oats 25c.
—Eggs 8c.
—Butter 13c.
—Potatoes 40c
—Live Turkeys 5c.
—Clover Seed $5 25.
—Live Chickens 4c
—Wheat $1.22 @ 1.23
—The COURIER $2.00 a year.

Was Agree to Marry

Widower had sixteen grown up daughters who would not let him take a second wife. He gave up the wife and bought a savage dog, and now no man, rich or poor can cross his door sill. If he can not marry, the dear girls will live single But the dear ones said, "Father, you need some one to keep house, and it would be cheaper to marry, and sell that dog. You can get everything you need at Ward's. Now dear father, sell that dog to Ward for crockery and start housekeeping, and pass your last days in the arms of some loving wife." Plated silverware at Ward's Cheap Crockery Store, No. 9 Columbia street. Ward's iron dog, Ft. Wayne.

Local and Miscellaneous.

Cook Ford is in town.

Fine toilet soap at Davenport's.

Mrs. E. C. writes a lovely essay.

Ball finery at the New York Store.

Gold pens very cheap at Davenport's.

The Steuben county fair comes off next week.

Goods cheaper than ever at the New York Store.

It will pay you to call on Davenport the druggist.

The fair at Ligonier, week before last is reported a success.

New dress goods and millinery just received at Lanning's Fancy store.

Hon. J. H. Baker is building a fine brick residence at Goshen.

The Russians and musquitos will soon go into winter quarters.

New styles of ladies cloaks just received at Lanning's Fancy store.

We are obliged to our jovial friend Tom Cool, for a nice large pumpkin.

Mr. Sandford Lumbard, a prominent citizen of Fort Wayne died last week.

Dr. Collar has gone to Indianapolis to attend lectures in the medical college.

Prof. Morse of the Conservatory of music at Fort Wayne was in town yesterday.

Miss Aletha Born, of Colon, Michigan is in the city visiting friends and relations.

There is a good deal of nutting and hunting around these diggins' on the Sabbath day.

Dr. Chamberlain's fine bay mare died Tuesday morning, of an attack of lung fever.—Press.

Fort Wayne News. Rev. T. P. Sutton, of Butler, Ind., will preach at the Christian church next Sunday.

Our friend Mr. Gibson at the City Bakery has now exclusive control of the baking department, and is ready with increased facilities to supply the demand for good bread, tf.

The fair at Toledo was an immense success. Over fifty thousand people attended on Thursday and the display was very fine.

T. B. Totten and family left Tuesday for Kansas, there to take up their abode for better or worse. We wish them success.

L. L. Irons, of St Johns, has purchased a fine heard of short horn cattle, and will have them on exhibition at the fair.—Press.

A little daughter of A. J. Carmer, east of town, while lighting a fire with coal oil last week, was seriously burned but will recover.

Our schools are runing successfully, and the attendance is quite large. The teachers are efficent and thorough, and much proficeincy is expected.

Davenport the druggist has just received a new supply of those excellent Handkerchief extracts made by "Lorenze the Lubin of America."

Rev. W. Langdon Sanders, will return this week and occupy the pulpit of the Baptist church next Sabbath. Covenant meeting next Saturday.

Weamer and Moody have settled that colt affair. The fact is since its trip up salt river, the colt don't amount to much, hence the compromise.

Mr. Sanderson, who has been fitting up a beautiful cage for the past week or two, caught his bird and put her therein yesterday.—Garrett News.

We desire to impress the fact upon the minds of our readers that the merchants who advertise are the ones to deal with if you want to save money.

We are led to remark that "fun is fun," and those who endeavor to give it a different meaning, are inclined to be very naughty, if they are nice.

Justice Maxwell of Butler, gave us a call this week. He is making an able and efficient Justice, and is performing considerable labor in that department.

Mr. Rhodenbaugh has purchased an interest with Mr. Smith in the harness business, and the two will now supply our people with good work at reasonable rates.

It is our pleasant duty to announce that the grave of the inventor of the accordeon is unmarked by a stone. But it is a consolation to know that he is dead.

The fair ·· far promises to be a success, the entries exceeding, we are told, those of last year. The live stock department especially full and attractive, in all departments.

Judge Andrew Metzger, of Ft. Wayne, one of the early settlers of the county died there last week. That city is making a fearful list of fatalities among its prominent citizens.

"That Husband of Mine," is the title of a new book just out and for sale at Willis' book store. It is very interesting, being a story of the times, written up in a most pleasing manner.

MARRIED, On Tuesday evening, Oct. 2nd, 1877 at the residence of the bride's father, by Rev. J. E. Ervin, Mr. Caleb Neal to Miss Mary A. Sawyer, all of DeKalb Co., Ind.

The Valparaiso Messenger says that the late Re-Union of soldiers at that place was in every way a grand success. It is estimated that at least 10,000 persons were present.

Ladies:—Davenport the Druggist has just received a new supply of that excellant Toilet Powder—Very Fine—Perfectly harmless. Call and get a trial package FREE

A grand opening of fall hoods at Root & Co.,'s Fort Wayne, Ind., on Thursday October 11th, and continue until the last of the week. See chanoe in advertisement in another column.

Mrs. Likens, 74 years of age, living six miles east of town, in getting in the wagon, in front of the Woolen Mills, Tuesday, was thrown out by the horses starting suddenly and suffered a comformed fracture of the left arm.

The first runaway this season occurred last Saturday. Mr. Apple's team standing at the Eagle Mill, started up seventh street, and turned into Jackson, and landed against the fence of Mr. J. Walborn without doing much damage.

The term "four penny," "six penny," "ten penny," etc., as applied to nails mean this: "Four penny" means four pounds to the thousand nails "six penny" six pounds to the thousand, and so on.

The sky these clear nights is a picture of beauty and glory. There is Mars blazing like a fire brand, and near him old Saturn. In the West going down soon after the sun, are Jupiter and Venus.

Next Saturday we belive is the time for school directors generally to meet, elect new officers and select their teachers for the coming winter DeKalb has an able corps of teachers form which to select.

Promises kept inspire confidence; and Dr. Bull's baby syrup never promised relief in the diseases of childhood without at once effecting it. Price 25 cents a bottle. For sale by F. E. Davenport.

The gorgeous banners of orange and crimson are now being flung out by the sugar maple, the oak and the hemlock, and soon the forests will present a scene of the richest coloring and the most astonishing magnificence.

Bill Britton bet the Angola boys $25 on Auburn, as he had a right to do. The club had nothing to do with it, and now we learn that Angola refuses to play unless the bet is payed A poor excuse.

Auburn has received quite a large addition to the female portion of our population. A "blessed little female angel" has joined the household of Rev. W. Johnson, Jas. E. Rose, Jas. Potter, and M. F. Long.

Hon. Robt. Lowry has been appointed Judge of the Superior Court, vice Allen Zollars resigned. Mr. Lowry is an able popular Judge, well qualified, and possessing admirable attenments for the position.

Gen. McClellan has been nominated by the Democrats for Governor of New Jersey, and there is great enthusiasm over the result. Little Mac. deserves this mark of confidence and it came entirely without solicitation.

Spain continues to fertilize Cuban soil with the bodies of brave soldiers. At this season when, to a stranger, the place is dangerous, 12,000 more men have been sent forward to dumbly and patiently sicken and die, and leave their bodies unavailing sacrifices to the rebellion.

The amiable wife of our Sheriff, Mrs. St. Clair, will please accept our thanks for a most handsome bouquet. There is something inexpressably sweet and beautiful in flowers, and those who cultivate them, must naturally be endowed with something akin to these attributes.

Kendallville Standard. A. C. Jackman, of Waterloo, has leased the brick hotel on Main street, christened it the "Jackman House," and taken possession. Mr. Jackman is a gentleman of excellent business qualifications, and a good citizen, and we are glad to welcome him and his family to our city.

It was rumored a few days ago, that our old friend Free Kelly was very much embarassed financially, and likely to go under. We are glad to hear from him that it is only an attempt to injure him and that he is sound, and can pay all he owes. We'll bet our pacer that Free will stay by them and come off with flying colors.

We are told that Angola refuses to play Auburn unless our boys acknowledg that they were fairly beaten. The score is recorded in their favor, and we did not know that the individual opinions of the players could be called for in these contests. This is more of a confession than anything else.

A colored gentleman in that fatal region around Richmond, Ky., undertook last Sunday morning to reward Cassius M. Clay for his long life of devotion to the cause of abolition of slavery by killing him. But the veteran got the drop on him, and sent him to keep company with the twelve other persons who have fallen by the pistol in that neighborhood in the year of grace, 1877.

Garrett Herald. A newly wedded couple took possession of their domicle last evening and about 11 o'clock the boys commenced "belling" them. Our little four year old daughter was aroused from her slumber by the noise and din of the bells, and remembering the mule team, with bells on, that Decker uses in his dray, she asked: "Pa did the mules runned off?"

Mr. Henry Heist, of Kendallville, was robbed of $1,000 in cash on Sunday evening the 16th of last month, between nine and twelve o'clock. He awakened about 12 o'clock and found the money which was in his pants pockets had disappeared. There has been sundry thefts of articles there lately, and he says he knows who took them and also the money.

Billy Beane says in his Goshen Democrat: "It is disagreeable to be dunning so much, but we wish all who can, would hurry up their little amounts just now." It would be a very easy matter for nearly, if not quite everybody, who takes a paper to "fork over" a two dollar bill and thus relieve publishers of their pressing wants. But so many people think these little dribs are of no account, and consequently neglect the performance of a very plain duty.

An exchange has found out that the parties, who advertise to furnish visiting and wedding cards at such remarkable low rates, dispose of the names and addresses they collect in this manner to dealers in obscene literature and pictures. A victim of these cheap card furnishes us another explanation. In this case the card man, after filling enough orders to get the business well started, quietly pocketed all the cash he received, and gave no attention to the demands of his customers for their cards.

Do not dispair if you have tried a hundred and one remedies for Rheumatism or Neuralgia without relief. Use Lawson's Curative according to the directions and there is no question about your receiving permanent benefit. It does not fail to cure for it strikes at the root of the disease. Sold by F. E. Davenport.

Excursion to Rome City.

The Detroit, Eel River & Illinois railroad will give an excursion to Rome City next Saturday, October 6th, which will be the last of the season: Only $1 for round trip from Butler and Auburn. Train leaves in the morning and reaches Rome City at 11:30, and returns in the evening reaching here about 7 o'clock. The spendid company, the Hogan Greys and Ceciliaa Band of Logansport, will hold dress parade at the lake, and other unusual attractions are offered. Go by all means.

The Boys went up to Angola to play a return game of ball with the club there last Friday and the result was close, the score standing 9 to 10 against Auburn. Quite a number went up to see the game, and all are outspoken against the unfairness of the umpire. We are glad we were not present, as nothing is so disgusting as a prejudiced, one-sided umpire. We think our boys showed the true spirit in playing the game through.

In Memphis last week a colored woman begged permission to stay all night with a benevolent family. She was given a good bed, but about daylight arose, stole the baby of her hostess and decamped. The child is but three weeks old, and there is no possible motive for the infamous deed. The parents are crazed over the abduction, but as yet there has been no clue found for the dastardly act.

The lectures of Mrs Pottson Physiology, Health, &c. are very interesting to judge of the number in attendance. Her lectures indicate thorough knowledge of her subject, and she spares no pains to show the true and denounce the false To-morrow Friday evening she will lecture on marriage, when and whom to marry, &c. Go by all means, and take your sweethearts along.

Coming home from Toledo last Friday evening, we struck a noisy crowd at Waterloo, going south. The boys had been up to Angola playing ball, and the liquids aboard seemed to have been of the most excruciating kind. The ball players themselves were in good shape, but some of the followers were sadly demoralized. Parents should accompany these excursions, and those in-Klined to Rush into these affairs and be-Little themselves, should be greatly admonished.

Our esteemed friend L. M. Bowser, of Fort Wayne died suddenly last Tuesday. The Sentinel says: "Mr. Bowser has been suffering from the ague, but with that exception was appearently in his usual health yesterday. Last evening he was engaged in reading at his home until about 9:30, when he retired. In about half an hour his wife's attention was attracted by his heavy breathing and gasping for air. Neighbors were called in and physicians summoned, but it was impossible to arouse Mr. Bowser from the sinking chill from which he was suffering and he died at 11 o'clock."

Butler Record. The builders are busy at work on the Newville bridge across the St Joe river, and it will only be a short time until the river at that point may be crossed with safety. The bridge will cross the river with a single span, and will rest on wooden pile at the ends instead of iron or stone abutments. For this piece of economy, the county commissioners are to be commended, as the county is illy able at this time to stand improvements, and by the time these piles have become dangerous, it is to be hoped that the county may supply the place with something more substantial.

A very serious accident occurred last Saturday to a lad of this place by the name of Perry Stilwell. Perry and a few other boys went south of town gathering walnuts where the accident happened. Perry being more supple than the other boys was elected to go up and shake the nuts off. It seems that he was standing on a limb, reaching for another one to steady himself. When he got hold of it it proved to be rotten and of course broke, precipitating the young man down a distance of some thirty or forty feet, breaking one arm and putting both wrists out of place in a horrible shape.—Angola Herald.

No Failure Known.

There is no case on record where Dr. Morris' Syrup of Tar, Wild Cherry and Horehound has failed to give satisfaction. On the other hand, wherever it has been used by our people, in severe colds, coughs, asthma, bronchitis, croup whooping-cough and consumption, they are enthusiastic in its praise. Containing no opium or other dangerous drug, it does not constipate, and is safe to administer in all conditions of health. This is an important announcement, and the suffering are advised to heed it. Trial size 10 cts; large sizes 50 cts. and one dollar. Sold by F. E. Davenport. Also agents for Prof. Parker's Pleasant Worm Syrup, which is sure death to worms, pleasant to take, and requires no physic. Price 25 cts. Try it.

Unremitting application will induce disease unless the blood be kept pure and rich. For all hard workers the remedy to keep the blood in the best condition is Dr. Bull's Blood Mixture. Sold by F. E. Davenport.

New goods at the New York Store.

Court Items.

McClure, charged with stealing tobacco at the Junction, was put on trial Monday, and the jury returned verdict of not guilty.

The case against H. H. Houser, for embezzelment, was dismissed at this term of court.

In two cases against Tom. [illegible] for violation of the liquor law, he was acquitted.

In the case of Wm. Lessig for threatening to use a deadly weapon, which was appealed from Justice Walborn, the jury returned a verdict of not guilty.

[illegible] from Wm. McCullough plead guilty, and was sent to state prison for two years.

Frank Robinson for stealing surgical instruments from Dr. Cowan, plead not guilty, and the jury returned a verdict of guilty, and that he go to Michigan City for two years. Motion for new trial.

Orlando Gibson, who was charged with larceny, and held to answer at the Circuit Court, was tried Tuesday and acquitted promptly by the jury. It seems to have been one of those cases of bulldosing, and through fear or threats the boy made admissions which were ruled out at this trial. He is a son of Mr. Wm. Gibson, lately of Newville, has always borne a good name, and he can congratulate himself that he has escaped from his enemies.

The School.

For the benefit of parents and others interested in the public schools we this week submit the names of the pupils of the several grades, who were neither absent or tardy during the last month.

HIGH SCHOOL.

J. Shull, J. W. McClellan, W. Rose, F. McDowel, M. J. Hoffman, Cory Shugars.

A. INTERMEDIATE.

Ida Bell, Mary Griswold, Mary Baldock.

B INTERMEDIATE.

None.

C INTERMEDIATE.

James Hoffman, Frank Fluke, Mary Steel, Clara Staimets, Mary Mitchell, Bell Langing, Ettie Kline.

D INTERMEDIATE.

Frank Shugars, Altha Houghton, Maggie Silver, Clara Walborn.

A PRIMARY.

Maud Abright, Minnie Wilson, May Humes, Wilbur Duck.

B PRIMARY.

Mina Mitchell.

C PRIMARY.

Tulie Peterson.

D PRIMARY.

George Mitchell.

UPPER BUILDING—A PRIMARY.

Lettie Meece, Josie Ashley.

B PRIMARY.

Mary Baker, Mary Beuret, Freddie, Lobmiller.

C PRIMARY.

Lena Cloy, Emma Beuret, Bertha Hendricks, Joseph Kapp.

D PRIMARY.

Nora Ashley, Ida Frets, Eugene Gerardot, Harry Parent, Clara Thomas, Dessa Silvers, Frank Lanham, Lillie Hebel, Nettie Darling, Andrew Frets, Laura Miser, Charles Rainier, Jesie Smith, Frank Baker, Lewis Wills.

M. SEILER, Supt.

What a Boy Can Do.

There is a beautiful little village in one of the eastern counties of Ohio, prettily situated at the base of a range of giant hills, from whose summit you may have a picturesque view of a most lovely land scape stretching for many miles to the north over a luxuriant, fertile plain There resides a widowed mother, a restless active young lad, and a bright eyed sister. The town limits soon became a restraint to the boy, and he longed to strike out into the world, and commence with hard knocks to carve out something for himself. At last he could be held no longer, and leaving mother, sister and their tears, he gathered his scanty store and started westward for the boundless praires of Iowa. Arriving at his destination, he looked wonderingly upon the praries and what he must do to live. He finally got a positson as office boy in an attorney's office, and making good use of his spare moments, he began to get a taste of the law, and before he was of age was admitted to the bar. He has not been sent to Congress yet, nor the penitentary, but something awful is about to break in upon his brilliant career—he is about to get married. We think this would be a good subject for a Sunday school book, to show little boys what they will come to if they leave their home young, and make an effort for themselves.

Commissioners' Proceedings.

The Board of County Commissioners met in special session Monday, Sept. 14th, and transacted the following business:

Petition by Daniel Anthony and others for a highway in Smithfield-tp. Viewers appointed, Daniel Slaybaugh, Philip Albright and John McCulley.

By T. C. Bisse and others, for vacation of highway in Union-tp. Viewers report favorably which report was confirmed.

By Daniel Gengerech, for a private road in Franklin-tp. Dismissed for want of jurisdiction.

By G. D. Dawson and others, for change in highway in Union-tp. Viewers appointed Daniel Thomas, O. J. Patterson and Daniel Lintz, to meet November 1st.

By Geo. W. Dowas and others, for change of highway in [illegible]-tp. The viewers reported a route which was adopted.

By James McClellan and others, for a road in Newville-tp. Viewers report favorably and report confirmed.

By Levi Pifer and others, for a highway in Wilmington-tp. Dismissed.

By Cyrus Sponhower and others, for a ditch in Jackson and Concord-tps. Viewers appointed J. J. VanAuken, Joseph Shryock and Wm. Whetsel.

By Fred Krehl, for a ditch in Fairfield tp. Viewers appointed J. J. VanAuken Jacob Meyers and Abraham Buss.

By Hiram Enzor, for a ditch in Franklin and Troy-tps. Viewers appointed J. J. VanAuken, J. W. Clark and Philip Parnell.

By Wm. Henderson and other, for a ditch in Concord-tp. Viewers appointed J. J. VanAuken, Frank Baird and F. D. Ryan.

Petitions for drains, by S. J. Tarney, A. Johnson, R. M. Lockhart, Henry Zirkel, G. D. McGowan, Wm. Boyd, Jacob Kahn, D. P. Hale and others were all continued.

By A. Buchanan and others, for a bridge north of Sedan, in Fairfield-tp. Commissioner Duncan to superintend the work.

By J. St. Clair and others, for bridge in Union-tp. Com. Goetschius to superintend the work.

By O. C. Clark and others, to incorporate the Cedar Creek cemetry, in Butler-tp. Granted.

By Emily Fuller and others, for drain in Jackson-tp. Postponed.

By O. Hensinger and others, for drain in Union-tp. Motion to dismiss sustained.

By Jacob Metzker and others, for a highway in Fairfield-tp. Granted and Com. Duncan to superintend work.

By Talma Rummel and others, for a bridge in Troy-tp. Granted.

By same for bridge across Fish Creek in Troy tp. Granted and Com. Duncan to superintend work.

By Jacob Crise and others, for drain in Stafford-tp. Continued.

By Allen Shultz and others, for change of highway in Franklin-tp. Dismissed.

The Board ordered that iron abutments be used in the bridge to be constructed at Newville, and Olds and Wheelock were awarded the contract.

Indianapolis Sentinel. General Pearson, of Pitsburg, has been arrested on the charge of murder, the victim being Father Nicholas Stoppel. The statement is that General Pearson was in charge of certain regiments of state troops during the "strike," and that he gave the order to fire on the crowd. Stoppel was sitting in his doorway when shot, not being in any way connected with the people gathered about the railroad. General Pearson says that the arrest was at the instigation of the mayor, who was inefficient during the trouble, and who hopes by this means to keep General Pearson from rendering his official report, when his incompetency will be set forth.

Notice of Administration.

NOTICE is hereby given, that the undersigned has been appointed by the Clerk of the De Kalb Circuit Court, of the State of Indiana, administrator of the estate of Wm. Heckathorn, deceased, late of said county.

Said estate is supposed to be solvent.

DAVID HECKATHORN, Adm'r.

September 22, 1877 6039.

NOTICE.

The undersigned hereby gives due notice that he will not be responsible for debts contracted by any one in his name, no matter who they may be.

HENRY MAXWELL.

Oct. 4th, 1877. 3w.

A large line of Ladies latest style cloaks expected at the New York store within ten days. Be sure to see them.

NEW GOODS

ARIVING DAILY!

AT THE

STAR CLOTHING HOUSE!

SAM, PETE & MAX, STAR CLOTHING HOUSE, FT. WA Y

AUBURN COURIER.

THURSDAY, OCTOBER 4, 1877.

THE NEWS CONDENSED.

HAYES.

THE PRESIDENT'S SPEECH AT ATLANTA, GA.

President Hayes and party arrived in Atlanta, Ga., on the morning of Sept. 22, and was greeted by an immense gathering of people. The President spoke as follows in the presence of 10,000 people:

FELLOW-CITIZENS OF GEORGIA: I suppose that here, as everywhere else I am in the presence of men of both great political parties. I am speaking also in the presence of citizens of both races. I am quite sure there are before me very many of the brave men who fought in the Confederate army [applause], some doubtless of the men who fought in the Union army [applause], and here we are, Republicans, Democrats, colored people, Confederate soldiers, and Union soldiers, all of one mind and one heart to-day. [Immense cheering.] And why should we not be? What is there to separate us longer? Without any fault of yours, or any fault of mine, or of any one of this great audience, slavery existed in this country. It was in the constitution of the country. The colored man was here not by his own voluntary action. It was the misfortune of his fathers that he was here. I think it is safe to say it was by the crime of our fathers he was here. He was here, however, and the two sections differed about what should be done with him. As Mr. Lincoln told us in the war, there were prayers on both sides for him. Both sides found in the Bible confirmation of their opinions, and both sides finally undertook to settle the question by that last final means of arbitration, force of arms. You here mainly joined the Confederate side and fought bravely, risked your lives heroically in behalf of your convictions, and can any true man anywhere fail to respect the man who risks his life for his convictions? [Prolonged cheers.] And as I accord that respect to you, and believe you to be equally liberal, and generous, and just, I feel, as I stand before you, as one who fought in the Union army for his convictions, I am entitled to your respect. [Cheers.] Now that conflict is over, my friends. Gov. Hampton repeated to you last night the way in which I have been in the habit of putting it since I came to the South. There were a larger proportion of trained soldiers in your army at first than in ours. In much larger proportion you were good marksmen and good horsemen, and that is two-thirds of a good soldier [laughter]; but gradually we learned to ride too [laughter], and as some of you know gradually learned to shoot. [Renewed laughter.] I happen to know how well you could shoot. [Cheers.] Well, having learned how to ride and shoot, it was the case of fighting between Greek and Greek. When Greek meets Greek, you know what the conflict is. [Cheers.] And more than that, you know exactly how it will terminate. That party in that fight will always conquer that has the most Greeks. [Laughter and cheers.] It is with no discredit to you and no special credit to us the war turned out as it did. [Cheers.] Now, shall we quit fighting? [Cries of "Yes," "Yes."]

I have been in the habit of telling an anecdote about Gen. Scott and the statesman at Washington, in which the statesman said that as soon as the war was over, and the combatants laid down their arms, we would have complete peace. "No," said Gen. Scott, "it will take several years, in which all the powers of the General Government will be employed in keeping peace between the belligerent non-combatants." [Laughter.] Now, I think we have gotten through that [cheers], and, having peace between the soldiers and non-combatants, that is an end of the war. Is there any reason, then, why we should not be at peace forever more? We are embarked upon the same voyage, upon the same ship, under the same old flag. Good fortune or ill fortune affects you and your children as well as my people and my children. [Cheers.] Every interest you possess is to be promoted by peace. Here is the great city of Atlanta gathering to itself from all parts of the country its wealth and business by its railroads, and I say to you that every description of industry and legitimate business needs peace. That is what capital wants. Discord, discontent, and dissatisfaction are the enemies of these enterprises. Then all our interests are for peace. Are we not agreed about that? What do we want for the future? I believe it is the duty of the General Government to regard equally the interests and rights of all sections of the country. [Cheers.] I am glad you agree with me about that. I believe further that it is the duty of governments to regard alike and equally the rights and interests of all classes of citizens. [Cheers]. That covers the whole matter. That wipes out in the future in our politics the section line forever. [Cheers.] Let us wipe out in our politics the color line forever. [Cheers.]

And let me say a word upon what has been done. I do not undertake to discuss or defend particular measures. I leave the people with their knowledge of the facts to examine and discuss, and decide for themselves as to them. I only speak of general considerations and motives. What troubles our people at the North, what has troubled them, was that they feared that these colored people who had been made free men by the war would not be safe in their rights and interests in the South unless it was by the interference of the General Government. Many good people had that idea. I had given that matter some consideration, and now, my colored friends, who have thought, or who have been told I was turning my back upon the men I fought for, now listen. After thinking it over I believed your rights and interests would be safe if this great mass of intelligent white men were let alone by the General Government. [Immense enthusiasm and cheering lasting for several minutes.]

And now, my colored friends, let me say another thing. We have been trying it for these six months, and, in my opinion, for no six months since the war has there been so few outrages and invasions of your rights, nor have you been so secure in your rights, persons and homes as in the last six months. [Great cheering.] Then, my friends, we are all together upon one proposition. We believe, and in this all those who are here agree, in the Union of our fathers, in the old flag of our fathers, the constitution as it is, with all its amendments, and are prepared to see it fully and fairly obeyed and enforced. [Cheers.]

Now, my friends, I see it stated occasionally that President Hayes has taken the course he has because he was compelled to it. [A voice—"We don't believe it."] Now, I was compelled to it. [Applause.] I was compelled to it by my sense of duty under my oath of office. [Intense enthusiasm and cheers.] What was done by us was done not merely by force of special circumstances, but because we believed it was just and right to do it. [Cheers.]

Now let us come together; let each man make up his mind to be a patriot in his own home and place. You may quarrel about tariff, get up a sharp contest about the currency, about the removal of the State Capitals and where they would go to [laughter], but upon the great question of the Union of States and rights of all the citizens we shall agree forevermore. [Great cheers.]

I shall not forget this reception and this greeting. Every good purpose I have will be strengthened by what I have seen and heard to-day. I thank you for the help it will give me hereafter during my term of office. I bid you good morning. [Cheers.]

THE EAST.

PONVERT & Co., an old and large sugar importing house of New York, have made an assignment....The Chicago express train bound west met with a serious disaster on the Central road, near Rome, N. Y., on the 21st of September. The train collided with a "wild" express, both of the engines and the mail and baggage cars being completely wrecked. Three train men were killed and several badly bruised. Several passengers were injured.

THE discovery of the over-issue of about $1,000,000 worth of stock of the West Philadelphia Passenger Railway Company is the Quaker City's latest criminal sensation. John S. Morton, President of the company (and who, by the way, is also President of the Philadelphia Permanent Exhibition), makes a clean breast of it, and says the fraud has been going on for seven years.

A PACKAGE containing Government and railroad bonds, certificates of stock, mortgages, and promissory notes, estimated at $200,000, has been stolen from the First National Bank of Cortland, N. Y.

THE miners in the Wilkesbarre district of the Pennsylvania coal fields have agreed to accept the recently-rejected advance of 10 per cent. on their wages, which puts an end to the strike....The Cambridgeport (Mass.) National Bank has been robbed of $50,000 worth of securities.

GEN. PEARSON, who commanded the militia in the Pittsburgh riots, has been arrested and held to bail on a charge of murder....John T. Morton and others, implicated in the Philadelphia railway swindle, have been held to bail on a charge of conspiracy to defraud....The city of Providence, R. I., has been visited by a destructive conflagration. Some of the most valuable buildings in the business heart of the town were burned, involving a loss of over $600,000....The Barnstable (Mass.) Savings Bank has failed....L. Prang & Co.'s chromo establishment, Boston, has been burned; loss, $100,000.

THE WEST.

THE Ohio editors have just held an interesting convention at Cleveland....A fire in the lumber district of Chicago burned the Union Planing Mill and 200,000 feet of lumber. Loss about $40,000.

ANOTHER of Chicago's savings banks—the Fidelity—has closed its doors and passed into the hands of a receiver. Ever since the failure of the State Savings Institution there has been a constant run on the Fidelity, and it was forced at last to succumb. The depositors number 6,800, and their deposits amount to about $1,400,000. It is said the assets will realize from 70 to 90 cents on the dollar....All the officers of the collapsed State Savings Bank, of Chicago, have been indicted for embezzlement.

FROM Colorado there comes the story of a most extraordinary crime and its swift punishment. "Twelve robbers got together 7,500 head of cattle and were driving them out of the country. Fifteen well-armed rangers pursued the thieves and overtook them in the northwest corner of Kansas. The pursuers surrounded their camp, taking them by surprise and opening a deadly fire, killing four at the first volley. Panic-stricken, the thieves attempted to escape by running, but, before they were out of range, three more bit the dust. One, a Mexican, threw up his hands and begged for mercy, but a rope was thrown around his neck and he was dragged a quarter of a mile to a tree and hung. This was on the 21st day of last August. On the 14th of September a party ran across the pile of dead men, and attempted to bury them, but the horrible stench was too much, and they were obliged to leave them alone."...A telegram dated "Camp of the Seventh Cavalry, in the field, Montana, Sept. 22," says: "We followed the Nez Perces yesterday, and, in a running fight, killed five and captured 108 ponies. No casualties with us. Will follow them as far as our stock will permit. The command is now reduced to pony meat. The Indians are striking for the Judith mountains."...Goodwin & Behr, soap and candle-makers, St. Louis, have failed. Liabilities, $75,000.

A FRIGHTFUL tragedy was recently enacted at Davidson's Camp, in Wyoming Territory: Tim Ryan, foreman for Dawson, was shot and mortally wounded by one Charley Cowan. A third party named Snodgrass then struck Cowan on the head with a poker, felling him. Ryan then arose, took Cowan's pistol, and beat his head to a jelly, after which he fell to the floor and expired.

THE financial storm with which Chicago has been beset seems to have about blown over, and monetary affairs are assuming their wonted serenity. The receivers of the various defunct savings banks are working out the problem that is bothering the heads of depositors, namely, the ascertainment of the amount each victim is likely to receive out of the assets of the rotten concerns. The State Savings assets, it is thought, will pan out about 35 or 40 cents on the dollar. The Fidelity will do a good deal better than this, the estimates ranging from 70 to 90 cents on the dollar. The depositors in Sydney Myers' bank are probably the worst victimized lot of men that ever put their trust in a savings bank; they will be extremely fortunate if they receive 10 cents on the dollar. Another bank is to be numbered among the things that were, the Prairie State Loan and Trust Company having decided to go into voluntary liquidation; the depositors will all be paid in full before the bank closes up. The Hibernian, and the Illinois Trust and Savings banks have decided to reduce the rate of interest to 4 per cent. after the 1st of January....L. P. Hilliard, President; A. W. Edwards, Secretary; John Reid, Treasurer; Martin Ryan, Actuary, and —— Sawyer, Assistant Secretary of the lately collapsed Protection Life Insurance Company, of Chicago, have been indicted for embezzlement. The President of the late Merchants', Farmers' and Mechanics' Bank, Sydney Myers, has also been indicted for the same crime.

THE Sheriff of Ellis county, Kansas, with a posse of soldiers, pursued and overtook two of the Union Pacific train robbers. The latter turned upon their pursuers and were shot down. They had $20,000 in gold coin in their possession.

THE SOUTH.

PLANTERS in the valley of the Black Warrior river, Alabama, have suffered a terrible loss by inundation. The loss on the cotton alone will be over $3,000,000. The loss of the corn crop, it is said, is likely to entail considerable suffering.

DEPUTY SHERIFF MELTON, of Graham, Texas, attempted to arrest Bob Vandiver, a noted desperado. Vandever killed Melton and one of his posse, dangerously wounded another, and made good his escape.

ANDERSON SHIFFLETT has been executed at Harrisonburg, Va., for the murder of David G. Lawson. The condemned man protested his innocence to the last.

WASHINGTON.

ASSISTANT SECRETARY MCCORMICK will not retire on the 4th of October, as intended, but will remain a little longer, at the request of Secretary Sherman and the President....Some of Secretary Sherman's friends, says a Washington correspondent, assert positively that, in the event of the Republicans obtaining a majority in the Ohio Legislature, he will be a candidate for election to the Senate.

THE Hon. J. Q. Smith, late Commissioner of Indian Affairs, has been appointed Consul General to Canada....The treasury people were very nervous when the news was first received of the bold robbery of the train upon the Union Pacific railroad. It had over $300,000 in silver pigs in the express car. It was too heavy to be carried off, and so the Government escaped without loss....The magnificent building of the Patent Office was partially destroyed by fire the other day, with an immense number of models of inventions. The lower stories of the building, containing the archives of the Indian Bureau, as well as the records of the Patent Office, and about half the models, were saved. The loss on the building is estimated at upward of $500,000. The loss on the models, upward of 100,000, of which were either burned or broken in removal, can scarcely be estimated.

PRESIDENT HAYES and party arrived in Washington from their Southern tour on the evening of Sept. 25. At Lynchburg, Richmond and other Virginia towns the reception was of the same cordial character that had marked the journey through Kentucky, Tennessee and Georgia....The actual loss to the Government by the Patent Office fire is estimated at $900,000.

GENERAL.

THE strikers' war in Pennsylvania is so nearly over that the Government feels justified in transferring the troops heretofore quartered in that State to the scenes of Indian disturbance in Montana. The companies that have been for some weeks stationed in Wilkesbarre and Pittsburgh are already under orders for the West.

THE finest piece of counterfeiting ever executed is that of the five-dollar bills on the First National Bank of Tamaqua, Pa. They are so near perfection that it is almost impossible to detect the bogus from the genuine, and it has been determined to call in all the bank's bills of that denomination.

SAN FRANCISCO telegram: "Schooner Newton Booth, just arrived from the Arctic ocean, reports that, of seventy men left on the abandoned whaling fleet last year, only two, both Kanakas, have reached Point Barrow. All the rest are supposed to have perished in the ice-pack."...Late advices from Sitka, Alaska, bring information of a deplorable state of affairs thereabouts since the withdrawal of the troops. There is no semblance of law and no protection for either life or property. The white residents will probably abandon the country as soon as they can get away.

POLITICAL.

THE Republicans of New Jersey held their State Convention at Trenton last week. Gen. Kilpatrick presided, and ex-Secretary of the Navy Robeson was Chairman of the Committee on Resolutions. William A. Newell was nominated for Governor. The resolutions adopted reaffirm the National Republican platform of 1876, and declare:

That the President of the United States, holding his high office by a majority of the electoral votes cast at the last election, and by virtue of the decision of the most august tribunal ever created by Congress, is entitled to the support and respect in his office of every law-abiding citizen, and the puerile efforts of those portions of the Democratic party to throw discredit upon the tribunal, largely their own creation, is an exhibition of folly and bad faith which deserves the reprobation and contempt [illegible].

That we cordially recognize the earnestness and sincerity with which President Hayes is laboring to promote reconciliation in all sections of the country, and to secure the efficient and economical administration of the business of the Government. We are united in desiring the accomplishment of these great objects, and pledge our hearty support to every wise measure calculated to secure the lasting unity and prosperity of the whole country on a basis of impartial justice and equal rights for all citizens of all sections.

That we congratulate the country upon the progress made toward resumption of specie payment, and demand the adoption of all measures necessary to insure the restoration of a standard uniform throughout the world at a date not later than that now fixed by law.

That the reduction of the rate of interest to 6 per cent. is the obvious demand of a sound public policy, and should be accomplished by explicit legislation at the earliest possible moment.

That we point with pride to the evidence which the history of the Republican party affords of its devotion to the interests of labor. It has secured to 4,000,000 oppressed people a proper reward for their toil, and through the agency of a reasonable tariff has sought to protect American workmen against the hurtful competition of the ill-paid labor of foreign lands; that the past record of the party is a guarantee that the future policy will be one of justice to workingmen as well as to other classes of people, and which, by the adoption of wise financial measures and encouragement of the industrial interest, will, so far as it can be accomplished by legislation, tend to open new avenues for the use of capital and employment of labor.

THE Wisconsin Democratic State Convention met at Fond du Lac, Sept. 26, and was presided over by James G. Jenkins, of Milwaukee. The following ticket was nominated: For Governor, James A. Mallory, of Milwaukee; Lieutenant Governor, R. E. Davis, of Dane; Secretary of State, James B. Hays, of Dodge; State Treasurer, John Ringle, of Marathon; Attorney General, Joseph M. Morrison, of Monroe; Superintendent of Public Instruction, Edward Searing, present incumbent. The following resolutions were adopted:

1. The Democratic and Reform party of Wisconsin, in State Convention assembled, renews its pledges of devotion to the Union and the constitution, with all the amendments.

2. Declares its firm belief that the will of the people was defeated in the late Presidential election by fraud and chicane under the protection of the Federal military, and through the ballot-box will express its condemnation of the act and the actors.

3. It declares for the freedom of the ballot, unawed by the bayonet, and insists that military interference in regulating and controlling an election is subversive of the first principles of a free Government.

4. It declares its opposition to subsidies, and in favor of the preservation of the public lands for the use of actual settlers.

5. It declares its hostility to the financial policy of the Republican party, withdrawing capital from taxation, increasing the burden of the public debt by declaring currency bonds payable in gold, demonetizing silver in the interest of the creditor and at the expense of the debtor, and attempting to force resumption when it will bring ruin upon the general business interests of the country, and demands instead that the property protected by the Government pay its just proportion of the expenses of the Government, that silver be remonetized, and the present Resumption act be repealed, and resumption be postponed until the financial condition of the country will permit it.

6. It declares its opposition to a longer continuance of the national-bank currency, and demands that the Government furnish its own notes in the place thereof.

7. It declares its unyielding opposition to a high protective tariff as vicious in principle, advancing the interests of a few at the expense of the many.

8. It declares its opposition to the fostering of monopolies, and favors such legislative regulation of inter-State commerce as will prevent the pooling combinations of railway, express, telegraph and freight companies from extorting exorbitant rates to make watered stock yield productive interest.

9. It declares in favor of such legislation as will equalize the pay of the soldiers in the late war, and its hostility to the system of technicalities used by Government officials to prevent the payment to them of their honest dues.

10. It declares for a reduction of national and State expenses, and to that end demands the reformation and honest administration of the Revenue laws, the abolition of sinecure offices, the reduction of large and unearned salaries to officers, and the discharge of all supernumerary officeholders.

11. It declares its opposition to high and exorbitant rates of interest, and demands the reduction of legal rates to 7 per cent., and no more.

12. It declares for the repeal of all laws exempting railroad land and corporate stock other than that held for religious and school purposes from taxation.

13. It declares for the maintenance of our free-school system, free to all without taint of sectarianism.

14. It declares its opposition to extraordinary and unusual sumptuary laws, but insists that the minority must acquiesce in the lawfully-expressed will of the majority.

15. It demands that due regard be paid by our Government to the labor question, and to all just claims of the workingmen. It demands the enactment of stringent laws for the protection of labor and the collection of wages due workingmen. It demands the proper regulation of prison-labor laws, and for the protection of the health and lives of the operatives in manufacturing establishments.

EX-PRESIDENT GRANT, in a recent interview with a correspondent of the New York Herald, expressed himself as follows: "If I was at home I would exert my influence, as far I could exert it, in favor of Hayes' plan of reconciliation. The object aimed at is a noble one, and I hope it will succeed."

THE Maryland Democratic State Convention was held at Baltimore last week. Thomas J. Keating was nominated for Comptroller. The resolutions approve the course of President Hayes, "whose title to office is not derived from an election according to constitutional methods, but exists by the adjudication of a tribunal unknown to the constitution, but whose award has been acquiesced in by a peace-loving people;" demands "the revision of our present tariff laws to the end that no more revenue shall be raised than is necessary to defray the expenses of the Government frugally administered, and the gradual but certain extinction of the public debt;" opposes subsidies of all kinds, and declares that "the wealth of the country is mainly derived from the product of its labor, and every just measure to improve the condition and promote the advancement of the laboring classes should receive sympathy, and will command our cordial support."

THE Republicans of Minnesota met in convention at St. Paul, Sept. 27, and nominated Gov. Pillsbury and nearly all the State officers for re-election. The platform favors the early resumption of specie payments and the remonetization of silver, and contains the following unequivocal indorsement of the national administration:

We believe that with the suppression of armed resistance to national authority the object of our late war was substantially achieved, and that, pursuant to the true theory of representative government which tolerates no subject race among its people, the several States should now be left free to manage their local affairs in their own way, subject only upon national issues to the constitutional and paramount authority of the United States; and we hail with gratification the efforts of the wise and patriotic President to promote sentiments of peace and fraternal concord among the people of all the States of the Union in recognition of the broad principles of national unity, local self-government, and equal rights of all citizens of one common country. The sincere and persistent efforts of President Hayes to redeem the promises made in his letter of acceptance and inaugural message, as well as the repeated pledges of the Republican party in behalf of civil-service reform, deserve the cordial support of the Republican party and commend themselves to the best sentiment of the country at large.

THE Republican State Convention of New York was held at Rochester Sept. 26-7. The Chairman of the Convention, Thomas C. Platt, bitterly attacked the national administration in his opening speech. Senator Conkling also made a speech, in which he attacked the civil service and Southern policy of the President. A resolution introduced by George William Curtis indorsing the administration was voted down by 109 yeas to 295 nays. The following ticket was nominated: John C. Churchill for Secretary of State; Francis Sylvester for Comptroller; William L. Bostwick for State Treasurer; Greenville Tremaine for Attorney General; Howard Soule for State Engineer. The platform adopted is as follows:

First—The Republicans of New York, true to the achievements of an unequaled history, and faithful to the demands of uncompleted mission, make the following declarations: The office of the Government is to preserve order, peace, and safety, and to protect every citizen in the enjoyment of every right implied by the constitution and laws. Unity and fraternal relations in all States and sections, and between all States and sections, is of the first and highest importance, and the Republican party of New York will heartily support every measure authorized by law adapted to establishing and maintaining commercial and industrial prosperity and tranquility, justice and obedience to lawful authority.

Second—The Republicans reaffirm that the United States shall guarantee to every State in this Union a republican form of Government. The only republican Government known to the constitution of any American State is a Government chosen by the people. The question whether a case has arisen requiring the President to employ the military forces to protect State authority against domestic violence is by the constitution committed to his decision and to his responsibility. Taking no issue with any decision of this kind which has been made by the National Executive in respect to the employment of troops, and expressing no opinion in regard to the methods and attendant proceedings employed in any instance, we cherish the hope that the action taken in relation to the Southern States will result in peace, tranquillity, and justice, and no act of the Republicans of New York conducive to its good effect shall be withheld.

Third—We insist on purity, frugality and efficiency in every branch of the public service, national and State. To that end we hold these requirements practical and just:

1. No needless office, officer or public agent should exist.

2. Compensation for official service should be fair and just, but in no case excessive.

3. Fit men, and no others, should hold public trusts.

4. Every official, high or low, should be required at all times faithfully to perform his duty, and the whole of it.

5. No official or officeholder should be subject to political or partisan assessments, or to interference in any way with his political rights or action, and plain laws should forbid and punish all attempts to make or enforce such assessments, or to control or abridge in any respect absolute freedom in political action, which in this country belongs to all voters alike.

In connection with this subject we recur with satisfaction to that portion of the letter of acceptance of Mr. Hayes wherein he declares that founders of our Government meant that the officer should be secure in his tenure as long as his personal character remained untarnished and the performance of his duties satisfactory.

In furtherance of this view we commend as worthy of consideration legislation making officers secure in a limited, fixed tenure, and subject to removal only as officers under State laws are removable in this State, on charges, to be regularly and openly preferred and adjudged.

Fourth—We hold honest service or labor the best and highest exertion for American citizens, and those who labor for others, whether for the Government or for private employers, are as fully entitled as any citizen can be to absolute freedom in all political, civil and religious affairs. They owe the full service they agree to render, and to their employers they owe nothing more. The constitution of the United States and of the State of New York and the laws establish equal rights for all citizens and all voters, and we deprecate as unwarrantable and hurtful attempts by employers, whether representing capital or political power, to encroach upon or coerce others in the enjoyment of any of the rights or the exercise of any duties of citizenship. In the State of New York the whole number of national office-holders, including clerks and subordinates of every degree, is 7,465. This is one national official or subordinate to 152 voters. Of State, county and town officials there are in this State 129,213. This is one State, county or town official to every eight and a half voters. When the potential functions of local officers are taken into account, their nearness to the citizen, and their power over his property, taxes and interest, their relative influence becomes even greater than numbers indicate. The exclusion of public servants from political action would disfranchise a great body of our fellow-citizens. The laws mean no such exclusion, and we deny as an imputation upon the people of New York that they are or have been dominated by the nation's subordinate officials, and we can conceive of no condition of affairs short of the extinction of manhood and patriotism in which a Postmaster or clerk could subdue to his partisan will 150 other electors, or exert any other influence beyond such as his character might give him.

Fifth—Public faith, honest industry, and general prosperity demand a sound currency of coin and paper convertible into coin, and the already near approach to specie payments enforces the wisdom and duty of faithfully pursuing the necessary steps to full resumption within the time now fixed by law.

Sixth—We oppose any further land-grants or subsidies to corporations or monopolists, and hold that the public domain should be reserved for the free homes of industrious settlers.

Seventh—That we regard with alarm and disapprove the demands coming from the promoters of various schemes that profuse appropriations and grants shall be made and the national credit used to carry on works of various kinds, local and sectional in character, and not of urgent national importance. We call upon the burdened taxpayers of this State to watch and defeat all attempts, however specious, to increase the public debt, or to obtain their money for remote or questionable purposes, which, if feasible, appeal to State action and private enterprise. Such attempts are more indefensible when sustained by the votes of sectional minorities, adding to the burdens of the more heavily-taxed portions of our country.

Eighth—We recognize equally the rights of property, and manliness and dignity of labor, deprecating any resort to violence in the name of either. We insist at all times upon the supremacy of the law and maintenance of public order. The advancement of American industry and enterprise depends upon the harmonious co-operation of capital and labor, and the adjustment of their material relations, whether left to the reason of parties or effected by legislation, should be governed by a considerate regard for the rights of the one and for the just claims of the other.

The remaining resolutions arraign the Democratic party for false pretenses; for perpetuating existing abuses; and for slavish subservience to most corrupt and dangerous influences, and pledge the Republican party of the State to renewed and unyielding efforts for the correction of municipal abuses, and for economy and reform in every branch of the administration.

THE TURKO-RUSSIAN WAR.

A LONDON dispatch of the 22d says "fighting is reported to have begun between the forces of Mehemet Ali and the Czarowitch near Biela. The Turkish commander, who has been advancing for several days past with extreme caution, came up with the Russian outposts Thursday, and some skirmishing took place, followed by a more serious conflict Friday, resulting in the loss to the Russians of 5,000 men, and to the Turks of 6,000. Both sides claim the victory."

A CORRESPONDENT who was an eye-witness of the battle fought on Sept. 21 between the Czarowitch and Mehemet Ali, telegraphs from Tzercouna as follows: "Five or six different attacks were made to-day by the Turks, with from one to three battalions each, and all unsupported. The attacks failed. The loss to the Turks was very heavy. A number of killed and wounded can be seen lying on the open ground over which the combatants passed. The Russians maintain their positions, which consist of a series of formidable trenches."....The Russian official bulletin, dated Gorny-Studen, Sept. 23, says: "The Turks renewed the bombardment of the Schipka pass positions Friday. In the afternoon they began an assault on the right flank, but were repulsed. They then attacked the left and center, and were likewise repulsed. Fighting lasted until night."

THREE divisions of the Russian Imperial Guard are now in Bulgaria. Two of them have moved forward to Plevna, while the third remains at Biela....The Turks have succeeded in revictualing Plevna....A Turkish force has invaded Bulgarian territory....It is stated that the Russian and Roumanian losses before Plevna exceed 25,000 killed and wounded....The Russians have sent large reinforcements to Asia.

THE South American coast has again been visited by a succession of earthquakes. The damage inflicted is not reported.

CABLE dispatches of the 28th say the position of the Russians south of the Danube has not been improved by the receipt of the reinforcement from St. Petersburg, and the campaign, for this season at least, is considered to have come to an end. The Russians are represented as retreating toward the Danube, leaving the heroes in the Schipka pass to their fate. Another report represents the army of Mehemet Ali as falling back to its old position on the River Lom. Another unsuccessful attempt had been made by the Roumanians to capture the second Grivitza redoubt. Russian dispatches confirm the report of the reinforcement of Plevna by the Turks. There is much discontent and demoralization in the Russian army, on account of a general belief in the incompetency of the Emperor's staff. A battle between the armies in Asia Minor is represented as imminent. The Montenegrins still carry everything before them. They have occupied Piva, captured Fort Cabylok, burned Bileck and the surrounding villages, and now hold the whole territory as far as Fatznica.

GENERAL FOREIGN NEWS.

THE republicans of France have issued an address to the people, in reply to MacMahon's manifesto. The following is the concluding passage: "Your duty will increase with the audacity of those who pretend to impose themselves on France. You cannot become the instrument of clericalism. The republic must have republican functionaries, and the country expects peace, order, and stability through the republic."

ANNOUNCEMENT is made of the death at Paris, a few days ago, of Le Verrier, the eminent French astronomer, perhaps the most eminent in the world....The case of Gambetta came up on appeal in Paris on the 22d of September, and the sentence of the lower court was confirmed. It deprives him of civil rights for a term of years, and effectually prevents his further appearance as a disturbing element in the pending political canvass by shutting him up in prison.

THE steamer Olga, towing the caisson containing the Egyptian obelisk, sailed from Alexandria for London on the 23d of September. ....A Calcutta dispatch says "a plenteous rain has fallen in many of the worst famine districts. Agricultural work is active, and the crops are making rapid progress. There can be no reasonable doubt that the tide of the great calamity has been turned, but vast numbers of those who survive actual famine must still succumb from their enfeebled condition.

THE review of the British breadstuffs market by the Mark Lane Express gives an unfavorable estimate of the situation at home. English wheat is uniformly in a bad condition, and the prospect for the next crop is far from encouraging.

THE Turkish losses at Plevna seem to have been as heavy as the Russians'....Trustworthy information is received that 14,000 wounded are still in Plevna whom the Turks are unable to remove....The Montenegrins have captured Goransko.

BOLD BRIGANDS.

Particulars of the Robbery of a Union Pacific Train at Big Springs Station, in Nebraska.

[Omaha Cor. Chicago Times.]

Two masked men, holding four revolvers, walked into Station Agent Barnhart's office a few minutes before train time, and one of them directed him to cut off all telegraph communication by tearing up his instruments. Barnhart endeavored to throw them off the track by only taking up his sounder, but the men bid him pull up the relay and hand it over, which he did. The man who gave the commands was a Captain, and Barnhart says he is a smart fellow, evidently a telegraph operator, as he seemed to understand what he was about. Barnhart, under cover of the revolvers and according to the Captain's commands, next hung out his red light to stop the express, which soon came up and stopped. Barnhart was rushed to the door of the express car by the four robbers, who made him knock for Express Messenger Miller, who opened the door a few inches, not thinking that anybody was there beside Barnhart. The highwaymen then, by some means, shoved the door clear open, jumped in, and covered Messenger Miller with cocked revolvers. They took Miller's revolvers away from him, bruised him about the head considerably, and then opened one safe, from which they obtained the treasure boxes containing $60,000 in gold coin, which was a shipment from California, and $458 in currency. They endeavored to make Miller open the through safe, which was a combination lock and is not opened anywhere between the termini of the road, but as the messengers do not know the combination he could not comply with the demand, and they let him off after explaining. While this was going on in the express car the other part of the gang had captured the engineer and fireman and put out the fire in the engine, and the moment Conductor Patterson stepped on the platform to see what orders were waiting for him, as indicated by the red-light signal to stop, he too was corralled, being covered by cocked revolvers, and ordered to throw up his hands. Patterson says there were from ten to fifteen of them. After plundering the express car, the robbers went into the passenger coaches and began robbing the passengers, securing about half a dozen gold watches and nearly $500 in cash and some railroad tickets. L. Morris, a passenger, lost a gold watch, $430 in money, and a ticket to Chicago. The robbers, no doubt, intended to plunder every passenger on the train, but a freight train was seen approaching from the rear, and this frightened them. Conductor Patterson was conducted by a guard past the sleeping-coaches, a short distance up the track, so that he could flag the approaching train to prevent a collision. The guard then left him and joined the main body, who then retreated from the cars. They had no horses in sight, but had them concealed some little distance off. They soon made their disappearance as mysteriously as they had appeared, going north, as was shortly afterward learned. Conductor Patterson sent the freight engine out at once to give the alarm at the next station, and, as soon as the fire was up in his own engine, resumed his trip. Superintendent Clark telegraphed everywhere, and offered $10,000 reward for the capture of the highwaymen and money, or a proportionate amount for either. Sheriff McCrary, of Sidney, and Sheriff Bradley, of North Platte, were sent out with a large force of mounted men. Sheriff Bradley seems to have got on the trail, as it is said that he found two revolvers and one empty coin-box ten miles north of Big Springs. It is suspected that these men are the same who have been robbing the coaches of the Black Hills stage line. It is, as yet, a mystery how the robbers opened the door of the express car, as it is so arranged as to open only six inches when the machinery is all right. It is also barred with boiler iron, and a messenger, if on the lookout for such an emergency as this, could hold the fort against a dozen or more men.

Newton Barkalow, of this city, was one of the passengers, and states that the robbers pounded Miller, the express [illegible] that he did not know the combination of the through safe, cutting his upper lip in two and badly bruising him up the head. When the other party corralled Conductor Patterson they robbed him of his money and watch, but he got his watch back again, as it dropped out on the floor [illegible] into which they dumped everything. There were thirteen in the gang, and six of them went into the passenger coaches and ordered everybody to hold up their hands, which they did. They went through the passengers systematically, collecting $1,300, according to the figures of Conductor Kelly, who brought the train from Grand Island. Besides this they gobbled watches, jewelry, etc. One man they searched three times, but he managed to conceal $400 in large bills between his fingers. One of the colored porters who got out on the platform was taken into custody and put with Conductor Patterson. Andy Riley, of this city, had a close call. When the train stopped he stepped out on the platform with ex-Councilman Cummings, formerly of Omaha, but now of Sidney. The robbers ordered them to get inside. Cummings did so, but Riley did not understand, and [illegible] they fired two shots at him, one ball skinning the left side of his left hand and the other bullet going between his fingers, scraping them slightly. Both balls lodged in the door-casing. They then took his two watches and $27. The robbers tried to get into the sleeping-car, but the door was too securely bolted for them. They did not plunder the ladies, and to a couple of [illegible] they returned what they had taken. A company of soldiers left Sidney in pursuit.

Immigration Statistics.

The New York Times says: The rapid decline in immigration for the past three years, a decline that seems to grow more and more with every month, naturally attracts the attention of social theorists, political economists, and the great capitalists and companies employing the coarser forms of labor. This decline, furthermore, very seriously concerns the city of New York, for it is at this port that the country has received 5,604,073 of the 7,[illegible] aliens who have reached our shores since the spring of 1874, when we established our Board of Commissioners of Emigration. New York city, therefore, has taken in more than 70 per cent. of the people of other nations who have chosen the United States for their home.

It was not until 1819 that actual records of arrivals were made, but since then it has been the duty of the Collectors at seaports and on the land frontiers to make returns of the arrivals of aliens, with particulars about age, sex and nationality. It is estimated that about 250,000 immigrants came before 1819. After that there was a gradual increase of three to five or six thousand a year until 1832, when the cholera in Europe brought 60,482, instead of 22,633, as in the year before, and they brought the cholera, too. The next year, 1833, the number fell from 60,482 to 45,374. Thenceforward (except a great decline in the panic year of 1837) the increase was variable, until the sum total in 1842 was 104,565; then a falling off in 1843 of one-half, then a rise the next year of a third, and two years after that the Irish famine let loose the flood in earnest. In the five years, 1849–54 inclusive, 624,230 Irish arrived at New York, and many thousands at other ports. The following table gives the whole number of alien emigrants arrived in the United States from the peace of 1783 to 1876 inclusive:

Years.	Emigrants.	Years.	Emigrants.
1819	250,000	1849	297,024
1820	8,385	1850	369,980
1821	9,127	1851	379,466
1822	6,911	1852	371,603
1823	6,354	1853	368,645
1824	7,912	1854	427,833
1825	10,199	1855	200,877
1826	10,837	1856	200,436
1827	18,875	1857	251,306
1828	27,382	1858	123,126
1829	22,520	1859	121,282
1830	23,322	1860	153,640
1831	22,633	1861	91,920
1832	60,482	1862	91,985
1833	58,640	1863	176,282
1834	65,365	1864	193,418
1835	45,374	1865	249,120
1836	76,242	1866	318,568
1837	79,340	1867	298,967
1838	38,914	1868	297,215
1839	68,069	1869	395,922
1840	84,066	1870	378,796
1841	80,289	1871	367,789
1842	104,565	1872	449,483
1843	52,496	1873	437,750
1844	78,615	1874	277,593
1845	114,371	1875	260,026
1846	154,416	1876	187,027
1847	234,968
1848	226,527	Total	9,726,455

THE MARKETS.

NEW YORK.

BEEVES	$8 00	@	$12 00
HOGS	5 62	@	6 20
COTTON	11½	@	11¾
FLOUR—Superfine Western	5 00	@	6 50
WHEAT—No. 2	1 37	@	1 38
CORN—Western Mixed	58	@	59
OATS—Mixed	31	@	37
RYE—Western	70	@	71
PORK—New Mess	13 25	@	14 00
LARD	9	@	9¼

CHICAGO.

BEEVES—Choice Graded Steers	5 50	@	5 80
Choice Natives	4 75	@	5 25
Cows and Heifers	2 50	@	3 75
Good Second-class Steers	3 50	@	3 75
Medium to Fair	4 00	@	4 50
HOGS—Live	5 25	@	5 90
FLOUR—Fancy White Winter	6 75	@	7 25
Good to Choice Spring Ex.	5 75	@	6 00
WHEAT—No. 2 Spring	1 12	@	1 14
No. 3 Spring	1 09	@	1 10
CORN—No. 2	42	@	43
OATS—No. 2	23	@	24
RYE—No. 2	53	@	54
BARLEY—No. 2	60	@	61
BUTTER—Choice Creamery	28	@	30
EGGS—Fresh	15	@	16
PORK—Mess	13 40	@	13 50
LARD	8¾	@	9

MILWAUKEE.

WHEAT—No. 1	1 15	@	1 17
No. 2	1 14	@	1 15
CORN—No. 2	42	@	43
OATS—No. 2	23	@	24
RYE—No. 1	53	@	54
BARLEY—No. 2	63	@	65

ST. LOUIS.

WHEAT—No. 2 Red Fall	1 32	@	1 33
CORN—No. 2 Mixed	42	@	43
OATS—No. 2	26	@	27
RYE	55	@	56
PORK—Mess	13 50	@	[illegible]
LARD	9	@	[illegible]
HOGS	5 00	@	5 60
CATTLE	3 50	@	5 00

CINCINNATI.

WHEAT—Red	1 20	@	1 28
CORN	46	@	48
OATS	25	@	30
RYE	60	@	61
PORK—Mess	12 [illegible]	@	[illegible]
LARD	[illegible]	@	10

TOLEDO.

WHEAT—No. 2 Amber Michigan	1 32	@	1 33
No. 2 Red Winter	1 31	@	1 33
CORN	46	@	49
OATS—No. 2	26	@	28

DETROIT.

FLOUR—Choice White	6 75	@	7 00
WHEAT—No. 1 White	1 32	@	1 33
No. 1 Amber	1 27	@	1 29
CORN	48	@	50
OATS—Mixed	27	@	28
BARLEY (per cental)	1 10	@	1 40
PORK—Mess	14 50	@	14 75

EAST LIBERTY, PA.

CATTLE—Best	5 25	@	5 50
Fair	4 75	@	5 00
Common	4 00	@	4 25
HOGS	5 50	@	6 25
SHEEP	4 00	@	5 25

AUBURN COURIER.

T. C. MANN, Publisher.

ROAD AGENTS.

Brave Resistance to a Gang of Coach Robbers—Perils of Stage Driving.

The Eureka (Nev.) Republican contains the following thrilling account of an attempt to rob one of Wells, Fargo & Co.'s coaches, which was successfully resisted by the messengers, one of whom—Brown—formerly ran in and out of this city. The stage, says the Republican, that left Eureka for Tybo on Monday afternoon, the 3d inst., containing Prof. T. Price, the mining expert, and J. M. Haskell as passengers, the driver, Jack Perry, and an employe of the stage company, was accosted about 9 o'clock at night as it had drawn up before the Willows station, forty miles south of Eureka, by three masked men, one of whom called upon Blair to surrender, saying: "Eugene Blair, get off that stage and surrender." Believing that the men in the station had got drunk, and that one of them was playing a bluff game, the demand was not immediately complied with; besides the night was so dark that the speaker could not be distinctly seen. The demand, however, was more peremptorily repeated, when Blair prepared to dismount, leaving the driver and Jimmy Brown on the seat. Blair had scarcely reached the ground with his trusty shot-gun, when he was greeted with a double discharge of shot-guns, one from the rear of the stage and the other from the corner of the stable, both passing so near his head that the powder of one warmed his face. Blair returned the fire almost simultaneously, but, being partially blinded by the smoke, and not seeing his object plainly, evidently without effect. The report of his gun had not died away before the cold muzzle of a gun was placed against his breast by one of the robbers, with the intention no doubt of making sure work of the brave messenger. Blair caught it and chucked it aside, and turned the robber, who was pulling the wrong trigger, half round, when Brown, on the seat, watching his opportunity, raised his shot-gun as quick as a flash and gave the road agent the full contents of one barrel square in the back, and he fell over mortally wounded, loaded with eight buckshot. Almost simultaneously with this deadly shot, Blair had placed his shot-gun squarely against the fellow's breast, and would have blown a hole through him as big as the moon had not his brave companion performed the service. Brown, after firing the shot, jumped from the stage, but had not fairly reached the ground when he was shot in the calf of the left leg, inflicting a painful but not serious wound. The other two robbers then fired four more shots at the messengers at close range with shot-guns and revolvers, none of which, however, did any harm, though they came uncomfortably close, and disappeared in the darkness. The firing having ceased, the passengers got out of the stage cautiously and took a look at the wounded robber, who was writhing in mortal agony, and implored, begged and prayed to be killed. A noise at the station now attracted attention, and on proceeding thither it was found that the blacksmith and rancher, who were in charge of the place, had been bound securely and threatened with instant death by the robbers if they would give any alarm on the approach of the stage. The robbers had come to the station about an hour previous, compelled the inmates to surrender, cooked a meal and ate it, unharnessed the horses that had been prepared for the incoming coach, and then proceeded to lay their plans of attack. A small fort was built with boards at the corner of the stable, and an old ax placed handy for the purpose of opening the treasure box. The wounded robber was taken into the station, where all the parties remained during the night.

The Telephone in a Nutshell.

The New York World explains, in a way that any one should be able to comprehend, the telephone in its simplest construction, as now exhibited in New York, thus: "The telephone is operated entirely without the use of the galvanic battery, being thus simplified to the last degree. It is in appearance a pear-shaped piece of mahogany, with an orifice at the large end, and with a flexible, silk-covered wire emerging from the small end. Being opened, it is seen to consist of a powerful steel magnet running nearly through the instrument lengthwise, and wound with a coil of fine insulated wire which is connected with the line. In front of this magnet, but not in contact with it, is a disk of soft, thin iron. The voice strikes against this disk and causes it to vibrate, and as it approaches and recedes from the magnet a current of electricity is generated in accordance with a well-known law. This current passes over the wire and attracts and repels the disk in the telephone attached to the other end of the line, this same simple instrument being used in sending and receiving messages, or rather in talking and listening.

"This is the whole apparatus; but at the head office of the company they have some simple switches and an attachment for attracting attention by means of an electric bell, the electricity being generated by a magnet, as is the case with the telephone. By attaching any number of telephones to the line as many people can hear the message spoken at the other end.

"Attracting the attention of the gentleman at the Broad street office, the reporter was directed to apply the instrument to his ear while a conversation was held between the two points. A roaring sound like that perceptible when a shell is applied to the ear was all that was noticeable at first. Then a voice was distinctly audible, saying, 'I hope the gentleman is pleased with the working of the instrument.' The voice sounded exactly as if the words had been spoken from the floor below through an ordinary speaking-tube. The roaring noise, it was explained, was the noise of the street, which the wire picked up on its way between the two points.

"The switch was then called into requisition, and the telephone placed in connection with the office at Broadway and Thirteenth street, and a young man answered the call, who not only spoke audibly, but sang a rollicking song and whistled 'Tommy, Make Room for Your Annie,' which was so audible that it seemed as though he must be in the next room. He wasn't. The reporter looked. This telephone has been tried a distance of eight miles with equally satisfactory results, and the owners are confident it can be worked a much greater distance."

Out of the Frying-Pan Into the Fire.

The Manchester (Eng.) papers tell of pretty rough experiences there on the part of the party of carpenters who emigrated thither from this city not long since, to work for Robert Neill & Son. According to the Examiner, some ten or fifteen had been either frightened out of their engagement or persuaded to abandon it by the striking joiners, who surrounded them immediately upon their arrival, and pleaded that, though of different nationalities, they were brother workmen, and should make common cause against a common enemy. The contracts under which the Americans came to Manchester, it would appear, were signed before they knew that any difficulties existed in the trade there. As a guarantee of their performance of the contract, each of the men surrendered to Messrs. Neill & Sons a chest of tools varying in value from £10 to £60, and these tools are to be detained from them until they have paid their advanced passage money. If now they yield to the strikers' persuasions, they will find themselves deprived of their tools, unable to get a job of work at their trade, and without a cent in their pockets, 3,000 miles from their homes and friends. On the other hand, if they go to work, they are hooted at in the streets and pointed out as Yankees who have come to England to take the bread out of the mouths of honest British workmen. Nor is this all. Two of them have been stopped by some men, who warned them to quit work or "take the consequences as soon as the dark nights came on." After this, it is presumed, we shall hear no more about emigration of skilled labor from this country. The condition of the artisan here, at the present moment, may not be as felicitous as it might be, but what is the use of his "jumping from the frying-pan into the fire?"—New York Bulletin.

A Coat Lined With Money.

A war correspondent writes: "Comedy goes side by side with tragedy here as everywhere, and even at a time like this men can laugh. A Jew, who has come down from Eski-Saghra, is in a condition of much perplexity about the means to be adopted for the recovery of a stolen coat. Anticipating evil times in Eski-Saghra, the Jew had sewn up his money in the lining of his heaviest fur overcoat, and with this held himself ready to leave town at any moment. Somehow when the dreaded time arrived he missed the coat, and had to come down here without it. Walking about the streets of Adrianople, he descried this very coat upon the shoulders of a big Circassian, with whom he entered into humble parley for its recovery, professing to have taken a great fancy to it, and offering a most un-Jew-like price for it. While he pretended to examine and admire the fur, he ascertained by touch that his money remained undisturbed. The Circassian declined to sell, and the Jew then put in a claim as owner of the coat, and succeeded in bringing the Circassian before the Governor of the town. The Governor declined to consider the Jew's claim proved, and that hapless Hebrew is now following the Circassian like a second shadow, beseeching him with perpetual iteration to strike a bargain. It rests on Rochefoucauld's authority that a man can always enjoy the misfortunes of his friends, and the friends of this especial Hebrew seem to find some consolation for their own sorrows in watching and laughing at the countless ruses and maneuvers with which Jewish ingenuity inspires the hunter of the coat."

Student-Waiters in the White Mountains.

The corps of waiters at the Glen House have this year come from Bates, Bowdoin, and Colby, Me., and from Harvard, Amherst and Tufts, Mass., and I think no one who had not seen the experiment tried could realize how much difference it makes in the atmosphere of the dining-room to have ill-concealed vulgarity and mechanism replaced by gentlemanly bearing and intelligence. The effect must be seen to be appreciated. A servant can be civil, but it requires a gentleman to be polite. I think it is Thoreau who says: "The minnow swallows the fly, the pickerel the minnow, the pike the pickerel, and the fisherman eats the pike—so all the gaps in the scale of nature are filled up." The saying has come to my mind here. For this so successful experiment so perfectly fills up the gaps in the scale of nature that it seems to me the man into whose brain the idea first came should have a royalty for at least twenty-eight years, payable by every hotel and by every student so employed. For here the two wants so successfully balance each other! The students need the money and need change of scene and activity. The hotels need the service, and the students get just what they need and the hotels just what they need. There is a delicious satisfaction in the perfect adaptation of means to ends. At this house the head waiter is a college graduate, and, I think, a teacher, and everything goes on smoothly and well under his supervision. There is no play about the work on the part of the young men. They attend to their business and do it well, and all goes on with the indefinable but clearly distinguishable comfort which comes from intelligence, the trained mind, and the manly purpose. I think no other country in the world ever witnessed such a phenomenon, or one which implies so much. —Springfield (Mass.) Republican.

The bodies of the three Goodriches, lynched at New Castle, Ky., were buried in one grave at Pleasant Home, Owen county. A correspondent says the belief is very strong that the two younger Goodriches were innocent of the crime for which the mob hanged them.

Sitting Bull seems to be enjoying the rare triumph, for a savage, of successfully defying, at one and the same time, the two most powerful nations on the face of the earth.

SHERMAN'S SIXTY MILLIONS.

Judge Kelley Shows How it is Safely and Profitably Employed by the Banks.

To the Editor of the Philadelphia Times:

Will you permit me to respond to questions which come to me in such numbers that I am unable to reply specifically to [illegible] the earnest men who propound them, and to withhold reply from which is to sanction a misstatement of facts which is, in my judgment, working great harm to the suffering people of the country? Many people believe that the world-wide depression of trade with which we are now afflicted is the result of mismanagement of the finances of this country and Germany; that the enormous contraction by these two Governments of the volume of money, to which the business of the world had adjusted itself, has been the fruitful source of all our present woes, and in the discussion of so grave a question the aim of every man should be to make known the truth, and the truth only, whether it bear for or against the theory he may advocate. Having devoted the later years of my life to resistance to this contraction, I am interrogated by earnest men, in every section of the country, as to how it is that, if contraction be the cause of our evils, money is so abundant that $60,000,000 of greenbacks are lying, unused and unproductive to their owners, in the treasury of the United States. My answer, in each personal reply I have been able to make, has been that such is not the fact. But my poor allegation is met by clippings from innumerable journals showing me that during the recent absence of Secretary Sherman, Assistant Secretary McCormick, in direct response to my theory, and, mentioning me by name, spoke of the "ridiculous absurdity" of charging the business paralysis upon the contraction of the currency, and pointed to the fact that, on the 1st of July last, $54,000,000 of greenbacks had been in the treasury, deposited by their owners without interest, and incapable of use until the certificates of deposit held in exchange therefor should be surrendered and the notes withdrawn; and further that, though on the 1st of July the amount had been but $54,000,000, it had become, on the day the Secretary made this allegation, the 26th of July, more than $60,000,000. On his return from his trip along the coast Secretary Sherman made haste to indorse, with much emphasis, this statement of Assistant Secretary McCormick, and to give the utmost possible publicity to his indorsement. Messrs. Sherman and McCormick have been counted among my cherished friends for more than sixteen years. I owe neither of them aught but friendship. Few men can have held either of them in higher esteem than I, and I have, therefore, hoped that others would spare me the necessity of this communication by pointing out the glaring falsity of this statement. But the number of questions propounded to me on this subject, and the frequent reference made to these averments in the course of financial discussion, constrain me to assume the painful duty, which will raise in many minds the question: "Can it be that the Secretary of the Treasury and his assistant are ignorant of the laws governing the treasury in its relation with the national banks and with the practical business of both? or have these statements been deliberately made for the purpose of confounding earnest men in pursuit of a proper solution of the financial question?" The truth is that, with the exception of one and two dollar, and, perhaps, five-dollar greenbacks, which pass in the market-place, in retail trade and in the minor uses of life, no part of the paper money of the Government is in such active and efficient circulation or such profitable use as that deposited in the treasury, and for which certificates of deposit are held by the national banks. The truth of my averment is known to every national banker in cities in which clearing houses have been established, and to many others, and cannot but be known to the Secretary of the Treasury, for this active, efficient and profitable use was imparted to notes so deposited expressly by an act of Congress, which received the signature of the President on the 8th of June, 1872, and the passage of which through the Senate was championed by Secretary Sherman, then Senator from Ohio. The text will be found as section 5,193, on page 1,011 of the Revised Statutes of the United States, and reads as follows:

Section 5,193. The Secretary of the Treasury may receive United States notes on deposit, without interest, from any national banking association in sums of not less than $10,000, and issue certificates therefor in such form as he may prescribe, in denominations of not less than $5,000, and payable on demand in United States notes at the place where the deposits were made. The notes so deposited shall not be counted as part of the lawful money reserve of the association, but the certificates issued therefor may be counted as part of its lawful money reserve, and may be accepted in the settlement of clearing-house balances at the places where the deposits therefor were made.

I have said these notes are in active, efficient and profitable use. The knowledge that a bank holds certificates for such notes is a guarantee to depositors that it has at least part of the reserve required by law, and, in these days of corporate mismanagement such a palpable guarantee is of great value. But these notes circulate in the form of certificates of deposit every day on which a balance is settled at a clearing house. Prior to the passage of this act, when balances were payable in notes, it required many clerks in the clearing house to count the notes, at great expense of clerk hire and of wear and tear of notes, but now, by virtue of this act, the clerk hire and the destructive use of notes is avoided, while every note is put to the best use possible for its interest by the bank which deposited it.

As one seeking truth and wishing to enable the masses of the people to comprehend the details of what is at best a complex and intricate question, I beg you to do me the favor to give this communication a place in your columns.

Wm. D. Kelley.

Pay the Bonds with Greenbacks.

The interest and tax on the bonds are too great a drain upon the productive labor of the country to be endured without seriously affecting its prosperity. The interest and tax upon the bonds are at least $130,000,000 annually. In getting rid of the bonds the original bondholders or their representatives would get more than they paid for them, and the public credit would be sustained, and our financial trouble would cease.—Forney's Chronicle.

Two thousand million dollars at 4½ per cent., with the interest added to the principal quarter-yearly for this time, will amount to $8,279,000,000. Deduct the $2,000,000,000 of principal, and you have as the accumulation by interest to be paid by the present generation $5,279,000,000, or over three times the amount of the principal. Now, under the operation of the greenback system, the interest and principal of the debt can be honestly and honorably discharged in less than a generation (thirty-one and a quarter years), a cost of but 55¼ per cent. of the amount required to pay the interest for thirty-one years under the bankers' and financiers' system.—Campbell.

The banker invests his money in bonds, which lie idle, doing nothing, earning nothing, but drawing 6 per cent. interest which the people have to pay. The banker not only draws his 6 per cent. interest on the bonds, but the Government loans him an amount of national currency equal to 90 per cent. of the bonds, at 1 per cent. interest, and taxes neither the money nor the bonds. On the same principle, whenever a man buys $1,000 worth of Government land, the Government should loan him $900 for an indefinite period, pay him 6 per cent. interest on the $1,000 it received for the land, charge the man but 1 per cent. on the $900, and exempt both the land and the $900 from taxation of every nature forever afterwards. Blood is the circulating medium in the human body, and money is the circulating medium in the industrial body of the nation. Four millions of Frenchmen own the national debt of France, consequently, when the yearly interest of it is paid, the money circulates "in their country." European bondholders own the greater part of our national debt, and when the yearly interest is paid on the same the money circulates "out of our country," hence business here is paralyzed, because there is not money (alias blood) enough left in the Union to lift the arm of labor. The French keep the milk in their cocoanut, and we pour it out of ours.—Labor.

Six times in England, within the last 100 years, the banks have suspended specie payments, and once for twenty-five consecutive years. In twenty-one years 321 banks failed, and paid less than 50 per cent. of face of their specie-basis notes. In the United States the following years marked the number of suspensions of specie payments, viz.: 1809, 1814, 1819, 1825, 1834, 1837, 1839, 1841, 1857, 1861. These suspensions have invariably occasioned great public distress, and in several instances have involved the entire country in bankruptcy. On each of these occasions the free presentation at the banks of issue of the "bank notes founded on a specie basis" occasioned these panics. There was but little gold to pay the notes with, consequently they could not be paid. This has always been the upshot of all attempts of basing money on specie. The history of the world is my proof, and I defy any one to show any other result of this system of money.—A. F. D., in Bunker Hill.

WHAT RESUMPTION WILL BRING.

"Financial Disasters, Business Distress, and Widespread Ruin, More Fearful Than Ever Before Realized."

[From an Address by Schuyler Colfax Before the Northern Illinois and Southern Wisconsin Fair, at Beloit, Wis.]

No other nation than ours, with its wonderful resources and its equally wonderful recuperative powers, could have borne, as well as ours has, the enormous contraction from our war maximum of legal tenders. And I think the seventy-million contraction in greenbacks and national-bank notes since January, 1875, as proclaimed in official tables, has been almost akin in its effects to that last straw that broke the overladen camel's back. Do not misunderstand me. If we could consider the General Government as disassociated from the people, I think that resumption by it in gold next January a year may be possible. With the exercise by the Secretary of the Treasury of the power granted him by law to sell bonds and hoard gold, irrespective of the effect on all other interests, he might be able then to redeem our three hundred and odd millions of greenbacks in gold. But, unless my horoscope of the future is too gloomy, it would be in the midst of financial disasters and business distress, and widespread ruin, more fearful than ever before realized.

If such dangers are really impending we cannot dispel them by obstinately shutting our eyes to them. Indeed, to face danger fearlessly is often to discern the way to honorably avert it. Let us, therefore, look at the situation candidly and even hopefully, but not with closed eyes nor averted face. For, as you will see before I conclude, I think these lowering clouds can be dispelled without dishonor.

When the greenbacks were issued a triple method of redemption was contemplated. We expected ultimately to pay them at our option in either gold or silver—the coin specifically referred to in the tenth article of our national constitution. But, the exigencies of the war against the rebellion preventing this specie redemption at that time, we voluntarily printed on their backs that they might be funded by the holders in a national bond which, with its proposed 6 per cent. interest, was approximate, but not quite equal, to coin in value. Subsequently, Mr. Chase, as Secretary of the Treasury, desiring to sell bonds bearing but 5 per cent. interest (the 10-40s) at par in these greenbacks, he asked Congress to withdraw the proffer of funding them in a 6 per cent. bond, and Congress so enacted. Thus, after the time fixed in this law, the privilege to fund these greenbacks into a bond terminated.

This abrogated one of the three original alternatives or options of redemption, but left them payable in either gold or silver coin, whenever the Government should be able thus to redeem them. Subsequently in 1873 (from which we date our hard times), without a single petition presented to Congress, and without any previous discussion of the question before the public, in any State or district of the Union, North or South, East or West, and, as it turns out, with the people generally as unaware of what was being done as they were of what was occurring in the cabinet councils of China or Siam, silver was demonetized. And then, the redemption in bonds or in silver having been abrogated, the only redemption when the date of resumption arrives must be in gold exclusively. To enable the Government thus to redeem large powers are given to the Secretary of the Treasury to sell bonds for gold; and thence, as I have said, it may be possible, so far as the Government is concerned, by the exercise of the utmost of these powers, to redeem these greenbacks in gold.

But the people realize, and with the saddest apprehensions, that the redemption of the Government is by no means the consummation of resumption. These $300,000,000 of greenbacks are not a tithe of what will be payable in gold in about a year and a third from now. Resumption, under the laws as they now exist, means gold payment for all debts, not only by the Government, but by States, counties, cities, banks, railroads, manufactories, merchants, mechanics, farmers, all, both rich and poor, both corporate and individual, from the highest to the lowest.

Far be it from me to be an alarmist, for I am naturally over-sanguine and hopeful. But, besides the $700,000,000 of greenbacks and national-bank notes payable in gold, we have $900,000,000 of loans, made by the banks to their customers, to be collected by them in gold, and over $600,000,000 of deposits made with the national banks, and a still larger amount with the savings banks, that will also be payable in gold. All mortgages, such a large proportion of which have fallen due, but are continued on punctual payment of interest, will all be payable in gold when that New Year day comes. I cannot correctly estimate how many hundreds of millions are outstanding of this kind of indebtedness. And, besides these, must be added what no financial expert is able to estimate—all the debts from neighbor to neighbor, from customer to merchant, or grocer, or tradesman, except those under five dollars, are to be demandable and payable in gold. I exclude from this calculation the $1,600,000,000 of national bonds, the $1,000,000,000 of municipal bonds, the $375,000,000 of State bonds, and the $2,000,000,000 of railroad bonds. These last $5,000,000,000 of obligations are most of them on time, and not yet due. But the four or five thousand millions I have previously alluded to will be collected in gold, or its equivalent, after the New Year's day of 1879.

As the payment of all this vast indebtedness can be enforced by law in one kind of coin exclusively, of which we have but about $200,000,000 in the whole land; two-thirds of which amount being needed for the payment of duties is therefore drawn steadily toward the seaboard, its value, as compared with everything else, is of course greatly enhanced. And thus this appreciation of the value of gold explains fully the depreciation of all other values.

Secret Rites of Mormonism.

The endowments or secret rites of Mormonism are a sort of allegory in blank verse, paraphrased from the scriptures and "Paradise Lost." There are rooms fitted up with scenery adapted to the performance of a drama representing the creation of man, his fall, the coming of Christ, and the priesthood of Joseph Smith. In the performance Brigham Young always took the part of Eloin, or head God, while other leaders represented Jesus, Satan, Michael, and the Apostles. Different degrees of the Aaronic and Melchizedek priesthood are conferred, at each stage of which the candidate is required to take oaths of secrecy, accompanied by barbarous penalties should they dare to violate them. They also receive a new name, by which they will be known in the kingdom of God. In this ceremony the women wear a long robe, which is placed on the right shoulder, is gathered at the waist with strings, and flows to the floor; there is an apron of linen, covered with green silk and embroidered with fig leaves—the nearest approach to the Paradisaical apron that decency could tolerate. The men wear a cap of linen similar to those worn by stone masons or bakers. The ladies' caps are of Swiss muslin, with a veil of the same material, which is said to produce a pretty effect. This is also the costume in which faithful Mormons are prepared for the grave.

Western vs. Eastern Newspapers.

The Detroit Free Press calls attention to a fact which has been quite generally observed of late—the provincialism of the New York press. It gives the following instances: Not one of the New York papers, except the Times, had a line about the Detroit regatta, one of the most important aquatic events that has happened for years, and the same papers devoted just eighteen lines to the recent brilliant and immense Knight Templar gathering at Cleveland. It has long been a matter of notoriety that the New York journals have fallen behind in the race for news with the leading papers of Chicago, St. Louis, Cincinnati, and some other Western cities. With the single exception of the New York Times, they are, compared to the Western papers, deficient in ability, enterprise, and industry. In American news there is no comparison to be made, while in foreign news none of them are superior, and some of them are behind. The cause of this decadence is to be found in the absurd and preposterous notion that there is nothing worth knowing outside of New York city, and as there is very little inside of it worth knowing, except the markets and shipping news, it is a matter of necessity that the papers should have little in them. This accounts for their absence from the stalls of the newsdealers, and the substitution of the more enterprising Western papers.

A bottle has run aground near Melbourne, after a voyage of thirty-five years. On April 16, 1842, a passenger by the ship Kelso, bound from London to Sydney, threw into the sea a bottle containing a memorandum requesting the finder to report for the sake of ascertaining the currents. The question can now be answered.

There is an extraordinary demand for agricultural lands in Minnesota.

ALL SORTS.

Quinine is now so high in price in Europe that doctors are using instead the liquid solution of strychnine, and find it nearly as efficacious and much cheaper.

It is estimated that the counties of Madison, Montgomery, Clark, Scott, Bourbon, Fayette and Woodford, Ky., will furnish this year 22,000 head of fat cattle, valued at $3,000,000.

One firm in New York, engaged in the manufacture of matches, consumes per annum 700,000 feet of white pine lumber, 100,000 pounds of sulphur, and 150 tons of straw board for boxes.

It has been proved in Nevada and other silver-producing States of the west that capital devoted to agriculture pays better and more regularly than if put into gold and silver mines.

A Parliamentary paper on the British income tax shows that the total amount of income tax charged from the year ended the 5th of April, 1843 (the first year it was imposed), was £257,731,528. It commenced at 7 pence in the pound, and realized £5,607,798; and last year it was 2 pence in the pound, and produced £4,032,402, or $20,000,000.

The Calvert Texan wants the 3,000 convicts in the Texas penitentiary organized into a military corps like that commanded by Gen. Bosquet in the Crimean war, and turned loose upon Mexico. "Sons of hell," said Gen. Bosquet, at the battle of Inkermann, to his convict soldiers, "you have no honor; you can make yourselves some by dying for your country."

Dr. Russell is no longer the great war correspondent. The pre-eminence that was his belongs now to Archibald Forbes, of the London News, who, in enterprise as in the interest of his battle-field pictures, took and maintained the start from the earliest hour of the war. He it was who conveyed to the Emperor his first knowledge of the exact condition of affairs at Schipka when the fight was fiercest in that woful pass, and his telegrams descriptive of the fearful encounter there were first to reach London.

An artesian well, which has reached to a depth of 1377 feet, is being bored at Charleston, S. C. Thirteen hundred and seventy feet of piping have been inserted, and as fast as the depth is increased more piping will be used, until a stratum is reached sufficiently hard to render this unnecessary. One small head of water has been reached but it was so small that it had to be shut off.

Some recent observers in Utah give the impression that the Mormons make up a kind of "poor white" population, without schools, comfort, civilization or wealth, while all the progressive forces in the territory, its public enterprises and its capital, are passing into Gentile hands. Brigham Young's communistic enterprises have all failed, and he used to berate the faithful severely on their "miserable" condition.

One of the tobacco warehouses of Paducah, Ky., has sold, since the beginning of business in 1868, 79,648 hogsheads of tobacco. Its sales last year went over 14,000 hogsheads, and have reached already this season, on a short crop, 7,420 hogsheads, and will go to about 9,000 by the close of the season. This, it is claimed, is the largest business done by any one house in the world in the same time.

Edmund de Rothschild is about to marry Mlle. Adelaide de Rothschild, the daughter of Baron Willy de Rothschild, of Frankfort. Edmund de Rothschild's father, Baron James de Rothschild, married his own niece, Bette, the daughter of Baron Solomon de Rothschild. Her brother's daughter married Baron Willy de Rothschild, and now her son is going to marry Baron Willy's daughter. They seem to be getting considerably mixed.

The free postal delivery system is now in operation in 87 principal cities and employs 2,265 carriers, who, during the last fiscal year, handled 866,500,000 pieces of mail matter. The cost per piece at Boston was 3 15-100 mills, at New York 2 37-100, at Philadelphia 2 8-100. The highest cost was at Paterson, N. J., 4 59-100 mills, and the lowest at Poughkeepsie, N. Y., 1 87-100. At Boston 40,000,000 pieces were handled, at New York 146,000,000, at Philadelphia 109,000,000. Only 8,700,000 newspapers were delivered.

MY LOVE.

Her little hand in mine I would not fold,
Nor touch with one caress her crown of gold;
I would not stir with any thought of me
Her deep, untroubled peace of purity.
She stands above me on a height serene,
My purely worshiped, consecrated queen;
Too precious far I hold the girlish life
To startle it with whispered name of wife.
Love yet shall light for me her violet eyes,
Her tinted cheek proclaim love's sweet surprise;
But now to touch the folds of her attire
With reverence is all that I desire.
—Anna M. Brockway, in October Atlantic.

The Bravest of the Brave.

Gen. Skobeloff, the defender of the Schipka pass, the man who captured Lovatz, and who has led so many of the attacks on the redoubts before Plevna, is 33 years old, and has been in every campaign the Russians have had since he was old enough to enter the field. Two years ago, in Khokand, when there was a Russian reverse, the older Generals detailed Skobeloff to cover the rear of the army, expecting of him to bear the disgrace of the expected catastrophe. He had only five battalions in his command, but he turned on the over-confident enemy, and, making a furious night attack, threw the enemy into a panic, and utterly routed them. Skobeloff is described as brave almost to recklessness, and as tall, handsome and dashing. He has been wounded six times, and, as in the recent engagements at Plevna, is always in the thickest of the fight.

A Warning to Smokers.

A curious case of poisoning by nicotine has occurred in Turin. Giovanni Deloges, aged 17, visited that city in compliance with an invitation from his uncle. After dining he joined his uncle and several friends in the room allotted him during his stay in Turin. There they drank light wine and smoked continually until the early hours. When the company separated he did not cease smoking until nearly overcome by sleep. His room was completely impregnated with smoke, and the young man, suffocated by the excessive quantity of nicotine he had inhaled, never woke again, although every effort was made to revive him. Dr. Tessier, of Turin, was of the opinion that death was the result of poisoning by nicotine.

FRUIT HOUSE PRICES!

GREATER BRGAINS THAN EVER.

All sugars reduced a half cent. All teas down 10 cents per pound. Choice raisins reduced to 7 cts. per pound. Sugar cured hams reduced to 11 cts. per pound. Shoulders reduced to 8 cts. per pound. Pickled pork down to 8 cts. per pound. No. white fish down to $4.50 half barrel.

~~SUCH LOW PRICES HAVE NEVER BEEN KNOWN~~

Our Tea Trade

Is constantly increasing. We now sell more in a day than we used to in a week—now sell a good tea at 25 cents a pound. Those who prefer a fancy article we have it up to the very finest article 80 and 90 cents per pound. No middlemen between us and our customers. We purchase direct of the importers and sell direct to the consumers, thereby saving them the profits of the speculator, jobber and wholesale dealer. All of these have to have their profits which adds 20 to 30 cents per pound to the tea before it reaches the consumer. This is the only secret of our success, doing away with the middlemen.

Young Hyson Tea,	25, 40, 50, best 90 cents per pound
Gunpowder Tea,	40, 60, best 90 cents per pound
Imperial Tea,	30 70, best 90 cents per pound
Oonlong Tea,	25, 50, best 75 cents per pound
Japan Uncolored Tea,	30, 50, best 70 cents per pound
English Breakfast Tea,	50, best 80 cents per pound

SUGARS, SUGARS, SUGARS!

ALL DOWN HALF CENT PER POUND.

Coffee A, 11 cents. Coffee C, 10 cents. Choice Yellow, 10 cents.
Granulated and Crushed, 12 cents. Powdered, 12 cents.

COFFEE! COFFEE!

Our Best Rio, 25 cents. Good Fine Rio, 22 cents. Old Government Java, 30 cents.
Roasted Rio, 22 cents. Best Roasted, 28 cents.

No Advance on Meats.

Best Sugar Cured Hams, 11 cents.
Sugar Cured Shoulders, 8 cents.
Best Pickled Pork, 8 cents.

Syrups.

Cuba 40 and 50 cents.
White Drips, 75 cts. and $1.00.
New Orleans, 50 and 75 cents.

Raisins and Canned Peaches at a Terrible Sacrifice!

The large 3 lb. Can Peaches, 15 cents,
2 lb. Cans, 10 cents.
2 lb. Damsons, 15 cents.
Choice Valencia Raisins, 7 cents.
Strawberries, 10 and 12 cents.
2 lb. Green Gages, 25 cents.

FISH! FISH! FISH!

Harvest time being the great fish season, we laid in a large supply when they were low to supply our customers at the lowest rates.

No. 1 White Fish, half bbls $4.50 New Pickerel in half bbls. $2.50 No. 1 White Fish in kits, $1.00
New Pickerel, in kits, 75 cents, Boston Mackerel, in kits, 75 cents and $1.25.
We have a No. 3 White Fish, small but sound fish, half barrels, $1.00.

OILS. OILS. OIL!!

Coal Oil per gallon, 20 cents. Headlight Oil per gallon 25 cents. Lard Oil, per gallon, $1.00
Fish Oil per gallon, $1.00. Best Golden Machine Oil per gal. 70c. Machine Oil per gal. 30cts

You can save at least 25 per cent. on the dollar at the

Fruit House, Fort Wayne, Ind

JOHN L. DAVIS,

OF THE

PIONEER HARDWARE STORE,

Would respectfully announce that he has made large additions in every department, and is prepared to furnish everything in the Hardwase line.

He keeps a full stock of

BUILDING MATERIAL.

Whichhe can sell at prices to suit the times. All kinds of

STOVES and TINWARE

on hand. He keeps a first-class TIN M R and is prepared to do all kinds of Eaves Trough hangnig Roofing, on short notice, and in a workmanlike manner.

MAIN STRFET, OPPOSITE COURT HOUSF AUBURN, IND

JUST RECEIV'D

—AT—

J. ABRIGHT'S

Fine Gold and Plated Jewelry,
Ladies Gold Watches,
American Watches,

Rogers & Bro. Silverware,

A splendid line of imported Vases
Watch Chains, magnificent
Holiday Gifts, Lockets,
Ladies Sets, Gents

GOLD & SILVER SET

Sleeve and Collar Buttons, Jet
Shell and Horn Jewelry,
All at astonishingly

LOW PRICES.

Watches and Jewelry repaired on [illegible]tice and in good style.

MEEKS & WYER,

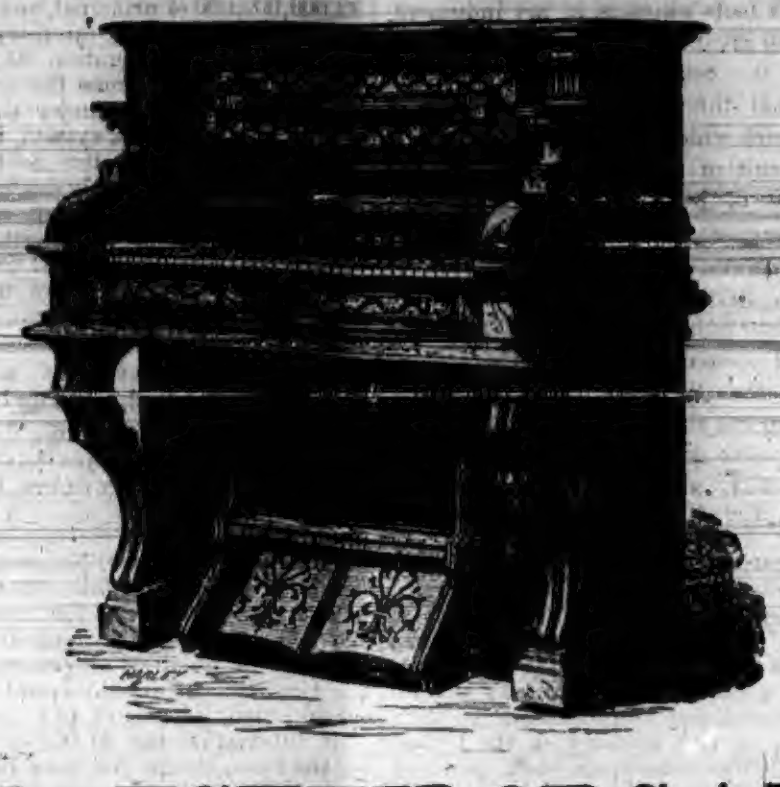
Our energetic

PLASTERS

Will do you a good job at reasonable rates. They always give satisfaction and are prompt in their work. Those having plastering to do should give them a call. nov21 6y

---

THE ONLY FIRST-CLASS INSTRUMENT.



The ESTEY ORGAN

Stands unrivalled. It has stood the test of years, and has never ben excelled. Those wanting Organs should get the Estey, the very best there is made. Hundreds of testimonials in its faver, and increased rates every year. Call and examine them

G. H. YESBERA, Agt.

Next Door to Abright's, Main Street, Auburn, Indiana

Geo. De Wald & Co.

FORT WAYNE, IND.

Have always on hand the largest and best stock of Dry Goods and Ladies Dress Goods in the city. Our citizens when of visiting Fort Wayne, should not fail call and examine their stock

DRY GOODS.

They can make it to the interest of every person who trade with them. They buy for cash and sell for cash, keep the best goods and sell for one price. Also agents for the Domestic Paterons

Their store is located at No. 1 Columbia Street.

GEO. DEWALD & CO.

DOWN! DOWN! DOWN!

FROM 10 TO 25 PER CENT.

HARNESS, SADELES, COLLARS, WHIPS, &c.,

At my new shop on seventh street, opposite Court House, in old Post Office building. Come and see me and I will sell you a good article for less money than you ever heard of before. All work warranted.

G. RHODENBAUGH & CO.

HOW

Is it that the New York Store sells goods so much cheaper than their neighbors is a question often asked. It is because they sell for cash and

DO

Not have to sustain losses from bad debts, besides it inables them to pay cash for goods and get the discounts which make quite an item to

YOU

As consumers. It also enables them to keep all the new and desirable styles and novelties, by being always ready to take hold of them without delay, and it is a well establishd fact which all

KNOW

That there is no one concern more careful in selecting good and desirable goods than the New York Store.

IT

Being the object of the New York Store to give entire satisfaction to all their customers.

G. H. FORKNER & CO., Prop's.

RAIL ROADS.

Lake Shore & Mich Southern R R

AIR LINE DIVISION.

On and after June 10 1877, trains will run as follows:

GOING WEST

	Special Ex.	Pacific Ex.	Accm
Toledo	11 15 a m	12 01 a m	4 00 p m
Wauseon	12 16 "	1 07 "	5 20 "
Bryan	1 00 "	1 50 "	6 28 "
Butler	1 25 "	2 25 "	7 10 "
Waterloo	1 41 "	[illegible] "	7 30 "
Sedan	2 00 "	2 49 "	7 48 "
Corunna	2 07 "	2 54 "	7 57 "
Kendallville	[illegible]	3 05 "	8 04 "
Ligonier	2 57 "	3 40 "	8 50 "
Goshen	3 26 "	4 12 "	9 35 "
Elkhart	3 50 "	4 35 "	10 00 "

GOING EAST.

Elkhart	7 55 p m	9 50 p m	7 00 "
Goshen	8 08 "	10 10 "	7 25 "
Ligonier	8 25 "	10 42 "	8 02 "
Kendallville	8 49 "	11 17 "	8 45 a m
Corunna	8 56 "	11 31 "	9 00 "
Sedan	9 00 "	11 36 "	9 06 "
Waterloo	9 05 "	11 46 "	9 15 "
Butler	"	12 01 a m	9 35 "
Bryan	"	12 40 "	10 17 "
Wauseon	"	1 25 "	11 12 "
Toledo	"	2 40 "	12 30 "

CHAS. PAINE, Gen. Supt.
J. W. CARY, Gen Tic. Agt
J. H. CURTIS, Division Su

Pittsburg, Ft. W. & C. R. R

Condensed time card June 24, 1877.

GOING WEST.

	No 1 Fast ex.	No. 7 Pac. ex.	No. 3 Nigh ex	No 5 Mall.
Pittsburgh	11 45 pm	9 00 am	1 50 pm	6 00 am
Rochester	12 53 am	10 15	2 54	7 45
Alliance	3 10	12 50 pm	5 35	11 00
Orrville	4 46	2 30	7 12	12 55 pm
Mansfield	7 00	4 40	9 10	2 11
Crestl'e ar.	7 30	5 15	9 45	3 50
" lv.	7 50	5 40	9 55
Forest	9 25	7 55	11 15
Lima	10 40	9 00	12 25 am
Ft. Wayne	1 20 pm	11 55	2 40
Plymouth	3 45	2 46 am	4 55
Chicago	7 00	6 30	7 58

GOING EAST.

	No. 4 Nig t ex	No. 2 Fast ex.	No. 6 Pac. ex	No. 8 Mail
Chicago	9 10 pm	8 20 a.m	5 15 pm
Plymouth	2 46 am	11 25	9 00
Ft. Wayne	6 55	2 10 pm	11 35
Lima	8 55	4 05	1 30 am
Forest	10 10	5 20	2 48
Crestl'e ar.	11 45	6 55	4 25
" lv.	12 05 pm	7 15 pm	4 35	6 05am
Mansfield	12 35	7 44	5 05	6 55
Orrville	2 30	9 38	7 10	9 15
Alliance	4 05	11 15	9 00	11 20
Rochester	6 22	1 21 am	11 06	2 00pm
Pittsburgh	7 30	2 30	12 15	3 30

Trains Nos 3 and 6 run daily. Train No. 1 leaves Pittsburg daily except Sunday. Train No 4 leaves Chicago daily except Saturday. All others daily except Sunday.

F. R. MYERS,
Gen Pass. and Ticket Agent.

Ft. Wayne, Jackson & Sag. R. R

Short Line Between

Michigan and the South.

Time card in effect June 21—run by Chicago time

Going North.

Stations	Exp.	Accom.	Mail
Louisville	7 15pm
St. Louis	6 45
Indianapolis	4 25am
Ft Wayne	10 50 "	1 30	4 15p
Auburn	11 40 "	3 03	5 13
Waterloo	11 56 "	4 00	5 31
Summit
Pleasant Lake
Ar Angola	12 58 pm	5 30	6 35
Reading	1 49 "	7	7 32
Bankers	2 04 "	7	7 47
Jonesville	2 30 "	7	8 06
Jackson	3 45 "	8	9 20
Detroit	6 10 "	12	3 25a
Grand Rapids	9 30 "	4	6 5[illegible]
Lansing	6 40 "
Saginaw	9 13
Bay City

Going South.

Bay City
Saginaw	7 15 a.m		3 55p
Lansing	10 40 "		7 25
Grand Rapids	6 20 "	11 50a	7 00
Detroit	7 00 "		9 50
Jackson Dep	11 40 am	5 10p	6 00a
Jonesville	12 40 pm	7	7 12
Bankers	1 07 "	7	7 30
Reading	1 22 "	8	7 45
Ar Angola	2 12 "	9	8 41
Pleasant Lake
Waterloo	2 47 "	10 45	9 22
Auburn	3 04 "	11 31	9 36
Auburn Junction		1 00a
Fort Wayne Arrive	3 55 "		10 35
Indianapolis	7 45 "		5 55
St. Louis	8 30 am		7 35
Louisville	8 20 am		10 50

All trains daily except Sunday.

P. B. LOOMIS, Pres't

S. K. HOOPER Gen. Ticket Ag't.

Baltimore & Ohio Railroad.

IN EFFECT JUNE 24, 1877.

GOING WEST.

STATIONS:	Express	Express	Cum'l A
lv New York	8 15am	8 25pm
Philadelphia	12 15pm	11 30
Baltimore	4 30	6 15am
Washington	5 45	7 55
Wheeling	8 00am	10 05pm	4 30pm
Bellaire	8 20am	10 30	5 00
Barnesville	9 45	11 46	6 16
Cambridge	10 46	1 00am	7 30
Zanesville	11 55	2 10	8 50
ar Newark	1 00pm	3 15	10 00
Columbus	3 00	5 00
Shawnee	4 30	10 0
lv Columbus	12 40	10 45pm
Newark	2 00	3 30am	4 20pm
Mt Vernon	3 00	4 35	6 25
Mansfield	4 28	6 15	10 03
Shelby	4 54	6 47	11 35
Monroeville
ar Sandusky
lv Chicago Junction	6 00	7 45	7 55am
Republic
Tiffin	7 15	8 30	10 20
Fostoria	7 45	9 10	11 40
Deshler	8 50	10 00	1 50pm
Defiance	9 53	11 06	3 50
Hicksville	10 41	11 53	6 13
Auburn Junction	11 22	12 35pm	7 50
Garrett	11 40pm	1 05	8 00am
Avilla	11 55	1 24	8 24
Albion	12 17	1 47	9 04
Milford Junction	1 08	2 37	10 34
Walkertown Junction	2 38	3 53	1 06pm
Chicago	5 40	6 40

GOING EAST.

Chicago	8 50am	9 40pm
Walkertown Junction	12 26pm	1 14am	11 29am
Milford Junction	1 45	2 24	2 37pm
Albion	2 30	3 10	4 15
Avilla	2 50	3 30	4 56
Garrett	3 20	3 55	6 00am
Auburn Junction	3 27	4 02	6 17
Hicksville	4 07	4 42	7 42
Defiance	4 54	5 27	9 10
Deshler	5 48	6 23	11 35
Fostoria	6 47	7 23	2 14pm
Tiffin	7 35	7 54	3 20
Republic
Sandusky
Monroeville
Chicago Junction	8 40	9 30	1 30
Shelby Junction	9 16	10 06	3 05
Mansfield	9 44	10 36	4 28
Mt. Vernon	11 14	12 06pm	7 40
Ar Newark	12 15a m	1 10	9 45
lv Columbus	12 40	3 00
Shawnee	10 25
Newark	12 45am	2 05	5 55am
Lv Zanesville	1 50	3 10	7 10
Cambridge	2 51	4 10	8 14
Barnesville	3 53	5 10	9 23
Ar Bellaire	5 03	6 20	10 40
Wheeling	6 00	7 40	11 55
Washington	7 20pm	7 50am
Baltimore	8 30	9 00
Philadelphia	3 10am	1 15pm
New York	6 25	5 05pm

Zanesville Accommodation leaves Zanesville daily except Sunday, at 6:40 a. m., and arrives at Columbus at 9:35 a. m.

Express trains run daily, other trains daily except Sunday.

L. M COLE, Gen. Tick. Agt.

Ft. Wayne, Muncie & Cin. R. R.

Muncie Route.

THE SHORT LINE TO INDIANAPOLIS,
—AND—
THE SOUTHWEST.

Time Card in effect July 1st, 1877.

GOING SOUTH.

STATIONS.	1. Mail.	3. Express.	5. Accom.
FORT WAYNE	5 10 am	6 25 pm
Bluffton	6 17 am	7 45 pm
Montpelier	6 55 am	8 20 pm
Hartford	7 20 am	8 45 pm
MUNCIE	8 10 am	9 30 pm	5 00 a m
Newcastle	9 05 am		6 26 p m
Cambridge City	9 42 am		[illegible]
Connersville	10 20 am		8 30 p m
Cincinnati	1 20 pm		11 40 p m
INDIANAPOLIS	10 55 am	11 05 pm
Louisville	10 50 pm	6 35 am
Terre Haute	3 15 pm	7 50 am
St. Louis	9 00 pm	8 20 am

GOING NORTH.

STATIONS	2	6 Express.	4 Accom.
St. Louis		8 00 am
Terre Haute		2 55 pm
Louisville		3 30 pm
Cincinnati	7 00 am		7 00 am
Indianapolis		8 30 pm
Connersville	10 40 am		10 40 am
Cambridge City	11 13 am		11 44 am
New Castle	11 50 am		12 55 pm
Muncie	12 43 pm	10 45 pm	2 30 pm
Hartford	1 30 pm	11 21 pm
Montpelier	2 01 pm	11 57 pm
Bluffton	2 40 pm	12 34 pm
Fort Wayne	3 50 pm	1 45 am

All trains daily except Sunday. Trains run on Columbus time. Through cars attached to trains 1 and 4, and run between Fort Wayne and Indianapolis via Muncie.

GEO. W. MULLEN, Act'g Gen. Tick. Ag't.
W. W. WORTHINGTON, Gen. Supt.

Detroit, Eel River & Illinois R. R.

TAKE EFFECT JULY 8, 1877.

GOING EAST.

	MAIL No. 2,	ACCOM. No. 4,	LOCAL FT No. 8,
v. Logansport	7 45am	7 00	7 00
Mexico	8 27	8 07	8 27
Denver	8 37	8 25	9 00
Chili	8 45	8 39	9 20
Roann	9 03	9 00	10 05
Laketon	9 20	9 24	10 50
N. Manchester	9 31	9 30	11 15
Liberty Mills	9 40	10 05	11 55
Collamer	9 55	10 27	12 15pm
S. Whitley	10 00	10 35	12 28
Columbia City	10 26	11 15	1 20
Collins	10 43	11 43	[illegible]
Churubusco	10 56	12 00	2 55
La Otto	11 20	12 31pm	3 35
Cedar Creek	11 28	12 46	4 15
Auburn Junct'n	11 43	1 07	4 35
Auburn	11 48	1 13	5 10
Butler	12 20am	2 00	6 30

Going West.

	No. 1,	No. [illegible]	No. 7,
Logansport ar	6 55 pm	1 05pm	6 20pm
Mexico	6 16	12 00 n.	4 20
Denver	6 07	11 40am	4 00
Chili	6 00		3 30
Roann	5 41		2 40
Laketon	5 32		2 00
North Manchester	5 23		1 32
Liberty Mills	5 17		1 08
Collamer	5 05		12 50am
South Whitley	5 02		12 21
Columbia City	4 40		[illegible]
Collins	4 21		9 43
Churubusco	4 14		9 20
La Otto	3 15		8 41
Cedar Creek	3 45		8 20
Auburn Junction	3 27	7	8 00
Auburn	3 22	7 34	7 4
Butler lv	2 45	6 55	6 30

FRANK J. HECKER,
Gen. Sup't

JAS. CLIFFORD.

WATERLOO, IND.

Keeps constantly on hand the best and choicest brands of all kinds of

Wines and Liquors,

Cigars, Tobaccos, &c.

He also has, in connection with the above a first class

BILLIARD HALL.

To our citizens and the traveling public, we would say that this is the popular resort at Waterloo. First door south of the railroad.

GOLD. Great chance to make money. If you can't get gold you can get greenbacks. We need a person in every town to take subscriptions for the largest, cheapest and best illustrated family publication in the world. Any one can become a successful agent. The most elegant works of art given free to subscribers. The price is so low that almost every body subscribes. One Agent reports making over $150 in a week. A lady agent reports taking over 400 subscribers in ten days. All who engage make money fast. You can devote all your time to the business, or only your spare time. You need not be away from home over night. You can do it as well as others. Full directions and terms free. Elegant and expensive outfit free. If you want profitable work send us your address at once. It costs nothing to try the business. No one who engages fails to make great pay. Address "The People's Journal," Portland Maine.

Dr. A. G. OLIN'S Private Dispensary, 187 East Washington St. Chicago, Ills, for the cure of all Diseases of a Private nature, resulting from early abuses or infection of either Sex. Seminal Weakness producing Emissions, Loss of Memory, Impaired Sight, Lost Manhood or Impotency, Nervous Debility, permanently cured; diseases of the Bladder, Kidneys, Liver, Lungs, Asthma, Catarrh, Piles, all Chronic Diseases, and DISEASES OF FEMALES, yield to his treatment. Dr. Olin has had a life-long experience, and cures where others fail. He is a graduate of the Reformed School, uses no mercury, has the largest practice in the U. S. LADIES requiring treatment with private home and board, call or write. Every convenience for patients. Send fifty cents for sample of Rubber Goods and circular of important information by express. DR. OLIN'S Female Pills, $2 per box. Consultation free.

MARRIAGE GUIDE 276 pages. Secrets & information for the young and middle aged of both Sexes, on all diseases of a private nature. Valuable advice to the married and those contemplating marriage. How to be healthy and truly happy in the married relation. Everybody should get this book. Price 50 cents, to any address, sealed.

A PHYSIOLOGICAL View of Marriage!

WOMAN AND MARRIAGE A Guide to Wedlock and confidential Treatise on the duties of marriage and the causes that unfit for it; the secrets of Reproduction and the Diseases of Women. A book for private, considerate reading. 260 pages, price 50 cts.

A PRIVATE MEDICAL ADVISER! On all disorders of a Private Nature arising from Self Abuse, Excesses, or Secret Diseases, with the best means of cure, 224 large pages, price 50 cts.

A CLINICAL LECTURE on the above diseases and those of the Throat and Lungs, Catarrh, Rupture, the Opium Habit, &c., price 10 cts.

Either book sent postpaid on receipt of price; or all three, containing 500 pages, beautifully illustrated, for 75 cts.

Address DR. BUTTS, No. 12 N. 8th St. St. Louis, Mo.

$45 PREMIUM WATCH AND CHAIN—a stem-winder. Free with every order. Outfit free. J. B. Gaylord & Co., Chicago, Ill.

$3 GOLD PLATED WATCHES. Cheapest in the known world. Sample Watch Free to Agents. Address, A. COULTER & Co., Chicago.

$2500 A YEAR. Agents wanted. Business legitimate. Particulars free. Address J. WORTH & CO., St Louis, Mo.

OPIUM and Morphine Habit absolutely and speedily cured.—Painless; no publicity. Send stamp for particulars. Dr. Carlton, 187 Washington St., Chicago, Ill.

The Mayer House, at Fort Wayne, is now under the management of Scarbrough & Kepler, two gentlemen who understand their business, and attend to it.

Recorder's Office

THE AUBURN COURIER.

Devoted to the Interests of the Democratic Party and to the Collection of Local and General News.

Volume 7. AUBURN, DeKALB COUNTY INDIANA, OCTOBER 11th, 1877. Number 41.

The Auburn Weekly Courier

PUBLISHED EVERY THURSDAY, BY

TOM. C. MAYS.

One Year.........$2. | Six Months.......

Advertising Rates.

Space.	1 m.	3 m.	6 m.	1 y.
1 Square	2 00	5 00	7 00	12 00
¼ Column	6 00	12 00	15 00	20 00
½ Column	10 00	18 00	30 00	50 00
1 Column	15 00	30 00	40 00	100 00

Local Notices 10 cents per line, first insertion 5 cents each insertion thereafter. Business cards Five Dollars.

BUSINESS DIRECTORY

TERMS OF COURT.

COURTS IN DEKALB CO.	COURTS IN STEUBEN CO.
4th Monday in February	1st Monday in Febr'y.
3rd Monday in May.	4th Monday in April.
4th Monday in Septem'r	1st Monday in Sept'r.
3rd Monday in Decem'r	4th Monday in Nov'r.

ATTORNEYS.

H. C. PETERSON,

ATTORNEY AT LAW and notary public. Office over Davis' hardware store, Auburn, Ind.

J. W. RICKEL,

ATTORNEY AT LAW Auburn, Ind. Special attention given to collections. Office over First National Bank.

A. F. PINCHIN

ATTORNEY AT LAW and notary public, Butler, DeKalb Co., Ind. Insurance and real estate business promptly attended to.

GUY PLUM

ATTORNEY AT LAW and notary public. Office in the Court House. Special attention paid to the collection of claims. Also agent for Home Insurance Company.

D. D. MOODY. P. V. HOFFMAN.

Moody and Hoffman,

ATTORNEYS AT LAW. Office in Odd Fellows' building, opposite Court House, Auburn, Ind.

BEST and McCLELLAN,

ATTORNEYS AT LAW, Waterloo, Ind. Will practice in the Courts of DeKalb & Steuben counties. Liberal Advances Made on all first-class Claims left in our hands for collection.

R. A. FRANKS. O. E. HUBBELL.

Franks & Hubbell,

ATTORNEYS at law, will practice in DeKalb and adjoining counties. Special attention given to the collection of claims, settlements of decendent estates and conveyance. Office on Broadway opposite Haskins & Son's livery stable, Butler, Ind.

R. WM. M'BRIDE, J. L. MORLAN, W. H. LEAS

McBRIDE, MORLAN and LEAS

ATTORNEYS AT LAW, NOTARIES PUBLIC, COLLECTING AND INSURANCE AGENCY. Office over Fisher's Clothing Store, corner of Wayne and Marion streets, Waterloo, Ind. Will practice in all parts of the State. Especial attention given to collections in DeKalb, Steuben, LaGrange and Noble counties.

PHYSICIANS.

DR. J. A. COWAN,

PHYSICIAN & SURGEON, Auburn, Ind. Office on Main street, over Central Grocery.

J. J. LITTLEFIELD,

PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON. Office over McIntyre's Block, Auburn, Ind. All calls promptly attended to.

W. S. ALLEN.

PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON, Office West of Court House, on Main Street, over Eldridge's store. Same office lately occupied by Dr. Cowan.

DR. TRITCH,

HOMEOPATHIC PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON Special attention given to Surgery and Chronic diseases. Office in Case's Block, Auburn Indiana.

DR. S. B. JOHNSTON,

DENTIST, WATERLOO, INDIANA, Does all work in the line of his profession at as low figures as possible. Special attention given to gold filling and making new teeth. All work warranted.

HOTELS.

AVELINE HOUSE,

MILLER & MORITZ, Prop's., corner Calhoun & Berry Sts., Fort Wayne, Ind.

BUTT'S HOTEL,

FORMERLY THE BIGLER HOUSE, JOHN BUTT & A. B. RICHARDS, Proprietors, Waterloo, Ind. Free omnibus to and from all trains Good sample rooms on first floor.

Central House,

MR. M. C. MARKEL, Prop. Corner Main and Seventh streets. Good Sample Rooms for Drummers.

MAYER HOUSE.

SCARBROUGH & KEPLER, Prop's., Corner Calhoun and Wayne Streets, Fort Wayne, Ind. Good Sample Rooms.

SANDS HOUSE.

COR. WABASH AVE. & MADISON ST. CHICAGO, ILL. New House, elegantly furnished. Only $2.00 per day.

GEO. S. PALMER, [Late of City Hotel,] Clerk. O. SANDS, Proprietor

MISCELLANEOUS.

H. Wartenslaben

PAINTER and paper hanger. House painting specialty. Residence corner Williams and Cedar street.

PRINTING.

COURIER OFFICE,

JOB PRINTING neatly executed. Fine work a specialty. Office in Odd Fellows' Building 2nd floor.

EXAMINATION OF TEACHERS.—Examinations will be held in Auburn on the first Saturday, and in Waterloo on the last Saturday in each month, beginning March 4, 1876. Examination begin at 10 o'clock A. M.

JAMES A. BARNES Co. Sup't.

BILL BRITTON

THE DRAY MAN

Will attend promptly to all orders for

DRAYING AND HAULING.

Retailing good terms and reasonable ... he.

EAGLE MILLS

FLOUR, CORN MEAL, FEED, &c.

The reputation of the Eagle Mills, its excellent facilities for making good flour together with the advantages it possesses in the way of improved machinery enables the proprietor to announce that he is now prepared to meet all demands in the way of custom work. The Eagle Mill brand of flour will be found on hand at reasonable rates. Orders delivered in any part of town free of charge.

P. W. SILVERS.

FOR SALE.

VALUABLE LANDS.

I offer for sale one section of land, in Kosciusko county, Ind., nine miles south west of Warsaw, adjoining ... Beybi, and a quarter section nearby, which I will sell as a whole or in lots of 40 acres or more, as the purchaser may desire. The land is well improved, well timbered and I will sell low for cash. Or I will sell on time one-forth down, and the balance in ten years. Also a section in Fulton county on the same terms. For particulars address,

H. HEIST, Kendallville, Ind.

FIFTH YEAR.

IND. CONSERVATORY OF MUSIC,

FORT WAYNE, IND.

FALL TERM COMMENCING

SEPTEMBER 11th, 1877.

Pupils attending this Conservatory can be accommodated with board at the M. E. College, at $2 per week.

no34tf S. B. MORSE, Principal.

ELSWORTH, ANDREW & CO.

Have opened for the Spring Trade of 1877 an elegant line of

BRUSSELS & INGRAIN

CARPETS

In all the new and elegant designs; and will give very low figures to

CASH BUYERS.

A full line of

OIL CLOTHS,

MATTINGS.

LACE CURTAIS.

WINDOW SHADES,

STAIR RODS,

RUGS and MATS.

And a splendid stock of

WALL PAPER

AND DECRATIONS.

We solicit inspection from Auburn and vicininy.

ELLSWORTH, ANDREW & CO.

26 East Berry Street,
Fort Wayne, Indiana.

J. G. FLEDDERMAN

No. 27, East Main-St.

FORT WAYNE, IND'A

as the larhest and finest stock of

CLOTHS, COATINGS, CHEVIOTS,

AND

CassimereS

in Ft. Wayne. The finest line of

Made up Clothing

ever shown in Fort Wayne

Youths' and Children's Clothing!

Furnishing Goods, &c.

Merchant Tailoring

All work done in all the latest styles, prom attended. sochislargestock

LAWSON'S CURATIVE

FOR THE CURE OF

RHEUMATISM

AND

NEURALGIA.

This marvelous preparation has cured hundreds of the most distressing cases of Chronic Rheumatism and Neuralgia, even when all other remedies have failed. It is fast becoming the

Acknowledged Antidote

for these diseases and can be relied upon by sufferers to relieve them of their pains and effect a permanent cure.

Do Not Give Up

your case as hopeless and settle down to the conviction that no medicine will help you: all we ask is a fair trial of the CURATIVE, and that you bear in mind that the nature of these diseases require persistent and faithful application to insure a perfect cure. In every community where the CURATIVE has been placed will be found many witnesses who will testify to what it has done for them.

Diphtheria, Sore Throat, Burns, Scalds, Bruises, Sprains, Wounds, Cuts, Chilblains, Inflammation, Headache, Toothache, Catarrh, Dyspepsia, Sour Stomach,

can positively be cured by the free use of the CURATIVE. Send to us for testimonials if you have any doubts.

Sold by all Druggists.

Price $1.00 per Bottle, 6 for $5.00.

PREPARED BY

Lawson Chemical Co., Cleveland, O.

For sale by F. E. Davenport.

FIRST NATIONAL BANK.

The First National Bank of Auburn Indiana tenders to the citizens of DeKalb county its facilities for the transaction of business. We loan money, receive deposits subject to check at sight or payable at a fixed date with a stipulated rate of interest. Sell exchange on New York, Chicago, Toledo and Fort Wayne procure such foreign exchange as may be desired, buy exchange and make collections on all available points, and do all usual and ordinary business done by first class banks. We will also take on deposit for safekeeping valuable papers such as deeds mortgages, notes bonds, agreements etc., guardians, administrators, trustees and all other handling trust funds together with merchants, manufacturers and farmers are solicited to open an account with us. We will deal liberally with all who call.

J. H. FORD, President.
JAMES V. HAZZARD, Cashier.

A Few Words of Wisdom.

For all who are seeking new homes in the West. If you are going to change your location, by all means you should keep on about the same latitude as where you formerly lived for in this way you will escape the severe climatic changes in the weather incident to the extreme North or South, having none of these things to contend with, your self and family are healthy and you become a producer at once, consequently soon independent; on the other hand should you listen to the many glowing accounts of the sunny South, or the mild climate of the North, and thus be induced to try your fortunes there, you will find the reality is not all your fancy painted it. If you go South it usually takes about two years to get acclimated to the climate, during which time, not being able to work, yourself and family are consumers, besides being constantly exposed to the malarial fevers which abound there, and the experience of many is that they return discouraged, leaving not a few loved ones beneath the sod in the sunny South. Therefore, in going West keep on about the same latitude which will insure health and happiness. There are most excellent lands in Northern Missouri on the line of the Hannibal & St. Jo. R. R. and in Kansass, Nebraska and Colorado, "just as cheap and good as the sun ever shown upon," why not accept a certainty rather than run the risk of losing all? Through day and sleeping cars are run from Toledo, Ohio, via the Wabash R'y and Quincy to St. Jo., Atchison and Kansas city, and from Chicago via Chicago, Burlington & Quincy R. R., whereby all arre furnished firstclass accomodations.

Send for map and time-table to J. A. S. Reed, 50 Clark street, Chicago, C. W. Boardman, Decatur, Ill., or T. Penfield, G. P. and T. A., Hanibal, Mo.

Notice of Administration.

NOTICE is hereby given, that the undersigned has been appointed by the Clerk of the De Kalb Circuit Court, of the State of Indiana, administrator of the estate of Wm. Heckathorn, deceased, late of said county.

Said estate is supposed to be solvent.

DAVID HECKATHORN, Adm'r.

September 22, 1877 no4t

For the COURIER.

Hunting Reminiscences.

BY MAJOR M'FADEN.

As I mentioned before, our Robinson Crusoe team was very poor and weak, and one of them, the poor old sorrel horse, you could count every rib in his body, and we had to soak him every night to make him hold water, got something the matter with him, and could not eat. Our doctor made a post mortem examination of him, and pronounced it a case of lock jaw, and general debility and want of vitality in the abdominal regions of the diaphram of the stomach, and that his digestive organs were out of order for the want of corn and oats, and came to the conclusion that the only thing to save him would be to pull a tooth, but he had no pullicans large enough to do the job, and had to go over to a blacksmith shop and get a pair of pincers with handles like a pair of tongs. We all got ready to hold the hoss, while Doctor Ford pulled the tooth, as he said it was the last resort. Tom Mays held the tail and Messrs. Davis, Ryan, and Swibart and Proffessor Locke each held a hoof, while I sat on him. The Doctor got hold of an eye tooth, which he said was connected with the eye and tympanum of the ear, and was the last resort and only salvation for him. Then the pulling commenced, and the poor hoss groaned. The Doctor held on, and pulled and twisted, and at last my dear friend, what do you think, the tooth did not come, but he broke the old sorrel's neck, and pulled his head off and he died right there on our hands. Robinson Crusoe made a big fuss and said he was ruined—that he intended to go west in the fall, and grow up with the country, but now his team was broken up and he could not go, and that his family of 17 children would starve. But we condoled him and told him that we would hold an inquest on the deceased. We heard of a justice of the peace just over the line in White county, and we sent for him to act as foreman of the jury. He came but he could neither read nor write. We organized ourselves into a jury, with the justice as foreman. Robinson Crusoe wanted to set on the jury, but we told him that would never do, as he was an interested party, and that it was uncontsitutional. After hearing the testimony and viewing the remains, the foreman announced the following verdict: "If the court understands herself and I think she do, this is a case of an intent to commit suicide in the g. h. degree and 4th verse," and then said, "Constable, get a pint of red eye, the court is awful thirsty." It was the worst farce of justice I ever saw, but we could not help our selves, as the Court had prejudged the case, and we could not appeal from it out there in the woods. We then told him he did not have jurisdiction of the case, as he was out of his county, but he said that made no difference, as he had his office in his hat and carried it wherever he went. This did not satisfy Robinson Crusoe, and we made up a pony purse of $17 50, and with it and an old shot gun and dog, we bought him a mule, and, a bad arrangement for poor old Robinson Crusoe, for in a year or two afterwards, it kicked him clean out of the world, and that was the tragic fate of Robinson Crusoe, whose epitaph was, "kicked to death by a mule." To satisfy public opinion, the mule was shot and the hide cut up into whip lashes, for miles around, and his skeleton was sold for the benefit of the poor. To satisfy our own consciences in reference to the sorrell, we wrote to Prof. Berg, the great humanitarian and friend of animals of New York City, who sent us a certificate fully exhonerating us and saying it was a clear case of justifiable homicide in putting the animal out of his misery.

The second Sabbath in camp we were talking about the life to come, and the uncertainty of life, and what a terrible thing it must be to die. When the fire refuses to burn on the heartstone of our hearts, and the windows of the soul begin to grow dark, and we begin to think about passing in our checks, then comes the tug of war and it is the time that tries men's souls. Just then a man came walking across the prairies leading a pretty little girl, barefooted with calico dress and straw hat. She was one of nature's beauties, and we called her Prairie Flower. She was only six or seven years old, but very bright and interesting, and said she had come with her father to see the hunter's camp, and how they lived. We all contributed a little money as a present to her, with which she sent to town and got herself a new red dress, bonnet, shoes, and doll baby, with the last of which she was perfectly delighted. She came again to see us bringing with her a little brother, and dressed up in her new garb, looking a perfect little queen. They brought us some apples, cream for our coffee honey, butter, and a bouquet of flowers, and staid all day with us. We sent them home in the evening, as they lived some distance from our camp, and it was getting late. We gave them many little presents and they were delighted with their visit to the hunter's camp. But alas, the little girl was too fair for earth, and did not live long afterwards, and has gone to be an angel, and we expect to meet her at the "Great White Throne."

When the man and child first came to camp, he said that he had found out that he was a sinner, and had heard that there was a pracher in the camp, and he wanted to know what he should do to be saved. We told him that there was no preacher with us, but that we could tell him what all those had to do to be saved, when the Savior was on earth. That they were then commanded to believe and be baptized and thou shall be saved, and they were buried with Christ in baptism, and that they went down into to the water and came up out of the water. And here let me say that I never could, for the life of me, see how you could make sprinkling and pouring a type of the death and burial of our Saviour, or of being buried with Christ in baptism, and the man who makes light of baptism is fooling away his soul, for you are as much commanded to be baptised, as you are to repent and believe. This is one of the strongest commands in the Bible, yet some persons make light of it and consider it of no value in reference to the salvation of their souls. But sometime or other they will find out it has something to do with their eternal welfare, when it is too late. It is the plainest and strongest command in the Book, and cannot be misunderstood. Our visitor then asked if that was the way and manner of salvation when Christ was upon earth, if it ought not to be the way now. We told him certainly; that the Book had not changed a particle, and that was the true and right way as our Saviour had taught it himself to all those who enquired what they should do to be saved. He then said he believed that was right, and asked if any of us would or could baptize him, but we told him that none of us were good enough to do so, and that we were all sinners. But we directed him to Father Snethen, a good and devout man. I afterwards heard that our visitor and his whole family were buried with Christ in baptism in Lake Cicott. They went down into the water, and came up out of the water, as they did in the olden time. They were born to newness of life and went on their way rejoicing. Father Snethen, good old man, just departed this life a short time ago—crossed over Jordon, and gone to linger among the unfading beauties, and to drink deep from the crystal fountain of God's everlasting love.

We had a splendid time in camp and hunting. The hunter's life is glorious and healthy, and that is the reason that Abraham, Isaac and Jacob lived so long, because they dwelt in tents, and ruffed the fresh air of mount Ararat and the Holy Land of Palestine. I had a splendid time with the kind and good hearted men who composed the party from DeKalb county, and take pleasure in saying that I never met with a finer lot of clever gentlemen than they were, and they will ever hold a bright place on the tablet of my memory, and a warm place in my heart. We at last broke up camp, and said good bye to the loved spots, and returned to Logansport with plenty of game, and thence to happy homes, and you, my dear editor, must accept my thanks for giving me so much room, in your interesting paper. I must bid you all good bye for the present, and may be forever, but if we do not meet again, may we hope that "When the angel Grabriel shall stand with one foot upon the sea and the other on the land, and shall declare by him who liveth forever and ever that time shall be no longer, and the heavens shall roll together like a mighty scroll and the earth shall melt with fervent heat," may we then be found on the right side, is the prayer of your sincere friend and humble servant.

We will now close by singing that grand and glorious old song.

"The Sword of Bunker Hill."

No Failure Known.

There is no case on record where Dr. Morris' Syrup of Tar, Wild Cherry and Horehound has failed to give satisfaction. On the other hand, wherever it has been used by our people, in severe colds, coughs, asthma, bronchitis, croup whooping-cough and consumption, they are enthusiastic in its praise. Containing no opium or other dangerous drug, it does not constipate, and is safe to administer in all conditions of health. This is an important announcement, and the suffering are advised to heed it. Trial size 10 cts; large sizes 50 cts, and one dollar. Sold by F. E. Davenport. Also agents for Prof. Parker's Pleasant Worm Syrup, which is sure death to worms, pleasant to take, and requires no physic. Price 25 cts. Try it.

The Terrible Snakes of India.

The fatal rapidity with which the venom impregnates the blood is exemplified by the following story told to me years ago as having occurred at Mohabbleshwur. A native gardener, at work in a garden at that place, was bitten by a snake on one of his fingers. The man, with great presence of mind and determination immediately chopped off the bitten finger with his gardening knife. But it was too late, the poison had already passed up the hand beyond the place of amputation, and the poor mallee died from the effects of the bite.

A party of friends were one evening sitting at a whist table, some playing, others watching the game. One of the players happened to look down on the ground, and was horrified by discovering a cobra coiled round one of his legs. What was to be done? To move was certain death, and all that the man so strangely shackled could do was to sit perfectly still and call the attention of his friends to his dangerous predicament. For any of the rest of the party to have immediately attacked the snake would probably have been fatal to their friend. By what may be almost called inspiration, one of the non-players quietly left the room and ordered in a basin of milk, which was gently put down on the ground, not far from the snake. In a few minutes, or perhaps only seconds, which must have, however, appeared an hour at least to the unhappy captive, the corbra uncoiled himself and went off to the milk, and when once well away from their companion's leg, was, of course, very soon killed.

It may be objected that a snake would not venture in among a number of people in the way above described. How, then, would the objectors account for the danger run by a lady, whom I could name, one evening, in a drawing-room full of people? This lady was reaching out her arm to draw a chair toward herself, with the intention of sitting on it, when a snake was observed on the back thereof. How did the snake get there? It is very difficult to tell where a snake will not be found, but still more so to ascertain how and when it reached the place of discovery.

Snakes are said to run away from men, and if the soft footfall of the native does not always scare them, the lordly tread of the booted European is supposed to be too much for their nerves, and doubtless is so as a rule. But we know that there is no rule without an exception, and snakes are very exceptional animals. I was walking one evening with a friend near Pan Pir, at the foot of Teat's Tongue Hill, on the other side of Bombay Harbor. My friend had a great horror of snakes, and was rather given at times to seeing them where they did not exist. As we were walking along the country road, my companion who had no weapon with him, suddenly jumped back with a hasty, "Here's a snake!" "Nonsense, you are always seeing snakes," I said, but in another moment a cobra, with his hood expanded, put his head over the side of the road, preparatory apparently to crossing it. On seeing us, however, he seemed desirous to shun nearer acquaintance, and glided back into the gutter. I quickly had a stick, to which "spectacles" soon succumbed. He was the largest cobra I have ever killed.

I once went out shooting across the harbor and steped over a live snake. I had put up and missed a snipe, and had marked him down in some long grass not far off from where I was standing. I was walking back with my eyes fixed on the place where I had seen the bird settle, to have another shot at him. Something on the ground caught the corner of my eye as I was thus engaged, and I instinctively made a long step over the object, and then turned and looked down to see what it was. It was a snake, which I thought at the moment was dead, from his not moving. To make quite sure, I touched him with the muzzle of my gun, when he gave a convulsive start and disappeared so rapidly into the grass which bordered the path on which he had been lying that, though I instantly raised and fired my gun, merely knocked off the end of his tail so low down as not to paralyze him. I, however, caught sight of him again some yards off, and had the satisfaction of blowing off his head with my second barrel. On dragging the snake out into the open air, the natives with me declared he was a most deadly reptile, and I have since seen his "counterfeit" in Dr. Fayrer's Thanatophidia.

I have killed snakes in many ways, and have no hesitation in recommending a horsewhip as the best weapon for their destruction in a house, or anywhere where a gun cannot with safety be used; the slight stroke of a whip breaks a snake's back, and you cover a longer line of ground with one elastic whip than with a stick, and are therefore, less likely to miss your blow. In the open field on the jungle, I must confess my favorite weapon for the coup de grace is a gun loaded with small shot.

Mr. Gilbert Cowie was often in the habit of taking out their poison fangs and keeping the reptiles in his house. A fresh arrival from England was once staying with Mr Cowie, and was disagreeably surprised to find a large rock snake in the clothes basket. He was assured, however, that the unwelcome intruder was pefectly harmless by nature, and was moreover quite tamed and domesticated. So far so good; but on coming down to breakfast with his host, the new arrival was disgusted to see a dozen tamed corbras gamboling about the room. Mr. Cowie assured his guest that the corbras had all their venomous fangs extracted, and were quite innocuous. This was all very well, but Mr. Cowie himself was astonished when a thirteenth corbra, not belonging to the establishment, and consequently still dangerous, crept into the room, probably attracted by his fellows, and joined in their games. The guest did not appreciate this curious introduction to playful Indian ways, and took his departure to another house.—Bombay Gazette.

"GOD KNOWS."

BY BENJAMIN F. TAYLOR.

[An emigrant ship recently foundered in a storm, and of the 220 who went down, only one—a little child—drifted ashore. When the waif was laid at rest from her troubled baptism, somebody asked the question, "What name?" and the reply was, "God knows." A gentleman present, touched by the words, caused a headstone to be erected bearing only this: "God Knows."]

An emigrant ship with a world aboard
  Went down by the head on the Kentish coast,
No tatter of bunting at half-mast lowered,
  No cannon to toll for the creatures lost.
Two hundred and twenty their souls let slip,
Two hundred and twenty with speechless lip
Went staggering down in the foundered ship!

Nobody can tell it—nor you nor I,
  The frenzy of fright when lightning thought
Wove like a shuttle the far and the nigh,
  Shot quivering gleams through the long-forgot
And lighted the years with a ghastly glare,
A second a year, and a second to spare!
'Mid surges of water and gasps of prayer.

The heavens were doom and the Lord was dumb,
  The dawn was the breakers [illegible]
No angel in sight—nor any to come!
  God pardon their sins for the Christ His Son!
The tempest died down as the tempest will,
The sea in a rivulet dreams lay still,
As tame as the moon on a window-sill,
[illegible] on the rugged hill—
The roses that blow in the early light,
And die into gray in the mists of night.

Then drifted ashore in a night-gown dressed,
  A waif of a girl with her sanded hair,
And hands like a prayer on her cold blue breast,
  And a smile on her mouth that was not despair.
No stitch on the garment ever to tell
Who bore her, who lost her, who loved her well,
Unnamed as a rose—was it Norah or Nell?

The coasters and wreckers around her stood
  And gazed on the treasure-trove upward cast,
As round a dead robin the sturdy woods
  Its plumage all rent and the whirlwind past.
They laid a white cross on her home-made vest;
The coffin was rude as a red-breast's nest,
And poor was the shroud, but a perfect rest
Fell down on the child like dew on the West.

A ripple of sod just covered her over,
  Nobody to bid her "Good night, my bird!"
Spring waited to weave a quilt of red clover,
  Nobody alive had her pet name heard.
"What name? asked the preacher. "God Knows!"
  they said,
Nor waited nor wept as they made her bed,
But sculptured "God Knows!" on the slate at her head.

The legend be ours when the night runs wild,
  The road out of sight and the stars gone home,
Lost hope or lost heart, lost Pleiad or child,
  Remember the words at the nameless tomb!
Bewildered and blind the soul finds repose,
Whether cypress or laurel blossoms and blows,
Whatever betides, for the good "God knows!"
"God knows" all the while, our blindness His sight,
Our darkness His day, our weakness His might!

AN ILLUSION.

If Lefebvre's two sisters and his aunts had not treated the whole thing so superciliously, and his cousin Laura, in spite of her generous behavior, had not every now and then looked large-eyed disapproval, very likely it would have come to nothing long before. But of course those women and a host of other female relations were not going to be wiser than he, Lucian Lefebvre, Captain of Engineers and Colonel by brevet, stationed at the capital, and guardian of the nation's citadel—dancing duty, Bell called it.

"Introduced to that doll?" said Bell, when he came up to them, at the Secretary's proposing the introduction. Bell was the married sister; Helen was unmarried, and a little passee, but a person of dignity. "Why, does she talk?"

"Quite a pretty piece of mechanism," said his aunt. "Very well put together."

Lefebvre looked at them in amazement and indignation. "Really," said he, "it is wonderful what women are made of."

"Not this one," said Helen, deliberately putting up her glass. "She is false from the crown of her head to the sole of her foot. How can you be so taken in? I don't know what you are made of, Lucian, to think of introducing such a creature to your sisters, nor how she made her way here."

He was just turning on his heel in speechless anger, but, remembering that he had left the side of the lady in dispute for the avowed purpose of bringing his sisters to her, he exclaimed, "Whatever she is, some of you must come with me and be presented to her, as I am here for that purpose, and I will not have her insulted."

"Indeed!" said Helen, looking over the top of her fan into infinite space, but not stirring.

"I will go, Lucian," said Laura, who had not spoken. "Come, Bell, help me out."

"Well, Laura, for a little goose! However, I will never desert a companion in arms. Do you suppose she has observed our council of war?" as they moved off beside Lucian, with his chin well in the air. "She is a fine picture. A person should go on the stage that can make up as well as that. I should like to see her in the privacy of her midnight retirement. How old should you think? Forty?"

"Forty!" cried Lucian. "I heard her myself arranging for a picnic on her 23d birth-day."

"How touching! In the life to come. Her 23d! She'll never see her 43d again in this life."

"Bell!"

"Oh yes, Lucian; if you choose to force unwelcome acquaintance on your family, at least they must enjoy freedom of opinion concerning it. The very set the woman is with speaks for her. Good evening, General. What a crush! All because of this young Russian hero—a beauty, isn't he? Ah, you too are making for the cynosure, I see; all the world is being presented. It will never do not to follow the fashion."

And directly Lucian was presenting his sister, Mrs. Garnier, and his cousin, Miss Laura Nelson; and Miss Nelson had behaved exactly as Lucian wished; and, although he could never have said what was wanting in Mrs. Garnier's behavior, he knew that a challenge of defiance was in her very air, and that her mere manner had told the other woman what she thought of her. Perhaps Bell presumed that that was the way to manage him. He would shortly ther know.

Col. Lefebvre came clattering down stairs next morning, his horse waiting at the door.

"Whither bound, Lucian?" cried Helen from the library.

"To ride with Mrs. De Berrian."

"Oh, your new widow," she said, gayly. "Have you called yet? No? How very accommodating in her to ride with you first!"

"She is not a punctilious fool," he muttered, drawing on his glove.

"Certain punctilios," put in Aunt Susan, "are only self-respect."

"If you will go and call with me, Nell," said Lucian, "I've no doubt she will postpone the ride."

"Now, Lucian, dear, you know I hate not to gratify you," said Helen. "But really the last thing Bell said was that it would not do. She should not call, nor could I, if, for nothing else, for little Laura's sake, who is too young and innocent to have anything to do—"

"Just as you please," he said, angrily, and had slammed the door behind him. You can imagine his surprise when, as he reined his horse up at the steps of the house where Mrs. De Berrian was visiting, he saw his cousin Laura coming down with Mrs. Vaughn, a leader of the fashions, with whom she sometimes went out; for Laura was an heiress, and but little gainsaid in her wishes.

"I thought you would like to have me," Laura said, timidly looking up with her brown eyes, as he dismounted. She never did have any spirit.

"It is just like you, Laura," he said, fervently.

"I—I don't think you will admire her so much by daylight," she said again, timidly; and he had laughed and handed her into the carriage and disappeared before she knew she had ventured to say so much.

But a more judicious curtain had been dropped within the drawing-room; and as Mrs. De Berrian sat pensively leaning her head on her hand that bore a gleaming sapphire, a dark curl straying over the contour of the white hand set in its lace ruff, and the damask shadow of a great vase of roses on the table, taller than herself, falling round her, Col. Lefebvre thought he did admire Mrs. De Berrian quite as much by daylight—although it occurred to him later that Bell would have called it rose-light or curtain-light instead. He was confirmed in his admiration before he left her. He was not sure but that by the time he saw Mrs. De Berrian again he should be really in love with her. And his little cousin Laura? Well, thank Heaven, he could afford to marry where he chose.

She was rather an enchanting woman after her kind. "I will tell you about her," said Laura to her cousins, when she had endured their reproaches. "She makes it a vital point to please—in her person, her manner, her voice. Her face can only afford smiles, so she never resents, not even such a look as Bell's. She was charmingly dressed. She is visiting people just on the verge of society, Mrs. Vaughn says, but she doesn't seem to belong to them. It is my belief that she has had money, run through nearly all of it, and that this is her last throw for station and a husband."

"Laura, where in the world," cried her displeased aunt, "did you pick up such"—

"French novels," said Bell, who had run over. "I must say, Laura, I think you took a great deal on yourself. Now she will return the call."

"She—she would like to be respectable," stammered Laura. "And you know very well that if you want Lucian to go and marry such a woman out of hand, you have only to persecute her."

"Persecute her! You do use select terms. We let her alone, which you had better have done."

"I—I didn't want Lucian to be mortified."

"So you mortify us."

And by the time Lucian came home Laura was in a flood of tears, and sobbed out, in reply to his amazed inquiry, "Oh they are abusing me so!" And then everyone laughed at the idea of their abusing little Laura, the darling of the house.

"Well, well, Laura," said he. "I'll not abuse you. I invite you to our picnic to-morrow to Great falls. Mrs. De Berrian will chaperon you."

"Mrs. De Berrian!" rose the chorus.

"Madame Arroyo, the Spanish Minister's wife, invites her."

"Well, to be sure," said Bell, catching her suspended breath, "nobody knows anything about her either—an adventuress, all the legation say."

"The Count Zara escorts her. I suppose nobody knows anything about him."

The Austrian attache—yes, he hit Nell hard then, he thought. "And the young Russian Duke that enchanted you so ——"

"Oh, men, all of them!"

"Very fine men, and some of the finest ladies at the capital. I'll take care of you, Laura, if you'll go."

"I'll go, Lucian."

"Perhaps she'd best," said Bell to Helen, at the door. "I shouldn't let him out of my sight, if I were she."

It was a month later when Bell ran over one evening, as usual, now the gayeties were so few, and sat talking gloomily with Helen.

"I never would have believed it of our Lucian," said she. "All but engaged, as he was, to Laura, and with her fortune, that would have just doubled his own, and she so gentle—and now perfectly lost and infatuated over this French doll."

"I can't imagine that it is the same brother who turned pale when we came down with carmine on our cheeks the day after we first saw the French play, and who expostulated with us so."

"Our turn now."

"He would have made Laura such a good husband," said one.

"But now this demoralizing woman ——"

And while they were bemoaning his decline and fall, the subject of their complaint was whirling away in a palace-car, surrounded by wraps and rugs and lunch baskets and periodicals and French candy and Mrs. De Berrian, the wax-lights shining softly down from above on the charming picture the lady made, as, having removed her hat, she leaned back among her cushions under the shelter of the rose-colored scarf passed over her dark curls. Mrs. De Berrian had been summoned to New York on important business; Col. Lefebvre had suddenly found that he had business there too. Mrs. De Berrian perhaps meant to give him some business before he returned. Neither of them was aware that behind the curtains of a neighboring section, whose berths had been made up and occupied just as the train started, reposed one of his aunts and his cousin Laura.

If simply an infatuation over mere beauty were in case, no one could marvel at Col. Lefebvre's infatuation. By candle-light at night, behind a veil outdoors, in the dim, deep-curtained drawing-room, Mrs. De Berrian was worthy a painter's pencil—delicate features, scarlet lips, deep dimples, penciled brows, the sparkle of teeth, the soft, dark glow of great eyes, the snowiness of the forehead under multitudinous waves of shadowy hair—beauty could hardly be better imaged forth, although possibly one might tire of it, and of the set, unvarying smile, for all its sweetness. Lucian had not tired of it yet; once or twice there had crossed his mind a suspicion that its owner was not altogether a woman of high principle, but whether he had put the thought away as treasonable, or had felt with a not unusual masculine vanity that he could change all that, or had not just then cared so much for high principle, it did not hinder his own color from mounting when he looked at hers, or his pulse from quickening when this woman touched his hand. As for Mrs. De Berrian, she was beginning to feel a tolerable assurance that at last her pendulous position on "the waves of society" was to be exchanged for the fixed and solid station of a member of the Lefebvre family, with all their wealth and rank, their respectability, consideration and friends. And, when it should be—why, then she meant to show the women in that family who she was!

It came near being a settled fact that night as they rolled comfortably along, almost all the rest of the car behind their curtains, the soft light, half gloom, half light, falling softly on the lovely face, a setting moon traveling with them and looking in at the window at every turn. Col. Lefebvre had changed his seat for one at the lady's side, that the sleepers might not be troubled by their voices—his voice, rather, for it was he that talked; she listened, with the lovely smile, the musical word. His arm lay along the back of the seat, his face was bending over hers; her great eyes were cast up at him in the dim light; her lips seemed to tremble. He was noting the gentle rise and fall of her breath, the charm of every outline of the beautiful head resting on that hand with its gleaming sapphire, aware of a strange quick throb with the thought, half a certainty, half a fear, that all this was doubtless his should he choose to take possession—

"Tickets!" said some one at his elbow—the conductor, who had come aboard at the last station, and who mistook them for a portion of the gay party that had been taken on with himself.

It broke the spell for that night. Col. Lefebvre started to find how late it was, and went away to his berth, leaving Mrs. De Berrian, ill-pleased, to order the porter about as he made up her own.

Col. Lefebvre woke very early on the next morning from his fitful slumber, restless with feeling and with heat, and, looking from his window, saw that they were rolling along the green flats of New Jersey. Then he half parted his curtains, and took an observation down the car. Some one was up before him—some young girl; he could not see plainly, with all the obstruction of drapery. There was a familiar fling of a scarf. Good gracious! was that his cousin Laura? The sight of her made him fall back on his pillow and begin to recall the events of the evening before. It was just then that some one came rustling by his closed curtains—a lady who wished to make her toilette before the rest of the car was astir. The sound stopped short; the person did not go on. Instinctively Col. Lefebvre glanced through the crack of his curtains. A netting of the lady's fringe had caught on the hook of some projecting valise—the porter was disengaging it—an oldish, frowzy sort of woman. One uplifted hand grasped the curtain for support; upon it shone a gleaming sapphire. The drops started out on his forehead. Was it—impossible! He sat up and glared at her. She held a toilet case in her other hand. She was making for the little dressing-room. There was the same bronze green luster of silk, the same black lace about the throat, the lapel of the same rosy scarf of woolen gauze had been that instant thrown up from her face. But that face! No; it was an absurdity. And yet— It had been a horridly hot night; the best of paint would run; the best of powder would cake and roll off; the penciling of brows would rub all about; the pigment that so darkened and increased the eye would smear here and there raggedly. What has happened to that mouth? Or was there no mouth there? There were no teeth there; they were in her hand. The dimples—they were two long furrows; the scarlet of the mouth had somehow streaked them. And as for the dropping curls—they were dropping off. The beautiful Adelaide De Berrian had gone out like the blown flame of a candle, and left only the ashes—had left only a worn and withered woman with white lips, and a wrinkled pallor that was blotched and bleared, whose face had been a mask, "whose mother was her painting."

"'False from the crown of her head to the sole of her foot,'" he repeated, in Helen's words, and shut his eyes; and there sat Laura, brown-eyed and fair, with her smooth hair, a little Madonna of a face, as he opened them again. An hour afterward, the other women of the car having clamored in vain the last third of that time for admittance, an elegant lady issued from the dressing-room, crimped and curled and powdered, a blooming, smiling picture, seated herself in her rearranged section, and awaited her cavalier. She waited a long while. While she was in the dressing-room, that cavalier had stepped off the train at Elizabeth.

As Col. Lefebvre sat in his aunt's room in the Brevoort that night, he replied to her query concerning his gloom, "Let it be. I have a right to be a little disturbed. I have lost a friend. I have escaped a terrible danger. I have found an invaluable possession that I had mislaid. What did you bring Laura here for? Her summer finery? I am going to take her a long drive in the Park to-morrow morning. Say, Aunt Maria, don't you make any purchases till we come back. And, Aunt Maria, don't you think it would be stealing a fine march on them all at home if Laura and I went back on one ticket—"

"One ticket?"

"Well, no, not exactly. Husbands and wives are not one financially, are they? Railways haven't any sentiment."—Harper's Bazar.

A CORRESPONDENT from the seat of war, on the Russian side, writes to a London paper: "Put a Turk in a ditch, give him a gun, a sackful of cartridges, a loaf of bread, and a jug of water, and he will remain there for a week or a month under the most dreadful artillery fire that can be directed against him, without flinching."

FASHION NOTES.

BOX-PLAITED corsages are coming in vogue.

PUTTY color is the newest shade for kid gloves.

MOONLIGHT beads is another name for clair de la lune jet.

THE necks of all new dresses open en chale or Pompadour.

JEWELS take the place of spangles in the costly imported fans.

THE new bonnets have coronet brims and elaborate puffed cap crowns.

TURKISH blue, a mixture of purple and red, is the popular shade for ladies' umbrellas.

NO SASH for morning toilets is the rule, which New York is borrowing from Paris just now.

[illegible], including four shades, and greens of every possible tint, are the popular colors.

THE combination of black silk and velvet will be popular. Figured and embossed velvet will be used; the plain is not so stylish.

PURE white linen collars and cuffs will be worn in street and house costumes; the cuffs under, and, in some instances, turned back all around.

CASHMERE will be united with silk or velvet this season, and will be made up in handsome styles. The material promises to be very popular as heretofore.

SACQUES are becoming longer, and basques also, originally designed for elderly ladies, are worn by young matrons over trimmed skirts, thus omitting the overskirt.

MORNING caps are quite a necessity of fashion at present, and almost every lady is wearing them. In spite of their popularity, they do not add to the youthfulness of a face.

THE habit basque and plain overskirt, with what are called envelope pockets, oblong shapes, with a folded over-lap buttoning down, are leading modes for traveling dresses.

ALTHOUGH rather early to touch upon the subject of furs, some sample articles having been prepared for exportation, show that linings and capes will be made of the handsomest and most expensive furs, and that borderings will be narrow.

SILK, ribbon and velvet are all recommended for combinations with straw this autumn, and all odd shapes, which are variations upon standard styles, will be favorite models. Very much crown trimming will be worn upon hats of suitable shape.

VESTS and jackets are again to be reinstated. The new dark, as well as black materials are much to be desired, when made into an open jacket upon a fancy-colored vest. White and blue flannel vests will be very stylish with next winter suits.

RAZIMIR silk is something new in mourning dress materials; one side has a soft, cashmere finish; the other has a beautiful gros-grain effect; the former is the side intended for mourning. The quality is beautiful and serviceable, and it costs $3.50 a yard.

POLONAISES of heavy fabrics, absolutely without drapery, will be worn this fall. Some of the designs exhibit a combination basque or extra upper portion. All polonaises are as long as possible, and draped across the front, according to the requirements of the figure.

HAMBURG edgings are now cut out by machinery, with such accuracy as to have a perfect edge, and sold for the same price as uncut edgings. The cut-out edgings are not of the regulation four and a half yards, but are neatly sewed together, and sold in all lengths.

Debts of the States.

The Bureau of Statistics at Washington has just compiled, from official documents, an approximate statement of the debts of the several States, with the following results, the computation being made to the close of 1876, except where otherwise stated in parentheses:

Maine	$ 5,129,107
New Hampshire	3,629,586
Massachusetts	33,550,464
Rhode Island	2,182,754
Connecticut	5,014,500
New York	24,215,898
New Jersey	2,996,300
Pennsylvania	22,978,951
Delaware	1,201,000
Maryland	6,276,155
Ohio	6,484,505
Indiana	1,097,735
Illinois	1,480,600
Michigan	1,322,140
Wisconsin	2,252,057
Minnesota	500,000
Iowa (1876)	548,024
Kansas	1,235,975
Nebraska	1,063,058
Virginia (1875)	27,514,426
North Carolina	28,747,946
South Carolina (1875)	7,674,775
Georgia (1875)	22,345,605
Alabama	12,574,379
Mississippi	743,094
Louisiana (1875)	21,568,432
Texas (Feb. 1, 1876)	4,792,893
Arkansas	17,620,362
Kentucky (1875)	1,823,660
Tennessee	25,206,400
California (1875)	5,654,500
Oregon (1874)	200,477
Nevada	108,429

Colorado is reported without debt, and from West Virginia, Missouri and Florida no recent reports have been received. The debt of Georgia, after deducting the amount recently repudiated, is placed at $8,005,500.

In proportion to population, Illinois is in a better condition financially than any other State in the Union, except Iowa.

The Risks of Depositing in Small Savings Banks.

An accountant who has done the figuring for a number of the receivers of broken savings banks in New York writes to the Sun that no savings bank can possibly exist which has deposits less than $1,000,000. On any smaller sum the margin between the rate of interest paid and that received is too small to pay running expenses. If 6 per cent. is paid depositors and 7 per cent received from the investments of depositors' money, the margin available, when the deposits are $1,000,000, for expenses is only $10,000. But, "if the deposits," explains the accountant, "are, say $100,000, the income of 1 per cent. net—$1,000—will not pay a clerk, night watchman, scrub woman and small boy, to say nothing of rent, stationery and sundries. If, by the robbery of Peter's deposit of yesterday to pay Paul's draft of to-day, the bank kites through an existence of a few years, multiply the excess of the expenditures over its $1,000 income by the number of years of its existence, and it will need no bank examiner to determine what its deficiency is, and the consequent loss to poor people of the locality where the misnamed savings bank existed. To this legitimate loss may possibly be added 'cash items' and other waste paper, which, in the reports to the bank department, have been described 'other stocks and bonds.'"

THE ELECTORAL COMMISSION.

Congressman Payne, of Ohio, on the Inner History of the Tribunal—Democratic Hopes and Disappointments—Why Did Judge Davis Decline to Serve?

[Extract from a speech by Henry B. Payne, of Cleveland.]

* * * The proposition to raise a committee of conference originated not in the Senate, but in the House, and with a Republican member. Each committee matured its plan and then submitted it to a joint meeting. That of the House committee, drafted by Mr. McCrary, the present Secretary of War, and unanimously approved, proposed a tribunal to consist of the five senior Associate Justices of the Supreme Court, and to submit to it without reserve all the certificates, objections and all the papers and evidence in the possession of the President of the Senate or either of the two houses of Congress, with power to take such additional testimony as they should deem necessary. The plan of the Senate committee was a tribunal to consist of four Justices and nine members of Congress, five to be chosen by each house, and one of them to be cast out by lot, and the submission of the papers and testimony, under severe restrictions.

I need not detail the long struggle between the committees, the agreement to the ten members of Congress equally divided between the houses and the two parties, their inability to agree upon the fifth Justice, we offering to accept Mr. Davis, and their offering to take Swayne and Miller and give us Clifford and Davis; our insisting upon Clifford and Field, and their finally assenting to that, but on condition that they might drop Swayne and take Miller and Strong; the completion of the bill; its report to and adoption by both houses, and the organization of the commission.

The Democratic members of the committees assented to this measure with the full belief and expectation that Judge Davis would be appointed the fifteenth member as umpire. He was the senior of the remaining associates, was the only one qualified by freedom from partisan bias, which, together with his learning and unsullied integrity, finely fitted him for the place, and when, in addition to all this, two of the four associates were Democrats, it was not strange that we were confident that no one else than Judge Davis could, in any event, be placed on the commission, and I feel warranted in affirming that had it been probable that Judge Bradley, or either of the other Judges, would have been appointed to a seat on that tribunal, that Electoral bill would never have been reported to the House or enacted into a law.

The selection of Judge Davis was anticipated and expected by both parties in Congress and by the country at large.

It is but justice to Messrs. Clifford and Field to make public the fact that at the first meeting of the four Justices they voted for Judge Davis and persisted in so doing, though Judge Strong assured them that Davis would not accept, and it was only at the meeting on the following day, when Mr. Strong presented a written communication from Davis, peremptorily declining the position, they reluctantly voted for Judge Bradley.

Various reasons have been assigned for Judge Davis' declination of this great public duty. Senator Matthews attributes it to the influence of Providence in causing him in the meantime to be elected to the United States Senate. It is difficult to perceive how an election to an office the term of which would not commence until the labors of the commission were closed could possibly conflict with his discharging his duties as Commissioner. Possibly the persistent opposition of the Senate, implying distrust or fear of his impartiality, may have influenced his decision. However that may be, his refusal to serve was the occasion of profound disappointment and deep and bitter regret. While no man, so far as I know, is authorized to say what his final opinion would have been after hearing the cause, yet the Democratic party and the whole country would have accepted his decision as that of an upright, learned and fearless Judge, and would have respected it accordingly.

Sand Showers.

The singular phenomena of sand showers occurs every year in China. During the showers there is neither cloud nor fog in the sky, but the sun is scarcely visible, looking very much as when seen through smoked glass. The air is filled with a fine dust, entering eyes, nostrils and mouth, and often causing serious diseases of the eye. This dust, or sand, as the people call it, penetrates houses, reaching apartments which seem securely closed. It is supposed to come from the great desert of Gobi, as the sand of Sahara is taken up by whirlwinds and carried hundreds of miles away.

The Chinese, while sensitive to the personal discomfort arising from these showers, are resigned to them from a conviction that they are a great help to agriculture. They say that a year of numerous sand showers is always a year of large fertility. The sand probably imparts some enriching elements to the soil, and it also tends to loosen the compact alluvial matter of the Chinese valleys.

A Bovine Wonder.

Mr. C. S. Foster has the most precocious calf on record. But fifteen brief months have tumbled into eternity since its advent upon this mundane sphere; and yet that calf knows a great deal more about some things than the average human adult. It answers to its name and knows its owner's dog and children across a ten-acre patch. The calf, from its birth until yesterday, had browsed at large some three miles from town, and had never mingled in the bustle and stir of city life. But, lo and behold! early yesterday morning that calf stood at the gate of Mr. Foster's residence in the city, peering wistfully through the pickets. Nobody had told it the number of the dwelling, and nobody was aware of having guided it there. Its native genius seems to have been its only pilot.—Muscatine (Iowa) Journal.

A VINTAGE SONG.

BY E. D. R. BIANCIARDI.

Once more the year its fullness pours
  To cheer the heart of toil;
Once more we take with gratitude
  The blessing of the soil.
I hear the children laugh and sing—
  They pull the grapes together;
And gladness breathes from everything
  In this October weather.

The winter days were long and dark,
  The spring was slow to come;
And summer storms brought fear and doubt
  To many a humble home.
But rain and sunshine had their will
  And wrought their work together,
And see! we heap our baskets still,
  In this October weather.

My heart has had its winter, too,
  And lain full bare and gray;
I did not think a spring would come,
  Much less a summer day.
[illegible]
  Would bring us two together,
And I should be a happy wife
  In this October weather!

Doubtless the sorrows will come again,
  And some sweet hopes must die;
But we shall bear the passing pain,
  And smile as well as sigh—
Nor let us cloud with fears of ill
  This golden hour together;
For God is in His garden still
  In this October weather.

—Scribner for October.

PITH AND POINT.

Dog days are almost over, but cat nights last all the year round.

A BUSINESS that couldn't succeed without strikers—The match trade.

THAT awful lad again: "Ma, pa has the best of you; you can't strike matches on your trousers like he can."

There was an old Turk in "Bulgary"
Who said, "It is time to be wary."
  Said a Cossack, "I know it;"
  And he cut off the throat
Of this cautious old Turk of Bulgary.

—Hawk-Eye.

EVERY man likes to hit the nail upon the head. But let a man hit the nail upon the toe—his big toe, particularly—against a huge rock, and it is a different matter entirely.

"You are pretty as a picture," he muttered, gazing into her upturned face, "and it would have been a great deal cheaper for me if I had taken your picture instead of yourself."

MARK TWAIN thinks nothing seems to please a fly so much as to be mistaken for a huckleberry. If it can be baked in a cake and palmed off on the unwary as a currant, it invariably dies happy.

"DO THESE bells sound an alarm of fire?" said a stranger the other Sunday, as the church bells were calling together the worshipers. "Yes," was the reply, "but the fire is in the next world."

Says Thomas, "Harry, can you tell
How lawyers do, to dress so well?"
Says Harry, "You may rely on't,
To get a suit, they'll strip a client."
Says Edward, "No; they closer nip him—
They first obtain the suit—then strip him."

—Hartford Times.

HOW MANY members of the American Scientific Society can tell how many spokes there are in a buggy wheel, or the best time to clean cellars, or can plug a leaking water pipe, or fix smoking chimneys?—Detroit Free Press.

NATURE doesn't know much. If she had made a man's head out of cork, see how nicely he could have floated about in water and kept himself from drowning in case of shipwreck.—Chicago Journal.

"WHAT'S the use of all this sacrifice of human life, this bloody butchery of Turks and Russians?" said a Philadelphia Quaker to a Cincinnati hog merchant. "I don't know," replied the latter mournfully; "pork isn't riz any that I can see."

AN Iowa Justice refused to fine a man charged with the offense of kissing a pretty girl without her consent. "Nothing," he said, "but the dignity of its office prevents the court from committing the same offense. The temptation to an ordinary person would be irresistible."

AN agricultural correspondent writes to correct what he thought to be an erroneous statement that recently appeared in this column relative to cows giving buttermilk. We adhere to our original statement. We never saw a cow give anything else but her milk.—Exchange.

SHE was a very modest girl, and when the observatory man said, "Take a glance through the telescope, miss, and you can see Venus in all her glory," she frigidly drew back, and replied, "No, thank you, sir; I have no desire to look at any member of my sex who dresses as she is represented to."

A PARTY were enjoying the evening breeze on board a yacht. "The wind has made my mustache taste quite salt," remarked a young man who had been for some time occupied in biting the hair that fell over his upper lip. "I know it!" innocently said a pretty girl. And she wondered why all her friends laughed. "People are so childish," she remarked.

THERE had been a heavy thunder-storm, and the parched earth and wilted vegetation drank in the refreshing showers. "I should think the plants would whisper to each other how delicious it was," he exclaimed, enthusiastically. "Yes," she said, "all but the onions; they wouldn't be likely to whisper with such a breath."

"ISH der brisoner guilty or not guilty?" asked a beaming Teutonic Justice the other day. "Not guilty, your Honor promptly responded the person a dressed. "Den you youst get ouet a go apout your peesiness, my vrend, a stop your fooling round here mit your blaying off," indignantly ordered the outraged arm of the law.

"ONE extreme leads to another." That is the reason a young man who begins by treading on a young lady's foot often ends by kissing her lips. And, we may add, the same rule applies on the other side, when a girl, who has wasted hours of time and skeins of chenille embroidering on a pair of slippers for Henry's exquisite feet, soon begins to claw the capillary vegetation out of the top of his head for coming home at 2 a. m. and trying to go to sleep in the coal-scuttle.—Hawk-Eye.

AT 1 o'clock yesterday afternoon a stranger made a purchase at a Woodward avenue drug store, and as soon as he could pocket his change he rushed out of doors, as if in a great hurry. Ten minutes later a man who knew him met him at the City Hall with a face so long that he inquired; "Why, what has happened now?" "Bought a cake of soap up here a ways—threw down 5 dollars—thought the druggist gave me back seven—hurried out fast as I could—counted it over once more, and found it was 50 cents short of my right change! Would you go back and tell him.—Free Press.

THE PATENT OFFICE FIRE.

Extent of the Damage to the Vast Structure—The Destruction of Models, and the Consequences Likely to Ensue.

[Washington Cor. Chicago Tribune.]

The Interior Department building was commenced about 1839. The first appropriation for it was made July 4, 1836. The act of that year appropriated $108,000 to begin the building, which, in the language of the act, was to be fire-proof with suitable accommodation for the Patent Office. The total appropriation for the Patent Office building amounts to $2,645,800. This vast structure, so nearly ruined, known as the Patent Office, is only a single bureau in the Interior Department. The structure receives its designation of Patent Office as the building around which the Interior Department centers was originally constructed for the Patent Office ten years before. The Interior Department, which occupies the building, includes the Indian Bureau, Bureau of Education, Patent Office, a portion of the Pension Office, Land Office, Bureau of Surveys of the Territories, and various mine bureaus under the charge of the Interior Department. The records of everything relative to patents, pensions, public lands, Indians, census, education, benevolent societies of the District of Columbia, railroad land-grants, are nearly all located in the building.

The main portion of the structure is of Virginia freestone. It was completed in 1864, under the charge of Edward Clark, the present architect of the Capitol. The building was in the form of a quadrangle, including a large square. The new portions of the building were faced on the outside with Maryland marble, and on the inside facing the court with New England granite. The structure was modeled after the Parthenon or Temple of Minerva. Art critics have described the Interior Department as one of the most majestic structures in Washington. The southern front of the Treasury Department has more architectural grace, but the advantage of the Patent Office was that from any point it impressed one with its grandeur.

In outward appearance the fire has left slight trace, as the exterior walls do not appear to be seriously injured. The entire building is of pure Doric architecture, strong, simple, majestic. The southern front is a perfect copy of the Pantheon at Rome, and the eastern portion is modeled after that of the Parthenon at Athens. The most damage was done in the Patent Office, especially in the museum of models. There was something like 200,000 models classified in subdivisions, and comprising everything that had been collected since the destruction of the old Patent Office in 1836. The upper rooms, near the spo where the fire was first discovered, were filled with models that had been drying for a quarter of a century. It is difficult to tell what has been lost, but it is positive some of the most notable historical relics detained in the building have been saved. Among these relics was the coat worn by Jackson at New Orleans, DeKalb's war saddle, and most of the curious articles which had been presented to the Government by different countries, and from time to time stored in the Patent Office. The room where these models were stored was originally intended as an exhibition of articles of home manufacture, but in the progress of time became devoted to the Patent Office museum. It was without an equal in the world, and was always referred to by strangers as illustrating the growth of American industries.

It was possible in this room to trace the progress of mechanical arts in this country since the foundation of the museum in 1836.

All the models in fine arts, toys, fire-arms, stoves, lamps, gas-fittings, leather working, printing, furniture, philosophical instruments, and builders' hardware are safe and complete. The 20,000 rejected models are entirely destroyed. These were merely valuable as curiosities. Of the 80,000 models of patented inventions destroyed at least 10 per cent. were valuable, not especially as creating any doubt as to the value of the invention, but as evidence in contested cases. Their intrinsic value for this service would range from $20 to $1,000, according to the importance of the case in which they might be used as an important element of testimony.

It will be seen that the class of models destroyed comprises all harvesters and agricultural implements, railroad patents, and some of the most important inventions of the age. In a large number of instances the drawings are not sufficiently complete to fully explain the inventions, especially in cases of asserted improvements, which often affect the usefulness of the invention. There will be endless litigation ensuing from their destruction.

Patent attorneys and interested corporations will seize upon every plausible pretext to declare improvement upon every class of inventions where there is the slightest obscurity in the drawings or specifications, which of course can be purchased at the Patent Office, all of them having been reproduced by the system of photo-lithography. There is one benefit likely to result, however, namely: that it will be likely to inaugurate an elaborate system of drawings by which inventions may be fully illustrated without reference to the destructible model. In addition to the increased security that would be created by having the drawings elaborate and complete, there would be economy in room and the security against fire.

Taking the cost of the models destroyed and the damage to the building and furniture, the loss is estimated at $1,500,000. Every original drawing and all original records of the office are complete.

Attacked by Bees.

Yesterday, Mrs. Henry Smith, living eight miles northwest from this city, went into the yard, accompanied by her little daughter, a child 7 years of age, to get some honey. The box containing the hive is an ordinary patent arrangement, with drawers. In slipping one of them out Mrs. Smith was stung by a bee. The shock and pain caused her to jerk her hand back quickly, and her elbow, striking another box, knocked it over, causing it to fall to the ground and burst open. In an instant she and the child were literally covered with a swarm of insects, which stung them on the face, neck and arms, and, indeed, nearly all over the body. Frightened and crazed with pain, they started to run, but they were blinded by the bees, and it was ten minutes before they succeeded in getting into the house and free from the swarm. It was then discovered that they were stung almost to death. In less than an hour their faces were swollen out of all recognition, and Mrs. Smith had become insensible from her injuries. A doctor was sent for and every possible remedy applied; but this morning both mother and child were in a very precarious condition, and serious fears were entertained that their injuries would prove fatal.—Sedalia (Mo.) Democrat.

Frightful Death of a Young Lady.

Miss Carrie A. Rice, daughter of Philo W. Rice, of Glenbrook, Lake Tahoe, was precipitated over Shakspeare rock, last Sunday, and so badly injured that she died in about half an hour. She left her home at Glenbrook in company with two other young ladies and three gentlemen, and the party rambled to and ascended the high, rocky point of land running out into the lake, on which is situated what is known as Shakspeare rock, there being traceable on its face lines that bear considerable resemblance to the portraits of the great poet. The party made the ascent by the usual trail, and for a time remained on the summit of the rock, gazing upon the beautiful scenery spread out in all directions. Finally Miss Rice proposed to her escort, Wm. Cranmer, a young man, who is engineer at one of the mills on the lake, that they make the descent by a steep gorge leading down the face of the rock. All the other members of the party tried, but in vain, to dissuade the young couple from attempting the descent. They took their way down the steep rock and presently reached a cave. Starting from the cave they began slipping and slid down about fifteen feet to the edge of a precipitous part of the rock. The young man caught hold of a jutting point of the ledge, where he held fast, but was unable to retain his grasp on the young lady, suspended below him. Just before falling she said: "We must go, Will; there is no hope for us!" She fell a distance of about eighty feet. Young Cranmer managed to climb back to the trail, when he ran to the residence of the young lady's father, where he fell fainting at the door. The people of Glenbrook hastened to the fatal rock—which is distant about a mile in a southwest direction—taking with them such restoratives as were at hand, but having hardly a hope of finding the unfortunate girl alive. On reaching the foot of the rock, she was found still alive, but unconscious and dying. She lay with her head between two sharp fragments of rock, blood oozing from her nose and mouth, her limbs broken, and her body terribly bruised. Miss Rice was not yet 18 years of age, and was a very beautiful, bright and sprightly girl. The news of her terrible death was received in Carson City with a feeling of sadness that was universal, as she was well known to, and highly esteemed by almost all the people of that town. The remains of the unfortunate young lady were brought to Carson.—Virginia (Nev.) Enterprise.

Killing of Two of the Union Pacific Bandits.

A correspondent of the Kansas City Times at Buffalo Station, Kan., gives the following particulars of the capture and killing of two of the Union Pacific express robbers, and the recovery of $20,000 in gold:

"Two men riding jaded horses, and leading a heavily-loaded pony, came into the station and stopped for refreshments. The station agent's suspicion was aroused by noticing the name of Joel Collins on an envelope in the pocket of one of the men, which was exposed in drawing his handkerchief. It happened that Sheriff Beardsley, of Ellis county, and a squad of soldiers on watch for the robbers were encamped in a ravine near by, and, as soon as the men left, the agent notified the Sheriff, who mounted his men and soon overtook the robbers. They told him he was mistaken in the men; that they were Texas cattle men returning home. The Sheriff asked them to return to the station, which they cheerfully agreed to do. They had gone only a short distance when Collins suddenly turned and said to his companion, "If we have to die let us do it gamely." Both attempted to draw their revolvers. The Sheriff's posse was too quick for them, and fired, killing both men instantly. The gold was sewed up in the legs of a pair of pantaloons, and consists of $20 pieces of the mintage of 1877.

"The bodies were taken to Ellis, where an inquest was held. There were no papers on their bodies except a roll of poetry dedicated to Collins by a young lady, and which he seemed to prize highly. The name of the other man is not given. Collins is said to be from Dallas, Texas, and to be of a highly respectable family. Sheriff Beardsley and citizens are in hot pursuit of the balance of the gang."

To Cure Dyspepsia or Nervous Debility.

Change your diet and manner of living; drink neither tea nor coffee; never drink at meal-times; after every meal, or during the meal, dissolve half a teaspoonful or more of cayenne pepper in half a glassful of milk and drink it; eat plain food; never taste pastry of any kind. If you are troubled with sleepless nights, do not try to promote sleep by taking stimulants or opiates; they do more harm than good; take a sponge bath just before retiring, and, if you are unable to do it yourself, get some one to rub you well with a coarse towel; if you wake in the night and cannot get to sleep again, get up at once, not lie until you "get nervous thinking about it;" take a foot bath; rub your limbs well, to get up a circulation; drink a glass of cold water. Do not expect to cure yourself in one week's time; have patience, and try one month. In bathing, use your hands to apply the water, it is much better than a sponge; soften the water with borax, it is more invigorating than salt water.—Cor. New York Times.

A YOUNG man whom Prof. King had invited to accompany him on a balloon ascension at the fair in Rutland, Vt., went to the grounds laden with a big basket of lunch, an ulster overcoat, a fur cap, a pair of arctic overshoes, a whole change of winter clothing, an electric heater, a canteen, an opera glass and a life preserver.

THE Burlington (Vt.) Free Press says: "On the top of Prospect mountain, near Addison, is a remarkable pond about three-quarters of an acre in extent. Except a small space in the center it is covered with a thick moss, strong enough for people to walk upon. Poles are pushed through this moss at any point, but none have ever touched bottom, yet there are large trees growing and people walk in safety. The moss forms a thick mat or carpet, and is described as being exquisitely beautiful."

A Grand Record.

Nearly thirty years have elapsed since Hostetter's Stomach Bitters was first brought to the notice of the American public. To-day it is the most popular remedy on this continent for dyspepsia, liver complaint, constipation, debility, nervousness, urinary and uterine complaints, gout, rheumatism, intermittent and remittent fevers, and is widely used in South and Central America, Mexico, the West Indies and Australia, as a preventive and remedy for malarious disorders, and for many other maladies to the relief of which it is adapted. The record of its victories is written in the testimonials of thousands whom it has cured, to many of which the widest publicity has been given; it has won the emphatic sanction of leading members of the medical profession, and it has repeatedly been made the subject of encomiums by the home and foreign press. Comment on the above facts is unnecessary. We leave the public to draw its own conclusions.

"The Trials of a Housekeeper"

Are never experienced by those who use DOOLEY'S YEAST POWDER. Elegant, light, wholesome biscuit, bread, rolls and muffins, every time. Try it and be convinced.

The Latest Fashion for Ladies.

Our attention has recently been called to the Raritan Matelasse Cloakings, something entirely new in the way of heavy, thick, warm, woolen goods, specially adapted for ladies' wear during the cold weather now approaching. These goods are the handsomest and most stylish ever seen, and, so far as price is concerned, are a miracle of cheapness. They are intended for cloaks, sacques, dolmans, circulars and jackets, for both ladies and children, and are to be found at all the leading dry-goods stores in the country. Be particular to ask for the Raritan Cloakings, and take no others.

WILHOFT'S FEVER AND AGUE TONIC.—This medicine is used by construction companies for the benefit of their employes, when engaged in malarial districts. The highest testimonials have been given by contractors and by the Presidents of some of the leading railroads in the South and West. When men are congregated in large numbers in the neighborhood of swamps and rivers, Wilhoft's Tonic will prove a valuable addition to the stock of medicines, and will amply reward the company in the saving of time, labor and money. We recommend it to all. G. R. FINLAY & Co., Proprietors, New Orleans.

FOR SALE BY ALL DRUGGISTS.

HATCH'S Universal Cough Syrup has become one of the leading cough remedies in our trade. We have known cases where it has given relief, where our best medicines have failed. We warrant it in every case, and are satisfied that it is one of the best medicines of its kind. SHARON, SWIFT & Co., Sterlingville, N. Y.

Sold by Van Schaack, Stevenson & Reid, Chicago, Ill.

COLGATE & Co.'s Cashmere Bouquet Soap has acquired a popularity hitherto unequaled by any Toilet Soap of home or foreign manufacture. A reputation begun early in the century made it easy for this house to impress the public. The peculiar fascinations of this luxurious article are the novelty and exceptional strength of its perfume.

CHEW
The Celebrated
"MATCHLESS"
Wood Tag Plug
TOBACCO.
THE PIONEER TOBACCO COMPANY,
New York, Boston and Chicago.

PREJUDICE is an extravagance illy afforded in these times. Let not your prejudice lead you to buy till you have sent for free price list of Jones, of Binghamton, Binghamton, N. Y., who offers to sell, on trial, Five-Ton Wagon Scales at $50; freight prepaid.

STUTTERING.—This singular affliction is treated by an ingenious invention called Bates' Patent Appliances. Simpson & Co., Box 5076, New York, send description of same to all inquirers.

PATENTEES and inventors should read advertisement of Edson Bros. in another column.

Hofmann's Hop Pills cure the Ague at once.

Two Chromos Free.—A pair of beautiful 6x8 Chromos, worthy to adorn any home, and a Three Months' subscription to LEISURE HOURS, a handsome 16-page literary paper, filled with the Choicest Stories, Sketches, Poetry, etc., sent free to all sending 15 cents (stamps taken) to pay postage. The publishers, J. L. PATTEN & CO., 162 William St., New York, guarantee every one double value of money sent. Newsdealers sell LEISURE HOURS; price, 7 cents.

THE RAILWAY AGE—Leading, largest and best journal of transportation published. Weekly, 28 pages. Departments for every class of railway men, president to station agent. $4 per year; $1 for 3 mos. Specimens free. Ad's RAILWAY AGE PUB. CO., Chicago.

ASK YOUR
POSTMASTER OR NEWSDEALER
To show you a copy and give you the price of the
CHICAGO LEDGER
If he has not got it, send and get a copy. Address
THE LEDGER CO., Chicago, Ill.

DO NOT FAIL to send for our New Catalogue. It contains valuable information for every person contemplating the purchase of any article for personal, family or agricultural use. Free to any Address.
MONTGOMERY WARD & CO.,
Original Grange Supply House,
227 & 229 Wabash Ave., CHICAGO, ILL.

HUNT'S REMEDY THE GREAT KIDNEY MEDICINE
A positive remedy for Dropsy and all diseases of the Kidneys, Bladder and Urinary Organs. Hunt's Remedy is purely vegetable and prepared expressly for the above diseases. It has cured thousands. Every bottle warranted. Send to W. E. Clarke, Providence, R.I., for illustrated pamphlet. If your druggist don't have it, he will order it for you.

1/3 OF LIFE IN BED
YOU CAN SLEEP on the best Bed for less money than on a poor one. I will send by Express, C.O.D. charges paid, my NONPAREIL BED-SPRING, and allow one day's trial before payment. It will save more than its cost in the less quantity of hair needed in mattress. It is the most durable, portable, cleanly and best Bed made.
For Circulars and Price-List, address,
T. L. SNYDER, Jersey City, N. J.

DAVIS'
PAIN-KILLER!
The Great Family Medicine of the Age. 1840 to 1877. For Thirty-seven Years. Has been tested in every variety of climate, and by almost every nation known to Americans. It is the almost constant companion and inestimable friend of the missionary and the traveler, on sea and land, and no one should travel on our lakes and rivers without it. Sold by all medicine dealers.

AWNINGS, TENTS,
Waterproof Covers, Stack Covers, Signs, Window Shades, &c., &c. MURRAY & BAKER, 100 South Desplaines st., Chicago. Send for Illustrated Price-List.

CLOCKS
E. INGRAHAM & CO.'S are superior in design and not equaled in quality, or as time-keepers. Ask your Jeweler for them. Manufactory—Bristol, Ct.

HELP FOR THE HORSE!

Every man who owns a horse should have a pair of

Furlong's Patent
FOOT COOLERS & EXPANDERS

Which remove all fever from the feet, and keep them in a clean, moist and healthy condition, absolutely preventing corns, contracted feet, quarter-cracks and scratches. The moist sponge is held securely on the bottom of the foot, keeping the frog in a healthy, natural condition. They can be used for a Stuffing-Boot, and do not cost one-fourth as much as the old leather one. The cut represents the Holder and Sponge on the foot. The best horsemen of the country heartily indorse it as one of the most humane and valuable inventions of the day. Horses' feet have been restored from an unsound condition to a healthy one in three weeks' time. Its result surprises every one. For sale by Harness-Makers and dealers in Turf goods. Single pairs sent to any address upon receipt of price, $1.50 per pair. In ordering, send diameter of hoof measured across the bottom of the foot. Send for descriptive circular, with list of testimonials from the leading horsemen and veterinary surgeons of the country. I have also a valuable Sponge Liniment for bad feet, which I will forward with Cooler at $1.00 per quart bottle. Liberal terms and exclusive territory given to Agents. Address E. H. DRAPER, 193 Washington St., Chicago.

LANDRETHS'
SEED WAREHOUSE,
PHILADELPHIA.

We wish to call attention to our Bloomsdale strains of ONION SEED.

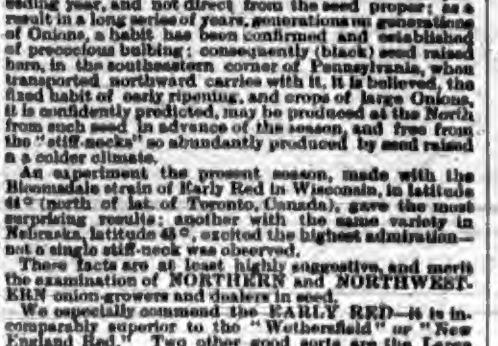
It has ever been our practice, owing to the force of climatic influences, to raise full-sized Onions from sets, seedlings, or buttons, as they are indifferently called, the growth of the preceding year, and not direct from the seed proper; as a result in a long series of years, generations on generations of Onions, a habit has been confirmed and established of precocious bulbing; consequently (black) seed raised here, in the southeastern corner of Pennsylvania, when transported northward carries with it, it is believed, the fixed habit of early ripening, and crops of large Onions, it is confidently predicted, may be produced at the North from such seed in advance of the season, and free from the "stiff-necks" so abundantly produced by seed raised in a colder climate.

An experiment the present season, made with the Bloomsdale strain of Early Red in Wisconsin, in latitude 44° (north of lat. of Toronto, Canada), gave the most surprising results; another with the same variety in Nebraska, latitude 42°, excited the highest admiration—not a single stiff-neck was observed.

These facts are at least highly suggestive, and merit the examination of NORTHERN and NORTHWESTERN onion-growers and dealers in seed.

We especially commend the EARLY RED—it is incomparably superior to the "Wethersfield" or "New England Red." Two other good sorts are the Large Yellow Strasburg or Dutch, and the pure White or Silver Skin. Prices (unprecedentedly low) on application. 1,500 Acres in Seeds. Send for Catalogue.

DAVID LANDRETH & SONS.



BABBITT'S TOILET SOAP.

Unrivalled for the Toilet and the Bath. No artificial and deceptive odors to cover common and deleterious ingredients. After years of scientific experiment the manufacturer of B. T. Babbitt's Best Soap has perfected and now offers to the public The FINEST TOILET SOAP in the World. Only the purest vegetable oils used in its manufacture.

For Use in the Nursery it has No Equal. Worth ten times its cost to every mother and family in Christendom. Sample box, containing 3 cakes of 6 ozs. each, sent free to any address on receipt of 75 cents. Address

B. T. BABBITT, New York City.
For Sale by all Druggists.

GRAFF'S TRADE MARK PATENTED IMPROVED POTASH OR LYE
WILL MAKE NINE POUNDS OF PURE SOAP IN ONLY ONE HOUR
PROF. BEDFORD'S LETTER SHOWING SUPERIORITY OF THIS ARTICLE OVER ALL OTHERS FOR SOAP MAKING SENT FREE BY MAIL ON APPLICATION TO H. M. ANTHONY 104 READE ST. NEW YORK.

TARRANT'S SELTZER APERIENT

I am Only Bilious, says the debilitated victim of sick headache, pain in the right side, constriction of the bowels, and hypochondria. Are these trifles, then? No; unchecked they lead to mental disease. And yet, as surely as dawn dispels the darkness, TARRANT'S EFFERVESCENT SELTZER APERIENT will remove them. Try it.

AGENTS WANTED FOR THE ILLUSTRATED HISTORY
THE GREAT RIOTS

It contains a full account of the reign of terror in Pittsburgh, Baltimore, Chicago and other cities. The conflicts between the troops and the mob. Terrible conflagrations and destruction of property. Thrilling scenes and incidents, etc., etc. Send for a full description of the work and our extra terms to Agents. Address,
NATIONAL PUBLISHING CO., Chicago, Ill.

TO BOOK AGENTS!

We have in press a book—not yet announced—that has been in preparation over three years, costing $20,000.

124 Superb, Full-Page Engravings make it one of the most completely illustrated volumes in the world. It is a magnificent work, and will command the attention and approval of everybody. We will make most liberal arrangements with agents to introduce it, and it is worthy their notice. Advance sheets, with full information, sent on application to AMERICAN PUBLISHING CO., Hartford, Conn., Chicago, Ill., or Cincinnati, Ohio.

86 YARDS of BEAUTIFUL BRAID

Made and sewed on by sewing machine, for six cents, with the Rose Embroidery and Braid-Making Attachment, adapted to all makes of sewing machines. Price, $1.50. No Family, Dressmaker or Seamstress can afford to be without one. Agents and Canvassers make money by selling them. Sample attachment for any sewing machine sent by mail on receipt of $1.00. Inquire of Sewing Machine Agents, or address I. M. ROSE, Patentee, No. 49 Chambers Street, New York.

$1.00 $1.00
Osgood's Heliotype Engravings.
The choicest household ornaments. Price One Dollar each. Send for catalogue.
JAMES R. OSGOOD & CO.
BOSTON, MASS.
$1.00 $1.00

LADIES!
BEWARE of Imitations.

JACKSON'S BEST
SWEET NAVY CHEWING TOBACCO

was awarded the highest prize at Centennial Exposition for its fine chewing qualities, the excellence and lasting character of its sweetening and flavoring. If you want the best tobacco ever made, ask your grocer for this, and see that each plug bears our blue-strip trade-mark, with words Jackson's Best on it. Sold wholesale by all jobbers. Send for sample to C. A. JACKSON & CO., Manufacturers, Petersburg, Va.

WORK FOR ALL

In their own localities, canvassing for the Fireside Visitor (enlarged) Weekly and Monthly. Largest Paper in the World, with Mammoth Chromos Free. Big Commissions to Agents. Terms and Outfit Free. Address P. O. VICKERY, Augusta, Maine.

BALL PROGRAMMES
—AND—
FANCY VISITING CARDS

Send 50 cents and get a large sample package of all of the Latest Styles of Ball Programmes, Ball Tickets, Fancy Visiting Cards, &c. We have some of the nobbiest designs ever shown. Address
THE NEWSPAPER UNION,
151 Fifth Avenue, Chicago.

THE
UNITED STATES
LIFE
INSURANCE COMPANY,
IN THE CITY OF NEW YORK,
261, 262, 263 Broadway
ORGANIZED 1850
ASSETS, $4,827,176.52
SURPLUS, $820,000
EVERY APPROVED FORM OF POLICY ISSUED ON MOST FAVORABLE TERMS
ALL ENDOWMENT POLICIES
AND
APPROVED CLAIMS
MATURING IN 1877
WILL BE DISCOUNTED AT 7%
ON PRESENTATION.
JAMES BUELL, - - PRESIDENT.

POND'S EXTRACT.
POND'S EXTRACT
The People's Remedy.
The Universal Pain Extractor.
Note: Ask for Pond's Extract.
Take no Other.

"Hear, for I will speak of excellent things."

POND'S EXTRACT—The great Vegetable Pain Destroyer. Has been in use over thirty years, and for cleanliness and prompt curative virtues cannot be excelled.

CHILDREN. No family can afford to be without Pond's Extract. Accidents, Bruises, Contusions, Cuts, Sprains, are relieved almost instantly by external application. Promptly relieves pains of Burns, Scalds, Excoriations, Chafings, Old Sores, Boils, Felons, Corns, etc. Arrests inflammation, reduces swellings, stops bleeding, removes discoloration and heals rapidly.

LADIES find it their best friend. It assuages the pains to which they are peculiarly subject—notably fullness and pressure in the head, nausea, vertigo, etc. It promptly ameliorates and permanently heals all kinds of inflammations and ulcerations.

HEMORRHOIDS or PILES find in this the only immediate relief and ultimate cure. No case, however chronic or obstinate can long resist its regular use.

VARICOSE VEINS. It is the only sure cure.

BLEEDING from any cause. For this it is a specific. It has saved hundreds of lives when all other remedies failed to arrest bleeding from nose, stomach, lungs, and elsewhere.

TOOTHACHE, Earache, Neuralgia and Rheumatism are all alike relieved and often permanently cured.

PHYSICIANS of all schools who are acquainted with Pond's Extract recommend it in their practice. We have letters of commendation from hundreds of Physicians; many of whom order it for use in their own practice. In addition to the foregoing they order its use for Swellings of all kinds, Quinsy, Sore Throat, Inflamed Tonsils, simple and chronic Diarrhœa, Catarrh (for which it is a specific), Chilblains, Frosted Feet, Stings of Insects, Mosquitoes, etc., Chapped Hands, Face, and indeed all manner of skin diseases.

TOILET USE. Removes Soreness, Roughness and Smarting; heals Cuts, Eruptions and Pimples. It revives, invigorates and refreshes, while wonderfully improving the Complexion.

TO FARMERS—Pond's Extract. No Stock Breeder, no Livery Man can afford to be without it. It is used by all the leading Livery Stables, Street Railroads and first Horsemen in New York City. It has no equal for Sprains, Harness or Saddle Chafings, Stiffness, Scratches, Swellings, Cuts, Lacerations, Bleedings, Pneumonia, Colic, Diarrhœa, Chills, Colds, etc. Its range of action is wide, and the relief it affords is so prompt that it is invaluable in every Farm-yard as well as in every Farm-house. Let it be tried once and you will never be without it.

CAUTION! Pond's Extract has been imitated. The genuine article has the words Pond's Extract blown in each bottle. It is prepared by the only persons living who ever knew how to prepare it properly. Refuse all other preparations of Witch Hazel. This is the only article used by Physicians, and in the hospitals of this country and Europe.

HISTORY and Uses of Pond's Extract, in pamphlet form, sent free on application to POND'S EXTRACT COMPANY, 98 Maiden Lane, New York.

$1.25 $1.00 $8.00

Don't You Want a First-Class Independent Southern Newspaper?

Great interest is centering upon political, social and commercial movements in the South. Each intelligent, observant person in the country ought to read the

LOUISVILLE COMMERCIAL

Published at the border metropolis. Of independent Republican views, but tied to the behests of no clique, man or party—a live, newsy, spirited and able journal, and an accepted exponent of the best Southern sentiment.

Cut and pasted eight-page form; opens like a book; compact and convenient; large, clear print.

Daily Commercial, $8 per year; three months, $2.25; one month, only 80 cents. Try it one month.

Weekly Commercial, a splendid family paper, only $1.25 per year; Clubs of ten, $11; Clubs of twenty, $20; Single Copy three months on trial, only 30 cents.

Agents wanted everywhere. Samples free.

Address A. H. SIEGFRIED, Publisher, Louisville, Ky.

STRAUB MILL CO. MILLERS SUPPLIES
GLADIATOR CORN SHELLER & CLEANER
THE BEST
STRAUB MILL CO. CINCINNATI
ESTABLISHED 1844
PORTABLE GRIST MILLS SMUTTERS MILLING MACHINERY &c

A Special Offer
TO THE READERS
OF THIS PAPER.

A Genuine Swiss Magnetic Time-Keeper, a perfect Gem for everybody desiring a reliable Time-Piece, and also a superior Compass, usual watch size, steel works, glass crystal, all in a superb Oroide Hunting-Case, warranted to denote correct time, and keep in order for two years—Perfection guaranteed—will be Given away to every patron of this paper as a Free Gift.

CUT OUT THIS COUPON AND MAIL IT.

COUPON.
On receipt of this Coupon and 30 cents to pay for packing, boxing and mailing charges, we promise to send each patron of this paper a GENUINE SWISS MAGNETIC TIME-KEEPER.
Address, Magnetic Watch Co., ASHLAND, MASS.

This is your ONLY OPPORTUNITY to obtain this beautiful premium, so order AT ONCE. This offer will hold good for 30 days. If currency cannot be sent conveniently, postage stamps will be taken instead.

DR. WARNER'S
HEALTH CORSET
With Skirt Supporter and Self-Adjusting Pads.
Unequaled for Beauty, Style & Comfort.
APPROVED BY ALL PHYSICIANS.
For Sale by Leading Merchants
Samples, any size, by mail. In Satteen, $1.50; Contil, $1.75; Nursing Corset, $2.00; Misses' Corset, $1.00.
AGENTS WANTED
WARNER BROS., 351 Broadway, N. Y.

$12 A DAY at home. Agents wanted. Outfit and terms free. TRUE & CO., Augusta, Maine.

WORTHINGTON BUSINESS COLLEGE, Evanston. Send for circular to Chicago, Ill.

$5 to $20 per day at home. Samples worth $5 free. STINSON & CO., Portland, Maine.

$50 to $150 a week with our popular Books, Bibles, Chromos & Maps. Goodspeed's Pub'g House, Chicago.

$66 a week in your own town. Terms and $5 outfit free. H. HALLETT & CO., Portland, Maine.

AGENTS CAN MAKE $25 PER DAY selling our PATENT BEER FAUCET. Send for Circular. WORSWICK M'F'G CO., Cleveland, Ohio.

$25 PREMIUM WATCH AND CHAIN—a stem-winder. Free with every order. Outfit free. J. B. Gaylord & Co., Chicago, Ill.

$8½ MAGNETIC TIMEPIECE. Metal works. Hunter case. Sample Watch free to Agents. A. COULTER & CO., Chicago, Ill.

$400 A MONTH. AGENTS WANTED. 200 of the latest novelties. Send for Catalog. Van & Co., Chicago.

HOW TO MAKE $20 to $40 per week SELLING TEAS TO FAMILIES. Circulars free. THE CANTON TEA CO., 148 Chambers St., New York.

$350 A MONTH—AGENTS WANTED—36 best selling articles in the world; one sample free. Address JAY BRONSON, Detroit, Mich.

$5937 Made by 17 Agents in Jan. '77 with my 13 new articles. Samples free. Address C. M. Linington, Chicago.

DYSPEPSIA cured without medicine, after seven years' suffering. Remedy in reach of all. Great secret. Receipt sent for $1. Address E. B. MARSH, Franklinsville, Randolph Co., N. C.

PATENTS AND INVENTORS. EDSON BROS. U. S. and Foreign Patent Agents, 711 G St., Washington, D. C. Established in 1865. Fee after allowance. Circ's of instructions, etc., sent free.

SAFETY LAMPS! Agents Wanted everywhere! 17 Styles. Also, Pat. Gasoline Burners. Circular Free. Write at once to Cincinnati Safety Lamp Company, 161, 163, 165 Pearl Street, corner Elm, Cincinnati, Ohio.

YOUNG MEN! Learn Telegraphy here, and earn from $35 to $100 a month. Small salary while learning. Situations furnished. Address R. VALENTINE, Manager, Englewood, Ill.

$100.00 R[illegible] HEAVY BEARD [illegible] by the use of DYKE'S BEARD ELIXIR [illegible]

$10 to $25 A DAY SURE made by Agents selling our Chromos, Crayons, Picture and Chromo Cards. 125 samples, worth $5, sent, postpaid, for 85 Cents. Illustrated Catalogue free. J. H. BUFFORD'S SONS, Boston. [Established 1830.]

KEEP'S SHIRTS—only one quality—The Best. Keep's Patent Partly-Made Dress Shirts Can be finished as easy as hemming a Handkerchief. The very best, six for $7.00. Keep's Custom Shirts—made to measure, The very best, six for $9.00. An elegant set of genuine Gold-Plate Collar and Sleeve Buttons given with each half doz. Keep's Shirts. Keep's Shirts are delivered FREE on receipt of price In any part of the Union—no express charges to pay. Samples, with full directions for self-measurement, Sent Free to any address. No stamp required. Deal directly with the Manufacturer and get Bottom Prices. Keep Manufacturing Co., 165 Mercer St., N.Y.

DUNHAM
PIANOS.
Dunham & Sons, Manufacturers,
Warerooms, 18 East 14th St.,
(Established 1834.) NEW YORK.
[illegible] Terms Easy.

THE GOOD OLD
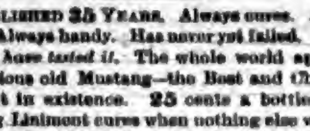
STAND-BY.
MEXICAN MUSTANG LINIMENT.
FOR MAN AND BEAST.

ESTABLISHED 35 YEARS. Always cures. Always ready. Always handy. Has never yet failed. Thirty millions have tested it. The whole world approves the glorious old Mustang—the Best and Cheapest Liniment in existence. 25 cents a bottle. The Mustang Liniment cures when nothing else will.

SOLD BY ALL MEDICINE VENDERS.



NATURE'S REMEDY.
VEGETINE
THE GREAT BLOOD PURIFIER.

Recommend It Heartily.

SOUTH BOSTON.

MR. STEVENS:

Dear Sir—I have taken several bottles of your VEGETINE, and am convinced it is a valuable remedy for Dyspepsia, Kidney Complaint, and general debility of the system.

I can heartily recommend it to all suffering from the above complaints. Yours respectfully,

MRS. MUNROE PARKER.

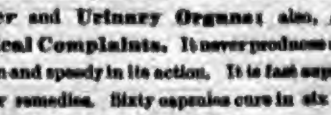
Vegetine is Sold by All Druggists.

Four Months for One Dollar.

The CHICAGO DAILY NEWS, the only ONE-CENT newspaper published in the West, is a twenty-column paper, containing all the news of the day in short, sharp, condensed form, aiming to give ONLY FACTS, and leaving to larger sheets the monopoly of the reporter's gush and the penny-a-liner's wearisome platitudes. It contains PRONOUNCED EDITORIALS upon the living questions of the day, copious TELEGRAPH and CABLE DISPATCHES, RELIABLE MARKET REPORTS, and, in short, a complete record of the news of the day the world over. In addition to being a complete newspaper, every issue contains a COMPLETED STORY, thrilling and romantic, and pointing a wholesome moral. The DAILY NEWS is INDEPENDENT IN POLITICS, espousing the cause of no party, but aiming to present exact and truthful statements of every political event or question, without fear or favor. It is LIVELY, ENTERPRISING, DECENT IN TONE, WIDE-AWAKE and SPICY, treating every subject briefly and pointedly, but in all things avoiding flippancy. It is a DAILY paper at the price of a weekly. It has a larger circulation, as has been proven by published affidavits, than any other daily paper published in Chicago. It has printed and sold over 77,000 copies in a single day. The subscription price is $3.00 a year, $1.00 FOR FOUR MONTHS. No subscription received for less than four months. We offer no Chromos or Patent Lightning Rods as Premiums, but guarantee to give you the worth of your money a hundred fold. Address

CHICAGO DAILY NEWS, Chicago, Ill.

GRACE'S
SALVE



A VEGETABLE PREPARATION,
Invented in the 17th century by Dr. William Grace, Surgeon in King James' army. Through its agency he cured thousands of the most serious sores and wounds that baffled the skill of the most eminent physicians of his day, and was regarded by all who knew him as a public benefactor. 25 cents a box. For Sale by Druggists generally. Sent by mail on receipt of price. Prepared by SETH W. FOWLE & SONS, 86 Harrison Avenue, Boston, Mass.

SANDAL-WOOD.

A positive remedy for all diseases of the Kidneys, Bladder and Urinary Organs; also, good in Dropsical Complaints. It never produces sickness, is certain and speedy in its action. It is fast superseding all other remedies. Sixty capsules cure in six or eight days. No other medicine can do this.

Beware of Imitations, for, owing to its great success, many have been offered; some are most dangerous, causing piles, &c.

DUNDAS DICK & CO.'S Genuine Soft Capsules, containing Oil of Sandal-Wood, sold at all Drug Stores. Ask for circular, or send for one to 35 and 37 Wooster street, New York.

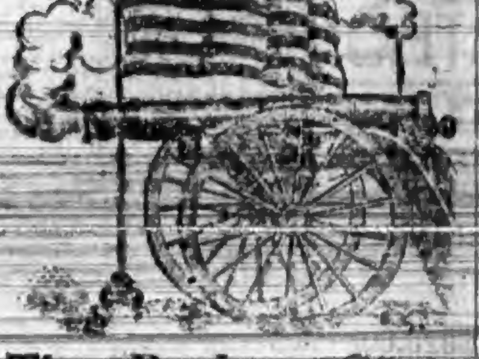
WHEN WRITING TO ADVERTISERS, please say you saw the advertisement in this paper.

Auburn Courier.
AUBURN, INDIANA, OCT. 11, 1877.

NEIGHBOR SHAKE!



The Buckeye State Itself Again!

Democracy Ahead Anywhere from 10,000 to 20,000 Major'y.

The Legislature Reported Democratic.

LET US REJOICE.

Colonel David H. Armstrong, of St. Louis, United States Senator, fills the vacancy caused by the death of Senator Lewis V. Bogy.

Ben Butler has a fool idea about reinstating all the army officers who deserted to aid the rebellion and proposes the increas of the army to give them commands, the army already being overrun with officers. This discounts any radicalism yet, so far as heard from.

Two-thirds of the New York republican state convention voted against a resolution declaring Mr. Hayes' title to the presidency to be as good as that of George Washington. Really, does anybody (except Stoughton) believe that Mr. Hayes is entitled to the office which he holds?

Smalls, the negro Congressman from Beaufot, South Carolina, has been arrested and held to bail for accepting bribes when a member of the South Carolina senate. He labored hard with the Grant administration to have troops sent to his state to keep it in the radical ranks. It now turns out that his labors were not altogether those of love, but rather of fear. He knew that if the democracy carried South Carolina he would stand a good chance to go behind prison bars.

John S. Patterson, a carpet-bag senator from South Carolina, pretends that he is not a citizen of the state. He puts in this plea in order to prevent being taken to South Carolina to be tried for crime. He alleges that he lives in the District of Columbia, "and therefore, can not be said in the terms of the requisition that he is a fugitive from justice." This is the first time in the history of the government that a senator ever publicly denied being a resident of the state he claimed to represent but Patterson is a carpet-bagger and proper allowances must be made for this fact. He prefers staying at Washington to going to Columbia, and likes the senatorial toga better than the striped suit of a penitentiary convict.—Sentinel

As a singular evidence of the power of perseverance the following letter written by the late senator Bogy when a boy has been given to the public:

St. Genevieve, Jan. 16, 1837.—On this day I left home under charge of Mr. William Shannon, an old friend of my father, to go to Kaskaskia to read law in the office of Judge Pope. My education is very limited, but with hard study I may overcome it. I am determined to buy it, and my intention is to return to my native State and practice if I can qualify myself, and while doing so to work to become United States senator for my native state, and to work for this till I am sixty years old. I will pray God to give me the resolution to persevere in this intention. I have communicated this to my mother, and given her this paper to keep. So help me God. LEWIS V. BOGY.

True to his determination at nineteen Mr. Bogy reached a seat in the United States Senate in his sixtieth year, and died last week after a successful life, aged sixty-four.

Medical men often puzzle themselves over the large sale that Dr. Bull's Baby Syrup enjoys. Its great popularity is due only to the excellent qualities possessed by this household medicine. 25 cents. For sale by F. E. Davenport.

Senator McDonald.

The arrangement which Senator McDonald is said to have entered into with Senator Morton to pair off with the latter should he not be able to attend, the coming season, smacks of more show than discretion. Had Senator McDonald been very successful so far as a Senator, he might be better able to afford such generosity, but the Democratic party of the state have something to say in this matter and if he does not desire to represent them more ably than this act would indicate, perhaps he had better resign. When, for a moment, would Morton have sacrificed his party for such cheap notoriety. Mr. McDonald has been receiving a number of compliments from the radical press, and this may have turned his head. We hope the Senator will hew to the Democratic line or abdicate.

The Plymouth Democrat says, "Senator McDonald paid a visit last week to the bed-side of his colleague, Senator Morton, now languishing on a bed of sickness in Richmond, Indiana. The two senators have fought many hard political battles, and been pitted against each other for many years now past and gone. When two great men, senators of the U. S., bitterly opposing each other in politics, can meet together and extend the hand of friendship and wish each other life, health and prosperity, is it not about time the "small fry" politicians were imitating the excellent example set by these distinguished gentlemen? Gen. Mason, chairman of the Democratic State Central Committee, in the goodness of his great big heart, desired Senator McDonald to convey to Senaton Marton his earnest wish for his speedy recovery. And thus two prominent Democratic politicians have shown that political animosities, no matter how bitter they may be, can be laid aside at the bed-side of a fallen foe, and forgotten, at least so far as personal friendships are concerned

"Those who carelessly affirm that there is no material difference between the two polical parties of to-day are invited to the platforms of the two state conventions published in the same news columns of the Interior Ocean of Thursday. One is that of the Republicans of New York assembled at Rochester, the other of the Democrats of Wisconsin at Fon Dulac. The New York republicans solemnly say:

6. Public faith, honest industry, and general prosperity demands a sound currency of coin, and paper convertable into coin, and already the near approach to specie payments enforces the wisdom and duty of faithfully pursuing the necessary steps to full resumption within the time now fixed by law.

This is republican doctrine. Now here is something on the same subject that has the right ring to it:

It demands instead that the property protected by the government pay its just proportion of the expenses of the government; that silver be remonetized and the present resumption act be repealed and resumption be postponed until the financial condition of the country will permit it. It declares its opposition to a longer continuence of the national bank currency, and demands that the government furnish its own notes for the place thereof.

This is democratic doctrine. Gentlemen, "you pays your money and you takes your choice."

The New York Sun is inclined to discredit the "spontaneous combustion" theory in connection with the destructive conflagration in the Interior Department at Washington. It says: "There are men who have occupied high public positions, and borne good repute, who tremble, as they wake up in the morning and lie down at night, at the possibility of the exposure of their jobbery and venality, through proofs accumulated in the old files of the Indian Bureau and Land Offices which were stored near the place where the fire started. They have been hanging on the ragged edge of anxiety and alarm these many years, since the virus of Grantism poisoned public life. They would be free and relieved by the loss of those papers, as would hundreds of others who were inferior accomplices in robbery of the Indians and of settlers' lands. When the Navy Department was fired several times during a few months, and under circumstances not unlike those of the present conflagation, the assigned cause was then, as now, "spontaneous combustion." Fraudulent claims had been passed and fraudulent contracts have been made, which would be traced by the official records. Investigation was impending, and the short way to escape detection was to burn those records. The new House of Representatives will certainly overhaul the Indian Bureau and the Land Office rascalities, which have heretofore only been imperfectly exposed. The parties interested had, therefore, a motive for the recent "spontaneous combustion."

Excursion to the Rocky Mountains.

The Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe Railroad has arranged with the various railroad lines in the country for special round trip rates to the Rocky Mountains, and has secured the following rates to Denver, Colorado Springs, Canon City, Pueblo and return; from Kansas City and Atchison, $45; St. Louis, $50; Chicago, $65; Quincy, $50; Cincinnatti, $65; Buffalo, $70, and correspondingly low rates from all points east, north and south. These tickets are good for 90 days and to stop at all stations west of the Missouri river. Tickets are on sale at all principal stations throughout the country. This is the new route to Denver through the garden of Kansas and Colorado. Send for maps, circulars, time tables, etc., to

T. J. ANDERSON,
Gen. Pass. Agent, Topeka, Kan.

Sheriff's Sale.

BY virtue of a certified copy of a decree to me directed by the Clerk of the DeKalb Circuit Court, in a cause wherein Sumner R. Randall is plaintiff, and Ira A. West and Roseann A. West is defendants, requiring me to make the sum of two hundred and forty one dollars and thirty cents ($241.30) with interest on said decree and costs, I will expose at public sale, to the highest bidder, on

SATURDAY, OCTOBER 13th, 1877.

Between the hours of 10 o'clock a. m. and 4 o'clock p. m. of said day, at the door of the Court House of DeKalb County, Indiana, the rents and profits, for a term not exceeding seven years of the following real estate, to wit:

West half of the northeast quarter and east half of the north-west quarter of section thirty four (34) township thirty-three (33) north of range twelve (12) east.

If such rents and profits will not sell for a sufficient sum to satisfy said decree interest and costs, I will, at the same time and place, expose at public sale the fee simple of said real estate or so much thereof as may be sufficient to discharge said decree, interest and costs.

Said sale will be made without any relief whatever from valuation or appraisement laws.

JOHN C. ST. CLAIR, Sheriff
By Thos. D. Gross, Deputy.
P. A. Randall, Attorney for plaintiff.
Sept. 18th 1877. Pf. $9.00.

Sheriff's Sale.

BY virtue of an execution to me directed from the Clerk of the DeKalb Circuit Court, in a cause wherein G. V. Harner is plaintiff and Robert Shaifer et al. are defendants, requiring me to make the sum of Three Hundred and sixty dollars and Seven cents with interest on said judgment and costs, I will expose at public sale, to the highest bidder, on

SATURDAY, OCTOBER, 27th, 1877.

Between the hours of 10 o'clock A. M. and 4 o'clock P. M. of said day, at the door of the Court House, in DeKalb county, Indiana, the rents and profits for a term not exceeding seven years of the following real estate to-wit:

Part of lot twelve (12) in the old plat of the town of Auburn, DeKalb county and state of Indiana, described as follows, to-wit: Commencing at the south east corner of said lot No. (12) running thence north thirty (30) feet, thence west forty two (42) feet, thence south thirty (30) feet, thence east forty two (42) feet to the place of beginning.

If such rents and profits will not sell for a sufficient sum to satisfy said decree, interests and costs, I will at the same time and place expose to public sale the fee simple of said real estate or so much thereof as may be sufficient to discharge said decree, interest and costs.

Said sale will be made without any relief whatever from valuation or appraisement laws.

J. C. ST. CLAIR, Sheriff
By Thos. D. Gross, Deputy.
Guy Plum Attorney for plaintiff.
Auburn, October 3, A. D. 1877.
Pr. fee. $9 2

Sheriff's Sale.

BY virtue of an execution to me directed from the Clerk of the DeKalb Circuit Court in a cause wherein Herman Froehlich is plaintiff, and William B. Dancer is defendant, requiring me to make the sum of forty-two dollars and forty cents ($42.40), with interest on said judgment and cost, I will expose at public sale to the highest bidder, on

SATURDAY, OCTOBER 20th, 1877.

Between the hours of 10 o'clock A. M. and 4 o'clock P. M. of said day, at the door of the Court House in DeKalb county, Indiana, the rents and profits for a term not exceeding seven years, of the following real estate to wit:

The undivided one-half of the west half of the south-east quarter of section twenty (20) in township thirty-three (33) north of range thirteen (13) east in DeKalb and State of Indiana.

If such rents and profits will not sell for a sufficient sum to satisfy said decree, interest and costs, I will at the same time and place expose to public sale the fee simple of said real estate or so much thereof as may be sufficient to discharge said judgment and costs.

Said sale will be made without any relief whatever from valuation or appraisement laws.

J. C. ST. CLAIR, Sheriff.
By Thos. D. Gross, Deputy.
Rose & Hartman, Attorneys for plaintiff.
Auburn, Indiana, Sept. 18th, 1877. Pr. fee $[illegible]

Sheriff's Sale,

BY virtue of an execution to me directed from the Clerk of the DeKalb Circuit Court in a cause wherein Joseph Bayer et al. are plaintiffs and John Moser and William Moser are defendants requiring me to make the sum of One Hundred and Forty-Nine Dollars and fifty-two cents with interest on said judgment and costs, I will expose at public sale to the highest bidder, on

SATURDAY, OCTOBER 20th, 1877.

Between the hours of 10 o'clock a. m., and 4 o'clock p. m. of said day at the door of the Court House of DeKalb County, Indiana, the rents and profits for a term not exceeding seven years of the following real estate to-wit:

The north-west quarter of the north-west quarter of section twenty-five (25) township thirty-three (33) north of range thirteen (13) east, taken as the property of John Moser.

If such rents and profits will not sell for sufficient sum to satisfy said judgment interests and costs, I will at the same time and place, expose at public sale the fee simple of said real estate, or so much thereof as may be sufficient to discharge said judgment interests and costs

Sale will be made without any relief whatever from valuation or appraisement laws.

JOHN C. ST. CLAIR, Sheriff
By Thos. D. Gross, Deputy.
McBride, Voelen & Leas, Att'ys for plaintiff.
Auburn, Indiana, Sept. 26th, 1877.
Pr fee $8.75.

$777 is not easily earned in these times, but it can be made in three months by any one of either sex, in any part of the country who is willing to work steadily at the employment we furnish. $66 per week in your own town. You need not be away from home over night. You can give your whole time to the work, or only your spare time. We have agents who are making over $20 per day. All who engage at once can make money fast. At the present time money cannot be made so easily and rapidly at any other business. It costs nothing to try the business. Terms and $5 outfit free. Address at once,

H. HALLETT & CO., Portland, Maine.
October 11, 6m. oil.

Notice of Administration.

NOTICE is hereby given, that the undersigned has been appointed by the Judge of the DeKalb Circuit Court of the State of Indiana, administrator of the estate of James I. Patterson, Jr., deceased, late of said county.

Said estate is supposed to be solvent.

GIDEON I. PATTERSON, Adm'r.
Sept. 28, 1877—no11

Sheriff's Sale.

BY virtue of an execution to me directed from the Clerk of the DeKalb Circuit Court, in a cause wherein Singer Manufacturing Co. is plaintiff, and John Treesh is defendant, requiring me to make the sum of Sixty-Three Dollars and Fifty cents with interest on said judgment and costs, I will expose at public sale, to the highest bidder, on

SATURDAY OCTOBER, 20th, 1877.

between the hours of 10 o'clock a. m., and 4 o'clock p. m. of said day at the door of the Court house of DeKalb county, Indiana, the rents and profits for a term not exceeding seven years, of the following real estate, to-wit:

Lot number twenty-seven (27) in the western addition to the town of Auburn, DeKalb county and State of Indiana.

If such rents and profits will not sell for a sufficient sum to satisfy said judgment, interest and costs, I will at the same time and place, expose at public sale the fee simple of said real estate, or so much thereof as may be sufficient to discharge said judgment interest and costs.

Sale will be made without any relief whatever from valuation and appraisement laws.

J. C. ST. CLAIR, Sheriff.
By Thos. D. Gross, Dept.
Pope & Baxter, Attorneys for plaintiff.
Auburn Indiana, Sept. 25th, 1877.
Pr. fee $8.50.

Sheriff's Sale.

BY virtue of an execution to me directed from the Clerk of the DeKalb Circuit Court in a cause wherein J. W. Case is plaintiff and Thomas L. Brown is Defendant, requiring me to make the sum of Fifty-Two Dollars and Ninety-Three cents with interest on said judgment and costs, I will expose at public sale to the highest bidder on

SATURDAY, OCTOBER 20th, 1877.

Between the hours of 10 o'clock a. m. and 4 o'clock p. m. of said day at the door of the Court House of DeKalb County, Indiana, the rents and profits for a term not exceeding seven years, of the following real estate to-wit:

The undivided two-fifteenths (2-15) of the west half of the south-west quarter of section thirty-one (31), township thirty-four (34) north of range fourteen (14) east.

If such rents and profits will not sell for a sufficient sum to satisfy said judgment interest and costs, I will at the same time and place, expose at public sale, the fee simple of said real estate, or so much thereof as may be sufficient to discharge said decree, interest and costs.

Sale will be made without any relief whatever from valuation or appraisement laws.

J. C. St. CLAIR, Sheriff.
By Thos. D. Gross, Dept.
W. L. Penfield, Attorney for Plaintiff.
Auburn, Indiana, Sept 29th, 1877.
Pr. fee $8 50.

Notice of Administration.

NOTICE is hereby given, that the undersigned has been appointed by the Judge of the DeKalb Circuit Court, of the State of Indiana, administrator of the estate of William Funk deceased, late of said county.

Said estate is supposed to be solvent.

WM. H. MADDEN, Adm'r.
October 1, 1877 no11.

Notice of Administration.

NOTICE is hereby given, that the undersigned has been appointed by the Judge of the DeKalb Circuit Court, of the State of Indiana, administrator of the estate of John Moser, deceased, late of said county.

Said estate is supposed to be solvent.

ELIZABETH MOSER, Adm'x.
October 1st, 1877—no11.

BOOK STORE

WILLIS & CO.

Successors to C. P. Houser, having purchased the above named stock, we wish to say to the people of Auburn and vicinity that by the patronage that we hope to merit, we expect to build up a first-class

BOOK AND NEWS STORE,

that will be a credit to the place. We are adding a large variety of goods, and shall endeavor to keep on hand the novelties of the season. We solicit orders for

Books, Magazines, Papers, etc., which will be furnished promptly at the publishers prices by

WILLIS & CO.
October 11, '77—no11.

FOR SALE.

VALUABLE LANDS.

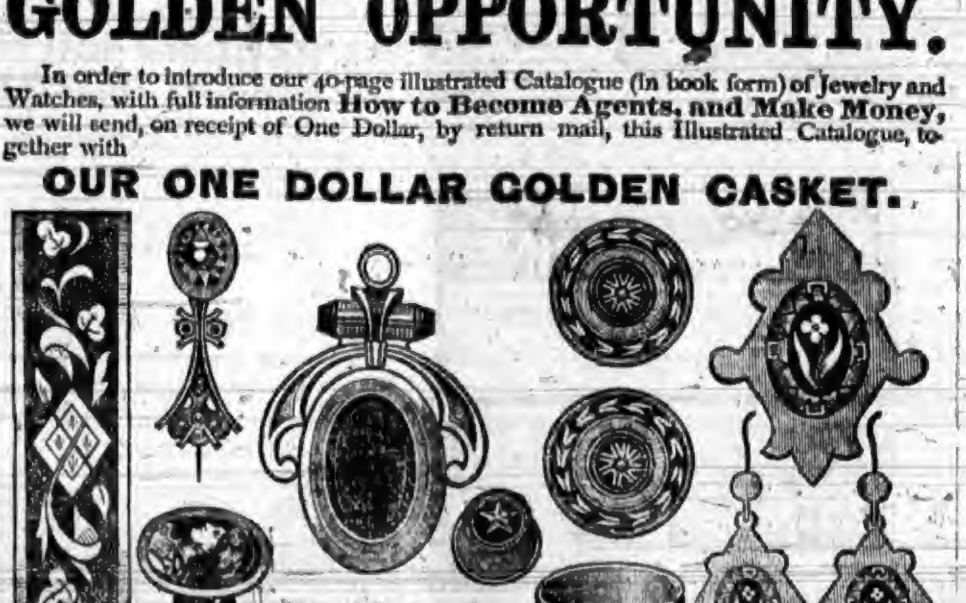
I offer for sale one section of land, in Kosciusko county, Ind., nine miles south west of Warsaw, adjoining W. Fegle and a quarter section nearly, which I will sell as a whole or in lots of 40 acres or more, as the purchaser may desire. The land is well improved, well timbered and I will sell low for cash. Or I will sell on time one-forth down, and the balance in ten years. Also a section in Fulton county on the same terms. For particulars address,

H. GEIST, Kendallville, Ind.

GOLDEN OPPORTUNITY.

In order to introduce our 40-page illustrated Catalogue (in book form) of Jewelry and Watches, with full information How to Become Agents, and Make Money, we will send, on receipt of One Dollar, by return mail, this Illustrated Catalogue, together with

OUR ONE DOLLAR GOLDEN CASKET.



OUR DOLLAR CASKET Contains one elegantly engraved Lady's Brooch and Ear Drops, Amethyst settings, inlaid with Pearls; one beautiful Cut Cameo Ring; one fine pair of Engraved Sleeve Buttons; three (3) grand spiral Amethyst Studs, inlaid with Pearls; one nobby Collar Button; one latest pattern Lady's or Gent's Pompadour Neck Chain; one elegant Cameo Seal; one beautiful chased Band Ring; one solitaire Lake George Diamond Pin; one pair (2) elegant engraved Bracelets. All the above are the Finest Gold Plate, and arranged in a beautiful white, pink-lined casket. Illustrated Catalogue of Jewelry and Watches sent with each casket. On receipt of One Dollar we will send one of these Dollar Caskets, by mail, post-paid, or Four Caskets on receipt of $3.50. Address,

GEO. G. JACOBY & CO., Importers of Jewelry and Watches,
117 Wisconsin Street, Milwaukee, Wis.

ROOT & COMPANY.

GRAND FALL OPENING!

Will commence Thursday, October 11th, and continue during the week. Upon that occasion we shall desplay by far the finest line of

SEAL SACQUES!

And Circulars, fur lined Silk Garments, Matalasse and plain Cloaks, made and trimmed in the most elegant modes ever before shown by us. Also a magnificent line of made

SILK AND STUFF DRESSES AND SUITS

Also Silks and Dress goods, in all the new and elegant colors and effectr, with trimmings to match. Also many elegant designs in well worth seeing. Besides articles of taste and elegance, not to be found elsewhere. We are now selling all goods kept by us much cheaper than they have ever been sold since 1860, and cotten goods generally are much lower than before the war. People living within a distance of 50 miles of Fort Wayne, can will aflord to come and do their trading with us if they wish to buy but ten dollars worth of goods. Our stock is so large and well assorted that no one can fail to fine what is wanted, and the immense business we are doing is ample evidence that our prices are satisfactory.

CARPETS, RUGS, MATS, OTBOMANS, &C.

Root & Company,
46 and 48 Calhoun-st, Fort Wayne Ind

BIG STOCK COMING
AT
SCHAAB, BEUGNOT & CO'S.
AUBURN, INDIANA.

DRESS GOODS.

New Calicos, Shirtings, Woolens, Jeans, Cloths and Cashmeres, For Men, Boys and Everybodys Wear

OUR SUCCESS.

No Goods Allowed to be Misrepresented. All the Newest Novelties in Fall and Winter Suits for Men, Youths and Boys

CLOTHING CUT

In the most approved pattern and warranted to be perfect fitting at Hard Time Prices.

STILL AHEAD
AT
F. E. DAVENPORT'S
DRUG STORE!

[illegible] ASSORTMENT OF

Fine Albums, Stereoscopes, Stereoscopic Views, Toilet Articles, Perfumery, Brushes &c.

School-Books suitable for use in the Auburn and country schools. Writing paper, Pens, Inks, Copy Books, Slates, &c. Also a full line of Drugs and Medicines.

Perscriptions Carefully Compounded

The finest Tobacces and Cigars to be found in the county. Remember the place

DAVENPORT'S,
West of the Court House, Auburn, Ind.

DAY'S AGUE TONIC
CURES EVERY FORM OF CHILLS, OR MONEY RETURNED.

DAY'S TONIC
Cures Chills and Fever.
DAY'S TONIC
Cures Dumb Chills.
DAY'S TONIC
Supersedes Quinine.
DAY'S TONIC
Cures Old Chronic Chills.
DAY'S TONIC
Is pleasant for Children.

DAY'S TONIC
Cleanses the Stomach.
DAY'S TONIC
Acts on Liver and Bowels.
DAY'S TONIC
Don't Buzz the Head.
DAY'S TONIC
Don't contain Quinine.

DAY'S TONIC
Is a new innovation, and possesses advantages heretofore unknown and unclaimed by others.
It does not contain Quinine or any poison; it does not produce buzzing or roaring in the head which follows the use of Quinine; it is retained by delicate stomachs; it acts upon the liver and bowels without the use of any other medicine; it never fails to cure, and our agents are authorized to return the money in each and every case of failure; one bottle will cure two cases. Try it and see. Sold by all Druggists at $1.00.

J. P. DROMGOOLE & CO., Proprietors, Louisville, Ky.

Auburn Courier.

CHURCH DIRECTORY.

M. E. CHURCH,
Rev. J. R. Ervin, pastor. Services each Sabbath at 10½ o'clock A. M. and 7½ P. M. Sabbath school at 9 A. M.

PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH,
Rev. Henry Johnson, pastor. Services each Sabbath at 10½ o'clock A. M., and 7½ P. M. Sabbath school at 9 A. M.

BAPTIST CHURCH,
Rev. E. L. Sanders pastor. Services each Sabbath at 10½ o'clock A. M., and 7½ P. M. Sabbath school at 9 A. M.

ENGLISH LUTHERAN CHURCH,
Rev. L. Rice, pastor. Services every two weeks forenoon and afternoon alternately. Sabbath school each Sabbath at [illegible] o'clock P. M.

GERMAN METHODIST CHURCH,
Rev. Chas. Treuschel, pastor. Services each Sabbath at 10½ o'clock A. M. and 7½ P. M. alternately. Sabbath school at 2 P. M.

GERMAN LUTHERAN CHURCH,
Rev. Bohlmann, pastor. Services every Sabbath at 10 o'clock P. M.

GERMAN REFORM CHURCH,
Rev. P. Ruhl, pastor. Services every other Sabbath at 10½ o'clock A. M. Sabbath school at 9 A. M.

CATHOLIC CHURCH,
Rev. R. Young, pastor. Services every Sabbath at 8 and 10 o'clock A. M., alternately.

LADIES FANCY DRY GOODS
AND
MILLINERY STORE
North of Court House, Auburn, Ind.
You will find there the very newest shapes and styles in
LADIES HATS,
AND MILLINERY GOODS
Fancy Dry Goods,
Dress Goods, Feathers, Plumes and ties in all designs. Also
LADIES CLOAKS,
Of the latest patterns. Hosiery and Gloves in every discription. The lines in the new goods are complete.
J. R. LANNING.

THE AUBURN MARKET.

—Corn 55c.
—Oats 25c.
—Eggs 8c.
—Butter 13c.
—Potatoes 40c
—Live Turkeys 5c.
—Clover Seed $5 25.
—Live Chickens 4c
—Wheat $1.22 @ 1.28
—The COURIER $2.00 a year.

Muzzle that Dog.

"Father, to-morrow is the Tutor's birth day, what can I get for a present? Charley, who had been watching the dogs in the street, "get him a muzzle, father, he is always biting the governess in the cheek" Silver plated ware, salt, tea sets, spoon holders, baking dishes, 106 pieces of tea and dinner ware, only $10. 44 pieces of china for $12. Lamps that burn without a chimney, chandeliers, bracke's, student lamps, only $5. One fly chaser for nothing. Fifteen per cent. saved on all goods at Ward's cheap crockery store, No. 9 Columbia street. Ward's Iron Dog, Fort Wayne.

Local and Miscellaneous.

The best Oysters at Rickel's.

D. D. Snyder's is the boss place for stoves

Justice Maxwell was in the city yesterday.

Billy Rickel is re-arranging his Restaurant.

Oysters served up in any style at Rickel's Restaurant.

We are sorry the weather is so unfavorable for the Angola fair.

The bank has received a number of the new silver trade dollars.

Call and see the Excelsior Heating Stove at D. D. Snyder's.

Fresh Oysters, sweet, large, and luscous, at Rickel's, by the can or dish.

Remember the New York Store will not allow any one to undersell them.

The latest event at Butler was the china wedding of Chas. Hanes and lady.

Subscriptions received for all newspapers at publishers prices at Willis & Co.

Come in and get acquainted with the new management at the City Book Store of Willis & Co.

If you want good goods, such as will give entire satisfaction, go to the New York Store.

The third quarterly meeting of the M. E. church, will take place next Saturday and Sunday.

One man's money is just as good as another; therefore, the New York Store treats all alike.

The Excelsior Hardware Store has the cheapest and finest lot of stoves in DeKalb county.

Mr F. C. Waterman made us a present of the premium watermelon, for which he has our thanks.

Miss Alice Hoover, daugter of J. B. Hoover, of Waterloo, died last Monday morning, about twenty years of age.

"A friend in need is a friend indeed." Such a friend is Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup and should be in every family; it only costs 25 cents a bottle and may save many a doctor bill. For sale by F. E. Davenport.

Fine brands of cigars at Rickel's.

C. K. Baxter, of the Press, is now an alderman of Waterloo.

Mrs. Henry Ford has gone to Ohio on a visit to her daughter, Mrs. Smith.

Smoking tobacco at the little cigar store on the corner. tf.

Murray Markle's celebrated Norman Stallion took first premium at the Waterloo fair.

A steady rain of twelve hours Monday night will do much good for the wheat crop.

Bring in your wood now, don't wait until the roads are bad. We want that promised us, this month.

All business letters to this office should be addressed, "Editor Courier," to meet prompt attention.

On Monday Moses Gonser sold to Jacob Kahn $412 worth of clover seed, all raised the present season.—Press.

Harry Stafford, formerly of this county, but now in Sturgis, Mich., paid his friends and relatives a visit this week.

The rain this week was a benefit to the farmers. It is a common saying for them that the fly is injuring the wheat.

The cranberry crop, on the few marshes in this county, is extraordinary large. Mr. Johnson, of Etna, picked about seventy bushels.—Columbia City Post.

Gen. Miles has had a battle with the hostile Nez Perces Indians, in which the soldiers suffered about as much as the Indians.

Mr. Geo. Hough returned last Sunday from a trip to south-eastern Kansas. He is not favorably impressed with that section of the country.

Rev. Mr. Sanders left yesterday for Danville, Ill., where he delivers his lecture on "Back-bone," as an opening to a lecture course.

Sam Weaver and his better half have disolved. We know nothing of the circumstances but are informed that a law trial will follow.

Sam Pommert, as a tonsorial artist, leads all his competitors in the county. With his clever, genial ways he is making hosts of friends.

Horse shoeing promptly attended to. The Best workmen in town! Prices reasonable. Don't fail to give me a call. JAMES ANDERSON. tf.

Our friend Mr. Gibson at the City Bakery has now exclusive control of the baking department, and is ready with increased facilities to supply the demand for good bread. tf.

A large number of trains are daily passing over the B. & O. road at present, and we understand that the business of the road is largely in excess of what it was a month or two ago.—New Era.

Miss Carrie, daughter of Capt. Cutter, was thrown from a buggy Sunday, suffering the fracture of the left leg, about the ancle. The limb was set and is doing as well as could be expected. —Press.

Potatoes are said to be rotting badly in DeKalb county.—Standard.

This is certainly a mistake. We have heard from quite a number, and not as much loss as usual is experienced in this way.

A fair price will be paid for a good dream about snakes, &c. Apply to the Fort Wayne News. The Murphy movement has about exhausted the supply down there.

Daniel McDonald is now sole proprietor of the Plymouth Democrat. We love that man Dan, and like an old thoroughbred, he'll make things hum when he settles to business. We wish him success.

The domestic tranquility of a young married couple has been broken in upon lately, and they are now separted. You can't be to particular in seleeting your partner for life.

Many of the farmers in this locality complain of their hogs dying with cholera. John Garber has lost eleven, and has several others that are sick, while some of his neighbors have lost nearly their whole number.—Butler Record.

Senator McDonald writes a card to explain away the fact the he agreed that if Morton went to Washington and could not meet with the Senate, he would pair off with him even in the organization of that body. Its too thin.

Coughs, colds, hoarseness, sore throat and all dseases of the lungs and chest, are readily cured with Dr. Marshall's lung syrup. It never fails. Try it. Price 25 cents. Sold in every drug store.

Many a person has been crippled and deformed by neglecting the proper means of curing rheumatism on its first appearance in the system. It is next to an impossibility to cure it after once seated. Use the best known remedy, Lawson's Curative, on feeling the first symptoms, and you will drive it out. Sold by F. E. Davenport.

NOTICE.

The undersigned hereby gives due notice that he will not be responsible for debts contracted by any one in his name, no matter who they may be. JERRY MAXWELL.
Oct. 7th, 1877. 3w.

Soldiers' Re-Union.

The members of Co. D. 88th Ind. Reg't., will hold a re-union at Ensley's Hall, at this place, Oct. 19th, 1877, and they most cordially invite the members of A. and H. of the same regiment to meet with them. No further notice will be given.

Fourteen divorce cases in the Elkhart circuit court does not indicate a very high degree of conjugal felicity in that county. It strikes us as an unfavorable season of the year to be untying the connubial knot just as the bleak winds of winter begin to whistle about our ears.—Angola Herald.

[illegible] by the name of Brown living north of Waterloo, was thrown from a wagon, by the horses running away, and one of her legs and an arm were broken, besides receiving internal injuries. She was still living at last accounts.

The famous Danbury News Man says "They All Do It." It is designed to rest you when you are tired, to cheer you when depressed, and to tone you down generally when you are inclined to make yourself disagreeable about the house, that's what he says. For particulars ask the news agent.

That barrel of flour we got last week is not going to last as long as we thought. There is a pig and a horse and chickens to feed, and we all eat the same things. Now don't you see we want what little is due us from you who owe us. Call in, gentlemen, call in.

We are pained to announce the death of Mrs. Phebe Kinsey, wife of Prof. J. F. Kinsey, which occurred on yesterday morning at an early hour. Her death was somewhat unexpected, as she was not considered in a critical condition up to a short time before her spirit took its departure.—Albion New Era.

Mr and Mrs Kinsey were formerly residents of Auburn, he having charge of the conservatory of music.

Mace Long, of Fort Wayne, has quit drinking and gambling, and now keeps a respectable restaurant, a place where you can get a good square meal at fair price. If there is any magnimity, any humanity about the citizens of that city, they will stand by Mace, and patronize him as his noble effort to resist evil now deserves.

Mr. A. L. Nickerson and Miss Ola Yandes were married last Tuesday. The affair took place at the tobacco establishment of Mr. Grubb, with which Mr. Nickerson is connected. The boys called around and paied their respect, and smoked a cigar at the expense of the proprietor, who had quietly made arrangements for the marriage. We wish our young friends success and happiness.

The business at Austin's depot of Boots and Shoes, is still increasing, and they are disposing of a great number every day. It is a little singular that a stranger can come into our midst, and build up such extensive business in so short a time. It must have come through that tact enterprise and liberality which should animate all business men. He not only has a good stock but has placed his prices down as low as he can afford to, and is doing a good business at small profits.

Hon. Cassius M. Clay, of Kentucky, shot and killed a negro last Saturday. He was arrested, but no particulars are given. It is a crime for a democrat to kill a negro in Kentucky?—Kendallville Standard.

Certainly not, if the negro attempts to kill a man as was the case with Mr Clay. After years of labor for the abolition of slavery, one of the very men who was most benefitted by this lifetime of toil, steps up to shoot him down and now we are asked, "is it a crime?" A manly way of putting it.

Grand Excursion to Southern Kansas.

Will leave Auburn, via. B. & O. R. R. October 15th, 1877. This will give parties that intend going to Kansas a good opportunity to see the famous and beautiful Cherokee Indian Reservation, that the Mo. R. F. S. & G. R. R. are now selling from $2 to $8 per acre, on ten years time. The excursion will go through the greatest wheat and corn country in the west. For information and tickets, apply to Thos. H. Sprott, Auburn, Indiana.

Pretty Little Blue Eyed Stranger.

Is the title of one of the prettiest songs we have ever heard. It was composed by Bobby Newcomb, the celebrated minstrel professional. The melody is bound to captivate every lover of a good song and remain fresh in their memory a lifetime. Price 35 cts. per copy. For sale by any music dealer in the United States, or can be had of the publisher, F. W. Helmick, 50 West Fourth street, Cincinnati, O.

The fair last week at Waterloo, drew immense crowds, especially on Thursday, over 8,000 tickets being sold that day. The entries in the stock department were unusually large, but the showing of thoroughbreds was not so good as heretofore. There was not a large number of speed horses present, and the races were not extra. The running race was a fizzle. The display of fruits, grains, vegetables and fine arts was very good. The weather on Thursday and Friday was a little uncomfortable.

Dr. Marshall's Lung Syrup relieves the worst cases of Coughs and Colds almost instantly. Call on your druggist and try a bottle of it, the price is only 25 cents. Sold in every drug Store.

Fine Cattle.

We noticed a fine herd of cattle at the Waterloo fair last week belonging to Mr. L. L. Irons, of St. Johns, this county. A splendid Alderney heiffer 2 years old took the first premium. A herd of fine thoroughbred short horns took first premium. The yearling "Lightfly," also got away with the red ribbon, and a calf with second. Mr. Irons bought this herd at Paris, Kentucky, a few weeks ago, and from their looks we should judge them to be of the best breeds.

Another scandal case is now furnishing sweet morsels for our gossips, and while we mention no names we can point a moral. We sympathize deeply with the one who suffers the most in this affair. If friendship is not a pretense, his admirers will stand by him, now that affliction has fallen upon him. Ought there not to be a radical change in the theory of close communion. It is arbitrary and unconstitutional and there is a future to provide for. Christ said "come unto me all ye that are heavy laden." Why not give the same territory in these latter days. Let us be liberal.

Mr. Alex, Brandon, who was taken to the Insane asylum at Indianapolis some seven month ago, died last Thursday, and was brought here for burial, which took place last Sunday. Mr. M. Brandon, a brother of the deceased brought the body from that city. Worthily has this brother discharged his duties. He has isolated himself from society, and sacrificed many chances, that he might care for a weaker brother. There is a true affection and manhood about an act like this, seldom developed in perverse humanity. Moses has well earned the respect and admiration of all who know him.

Three kindred sprits from down toward Spencerville, went to the fair last Thursday. We met them near Waterloo, and they were as happy as Godfrey's cordial could make them. A good bay horse was attached to an antiquated buggy, and when we came up with them they had run up against the fence, and the horse stood clear of the buggy with the exception of the quarterstrap. Had he been other than a gentle animal, there would have been somebody hurt. We fixed the boys up as well as we could, as they insisted on remaining in the buggy, and we saw them safe in town. It was a close call.

A bad smash-up occurred Thursday last about half way beween Waterloo and Auburn. We are told that a gentleman and lady from Garrett, with a team and carriage, attempted to pass another buggy on the road near a culvert, when the vehicle was upset by the tongue coming down, and the lady was thrown out with considerable force, and seriously injured. The carriage was badly wrecked, and the horses escaping into the woods, made sad havoc with the harness. Another warning to drive slow.

One of our rural poets has been disgusted with dried-apple pies, and here is the way he declaims against them.

I loath, abhor, detest, despise,
Abominate dried-apple pies;
I like good bread, I like good meat,
Or any thing that's fit to eat;
But of all poor grub beneath the skies
The poorest is dried apple-apple pies.
Give me toothache or sore eyes
In preference to such kind of pies.

The farmer takes his hardest fruit;
'Tis wormy, bitter, and hard to boot;
They leave the hulls to make us cough,
And don't take half the peelings off
Then on a dirty cord they're string,
And there they serve as roost for flies
Until they're ready to make pies.
Tread on my corns, or tell me lies,
But don't pass me dried-apple pies.

Marriage licenses were issued to the following parties by County Clerk Moss during September, 1877: Harvey Kimes and Rachel S. Hart, Joseph Landsdown and Louisa A. Goodwin, Benjamin L. Moore and Viola A. Jones, Joseph A. Reigal and Carolina Halyoat, Jacob Baker and Mary Ellen Knight, Joseph Mathews and Mary J. Pillows, Bardford D. Harris and Anna Rainier, Christian Lehner and Samantha Hines, Samuel G. Gfellar and Kate McEnterfer, Aaron Mills and Samantha Stoy, John A. Waller and Estella Robinett, Samuel H Richmond and Rhoda A. Moffler, Henry Peters and Sophia Peters, Albert Guilford and Eunice McDowell, Andres T. Sanderson and Nellie Barstow, William Bowman and Ella Chaney, William Hart and and Almira Nelson, Henry Shaffer and Susanna Gushua Wilson D. Tomlinson and Mary Johnson.

An exchange gives the following description of Senator Morton's condition: "He lies in a narrow bed raised above its usual height, and is occasionally lifted to a lounge near by His whole left side from the neck down is paralyzed, and he is entirely helpless, not being able to move himself in bed or to raise his head. He has lost but very little flesh during his long illness although his digestion has been seriously impaired, and he has subsisted chiefly on gruel and beef tea His expression is one of intense weariness. Like all men of active mind and great vitality, he suffers much from enforced inaction, and he sometimes falls into spells of feverish nervousness, when it seems to him as if he could not possibly longer endure the hardship of lying like a log, with his body refusing to obey his will.

A Fine Display.

Perhaps the finest display in the Dry Goods line in the State of Indiana will be made to-day by the enterprising establishment of Root & Company, Fort Wayne. They certainly have the finest store room in the country, and with the known liberality of each individual member, they would hardly fail to meet the demand in a trade in which they are by taste and education so well adapted. We like to see the triumph of the good, the true and generous, over the false and pretentious, even in the dry goods trade. No shoddy ever enters into theirs. Root & Company's [illegible] trap the unwary, but you don't have to go more than a stone's throw, in fact the Court House only intervenes, to find all of that article you want. There is another store in that city which has taken the name, as far as it dare, of the New York Store, by which name Root & Company are known so far and wide. With its usual semblance of honesty it has added "City" to its sign, and you are ivited to come in. pretty much on the style of the spider and the fly, as you will afterwards find out. Deal with reliable, honorable gentlemen, men who value their words as worth something, and if a mistake occurs, they will not lie you out of it, but make the correction with pleasure. Our advice is go to the New York Store, and give that one, which hearalds itself as the New York City Store, a wide berth.

Goldsmith Maid will be 21 years old next April. She has never yet lost a race with a competitor that she did not afterward beat. She has traveled over 300,000 miles by rail and has earned her owners nearly half a million dollars. She always travels in a special car, her companions being a keeper, his attendant and a small terrier. The keeper is an old man of 67 years, and when in the car or stable the Maid is uneasy or restless unless the keeper is with her. They sleep together on the same blankets, and the old man has never mised sleeping with her but three nights in seven years. As soon as the Maid sees that her keeper is lying beside her she goes to sleep and sleeps soundly all night. If he is not there is very little sleep for her or any one else in her vicinity. The terrier has been with her for nine years and she is around her heels with the solicitous air of a big brother. The Maid is owned, half and half, by H. N. Smith, a New York banker, and Budd Doble. She is valued at $30,000, but it is not probable that double that amount of money would buy her. Doble always drives her. He is a well educated gentleman, has an entree into the best society, and, notwithstanding his business, never associates with gamblers or horse jockeys. He is noted for his honest driving, and has been known to refuse $30,000 if he would sell a single race.

Written for the COURIER.

A PUZZLE.

BY W. M. B.

God made Adam, as you all know,
Out of the dust long, long ago,
But before Adam, God made me,
And Adam gave me a name you see.

That name still I carry to-day.
Far over this wide world I do stray,
In all the varied climes I live,
And to man I food and light do give.

Me, God did make complete you know
And I've kept in my first state, though low
I had not hands to take the fruit,
As did mankind whom I do suit.

My Maker's laws I have obeyed;
From them I never have yet strayed.
A lesson man might take from me,
But to that he will not agree.

Now man does ever me control,
For I was made without a soul;
But in God's good work you'll find,
That long ago in the course of time.

Something then was offered me,
A spirit, or soul, or both may be,
But that offer I did not accept,
Choosing in my first state to be kept.

Rather than in honor to dwell,
And to be in danger of hell,
And if I understand the story,
I never will get up to glory.

No fear of death doth trouble me,
If happiness I never see,
The holy scriptures I cannot read,
If right or wrong I'm not agreed.

If you will read this over again,
And faithfully search there for my name,
And not succeeding in finding it there,
It will be strange I do declare.

P. S.—Let us have an answer in the COURIER.

CHRONIC Diseases Cured. New paths marked out by that plainest of all books—"Plain Home Talk and Medical Common Sense,"—nearly 1,000 pages, 200 illustrations by Dr. E. B. FOOTE, of 120 Lexington Avenue, N. Y. Purchasers of this book are at liberty to consult its author in person or by mail free. Price by mail $3.25 for the standard edition, or $1.50 for the popular edition, which contains all the same matter and illustrations. Contents free. Agents wanted. MURRAY HILL PUBLISHING CO., 129 East 28th St. N. Y.

Corunna Items.

The bands at Calkin's brick yard had a lively "spat". No funerals.

A lady and gentleman had a little misunderstanding on Main street last Thursday evening by the name of Timmerman. They didn't come to the knocks.

We have a married couple here who could not walk hand in hand and heart in heart down the well beaten path of married life, so they dissolved partnership, and she, with her little ones, departed for her father's house, Mr. Park. The days rolled dearily on and the "pressure" became so strong that they couldn't stand it, and last Thursday evening they came together again with open arms, "to meet to part no more." The boys did all in their power to enliven the occasion with tin pans, cow bells, etc.

Hank Quince has been on the sick list for several weeks.

Corunna has a spring bed bottom factory.

Mr. Geo Sisson, of Auburn, talks of locating hear and engage in the harness business. It is a splendid point for his line of trade.

The dance last Friday evening, gotten up by the band boys, was not a large "financial speck," however, they all enjoyed a pleasant time.

Ed. Orr had the misfortune of loosing a valuable colt. The cause of the disease is unknown.

A lively time was had at the school meeting last Friday evening. Mrs. H. E. Little was the teacher desired by over two-thirds of the attendance.

Butler Items.

Mr. Gengnogle has just overhauled his residence, putting on a new roof and otherwise making it convenient for his guests.

Mr. Kist's sister and father, from the northern part of Ohio, have been visiting him for a week past.

Some fellow broke one of the front windows in Chamber's place of business

Sam Searight has nearly the "full sweep" in the hardware line. Through his perseverence and energy he has worked up a large trade and to day is running five wagons out of the village loaded down with tinware, glassware &c.

Mrs. Green attended the fair at Waterloo several days, and while on her way home was robbed of a gold watch valued at $150.

Those who are buying wheat are keeping up with the other markets in the county, and Butler gets her share.

The hotel on Broadway, formerly known as the old Sargeant House, is not in running order at present.

Geo. Boots is erecting a hotel east of the depot. It will be ready for occupancy in a few days.

Rumor has it that hogs are dying in the south part of the county.

HURRAH.

THE NEW AMERICAN
SEWING MACHINE.
HAS SELF THREADING SHUTTLE
RUNS THE LIGHTEST OF ANY HAS SELF SETTING NEEDLE
SHUTTLE MACHINE
SIMPLEST & BEST.

A MAN CRAZY
Selling
SEWING MACHINES!
AT 35 DOLLARS
Go and see them.
G. H. YESBRA, AG'T.
Auburn, Indiana.

"THEY ALL DO IT!"
SAVE MONEY.
BUY YOUR
CLOTHONG AND UNDERWEAR
OF
SAM, PETE & MAX.
FORT WAYNE.

AUBURN COURIER.

THURSDAY, OCTOBER 11, 1877.

THE NEWS CONDENSED.

THE EAST.

PUTNAM, a thriving village in Connecticut, has been swept over by a fire which burned about $200,000 worth of property, and left nothing of the business portion of the place except the National Bank and the new hotel.

NEW YORK financial circles are agitated by the discovery of extensive forgeries by one William C. Gilman, a broker hitherto enjoying a high reputation. The forgeries amount to upward of $200,000....By the explosion of a small steamboat near Pittsburgh, Pa., three persons were killed and several injured.

THE centennial anniversary of the battle of Germantown (Pa.) was celebrated with great spirit Oct. 4, the military of Philadelphia and the adjoining cities participating....Louis Liberty, William Price and two Wise brothers were drowned in Boston harbor, the other day, by the capsizing of their boat.

THE WEST.

A DISPATCH from Cheyenne says "the weekly treasure-coach from Deadwood was stopped by two masked men near Cheyenne river. Resistance was made, and Scott Davis, one of the messengers, was wounded in the leg, disabling him, when the robbers got possession of the arms in the coach, but were unable to force the iron safe."....The suit of the Government against William McKee, of the St. Louis whisky ring, to recover $500,000, has broken down, the court holding that the President's pardon canceled all claims of that character.... Advices at military headquarters in Chicago, lead to the belief that Chief Joseph and his gang have made a break for Sitting Bull's retreat in the British Possessions.

A STRIKE of laborers on the Kansas Central Narrow-Gauge railway culminated in a collision with the authorities, at Circleville, Kansas, in which several shots were fired, and the leader of the strikers, one William Hartman, was killed....Clearings of the Chicago banks last week, $22,000,000; increase over corresponding week last year, $3,500,000.

THE cattle-raisers in the region of Cleveland, Ohio, in convention assembled, have unanimously agreed that the plague which is killing off their stock is nothing less than the Texas cattle fever. The disease is said to be on the wane.

BY the explosion of the boiler of a new portable engine at Studortown, O., four men were killed and two seriously injured. The bodies of the killed were literally blown to pieces.

A DEADWOOD (Black Hills) dispatch says the north-bound coach on the Sydney route was stopped the other night in the vicinity of Buffalo gap by four well-known outlaws, who go by the names of Dunk Blackburn, Wall, Laughing Sam, and the Kid. There was but one passenger and the division agent, Cook, on the coach, who were relieved of some dollars and their revolvers. The robbers were unmasked, and made no attempt to conceal their identity. The following night the south-bound Deadwood stage was stopped twelve miles south of Laramie, and the passengers relieved of some $400....The Apache Indians of New Mexico have broken loose, and are killing, scalping and committing all sorts of deviltries. Gen. Hatch, commanding the United States troops, at last accounts was preparing to attend to them.

THE SOUTH.

THE Grand Jury of Kemper county, Miss., has found six indictments for murder, and twenty-five indictments for being accessory to murder, against the participants in the Chisholm massacre....A State force of Texans, 1,000 in number, is organizing at San Antonio for active service on the Rio Grande.

THE yellow fever has broken out at Port Royal, S. C....A Deputy United States Marshal's posse recently made a raid on the crooked distillers of Sharp county, Ark., had a fight with the crooks, killed one, wounded several, arrested four, and destroyed two stills and a large amount of whisky and mash....Cassius M. Clay lately shot and killed a negro at his farm house in Kentucky. No one witnessed the deed, which Clay claims was done in self-defense.

THE steamer Magnolia, bound from Savannah to New York, was recently lost off Cape Hatteras. No lives lost. The steamer and cargo were valued at about $500,000.

GENERAL.

AN Indian woman while bathing at Victoria, British Columbia, a few days ago, was seized by an octopus, or devil-fish, and drowned. The body was discovered by Indians the next day, lying at the bottom of the bay in the grasp of the octopus. They cut the tentacles and recovered the body.

ACCORDING to information received in Washington, from Brownsville, Texas, there is a Mexican force coming to the Rio Grande to compel the authorities to execute the extradition treaty. Local opinion in Mexico is against surrendering the jail raiders. The local authorities of Tamaulipas will refuse to surrender another Mexican to the Americans.

AT the World's Congress of the International Society, held this summer in the city of Ghent, the city of New York was fixed upon as the headquarters of the social revolutionists.... Commodore Frailey, of the United States navy, is dead.

TROUBLE with Mexico is brewing, and grave apprehensions are felt at Washington that it will not be long delayed. Some days ago Lieut. Bullis, with two companies, crossed the Rio Grande from Fort Clarke in pursuit of a band of Mexican cattle-thieves. A dispatch of the 2d inst. announces that Col. Shafter had also crossed the river "with 600 men and two Gatling guns to extricate Lieut. Bullis from his position."....News received from the Sitting Bull commission from a point near Helena, Mont., confirms the report that Joseph is endeavoring to reach Canadian territory by the shortest route, and as soon as possible.

ADVICES from Fort Clark announce the return of Shafter and Bullis' commands from the Mexican side of the Rio Grande. The expedition was unsuccessful, owing to the fact that the Indians had been warned of Bullis' pursuit and escaped. Twelve horses and two mules which had been stolen from the American side of the river were recaptured. A small body of Mexican cavalry kept upon their trail and in sight of the command during their march from San Diego river to the Rio Grande, but made no offensive demonstration.

BURNED: The Pittsburgh car and locomotive works and a large number of other buildings at McKeesport, Pa., loss heavy; the stables and car-houses of the Dry Dock Railroad Company, in New York, loss $500,000; a square of business buildings in Franklin, Ind., loss $15,000; a block of houses in Joplin, Mo., loss $50,000; a saw-mill at Frankfort, Mich., loss $30,000....Two more savings banks have gone by the board—one at Allegheny, Pa., liabilities about $500,000, and another at Harwich, Mass., liabilities not stated....Archbishop Bayley, of the Catholic diocese of Baltimore, is dead....W. H. Vanderbilt, of the New York Central railroad, has ordered an advance of 5 per cent. upon the wages of all employes of the road where the salaries amount to less than $2,000 a year.

WASHINGTON.

ASSISTANT SECRETARY M'CORMICK has concluded to comply with the earnest request of the President and Secretary Sherman, and remain in the Treasury Department through the extra session of Congress, but to retire before the regular session begins....The Postmaster General don't think he will ask Congress for any deficiency at the end of the extra session....The President and Secretary of the Interior have decided to dismiss the charges against Gov. Axtell, of New Mexico, as vague and unsupported by proof.

IT has been decided that the President will confine his message, at the beginning of the special session, to the subject of the appropriations needed for the public service....The National Republican has been purchased by Clapp, late Public Printer, and will in future oppose the national administration....Frederick A. Sawyer, formerly Assistant Secretary of the Treasury, ex-Commissioner Haines and Frank W. Brooks have been tried in the District Court, on a charge of conspiracy to defraud the Government, in passing through the Treasury Department a bogus claim of $58,000. The jury rendered a verdict of guilty.

CLERK ADAMS, of the House, says that he has received the credentials of all Representatives except from the Fourth California and First Missouri Districts. Without deciding as to these two, Adams will place on his roll twelve Democratic majority....The coinage at the mints of the United States for the month of September, 1877, was: Double eagles, $4,492,200; trade dollars, $1,677,000; half-dollars, 408,400; quarter-dollars, 349,600; dimes, 129,000. Total, $7,056,200.

THE final conference with the Indian delegation took place at the Executive Mansion on Monday. Spotted Tail remarked that he would like a supply of short-horned cattle, Catholic priests, overcoats, saw and grist mills, agricultural implements, seeds, and five or six stores, so his people could "buy cheaper at one than at another." Mr. Hayes referred them to the Interior Department for such things as the appropriations would warrant. He also informed them that it was considered too late in the season to remove the agencies, and advised the chiefs to gather their people as near to the present supply points as possible. In the spring, he said, the agencies would be removed to the mouth of White river.

THE public debt statement for September is as follows:

Six per cent. bonds	$ 709,293,600
Five per cent. bonds	703,266,650
Four and a half per cent. bonds	200,000,000
Four per cent. bonds	10,000,000
Total coin debt	$1,712,560,250
Lawful money debt	$ 14,000,000
Matured debt	10,334,320
Legal tenders	353,078,654
Certificates of deposit	48,110,000
Fractional currency	18,786,642
Coin certificates	37,997,800
Total without interest	$ 486,872,796
Total debt	$2,202,767,967
Total interest	27,123,916
Cash in treasury—coin	$ 119,152,043
Cash in treasury—currency	14,206,417
Currency held for redemption of fractional currency	8,835,468
Special deposits held for redemption of certificates of deposit	43,110,000
Total in treasury	$ 185,303,928
Less estimated amount due military establishments for which no appropriations have been made	7,000,000
Total	$ 178,303,928
Debt less cash in treasury	$2,051,587,254
Decrease of debt during September	3,882,524
Decrease since June 30, 1877	8,570,968
Bonds issued to Pacific Railroad Companies, interest payable in lawful money; principal outstanding	64,623,512
Interest accrued and not yet paid	969,352
Interest paid by the United States	35,957,629
Interest repaid by transportation of mails, etc.	8,750,652
Balance of interest paid by United States	27,206,977

SENATOR JOHN PATTERSON says that he will ask, at the opening of the session of the Senate, for an investigating committee of fellow-Senators to vindicate him of the charges made against his official character....It is currently reported that Assistant Secretary of the Treasury McCormick will succeed Mr. Arthur as Collector of the Port of New York.

POLITICAL.

COL. DAVID H. ARMSTRONG, of St. Louis, has been appointed by the Governor of Missouri to fill the unexpired term of the late Louis V. Bogy in the United States Senate....The Chicago Times says William R. Morrison will receive the support of the entire Democratic delegation from Illinois in the House for the Speakership.

THE Workingmen's party of Massachusetts have placed in nomination a full State ticket, headed by Wendell Phillips (already nominated by the Greenbackers) for Governor....The municipal election in Hartford resulted in the election of the Democratic ticket by majorities ranging from 250 to 500.

THE Democrats of Minnesota met in convention at St. Paul last week, and put up the following ticket: Governor, William L. Banning, who was before nominated by the Greenback and Labor Conventions; Lieutenant Governor, Dr. A. A. Ames; Attorney General, John R. Jones; Secretary of State, P. T. Lindholm; Treasurer, John F. Meagher; Railroad Commissioner, H. W. Hill. Resolutions were adopted denouncing the "frauds and crimes by which the inauguration of Tilden was prevented;" rejoicing that Hayes found it necessary to adopt a Democratic policy of local self-government, and abandon the device for perpetuating the sectional divisions; accusing the Republican party of acting in the interest of capital against labor, in making the public debt payable in coin, in demonetizing silver, in passing the Resumption act, in collecting enormous unnecessary revenues since 1865, and in protective and prohibitive tariff legislation; declaring gold and silver the only constitutional legal tender; that resumption should come as soon as the business interests of the country will permit; and demanding the restoration of the silver dollar of full commercial value.

THE people of Colorado have voted upon and rejected, by a majority of two to one, the proposition to extend the right of suffrage to women.

THE New York Democratic State Convention was held at Albany, Oct. 3-4. The following ticket was nominated: Secretary of State, Allen C. Beach; Comptroller, Frederick P. Olcott; Treasurer, James Mackin; Attorney General, Augustus Schoonmaker; State Engineer and Surveyor, Horatio Seymour, Jr. The platform adopted is as follows:

The people having in the last Presidential contest elected by an overwhelming popular and a clear electoral majority the Democratic candidates for President and Vice President, and the will of the nation thus constitutionally declared having been wickedly and boldly nullified by means of the grossest usurpations and frauds of the Returning Boards, protected and adopted if not instigated by the party in possession of the Government, and rendered practicable by a threatening array of military force;

Resolved, That at this the first convention of the Democrats of this State held since the consummation of this great crime, it is not only just and fit, but it is the plain duty in the interest of constitutional government and in vindication and preservation of the sacred right of the majority to choose their rulers, to denounce with the warmest indignation this stupendous wrong, and we do hereby denounce, condemn, and hold it up to universal execration.

Resolved, That this duty of setting the mark of infamy upon this transaction, and preventing any quick forgetfulness or condonation of it from raising the tempting precedent for future outrages, rests especially and peculiarly upon the Democratic party of this State, one of whose most illustrious leaders was the President actually chosen by the nation.

Resolved, That the late House of Representatives deserves the thanks of all patriots and lovers of liberty for their just refusal in the exercise of the most ancient and valuable privilege belonging to the representatives of the people in all constitutional governments to appropriate money for the support of the soldiers to be used in the illegal and despotic oppression of the citizens in any portion of the republic.

Resolved, That the present national administration, by its withdrawal of the troops from the South, and its cessation from mischievous, unconstitutional, and oppressive interference with the internal affairs of the States, has in that respect reversed the vicious precedents of the Republican party, followed the course marked out by the Federal constitution, and to which the Democrats stand pledged, and it is therefore entitled in that particular to the approval of all good citizens.

The Democratic party of New York reaffirm the following principles, set forth in their platform adopted in 1874, now thrice indorsed by large majorities of the voters of this State: Gold and silver the only legal tender; no currency inconvertible with coin; steady steps toward specie payments; no step backward; the honest payment of the public debt in coin; the sacred preservation of the public faith; revenue reform; a tariff for revenue only, no Government partnership with protected monopolies; home rule; to limit and localize most jealously the powers intrusted to public servants, municipal, State, and Federal; no centralization; equal and exact justice to all men; no partial legislation.

Resolved, That we are opposed to the granting of subsidies by the Government to corporations or individuals for the construction of railroads or other internal improvements as unnecessary, beyond the scope of Federal power, and inevitably producing corruption.

Resolved, That we congratulate the whole people of this State that, notwithstanding the suffering to which the laboring classes have been subjected, in spite of their failure to obtain remunerative employment and the bitter privations which have been imposed on them thereby, they have endured these calamities for the most part with patience, without disorder or violation of the public peace, and we declare that it is through the beneficent operation of equal and just laws favoring no class at the expense of another, a stern refusal on the part of legislative bodies to yield to the schemes of grasping monopolies, and the decrease of public expenditures and taxation to the lowest practical point, that the laboring classes of the country (with whom the Democratic party has always strongly and intelligently sympathized) are mainly to find effectual and permanent relief.

Resolved, That we demand more complete protection for the savings of the industrial classes by a stricter supervision and control of savings banks, insurance companies, and other institutions in which the people's money may be invested, and the enactment of laws providing for the severe and certain punishment of all official neglect, extravagance, or fraud by which the people's earnings may be endangered or lost.

THE TURKO-RUSSIAN WAR.

FEVER and dysentery are decimating the ranks of the Czarowitz's army....The Russians are said to be busily preparing for a winter campaign.

TOUCHING the campaign in Bulgaria, a London correspondent telegraphs on the 1st inst.: "It is generally believed the campaign is substantially at an end. Both sides, however, are talking about strategic movements and imminent events of great importance. The fact remains that Mehemet Ali has retreated, and the Russians are willing to do the same, and wait for spring. Probably the most they will do will be to intrench themselves in their wedge-shaped position, with the edge at Schipka pass, and the base from Sistova to Nikopolis, and hold that position for new levies and another campaign. The wounded from Plevna overcrowd the Russian hospitals, and the wounded suffer much in the transit to Russia. The Russian Imperial Guard, 50,000 strong, is taking up its position in front of Plevna."

MOUKHTAR PASHA telegraphs from Asia Minor that he has defeated a Russian force at Neck-Jordan, killing 400, and capturing a large number of arms....The Sultan has conferred the title of Ghazi (conqueror) on Osman Pasha and Moukhtar Pasha.

A TURKISH force is concentrating at Mostar, Herzegovina, to recover the territory conquered by the Montenegrins....The Russian forces in Asia have just succeeded in suppressing a formidable insurrection in Daghestan. The main body of the insurgents, 6,000 strong, was defeated and dispersed....Mehemet Ali has been superseded as Commander-in-Chief of the Danubian army by Osman Pasha, and Raouf Pasha has assumed command of the Turks at Schipka pass....Dispatches from Karajal, in Asia, dated Oct. 3, announce that a great battle was then in progress between the Russian Gen. Melikoff's forces and the army of Moukhtar Pasha.

GENERAL FOREIGN NEWS.

FROM the village of St. Gregoire, in the Province of Quebec, comes intelligence of a shocking accident. The dwelling of a man named Gouzie was destroyed by fire, and his seven children and a servant woman perished in the flames.

THE yellow fever raging at Vera Cruz, Mexico, is of a most deadly type.

SATSUMA, the well-known Japanese statesman, and Saigo, the great Japanese soldier, who some time since organized a rebellion against the young Mikado because he had introduced Governmental reforms in sympathy with Western civilization, have been defeated, and, in accordance with the cheerful practice of that country, have committed "hari-kari."

THE famine reports from India are still highly favorable. It is estimated that 750,000 people have died from starvation since the beginning of the famine....Gen. Todleben, the defender of Sebastopol, has been appointed Chief-of-Staff of the army under the Prince of Roumania, now investing Plevna.

ROCHEFORT'S organ in Paris, the Mot d' Ordre, having been suppressed for the third time, has ceased to exist altogether....Gambetta has formally lodged an appeal against the sentence passed upon him by the Correctional Tribunal.

SOMETHING of a sensation has been caused in England by the discovery that the officers of the Midland Railway Company have been appropriating the property and funds of the corporation to their own use. Some of the guilty parties have been arrested....A London dispatch announces the death of Madame Teresa Titiens, the famous operatic prima donna.

BUSINESS INTERESTS.

CHARLESTON, S. C., is shipping wheat to England.

THE Quebec Government is trying to promote beet-root sugar-making.

THE papers of Atlanta, Savannah and Augusta, Ga., report trade at their respective centers as more satisfactory than it has been at any season since the war.

LOUISIANA sugar lands capable of producing 2,000 to 5,000 pounds of sugar and 12 to 320 gallons of molasses, valued at $200 to $500, can be purchased at from $15 to $40 per acre.

CALIFORNIA'S wool growth is becoming one of her greatest industries, the exports last year having been over fifty millions of pounds, worth $8,000,000. There are several wool-growers who own from thirty to forty thousand sheep each.

AT the bankers' convention in New York the prevailing opinion seemed to be in favor of resumption as proposed by the Sherman act, and also that no banks issue bills of less denomination than $5; thus favoring the use of silver for all less sums.

WITH regard to the recent visit of members of the Syndicate to Washington, the New York World says it is understood it was to complete the accounts of the 4½ per cent. loan, of which they have taken $200,000,000. Of this, $15,000,000 is to be reserved for resumption purposes, and it is also stipulated that a similar amount, to be received from the sale of the 4 per cents., is to be used for the same object.

ACCORDING to the New York Sun, the merchants of that city say "there is a marked change for the better in the state of trade. The wholesale dealers are crowded with business, and orders are reaching them, thick and fast, from everywhere in the West and South. Men who, day after day, within the past few years, uttered the words, 'Business is very dull,' have begun to say, 'We have our hands full of business.'"

FROM various portions of the Northwest there are evidences of a steady stream of immigration to the Southern and Southwestern States, and indications that this current will become stronger and wider during the present fall and winter season. The Chicago Journal reports that many families are leaving that city daily for Texas and Florida, and the number of inquirers and seekers after information is steadily on the increase.

AT the annual meeting of the stockholders of the Northern Pacific railroad, held in New York, the other day, the report for the last year and up to September, 1877, showed gross earnings of the year $965,823; expenses, $573,124; leaving a balance of $392,699, or an increase of nearly 25 per cent. over last year. The report urges that Congress be petitioned to pass a bill extending the time for the construction and completion of the road to the Pacific, and sets forth advantages to accrue to the country by its construction. Charles B. Wright, of Pennsylvania, was elected President.

THE exportation of cattle and beef to England, which started up so suddenly a few months ago and expanded so rapidly, is already on the decline. The large firm of Samuels Bros., in New York, who made the first shipments of live cattle, failed the other day, and they declare that the business is a losing one, owing to the inevitable losses of stock on the voyage. Fresh beef fares but little better than live stock, owing to the immense difficulty experienced in keeping it fresh and sweet while on the water. Another firm in the same city, however, claims to have done fairly well at the trade.

FOR the first time in five years a cargo of coal has arrived in Boston from Newcastle and been sold at a profit, and more is on the way. The Gas Company is the only purchaser as yet, but there will soon be a large market for English coal in Massachusetts, unless the price of Pennsylvania coal is reduced. The reason of this trade-phenomenon is plainly set forth in the American Gas Light Journal, which lays the blame upon the railroad companies and their studious interference with the coal companies. The freight-agents now dictate the price at which coal is sold, the markets to which it is sent, and other matters which have heretofore been considered solely at the discretion of the coal operators. The price has thus been fixed above the cost of coal in England, with freight added; and the shrewd Boston men are seeking the cheapest market.

Regulated Production.

Dr. Holland, in speaking of this topic in Scribner for October, says:

"Now, for a series of years, labor and capital alike have been in trouble. Capital has not been able to buy labor, because it could not sell its product. Labor has not been able to buy anything, because it could not earn anything to offer in exchange. It has seemed like an irremediable dead-lock. We look for better times, but they do not come, and there appears to be no mind so gifted with foresight as to be able to predict the date of renewed prosperity. Machinery in vast and multiplied organizations, and capital in large accumulations, lie idle, while labor lives from hand to mouth and waits for something to do. In the mean time, fictitious values have died out, speculation sleeps, and at what point matters can possibly begin to improve surpasses conjecture. Large exportations of produce may start consumption again, and so set capital and labor at work; but nobody knows anything about it.

"Of this one fact, however, all men at this time have come to be well aware, viz., that we have the machinery and the labor for producing more of the ordinary materials required in civilized life than we can sell. The further fact, to which we have already alluded, that 'the law of demand and supply' works clumsily, and often disastrously, when left to itself, is also pretty definitely apprehended. There would seem, therefore, to be no alternative policy but that of 'regulated production.' That this is possible in limited spheres has already been abundantly proved. There is at this time in Massachusetts a society of paper-makers who are intelligently and successfully 'regulating' the production of their mills. They understand that if they run their mills day and night, as they did when business was good, they will produce paper in such quantities as to raise the price of stock and reduce the price of paper, as well as glut the market. So, by keeping the supply as nearly even with the demand as possible, they manage to run their mills half-time—and make a profit on which they and their employes can live. This is what may be called 'regulated production;' and we know of no reason why the policy may not be adopted by every manufacturing interest in the country."

Dead in Each Other's Arms.

Abner James was an undertaker in Zanesville, Ohio. He and his wife did not live happily together, although they had been married but fourteen months. Recently they left that city together to visit the wife's mother, but they never reached there. The bodies of both were found lying in a fence corner, about 300 yards from the house. The husband had a bullet-hole in his breast, and the wife one in the temple and another in the region of the heart. They were tightly locked in each other's arms, and in the left hand of the wife, held as in a vise, was a revolver, with which it is supposed the dreadful deed was done. How they came to their death is a mystery, as no one saw the fearful tragedy enacted. The supposition is, however, that the wife first shot the husband, and then put the two bullets into her own body before death came. There was no indication of any struggle, and it is supposed that it was a plan mutually agreed upon to put a final quietus upon all their earthly sorrows.

Horse-Shoeing in Russia and Turkey.

According to the reports of travelers in Turkey and Russia, they seem to have very awkward ways of shoeing horses in those countries, compared with the simple method prevalent in America. In Turkey the horse's head is held by one man, another holds the leg, while a third operates on the foot. In Russia the horse is placed in a rough wooden cage and firmly strapped to cross-bars of the frame-work; his head is also tied, and the foot is fastened to a stake in the ground, and held by an attendant while the smith puts on the shoe.

GRANT INTERVIEWED.

He Unburdened His Mind Concerning the Sumner and Motley Unpleasantness.

A New York Herald correspondent, who lately interviewed ex-President Grant in Scotland, reports the following conversation:

The correspondent said: "I see reference in the newspaper eulogies of Mr. Motley to your position toward that officer, and the intimation that your action was one of the remote causes of his death?"

"Yes, I have read it, and it does me great injustice. Motley was certainly a very able, very honest gentleman—fit to hold any official position. But he knew long before he went out that he would have to go. When I was making these appointments Sumner came to me and asked me to appoint Motley as Minister to the Court of St. James. I told him I would, and I did. Soon after Sumner made that violent speech about the Alabama claims, and the British Government was greatly offended. Sumner was at the time Chairman of the Committee on Foreign Affairs. Motley had to be instructed. The instructions were prepared very carefully, and, after Gov. Fish and I had gone over them for the last time, I wrote an addendum charging him that above all things he should handle the subject of Alabama claims with the greatest delicacy. Mr. Motley, instead of obeying his explicit instructions, deliberately fell into line with Sumner, and thus added insult to previous injury. As soon as I heard of it I sent to the State Department and told Mr. Fish to dismiss Motley at once. I was very angry, indeed, and I have been sorry many a time since that I did not stick to my first determination. Fish advised delay because of Sumner's position in the Senate and his attitude on the treaty question. We did not want to stir him up then. We dispatched a note of severe censure to Motley at once, and ordered him to abstain from any further connection with that question. We thereupon commenced negotiations with the British Minister at Washington, and the result was a joint high commission and the Geneva award. I supposed Motley would be manly enough to resign after that snub, but he kept on till he was removed. Mr. Sumner promised me he would vote for the treaty, but when it was first before the Senate he did all he could to beat it. I must tell you an incident about Sumner. The first time I ever saw George William Curtis he called upon me to request on behalf of a number of influential Republicans the reinstatement of Sumner as Chairman of the Committee on Foreign Affairs. I told him that if I should go to the Senate and dictate the organization of committees I would be apt to hear something about the fellow who made a fortune by minding his own business. I said I certainly should suggest the idea to any part of the legislative branch that should undertake to construct my Cabinet. I gave him distinctly to understand that I did not propose to interfere in the matter at all, even by advice to personal friends among the Senators, and that I thought Sumner had not done his duty as Chairman of the committee because he had hampered the business of the State Department by pigeonholing treaties for months. Mr. Curtis said that was impossible, for Sumner had only a short time before told him that his successor would find a clean docket, and made special claims for the execution of the work of the committee. Knowing, as I did, the adroit arguments used among Sumner's friends, I determined to test the matter of a clean docket. I told Curtis that I had proposed to prove to him that his friend Sumner had not told him the facts, and that he made statements knowing them to be falsehoods. Curtis was amazed at my offer, but I assured him that he had been frequently caught in similar misrepresentations. I told Curtis that there were ten or eleven treaties before the Senate from the State Department that had been there several months, and had been in Sumner's hands, but had never been laid before the committee. I wrote from the spot—Long Branch—to the State Department, and, to my own surprise, there proved to be more treaties than I said there had been, and in Sumner's own hands, for a longer time than I expected. That was the "clean docket." When I told Curtis about it and gave him the record he was rather disappointed. He said it was remarkable. I told him my object in having the record searched up was to show him that Sumner was not a truthful man, as others had found out before me, and as I had discovered on frequent occasions. The work of that committee when Cameron took charge was in a most deplorable state, due entirely to Sumner's persistent obstructiveness and dilatoriness. I had nothing to do with his dismissal from the Chairmanship of the Foreign Relations Committee, but I was glad when I heard that he was put off, because he stood in the way of even routine business, like ordinary treaties with small countries. I may be blamed for my opposition to Sumner's tactics, but I was not guided so much by reason of his personal hatred of myself as I was by a desire to protect our national interests in diplomatic affairs. It was a sad sight to find a Senate with a large majority of its members in sympathy with the administration, and with its Chairman of the Foreign Committee in direct opposition to the foreign policy of the administration in theory and detail. So I was glad when I heard of his successor's nomination as Chairman of the committee.

Anecdotes of Gov. T. M. Randolph.

Th Charlottesville (Va.) Chronicle relates the brief stories of one of the Governors of the Old Dominion: "An elderly gentleman of this county, who well recollects Gov. Thomas Mann Randolph, represents him to have been a man of remarkable activity and great physical power, although his weight was but 130 pounds. It is related that a mad dog once came to Monticello and ensconced himself under the portico. Col. Randolph ran for his pistol, but found to his dismay that there was no powder on the premises with which to load it. In this dilemma Col. Randolph resorted to a curious expedient, and accomplished a daring feat. Incasing his left arm heavily with woolen cloths, he took his dirk in the right, and boldly attacked the rabid brute. Presenting his left arm, the dog immediately seized it, when he was dispatched with the dirk with a single thrust. It is said that Col. Randolph would frequently swim rivers when out of their banks rather than go out of his way to a bridge. Upon one occasion, having sold a horse to a friend, he told the purchaser some weeks afterward that he had forgotten to inform him that the animal would sometimes shy at logs when swimming. Meriwether Lewis Randolph, a son of Gov. Thomas Mann, was also a man of great physical strength. It is related that he once carried 1,000 pounds' weight across a room in Shadwell mills.

Cost of Transportation Before the Railroad.

That there was need for new methods of intercommunication, the increasing population made every day more apparent. In 1874 the cost of transportation from Philadelphia to Erie is stated to have been $249 a ton, the method being by pack-horses principally, which were in lines of ten or twelve, each horse being tied to the tail of the one preceding, so that the train was under the management of a single driver. Each horse carried a pack weighing about 200 pounds. In 1789 the first saw-mill in Ohio was built by the New England Ohio Company, about sixteen miles from Marietta, on Wolf creek, about one mile above its junction with the Muskingum. The crank for this mill was made in New Haven, Ct., and weighed 180 pounds. It was carried by pack-horses over the mountains to the Youghiogheny river, at Simrel's ferry, and thence shipped by water to Marietta. This same year the first wagon-load of goods is said to have been transported by the southern route through Virginia from Hagerstown, Md., to Brownsville, Pa., whence, by the Monongahela, water communication was had with the Ohio river. A train of four horses could take a ton from Hagerstown and return in a little less than a month, the distance being 140 miles, at a charge of $3 a 100-weight, or $60 a ton. * * *

The operations on the lakes during the war of 1812 called attention again to the cost of transportation, and in 1818 the House directed the Secretaries of War and of the Treasury to report at the next session a list of the internal improvements in progress, and plans for aiding them by appropriations. In the discussion upon this motion, it was stated that the expense for the transportation of each barrel of flour to Detroit was not less than $60, while for every pound of ammunition and other material it was not less than 50 cents.—Harper's Magazine for September.

Trouble Among the Mormons.

The Mormon Church in Utah is sadly divided, or dividing, against itself, since the late Prophet's death. First, the polygamous branch is being strongly opposed by the monogamists; second, the followers of young John W. Young are dissatisfied with the decision to let old John P. Taylor and the "Twelve Apostles" do the church-ruling; and, thirdly—but probably not lastly—Pratt and Smith, two of the most prominent of the "Saints," who have been away in Europe for several months, are ill-contented with everything that has been or is being done, and are hastening home, accompanied by 200 converts, to straighten out affairs according to their own notions. Look out for a grand tumble of the structure that Joe Smith built and Brigham Young "finished."—Chicago Journal.

Toads.

